To the Editor:

I'd like to explain how bad full costing is for students. Currently the Bursars Office employees are paid by the State of Massachusetts. Full costing envisions their salaries being paid by each trust fund that uses the Bursars for billing such as dormitories, Dining Commons, Health Services, Campus Center, FAC, Athletics, etc. (Each fee on your semester bill goes into a separate trust fund.) Therefore, all these fees will increase to cover the increased costs. That's exactly what our Trustees did last week.

The Trustees are doing this as a way of freeing up state funds. When the state realizes the budgetary savings they may decide UMASS doesn't really need as much money and reduce allocations for the next fiscal year. Taken to an extreme, it could reult in students paying for almost everything at a so called "State University".

The most ridiculous extreme of full costing would be the students paying for the President's salary. We're very close to that already. The President's office is supported through the interest on each of the trust funds on campus. According to the research I've done, this seems to be illegal under Chapter 75 Section 10 of Mass General Laws (the laws of the Commonwealth that set up UMASS Amherst, the section dealing with trustfunds.) It seems the student should be suing the President's Office for stealing money from our trust funds rather than paying more through increased fees.

Barbara Jean Curtis
Belchertown

Bad but it's not a Depression

Hearing the Democrats bray over the unemployment situation today, one would have the impression that President Reagan came into office at a time of national utopia, waved his magic wand, and instantly invoked an evil curse upon the land. For example, the Democrats seem determined to blame this current recession on Ronald Reagan, thus allowing them to play the role of savior in 1984. However, according to the National Bureau of Economic Research (the cyclical watchdog of the national economy) the current recession actually began in July of 1981. Since the President's economic program was not even officially enacted until July 30, 1981, the blame belongs instead with former President Jimmy Carter and his five economic policies.

Katherine Curda

As to today's high unemployment, no one considers it to be a minor problem. Yet Democratic and media attempts to make the American people believe its as bad as the Depression are way off the mark. When one looks at employment figures it is important to note the statistic known as the employment ratio, which shows the absolute percentage of the total adult population over 16 that is employed. As of 1983, the U.S. employment ratio is roughly 56.7 percent of its adult population. This compares favorably with the 56.0 percent ratio during the boon years of the 1960's, and certainly better than the 1933 Depression ratio of 41.8 percent. Thus the U.S. is now employing a higher percentage of its workforce than at almost any other time in history. When comparing 1983 with the Depression of the 1930's it is also important to note that during the 1981-82 recession the employment ratio went from 58.5-56.7 percent, or a loss of 3 percent. However during the 1929-33 Depression the employment ratio fell from 53.9-41.8 percent, or a 22.4 percent loss. Thus, even as people are losing jobs in some areas, many others are finding them as well. The United States today is a nation caught in the midst of a changing world and no quick fix will solve our problems.

It should be noted, however, that this steady rise in the percentage of Americans employed has led to other problems. This continually expanding labor force has led to more competition for jobs at a time of limited economic growth. According to a report put out by the Joint Economic Commission of Congress, during the years 1960-79, the teenage labor force rose from 44-58 percent, working women rose from 37-51 percent, while males over 20 (the most traditional workers) decreased from 86-80 percent. Thus today we have the phenomenon of both young people and women competing for jobs against the traditional male worker. This was not such a problem during the pre-inflation 60's when women were often in the kitchen and kids didn't always have to get a job. 40 percent of todays high unemployment figures come from young people under 25, rather from their mothers and fathers, who, after all, usually are the real bread winners in the family. These statistics also do not show how many jobs are lost to illegal aliens and union workers who have bargained themselves large pay raises that leave little room for the employment of more workers.

Another important factor about unemployment that the Democrats and the media seem to forget is that the bad statistics do not apply equally to every region or city in the country. Detroit and Pittsburg may be suffering from unemployment rates of 18 and 15 percent, but Boston and Denver are managing rather well with rates of only 5.4 and 6.8 percent. It should also be remembered that we are in a world wide recession in which most of our friends are doing even worse. In Canada, under the back-door socialism of Pierre Trudeau, unemployment is around 12 percent, while inflation is raging at 12-14 percent despite the drop in oil prices. In France, under the front door socialism of President Mitterand, unemployment rose two percentage points to 9.5 percent, inflation has been barely held in check at 10 percent by faltering wage and price controls and interest rates remain too high to spur economic growth. Massive government spending has done little to solve economic problems, but it has managed to make things worse.

In conclusion, according to the criteria of unemployment, Reaganomics appears not to be working, yet neither is Trudeau-economics or Mitterand-economics. However, according to the criteria of lower inflation and declining interest rates, two factors crucial for a strong recovery, only Reaganomics appears to be working. We must not turn our backs on the unemployed for many of them are in true need, but if we allow ourselves to panic and institute massive spending programs, we will have destroyed all the progress made so far and a healthy, growing economy, (the best means for curing unemployment) will once again slip from our grasp.

Katherine Curda is a Collegian columnist

We put on a full court press to bring you these prices.

"Dr. J" All Star®
High Cut
$33.00
Reg. $44.99
Low Cut
$31.00
Reg. $41.99

Converse® "Pro-Star"
$45.00
Reg. $59.00

"Chuck Taylor" All Star®
$15.00
Reg. $19.99

CONVERSE

It takes more than natural ability to out-perform the competition.
It takes determination. That's as true in our game as it is in yours.
At Olympian, we're determined to stay one step ahead of the competition.
Not just in price, but with quality brand name basketball shoes.
Which means at Olympian, you not only get a price break,
but a chance to improve your fast break, too.

OLYMPIAN
We thrive on competition.
Hampshire Mall, Rte. 9, Hadley.

Black Affairs

Coach Banda's success is becoming a sports fixture

By TRACY ROBBINS
Collegian Correspondent

At first glance, women's soccer chieftan, Kenny Banda, is all that he appears to be and more. He is tall and commanding, amiable and earthy, and by watching his face as he talks about his job, it is apparent that he loves coaching.

Banda has been head coach of the women's soccer team here at the University of Massachusetts for the past three years, while simultaneously coaching indoor and outdoor women's track.

Coach Banda enjoys working with the track team because he likes being part of a process that is responsible for the emergence of women's athletics. "I promote the involvement of my teams with the Coaches Association of the Northeast," Banda said. "It shows people who we are."

Throughout the world of women's college soccer, Banda is well known. After graduating from UMass in 1975, he returned to his native country of Malawi, in southeastern Africa. There he assumed the position of 'Sports Officer,' a national coach responsible for recruiting the top talent in that country for international, and eventually Olympic competition.

As Sport's Officer, he came in contact with coaching both sexes, and honed his talent for coaching female athletes.

Without making any direct commitment Banda implied that soccer is his first love. Prior to his appointment as head soccer coach here, Banda worked as a volunteer with the women's soccer club. He officially became the head coach in 1980.

When asked if coaching two varsity teams at one time causes conflicts, he quipped, "Do you see my desk?"

Banda could be accused of being a workaholic. Twice a week, he arrives at the gym at 6:45 a.m. to coach off-season soccer practice. "It gives the girls a chance to pick up strategies they may have missed during the regular season," Banda said.

"During the spring we travel to tournaments with surrounding schools as an auxiliary season." Through the dedication that Banda shows his team, it is easy to see that he has become a popular coach among his girls.

When asked how he feels about his popularity he smiled and denied it was so. "I just love my job to the best of my ability. I am honest and I love what I do. Coaching is my hobby."

Collegian file photo by Nancy Gaster

Coach Kenny Banda continues to win matches and high school's top talent.

For the second consecutive year, Coach Banda has taken the women's soccer team to the quarter-finals of the NCAA championship.

The team finished with a 15-4-0 record, with 14 shutouts and allowed only one goal at home. The Minutewomen were ranked 5th in the national rankings.

With the soccer team's success, the season was highlighted by a special honor bestowed upon Banda. He was named New England Region Coach of the Year by the National Soccer Coaches Association. The Minutewomen's achievements have been attributed to Coach Banda's ability to utilize a variety of combinations and substitutions.

Characteristically modest, Banda feels that because of the team's national exposure, players of a higher caliber are now attracted to the school. He and his coaching staff can hand pick the best players that high schools have to offer.

"We no longer have quantity, but quality also," Banda said. "The team is selected from players from all over the country, although our strongest pull is still from New England."

Banda's coaching strategy includes starting freshmen. "The girls are coming out of high school with an average of eight years playing experience," he said. "Our program is very competitive and it takes a strong mind to handle the pressure. Those that have what it takes make the team."

Clearly Banda is happy doing what he does. He is an example of a worker content with his position in life, and that is more than many people can say, and again unlike many people he seems to be driven not by money, but by his love for his job.

"If I was a millionaire I would do this for free," and he believes that we all would.

Legendary composer dead, spirit sure to live on

By AUGUSTO MARTINS
Collegian Staff

Five days after celebrating his 100th birthday Eubie Blake, a pianist and composer died of natural causes at his home in Brooklyn last Saturday, February 12th. Born on February 7th, 1883 to former slaves in Baltimore, Blake was introduced to his lifelong career at age six when he saw an organ in a department store and began to play. Seeing his interest in music, his mother sent him to a music teacher who taught him classical music for six years.

By age fifteen Blake secretly worked as a ragtime piano player in a local brothel. After a 1901 tour with Dr. Frazier's Medicine Show, Blake made his New York debut in 1902 as a buck dance in the musical "In Old Kentucky." After he got his start the sky appeared to be the limit as to where he could go. His number of compositions tallied in the 300 plus category and among his most popular works were "I'm just wild about Harry" and "Memories of You."

Blake made his fame primarily through the musical language of Ragtime. This was a musical form which required an awful lot of style. Blake himself had said that he never considered himself to be a good player, but others felt differently.

"Ragtime is difficult to play, particularly for people who haven't heard it," said music writer Max Morath. "Piano players can play the note but the style is another story. Eubie's got the kind of style that few can duplicate."

He lived a life that spanned a hundred years. Anyone who may have seen him, celebrating his 100th birthday on network TV early last week would summize that he did live and function 100 years in a way that most only could envy.

The sometime ugly fate of dissipation was not ugly at all for Eubie Blake. For a man who was said to have smoked cigarettes daily for the better part of his life, and who woke up to a shot of some king of liquor daily, he was truly a fortunate individual.

He appeared to be the same Eubie Blake that all would remember right to his last days. He was lively and vibrant, coherent in his speech and elegant and proud in his manner.

He had the type of personality reminiscent of somebody's grandparent who always has a cheerful word to add to one's day if they were fortunate enough to catch your ear. A king of magnetic personality that would make one put off whatever they might be doing whenever his face appeared on the television.

There are so many things one could equate with the name Eubie Blake, so many adjective to describe this music giant who lived and inspired so many for the better part of a century.

The only difficult connection left to make now is that Eubie Blake is dead. Somehow one might have had the feeling that he would never die. There was certain feeling of immortality that could be attached to Blake. Others die, some more famous and definitely younger than he and we accept it, it's been said that death is the most certain thing about life.

Think about the last time you saw him on T.V. Mike Douglas, Merv Griffin, maybe even the Tonight Show. His charisma made you forget just how old he really was, and his charm made his age seem irrelevant.

I bet many would not mind having the awareness at 70 that Blake possessed right up to his death.

Eubie Blake is dead, it is finally sinking in. But there is no reason for any long-term mourn. Because right up to his last days he was as delightful a human being as has lived in this country.

Perhaps it is only fitting that his passing should take place during Black History Month, but even if it hadn't Eubie Blake has left America, not just Black America, with a spirit of richness and legacy of goodness that any civilized people on earth would be happy to claim.

Eubie Blake at 96 when photo was taken now dead at age 100.

Try Our New SPEEDY LUNCH 11:30-2:30 Daily
Orders Prepared Immediately (If Not Sooner)
Sandwich with a cup of soup Different Every Day
Only $2.40
Good Now Thru Feb. 14, 1983
Valuable Coupons
BREAKFAST SPECIAL
2 Eggs
2 Pancakes
2 Strips Bacon
2 Links Sausage
Reg. $2.55 with this coupon
2 for $3.99
Please present coupon when ordering. Coupon expires Feb. 14, 1983. Served all day anytime. C
FISH DINNER
Our Famous Batter-Dipped Fillets English Style - Served with French Fries, or Baked Potato, Cole Slaw, Roll & Butter.
Reg. $3.25 with this coupon 2 for $5.49
Please present coupon when ordering. Coupon expires Feb. 14, 1983. Served 11 am - 10 pm C
James H. McManus eating place
CAMPUS SHOPPING PLAZA RTE. 9, HADLEY, 586-5666
Order one great new Bermuda Burger
either reg size at $2.65 or jumbo 6 oz size $2.95 get the 2nd one ½ price
Bermuda Burger includes juicy chopped beef on a toasted roll, full union of onion rings, lettuce and tomato.
Expires Feb. 14, 1983 C

$88.
That's what your Campus Center fee this year was.
Where does that money go? Do you care?
The Campus Center/Student Union Board of Governors is the governing body of the CC/SU Complex.
WE CARE. The BOG funds:
Union Program Council
Governors Program Council
The Craft Shop
The Art Gallery
The Cable System
The B.O.G. is responsible for the allocation of student office space, the Economic Development of the Co-ops, and overseeing the general operations of the Campus Center.
GET INVOLVED
Nomination papers for the Campus Center/Student Union Board of Governors are available in Room 420, Student Union.

GENUINE

Budweiser.
KING OF BEERS.

GENUINE

INTRAMURAL HIGHLIGHTS

Racraation Facility Weakend Schedula:
Sat 19 Fab thru Mon 21 Fabruary 1983
Curry Hicks Building and NOPE Building Closed
Boydan Building
Sat. 19 Fab & Mon. 21 Fab 10 am - 5:30 pm
Sun. 20 Fab noon - 7:30 pm
Boyden Pool:
Sat 19 Fab closed. . swim meet Sun 12:30 pm - 7:30 pm
Mon 12 pm - 5:30 pm

Wrestlers. Tournament rates have been changed to the following.
Weigh-In 28 February, Monday, 4:30 pm - 9:30 pm
Matches begin Tues 1 March 6 pm
Practice time remains tu/th 6 pm - 7:30 pm

Shooter of the week
Female Janet Miller, Misfits 15 points
Male Leo Flotran, Alpha Delta Phi 24 points
Co-Rec Female, Val Singleton, Crowd Pleasers. . .42 points
Co-Rec Male, Mike Rose, PTA's 8 points

Cross Country Skiing race was held Monday 14 February at 4:30 pm, Bill Tharion won with the time of 26:30 closely followed by Dave Folweiler at 26:26

Shoot Straight Statewida Tournament (repeat of last week) here is your chance to do your part for the American Cancer Society, four dollars will get you a T-shirt and a chance to win a pair of sneakers, and a chance to play at Boston Garden. Sign-up at the Intramural Office, 215 Boyden Building. Scheduled date is Saturday 19 Feb, Boyden Basketball Courts, 9 am - 5:30 pm. Open bracket (college age and over) will shoot from 4 pm - 5:30 pm

this Buds for you!

You May Be Qualified To Enroll In One Of The Prestigious Colleges Of Chiropractic In The Nation

NORTHWESTERN COLLEGE OF CHIROPRACTIC

College credits you've already earned may well qualify you for enrollment at Northwestern College, one of the highly regarded chiropractic training centers in the nation.

If you are motivated by a desire to help your fellow man, and desire the prestige and security afforded by a career in the health care field, Northwestern College of Chiropractic can help you achieve your goals.

For more information, complete the coupon below and mail to Northwestern College of Chiropractic. Enrollment is limited, so do it today!

Please send me information on Northwestern College of Chiropractic. OR Call collect at (612) 690-1735 and ask for Admissions.

Name _____
Address _____
City _____ State _____ Zip _____
Current level of Education: _____
Send to:
Admissions Office, Northwestern College of Chiropractic, 1834 South Mississippi Boulevard, St. Paul, MN 55116.

CALCULATOR CENTER

Basic Business Scientific

PRICE BREAK!

HP11C
$75.00
our reg ~~84.00~~
org List 100.00

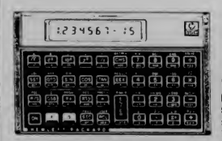
HP-11c

Dedicated scientific functions for quick answers to computations
Easy-to-learn programming with up to 203 program lines
Handy program editing tools
Continuous Memory saves your programs and data
HP-11C Slim-line Programmable Scientific

HP - 12C
$99.00
our reg ~~134.00~~
org list 150.00

HP 15C
$99.00
our reg ~~135.00~~
org list 115.00

Let the Hewlett-Packard HP-15C with its powerful functions and advanced programmability eliminate your most tedious calculations.
Matrix operations
Complex functions
Solve and Integrate
448 program lines
Insert/delete editing
RPN logic, Continuous Memory, and liquid-crystal display



HP - 10C
$59.00
our reg ~~65.00~~
o~~t~~ 80.00

Hewlett-Packard's lowest-priced programmable ever! The new HP-10C scientific calculator can make problem solving easier with:
70 Program Lines, Conditinal Branching
Built-in Trigonometric and Statistics Functions
RPN Logic, Merged Keycodes
Continuous Memory
Liquid-Crystal Display

HP 16C
$99.00
our reg ~~134.00~~
org list 150.00

See how the Hawlett-Packard HP-16C can save you time with its built-in functions and advanced programmability
Binary, octal, decimal, hexadecimal conversions and operations
Boolean AND, OR, NOT, XOR
203 program lines or 101 16-bit data registers
Sets word size, 1's and 2's complement, unsigned modes
Floating-point decimal mode
RPN logic, Continuous Memory, and liquid-crystal display

OPEN
Mon - Fri 9-5
Sat 11-4

Located in the Campus Center

UNIVERSITY STORE

Arts

Live Wire

by Dave Chevan

Special concerts and local favorites are the highpoint of this weekend's entertainment scene. I'll fill in the exciting details in a second.

First, I'd like to consider a more serious subject. The music industry has never been known for its altruism and the events of the past week highlight its callousness. Eubie Blake, a man who helped shape the sound of popular music died last weekend. For at least thirty years of his life this man was ignored completely by the music industry. In the 1920's, when Eubie Blake was big, everyone wanted to record him. As the music he perfected became less popular, he was dropped like a rock. Then, no more than ten years ago, his music was rediscovered. Eubie Blake had been working all this time as a professional pianist, but the music industry had forgotten him. The great irony is that it took turning one-hundred to give Eubie Blake the national recognition he deserved. Even greater than this irony was his death this past Saturday. Music has gone through considerable changes since the turn of the century, but its cold hearted ability the predecessors of each generation has not changed.

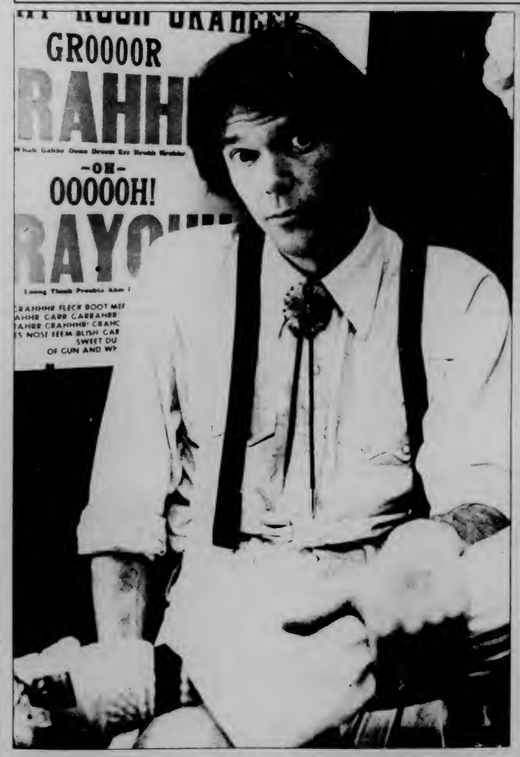
Music goers tonight may find their choices limited; Hot Acoustics is playing at the Bluewall, and Justin is playing at the Rusty Nail. Friday night may be the night you won't know where to go first. Wild Kingdom, the Human Sexual Response tribute band is at the Hangar One, Kaspar Hauser is at the Bluewall, Willow Creek is at the Wok, and the Pleasure Dots will be at Sheehan's Cafe.

Saturday night features Eric Preston's Jimi Hendrix show at the Hangar, Arabus at the Wok, and the Race at the Rusty Nail.

Sunday afternoon the Iron Horse Coffeehouse will present a concert well worth attending. Pianist George Winston will perform at the Academy of Music. Winston's music is often compared to Keith Jarret, but in a recent Downbeat Winston mentions fifties rock and roll, New Orleans jazz, and heavy metal as influences. All this from the man who is considered a master of ethereal.

Legendary Chicago blues performer Son Seals will perform at the Iron Horse Coffeehouse on Tuesday, February 22.

Next Tuesday night there are two concerts so good I don't know which to recommend over the other. At the Iron Horse Coffeehouse will be a special show for blues afficionados. Son Seals, a man with the reputation of living legend, will perform two shows, at seven and ten o'clock. If wild blues guitar playing isn't your speed, there is a concert at Bowker Auditorium in Stockbridge Hall featuring the music and playing of UMass professor Jeff Holmes. Holmes writes the original material for the Valley Big Band in addition to charts for National Acts. This concert is free and features a composition about Sunderland's most famous landmark, Bub's Barbecue, home of the greasiest ribs in the East. So, ribs or blues, either way you choose, its rock 'N roll. Till next week, yeah.



Neil Young performed at the Hartford Civic Center last Thursday night.

Neil never sleeps

NEIL YOUNG
Thursday, February 10
Hartford Civic Center, Hartford

By TIMOTHY P. MERRITT
Collegian Correspondent

That the whole affair was governed by a larger-than-life white screen that posed as a giant TV, should have clued me in that this wasn't going to be a normal concert event. Indeed, wasn't the singer trying to make us all feel at home by supplying the comforts we would have had in our own living rooms?

Then that must be it. He was allowing us to feel at home; in his home.

Me and some 10,000 other strangers.

At $11.75 a piece (cost of ticket plus current service charge) the musician/songwriter was offering to sit down in his 'living room' and pick out some of our (his?) favorite tunes.

Neil Young proved how difficult a task this could be, and he did it early on Thursday night.

Employing the biggest gag scene since the Emperor's New Clothes, a large projector screen was hauled onto the stage, enabling us to view the pre-concert interviews which had been so tediously scheduled. How emotional they seemed! (a CSN roadie tells us of the keen photos he has of Springsteen and the Stones).

Periodically, the interviewer would announce that Neil was backstage warming up and not to worry because tonight's performance was "gonna be real good". However, he cautioned, we were going to have to sit in our own seats before the singer would appear.

Sure enough, as if through prophesy, the words spoken came to bear. As we sat 10,000 plus strong, each in our own seat, eyes transfixed on the empty chair in the living room, the man entered.

He strode across the stage peering into the crowd that was now on its feet stamping and shouting, relieved that the volatile singer, who had cancelled so many engagements without notice in the past, was here now and ready to perform.

How sweet his cracked voice sounded on those first few lines of Sugar Mountain ("with the harkers and the colored balloons"). The soaring notes from his harp covered the hall while he strummed his Hank Williams guitar. A set of synthesized drums enabled him to create a backbeat by stamping his feet on the stage floor.

And it was good!

Or was it?

We had been waiting so long to see the Canadian-born singer, it had to be good. The music was sweet, vintage Young. But the sarcasm that ensued!

"Ever been to a circus?"

"Did you see Elvis when they beamed him live from Hawaii?"

"Wasn't that great?"

"Do any of you have children? Yeah, I got a couple."

And more;

The false exit after the first song.

His emphasis on the word 'old' in Heart of Gold (the third song of the evening).

That damned TV!

His motive was obvious.

His darkness and insight brought us here in the first place and caused us to wear out two copies of Gold Rush and Harvest, but now as the notes to 'Helpless' echoed, the man seemed tired, bitter, and pained.

We had just wanted to hear the voice and honor the writer who had touched us with his sincerity. Now, as he sat there in front of us, alone in his 'living room', it was ugly, sad, and awkward. I felt uninvited.

I did what many others did; I left.

As I made my way through the crowded corridor that surrounds the big arena, the words blared through the PA;

"Don't let it bring you down its only castles burning, find someone who's turning,
and you will come around."

Arts Writers Wanted

DIETING?
Try something different. Lose weight sensibly by learning about your eating habits and controlling them. Down with diets! Call UHS 549-2671 ext 174
Starts March 2 & 3

81.2%
In a recent survey of UMass undergrads, 81.2 percent said they read the Collegian regularly, and half of those said they read it every day.
That's more than three times the UMass readers of any other area paper!

Hypercurricula...

"Hypercurricula," a listing of events held at the University of Massachusetts and surrounding area, is published daily in the Collegian. Events are listed only on the day they are taking place. Announcements must be submitted on "Hypercurricula" forms available in the Collegian offices, 113 Campus Center, and returned to the office by 3 p.m. the Friday before the event. All submissions should be written in a similar style as they appear in the paper.

"Hypercurricula" notices not submitted on the standard form and not submitted by the Friday before the week the event will take place will not be run. Due to space limitations, the Collegian cannot guarantee printing of all "Hypercurricula" notices. Priority will be given to UMass organizations.

OLDER STUDENTS 25-PLUS CLUB — "Live It Up" with the 25-plus club every Thursday — meeting and social. Short meeting, long social! Open to all older full-time and part-time undergrads, grad students and UWW students. 7 p.m., Campus Center 805.

COOPERATIVE EDUCATION JOB AND CAREER FAIR — Representatives of 13 companies, agencies, and the Office for Cooperative Education will discuss their organizations, needs and objectives, and cooperative education employment opportunities. 1 to 4 p.m., Campus Center.

WOMEN'S LEADERSHIP PROJECT INTRODUCTORY MEETING — An introductory meeting for a new RSO group. WLP is committed to promoting women's empowerment. We are working on a resource center, networking and programming. All women are invited. 7 p.m., 811-815 Campus Center.

FILM: JOSH MCDOWELL'S "MORE THAN A CARPENTER" — Josh McDowell has spoken to millions of college students in over 50 countries. Come and find out about Biblical archaeology and prophecy. 6:30 p.m., SBA Room 109.

AMATEUR RADIO ASSOCIATION MEETING — We will discuss our upcoming movie. Anyone interested in ham radio is welcome. 7:30 p.m., Campus Center 901.

INTRODUCTORY MEETING OF THE ANTI-RACISM TEAM — Will be held at 4 p.m. in Room 801 at the Campus Center.

ASIAN-AMERICAN MEETING — Welcome back AASA members. Meeting tonight, new members are welcomed to join us to plan for a fun semester. 6:30 p.m., Campus Center 905-09.

UMASS PIRG GENERAL MEETING — Who says students can't make a difference? Come see how you and MASSPIRG can affect changes in environmental, energy and consumer issues. 7 p.m., GC 168.

Ordinary People
Some films you watch, others you feel.
Times: 4, 7, 9, 11 Thurs. Feb. 17
Price: 4:00 show $1, all other shows $1.50 SUB (Student Union Ballroom)

adventura travel 549-1256
Airline tickets
Eurailpasses
Amtrak
233 N. Pleasant St.
Amherst Carriage Shops

ATTACHE CASE,
black, now yours for the taking (from Bartlett lobby Monday aft.); but PLEASE have mercy on 67 students whose papers were inside! Just drop in any Bartlett office. Beaty, English Dept.

With Burt & Dolly this much fun just couldn't be legal!
The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas
COPYRIGHT 1982 SWANK MOTION PICTURES, INC. ALL RIGHTS RESERVED
THE BEST LITTLE WHOREHOUSE IN TEXAS
– Sheila Benson, LOS ANGELES TIMES
– VARIETY
– Robert Osborne, THE HOLLYWOOD REPORTER
DATE Thursday, Feb. 17 TIME 7, 9, 11 PM
PLACE Engineering East ADMISSION $1.50
Head For The Mountains

UMASS SKI CLUB
Sat. Trip
Pico
IN VERMONT
only $18.
Includes:
Lift Ticket
Transportation
Refreshments
$8. deposit Required
SKI CLUB OFFICE
430 STUDENT UNION
Meeting [illegible] 545-3437
Hasta [illegible] 20
Gen Info & Sign Up 4:00 today

Sound & Music's Honest-to-Goodness Washington's Birthday Sale One Day Only Feb. 21 10-8

All Demos 10% OVER COST

maxell. UDXLII C90 Cassettes
2 for $5.49 10 for $25

SONY. TC-FX44
Cassette Deck
with Dolby "C" $189
4 FREE Cassettes with any Cassette Deck

ONKYO TA-2055
Cassette Deck
with real-time and remaining time counter $295

BSR Model 82C Speakers
JVC LA-10 Turntable
AUDIO-TECHNICA M70B Cartridge
ONKYO Tx-11 Receiver
$299

FREE STANTON RC-5 Record Cleaner with any complete system

ONKYO TX-21 Receiver
SONY. PS-LX2 Turntable
Stanton 680EE Cartridge
BostonAcoustics A-60 Speakers
$499

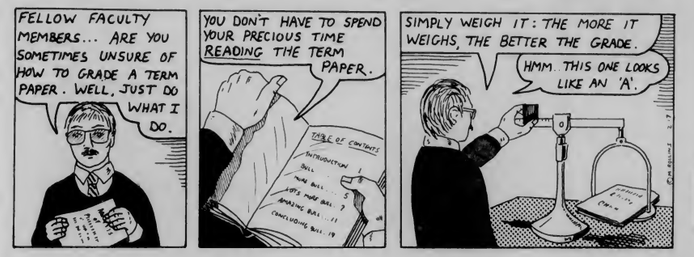
- Teac reel to reel decks from $299
- Pioneer "boom-boxes" from $99
- Nuvox FM walk-abouts from $19
- Jensen 6 x 9 Coax II car speakers $60/pr.
- Many unadvertised specials
- Quantities limited on some items
- No lay-aways on sale items

*Cost is hereby defined as the price on our invoice from the manufacturer or supplier

Sound & Music Good Advice Honest Price
90-92 King Street (Rte. 5), Northampton, 584-9547
Mon.-Wed. 10-6, Thurs., Fri. 10-9, Sat. 10-5

Bloom County By Berke Breathed

The UMass Zone By Mark Rollins



Katfood By ARK

After The Fall By R. Miller

Scrod By Dan DeBellis

WANTED: Someone who knows news

The Collegian is looking for one Associate News Editor to coordinate our coverage of Amherst and the Five College area. Applicants should have some experience reporting news for a newspaper and be willing to work hard for low pay. We will provide some training and great experience. Interested UMass students should apply before next Friday, Feb. 25, to John DiPalazzo at the Collegian, 113 Campus Center, 545-3500.

The Collegian is an equal opportunity employer.

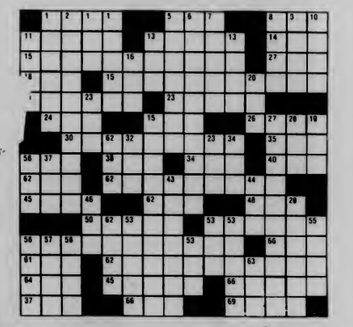
CROSSWORD

Edited by Margaret Farrar and Trude Jaffe
©1983 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

ACROSS
1 Explorer Tasman
5 Relative of a Glengarry
8 Cut shorter
11 Part of a bird's wing
12 —— good will
14 Put —— light
15 Extreme preoccupation with acquiring books
17 Polish
18 Tidal flow
19 Mathematician's talent
21 Like a certain lining
23 Encourages
24 Tar's domain
25 Long past
26 Recipe abbr
30 Wild plum
35 Zoo denizen
36 Feather creation
38 Ben of literature
39 Work unit
40 Also-ran, perhaps
41 Banker's abbr.
42 Reader's choice
45 Coin in Siam
47 Writer's need
48 Quarter circle
50 Dostoevski novel (with "The")
53 Actress Andress
56 Vegetable topping
60 Heelless foot covering
61 Sash for a geisha
62 Justification for existence
64 Brooch
65 Scout's specialties
66 Quechuan people
67 Tennis term
68 Mariner's dir
69 Sunny times

DOWN
1 Plausible excuses
2 Addition to the tub
3 House addition
4 Woolen cloth
5 Afternoon social needs
6 Henry VIII's second
7 Ripple pattern fabric
8 Squander
9 Composer masterpiece
10 Term of endearment
11 Actor Vigoda and namesakes
12 Satisfied sound
13 Racetrack condition
16 On — own
20 Superlative ending
22 Type of lace, for short
25 Back of the heel
27 Business problem
28 Fashionable resort
29 Nail
31 Satisfying exclamations
32 Type of glass
33 Disk or ring
34 Individual person
36 Layette item
37 —— shoestring
43 Sample once more
44 Western Hemisphere org
46 Sesame
49 Barton and namesakes
51 Nightfall
52 Shallow
53 Seagoing initials
54 Performed a decorator's job
55 Experts
56 Relatives of proms
57 Show biz award
58 Serge suit wearer's problem
59 Butterflies
63 Royal name in Spain



ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

F	I	R	S	T	G	I	B	E	S	S	H	E	D
R	A	R	E	L	I	N	U	R	E	P	A	L	E
A	J	A	X	V	I	E	N	A	M	E	A	S	E
T	A	T	T	L	E	R	S	I	E	E	P	E	R
			B	A	N	I	S		O	A	K
A	D	J	O	I	N	H	O	U	S	E	A	N	D
C	R	O	O	M		M	I	T	T	S		L	U	R
R	A	M	P		L	A	P	I	S		O	I	L	O
I	R	I	S		C	O	R	P	S		O	U	I	J
O	P	O	L	A	T	E		Y	U	N	G		O
			C	L	U	B		D	R	U	S	E
P	A	I	N	T	E	R	S		S	T	I	C	K
A	D	E	L	A		I	M	P	E	D		T	A	L
A	N	D	I	O		N	A	T	I	V	E		O	L	A	N
Y	I	E	P	I	S		E	G	I	N	E	T		R	E	I	T	E

weather

Rain beginning by early afternoon except wet snow in the Berkshires. High temperature 35 to 45. Tonight rain changing to snow before ending Friday morning. Low temperature 25 to 35. Tomorrow partly sunny windy and colder with high temperature in the upper 20s to middle 30s.

D.C. MENU

LUNCH
California Quiche
Hot Corned Beef on Rye

BASICS LUNCH
California Quiche
Vegetable Taco

DINNER
Roast Turkey/Dressing, Gravy, Cranberry Sauce
Ham and Cheese Florentine
Fruit Plate with Pumpkin Bread

BASICS DINNER
Cheese Spinach Strudel
Roast Turkey/Dressing, Gravy, Cranberry Sauce

Five-College Students

The Collegian wants to hear what's happening at your school. We need writers to cover news and human interest stories at Amherst College, Hampshire, Smith and Mount Holyoke Colleges. No pay but great experience and the chance to write for one of the finest college newspapers.

If interested, please contact Nancy Gonter or John DiPalazzo at the Collegian, 545-3500, weekday afternoons.

Happy Hour

IT'S NEW!

THURSDAY 3-7 PM

Draft Beer... only 60¢

*Proof of Age Required

LIVE ENTERTAINMENT

the hatch

GROUND FLOOR/STUDENT UNION

CHONA

Coming Soon!

CONTEMPORARY FASHION FOR MEN

MEN

THORNES MARKET
150 MAIN STREET, NORTHAMPTON

THE RAND THEATER
FINE ARTS CENTER

SUBSCRIBE NOW TO SPRING 1983 AT THE RAND THEATER

ASHES
March 3-5, 9-12 at 8:00 pm
David Rudkin's drama of a young couple whose yearning for a child becomes an obsession as the odds turn more and more against them is a work of stunning power — frank, compassionate, laced with ironic humor.

THE COMEDY OF ERRORS
April 7-9, 13-16 at 8:00 pm
This is not your typical Shakespearean play. It isn't romantic and lyrical. It is pure farce, fast and bawdy, peopled with acrobats, jugglers, musicians, and hookers. Think you hate Shakespeare? You'll love THE COMEDY OF ERRORS.

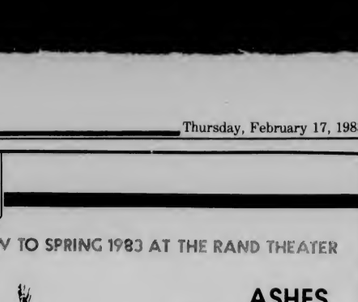
COMPANY
May 5-7, 11-14 at 8:00 pm
This brilliant, sophisticated musical by Stephen Sondheim manages to be very funny about the subject of marriage by taking it very seriously. Set to music that reflects the pulse of Manhattan life, COMPANY is about growing up and becoming human in our times.

SUBSCRIBE TODAY
STUDENTS PAY ONLY *$4.50 TO SEE ALL THREE SHOWS!
Go to the Rand Theater Box Office (Opposite the Fine Arts Center Concert Hall).
The Box Office is Open from 12 Noon, Monday through Friday.
PHONE: 545-3511
* Offer expires Friday, February 25 at 4:00 pm. After that date subscriptions cost $6.00.
Non-students pay a slightly higher subscription rate.

BLUE WALL

CAMPUS CENTER AT UMASS

THURS.



Gary Bertz & Alyce's Violin

FREE

FRI. 18th

HAPPY HOUR 3-6 p.m.

"KASPAR HAUSER"

with special guests "The Time Beings"...$2.00 COVER

UNCLE SAMMY WANTS YOU!

SIGMA ALPHA MU FRATERNITY

Come to our OPEN RUSH

Thurs. Feb. 17th
Wed & Thurs Feb. 23 & 24

"SAMMIES" OFFERS:

* BROTHERHOOD
* PARTIES
* KARATE
* OUR OWN GYM
* LITTLE SISTERS PROGRAM
* HOME COOKED MEALS

Attention All Juniors

applications are still available for the

Mortar Board Honor Society

scholarship - leadership - community involvement

Prerequisite - 3.2+ G.P.A.

Forms may be picked up at the Dean of Students Office

Deadline - February 25th

Any questions call Annemarie 545-2152

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Monday - Friday • Deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10 % • discount • Phone number FREE

AUTO FOR SALE

67 VW Conv inspected needs work $400 or BO 323-5918 leave messa;e

CAPE COD RENTAL

Housemetes wented for summer in Harwich 6 bedrooms cottages available also call 6-5851

CAR PARTS

Saab 96 Parts: transmission, V-4 engine, 1967 brake master cylinder, tach, special edition "Monte Carlo" body, other parts. Call Sam 774-5952 Mon to Fri 1 pm to 5 pm

CRIMSON TRAVEL

Spring Break - Bermuda $289. Daytona $299. Disney $279. More info: Roberta or Steph 549-5320

DAYTONA BEACH

Daytone Beech Spring Break $299. Round trip direct non-stop jet Boston - Daytona. 7 nights Ramada Inn on the beach Free car rental departs Mar 19 Saugus Travel 617-233-8192, 617-289-6221

ELECTIONS

Presidentiel/BOG/Residentiel Committee nomination papers are available 420 SUB until Feb. 18

ENTERTAINMENT

Professionel DJs For Less $99 Winter Speciall Dorms, greeks, Semis. Paul 549-4405

Rackadisc Entertainment Agency Inc. Bands and discjockeys guaranteed student functions 256-0739

FOR RENT

Roommate/s wanted - room in brand new Brittany Manor Apt. heat & hot w. incd. $230 for 1, $156 for 2 - visit 140A2 or call 568-1215 after 6 PM

Two bedroom epartment 325 per month includes utilities available immediately near bus stop call after five 253-7094

Room for rent furnished Northwood Apts negotiable call Tom 665-4284

Cape Cod Summer Seasonel Rentals W. Yarmouth & Dennis, 1, 2, 3, 4 bedroom units. Rent direct from owners. Call 1-617-8300 or 1-617-771-2233

FOR SALE

Poetry Books - 'The Watcher' - $2 + '10 Jewish American Poets' - $4 Call253-5369

ATARI 800 COMPUTERS 48k RAM typewriter keyboard new condition includes BASIC cartridge and manuale $499 546-8638

Large refrigeretor $40 253-3931

Smith Corone electric typewriter $200 John 5-2069 days 549-6543 eves

K2 Skiis For Sale $50 or BO interested? call Margie 256-6612

Electric typewriter one year old $260 sewing machine $65 256-6174

Computer Terminel ADM-3A video terminal good condition Phil 549-6994

BOSE 201 Speekers one month old 150 or BO Dave 546-5359

2 Eric Clepton tickets March 1 Centrum $25. call Jim at 6-7146, Tony 6-7126 nights

Large frig for sele $75 or best offer call Brian 549-6343

Phil Collins Tix - at cost. Call Thurs. afternoon 545-3500 ask for Joel

75 Olds Starfire 6 cyls AM/FM cassette good cond. 1275 253-2016

FOUND

Found a leether cep on Monday if you lost it call Maura 6-9340

FUN IN THE SUN

Deytone Beech - Spring Break - March 18-27 Party down on the motorcoach, Free Beer Party, oceanfront accomodations $165 plus tax & services. Call Kathie or Robin @ 256-0551 for more info

GIBSON GUITAR

Gibson - customized Paul. Double cutaway added. Gibson headstock replaced with "Ricky" in mother of pearl. Custom deep maroon finish. Autographed by John McLaughlin and Al Dimeola. Pick-ups wired hotter. One of a kind. A dream. Must sell fast $475.00 FIRM!!! Ricky 6-7754

HELP WANTED

Oversees Jobs - Summer/year round. Europe, S. Amer., Australia, Asia. All fields. $500-$1200 monthly. Sight-seeing. Free info. Write IJC Box 52-MA-1 Corona Del Mar, CA 92625

CRUISE SHIP JOBS! $14-$28,000 Caribean, Hawaii, World. Call for Guide, Directory, Newsletter. 916-722-1111 ext Massachusettes

COUNSELORS: Camp Wayne, northeastern Pennsylvania. Co-ed childrens camp 6/23-8/23/83. On campus interviews March 2nd. Friendly, warm atmosphere, 12 Allevard, Lido Beach, NY 11561. Include school phone number. Campus Rep: Wendy Edenfield 545-0939

Kitchen help needed for exchange of meals call 549-0432 or 549-3582 ask for Waldo

Dependable people needed for newspaper delivery in dorms. 7 days a week. Between 7:00-9:00 AM. 253-7009

Sale Rep Wented Need extra cash? Self-motivated? Want to set your own hours? Bee your own boss. Become a sales representative for ARK Student Bedding, Inc. Income potential is up to you. Must have own phone. For further information write: ARK Student Bedding, Inc. P.O. Box 534 Wenham, Massachusetts 01984

The Commuter Aree Govrnment has two job openings. These positions are work-study at 15/hours/wk. Must be a freshman, sophmore or junior undergraduate. To apply, stop by 404 Student Union 9:00-5:00 pm M-F. We are an Affirmative Action Equal Opportunity Employer. Third World, women and non-traditional students encpouraged to apply. Deadline is February 23.

INSTRUCTION

Commerciel Art and Cartooning Workshops. Free brochure. 586-8513

Know your car. Basic Auto Mechanics Workshop. Classroom theory & shop. Limited enrollment 253-2098

LOST

Keys on blue-clip keyring with words Le Chateau 546-8161

Gray and Red Ski Jecket taken from 32 Riverglade on 2/11 was Christmas gift from fiance and I can't see the board without my glasses copper wireframes $50 reward no questions asked Please call 546-4050

MICROCOMPUTER/TERMINAL RENTALS

The Computer Works 253-5676 253-5755

PERSONALS

Stop Fee Increases! The student senate will hold hearings on next years student fees. Come voice your concerns Mon 14th CC 101 7 pm Tues 15th CC804 4-7 pm

Tired of the same old routine? All University Women are invited to Chi Omega Rush Parties:
Monday Feb. 14 Dinner 5:00-6:00
Valentine's Party 7:30-8:15
Wed. Feb. 16 Dynasty Party 9:30-11
Thurs. Feb. 17 Coffe & Dessert 7-8
Tues. Feb. 22 Chi-O Rodeo 6:30-7:30
See what makes Chi Omega speciall Come on up to Frat/Sor Park or call 545-0162

Did you perticipate in a pomography study done three years ago here at UMass? If so, call Michelle at 546-5982

Bob Joubert Heppy Birthday - i told you I wouldn't forget

Wede Thanks for V Day card. Do I know you? Laurie

THANK YOU!!!

Sports

Women hoopsters comeback nipped

By ADAM NAZIMOWITZ
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts women's basketball team came back from a nine point halftime deficit only to falter at the end of the game and suffer a disappointing 67-63 loss at the hands of Central Connecticut at the Cage last night.

"We lost the game because we didn't play 40 minutes," said Coach Mary Ann Ozdarski. "Central played very well and we weren't hungry enough. We had too many turnovers and lost in the transition game because we weren't thinking."

UMass was led once again by Karen Damminger who hit 10 out of 14 field goal attempts and ended up with 21 points, 11 rebounds and three assists. Wendy Ward also played well as she controlled the pace for the Minutewomen and scored 14 points, had five assists, four rebounds and four steals. Nadine Jackson pulled down 12 rebounds and added seven points.

The game began very slowly as neither team could settle into their type of game. Both sides had fast breaks opportunities but couldn't capitalize on them. Central took the lead for good very early on in the contest as they started to hit some shots. They held the Minutewomen scoreless for the first 3:15 of the game until Damminger scored UMass' first eight points.

There were many turnovers and poor shooting on both sides, but Central used their speed to score on the fast break and settled for a 36-27 halftime lead.

The Minutewomen came out strong in the second half as they showed more enthusiasm. Barbar Hebel and Wendy Ward began to find the mark and the defense got tougher as UMass cut the lead to 49-45 halfway through the second half.

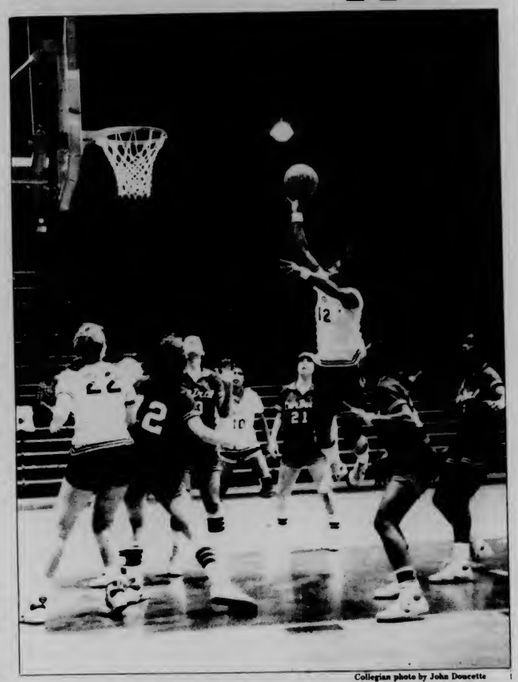
Both teams shooting percentage improved in the second half, but UMass could only manage to trade baskets with Central and they came no closer than four points throughout most of the second half.

The Minutewomen finally knotted the ballgame at 58-58 with 4:30 left in the game on a Maria Chomentowski basket. But the tie did not last long.

Central began to pressure the young UMass squad and caused several key turnovers. The Minutewomen fell apart down the stretch as they threw the ball away at crucial moments and couldn't get a basket or an offensive rebound for a possible second shot when they needed it so badly.

Central Connecticut outrebounded UMass for the game by a count of 54-46, but UMass outshot them by a 41 to 34 percentage, and had 15 assists compared to Central's four. Central stole the ball 18 times to UMass 12, and UMass committed more team fouls.

Central was led by Sandy Peay who led all scorers with 22 points, pulled down 20 rebounds and stole the ball four times. Hope Linthicum added 18 points and five steals, and Beryl Piper scored 12 points and had 11 rebounds.



Collegian photo by John Doucette

Nadine Jackson drives for a shot during second half action in last night's 67-63 loss to Central Connecticut at the Cage.

Facts, figures and...

By JIM FLOYD
Collegian Staff

Statistics. Coaches will tell you that statistics tell a lot about a basketball game, but not all about a basketball game.

What statistics tell, over the long run though, is how a team and or an individual is putting out on an overall basis.

The leading scorer for the Minutemen, after 20 games, is freshman John Hempel. Hempel has averaged 15.6 points per game and, in last Monday's 108-90 loss to West Virginia, he poured in a career high and Atlantic Ten record 37 points (that's a record for all class year's not just freshmen).

In the same game that Hempel went on a shooting spree (and don't be surprised to see him look to light up the scoreboard again), sophomore forward Horace Neysmith, who has for some reason become the Minuteman's most underrated player, hauled down 17 boards (rebounds for laymen). Horace is currently ranked ninth among Atlantic Ten players in rebounding with a 7.5 pulls per game average. He is also averaging 12.7 points per game for the Minutemen, good for third on the squad.

Just ahead of Neysmith in the Atlantic Ten rebounding category is junior center Edwin Green, who has been controlling the glass with 7.7 rebounds per game. Green is also listed as the third best shot blocker in the league, averaging 1.5 rejections per contest. Anyone who has been to a Minuteman home game knows that a lot of those blocks have come against taller opponents.

Statistics, isn't this great. These are the types of things you can point out to your friends at other schools when they talk about their respective team. They are just like trading baseball cards or something. (Sure.)

Donald Russell continues to turn in consistent performances as the floor leader and is scoring at a 14.5 ppg clip, just the right numbers for second on the team behind Hempel. Russell is also tied with Ron Young for the lead in team assists, with 51, although to be quite truthful, Young has logged only 528 minutes compared to Russell's 703 (another team leading statistic).

So stat nuts want more, eh? Well, Hempel leads the team in three point shots having hit on 13 of 23 attempts for a .565 percentage. Green has a total of 30 blocks and is trailed by Neysmith and Bobby Braun, who share second place with five apiece. Russell has 27 steals followed by Neysmith with 19 and Green with 16.

On a negative note, Neysmith is the most charitable player on the team with 71 turnovers. He is followed by Hempel, who has 60, and Russell, who has 58.

In case you have missed the REAL statistic, the team now stands at 5-15, 1-8 in the Atlantic Ten. They will look to improve on that record tonight when they travel to Boston to take on Northeastern University in a non-league clash.

Statistics, boy everything you ever wanted to know about...

Hockey race heats up

By SCOT COOPER
Collegian Staff

The UMass Intramural Hockey program, with over 135 people comprising nine teams, completed its second week of play on Tuesday night. Last semesters champions, What the Puck, found themselves at the top again, tied for first place with Yukon Jack. Each team has three wins and a tie.

What the Puck got a blemish on their unbeaten, untied record when they skated to a 3-3 tie with the Leafs in the opening game of the second season. What the Puck, featuring members of Delta Upsilon and Kappa Sigma, sports the high flying line of Jon Fernberg, Joe Garaci, and John McDermott. After their opening game tie, What the Puck bolted to three straight wins, featuring demolitions of the Mice on Ice 16-2, and the Rebels 7-3.

Yukon Jack, still livid after their ousting in the second round of last semesters playoff, crushed the Bumper Stickers 8-2, walked on the Mice on Ice 16-1, and tied the Nads 2-2 to grab a piece of first place.

A second place tie, the Nads and the Leafs both have 2-0-1 records. The Nads stung the Rebels 8-5 and the Bumper Stickers 5-2. The Leafs made their move by dumping the only non-UMass club Hampshire College, 6-3, and the only other fraternity in the league, the Pikers, 5-2.

Rounding out the lower half of the standings, the Rebels got their only win over Hampshire College 9-2, Hampshire won their debut over the Mice on Ice, and the Pikers got into the win column on the strength of Peter Lamb's two goals in a 3-2 decision over the Bumper Stickers. The Mice on Ice and the Bumper Stickers have yet to skate to a victory.

NCAA hoop round up

By DAN LEBERFELD
Collegian Correspondent

Over the years basketball experts considered the Big Ten and the ACC as the premier basketball conferences in the nation. As of late the Big East has joined the list. Experts, be prepared to add another conference to the list. The Southeastern Conference not only has established itself as one of the best in America this season, but it could be numero uno.

Alabama, a team in everybodies preseason top 20 poll is in last place in the SEC with a 2-8 record. The Crimson Tide, featuring two of America's top collegians in center Bobby Lee Hurt and guard Ennis Whatley, is 11-8 overall. To put things into perspective, this Alabama team went into UCLA's Pauley Pavilion earlier in the year and beat the Bruins, who were number one in the nation at the time.

The reason only one team from this conference (Kentucky) is currently ranked is because the teams are consistantly knocking each other off. Many, if not all of each team's losses is to other conference teams. The SEC has no "doormat" teams that the top conference teams easily handle like the Big East's Providence, UConn, and Seton Hall. So next time someone asks you which conference you think is the best, consider the upstart SEC.

* * *

Yale pulled off a major coup in the recruiting wars by inking 6'11" bluechipper Ricky Ewing from Nashville. Ewing chose the Elis over Georgetown and Virginia, who both offered him a full scholarship. At Yale he will be paying $12,000 a year. Ewing comments, "At Yale I will be able to enjoy the college experience."

* * *

America's best high school basketball player, Dwayne "the pearl" Washington, has signed on with Syracuse. In Washington, the Orangemen are getting a " do-it-all guard who knocked in 38 points a game at Boys and Girls High in New York City. Many feel he could step into the pros right now.

* * *

UMass Atlantic 10 foes Rutgers and West Virginia will be decimated by "graduating" seniors come June so the two schools went out early this year and struck it rich. Rutger's has already signed 5 players, 3 of which stand around 6'9" and West Virginia has signed two 6'8"'s.

* * *

Canada has never had a native son play in the NBA but come June Syracuse's Leo Rautins will change that. The scouts project this man from up north as a first round pick. They also think the 6'8" Rautins will play guard in the NBA.

* * *

There is alot of talent going to waste on the Big East benches. Two players who were sick of sitting on the bench are St. Bonaventure's 6'4" guard Mike Sheehey (formerly of Syracuse) and Hofstra's 6'9" 250 pound center Miles McPartland (formerly of Providence). Both players are doing bang-up jobs and have had tremendous impacts on their respective teams' turn-arounds this season. Hofstra is 14-5 and St. Bonaventure is 14-4.

* * *

UMass coach Tom McLaughlin on Minuteman Ron Young's defense against South Florida's Charles Bradley, the nation's leading scorer, "Ronnie did a good defensive job on Charles and he scored 32 points."

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
Volume CXII, Issue 80 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003 (413) 545-3500 Friday, February 18, 1983

Eight bias charges in six months

By MARY BALDWIN
Collegian Staff

Eight sexual discrimination cases in the areas of tenure, merit and salary inequity have been reported in the last six months to the Affirmative Action office by various departments at the University of-Massachusetts.

Regarding sexual discrimination, Affirmative Action Director Thelma Griffith-Johnson, said "UMass is not in the worst shape in this country but we're not in the best shape either."

Johnson said she could not divulge the departments or the names of the people involved in the discrimination charges.

"Currently we are investigating a charge involving a female faculty member who is being judged for tenure by criteria different from those used for men," Johnson. "Her department had set up a different set of standards than those used for men."

Johnson said she hopes the criteria is in writing and if it is not, she will look at records to compare what criteria has been used to give tenure for both sexes in the past.

Six cases of discrimination involving merit, are being investigated by the Affirmative Action Office. In these incidences of discrimination, men in the same department with the same job title and assignments as women are receiving merit and the women are not, she said.

"In several of these cases, these women didn't get any merit or very little," she said.

In a salary inequity case already dealt with by Affirmative Action, one department asked the University to pay a male applicant for employment $8,000 more than a woman for the same faculty position, Johnson said.

"We challenged it. We wanted to know why this woman who had 10 years of teaching experience and who was very well published was being offered less than a male with very little teaching experience who had written only two articles and his dissertation," she said.

Johnson said the department's rationale for the unequal salary request was because the woman's husband had a job and she didn't need the money.

"Women are to be judged on their merit alone and their education and their potential," Johnson said.

Johnson said the department may have felt the male applicant was worth the slary offered because he graduated near the top of his class.

"In the university there is a market for people at the top of their class, especially from a good university. All universities will struggle to get them on their faculties. That is accepted traditional behavior," she said.

"Even so, she came with the qualifications that demanded a decent salary," she said.

The department made the adjustment and they were both hired. The woman was paid $100 more, she said.

The sad part, Johnson said, is this woman will never know about the controversies.

"The people who made the decision about salary range were men. But it was a male who discovered the discrepancy in this office," she said.

The Affirmative Action office is also currently investigating a formal charge of age discrimination made by a female classified employee who is a member of a department in which everyone is female except the director.

Collegian photo by Jim Powers

The weather took a turn for the wet yesterday, as a cold rain turned campus snow into slush. Here, an umbrella-carrying pedestrian walks near the Campus Center at mid-afternoon.

George's prestige threatened but holiday to go as usual

By JIM FINKLE
Collegian Staff

Although some may say George Washington was not a great general, the University of Massachusetts will still honor his birthday by closing Monday.

"He was not a great general," UMass history professor Hugh F. Bell said of Washington. "It was often said that if the British had any better general we would have been beaten. He never really won a big battle."

However, Washington's special gift was his steadfastness. "He stayed with it, he was never wiped out, he was always there. People could count on him," Bell said.

While most UMass employees will have Monday off and many students will be at home, some services on campus will remain open.

The Goodell and Tower libraries will be open as usual, 8 a.m. to 12 p.m. The music library will open from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., while the biological sciences and physical sciences libraries will open from 8 a.m. to 11 p.m.

The Top of the Campus Lounge will be open from 4 p.m. to 1 a.m. The Blue Wall will be closed for lunch and open from 6 p.m. to 1 a.m. The Hatch will open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. The Coffee Shop will be closed all day.

All retail stores are permitted to open. Package stores will be open during their normal hours according to a survey of area establishments.

City, state and federal offices will close. The Collegian will no. publish.

The only treat in store for students who decide to remain at school over the weekend will be cherry pie served at the dining commons on Monday night.

However, Washington's life proves more exciting than the prospect of remaining on campus this weekend.

He had a lot of family troubles, including an unrequited love and a whining mother, Bell said. His beloved half brother Lawrence died young of tuberculosis, and Washington never had children.

Although Washington is now remembered for his handsome appearance, he was plagued with huge hands and feet, a large head, narrow shoulders, wide hips and a glacial expression.

Born in Virginia, Washington worked as a land surveyor and a real estate speculator before finally becoming a colonel in the Virginia Militia.

Bell said his education was rudimentary. "His writing style was ponderous. He would use six words where one would do and he liked to use big words.

"Some elements of Washington remind one of Eisenhower," Bell said. He was quiet, not particularly brilliant intellectually and with a volcanic temper when he was pushed to the limit.

"I think Washington was really a good man. We were just lucky to have him on the scene."

Court hears evaluation case today

By DAVID B. MINER
Collegian Correspondent

The right of University of Massachusetts students to have access to University course and teacher evaluation forms will be addressed today by the second highest court in the state.

Arguments in an appeal of a lower court decision involving a 1978 suit filed by UMass students against 62 UMass department heads will be heard by the state Court of Appeals in Springfield today.

At issue is whether the course and teacher evaluation forms passed out by instructors for student input, are public records.

Until the late 1970s, the Academic Affairs Committee of the Undergraduate Student Senate had received, from some department heads, copies of the evaluations and had published the findings in a student handbook.

After several instructors had objected or raised questions concerning this practice guidelines were established which allowed for the continued publication — only if the individual instructor did not object.

This issue — the right of students to have free and access to these forms — caused two members of the committee, Joseph Connolly, and Steven Kropp, to file a suit on behalf of the Academic Affairs Committee in Hampshire County Superior Court, said Mark Eckstein, a staff attorney in the Legal Services Office.

The suit, which was filed in June of 1978, was heard in 1980 and the decision went against the students. The committee then decided to appeal the ruling, which said that the evaluation forms were personnel, not public records.

Today, the Appeals Court will review the Superior Court decision. Eckstein and Sidney Myers, University Counsel will argue why the Court should set aside (overturn) or ratify (uphold) the lower court ruling.

The court could take one of several courses of action. It could uphold the lower court decision, overturn the lower court, ask for further information, or send the case back to Supeior Court for a new trial.

The arguments may be heard today, but it could take the Court several months to hand down a decision.

Alteration of current format sought by all

By DAVID B. MINER
Collegian Correspondent

The issue of whether University of Massachusetts students have the right to see and to publish course and teacher evaluations has been a matter of debate between the students and University faculty for many years.

The issue has been pursued in the court since 1978. Today, the Massachusetts Court of Appeals will hear arguments on the subject.

Whatever the court decides in the suit, brought by the Academic Affairs Committee of the Undergraduate Student Senate against 62 academic department heads, there are forces at work which could make a victory for either side a "moot point."

Although it is not a direct party to the

ATTENTION SENIORS

Do you want to be in pictures?
The INDEX (yearbook)

Senior Portrait Program is starting soon!

Appointments will be taken Tues Feb 22 -Fri Feb 25 by calling 545-2874 or by stopping by CC Rm 103.

UMASS FITNESS TESTING CENTER
announces

Aerobic Dance Free Demonstration

AND PREREGISTRATION
Tues., Feb 22, at 7:00 in Rm. 24 NOPE

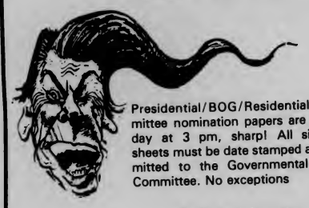
TIME : Mon. & Wed. Evenings 5:30 - 6:45 or 6:50 - 8:05 Beginning Wed., Feb. 23

Place : rm. 24 NOPE

FEE : $50, or 2 for $75 if you join with a friend. Fee includes cardiovascular fitness test & body composition analysis.

For more information or preregistration contact Dr. Patty Freedson at 545-2620 or instructor Kristen Costello at 549-1859

SGA Elections



Presidential/BOG/Residential Committee nomination papers are due today at 3 pm, sharp! All signature sheets must be date stamped and submitted to the Governmental Affairs Committee. No exceptions

For further information, call the Student Senate, at 545-0341;

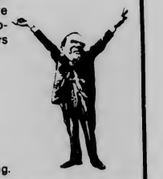
or come up to room 420 of the Student Union Building.



You May Be Qualified To Enroll In One Of The Prestigious Colleges Of Chiropractic In The Nation

NORTHWESTERN COLLEGE OF CHIROPRACTIC

College credits you've already earned may well qualify you for enrollment at Northwestern College, one of the highly regarded chiropractic training centers in the nation.

If you are motivated by a desire to help your fellow man, and desire the prestige and security afforded by a career in the health care field, Northwestern College of Chiropractic can help you achieve your goals.

For more information, complete the coupon below and mail to Northwestern College of Chiropractic. Enrollment is limited, so do it today!

Please send me information on Northwestern College of Chiropractic. OR Call collect at (612) 890-1735 and ask for Admissions.

Name

Address

City State Zip

Send to:
Admissions Office, Northwestern College of Chiropractic, 1834 South Mississippi Boulevard, St. Paul, MN 55116.

Special Purchase Athletic Weight Jersey

$7.95 w/coupon reg. $9.95

ONE DAY ONLY SALE

100% Cotton Heavy Weight

Maroon

$2.00 Off w/coupon

$2.00 Off

JERSEY
Reg. $9.95

OPEN
M-F 9-5

Located in the Campus Center

maroon

Coupon valid only 2/18/83

UNIVERSITY STORE

Motion calls for faculty wide vote on curriculum

By RITA MURPHY
Collegian Staff

While criticism continued to be levied against the General Education Curriculum Proposal at yesterday's University of Massachusetts Faculty Senate meeting, a motion was introduced which could affect the outcome of the final vote on March 17.

The motion, which will be voted on at the next senate meeting, March 3, calls for the vote on the General Education proposal to be made by all faculty members, instead of only faculty senators.

Jim Murphy, president of the Student Government Association, who was present at the meeting, criticized the motion saying it would "cut students out of the vote."

"It would cut students out of the one aspect of education that's important, and that's relevance," Murphy said.

During the meeting, discussion centered around the proposed Breadth of Knowledge component of the curriculum. Several senators expressed doubts as to whether or not Breadth of Knowledge would be any different than the present distribution (core) system.

"I am very troubled by the whole concept of Breadth of Knowledge. What I see is that there is very little different in this proposal than the system we currently have," said Frank R. Hugus, German language and literature associate professor.

Hugus said the Breadth of Knowledge component proposes to "change the basic character of humanity."

Robert Jones, history professor, criticized the implication in the proposal that students were leaving the university "without learning anything."

"Are we turning out people that are ignorant? If students really want to go through four years of college and not learn anything then can we devise a curriculum that will change that?" Jones said.

Jones also said faculty members do not know how students feel about the proposal and could not, therefore, vote on a proposal which claimed to have "the overwhelming support of students."

Jones said just because the SGA endorsed the measure, they wre not "representative of the student body."

Murphy called Jones' remarks "prejudicial."

"I wouldn't honor his comment by responding to it," Murphy said.

Murphy said he did not believe the proposal had the "overwhelming support of the student body, but a lot of students are in favor of it."

Skills proposal debated

By RITA MURPHY
Collegian Staff

Editor's note: This is the third in a series of stories in General Education.

While much debate and controversy is expected to surround the General Education Curriculum proposal at the next University of Massachusetts Faculty Senate meeting, not much discussion is expected on the Skills component of the report.

The Skills proposal is divided into two parts: Written Language and Quantitative Reasoning.

The Written Language part has already been implemented as the Writing Program.

Quantitative Reasoning would require students to take a basic course in mathematics, statistics or computer science.

The Quantitative Reasoning would have three goals: It will develop non-trivial quantitative methods. The quantitative method of the course will be applied to practical problem solving. It will also devote some amount of time to discussing and elaborating the critical limits and potential for abuse of the formal methods highlighted in the course.

Frank Wattenberg, a member of the Ad Hoc Committee on General Education, said the quantitative reasoning requirement is important because it would help students to deal with "real world problems."

"The whole purpose behind quantitative reasoning is to get students to learn and master basic skills and to know how to apply them in our increasingly technical society," he said.

According to the report, "an understanding of the methods and limitations of quantitative reasoning is essential to a sophisticated and well-informed citizenry."

One reason Quantitative Reasoning is expected to receive the approval of the Faculty Senate is that "over eighty percent of (UMass) students already take courses that could be modified . . . to become part of the proposed curriculum," according to the proposal.

Because of this high figure, not many new courses are needed to fulfill the Quantitative Reasoning requirement, Wattenberg said.

But, the committee which researched the quantitative reasoning requirement released a report in which they "encourage the development of innovative courses that specifically address the three broad guidelines of the quantitative reasoning requirement."

Quantitative Reasoning and the Writing Program were combined together under Skills.

"Even though they are both different, they are both essential and important skills which every student should acquire at the university level," said Wattenberg.

Ellen Nylen, task coordinator of the student subcommittee on General Education, said the skills part of the proposal will probably be passed by the Faculty Senate without much debate because "no one is going to argue that students need to write more or need basic math skills."

Collegian photo by Kevin J. Fachetti

Phil Collins accompanies himself at piano during his sell-out performance in the Fine Arts Center last night.

Photo by Peter Daley

This view of the Graduate Research Center Towers was taken from the Marshall Hall Annex yesterday.

Education urged as antidote for herpes sensationalism

By TURA GUDMUNDSSON
Collegian Staff

Editor's note: This is the last of a five-part series.

Although the exact number of Herpes cases nationwide remains uncertain, making herpes a reportable disease by law will not help to control its spread, according to state public health officials.

In addition, while the media has been accused of being sensationalizing its coverage of herpes, it has also helped to increase the awareness of the disease. But, both local and state officials say they think that proper education about herpes is needed to reduce further spreading of the disease.

"A lot of what people read is confusing and therefore frightens them," said Dr. Nelson M. Gantz, an associate professor of Medicine and microbiology and director of the Sexually Transmitted Division at the University of Massachusetts Medical School in Worcester.

Gantz noted that following the airing of a television show or the publication of an article concerning herpes, "individuals come out of the closet and more people come in to the clinic just for us to have a look if they have anything."

Comparing the increase in the reporting of herpes cases to that of toxic shock syndrome, Jane McCusker an assistant professor in the Department of Public Health at UMass, said that in both cases "increase in publicity in the media brought reports pouring in from all over the country."

Defining an epidemic as "excess incidence over what would be expected," McCusker said that epidemics are often discovered "if people report it a little more."

"What we are seeing for herpes is only the tip of the iceberg. Underneath, there are many more cases we can not find out about, so that although it looks as if we may have an epidemic of herpes, it is hard to say so."

According to a March, 1982, report by the Center for Disease Control (CDC) in Atlanta, whose data is restricted to those from sample clinics and private physicians, there is evidence which "supports the contention of an ongoing epidemic of genital herpes infection."

While the actual number of herpes cases in the country is unknown, the CDC report shows an 9.9 percent increase in all types of herpes infection between 1973 and 1979.

One of the reasons that no accurate statistics, or even local figures of herpes cases, are available is because, unlike Syphilis and Gonhorrea, herpes is not a reportable disease under the law.

"There is not much of a need to make herpes reportable and it is not a priority," said Sadie Corey, who, like Penny, is an advisor specialist in the VD section at the State Department of Public Health in Boston.

Herpes is, "highly infectious and reinfectious," unlike Syphilis and Gonhorrea, which are curable and therefore controllable through reportable accounts to the Health Department, which makes sure that appropriate treatment is available and supplied for the disease, Corsey said.

"Making it reportable might be helpful in terms of easing the mind of the public, or helping researchers establish a correlation between herpes and cervical cancer, and making the government spend more money on research," Corsey said. "But it will not help to prevent the spread of the disease," she said.

"We do not know if there are more cases this year than last year," said Corey, adding that it is hard to establish whether the increases in herpes cases seen across the nation "is in terms of increase in the reporting, or an actual increase in cases."

A necessary measure needed to decrease the spread of herpes, according to all sources interviewed, is through proper education about the subject.

"If someone gets herpes they need to find the right information and not let what people say out there affect how people think about themselves," said Debbie Edelman, a health educator in the University Health Service.

Through her herpes workshops Edelman gave last semester, she hopes "to educate the community if they have it or not, so that there won't be the psychological stigma attached to herpes."

Although Penny claims "a fair section of the population are ignorant about herpes," she said her office will go to any community across the state which invites them to educate students and the rest of the population about herpes.

The most serious medical consequence of herpes, according to Gantz and Penny, is possible effects on an infant if the mother catches the infection for the first time or has an undetected outbreak while pregnant or when she delivers.

"There is much more of a danger to an infant from a pregnant mother who smokes or drinks, or takes drugs, then from a mother with herpes," Penny said.

Sound in Motion's Washington's Birthday Sale

JENSEN JR110 $199.00 Complete Nothing Else To Buy!!!!! J1445

Clarion Deluxe Mini Chassis In-Dash 12 watt AM/FM Stereo Cassette with Deluxe 4" Dual Cone Speakers 355RR $169.00

Clarion AM/FM Stereo Cassette Receiver with pushbuttons 3700R $149.00

Chapman Security Systems ALARMS FOR ONLY $129.00 INSTALLED

"YOU CAN'T BUY A BETTER INSTALLATION!"

FOX RADAR DETECTORS XK Detector $99.00

The People's Choice

SOUND in MOTION
THE CAR STEREO SPECIALISTS
321 Main Street, Amherst 253-9341
(Just up the street from Whole Wheat Pizza)
Store Hours 9 to 5 Mon - Sat Sale ends Saturday Feb. 26, 1983

MasterCard VISA

家酒園南湖
Hunan Garden Restaurant
"The Best Chinese Food"

BUFFET
Mon - Thurs
5 pm - 8 pm
Sunday Brunch
11:30 am - 3 pm
ALL YOU CAN EAT
$5.25 per person

MENU
Hot & Sour Soup
Beef with green pepper
Chicken Pan Fried Noodels
Sweet & Spur Chicken
Chinese Style BBQ Pork
Pan Fried Ravioli
Chcken Fingers

Luncheon Special & Take-Out Service
Full Cocktail Menu
Sun - Thurs 11:30 am - 10 pm
Fri & Sat 11:30 am - 11 pm
10 Belchertown Road
at Rte 9, Amherst
256-9252

Jonathan Reid LTD

SALE
½ Price
Entire Stock
of Sweaters

Rte 9 Hadley Hampshire Mall

Balloon Deliveries! & Singing Telegrams!

High Notes

Tuxedoed Messengers
Jugglers or Clowns
Will Deliver for all occasions

Call 665-7664

Sound & Music's Honest-to-Goodness Washington's Birthday Sale One Day Only Feb. 21 10-8

All Demos 10% OVER COST

maxell. UDXLII C90 Cassettes
2 for $5.49 10 for $25

SONY. TC-FX44 Cassette Deck with Dolby "C"
$189
4 FREE Cassettes with any Cassette Deck

ONKYO TA-2055 Cassette Deck with real-time and remaining time counter $295

BSR Model 82C Speakers
JVC LA-10 Turntable
SHURE M70B Cartridge
ONKYO Tx-11 Receiver
$299

FREE RC-5 Record Cleaner with any complete system

ONKYO TX-21 Receiver
SONY. PS-LX2 Turntable
Stanton 680EE Cartridge
BostonAcoustics A-60 Speakers
$499

- Teac reel to reel decks from $299
- Pioneer "boom-boxes" from $99
- Nuvox FM walk-abouts from $19
- Jensen 6 x 9 Coax II car speakers $60/pr.
- Many unadvertised specials
- Quantities limited on some items
- No lay-aways on sale items

*Cost is hereby defined as the price on our invoice from the manufacturer or supplier.

Sound & Music Good Advice Honest Price
90-92 King Street (Rte. 5), Northampton, 584-9547
Mon.-Wed. 10-6, Thurs., Fri. 10-9, Sat. 10-5

Beachcomber Tours presents
14th ANNUAL
College Spring Break in
DAYTONA BEACH

JET TOUR
March 12-19
or March 19-26

BUS TOUR
March 11-20
or March 18-27

ALL TOURS INCLUDE:
LAND PACKAGE
- First Class Ocean Front Accommodations for Seven (7) Nights at the Days Inn, Beachside of the Quality Inn Reef, located directly on the Strip in Daytona Beach
- Welcome Party with plenty of FREE BEER
- Exclusive 14th Anniversary ID Card for discounts at Shops, Restaurants, Night Clubs etc.
- On campus reservation service
- Services of the Beachcomber Staff
- OPTIONAL Kitchenettes, Walt Disney World Tour, New Epcot Center Adventure and more!

*$25 Deposit Required • Limited Space Available
Make Reservations by November 15th and
SAVE $20.00
Don't be left out in the Cold!

ALSO AVAILABLE:
JET FLIGHT ONLY *229
BUS TRANSPORTATION ONLY *139
LAND PACKAGE ONLY *139
(Includes all tax, gratuities and service)

Beachcomber Tours, Inc.
CONTACT: STEVEN 546-1671

MEMBER DAYTONA BEACH CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

DEPENDABILITY • QUALITY • SERVICE • SINCE 1969

Collegian photo by Tom Kudla

Diane Patnod, a senior marketing major, shelters her puppy, Officer Wojohowitz, from the downpour yesterday. Today expect partly sunny skies but low temperatures.

Professor critiques capitalism

By TIM MacPHEE
Collegian Staff

The chairman of Boston University's Economics Department highlighted the strengths and weaknesses of capitalism to the developing world last night before an audience of about 100 in Memorial Hall.

Professor Gustav Papanek mentioned strengths, including the system's contribution to quick economic growth in areas like Hong Kong, while saying that potential drawbacks concentrated too much power in the hands of an elite rich.

"People who live in these countries are poor," he said. "Often they live on $100 or less a year."

"They also tend to have economics with a different structure than the United States, dominated by agriculture and a rapid population growth of 2 to 3 percent a year," Papanek said.

He said that these countries are no longer accepting their poverty as ordained by fate and that their efficiency in production often requires machines rather than unskilled labor.

If (these countries) are going to benefit from development, jobs have to be created for them," Papanek said.

He noted that governments in the less developed world must achieve three objectives including a high growth rate, an equitable distribution of the benefits of this growth and a need to achieve growth efficiently.

Papanek said that political instability can grow in countries where there is hostility toward the rich. Upon organization, these countries could cause serious problems for the few rich countries.

He said it is difficult to conceive of living in a world indifferent to spending more in one year on frivolous luxuries than the total amount that billions of people live on yearly.

"One quarter of humanity spends less on susistance and survival than we do on keeping our pets," Papanek said.

The economist noted capitalism's strengths as being decentralization of decisions and strong incentives to make efficient decisions resulting in better profits.

"The average growth rate in capitalist developing countries is 50 percent higher than in socialist developing countries. A rapid and efficient rate of growth can be achieved by private enterprise. In that form, growth can benefit the poor quite considerably," Papanek said.

Trustees push full-costing

By DAVID SUMMERSBY
Collegian Staff

Due the new full costing policy passed last week by the University of Massachusetts Board of Trustees, the Campus Center will have to put aside approximately $336,000 of its budget for the policy and perhaps increase its fee next year. The exact amount of the increase is as yet unsure.

Under full costing, all fees paid by UMass students, such as residence hall fees, must include costs paid to other UMass services such as the Physical Plant.

If the Campus Center can apply the $140,000 held in a reserve account from the excess fringe benefit cost that was unused last year to the money it owes for the new policy, then next year's fee could be estimated at $83,000.

But it is uncertain whether the Trust Fund Management Policy and ultimately UMass President David C. Knapp's office will allow this money to be used toward full costing. If it isn't much a higher fee is expected.

Ron Keefe, chairman of the Campus Center Board of Governors, said if this were to happen it would hurt students at the University to the point where the BOG would have to apply much more pressure on the administration for some favorable results.

"They are saying that money which every student paid into for fringe benefit costs now being held in a reserve account doesn't count to full costing. If this holds up, we will start a letter drive to all the parents of UMass students informing them of this increase and exactly what the situation is," Keefe said.

Keefe said he would also urge the parents to write letters to Gov. Michael S. Dukakis to inform him of what is happening. This would really embarass the administration and force them to come to a compromise, he said.

Student Government Association President Jim Murphy also expressed interest in participating in the proposed mail drive to parents of UMass students.

alterations

Continued from page 1

suit the local chapter of the Massachusetts Society of Professors (MSP) is involved in the issue.

MSP President Bruce Laurie said that his group has asked for clarification on several questions, including the use of evaluations in collective bargaining and the constitutionality of unsigned evaluation forms.

Another force at work is a Faculty Senate committee chaired by Professor Martin Sevoian. His committee is charged with looking into the whole evaluation process and to come up with recommended changes.

"The committee is looking into the whole spectrum of evaluations, the method of collecting and use and will try an come up with a University-wide form and system which will be a fair middle ground, protecting the interests of all parties," Sevoian said. An interim report is expected within the next 60 days.

Another factor is the method now used by the Academic Affairs Committee to collect student course and teacher evaluations. In the past, it had been the practice for the committee to receive copies of the evaluations from the department heads. Now the committee mail an evaluation form to each student.

Peg O'Neil, former chairwoman of the Academic Affairs Committee, claims that the system now in use is better.

"The old system was a good idea, but, there were problems, such as the release of the evaluations from the departments," she said.

Both O'Neil and Maura Sullivan, a current member of the committee, admit that there is a major problem with the system now in use — that of low student response.

"Response is not what we would want (in numbers)," Sullivan said. "If the information (evaluations) were public, then perhaps, more students would feel encouraged to fill out the forms."

"The main goal is for the students to have a means of comparison on how teachers teach. This would benefit teachers — it would motivate students," Sullivan said.

Dinner for Two
Enjoy
any two entrees
with salad bar and a complimentary n/a beverage
12.95
Every Friday

TOP of the CAMPUS
RESTAURANT & LOUNGE
11th Floor • Campus Center • UMass

STARTS TODAY!
SHOWCASE CINEMAS
ROUTE 5 RIVERDALE ROAD
WEST SPRINGFIELD 733-5131
BARGAIN MATINEE DAILY: FIRST SHOW ONLY $2.50

A comedy for the incurably romantic.
DUDLEY MOORE ELIZABETH McGOVERN
LOVESICK

PG PARENTAL GUIDANCE SUGGESTED A LADD COMPANY RELEASE

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY

FOUR DAYS ONLY THURS. — FRI. — SAT. & WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY

SALE

* NO RAINCHECKS * QUANTITIES ARE LIMITED * NO DEALERS * CASH * MCC * VISA

The Sound Company

SINCE 1961

SPRINGFIELD Sumner Ave. at the "X" 736-3626 Mon., Thur. & Fri. to 9, Tues., Wed. & Sat. to 5:30

CHICOPEE Fairfield Mall near Caldors 593-5330 Open Every Evening 'til 9:30 p.m.

AMHERST 201 N. Pleasant Street 256-0704 Mon. Tues., Wed 11-7, Thurs. & Fri. 11-9, Sat. 10-5:30

Private planes plowed down in Northampton

NORTHAMPTON (AP) — Vandals commandeered a runway snowplow and systematically smashed 23 single-engine airplanes at a private airfield, dumbfounded officials said yesterday.

One plane owner, who declined to give his name, called the destruction "macabre."

"Most people who own these are like me," he said, "They don't have a lot of money, but they really like to fly. It really hurts."

Russ Benjamin, co-owner and manager of the LaFleur Airport, said 10 planes, costing up to $30,000 each, were damaged beyond repair. He estimated that total damages could reach $500,000.

"They got into our truck and started it up somehow. We don't know who did it, obviously. We're just sifting through the rubble," he said.

"Whoever it was took an awful lot of risks because most of the damage was at the wings of the planes, near fuel tanks. One spark and they could have exploded," said Edward Stefan of Amherst, who owned a 12-year-old Piper Arrow. "They must not have had much concern for their own safety."

Benjamin said the vandals struck sometime between 8 p.m. Wednesday when the airport mechanic went home, leaving the field unattended, and 3:15 a.m. yesterday, when police on routine patrol discovered the mess.

Another 70 planes parked at the airport were undamaged, he said.

"They just drove around the field and smacked up planes that were parked," said Dick Giusto, another of the airfield owners. "I can't understand why people would do something like this to other people's planes."

"It must have taken an hour," he said. "I can't accuse anyone, but if someone had a vendetta against us, why smash up private airplanes?"

The vandals drove a four-ton dump truck, fitted with a wing-shaped plow blade, into a storage hangar, left open because of the threat of rain, where they smashed six planes, pushing one partially through a rear wall, Giusto said.

"They packed the planes in, then backed up the truck, smashed them, then backed up and smashed them again. It was intentional," he said.

The other damaged planes, parked in a "tie-down" area on a large field near the runways, were plowed into each other, he said. Wings were sheered off and mangled, and thin aluminum fuselages were ruptured.

Giusto said the plow had been in the airport shop for repairs and he had to use a tow truck Wednesday to move it outside.

"I don't know how they got it started, but whoever it was knew what he was doing. I couldn't start it for police this morning," he said.

Collegian photo by Jim Powers

The snowplow finally came to rest against this aircraft after having caused $500,000 in damages to 23 airplanes.

Collegian photo by Jim Powers

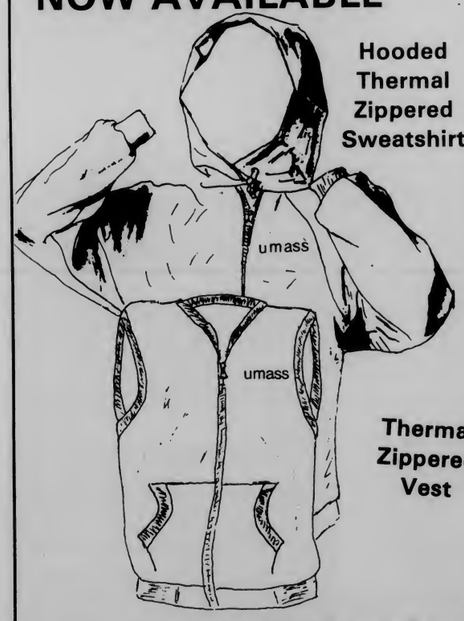
Even airplanes inside the hangar were victims of yesterday's vandalism.

Today's Staff

Night Editor — Ray Beauchemin
Copy Editor — Mike Mahoney
Layout Technician — Will Hopkins
Photo Technician — Tom Kudla
Composition — Laura Shanahan, Sam Levitt, Stuart Sajdak, Joy McCarthy, Alice Klingener, Mat Atkins, Sue Koczela, Sue Hawkins, Gail Tanzer, Liz Ward, Julie Marcinek, Laurie Frank, Terri Cooper, Marge Hochman, Sheryl Silver, Adrianne Dufour

Due to problems in the production and graphics departments last night, the Collegian is unable to provide a full edition today. No paper will be printed on the Monday holiday. Look for the regular edition of the Collegian Tuesday.

NOW AVAILABLE



Hooded Thermal Zippered Sweatshirt

Thermal Zippered Vest

OPEN M-F 9-5

Located in the Campus Center

UNIVERSITY STORE

RUSSELL'S LIQUORS

18 Main St. Downtown Amherst 253-5441

Budweiser 12 oz. cans..... $11.00 case + $1.20 deposit
Rolling Rock 12 oz long necks..... $10.00 case + $1.50 dep
Schlitz 12 oz. cans..... $8.80 case + $1.20 deposit
Busch 12 oz long necks..... $9.85 case + $1.50 dep
Gin or Vodka 80°..... $8.99 1.75 L
Amaretto 56°..... $4.99 750 ml
Folonari Soave..... $3.99 1.5 liter

Many Kegs to choose from

Free Popcorn

TIME OUT

A Good Place to Start a Conversation

Two TV's

Happy Hour 4 - 6

Giant Bar Drinks $1.75

16 oz. Draft 85¢

Sandwiches served 11:30 am - 1:30 pm

AMHERST'S BIGGEST LITTLE BAR

37 N. Pleasant St.

THE RAND THEATER
FINE ARTS CENTER

SUBSCRIBE NOW TO SPRING 1983 AT THE RAND THEATER

ASHES
March 3-5, 9-12 at 8:00 pm
David Rudkin's drama of a young couple whose yearning for a child becomes an obsession as the odds turn more and more against them is a work of stunning power — frank, compassionate, laced with ironic humor.

THE COMEDY OF ERRORS
April 7-9, 13-16 at 8:00 pm
This is not your typical Shakespearean play. It isn't romantic and lyrical. It is pure farce, fast and bawdy, peopled with acrobats, juggelers, musicians, and hookers. Think you hate Shakespeare? You'll love THE COMEDY OF ERRORS.

COMPANY
May 5-7, 11-14 at 8:00 pm
This brilliant, sophisticated musical by Stephen Sondheim manages to be very funny about the subject of marriage by taking it very seriously. Set to music that reflects the pulse of Manhattan life, COMPANY is about growing up and becoming human in our times.

SUBSCRIBE TODAY
STUDENTS PAY ONLY *$4.50 TO SEE ALL THREE SHOWS!
Go to the Rand Theater Box Office (Opposite the Fine Arts Center Concert Hall).
The Box Office is Open from 12 Noon, Monday through Friday.
PHONE: 545-3511
* Offer expires Friday, February 25 at 4:00 pm. After that date subscriptions cost $6.00.
Non-students pay a slightly higher subscription rate.

FOUR SEASONS

Labatts	ale or beer	$10.99	case
Miller	bottles	$9.99	case
Miller Lite	bottles	$9.99	case
Falstaff	cans	$6.99	case
Piccala Coffee Liqueur	1 L.	$7.49
Strogoff Vodka	1.75 L.	$8.99
Skol Gin	1.75 L.	$8.99
McGregor Scotch	750 ml.	$5.59
Riunite Wines	750 ml.	$2.69
Almaden Table Wines	1.5 L.	$4.49
Ciriaco	Lambrusco or Bianco 1.5 L.	$3.49

Kegs — Free Delivery

Open 10 AM to 11 PM
in front of the Malls
Wines/Liquors
rte.9, hadley,ma./584-8174

Prerequisite for Canadian Majors.

Molson Golden. That's Canadian for great taste.

DELANO'S

February Happy Hour Special
2 for 1
Beck's Light Bottles
plus our original twofers and hors d'oevres
7 days 7 nights
4-6 pm 10-midnight
Proper ID a must
57 N. Pleasant St.
253-5141

Information Data Bank
IDB TIPS
Tipped Information Phone Service
545-1555 545-1540

Remember,
Tuesday, Feb. 22
is a Monday
class schedule.

227 Whitmore

a service of the Dean of Students Office

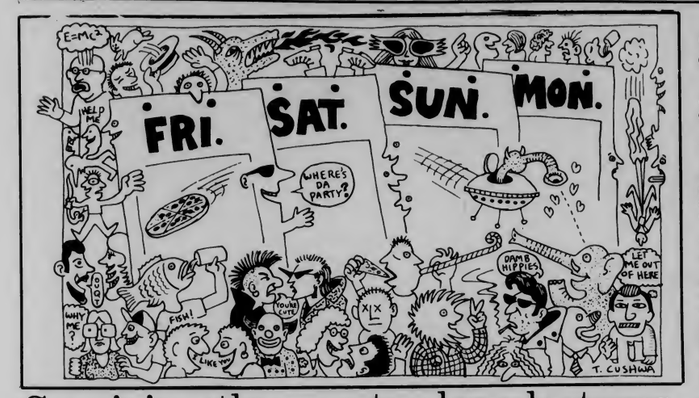
EDITORIAL/OPINION



Surviving those extra long lectures

Before coming to college, I received many helpful hints from parents, teachers, and older (supposedly wiser) friends. For example: Do your laundry when you can't see the floor anymore. requisition milk crates and road signs for use as furnishings. Bring a hot-pot and a popcorn maker. Take notes on everything you read. Bring money.

This was all very well, but there was one situation which, in my naivete, I was unprepared to handle: the three-hour lecture. Thus, as a public service, I offer The Long Lecture Survival Guide: How Not to Die of Boredom.

Upon arriving at the lecture hall, select a seat in the back. You'll be determinedly entertaining yourself for hours on end, so you may as well evade the professor's roving eye, and not risk actually having to pay attention to him or her. Oh — there's your roommate. Great! Sit next to them. Now you'll have someone to walk to the bus stop with — if this class ever ends.

Elizabeth Luciano

As the lecture begins, survey the immediate area so you'll be familiar with, and comfortable in your surroundings. Count how many rows are ahead of you, and approximate how many people are occupying those rows. See who's preppie, who's rugged, and who's hungover. How many blonds can you count? Any cute ones? How many brunettes? Tally up the number of "No Smoking" signs versus the number of smokers currently polluting your air. Glare at them.

Start doodling in your notebook with multicolored Magic Markers (purchased specifically for this purpose). Draw a stick-figure self-portrait in the margin, with a parachute over it. On the top of the page, draw the plane you just jumped from. Write TWA on the tail, and show a little pilot waving from the front window. That looks good — really good. Your roommate, in their boredom, has noted your artistic talent, and nods in approval.

Using your red pen, trace a heart on the paper, and put lace around the edges of it. Write the initials of yourself and your "significant other" inside, in Olde English lettering. Pierce the valentine with an arrow, color it in, then feel embarrassed for behaving like a child, and scribble the whole thing out. Your roommate, who liked the artwork, kicks you angrily.

Twenty minutes into the lecture, realize that your nose is running. You forgot Kleenex, and are too shy to interrupt the class by getting up and leaving. Hope you can last for awhile longer. Hope you don't sneeze. Hope nobody notices. Tap your foot and try to think about something else.

Time for a nap. Put your elbow on the desk, and cover your forehead and eyes with your palm, so it looks like you're studying. Close your eyes . . . slump forward a little. Wake up when your roommate pokes you.

"You started snoring!" they hiss.

"I did not!" you snap, but the prof's giving you a sharp look. Uh-oh. Stretch, and blink a few times to focus your eyes. That guy with the bright teal mohawk and the pierced nose thinks you're winking at him. Stop blinking.

Look down at your jeans — there's a hole in the knee. Play with the frayed threads. Braid them, unbraid them, and twirl them around your finger. Take out a Bic pen and color in the faded areas. If you're a rock fan, write the name of your favorite group. If you do drugs, write the name of your favorite substance. If you do neither, write your name.

Suddenly become aware that this is your best pair of jeans, which you've just ruined. Pray that your graphics will come out in the wash; you can't afford a new pair. Your check would bounce from here to Northampton.

" . . . and I'll see you all here next week." Class is over! Oh, the dear, blessed fellow! Hurriedly stuff your belongings into your backpack and pull on your coat. Turn to your roommate.

"Let's get out of here and eat."

"Sorry, I've got to run to my three hour chemistry lecture . . ."

Elizabeth Luciano is a Collegian columnist

3 day weekends are a blessing

I love George Washington, World Wars and labor unions.

A strange list of favorites, I'll admit, but I have a very good reason for lumping these seemingly unrelated things all together. Without them, there would be a real shortage of three day weekends.

Three day weekend. The words just sort of slide off your tongue. And the days that comprise a three day weekend tend to sort of slide on by also.

Everyone benefits from these glorious infrequent breaks. George Washington's birthday is an especially welcome relief from the first few hectic weeks of the semester. Just when you think you couldn't possibly fill out another form with a number two pencil (and what do you call pencils that aren't number twos?) or stand in line for one more minute in order to get in a class that has been oversubscribed five minutes before it's your turn to get in, you get treated to three full days of free time.

Lots of people don't have to work if there is a three day weekend on the calendar. Most bosses will begrudgingly give their employees the day off, with promises that their workers will certainly have to make up this lost time at some later date. Most people try to look understanding while choking back the urge to tell the boss how much they'd like to have a three day weekend named after his demise. Of course, after these mini-vacations, it always feels weird when you first get back to the grind of working for a living. Everything seems like it's changed just a little, and people wonder how they've managed to put up with working standards like this for so long.

Of course, what's done with three day weekends is left up to individual discretion. However, there are three basic ways to confront an extra day of repose.

Mary Beth Hebert

The first is to go away. The highways and trains are always clogged with college students going home to get some good cooking and the customary preferential treatment that is according visiting dignitaries. That means that you will be treated like a real person and not some "wise-ass college student" until you get to the dessert at your first meal home. So much for Mom's cuisine; it's back to Stouffers.

Other people, those with the smarts to rely on the next best thing to being there, go away on their own. Multitudes of friends all squash into a 1973 VW Beatle as they head off for point unexploited. Once landing in this virgin territory, these same friends will sneak each other in and out of hotel rooms, and rip things off from the salad bar as they pass by the restaurant on the way to the bar.

Ah, the bar. The shining symbol of the binge celebrating old George's birthday. A bar where you can get your favorite alcoholic beverage, argue with your old friends and pick up new ones. Of course, an immediate relative to the bar is the party, where kegs freely flow, dense clouds form around mouth level, and all of the people you have ever met at UMass plus six friends of theirs each, plot together to see how wet they can get your rug before it's necessary to squeegee it.

Then again, some people can't be bothered with this sort of childish activity. Either that, or they've already done so much that they have to take this extra time to hit the books. they go to the library and stare glumly at the clock while they think about all of the work they're behind on. Soon, the staring turns to sulking. After the sulking stage, rationalizations are formed and soon, all of the work is done, or time to do it has been alloted for next week's schedule, "When I'm not going to go out at all and I'll spend every waking minute doing academics."

I guess the over-all saving grace of having Mondays off is that they are such refreshing pauses inbetween some of the longer holiday stretches. They are our reminder that there is such a thing as leisure without guilt.

Thank you George, Adolph, and Samuel. I never could make it without you.

Mary Beth Hebert is a Collegian columnist

Letters

ARK comic hurts like hell

To the Editor:

I too am getting sick of reading remarks about the comics in the Collegian. I do have a sense of humor, but ARK's comic on Tuesday, Feb. 15 hit home. Dear ARK: I wish you could understand how much you hurt us, the herpes sufferers of the world, with insensitive remarks like that. Don't you think we see enough in the media, hear enough jokes to make us feel like social outcasts without you adding to the torture? Maybe the people of this country will stop the cruel jokes that tear us apart only when they themselves have the disease. By implying that we are not datable does not help social awareness in the least. I just wish you could have seen it through our eyes before you wrote the strip, because you would have seen how it hurts like hell.

Name witheld

Is he qualified to judge music?

To the Editor:

I am writing in response to the article that appeared in the February 14 edition of the Collegian on the Arts Page. "An Album That's Hazardous to Your Health" was extremely hard on Robert Hazard's new E.P.

Of course, the author is entitled to his/her opinion but what I'd like to know is what qualifies this person to judge and put down music that might be enjoyable to others?

Robert S. Davison
Amherst

Take a stand and VOTE!

To the Editor:

As the Elections Official, I would like to address the article which appeared on February 14. This article printed that I stated that the BOG was not as important as the Residential Committee. My original remark was over the concern that not enough students had taken out nomination papers for any of the positions. A total of seven people have obtained papers for the BOG and one person has taken out papers for the Residential Committee. I am APPALLED that students do not get involved with the elections to run and show their concerns. I am further distressed that less than 14 percent of the students ever bother to vote.

I cannot further stress the importance to get involved, show concern, and vote. As students, we are all concerned with the policy of the University, issues in our time, and the ever increasing expense of higher education. These should be more than enough reason for you to take a stand on issues and VOTE!

Melinda J. Ordway
Elections Official Governmental Affairs

Letters Policy

All letters must be signed and include the writer's address and telephone number, which will not be published. Please type double spaced at 67 characters per line. Due to space limitations and the volume of mail, we regret we are unable to acknowledge unpublished letters. All letters are subject to editing for clarity and length.

Collegian

Board of Editors

Kevin Bowe	Editor-in-Chief
Ed Levine	Managing Editor
Stuart Sajdak	Production Manager
Joel Myerson	Business Manager
John Hudson	Executive Editor
John DiPalazzo	News Editor
Cris Schuster	Women's Editor
Doug Muise	Arts Editor
Gus Martins	Black Affairs Editor
Billy Shea	Sports Editor
Kevin J. Fachetti	Photo Editor

art • architecture • childrens • computers • etc • cookbooks • crafts • drama • economics • education • english • etc • film • foreign languages • gardening • history • etc • childrens • computers • etc • film • foreign languages • gardening • history • etc • crafts • drama • cookbooks • etc • math • nat sci • phil • phys sci • pols sci • soc sci • technical • travel •

A small sample of our wide selection & great prices

	RETAIL PRICE	OUR PRICE
Road to Wigan Pier - Orwell	3.95	2.00
Jewish People, Jewish Thought - Seltzer	19.95	6.00
General Chemistry - Petrucci	29.95	15.00
Walden 2 - Skinner	2.95	1.50
Family Therapy - Andolfi	19.95	6.00
Von Nostrand Scientific Encyclopedia	100.00	20.00
Women in Sexist Society - Gornick & Moran	2.50	1.25
Elements of Style - White	2.95	1.50
Selected Poems & 2 Plays of Yeats	4.95	2.50

Also, we have a large selection of C.S. Lewis, Shakespeare, Mark Twain, Hawthorne & many other classical & popular titles in all subjects - everything at 50-90% off retail price.

Open Mon - Sat 10 - 6

The Reading Remedy

NEW BOOKS AT HALF PRICE

It's worth the trip

71 N. Pleasant St, Amherst (across from Louis Foods) 256-6498

amc THEATRES

$2.00 MATINEE & TWILITE SHOW ... REDUCED PRICES FOR STUDENTS & SENIOR CITIZENS WITH AMC CARD

amc HAMPSHIRE 6 584-7550

THIS IS A PART OF SHOW TO MAKE A LIVING
Tootsie
DUSTIN HOFFMAN
Fri (4:30 @ $2.00) 7:15, 9:55
PG Sat-Thu (1:30 & 4:30 @ $2.00) 7:15, 9:55

MERYL STREEP
KEVIN KLINE
SOPHIE'S CHOICE
Fri (4:00 @ $2.00) 7:00, 9:30
R Sat-Thu 1:00 & 4:00 $2.00) 7:00, 9:30

PAUL NEWMAN
THE VERDICT
Fri (4:45 @ $2.00) 7:30, 9:55
R Sat-Thu (1:45 & 4:45 @ $2.00) 7:30, 9:55

STING II - Starts Fri. Feb 25

WITHOUT A TRACE
Fri (4:30 @ $2.00) 7:00, 9:45
PG Sat-Thu (1:15 & 4:30 @ $2.00) 7:00, 9:45

MIDNIGHT MOVIE MADNESS
amc HAMPSHIRE 6 584-7550 FRI & SAT at 12:15 a.m.
ALL SEATS $3.50
ROCKY HORROR PICTURE SHOW

amc MOUNTAIN FARMS 6 584-9153

DUDLEY MOORE
In
LOVESICK
Fri (5:15 @ $2.00) 7:45, 9:55
Sat & Sun (12:45, 2:45, & 5:45 @ $2.00) 7:45, 9:55
PG

GANDHI
The Man of the Century.
Fri (4:45 @ $2.00) 8:30
PG Sat & Sun (12:30 & 4:30 @ $2.00) 8:30

THE LORDS OF DISCIPLINE
Fri (5:00 @ $2.00) 7:30, 9:45
R Sat, Sun (12:30, 2:45 & 5:00 @ $2.00) 7:30, 9:45

YEAR OF LIVING DANGEROUSLY
Fri (5:00 @ $2.00) 7:30, 9:55
PG Sat & Sun (2:00 & 5:00 @ $2.00) 7:30 9:55

THE SONG REMAINS THE SAME
R Quadrophenia
R Monty Python & the Holy Grail

8 Days/7 Nights!
Spring Break
FLORIDA

SPECIAL STUDENT VACATION RATES

$99 Ft. Lauderdale
$109 Daytona Beach
RATES INCLUDE 7 NIGHTS LODGING

Free DISNEY WORLD EXCURSIONS From Daytona Beach

Free
• Welcome Party
• Beer Bashes
• Pool Parties
• Sports Tournaments
• Wiener Roasts
& much more
*Daytona Beach

Optional $89 Round trip Transportation Available to Ft. Lauderdale & Daytona Beach

TRIP DATES CAREFULLY PLANNED TO COINCIDE WITH YOUR SCHOOL BREAK

All accommodations are fully air conditioned with private bath or shower color television, some with kitchenettes & are maid serviced. All are nearby the Top Night Spots

Call about our Special Car Rental Offer for Fort Lauderdale

FREE BROCHURES, INFORMATION & IMMEDIATE CONFIRMATION CALL
ANDREA (413) 546-9627
AN INTERCOLLEGIATE PROGRAM MARKETED BY CAMPUS VACATION ASSOCIATION

Act Now! Don't be left out in the COLD. . .

Advancement WITHOUT AN ADVANCED DEGREE

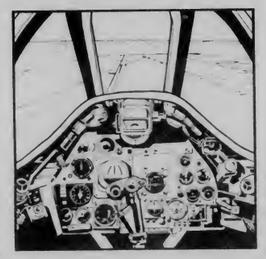
College seniors. If you plan to get a job after graduation why not consider a profession?

- In 3 months, we prepare you for careers in law, management, finance.
- Our 8 intensive courses are nationally recognized for high academic quality.
- Over 90% of our graduates secure jobs in their specialties. Over 5,000 graduates hold positions in law firms, banks and corporations in 110 cities.
- We provide a substantial tuition refund if we cannot secure a job for you in the city of your choice.

Guarantee your future. Learn how the Institute can help you advance in a career. Our representative will be in

The Institute for Personal Training

This Desk Can Reach Mach 2.



Some desk jobs are more exciting than others.

As a Navy pilot or flight officer, your desk can be a sophisticated combination of supersonic jet aircraft and advanced electronic equipment. But you can handle it. Because Navy flight training gives you the navigation, aerodynamics and other technical know-how you need.

In return, Navy aviation demands something of you as an officer: Leadership.

Your path to leadership starts with officer training that's among the most demanding in the military. It's intensive leadership and professional schooling combined with rigorous Navy flight training. And it's all geared to prepare you and other college graduates for the unique challenge of Navy aviation. The program is tough but rewarding.

One important reward for Navy officers is decision-making authority. In the air, and on the ground, you have management responsibility from the beginning. And your responsibility grows as you gain experience. No company can give you this kind of leadership responsibility this fast. And nothing beats the sheer excitement of Navy flying.

The salary is exciting, too. Right away, you'll earn about $18,300 a year. That's better than the average corporation will pay you just out of college. And with regular Navy promotions and other pay increases, your annual salary will soar to $31,100 after four years. That's on top of a full package of benefits and privileges.

Before you settle down to an earthbound desk job, reach for the sky. Reach for the coupon. Find out what it takes to be part of the Naval Aviation Team. You could have a desk that flies at twice the speed of sound.

NAVY OPPORTUNITY INFORMATION CENTER W 210
P.O. Box 5000, Clifton, NJ 07015

☐ Please send me more information about becoming a member of the Naval Aviation Team. (OA)

Name _____ First (Please Print) Last Address _____ Apt #
City _____
State _____
College Currently Attending _____
Year _____ Year of Graduation _____ Major _____ Colleges Interested _____

Navy Officers Get Responsibility Fast.

★★

THE ACADEMY:
It's graduates are among the leaders in Government, the Military and Industry.

THE TRADITION:
One hundred years of the finest school turning out the finest young men.

THE CODE:
No cadet will cheat, steal or dishonor the school.

THE GOAL:
To teach Honor, Integrity, Discipline.

THE TRUTH:
IT WAS ALL A LIE.

There is one cadet about to expose the system.
...and there is a risk.

THE LORDS OF DISCIPLINE

PARAMOUNT PICTURES PRESENTS A HERB JAFFE/GABRIEL KATZKA PRODUCTION • A FRANC RODDAM FILM
THE LORDS OF DISCIPLINE • DAVID KEITH • ROBERT PROSKY • G.D. SPRADLIN • MUSIC BY HOWARD BLAKE • BASED UPON THE NOVEL BY PAT CONROY
SCREENPLAY BY THOMAS POPE AND LLOYD FONVIELLE • PRODUCED BY HERB JAFFE AND GABRIEL KATZKA • DIRECTED BY FRANC RODDAM
R RESTRICTED (ORDER 17 REQUIRES ACCOMPANYING PARENT OR ADULT GUARDIAN)
A PARAMOUNT PICTURE
READ THE BANTAM BOOK

Opens February 18th at a theatre near you.

★★

STOP fights booze battle at University

By MICHAEL R. FLYNN
Collegian Correspondent

Many UMass students have had the experience of going out on a Saturday night with friends, intent on having just a few beers and waking up the next morning cotton-mouthed, head thumping, still drunk and with a Sunday morning hangover.

Other times, though, students wake up the next morning with a clear head, only to find a single crinkled one dollar bill stuffed into the corner of his or her wallet.

Morning-after hang-overs and bankruptcy are just two of the problems that drinking students face.

"Approximately 90 percent of the students on campus drink to some extent," said Carlene Riccelli, coordinator of the Alcohol Education Program and director of the new Student Opportunity Program (STOP) that will begin Feb. 23 at the University Health Services.

STOP is a self-help group designed to assist and support students whose alcohol consumption or related behavior is causing them concern.

"We are looking for students who feel the need for change," said Ricelli. "Whether they're unhappy with the drinking crowd, their grades are slipping or they're worried about their health.

"We want to educate and support people," she said, "who want to cut back and are finding it difficult."

The program will combine educational and clinical techniques to give tangible, hands-on information to students that will apply to various drinking situations.

"We will talk about socializing and interacting with people who are drinking," said Riccelli, "analyzing high risk places and developing assertiveness to feel comfortable in refusing drinks and to remain friends."

"STOP is a self-help group, not a therapy session," she said. "And STOP is only an acronym; we are not trying to stop people from drinking, we're trying to help them live within a drinking society."

Riccelli said alcohol is part of the UMass society. It is not against the law to be intoxicated on campus, and campus police will place a person in protective custody as a result of alcohol related behavior, not as a result of alcohol alone, she said.

Riccelli said "the idea is to increase the realization of alcohol before its related behavior becomes a problem."

STOP is confidential and participation in the program will not be recorded in the students medical record.

The program will begin Feb. 23 with four weekly group meetings where students will explore their drinking patterns and social behavior, determine their individual drinking capacity and set limits if necessary.

Students interested in participating in the program should call Carlene Riccelli at University Health Services for an interview, even if the Feb. 23 deadline is passed. She said Health Services will establish another group if necessary.

The rusty nail cafe presents

Tonight: JUSTIN
Sat. Feb. 19 & Sun. Feb. 20 Race

Coming to the Rusty Nail On:
Sat. Feb. 26th Warren Zevon
Sun. Feb. 27th Tower of Power
Tickets available at "For the Record" (in Faces)

159 N. Pleasnt St. Amherst
Rt. 47 Sunderland, MA 665-4937 You must be 18 to enter.

Closed Sunday to prepare for The Sale

Tech Hifi's Biggest Sale All Year.

Monday only.
The lowest prices of the year.
Open 9:00 a.m. to 10:00 p.m.

Systems

$199 Save $150!
Panasonic SG-V05 complete system with AM/FM stereo receiver, cassette deck, turntable, & 2-way speakers

$399 Save $281!
Nikko NR-520 30 watt/channel digital receiver, pushbutton tuning
Technics SB-3 3-way speakers
JVC LA-10 top-rated, belt-drive, autoshutoff turntable
Pickering 220E elliptical cartridge

$599 Save $511!
Sony STR-VX4 40 watt/channel digital receiver, pushbutton tuning
EPI 1200 high-output 12" 3-way speakers
Aka AP-B210 direct-drive, auto-shutoff turntable
Audio-Technica AT-90E elliptical cartridge

$899 Save $481!
JVC RX-60 55 watt/channel digital receiver w/5-band equalizer
Ohm C3 3-way speakers, poly woofer. New!
Technics SL-DL5 direct-drive, linear tracking turntable
Audio-Technica 200LT elliptical cartridge

Furniture

Plateau universal speaker stands, pr. $19.95
Technics SH-536 walnut vinyl equipment cabinet. Save $70! $79
JVC LK-444 walnut vinyl equipment cabinet, glass doors, casters. Save $131! $119
SDI 883 deluxe walnut veneer equipment cabinet, glass doors, casters. Save $121! $129

Stereo Receivers

TDC 1500 AM/FM receiver, auto fine-tuning. Save $80! $79
Vector Research 3000 25 w audiophile-quality receiver. Save $61! $189
Sony STR-VX5 55 w digital receiver, pushbutton tuning. Save $161! $269

Turntables

Akai AP-B110 belt-drive, auto-shutoff turntable. Save $31! $69
Technics D-20 direct-drive, auto-shutoff turntable. Save $75! $77
Technics SL-DL5 direct-drive, straight-line tracking, automatic turntable. Save $71! $149

EVERYTHING IN OUR STORES WILL BE ON SALE AT WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY PRICES!

Rainchecks are available on most items
Power ratings into 8 ohms, 20-20kHz
Not responsible for typographical errors
At participating Tech Hifi stores

Portable Stereo

Panasonic 2734 mono portable cassette recorder. Save $14! $29
JVC RC-250 mono portable AM/FM cassette recorder with shortwave. Save $41! $59
Sony CFS 43 full-size portable AM/FM stereo cassette recorder. Save $31! $79
Sony CFS-61 full-size portable AM/FM/shortwave stereo cassette recorder. Save 90! $99
JVC RC-57 deluxe mid-size portable AM/FM stereo cassette recorder, digital, pushbutton tuning. Save $200! $149

Video

Panasonic 1510 deluxe 8-hour VHS video recorder, 4-head, remote control, search, 2-week timer, & more. Save $201! $549

Computer Software

All software in stock for Atari, Commodore, and Timex computers is on sale at up to 40% off, including the 16K Timex Rampack for just $39!

Speakers

EPI A-70 top-rated, 2-way bookshelf speakers. Save $80/pr! ea. $49
AR 18B 2-way bookshelf speakers. New! Save $100/pr! ea. $69
JVC SK-404 12", 3-way floor-standing speakers. Save $82/pr! ea. $89
Technics 11", 3-way floor-standing speakers. Save $142/pr! ea. $99
TDC 10 computer-designed 12", 3-way floor-standing speakers. Save $102/pr! ea. $149
Ohm L best-selling 3-way speakers, real walnut finish. Save $102/pr! ea. $169

Tape

TDK carrying case with 10 premium TDK SA-C90 cassettes. Save! $29.95
JVC T-120 2/4/6-hour VHS videocassette. Save! $8.99

Car Stereo

Jensen R200 AM/FM stereo cassette player, mini chassis. Save $71! $79
Clarion 3700 pushbutton AM/FM stereo cassette player. Save $90! $99
Jensen pushbutton AM/FM stereo cassette player complete with 2 Jensen 4½" dual cone speakers. Fits most cars. Save $126! $149
Panasonic CQ-717 pushbutton, auto-reverse AM/FM stereo cassette player. Save $61! $159
Pioneer KP-7600 pushbutton, auto-reverse AM/FM stereo cassette player. Save $90! $189
Pioneer TS-107 dual-cone 4½" car speakers. Save $26/pr! pr. $29
Cerwin-Vega CS-7 high-output 6x9" coax car speakers. Save $51/pr! pr. $49
Jensen Series II 6x9" Triax car speakers. Save $56/pr! pr. $89
Parasound EQ600 120 w car amp w/5-band equalizer. Save $100! $99

Cassette Decks

Akai CFS-12 Dolby* casssette deck, soft-touch control, fluoro meters. Save $81! $99
Technics 224 Dolby* B&C cassette deck, soft-touch control. Save $71! $109
Akai CFS-14 Dolby* B&C cassette deck, soft-touch control, fluoro meters. Save $70! $129
Onkyo TA-2055 Dolby* B&C cassette deck, 3 motors, AccuBias. Save $101! $259
Vector Research 510 Dolby* B&C cassette deck, solenoid control, 2 motors. Save $171! $329

Personal Stereo

Crown/Japan CH-20 stereo cassette walk-person with FM & headphones. Save $41! $39
Parasound Nomad FM stereo walkperson w/headphones. Save $21! $49
Sony Walkman 5 stereo cassette player with headphones. Save $30! $99

And More...

NuMark 2400 10-band graphic equalizer. Save $100! $99
DiscWasher Perfect Path cassette deck head cleaner. Save $2! $4.99
Audio-Technica universal high-fidelity microphone. Save! $19.95
Demon telephone bell silencer. Save! $4.99
Panasonic KXT-1020 speaker phone. Save $16! $59
Sony MDR-5 deluxe ultra-light stereo headphones. Save $35! $29.95
AKG K-130 pro lightweight stereo headphones. Save $9! $39

tech hifi

Better price. Better advice.

Marshall's Plaza, Boston Rd. & Parker St., Springfield 782-5544
15 East Pleasant Street, Amherst 253-3100
Stores throughout Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New Hampshire, Vermont, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Ohio & No. Carolina

MasterCard VISA

ATTACHE CASE,
black, now yours for the taking (from Bartlett lobby by Monday aft.); but PLEASE have mercy on 67 students whose papers were inside! Just drop in any Bartlett office. Beaty, English Dept.

MUSIC GALLERY
PEAVEY, IBANEZ, TAMA, JBL, ROLAND, ACOUSTIC, BOSS, LEGEND, EV-TAPCO, HONDO, DEAN, HAMER, FOSTEX.
RT. 9 HADLEY
ON THE BUS ROUTE
586-6228

AMHERST CINEMA
$2.50 Double Feature
Fri & Sat
Thin Man 7:00
North by Northwest 9:05
Sun - Tues
Arthur 7:15
World According to Garp 9:00
Downtown Amherst
253-5426

— An Alternative —
Offering Quality Mexican Foods
QUICK • WHOLESOME • INEXPENSIVE
— Northampton —
21 Center St.
584-0673
B.Y.O.B.
TACO VILLA
— Amherst —
41 Boltwood Walk
256-8217
Beer & Wine Served

Hypercurricula...

"Hypercurricula," a listing of events held at the University of Massachusetts and surrounding area, is published daily in the Collegian. Events are listed only on the day they are taking place. Announcements must be submitted on "Hypercurricula" forms available in the Collegian offices, 113 Campus Center, and returned to the office by 3 p.m. the Friday before the event. All submissions should be written in a similar style as they appear in the paper.

"Hypercurricula" notices not submitted on the standard form and not submitted by the Friday before the week the event will take place will not be run. Due to space limitations, the Collegian cannot guarantee printing of all "Hypercurricula" notices. Priority will be given to UMass organizations.

Today

INTERNSHIP PLANNING SESSION — Detailed information about internship opportunities in all fields. Sign up for a planning session in person or by phone. Office of Internships, 16 Curry Hicks, 545-0727, 2:30 p.m.

SPECIAL SHABBAT SERVICES — This will be a special teaching service with Beth Mascott, NFTY songleader. Come learn new melodies as we bring in this special time of reflection and relaxation, 5 p.m., Dukes Room, Student Union.

Saturday

OLDER STUDENTS SWIM PARTY — Meet older students at Boyden Pool for a swim, followed by whatever! Pub, dinner, dancing — will consider all options. "Live it up" with the 25+ Club. Open to all older students, 3 p.m., Boyden Pool.

Sunday

NEED A RIDE TO CHURCH? — The CHURCH BUS leaves at 9:30 from Prince House and stops at Hills North, Greenough, Grayson, Fraternity-Sorority Park, Cashin, and NOPE enroute to the Amherst churches. Call UCF — 545-2661 for more information.

ART EXHIBIT — Acrylic paintings of Douglas Cieslak now on display at Student Union Gallery, Feb. 14 to Feb. 25. Opening reception, Sunday, 4 to 6 p.m. Student Union Gallery.

SPIRITUAL DIRECTION & SUPPORT GROUP — A group for men and women willing to examine different forms of spirituality and how it can be reflected positively in one's life, 7 to 9 p.m., 428 Student Union.

Next Week

AUDITIONS FOR PLAY "A RAISIN IN THE SUN" — Auditions for the play "A Raisin in the Sun," written by Lorraine Hansberry and directed by Jim Mock, Tuesday and Wednesday, 4 to 6 p.m., Kirby Theater, Amherst College.

Good friends will be there come hell or high water.

Your friends didn't know a scrum from a dropkick. And they obviously didn't know enough to get out of the rain. But they did know how much this rugby game meant to you. So they hung in there–downpour and all.

Now that the game's over, make your best move of the day. Löwenbräu for everybody.

Löwenbräu. Here's to good friends.

Start every day refreshed!
The Collegian

UPC PRODUCTIONS

AND THE INTERNATIONAL WOMENS EVENT PLANNING COMMITTEE

PHOEBE SNOW

MARCH 8, 1983
8:00 P.M.

TICKETS ON SALE FEB. 25

STUDENTS 5.00, 6.00 GEN. PUB. 6.00, 7.00

ON CAMPUS: TIX UNLIMITED AND THE FINE ARTS CENTER BOX OFFICE

AMHERST: FOR THE RECORD

NORTHAMPTON: WOMONFYRE BOOKS

ALL TICKETRON LOCATIONS

THANKS UMASS ARTS COUNCIL

FINE ARTS CENTER UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS

Arts

Play by Play

by Pam Madnick

If you're staying in the Amherst area over the long weekend and are looking for live entertainment consider going to the theatre. Here's what's happening this week:

This weekend's best bet is a murder mystery in the Curtain Theater at UMass. The Department of Theater presents A Runner Stumbles by Milan Stitt. This play spent some time on Broadway and was hailed by N.Y. Times critic Clive Barnes as ". . . an absolutely fascinating play . . . one of the best plays I have ever seen in a long time. It got to me and I cried." The UMass production is directed by Bruce Browne. The curtain comes down Saturday so plan on seeing it tonight, tomorrow or Saturday at 8 p.m. For reservations, call 545-3511. Tickets are $1.50 for students and $2.50 for the general public.

At the Hampden Theater, you can see Hottentot, a contemporary farce by Robert Kornhiser. The show is on tonight, tomorrow and Saturday at 7:30 in the Hampden Theater, UMass. Tickets are $2.50 for the public and $1.50 for students.

A week from this Saturday see For Better, Not for Worse, a political comedy on South Africa written by Selaelo Maredi. The play is sponsored by the Third World Theater Series. The American Committee on Africa performs in Bowker Auditorium, UMass.

Subtle shadings of jazz

NEW YORK HOT TRUMPET REPERTORY COMPANY
Tuesday, February 15
Student Union Ballroom

By RICK ALMEIDA
Collegian Correspondent

Valley jazz fans were treated to one of the most original and exciting shows in some time last night when the New York Hot Trumpet Repetory Company graced the Student Union Ballroom on the UMass campus.

Consisting of Malachi Thompson, Olu Dara, Lester Bowie, Bruce Purse and Stanton Davis, the company utilized the talents of the five trumpeters only. They were more than enough. After arriving forty "fashionable" minutes late, the band took the stage to the enthusiastic cheers of the sparse but excited crowd.

The first set began with subdued, subtle shadings of contemporary jazz. Modds and riifs were set and then explored, displaying both the cohesion and competiveness of the company. A vast majority of the music was pure improvisation and this led to several unconventional moments. Horns were exchanged, retired or exercised with stunning smoothness.

As each new piece began, the band quickly passed over the ground already covered that evening, and forged ahead to probe deeper. They never lost their footing, never fell into the common trap of senseless repetition, and continued with each note building only towards the next. It was progressive jazz at its most literal, both in genre and individual piece.

All band members played with a transient, minimal style that echoed Miles Davis, but with five trumpets involved this led to more immediate gratification for the listener, with the sound always overshadowing the lack of sound, which is not always the case in contemporary jazz.

While many rock and roll bands pursue a musical tension and release, the Hot Trumpet Repetory Company explores tension and the thought of release. By only hinting at the explosion of sound that seems inevitable, the band challenges the listener to stick with the music, a challenge that seemed last night to be mutually rewarding.

Collegian photo by Dave Deuber

The New York Hot Trumpet Repertory Company performed at the Student Union Ballroom Tuesday night.

Philippe Noiret and Isabelle Huppert star in Bertrand Tavernier's Coup De Torchon.

Coup De Torchon Sparkles

[Editor's Note: As we go to press, Coup De Torchon has been nominated for Best Foreign Film.]

COUP DE TORCHON
Pleasant St. Theatre
Feb. 16 - March 1

By ELAINE SENAY
Collegian Staff

It's very rare to find a film that embodies style, wit, and intelligence without sacrificing something in the process. Happily, Bertrand Travernier's Coup De Torchon (translated as "Clean Slate"), gives up nothing. Travernier has created a film noir with some hilarious touches of black comedy.

Coup De Torchon is set in French West Africa during the long, hot summer of 1938. Philippe Noiret plays Lucien Cordier, an over the hill police chief who doesn't care about his job because his life seems to contain enough crimes. He has a wife who sleeps around with everyone except him and Lucien believes that he is Jesus Christ. And you think you've got problems.

To top it all off, Lucien never arrests anyone-he avoids it at all costs. Crime runs rampant in Bourkassa and Lucien runs away from it. But our hero gets tired of this and soon becomes determined to clean up his town. He does this by bumping off every offender and no one suspects him.

Coup De Torchon's characters sparkle on the screen. The film boasts some quality talent. Stephane Audran plays Lucien's wife, Hugette, with predatory bitchiness. Isabelle Huppert is terrific as Rose Marcaillou, Lucien's mistress. She floats across the screen like a nymph who happens to step into reality in order to make it look good.

The film derives much of its black humor from the little scenes that usually occur between Lucien and some other character. There is a Colonel who appears from time to time in the story: he says a few sentences, Lucien replies sympathetically, and then the Colonel exits. Some of the conversations loop around each other to the point where you don't care anymore. The little details will make you enjoy the film time and again.

By the time Coup De Torchon draws to a close, you really begin to think that maybe Lucien isn't so crazy. The town doesn't really care about who just got shot. They're only concerned with living their lives-perhaps this is why Lucien feels justified. Coup De Torchon is an official entry for the Academy Awards this year and there is no reason why it shouldn't get a nomination.

If you're looking for a film this season that isn't full of cutesy gloss, Coup De Torchon is the film to see. It doesn't insult your intelligence and you can feel satisfied with all it has to offer.

Two critical perspectives

WASHINGTON BALLET
Monday, February 14
Fine Arts Center

By ANDREW GORDON
Collegian Staff

Choo San Goh joined the Washington Ballet Company in 1976 and has been a godsend. The world-renowned choreographer's two pices proved to be the high points of the company's Monday night performance here.

Goh's "Double Contrasts", which premiered with the company five years ago, was a nice opening for the evening. Set in front of an exploding starry backdrop, the spectacular piece featured the entire company in a fast paced and fascinating number. The asymetrical parts of the piece were especially appealing, though the subtle interchanging between symetrical and asymetrical movement created a confusion I'm not sure was intended. The highlight of the night, for me, came in a heart-stopping scene from this piece which had six white and black clad dancers moving in stunning precise succession.

"Pas De Quatre" and the grand pas de deux from "Sleeping Beauty", choreographed by Maurius Petipa, were basically boring and were marred further by lame sound recording, deafening silence between scenes and far too many bows.

Despite technical problems and other distractions (oil that curtain, willya?), the performance was vibrant and enjoyable.

Washington Ballet choreographer Choo San Goh

"'SOPHIE'S CHOICE' IS MAGNIFICENT!

THERE IS NOT A FALSE FRAME FROM ITS CAST OR ITS DIRECTOR, ALAN PAKULA.
A GORGEOUS FILM FILLED WITH LUSTY LOVE AND ROBUST LIFE ...
WITH A PERFORMANCE BY MERYL STREEP THAT MAKES HER AN IMMORTAL."

— Gene Shalit, NBC-TV TODAY SHOW

GOLDEN GLOBE AWARD
BEST ACTRESS
MERYL STREEP

SOPHIE'S CHOICE

ITC Entertainment Presents
Meryl Streep Kevin Kline Peter MacNicol
in an Alan J. Pakula Film "Sophie's Choice" a Keith Barish Production Screenplay by Alan J. Pakula Based on the novel by William Styron Director of Photography Nestor Almendros, ASC Production Designer George Jenkins
Music by Marvin Hamlisch Executive Producer Martin Starger Produced by Alan J. Pakula and Keith Barish Directed by Alan J. Pakula
Released thru ITC Entertainment Distributed by Universal Pictures and Associated Film Distribution Corporation R RESTRICTED

NOW PLAYING, CHECK LOCAL NEWSPAPERS FOR THEATRES AND SHOWTIMES.

Bloom County — By Berke Breathed

The UMass Zone — By Mark Rollins

Katfood — By ARK

Scrod — By Dan DeBellis

After The Fall — By R. Miller

CROSSWORD

Edited by Margaret Farrar and Trude Jaffe
© 1983 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

ACROSS
1 Highlander wear
5 The briny
9 Lightweight wood
14 Winglike part
15 Tan
16 Indian or Arctic
17 Pine
18 Show the way
20 Wild ass
22 Not (by no means)
23 D.C. title
24 Location of Dakar
26 Sphere of work
28 Engage in negotiations
33 Raucous utterance
35 Kind of belt
36 buena (herb)
37 Danish-American reformer
39 "...dear, old —!"
41 Destination
42 Fasting
44 Speak poorly
47 Verb suffix
48 Stays away from
52 London area
53 Insignificant
56 Windup
59 Kind of barrel
61 Don of films
62 Has a good time
65 Populace outbreak
66 Moslem deity
67 Third generation name
68 Edith Bolling Wilson
69 Gently, in music
70 Went down
71 Relative of rahs

DOWN
1 Fare, in Vera Cruz
2 Unattached
3 Household members
4 Poet Alan
5 Corrupt
6 Habitation, in combinations
7 Assam silkworm
8 State of India
9 Place to buy Wellingtons
10 Prefix before puncture
11 Gives the go ahead
12 Fill too full
13 In a bit
19 Hartebeest
21 Auspices
25 Cast member
27 Ice and Stone
29 By any possibility
30 Feigned
31 Nigerian natives
32 Neck area
33 Shank
34 "You — heard nothin' yet, folks!"
38 Gets the point
40 Daily regimen
43 — subject (brush off)
45 Soviet regional capital near Moscow
46 Companion of proper
49 Word to a fly
50 Conquistador of Mexico
51 Exceed 54 — in one
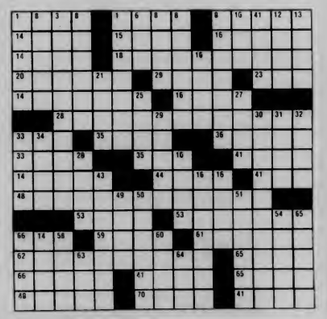
55 Riga natives
56 Doggone's relative
57 — contendere
58 Place for a picnic
60 Hawaiian storm
63 Plant fluid container
64 Topped the competition



ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

A	B	E	L		T	A	M		B	O	B
A	L	U	L	A		M	E	N	D		U	P	A
B	I	B	L	E	T	H	U	M	P	A		R	U	B
E	B	B		N	U	M	B	E	R	S	E	N	S	E
S	I	L	V	E	R		A	B	E	T	S
		S	E	A		A	G	O			T	O	S	P
			B	I	A	C	K	S	H	E	E	P		A	P	E
B	O	A		H	U	R		E	R	G		N	A	G
I	N	T		S	T	O	A	Y	E		B	O	O	K
B	A	R	T			P	E	N			A	R	G
			T	O	L	O		U	R	S	U	L	A
H	O	L	L	A	N	D	A	I	S	E		P	A	C
O	B	I		R	A	T	I	S	S	E	R	I	E
P	I	N		K	N	O	T	S			T	I	N	A
S	E	T			E	N	E				D	A	Y	S

weather

Today partly sunny, breezy and colder, highs 30 to 40. Tonight clear and cold, lows in the upper teens to mid 20s. Tomorrow sunny, highs 30 to 35.

D.C. MENU

LUNCH
Torpedo Grinder
Shrimp Chow Mein

BASICS LUNCH
Flat Bread Sandwich
Shrimp Chow Mein

DINNER
Ranch Style
Hamburg Steak
Baked Cod with Lemon Slice

BASICS DINNER
Tomato Torte
Baked Cod with Lemon Slice

WANTED: Someone who knows news

The Collegian is looking for one Associate News Editor to coordinate our coverage of Amherst and the Five College area. Applicants should have some experience reporting news for a newspaper and be willing to work hard for low pay. We will provide some training and great experience. Interested UMass students should apply before next Friday, Feb. 25, to John DiPalazzo at the Collegian, 113 Campus Center, 545-3500.

The Collegian is an equal opportunity employer.

Five-College Students

The Collegian wants to hear what's happening at your school. We need w.. cover news and human interest stories at Amherst College, Hampshire, Smith and Mount Holyoke Colleges. No pay but great experience and the chance to write for one of the finest college newspapers.

If interested, please contact Nancy Gonter or John DiPalazzo at the Collegian, 545-3500, weekday afternoons.

STADIUM

UMass Amherst

10 a.m. LIQUORS til 11 p.m.

Kegs • Beer • Wine • Soda • Ice

University Drive, Amherst, Mass.

Just past UMass Stadium, from SW dorms

Old Milwaukee 12 pk.....	$4.30	+ .60 dep
Pabst bot.....	$8.90	+ 1.50 dep
Schaffer cans.....	$8.95	+ 1.20 dep
Busch cans.....	$9.95	+ 1.20 dep
Budweiser cans.....	$10.95	+ 1.20 dep
Almaden 3 L.....	$6.95
California Cellars 1.5.....	$4.49
Sebastiani 1.5 L.....	$4.49
Principato white 1.5 L.....	$3.99
Gallo 1.5 L.....	$3.99
Canadian Rare 1.75.....	$10.25
Canadian Mist 1.75.....	$12.59
Gordon's Gin 1.75.....	$11.99
Popov Vodka 1.75.....	$9.95
Regnier Schnapps 1 L.....	$5.95
Strogoff Vodka 1.75.....	$8.20

253-5595

not responsible for typographical errors

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Monday - Friday • Deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10 % • discount • Phone number FREE

AUTO FOR SALE

67 VW Conv inspected needs work $400 or BO 323-5918 leave message

BELLYGRAMS!!

Delivered by professional bellydancer for most unusual gift Thereza 253-7822

CAPE COD RENTAL

Housemates wanted for summer in Harwich 6 bedrooms cottages available also call 6-5851

CAR PARTS

Saab 96 Parts: transmission, V-4 engine, 1967 brake master cylinder, tach, special edition "Monte Carlo" body, other parts. Call Sam 774-5952 Mon to Fri 1 pm to 5 pm

CRIMSON TRAVEL

Spring Break - Bermuda $289. Daytona $299. Disney $279. More info: Roberta or Steph 549-5320

DAYTONA BEACH

Daytona .Beach Spring Break $299. Round trip direct non-stop jet Boston -Daytona. 7 nights Ramada Inn on the beach Free car rental departs Mar 19 Saugus Travel 617-233-8192, 617-289-6221

ENTERTAINMENT

Professionel DJs For Less $99 Winter Speciall Dorms, greeks, Semis. Paul 549-4405

Rackediac Enterteinment Agency Inc. Bands and discjockeys guaranteed student functions 256-0739

FOR RENT

Room for rent furnished Northwood Apts negotiable call Tom 665-4284

Storege space availeble by the month call Peg (evenings 6-10 PM) 549-6852

FOR SALE

Poetry Books - 'The Watcher' - $2 + '10 Jewish American Poets' - $4 Call253-5369

ATARI 800 COMPUTERS 48k RAM typewriter keyboard new condition includes BASIC cartridge and manuals $499 546-8638

Smith Corona electric typewriter $200 John 5-2069 days 549-6543 eves

K2 Skils For Sale $50 or BO interested? call Margie 256-6612

Computer Terminal ADM-3A video terminal good condition Phil 549-6994

BOSE 201 Speakers one month old 150 or BO Dave 546-5359

Large frig for sale $75 or best offer call Brian 549-6343

75 Olds Starfire 6 cyls AM/FM cassette good cond. 1275 253-2016

Caber Skl Boots - used 4 times size 10 ½ $35 or best offer 549-0686

Nikon FE for sale with 50f1.8 and 135 telephoto $375 or BO call Scott 253-7465

FOUND

Found gold filled Cross pen in Goodell Library. Call to identify 3 initials on side. Brian 6-1272

FUN IN THE SUN

Daytona Beach - Spring Break - March 18-27 Party down on the motorcoach, Free Beer Party, oceanfront accomodations $185 plus tax & services. Call Kathie or Robin @ 256-0551 for more info

HELP WANTED

Oversees Jobs - Summer/year round. Europe, S. Amer., Australia, Asia. All fields. $500-$1200 monthly. Sight-seeing. Free info. Write IJC Box 52-MA-1 Corona Del Mar, CA 92625

CRUISE SHIP JOBS! $14-$28,000 Caribean, Hawaii, World. Call for Guide, Directory, Newsletter. 916-722-1111 ext Massachusettes

COUNSELORS: Camp Wayne, northeastern Pennsylvania. Co-ed childrens camp 6/23-8/23/83. On campus interviews March 2nd. Friendly, warm atmosphere, 12 Allevard, Lido Beach, NY 11561. Include school phone number. Campus Rep: Wendy Edenfield 545-0939

Kitchen help needed for exchange of meals call 549-0432 or 549-3582 ask for Chickie

Dependable people needed for newspaper delivery in dorms. 7 days a week. Between 7:00-9:00 AM. 253-7009

The Commuter Area Govrnment has two job openings. These positions are work-study at 15/hours/wk. Must be a freshman, sophmore or junior undergraduate. To apply, stop by 404 Student Union 9:00-5:00 pm M-F. We are an Affirmative Action Equal Opportunity Employer. Third World, women and non-traditional students encpouraged to apply. Deadline is February 23.

Part-time work availeble in solar sales. Call Eric 549-5884

I'LL GIVE YOU TWO DOLLARS

If you have old 103B Microeconomics final. (Prof Resnick) - northing sleazy 549-5799

INSTRUCTION

Commercial Art and Cartooning Workshops. Free brochure. 586-8513

LOST

Keys on blue-clip keyring with words Le Chateau 546-8161

MICROCOMPUTER/TERMINAL RENTALS

The Computer Works 253-5676 253-5755

MOE, LARRY, CURLEY

Thanks for the fundies unfortunately they are missing an occupant so please fill in Thanks HUW

NOHO TO PARIS

All's forgiven, booby. You can come home. Letters are on the way. Hey we need a fifth housemate. Are you interested? Love, Pauline, Stacey, Dan, and Michelle

PERSONALS

Stop Fee Increases! The student senate will hold hearings on next years student fees. Come voice your concerns Mon 14th CC 101 7 pm Tues 15th CC804 4-7 pm

Tired of the same old routine? All University Women are invited to Chi Omega Rush Parties:
Monday Feb. 14 Dinner 5:00-6:00
Valentine's Party 7:30-8:15
Wed. Feb. 16 Dynasty Party 9:30-11
Thurs. Feb. 17 Coffe & Dessert 7-8
Tues. Feb. 22 Chi-O Rodeo 6:30-7:30
See what makes Chi Omega speciall Come on up to Frat/Sor Park or call 545-0162

All university women invited to Sigma Kappa Informal Rush
Feb. 14 Mon 7:00
Feb 15 Tue 7:00
Feb 16 Wed 7:00
Feb 17 Thur 7:00
Feb 20 Sunday brunch 12:30
19 Allen St. located behind BKO to RSVP call 256-6887

JAMAICA
Spring Break

Do it right this year!
For more info call 549-0329

ECE 212 tutor needed! Will pay call 6-5876 evenings keep trying

COMSTU Club Meeting
today
Machmer E 37
4:00 pm

All University Men
Interested in a rewarding Fraternity? Join the brothers of Alpha Phi Omega in Friendship, Leadership and Service. Tues. @ 7 PM OPEN RUSH Rm 904 C.C. Discover the true meaning of Fraternity. Look for our table in the CC Concourse on Tuesday.

To Sendy, Thank you for the surprise and for making my birthday so special. I won't ever forget. Friends like you make it all worthwhile. Much love, Ilene

Micheal - Happy Easter to you too?!? Thanks for the cookies. Who are you?? Amy

JIM Sorry I couldn't make it to the Hangor Monday hopefully some other time Lisa

Peter - You are too important to me to hurt - sorry. Looking forward to explaining. Kim

Retired V.B.I.: Thanx for the surprise Valentine message. Call me. Sincerely, No Appendix

Jane, Am I sensitive yo your needs or what? Love, ger

Hey Jude the Big 19!!! Do it up! But if you can't be good at least good at it. Happy B-Day Luv Roomie

Lambda Delta Phi*********
Invites all UMass women to informal sorority rush on Saturday Feb 19th (dinner) at 5:30 and Tuesday Feb 22nd at 7:00 PM
For further info call 545-0939 or 253-9971 or come by to heve lots of FUN!!!!
389 N. Pleasant St

Did you participate in a pornography study done three years ago here at UMass? If so, call Michelle at 546-5962

Office worker/typist for Student Senate Office wanted. Apply in 420 Student Union by Feb. 18. 5-0341 women and people of color encouraged to apply

Heppy 20th Annel better late than never love, your roomie

Pierre - Happy Birthday! Love Mon Cheri

Michael I'm still waiting for the blender but I'll settle for going out to dinner Karen

Linda - I got the hint. Happy 20th! Here's to the hopes that your knees get plenty of exercise in the coming year! - S

To the very kind person who returned my mittens Tues. night: Thank-you!!!

Stop drinking if it's causing problems for you. Contact Health Education 549-2671 (ext. 181) for more information about the Student Opportunity Program (STOP*)

Bryan - One year down - a lifetime to go! Congrads! Love ya - Beth

Art Bus to N.Y.C. 26th sign up FAC Coffee Shop: MW 12:15 - 2:15, TTH 2:30-4:30, F 10:00 - 11:00 $20 roundtrip

Phil - So you do like my mind. I'm touched love, Huggykissyface

Happy 20th Birthey Pet - Hope it's a good one!!! Love, from all your friends on 3

Nancy Messler - Happy 20th Birthday you can now go wild with all of the fabulous women of Chi Omega

PRECISION TYPING SERVICE

Prompt Service / Low Rates 546-4767

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Dissertations, Theses, Cases, Papers, guaranteed acceptance, low rates, Nancy 5-0392, 584-7924

RESUME WRITING

Professionel/Confidential/Efficient special rates 253-7468 weekends, weekdays after 5

RIDE NEEDED

Ride needed to Millers Falls Thur eves 5 PM share expenses call Holly at Outdoor Center of New England 659-3926

ROOMMATE WANTED

Roommate wanted: $120/m util incl starts Feb call Mark or Dan 549-1387

Male or female to share house quiet setting, nonsmoker 200.00/mo util included call 467-3974 (Granby)

Apartment-mate wanted fully-furnished 2 bedroom apt in private home. 5 minute walk to Amherst Center $250 includes utils/heat call Todd or leave message 549-6528 or 549-1916

Two bedrooms in three bedroom owner occupied home Easthampton 150 + per mo prefer working grad student with car. 527-5714

100/month, new wall-to-wall carpeting, utilities included. ½ price for Feb. Only 4 month lease. Brittany Manor 549-4758 leave message, will call back fast

SERVICES

PAPER DUE? CAN'T WRITE? Tutor -english composition and grammar reasonable rates 6-9289

Your typewriter or mine? Accurate, reliable. $1/page Kitty 6-7302

SPRING BREAK

Vecation Specials: Florida, Bahamas, Bermuda. $125 - $325. Call Dave or John 253-3718

THE BOLTWOOD PROJECT

Boltwood is seeking volunteers to participate in recsation programs for the developmentally disabled at BSS. Gain valuable experience. Credit available. Information meetings: Thurs Feb 17 and Wednesday Feb 23 rm 804 CC

TRAVEL

Florida direct by van. 3/19-27. $158. for round trip - wine & cheese - accom. info call now - S.S. Van Lines @ 617-724-8810

On the Strip Spring Break in Daytona or Ft Lauderdale deluxe hotels from $125 call Dave or John 253-3718

Bermuda - $315 includes everything - call 256-6941 after 6

WANTED

Class rings, gold and silver jewelry and coins. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant, Amherst, 256-0710

Phil Collins Tix I need two tickets located anywhere call Julie after 6 PM 586-1884

Apt Mate Northwood Apts own room, two bdrm apt 160.00 rent 665-3633 aft 5 pm

Sincere people wanted to try Shaklee's new clinically tested weight loss plan and organic vitamins. Excellent business opportunity available to market products full or part time. Call 586-8023, 586-4191, 247-5479 M-F 10 am - 7 pm

Help $60 reward for helping me by your parents unwanted second car 253-7189

Looking to buy dorm size refrigerator immediately call Elaine 6-9662

Attention
All Juniors
applications are still available for the Mortar Board
Honor Society
scholarship - leadership - community involvement
Prerequisite - 3.2+ G.P.A.
Forms may be picked up at the Dean of Students Office
Deadline - February 25th
Any questions call Annemarie 545-2152

The GRADUATE STUDENT SENATE is inviting political, social, cultural and academic groups to submit requests for LINE ITEM FUNDING for Fiscal Year 1984. For applications and further information on the budget process, please contact Paul Weiss, GSS Treasurer, 919 Campus Center, 545-2896. DEADLINE FOR REQUESTS IS FEBRUARY 28.

Reporters Needed

The Collegian needs reporters to cover campus and area news and women's affairs. All interested students are welcome to come and work for the Collegian, the area's largest daily college newspaper. No experience is needed and we provide training. Great experience for journalism or communications majors or anyone interested in the media. Stop by the Collegian, 113 Campus Center, anytime during the day and ask for an editor.

Sports

Northeastern outguns the Minutemen

Neysmith, Green bright spots in third straight loss

By JIM FLOYD
Collegian Staff

BOSTON — The only way to characterize last night's 81-67 Minuteman loss to Northeastern University is to point out that the cheerleaders got lost on the way to the game and no one at Matthews Arena would give UMass any soap to shower with.

To be sure, Massachusetts got lost after taking a 25-19 lead at the 4:47 mark of the first half, and Northeastern gave the Minutemen nothing but trouble the rest of the way.

After a Northeastern timeout was called, at the aforementioned point, the Huskies led by junior Mark Braswell, ran off ten unanswered points and never trailed again.

It was the quick and aggressive play of Northeastern that proved to be a key as the Huskies forced several Minuteman turnovers (UMass had 24 in the game).

In the second half, the crowd, which was split equally between UMass and Northeastern fans, thought the game would stay close as the second efforts of Horace Neysmith and junior Edwin Green would close the gap.

Then, the floodgates opened.

The Huskie defense tested the Minuteman from endline to endline and the result was a clinc in fast break basketball for Northeastern.

Junior guard Phil Robinson was the key benefactory of the Massachusetts turnovers. He beat the Minutemen on several occasions en route to a twenty point evening.

A Robinson breakaway at the 11:48 mark of the period upped the score to 50-36 and it was panic time for UMass.

To the Minutemen's credit, they did cut the lead to seven at the 5:54 mark when a Donald Russell (19 pts.) jumper made the score 61-54.

The Minutemen would get no closer, however, as the Huskie defense sparked two easy layups and the night was lost but for the fact that the UMass cheerleaders did take the floor midway through the second half.

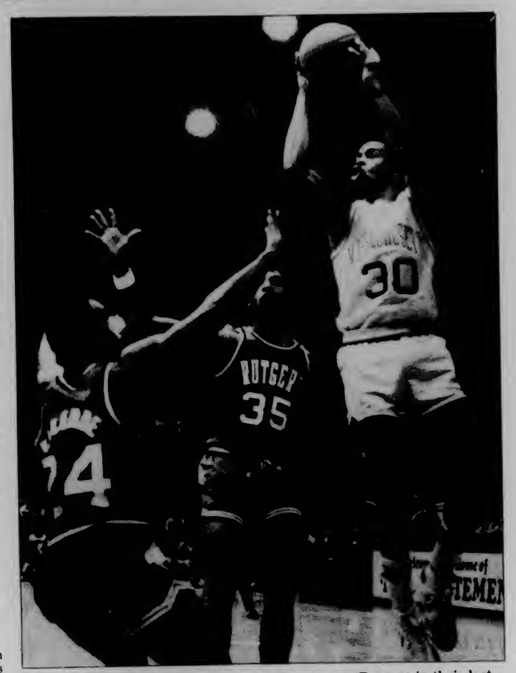
It is not known if the Minutemen got any soap to take a shower with.

Boxscore:

MASSACHUSETTS (67) Russell 8-3-19, Neysmith 3-6-12, Young 2-1-5, Hempel 5-2-12, Carter 0-2-2, Braun 3-0-6, Green 7-2-16

NORTHEASTERN (81) Hassell 10-2-22, Braswell 5-6-16, Byrant 1-4-6, Basquiot 3-3-9, Miller 0-0-0, Cockran 4-0-8, Robinson 6-8-20

Attendance: 1,500



Ron Young shoots in the Minutemen's loss to Rutgers in their last home game. UMass hosts URI tomorrow night at 7:30 p.m. in the Cage.

Rhode Island dares to enter the Cage Saturday

By JIM FLOYD
Collegian Staff

The Curry Hicks Cage was a large, empty place yesterday afternoon.

It was easy to forget that just 11 days earlier this now quiet gymnasium had been roaring to the sounds of Division I basketball when Rutgers tried to invade the Amherst area, unless you were one of the fans who were part of the capacity crowd on hand.

True, the Minuteman lost a heartbreaking 62-60 decision when a John Hempel shot careened off, first the backboard and then the rim, before bouncing helplessly away, but there was a special feeling in the Cage that night.

It was basketball the way head coach Tom McLaughlin wanted it to be. It was spirited, exciting, and in general it was a whole lot of fun.

The fans jeered at the visiting team and exploded with each Minuteman hoop or key defensive play. They grabbed the momentum and intensified it in an effort to carry their team to victory.

The team responded, playing very good basketball against a very good basketball team. They felt the crowd as only the serious home crowd can be.

And, when all was said and done, and the Scarlet Knights had slipped out the back door of the Cage and escaped back to New Jersey, a very tough victory and prevalent question remained echoing campus wide.

"When was the next home game?" those who had been there and those turned away at the door asked.

The answer, Minuteman hoop fans, is quite simple. It is tomorrow.

Minuteman basketball will once again bounce off the walls of the Curry Hicks Cage tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. whe the Rams of University of Rhode Island bull their way into town.

The first meeting of the season between these two clubs saw URI hand UMass a defeat by the margin of ten points. But, that game was in Rhode Island, not in the Curry Hicks Cage.

The Rams will be facing a much more poised Minuteman squad tomorrow. The Minutemen are a more cohesive unit now, they have more experience and they are at home where the UMass fans seem to be making a major contribution these days.

Any of the 2000 who were turned away from the Rutgers game will already know this, come early. The place will fill up quickly.

The Cage crazinesss has returned once again.

Gymnasts seek revenge for loss against UNH

By ELLEN RICHARD
Collegian Staff

When they last met at the start of the season at the University of Massachusetts women's gymnastics invitational, the top-ranked University of New Hampshire edged over UMass by a 169.65-167.40 score.

On Sunday the two teams will meet again, this time in New Hampshire. It's a match that UMass has been working to improve for all season.

"I have this feeling we've improved more than they ahve in the level of difficulty," than they have in the level of difficulty," assistant coach Cheryl Livingstone said. bars have improved a lot and our beams are consistent."

UNH has given UMass its only loss of the season so far. Sunday's meet is going to be a close one as UNH has improved to the mid 170s and UM has consistently been averaging 170 points in its last couple meets.

The Minutewomen have improved in vaulting as most of the gymnasts have been working on more difficult vaults. Karen Knapp will be performing a half on half off vault which could improve her score by four points.

Along with the vaulting event, the uneven bars is going to be an important event for UMass. The Minutewomen have been working hard on the vault and bar and Livingstone thinks this could be the key to whether UMass wins or loses the meet.

"If we can stay with them on vault and bars we could win," Livingstone said. "Our floor and beam are stronger than theirs. That's where it's a give and take situation."

According to Livingstone, each gymnast is matched so whoever wins the meet will depend on whoever hits. If UMass performs to the ability that it has been working up to, the team should have no problem and should come home with a victory.

"Ken (coach Anderson) and I are really excited about this meet," Livingstone said. "We're (UNH and UMass) pretty much at the same level, competition wise. It could go either way."

Struggling hoopsters host Canadian team

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

Basketball international style comes to the Curry Hicks Cage tomorrow as the University of Massachusetts women's basketball team hosts Bishop's College of Canada at 2:00 p.m.

The Canadians, who posted a 33-2 record last year, have only one American on the team, from Washington state. The majority of the club comes from Ontario and the province of Quebec.

The Minutewomen, on the other hand, have posted a disappointing 5-19 record this year mainly because the team is so young.

Inexperience played a factor in Wednesday's four point loss to Central Connecticut. UMass, after being down by nine, battled back to tie up the score. But the team faltered under the strength of the Blue Devil press, down the stretch.

"After twenty-four games, I was very disappointed," said head coach Mary Ann Ozdarski after the loss.

"But, we have to forget and go out and play a super game," said Ozdarski yesterday. "Bishops is an outstanding team."

Massachusetts will have to produce more of a consistent and varied offense against the Canadians. Karen Damminger, the leading scorer for UM with 21 against Central, was the sole offense threat in the first half and she scored all of UMass' first eight points.

Wendy Ward and Barbara Hebel tossed in a few nice outside bombs, but they will have to score with more consistency.

Defensively, UMass played well and will have to do it again against Bishops. Damminger will have to get more help rebounding. She led the team with 11 against Central.

Bishops may have a slight problem for a while because in Canada, they play under international rules and here in the United States we don't. But, they are a well coached team according to Ozdarski.

Tip off is at 2:00 tomorrow afternoon.

"I hope to look for some more intensity (from the UMass players)," said Ozdarski.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
Volume CXII, Issue 81 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003 (413) 545-3500 Tuesday, February 22, 1983

Lottery begins UMass campaign for student government presidency

By KEN BAZINET
Collegian Staff

Candidates for Student Government Association (SGA) president will officially open their campaigns at 10 a.m. today with the lottery determining the position of each name on the ballot.

The candidacies include Charlene Allen-Tom Ahern, Dave Groom (single candidate), Ronald Lipof-Eric Mann, and Siobban Powers-Fran Hegler.

Mindy Ordway, acting chair of the SGA Governmental Affairs committee and supervisor of this vear's election. said Sunday, that in addition to the lottery determining ballot position, candidates will today receive their purchase order number which will allow them to buy necessary campaign aids such as posters, leaflets and advertising space. Each of the four candadacies are allowed to spend only the $250 which was allotted to them by the SGA. They cannot excede that figure or use their own money, Ordway said.

Prior to the election which will take place on Monday, March 7, and Tuesday, March 8, the University of Massachusets community will have the opportunity to hear the candidates' views during a SGA-sponsored debate on Tuesday, march 1. The debate will take place in Campus Center Room 163-164 at 7 p.m.

Ordway said the candidates will be asked questions by five member panel representing various UMass groups.

Each candidate will have the opportunity to make an opening statement, Ordway said, and following the panel questions, individuals in attendance will have the opportunity to ask their own questions.

"I believe there are enough issues on campus to get students to come out and ask questions," Ordway said.

She said arrangements have been made with the Union Video Center to tape the debate for continuous replay throughout the remainder of the campaign. Ordway also said each of the candidacies will make a three minute commercial which will also be aired by the Union Video Center.

Committee validates candidacy

By PAUL BASKEN
Collegian Staff

The Student Government Association (SGA) presidential candidacy of David Groom, almost terminated by a "misunderstanding" before it began was yesterday validated by an SGA committee decision to overturn a ruling of the election coordinator.

Mindy Ordway, acting chair of the Undergraduate Student Senate's Governmental Affairs Committee and election coordinator, said Groom had failed to return nomination papers to the senate office by the 3 p.m., Friday deadline, and was thus ineligible for official candidacy.

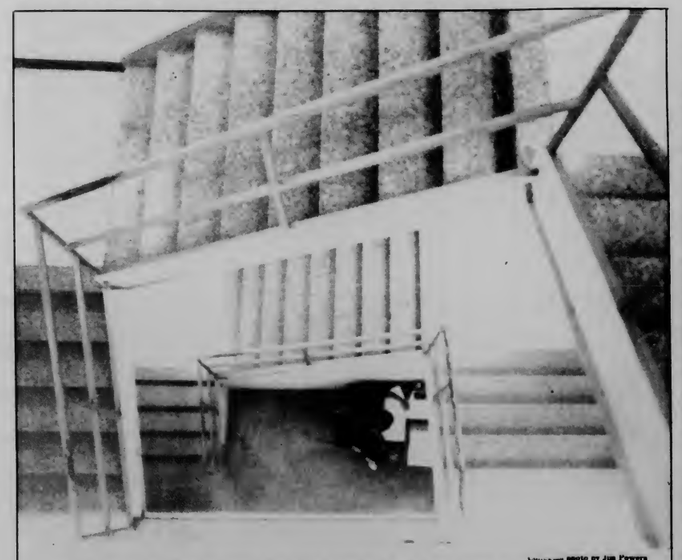
According to SGA President Jim Murphy, Groom instead turned in the nomination papers containing the signatures of 250 University students at 4:20 that afternoon.

Groom explained the problem to be a result of misinformation he received when he called the senate office the previous day and was informed the deadline was 5 p.m. Since the office closed at 4 p.m., Groom said he was unable to have his papers notarized and complete other required nomination forms.

Ordway, however, saying the 3 p.m. deadline was listed on the nomination papers, posted in the senate office, and advertised in the Collegian, refused to allow an exception for Groom, thereby preventing him from getting his name on the ballot and from receiving SGA campaign funds.

At a special meeting of the senate's Coordinating Committee, called yesterday to discuss overturning Ordway's decision, Murphy argued that deadlines "are not set in stone," and that disqualifying him is "not fair to him or the people who signed his nomination papers."

The committee then reversed Ordway's ruling on a voice vote, despite her reminding members that she still had not received fully completed forms from Groom and that such a move could also affect the cases of two candidates for the Campus Center Board of Governors who also submitted late nomination papers.



Collegian photo by Jim Powers

Senior journalism major Darlene Jackson is framed in by a geometric pattern of stairs as she studies while working at Boyden Gym on Saturday.

The late Julian H. Gibb

Amherst president dies after devoting 4 years of service

By RAY BEAUCHEMIN
Collegian Staff

Amherst College President, Julian H. Gibbs, 58, died early Sunday after having suffered a heart attack Saturday.

Amherst College officials said Mary Catherine Bateson, dean of faculty, will serve as acting president until a replacement is hired. A search committee for the position will be formed next week, according to officials.

Gibbs, president of the small coeducational liberal arts college since 1979, was stricken Saturday while skiing in Charlemont. He was taken to a Greenfield hospital and later transferred to Baystate Medical Center, Springfield, where he died.

Several Amherst College officials yesterday spoke highly of Gibbs.

"As a president, he impressed me, most of all by his farsightedness. He had ambitions and long range ideas of where the college should be headed and what it should be," said Douglas Wilson, secretary for public affairs at Amherst College.

"I think the remarkable thing about him is that he was completely down-to-earh. It's unusual to see less pretention in someone who holds such a position of authority. He was just a totally unpretentious person.

"He had a common touch," Wilson said.

John Callahan, general secretary for the Board of Trustees of Amherst College, said, "He was an extraordinary man, an academic person and an absolutely first class teacher who had developed strong administrative instinct and skills. He was doing a first-rate job at the college."

Gibbs, a 1947 graduate of Amherst, replaced John William Ward and became the 15th president of the 162-year-old college. Previous to his post at Amherst, Gibbs taught chemistry at the University of Minnesota and at Brown University, in Providence, R.I., for twenty years and also spent several years working in industry. He served as chemistry department chairman at Brown for several years.

He is the recipient of several Fulbright scholarships and Guggenheim fellowships.

Gibbs was born in Greenfield, June 24, 1924, the son of Howard B. and Judith M. B. (Hemingway) Gibbs. He was reared in Albany, N.Y., where his mother still lives. He attended Albany Academy and graduated from Amherst College after serving in the Naval Reserves during World War II.

He received his Ph.D. degree in chemistry from Princeton University in 1950. He was elected a Princeton trustee in 1980.

A memorial service for family and friends will be held at 2 p.m. tomorrow in Johnson's Chapel of Amherst College.

A second memorial service open to the college will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday in Johnson's Chapel.

Douglass Funeral Home, Amherst, is in charge of the arrangements.

Digest

By the Associated Press

Former vice president declares candidacy for number one job

HIBBING, Minn. — Former Vice President Walter Mondale opened his quest for the presidency yesterday and stumped in one of the nation's most economically distressed areas, Minnesota's Iron Range.

Unemployment in many mining towns here is more than 30 percent.

In the House chamber of the Minnesota State Capitol, Mondale cited his experience in state and federal goverlern-ment and declared, "I am ready to be President of the United States."

He never mentioned President Reagan by name, but his partisan audience had no doubt to whom he was referring when he said, "The American people understand that we also need a president who knows what he's doing."

Mondale was the third Democrat to declare his candidacy and is generally regarded as the early front-runner for the 1984 nomination.

Polls have shown Mondale and Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, leading Reagan. Glenn plans to announce his presidential candidacy in April.

Already in the race are Sens. Alan Cranston of California and Gary Hart of Colorado, Former Gov. Reubin Askew of Florida will announce his candidacy tomorrow. Sen. Ernest Hollings of South Carolina also is expected to enter the Democratic race.

Speaking to an audience of family, friends and long-time political allies, Mondale used a low-key delivery for a speech that emphasized general principles but contained few specific proposals.

Indira Gandhi tours Assam; charged with 'Hitlerite tactics'

NEW DELHI, India — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi paid a six-hour visit to Assam yesterday and briefly relived with dazed survivors the eastern Indian state's 19-day-old holocaust of slaughter, estimated to have taken up to 1,400 lives.

During her absence, Parliament was locked in angry debate over the controversial election she ordered in Assam and the bloodbath that ensued.

An opposition speaker, former Railway Minister Madhu Dandavate, accused the 65-year-old prime minister of using "Hitlerite tactics" to impose "a live election over dead bodies" in Assam. Government members charged opposition parties indirectly supported the violence.

Voting that began Feb. 14 in the multi-stage state election ended yesterday, and counting began with Mrs. Gandhi's Congress Party winning 23 of the first 26 races decided in the balloting for 126 state assembly seats. Her party was assured of victory because of a low turnout resulting from the violence and a boycott declared by the Assamese Movement and major opposition parties.

Malta prime minister refuses to give in to Libyan hijackers

VALLETTA, Malta — Prime Minister Dom Mintoff was reported "holding firm" yesterday against three hijackers threatening to blow up a Libyan jetliner unless he provided fuel, and food and medicine for 165 people aboard the Boeing 727.

Officials said 156 passengers, including dozens of women and children and six crew members, had been held hostage without food and water since Sunday night aboard the jet parked on a remote corner of Valletta's Luqa International Airport, 225 miles north of the Libyan coast.

Government spokesman Paul Mifsud said Mintoff and three Cabinet ministers were talking by radio with the hijackers, who "are threatening to blow up the plane. But the prime minister is holding firm."

He said all the passengers had Arabic names, and an airport official who asked not to be identified said, "Judging by their accents, all the hijackers appear to be Libyans."

Asked if the demand for medicine indicated there might be wounded aboard, airport officials said there was no sign that there had been any violence. Mifsud said the hijackers were armed, but he did not know what weapons they had.

Today's Staff

Night Editor — Eileen Galligan
Copy Editor — Robin Mandel
Layout Technician — Jim Finkle
Photo Technician — Katie Watters
Composition — Laurie Frank, Gail Tanzer, Adrianne Dufour, Sheryl Silver, Terri Cooper, Brian Fitz Maurice, David Rath, Marianne Walsh, Donna Estabrooks, Stewart Sajdak, Ken Kalinowski, Maria Cahillane

Subscription Rates

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday excluding vacations, exam periods, or holidays. Subscriptions are available for $18 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Massachusetts. Postmaster: Send address changes to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003.

The largest selection of hard aluminum MEASURING TOOLS in the country!

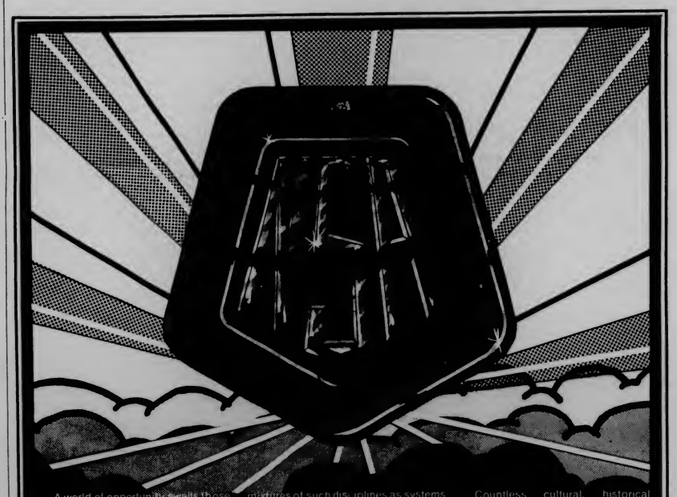
FAIRGATE

STRAIGHT EDGES/T-SQUARES
METRIC RULES/L-SQUARES
CENTERING RULES
TRIANGLES/CURVE STICKS
INKING RULES
and many others . . .

SEE THEM AT YOUR BOOKSTORE or SEND FOR CATALOG

FAIRGATE RULE CO., INC.
27 Adams Ave
P.O. Box 278
COLD SPRING, N.Y.
U.S.A. 10516

BUCK STEWART
PORTRAIT PHOTOGRAPHER
Also: Functions, Formals, Portfolios
545 Puffton Village, Amherst, MA
Portraits and Group Settings $15.95



A world of opportunity awaits those graduates who choose to enter careers at the National Security Agency. From the very outset they will influence the growth and direction of their fields of specialization. They will work in a challenging and stimulating environment where matters affecting the security of the nation are part of our day to day activity.

You too can experience this world of opportunity and challenge in any of these NSA career fields:

Electronic Engineering: There are opportunities in a variety of research and development projects ranging from individual equipment's to very complex interactive systems involving large numbers of microprocessors, mini-computers and computer graphics. Professional growth is enhanced through interaction with highly experienced NSA professionals and through contacts in the industrial and academic worlds. Facilities for engineering analysis and design automation are among the best available.

Computer Science: At NSA you'll discover one of the largest computer installations in the world with almost every major vendor of computer equipment represented. NSA careers provide mixtures of such disciplines as systems analysis and design, scientific applications programming, data base management systems, operating systems, computer networking/security and graphics.

Mathematics: You'll work on diverse agency problems applying a variety of mathematical disciplines. Specific assignments might include solving communications-related problems, performing long-range mathematical research or evaluating new techniques for communications security.

Linguists: NSA offers a wide range of challenging assignments for Slavic, Near Eastern and Asian language majors involving translation, transcription and analysis/reporting. Newly-hired linguists can count on receiving advanced training in their primary language(s) and can plan on many years of continued professional growth.

The Rewards at NSA

NSA offers a salary and benefit program that's truly competitive with private industry. There are assignments for those who wish to travel and abundant good living in the Baltimore-Washington area for those who wish to stay close to home.

Countless cultural, historical, recreational and educational opportunities are just minutes away from NSA's convenient suburban location.

To find out more about NSA career opportunities, schedule an interview through your college placement office. For additional information on the National Security Agency, write to: Mr. William Shores, College Recruitment Officer, National Security Agency, Attn: M322 (WES), Fort George G. Meade, Maryland 20755.

An Equal Opportunity Employer. U.S. Citizenship Required.

The National Security Agency

Where learning never ends.

Aid bill raises $28M in funds

By MARY-SHEILA LOUGHLIN
Collegian Correspondent

An effort by the state legislature's Committee on Joint Taxation to provide $28 million in additional student aid to Massachusetts college students is again underway.

At a legislative hearing before the joint taxation committee, the proposed law to provide additional money for the Student Higher Educational Assistance Fund, through a cigarette excise tax, was brought up. After the hearing the committee voted to give the bill a favorable recommendation for passage by the legislature.

In order to raise the $28 million that would go into the fund, a sales tax of 5 percent would be placed on cigarettes. The proposed cigarette excise tax would raise more money for scholarships and loan funds by earmarking four cents of 21 cents per package of the cigarette excise tax.

In addition, the proposal would repeal the state's minimum pricing law, which has been in effect since 1945. According to this law, retailers are required to increase the price of cigarettes at least 12.4 percent above the wholesale price. The repeal of this law would result in increased competition, offsetting the per package price increase caused by the imposed sales tax on cigarettes.

Stan Rosenberg, administrative assistant to Sen. John Olver (D-Amherst), said "the proposal for the cigarette excise tax is the exact same proposal that failed to gain approval last January 3, before the legislative session recessed."

Rosenberg also said "the bill is of top concern to the Senate and although it is still at the beginning of a somewhat lengthy process, it does stand a very good chance of getting passed."

The bill has passed the taxation committee, of which Olver is the chairperson, and it will now go to the House Ways and Means Committee.

Assuming it passes that committee it will procede to the full House, followed by the Senate Ways and Means committee and then to the Senate. If the bill makes it that far, it will go on to a conference committee, then to the House and the Senate, for final passage and enactment.

Collegian photo by John Doucette

A sparse tree on campus appears immersed in a 'Charlotte's Web' effect as last Friday's warm sunshine melted some remaining snow.

Reporter speaks on Reagan's progress

By RICHARD NANGLE
Collegian Staff

Ronald Reagan is "changing his tone from being extremely conservative and caustic against government...to that of a man not antithetical to new kinds of programs for the economy," the Senior White House correspondent of the New York Times said last week to a group of about 60 people at Amherst College.

Steven R. Weisman discussed th role of the press in covering the President and his own perceptions concerning Reagan's progress to the audience in the Converse Assembly Room at Amherst.

"We in the press, although we don't like to admit it, play a role sometimes. But it's a real riddle what role we play in all this," Weisman said.

"The press helped to bring the urgency of unemployment to the American people," and made it an issue in the November elections.

Weisman's commentary was also critical of the press. "Like sports reporters we tend to be fans an awful lot," he said, pointing to leniency the press has shown President Reagan.

"Ronald Reagan is a very shrewd man with a lot of native intelligence," he said.

Reagan's strengths include good political instincts, the ability to communicate and his fairly sound instincts when issues are thoroughly explained to him, Weisman said. But forces working against him include the fact that he is not reflective, not knowledgeable, not energetic and is not stimulated or challenged by proposals that oppose his own, he said.

"I've never heard of Ronald Reagan saying to anyone...'Gee, that's interesting, tell me more about it," he said.

Reagan has had the ability to convince people to vote for his programs and that has contributed to his political strength, Weisman said. He added that Sen. Paul Laxalt, D-Nevada, has said more than once that if there had been a secret ballot in the Senate for Reagan's initial programs they would have gotten only 10 to 12 votes instead of a majority.

"We all, I think, can agree that Ronald Reagan has been successful in conveying to the public his agenda and what he is thinking," Weisman said. But, he added, most knowledgeable people would say Reagan's policies have "prolonged and deepened" the recession.

But the administration realizes this, Weisman said, and is working to change its public image.

"He's seized at least part of the initiative back on jobs," Weisman said. "His aids were saying until recently 'let's face it, most of the people who are unemployed don't vote.' There is a realization in the White House that this is a difficult problem."

Reagan is trying to buy time with his economic policy in order to justify staying the course, he said.

"From my vantage point I see a program that was put in without much thought" or regard to its consequences," he said.

Elections held in SW area government

By ROBERT STACK
Collegian Correspondent

Southwest residents Lisa Stratouly and Janice Chicoine were elected co-vice presidents as Southwest Area Government held elections for co-vice president, communications coordinator and communications chairperson last Thursday night.

Stratouly and Chicoine, who ran unopposed, replaced Steve Carter and Jeanette Maillet, who resigned. Both representatives are from Cance House with two years experience, Co-president Jenny Schofield said.

Chicoine said "With our two years experience Lisa and I have seen alot of things going on. We have a big advantage that others didn't have."

Stratouly said, "We feel we are most qualified."

Fran Rosenthal was elected communications coordinator replacing Beth Cooney, who also resigned. She defeated Bridget Cahill.

Rosenthal lives in John Quincy Adams dormitory. Rosenthal, a sophomore Art major, said, "I can organize a good newsletter and I am willing to work. I have the time for the job."

Howard Breslau, who was elected communications chairperson, is a representative in Patterson Dormitory and a CASIAC Major.

"I was interested in the chairperson position last semester," said Breslau who has worked for six years with youth groups.

Also on the agenda was the announcement of Scott Kogos of Patterson Dormitory as information coordinator. Schofield said Kogos will "visit other area governments and report to SWAG."

A motion seeking funds to purchase paint by the JA Upper House Council Rep. Dan Bougain was revoked. Bougain withdrew the motion "because he felt the thing was illegal," Schofield said.

All elections were conducted according to accepted Southwest Area Government procedure, said Office Manager Lori Weiss.

The Co-president's report was presented by Fran Hegeler who reported the need for students to aid the judicial process.

Women's Caucus sets goals to promote female leadership

By MARK HERSEY
Collegian Staff

The Women's Caucus of the Undergraduate Student Senate last week set goals and elected officials for the new semester.

"The Women's Caucus, after a defunct fall semester, is looking foward to a strong program this semester," Sue Cottle, caucus coordinator said.

Goals drawn up at a recent caucus meeting include promoting unity among women in the senate to further the empowerment of women senators, encouraging University women to participate in the Student Government Association, developing working relationships with other women's organizations, and developing leadership skills for women senators.

The main purpose of the Women's Caucus is to operate as a support mechanism to promote the development and empowerment of women of the senate.

Women, as a result of the effects of sexism and racism, have been denied the opportunity to develop leadership and assertiveness skills necessary to function effectively in such areas as the Student Senate, Cottle said.

"By denying these skills to women, a valuable resource is lost," Cottle commented.

A three-credit Women's Development Series will be offered to women by the Caucus, and will meet every Tuesday at 5 p.m.

Other officers elected last week were Jane Johnson and Mimi Turchinetz, who will serve as representatives to the Senate Co-ordinating Committee.

Continuing Ed program offers six-week glassblowing course

The University of Massachusetts Division of Continuing Education will offer a six-week Glassblowing Workshop beginning March 10. Lectures and studio sessions will be conducted by Charles Correll, owner of Correll Glass Studio in Holyoke.

Sessions will be held from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturdays and lectures from 7 to 9 p.m. Thursdays at the University.

The fee is $450 which includes instruction, use of furnace, tools and materials.

More information is available from the Credit-Free Workshop Program Office, Continuing Ed. Division, 545-0475.

Representative to interview UMass graduate candidates

A representative of the New School for Social Research of New York City will conduct interviews today from 9 a.m. to noon at the University of Massachusetts Placement Office, located in Hampshire House.

Rebecca Szabo, an admissions counselor with the New School, is looking for students interested in graduate study in anthropology, economics, liberal studies, philosophy, political science, psychology and sociology.

For appointments, students may call either Jackie Warner or Becky Blajda at the Placement Office, 545-2224.

Expert panelists to discuss 'Africa south of the Sahara'

The fourth Great Decisions '83 program entitled "Africa South of the Sahara: Poverty, Hunger and Refugees," will be held tonight at 8 p.m. in the main lounge of Webster House in Orchard Hill. The open discussion will feature four expert panelists, all teaching in the Five College area. A tape of the forum will be broadcast over WFCR Radio, 88.5 FM this Thursday between 10 and 11:30 p.m.

Issue of 'an educated person' to be raised in future debate

University of Massachusetts professors Joyce Berkman of the History department and James Douglas of Chemical Engineering will present "What is an Educated Person?" as part of the UMass-sponsored Dialogue Series. The event will be held at 8 p.m. Wednesday in room 231, Herter Hall.

Everywoman's Center offers help with financial aid forms

Older non-traditional students seeking help with the Financial Aid Form (FAF) can attend walk-in hours at the Everywoman's Center this Thursday and Friday from 10 a.m. until noon. The deadline for submitting the FAF is March. For more information call Martini or Mary at 545-0883.

Women's Week

TUESDAY

Committee for Equal Rights and Reproductive Freedom (CERRF) will meet at 6:30 p.m. in the Campus Center in room 169. Come and help squelch the Squeal Law.

Support Group for Underemployed Women will meet at 7 p.m. at the Everywoman Center.

"International Politics of Breast Feeding" will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the Converse Assembly Room at Amherst College. Dr. Dana Raphael, director of the Human Lactation Center, in Bridgeport, Conn. will give the lecture.

"Images of Afro-Caribbeans and Their Struggle for Identity in German Literature" will be held at 7:30 p.m. in McConnell Auditorium at Smith College. The lecture is the second part of the "Women: Image and Identity" series.

WEDNESDAY

Lesbian and Gay Men's Counseling Collective Open House will be held from 4 to 8 p.m. in the Campus Center in room 101. All women are invited and lesbians interested in joining are especially welcome.

Workshop on Sexual Disease for Third World Students will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. in CCEBMS, in the New Africa House. The workshop will be conducted by Health Educators from the UMass Health Services.

"The Role of Women in aChanging Church" will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the Sunken Lounge at the Newman Center. The lecture wil be given by Kathleen Keating, former president of the National Association of Women Religious and currently the president of the Sisters of St. Joseph.

THURSDAY

Anti-Racism Team will hold a general meeting at 4 p.m. in the Campus Center in room 811.

Jewish Feminist Organization will hold its first meeting of the semester at 4:30 p.m. in the Dukes Room in the Student Union Building.

Women Organizing for Occupational Safety and Health (WOOSH) will hold an open meeting at 5 p.m. at the Everywoman Center. This group is currently developing factsheets and starting a speaker's bureau on safety and health issues for women. Anyone interested in these issues is welcome. For further information, contact Myra Hindus at 545-0883.

Coalition of Labor Union Women (CLUW) will hold an open meeting from 7 to 9 p.m. at Cambridge College located on the third floor at 58 Gothic Street in Northampton. All interested union women are invited.

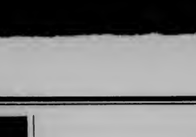
"Images of Asian Women" a lecture and slide presentation, will be given by the Radcliffe Asian Women's Association at 7:30 p.m. in the Converse Assembly Room at Amherst College.

FRIDAY

"A United Nations Perspective on Women and Social Change" will be held at 7:30 p.m. in Merrill 111 at Amherst College. Leila Doss, undersecretary to the United Nations, will give the lecture.

BLUE WALL
AND Governor's Program Council Present
TONIGHT
"KILLER COMEDY NIGHT"
CHANCE LANGTON
MIKE DONOVAN
MELVIN GEORGE
M.C. TERRY SLAGLE
Boston Comedy All-Stars
99¢

SOUTHERN HOME COOKIN'



In conjunction with the scheduled events of Black History Month, the Bluewall Cafeteria presents a traditional luncheon with the "down-home" flavor of Southern cuisine. While you enjoy your meal, a talented jazz duo will provide musical entertainment.

MENU
Black-eyed Peas and Rice
Collard Greens
Potato Salads
Spicy Fried Chicken
Smothered Pork Chops
With Onions, Peppers/Gravy
Corn Bread
Sweet Potato Custard

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 23
BLUEWALL CAFETERIA
11:30 am to 1:30 pm

AN IMPORTANT ADDITION TO YOUR UNIFORM

The insignia of an Air Force nurse can mean a lot to you and your future. It shows that you're part of the Air Force Nurse Corps. A member of one of the most efficient health care teams in the world. It signifies you are an Air Force officer with the responsibility and prestige of a leadership position. It indicates you're on the track toward good pay and almost unlimited educational opportunities. If you're a nursing professional or about to complete your nursing education, why not consider Air Force nursing as part of YOUR future? From the day you're commissioned, you'll receive the pay and advantages of an Air Force officer. Consider your uniform and our future. Then make it yours.

AIR FORCE NURSING. A GREAT WAY OF LIFE.

For More Details Call Sandy Price
(203) 229-9641
Freshmen & Sophmores Call Capt. Pinkell
(413) 545-2137

AIR FORCE
A great way of life

Black Affairs

Speaker chides racist repression

By RHONDA SWANN
Collegian Correspondent

Does racism exist in the laws of our country? Angela Davis, co-chairperson of the National Alliance Against Racial and Political Repression (N.A.A.R.P.R.) explored this topic last Friday, Feb. 18, at Western New England College.

Davis feels that although the struggle for political and racial freedom has made some progress over the past two decades, the true victory has not yet been won. "If we needed a movement in the sixties and seventies, we definitely need one now", Davis said.

According to Davis, the U.S. judicial system will go to almost any lengths to hinder the advancements that minorities might make in this society. David reflected back on her own personal experience of being the victim of a racist attack by our legal system.

In 1967 Davis received a job teaching Marxism at the University of California in Los Angeles. Ronald Reagan was governor of California at the time. According to Davis, Reagan's attempts to polarize California involved making inquiries into her political affiliations. Davis acknowledged that she was a member of the Communist party which was already common knowledge and the reason she received her position teaching Marxism. Davis feels that Reagan used her involvement with the Communist party to try and discredit her.

"The wrath of Ronald Reagan came down upon me because I was a Communist", said Davis. Because of Reagan's "vicious, racist, anti-Communist attack" upon her, her life was threatened several times and on Aug. 7, 1970, she was falsely accused of murder, conspiracy, and kidnapping.

Davis was acquitted of the charges against her and today she is aiding in the fight for justice for many who have become victims of the racism in the legal system.

One of these victims is Mayor Eddie Carthan, the first black mayor of Tchula, Mississippi, a town whose population is eighty percent black.

"Eddie Carthan represents a systematic assault against the black elected officials in this country," Davis said. According to the N.A.A.R.P.R., the local white power structure of Tchula would not accept Carthan's challenge to their misrule and corruption. As a result, Charthan was framed on charges of assault on a police officer when he and his deputies were forced to disarm a "police chief" who was illegally appointed by the plantation owners.

When the U.S. Justice Department was asked to investigate the matter, instead of helping Carthan, they did just the opposite. The F.B.I. helped Carthan's accusers by framing him on federal charges of bank fraud. Mayor Eddie Carthan now faces seven years in prison.

Ms. Davis appealed not only to minorities, who are more often than not the victims, but to everyone who believes in the constant struggle for freedom. "It is not enough to oppose or verbally disapprove," she said. "We have to get organized in a collective fashion and take action."

Photo by Chris Hardin
Archie Shepp in concert at Simon's Rock College last Friday in Great Barrington paying homage to WEB DuBois.

UMASS TKA PI KAPPA ALPHA FRATERNITY
The National Multiple Sclerosis Society Connecticut River Valley Chapter
PRESENTS
"Dance The Night Away"
29 Hr MS DANCE MARATHON
4th Annual REGISTER NOW
at
Campus Center UMASS
or PIKE 545-2150
PRIZES
1st Prize: $500
2nd Prize: $300
3rd Prize: $200
& much, much, more!
PLACE: UMass Student Union Ballroom
DATE: February 25th & 26th
TIME: 6 p.m. - 12 midnight
SPECTATORS WELCOME
Entry $10 couple refundable when you complete the marathon

Interviewing?
We have some classic pumps.

the SHOE BIN 187 n. pleasant st., amherst

UMASS FITNESS TESTING CENTER
announces
Aerobic Dance Free Demonstration
AND PREREGISTRATION
Tues., Feb. 22, at 7:00 in Rm. 24 NOPE

TIME: Mon. & Wed. Evenings
5:30 - 6:45 or
6:50 - 8:05
Beginning Wed., Feb. 23
Place: rm. 24 NOPE
FEE: $50, or 2 for $75 if you join with a friend. Fee includes cardiovascular fitness test & body composition analysis.
For more information or preregistration contact Dr. Patty Freedson at 545-2620 or instructor Kristen Costello at 549-1859

The rusty nail presents
Sat. Feb. 26 Warren Zevon
Sun. Feb. 27 Tower of Power
Tickets available at "For the Record" (in Faces) Amherst
Rt. 47 Sunderland, MA 665-4937 You must be 18 to enter.

TACO VILLA
SPECIALS
ALL DAY AND NIGHT
Monday thru Thursday:
COMPLETE MEALS (Including Drink) 2.15-2.60
With prices like these, why eat at home?
NORTHAMPTON — 21 Center St. HOURS: Mon.-Thurs., 11-10
AMHERST — 41 Boltwood Walk Fri. & Sat., 11-11..Sun. 3-9

Washington D.C. Internships
Summer Applications Due: March 1
Fall Applications Due: April 15
(These deadlines are for Washington placements only.)
Contact: Office of Internships
16 Curry Hicks
545-0727

MUSIC GALLERY
PEAVEY, IBANEZ, TAMA, JBL, ROLAND, ACOUSTIC, BOSS, LEGEND, EV-TAPCO, HONDO, DEAN, HAMER, FOSTEX.
RT. 9 HADLEY
ON THE BUS ROUTE
586-6228

Join the ENERGY EXPLOSION with
GLORIA STEVENS AEROBICS!
The COMPLETE Fitness Center for Women
• Aerobic Dance Classes
• Individual Aerobic Programs
• 30 - 45 min. Groups
• Easy to Live With Diets
• Advanced Programs
• Maternity Programs
Student Discounts
Availab /e
Bring in this COUPON for a Free AEROBIC CLASS!
Hadley
584-0105
Mon. Fri. 9 to 9 • Sat. 9 to 3
Gloria Stevens FIGURE SALONS

AMHERST CINEMA
$2.50 Double Feature Tues
Arthur 7:15
World According to Garp 9
Wed - Sat
A Thousand Clowns 7:00
King of Hearts 9:00
Downtown Amherst
253-5426

THE GLOBE BOOKSHOP
Open 9 am til 9 pm
Monday - Saturday
Open 10 - 3
on Sunday
Fine New & Used Books Bought & Sold
36 Pleasant St. Northampton
584-0374

Goten
In Sunderland OF JAPAN
Take the Sunderland Bus from campus - get dropped off at our front door.
* Our Special Tues. Weds. Thurs.;
Only with a College ID *
Two Dinners for $10 Dollars
Steak and Chicken Combination includes soup, salad, vegetable noodle, rice, tea and ice cream
Watch as your personal chef exhibits his talents in preparing for you the finest foods: an exciting display
GOTEN OF JAPAN * Excellence in Japanese Cuisine
Full Liquor License
Casual Dress, avoid the wait: call for reservations
Rte. 116 - Sunderland 665-3628
御殿
HOURS:
Tuesday - Sunday
Tues., Weds., Thurs., Fri. and Sat.
5:00 till close
Sunday Special
Midday Dinner Menu
2 - 5
followed by our regular night menu from 5 til close

EDITORIAL/OPINION

Press creates economic nightmare

The television set brings the layed off worker into our living rooms, as if we can help share the burden. Newspapers are filled with negative economic analysis. I seldom go through a day without hearing the unemployment rate. Look at this issue from a fresh perspective.

The mass media, eternal prophets of doom, are succeeding in forming a pessimistic attitude in this country concerning our economy, specifically the job situation. Why? Simply because the misleading figure reporting the percent of the work force without a job now has two digits instead of one. The same thing happened with inflation.

Don't be troubled when you hear that ten percent figure for the fourth time today. That means at least 90 percent of the work force, not counting those that work "under the table", are working. Moreover, the average income for families who have someone collecting unemployment insurance is $19,000, says Milton Friedman. In a recent poll by Blue Chip Economic Indicators, forty-five economic forecasters unanimously predicted Gross National Product growth in 1983. Let's hear a human interest story on one of the 4,000 people who earned $1,000,000 or more in 1982 alone.

I've worked in several states in varied capacities. I've been in the U.S. Army, worked on loading docks and in warehouses, been a secretary, a census taker and a cook. I've seen many a lazy laborer. "Getting over" is not only commonly accepted, but also glorified. The guy who can get something for nothing is envied. "Beat the system", they say. It's no wonder to me why the Germans and Japanese sell so many cars in this country.

What's more, we pay people who don't work. Those who collect unemployment insurance in this country take home more money than most workers who work in the rest of the world. I know a guy who takes home over $170 a week when he's not working. He's single, lives with his parents, and he's always got plenty of pot. I was once in the position of either collecting $98 a week or working 40 hours for $150 minus taxes. $98 for zero hours, about $130 for 40 hours. Would you work for less than one dollar per hour? This system takes away incentive to work and encourages slothfulness.

The press dramatizes the plight of the unemployed. Many workers are lazy instead of thankful. The government advocates a welfare systm. All these factors suggest one underlying implication — namely that one has the right to employment. Not in this country.

The government can take steps to help stimulate the economy, but the distinction between government and private enterprise must always remain clear. For without a free economic system, there could be no free political system. If government had authority over private enterprise concerning hiring or if employment was a right, our economic system would cease to be free.

Besides the ideological discrepancy, there are also practical considerations. Workers would lose what little incentive they still have and become even more complacent. Also, since people are competing for jobs, it behooves them to do what they do best. Consequently, we end up having the best mechanics fixing cars, the best writers writing, and the best basketball players playing basketball.

The Declaration of Independence reads, "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness", not jobs. The United States was founded upon the freedoms and rights of the individual so as to promote the free and mature development of the human personality. With any freedom comes responsibility. Somehow the responsibility of jobs for the unemployed has been layed in Ronald Reagan's lap, as if he's everyone's Daddy.

The press has done such a good job of promoting the fear of unemployment that the whole philosophy of education has changed. Universities and colleges across the nation have become vocational schools. In a recent survey over 70 percent of college freshmen, when asked their main reason for going to college, answered, "To get a job when I get out." Higher education used to be more than job training.

Remember when inflation was the prevalent topic? The media can't harp on that anymore, so the unemployment issue comes into the light. There will always be something, and that something will always be negative — guaranteed.

Mark F. Moran is a UMass student

Letters

SGA Attorney General situation remains unresolved

To the Editor:

In a Feb. 15th editorial Timmi Rudolph charged SGA President Jim Murphy and the Student Senate with a wide range of unsubstantiated wrongs. Among the alleged wrongs is the charge that SGA officers and the Senate act in a "...less than reliable, less than responsible, and less than responsive manner...[with the intent of] ...working against the students..." His hollow accusations and shrill style are not amusing to those familiar with President Murphy and the Senate. Mr. Rudolph's tactics remind us of former U.S. Senator Joe McCarthy.

From Mr. Rudolph's editorial, students unfamiliar with Jim Murphy and the Senate could reasonably imagine heinous crimes being committed against students. In a moment of blatant excess, Timmi said the Senate is "...aiding in the demise of students." No rational person could suggest the Senate is contributing to the death of students. Timmi also charged Jim Murphy with "...failure to comply with the propensity of duties inherent to the office of the Presidency." If Timmi had substantial argument to make about actual wrongs committed by the President or the Senate he would not have to use confusing language that appeals to our fears.

Timmi warned us of a "list of misconduct" four times in three consecutive sentences, yet did not produce one. Senator McCarthy also began an ill-guided crusade with a list he did not reveal. What is on Mr. Rudolph's list, and to what reforms does he refer? From Mr. Rudolph's editorial I hear the drumming of fear, and echoes of the past.

Michael Leary
Commuter Senator
Amherst

To the Editor:

On February 16th Jim Murphy expressed his opinion in an article entitled "A Presidential Search for A Student Attorney General." The title itself is incorrect in that the search is mandated by the constitution, and it is up to the search committee to recommend to the president: the president does not run the search, it is independent. Mr. Murphy has failed to carry out his duty to appoint an Attorney General in the prescribed six weeks.

The search committee has never been informed of any complaints or problems from outside Murphy's political clique. Any requests that the student affirmative action officer made of us were carried out immediately and exactly. Mr. Murphy has never given a legal or constitutional rationale for his refusal to make an appointment. His claims relate to affirmative action, yet the University Affirmative Action Office has led us to believe that the SGA personnel policy of September of 1982 is seriously flawed.

The bottom line in this matter is the fact that Mr. Murphy has very artfully dodged his constitutional responsibility to the entire student body. The position of Attorney General has always strived to avoid partisan politics. He has played political games to the detriment of the entire student population. The SGA constitution mandates the appointment of a student attorney general, not an acting one. Mr. Murphy has failed to fulfill his constitutional duty.

Richard Stewart Kramer
Student Attorney General Search Chairperson
Lawrence Mestel
University Judge, committee member

Politics and science do mix

As I picked up the February 14th Collegian, my attention was immediately caught by Mr. Davis' letter defending his trip to South Africa. Reading it, I immediately thought of John Donne's lines; "No man is an island entire of itself; every man is a piece of the continent."

Mr. Davis' letter stated; "For me, attending meetings in South Africa in no way lent support, directly or indirectly to the South African Government." I do not know Mr. Davis or anything about him, so I will not attempt to define his personal politics for him. But just as we are not islands, so our actions have effect and meaning in the world, whether we like it or not.

South Africa is ruled by the policy of Apartheid: separation in all aspects of life de jure (by law), based on race. The Dutch and German Boers who conquered the veld, and the English who conquered them, have set up the rule of the white man. Blacks live in shantytowns and are forced to stay separated from their families for long periods of time while they look for work. Passbooks are necessary. The lack of them means loss of jobs and deportation back to the rural areas (called Bantustans). Whites in South Africa enjoy the higher standard of living in the world. Several years ago it was still cheaper for whites to hire a Black person to clean then it was to buy a vacuum cleaner.

Brooke States

But despite the poverty and oppression faced by the Black majority, and the Asian and Colored populations, resistance is a continuing factor. Many different international groups are and have been working to isolate South Africa, and make that country feel as a pariah among nations. Mr. Davis condems the South African government in his letter, but he does not seem to understand that nations, like people, cannot stand alone and survive. The South African government has unceasingly tried to get its sports teams to function in international competition, it tries to lure entertainers to perform there, and attract scientific gatherings. This is done for a very clear reason. All of these help legitimize that government and say that they are welcome in the family of nations and the world community. While each individual conference or performance may not mean much by itself, collectively they add up. Mr. Davis complains about sports, science and culture as being politicized.

Take sports as an example. Muhammed Ali being denied his title or refusing the draft, President Carter stopping United States participation in the Olympics because of the Russian invasion of Afghanistan, the race of Jessie Owens under the long shadow of World War II. Politics runs through these and many other events. How can one allow South Africa to play in a sporting event, when many members of the opposition team might not be able to eat at the same restaurant? This is the only country in the world where racial separation is enforced by law. Everybody who goes there has an excuse, few have good reason. To say that sports, science, and culture are not political eventually makes it all right for the United States to trade with South Africa, and for U.S. corporations to make their fortunes off of cheap non-unionized Black labor. (Both of these are the case at this time. In fact, IBM is essential in the production of the passbooks.) After all, that is just business and commerce, not politics. The political content of condemning South Africa is then reduced to empty phrases and face saving gestures. As Frederick Douglass said, "Power concedes nothing without a struggle, it never has and never will." Apartheid will never go away by itself.

Mr. Davis also writes, "The pursuit of scientific knowledge must not be directed by political pressures." This is great in theory. It is not now nor will it ever be reality. Politics enters virtually all aspects of the pursuit of scientific knowledge. Who gets funded by whom and for what is often politically motivated. The struggle to conquer space became a political football to beat the Russians. The first harnessing of the atom was used to destroy two cities because that was the politically expedient thing to do. We also had to see if it worked. We have weapons of destruction that represent the furthest reaches of technological sophistication, yet we cannot cure herpes or assure ourselves of clean drinking water for the next thirty years. These scenarios are the result of political involvement in science, and it is here to stay, just as the effects of our actions on other people and other countries are here to stay. We function in an interconnected world and must realize it as such.

Brooke States is a Collegian columnist

Letters Policy

All letters must be signed and include the writer's address and telephone number, which will not be published. Please type double spaced at 67 characters per line. Due to space limitations and the volume of mail, we regret we are unable to acknowledge unpublished letters. All letters are subject to editing for clarity and length.

UPC PRODUCTIONS

AND THE INTERNATIONAL WOMENS EVENT PLANNING COMMITTEE

PHOEBE SNOW

MARCH 8, 1983
8:00 P.M.

TICKETS ON SALE FEB. 25

STUDENTS 5.00, 6.00 GEN. PUB. 6.00, 7.00

ON CAMPUS: TIX UNLIMITED AND THE FINE ARTS CENTER BOX OFFICE

AMHERST: FOR THE RECORD

NORTHAMPTON: WOMONFYRE BOOKS

ALL TICKETRON LOCATIONS

THANX UMASS ARTS COUNCIL
FINE ARTS CENTER UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS

Arts

Collegian photo by David Deuber

Phil Collins gave a "thumbs up" performance at the FAC Thursday night.

Collins "in the air" at FAC

PHIL COLLINS WITH THE FABULOUS JACUZZIS AND THE ONE NEAT GUY

By DEAN RANZO
Collegian Staff

When seeing a concert and paying good money to see it, one of the nicest things that can occur is the development of a one on one relationship between performer and audience. An essence of mutual appreciation was "in the air" Thursday night at the FAC as Phil Collins managed a two hour friendship with anxious UMass students hoping for at least that from an admired pop figure whom most will most likely never see again. Collin's chivalrousness was conveyed through his "Zoo Mass" humorous comments, his all around college oriented attitude, and mainly through his and his bands fine display of music.

Collins played just about all of the songs from his two solo albums, Face Value and Hello, I Must Be Going. He opened the show sitting behind his unelevated drum set (there were two) banging away when he ascended and tranced toward the roaring crowd with crazy intent in his shifting eyes. He was wearing a slightly large grey suit with a tie that never came off and worn ankle high sneakers. This anticipation lead into "I Don't Care Anymore," and from this song to the end of the how Collins' mannerisms and emotional gestures signified that he really believes what he sings. When he says "I don't care anymore" or "I cannot believe it's true" he means it.

Collin's introduction was followed by yet another exciting introduction, that of the Phenix Horns from Earth Wind and Fire. The Phenix Horns in their white slacks and mutli-colored glittering jackets were the exclamation point of the show. Collins knew what he was doing when he recruited these guys, they added gusto and spirit to Collin's zanyness and stole the show in the music department. They jolted the crowd with the first instrumental which featured a haunting melody, dazzling lights, Collins on the drums, amazing bass by Mo Foster and horn arrangements so hot the brass seemed to melt. It was the most invigorating, unorthodox jam I'd heard in a while. Most of the music was unorthodox, revealing Collin's individual style, straying from any comparisons to Genesis.

The one drawback of the show wasn't in the music but in the pattern it was played. Collins changed the pace too soon too often. Every time the crowd got going he let them down right away with a slower tune. His slower songs though were beautiful especially when he took the elevated keyboards. Collins has such an eloquent quality about him that when raised above his band singing a crystal clear melody, as in "The Roof Is Leaking," with his silhouette plastered on the screen behind him, it formed a picturesque sight that added perfectly to the beauty of the song.

The screen was also used to project a bright orange sun surrounded by clouds to visualize the glorious mood of "Droned/Hand In Hand," one of the three vigorous instrumentals that dominated the show. The instrumentals dominated the show but "In The Air Tonight" was definitely the highlight of the evening. Outrageous guitar feedback, echoing vocals, delicate keyboard gimmickry, and thundering, precision drumming was totally invigorating. At this point I was really impressed by Collins, but he let me down momentarily with a weak interpretation of "You Can't Hurry Love." It was the snappiest tune of the night, and though the domineering presence of the Phenix Horns helped, it lacked the power and crispness that was present in songs like "I Missed Again" and "Behind the Lines." "I Missed Again" was just so pleasant to listen to with sharp slices of brass from the horns and vocals from Phil alike.

I can't imagine seeing Phil Collins without the Phenix Horns to add definition to his music. Collins has too few songs as intense as "In the Air Tonight" that he could have relied on to excite the crowd the way his music that was charged by the horn section did. But the horns were there, the excitement was there and an aura of good times for everybody, including Collins was definitely there. Collins said he was going to play until the drugs wore off and I'm sure everyone there would have gladly contributed some speed if they could have.

How to follow Fellini.

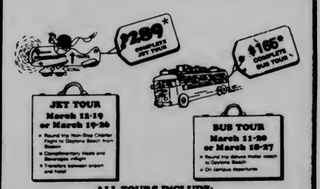
Talk it over, over a cup of Orange Cappuccino. Creamy-rich, with an orange twist, it's a little bit of la dolce vita. And it's just one of six deliciously different flavors from General Foods® International Coffees.

GENERAL FOODS® INTERNATIONAL COFFEES
AS MUCH A FEELING AS A FLAVOR

Available at:
UNIVERSITY STORE

© 1982 General Foods Corporation

Beachcomber Tours PRESENTS
14th ANNUAL
College Spring Break in
DAYTONA BEACH



ALL TOURS INCLUDE:
LAND PACKAGE
- First Class Ocean Front Accommodations for Seven (7) Nights at the Days Inn, Beachside or the Quality Inn Resort located directly on the Strip in Daytona Beach
- Welcome Party with plenty of FREE BEER.
- Exclusive 18th Anniversary ID Card for discounts at Shops, Restaurants, Night Clubs, etc.
- On campus reservation service
- Services of the Beachcomber Staff
- OPTIONAL Kissimmee, Walt Disney World Tour, Nine Epcot Center Adventure and round trip transportation from Hartford and Springfield to Boston Logan Airport available

*PRICE DOES NOT INCLUDE ADDITIONAL $50.00 FOR TAX GRATUITIES AND SERVICE
$50.00 Deposit Required - Limited Space Available
Make Reservations by December 10th and SAVE $20.00
Don't be left out in the COLD!

ALSO AVAILABLE:
JET FLIGHT ONLY $289*
BUS TRANSPORTATION ONLY $139*
LAND PACKAGE ONLY $139*
(Includes all tax, gratuities and service)

Contact our campus representative for reservations today

Beachcomber Tours, Inc.
CONTACT
STEVEN
546-1071

MEMBER DAYTONA BEACH CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

DEPENDABILITY • QUALITY • SERVICE • SINCE 1969

room still available

THIS WEEKS SPECIAL

Save $1.00 on Johnson's baby shampoo
16 oz J & J shampoo
$2.71
less $1.00 mail in rebate
$1.71 final cost

$1.51 reg $2.49
Edge shave cream reg, special, medic cond
$1.51 reg $2.36
Trac-II 5's

Save $1.00 on Johnson's baby powder
14 oz J & J powder
$1.78
less $1.00 mail in rebate
78¢

$2.01 reg $2.89
12 oz Boil 'n Soak

Arrid XX solid 2 oz
$1.46
reg $2.60

15 oz VO5 dry, oily norm, Jojoba Henna Ex Body
$1.21
reg $1.99

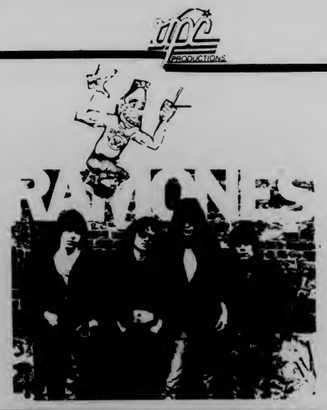
$1.36
Vitamin C 500 mg 100 capsules

Also Available in the Mini Store Open M-F 9-5 UNIVERSITY STORE

ATTENTION SENIORS

Do you want to be in pictures?
The INDEX (yearbook)
Senior Portrait Program is starting soon!
Appointments will be taken
Tues Feb 22 -Fri Feb 25
by calling 545-2874 or
by stopping by CC Rm 103.

Camp Day
Wednesday
March 2nd 9-5
Campus Center Auditorium
featuring: 45 Camps from the Northeast
Massachusetts New York Maine
Cape Cod New Hampshire
New Jersey Vermont Pennsylvania
will be interviewing for Summer Employment
Information and sign-ups are available at the Student Employment Office
239-A Whitmore Walk-ins Welcome
Summer Employment



Gabba Gabba hey! its the RAMONES
WED FEB 23
STUDENT UNION BALLROOM
Tickets on sale NOW
GENERAL PUBLIC 10.00
UMASS STUDENTS 8.00
• Limit 2 per person
NO CAMERAS, FOOD, DRINK OR SMOKE PLEASE
PRODUCED WITH THE UMASS ARTS COUNCIL

LÖWENBRÄU Presents
A Special College Pre-release Screening
TOM SELLECK and BESS ARMSTRONG take the high road to China ...on an adventure you'll never forget.

HIGH ROAD TO CHINA
GOLDEN HARVEST/JADRAN FILM Present A FRED WEINTRAUB Production for CITY FILMS A BRIAN G. HUTTON Film
Also Starring JACK WEISTON ROBERT MORLEY BESS ARMSTRONG
Music by JOHN BARRY Executive Producer RAYMOND CHOW Based on the book by JON CLEARY
Screenplay by SANDRA WEINTRAUB ROLAND and S. LEE POGOSTIN Produced by FRED WEINTRAUB Directed by BRIAN G. HUTTON

Free to all UMass Students with I.D.
Tuesday, February 22 at 7:30
Amherst Cinema
For Lowenbrau Film Series Information Contact:
Craig B. Keenan 549-4066
Director of College and Youth Marketing
Here's to good friends.

TONITE HAVE SOME FUN WITH 3 FOR $1

35° Drafts
$2.00 Pitchers
POOR RICHARD$ A STEP UP

Hypercurricula

"Hypercurricula," a listing of events held at the University of Massachusetts and surrounding area, is published daily in the Collegian. Events are listed only on the day they are taking place. Announcements must be submitted on "Hypercurricula" forms available in the Collegian offices, 113 Campus Center, and returned to the office by 3 p.m. the Friday before the event. All submissions should be written in a similar style as they appear in the paper.

"Hypercurricula" notices not submitted on the standard form and not submitted by the Friday before the week the event will take place will not be run. Due to space limitations, the Collegian cannot guarantee printing of all "Hypercurricula" notices. Priority will be given to UMass organizations.

INTERNSHIP PLANNING SESSION — A one-hour Planning Session which provides detailed information about internship opportunities in all fields. Sign up in advance by phone or in person. Office of Internships, 16 Curry Hicks, 545-0727. 4 to5 p.m., Office of Internships

UMASS HUNGER TASK FORCE MEETING — Educational planning for campus and discussion of Frances Moose Lappe's talk. For anyone willing to work on world hunger issues and what can be done. 4 p.m., 428 Student Union.

RECYCLING MEETING — You can help clean up this campus, save trees and still earn credit. Come to the meeting and discuss your ideas. 6 p.m., 423B Student Union.

STUDENT MEETING — UPC General Meeting. All new members welcome. 6:30 p.m., 101 Campus Center.

CERRF GENERAL MEETING — Committee for Equal Rights and Reproductive Freedom general meeting to discuss ideas and strategies for the semester. 6:30 p.m. 169 Campus Center.

ALPHA ZETA MEETING — There will be a mandatory AZ meeting today. Come and hear about the Cornell trip. Also, an officer election will be held. Attendance will be taken. 6:30 p.m., PAIGE — 202.

LECTURE ON KIBBUTZ — Open Lecture entitled "Utopia and Reality on Kibbutz" will be presented by Moshe Giladi. Mr. Giladi has been a member of Kibbutz Misrah since 1943 and is presently the Dean of Education for the Kibbutz movement. 7 p.m., Herter 114.

STUDENTS ADVOCATING FINANCIAL AID — Is Financial Aid important to you? SAFA is running a lobbying trip to Washington March 6-9 to fight Financial Aid cuts. This meeting is open to anyone interested. 7 p.m. Machmer W-23.

UMASS HORSEMASTER'S CLUB — Meeting to discuss outcome of Stallion Service Auction and our upcoming clinic. Everyone welcome. 7 p.m., Stockbridge 311.

UMASS CHESS CLUB MEETING — First meeting tonight, followed by games. Chess players of all levels are welcome. 7 p.m., 801 Campus Center.

FILM: STATE OF SIEGE — "...A Riveting, inflammatory film...(of) the United States' historical role as Big Daddy in Latin America..." (N.Y. Times) By Costa — Gavras ("Missing", "2"). 7:30 p.m., Herter 231.

DYSLEXIC STUDENT ORGANIZATION MEETING — Meeting aimed at enrolement of new members and task assigning questions/suggestions and just curious observers welcome. 7:30 p.m. Bartlett 68.

UMASS BICYCLE CLUB MEETING — General meeting. Deposits are due for the Florida tour. Discussion of Spring Break Tour in Virginia. Slide show from past tour of Virginia. 7:30 p.m., Campus Center Rm 171-173.

MASS PIB LADIES BIBLE STUDY — All ladies are invited to come and study with us in an informal setting the life and teachings of Jesus Christ as described in the Bible. 8 p.m., Campus Center 803.

JAZZ CONCERT — Jazz composer and performer Jeff Holmes, along with several faculty and student musicians will play a program of Holmes' original compositions spanning a broad range of jazz styles. The concert is free. 8 p.m., Bowker Auditorium.

AL-ANON — Having a problem with someone else's drinking, come to a meeting. 8 p.m., Campus Center.

Open 24 Hours—7 am Mon. thru Sat. Midnite

in Hadley-Amherst and Pittsfield stores.

Enjoy the king of oven roasts!

Great Beef Rib Roast USDA CHOICE Large End 4th.-7th Rib 1.99 lb

Hotel Style Semi Boneless Rib Roast	Beef Rib lb	2.99
Bottom Round Roast Beef	Up to 5 lbs Beef Round lb	1.79
Beef Top Round Roast	Up to 5 lbs Beef Round lb	1.89
USDA Choice Rump Roast	Beef Round lb	1.99
USDA Choice Eye Round Roast	Beef Round lb	2.59
USDA Choice Beef Round Top Round Steak	lb	2.59
USDA Choice Beef Round Cube Steak	lb	2.59
USDA Choice Beef Round Round Tip Roast	lb	2.09

Perdue 5-7 pounds 'Oven Stuffer' Roasting Chicken lb 59¢

Extra plump and meaty

Twin Pack Perdue Fresh Cornish Hens 1.19 lb

DOUBLE MFG. COUPONS
W. Mass and Enfield
see Store for Details

It's time to STOP & SHOP

corner deli Available in stores featuring a service deli.

Colonial Beef Bologna 1.69 lb or try their German Salami

Cheddar Cheese 3.99 lb
we purchased the finest Wisconsin Cheddar Cheese in 75 to 300lb Mammoth Blocks. Sliced to your order

Fresh Boneless Turkey Roast Marval 3-4 lb package 1.49 lb

Fresh Marval Turkey Drumsticks With lots of tender meat lb 49¢

Marval Turkey Ham Smoked & Cooked 2½-3 lbs 1.49 lb

Terrific Seafood Specials

Fresh Scrod Haddock Fillets 1.99 lb

Fresh Flounder Fillets 2.49 lb

Swordfish Steaks Frozen 3.99 lb

Fiesta Brand Peeled & Cleaned Shrimp 1 lb pkg Frozen 2.99

Big Daisy Bread Sliced White Stop & Shop 20oz loaf 2 for 99¢

Aqua-fresh Toothpaste 6.4 oz tube 99¢

'White Gem' with back Chicken Leg Quarters Stop & Shop's own special brand of chicken, meaty and delicious. Enjoy it this week. 5-6 lb pkg lb 49¢

Chicken Wings	'White Gem' 5-6 lb pkg lb	59¢
White Gem Chicken Legs	5-6 lb pkg lb	69¢
Chicken Breast Split	with Back 'White Gem' 5-6 lb pkg lb	1.09
Chicken Breast	Boneless & Skinless 'White Gem' lb	2.39

produce Freshness comes first at Stop & Shop!

Fresh Florida Grown Iceberg Lettuce Fresh, crisp and low in calories. Get your salad off to a great start! head 39¢

Sunkist Fruit Sale!

Pick Your Own Lemons size 75 5 for $1

Pick Your Own Navel Oranges size 72 5 for $1

Sunkist Kinnow size 105 Tangerines lb 59¢

Thompson Seedless Grapes 1.19 lb
Enjoy a naturally sweet snack!

Fresh Dandelions	Collards or Kale bunch	59¢
Fresh Broccoli Rabe	lb	89¢
Fresh Escarole	or Chicory lb	39¢
Fresh Spinach	lb	59¢

Bumble Bee Tuna Chunk Light in oil or water 6½ ounce can 79¢

1 lb can Coffee Regular, Electric, Automatic or Drip Stop & Shop 1.89

Mueller's Noodles Fine Medium or Broad 12 ounce package 59¢

Penn. Dutch. Mushrooms Stems & Pieces 4 ounce can 55¢

Hi-Dri Paper Towels 2 Ply sheet 100 sheet roll 2 for $1

Bathroom Tissue 4-Pack Assorted Colors, 1 ply 400 sheet Sun Glory 69¢

Mrs. Filberts Margarine Golden Quarters 1 lb package 59¢

Sealtest Cottage Cheese Small or Large Curd or Light N' Lively 16 oz cup 99¢

Minute Maid Orange Juice Regular or More Pulp 16 ounce can 1.29

One Pound Can Stop & Shop Coffee Regular, Auto. Electric Perk or Drip 1.39

Stop & Shop Dozen Large White Eggs Grade A FREE

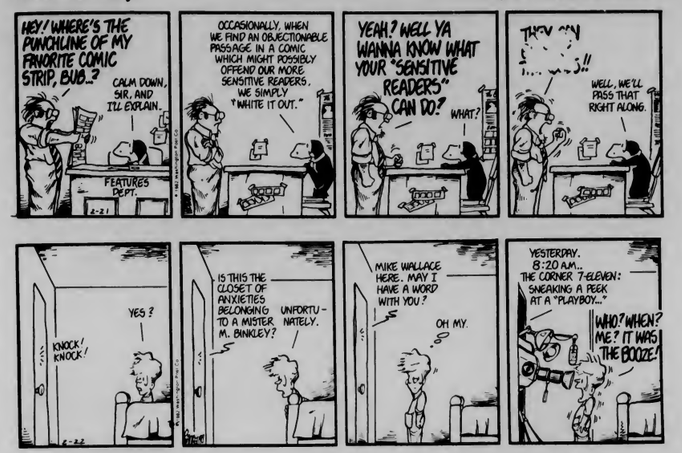
Mrs. Filberts Margarine Golden Quarters 1 lb pkg FREE

Bumble Bee Tuna Chunk Light In Oil or Water 6½ ounce can 49¢

Prices effective Sun. Feb. 20-Sat. Feb. 26. We reserve the right to limit sales to three packages of any items offered for sale. Not available on case lots or to other dealers or wholesalers. Copyright 1983 by Stop & Shop Supermarkets. Not responsible for typographical errors.

Bloom County

By Berke Breathed



The UMass Zone

By Mark Rollins

Katfood

By ARK

Scrod

By Dan DeBellis

After The Fall

By R. Miller

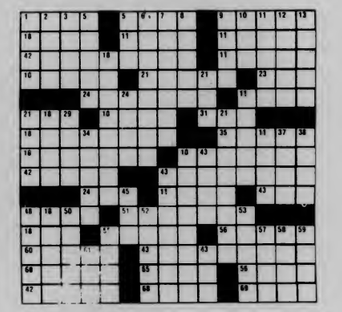
CROSSWORD

Edited by Margaret Farrar and Trude Jafte

© 1983 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

ACROSS
1 God of fire
5 Namesakes of a president
9 —— Forces
14 Cereal
15 Immediately following
16 Relative of the raccoon
17 Lake traversed by the Rhine
19 Honest —— (truly)
20 Mowed path
21 Played swing music
23 Lyric poem
24 Relevant
26 Son of Zeus and Hera
27 For each
30 Use a stopwatch
31 Informed, in a way
33 Fearless
35 Dried root
39 Live
40 Barren
42 Incline
43 Atomic particle
44 Poetic pronoun
46 Edible part
47 Time of day Poet
48 Sweets
51 Haile Selassie, for one
54 Doctors' gp.
55 Drop suddenly, as a bird
56 Beauty parlor application
60 The Southland
62 Scold
64 Omit
65 Poet Moore's land
66 City in Oklahoma
67 Evil spirit
68 Shoe part
69 Disintegrates

DOWN
1 Fundamentals
2 Develop
3 Book by Zola
4 Teacher: Abbr.
5 Literary pieces
6 Name meaning "favorite son"
7 Agog
8 Entertainer Allen
9 Chemical compound
10 Presidential nickname
11 Military rank
12 Musical exercise
13 Eats sumptuously
18 "Nothing but ——"
22 Anglo-Saxon letter
25 Prevaricator
26 Separated
27 "—— in Boots"
28 Chemical compound
29 Eastern dignitary
32 Gun mechanisms
34 Holy water receptacles
36 Coins, in Calabria
37 Drug-yielding plant
38 Famous English Quaker
40 Unexpected successes
41 Kind of sheet
43 City in Kansas
45 Evergreen
48 Worn out
49 A miss is as good as ——
50 Saying
52 Standard for comparison
53 Clause in a document
55 Sighted
57 Forbidden item
58 Loretta, the actress
59 Linemen
61 Nuptial saying
63 Rigid



ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

T	A	M	S		D	E	E	P		B	A	I	L	S	A
A	L	A	E		S	C	R	U		O	C	E	A	N
C	O	N	F		P	O	I	N	T	B	L	A	N	K
O	N	A	G	E	R		A	J	O	I		S	I	N
S	E	N	E	G	A	L		A	R	E	A
		D	A	V	I	D		A	G	A	I	N
C	A	W		S	E	A	S		V	E	R	B	A
R	I	I	S		D	A	D		S	T	O	P
U	N	F	E	D		L	I	S	P		I	S	E
S	T	E	A	K	S		C	L	E	A	R	O	F
		S	C	H	O	O	L		T	R	I	V	I	A
L		N	O	M		P	O	R	N		A	M	E	C	H	E
G	O	E	S	T	O	T	O	W	N		R	I	O	T
A	L	L	A	M		E	N	O	S		G	A	I	T
D	O	L	C	E		S	A	N	K		D	I	L	E	I	S

weather

Sunny today with highs 35 to 40. Clouding over tonight with a chance of light snow in the western hills late at night. Lows 25 to 30. Tomorrow, periods of light snow or rain in interior sections, occasional rain along the coast. High 35 to 40.

D.C. MENU

BASICS LUNCH
Nutty Noodles
Grilled Cheese on Wheat Berry

LUNCH
Grilled Cheese Sandwich
Southern Beef and Noodle Casserole

BASICS DINNER
Tofu Nut Loaf
Mushroom Sauce
Greek Style Skillet

DINNER
Roast Pork/Gravy
Applesauce
Chopped Beefsteak Special
Greek Style Skillet

WANTED
Someone who knows news

The Collegian is looking for one Associate News Editor to coordinate our coverage of Amherst and the Five College area. Applicant should have some experience reporting news for a newspaper and be willing to work hard for low pay. We will provide some training and great experience. Interested UMass student should apply before next Friday, Feb. 25, to John DiPalazzo at the Collegian, 113 Campus Center, 545-3500.

The Collegian is an equal opportunity employer.

STUDENTS SAVE 40%
SUBSCRIBE BY
4:00 PM, FEBRUARY 25!

ASHES
March 3-5, 9-12 at 8:00 pm
David Rudkin's drama of a young couple whose yearning for a child becomes an obsession as the odds turn more and more against them is a work of stunning power — frank, compassionate, laced with ironic humor.

THE COMEDY OF ERRORS
April 7-9, 13-16 at 8:00 pm
This is not your typical Shakespearean play. It isn't romantic and lyrical. It is pure farce, fast and bawdy, peopled with acrobats, jugglers, musicians, and hookers. Think you hate Shakespeare? You'll love THE COMEDY OF ERRORS.

COMPANY
May 5-7, 11-14 at 8:00 pm
This brilliant, sophisticated musical by Stephen Sondheim manages to be very funny about the subject of marriage by taking it very seriously. Set to music that reflects the pulse of Manhattan life, COMPANY is about growing up and becoming human in our times.

THE RAND THEATER FINE ARTS CENTER
Phone: 545-3511

SUBSCRIBE NOW TO SPRING 1983 AT THE RAND THEATER

Please clip and mail to: Rand Theater Box Office, Fine Arts Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003

NAME
STREET CITY STATE ZIP
PHONE (days) (evenings)

I wish to order ___ Rand Theater subscriptions at $7.50* each and/or ___ student/senior citizen subscriptions at $4.50* each for the following dates (please circle one date for each production)

ASHES	March	3	4	5	9	10	11	12
THE COMEDY OF ERRORS	April	7	8	9	13	14	15	16
COMPANY	May	5	6	7	11	12	13	14

GALA OPENING NIGHT! March 3 April 7 May 5 You are invited to meet the cast at a reception after the show

Patrons with discounted tickets must show appropriate ID at the door

* PLEASE NOTE: Subscriptions for $7.50 and $4.50 expire Friday, February 25, at 4:00 pm. Subscriptions after that date will cost $9.00 for the general public and $6.00 for students

Enclosed please find my check or money order for $_____ payable to The Rand Theater

WEDNESDAY
PUB MUG NIGHT
Music By
AL STONER
DISCO-ROCK 35¢ pub mugs
9 pm - 1 am no cover
THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST

CARROLL TRAVEL
Low Fares of the Week
Hartford to LA or
San Fran $99.00 one way
Amtrak
Anywhere Fare
$125.00* round trip
*certain restrictions apply
call 256-8931 for more details
15 Cowles Lane, Amherst

UNION RECORDS WANTS YOU!

COME TO OUR WINTER BLIZZARD SALE AND DON'T BE ONE TO MISS OUT ON THESE GREAT SAVINGS

ON SALE: FEB. 21-25
$5.99 DON'T MISS IT!

MISSING PERSONS - SPRING SESSION M
EDDIE MONEY - NO CONTROL
BILLY SQUIER - EMOTIONS IN MOTION
PAT BENATAR - GET NERVOUS
BOB SEGAR - THE DISTANCE
J GEILS - SHOWTIME

Union Records Unlimited
THE STUDENT RUN STORE

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Monday - Friday • Deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10 % • discount • Phone number FREE

AUTO FOR SALE

67 VW Conv inspected needs work $400 or BO 323-5918 leave message

1959 MGA all ther to restore $850. 617-799-0049

71 Ford Torino AM/FM stereo fair cond. $300 or BO Diane 253-8453

1973 Plym Grnd Cp. 95000 m AC, stereo & more must sell 700$ 549-5877 Joe aft 5

75 Olds Starfire 6 clys AM/FM cassette good cond 1275 253-2016

BELLYGRAMS!!

Delivered by professional bellydancer for most unusual gift Thereza 253-7822

BOLTWOOD PROJECT

Interested in the Boltwood Project? Recruitment meeting Wed. Feb. 23 at 7 PM in 804 CC

CAPE COD RENTAL

Housemetes wanted for summer in Harwich 6 bedrooms cottages available also call 6-5851

CAR PARTS

Saab 96 Parts: transmission, V-4 engine, 1967 brake master cylinder, tach, special edition "Monte Carlo" body, other parts. Call Sam 774-5952 Mon to Fri 1 pm to 5 pm

COUNSELING - LOW STUDENT FEE

Licensed, experienced, cering humanist No connection U Mass. First session free. Allan Black, 253-5036

COUNSELORS

Association of Independent Camps seeks qualified counselors fo 75 member children's camps in Northeast July and August. Contact: Association of Independent Camps (MA), 157 West 57th Street, New York, New York, 10019 (212)582-3540

CRIMSON TRAVEL

Spring Break - Bermuda $289. Daytona $299. Disney $279. More info: Roberta or Steph 549-5320

DAYTONA BEACH

Daytone Beach Spring Break $299. Round trip direct non-stop jet Boston -Daytona. 7 nights Ramada Inn on the beach Free car rental departs Mar 19 Saugus Travel 617-233-8192, 617-289-6221

ENTERTAINMENT

Professional DJs For Less $99 Winter Special! Dorms, greeks, Semis. Paul 549-4405

Reckadiac Entertainment Agency Inc. Bands and discjockeys guaranteed student functions 256-0739

Megician - The Great Charles will entertain at any occasion call Bruce 549-1177 after 6 PM

FOR RENT

Storage spece available by the month call Peg (evenings 6-10 PM) 549-6852

Cape Cod Summer Seasonal Rentals W. Yarmouth & Dennis; 1, 2, 3, 4 bedroom units. Rent direct from owners. Call 1-617-528-8300 or 1-617-771-2233

FOR SALE

Poetry Books - 'The Watcher' - $2 + '10 Jewish American Poets' - $4 Call253-5369

K2 Skils For Sale $50 or BO interested? call Margie 256-6612

Nikon FE for sale with 50f1.8 and 135 telephoto $375 or BO call Scott 253-7465

Ski Boots 2 pair: Raichle Freestyle & Nordica. Both new, both size 10. BO Call Scott @ 549-6101

Polaroid Sun Instant Camera never been used comes with case and film best offer Jill 546-6961

4 ft. python for sale $80. 253-3154.

HELP WANTED

Oversees Jobs - Summer/year round. Europe, S. Amer., Australia, Asia. All fields. $500-$1200 monthly. Sight-seeing. Free info. Write IJC Box 52-MA-1 Corona Del Mar, CA 92625

CRUISE SHIP JOBS! $14-$28,000 Caribean, Hawaii, World. Call for Guide, Directory, Newsletter. 916-722-1111 ext Massachusettes

COUNSELORS: Camp Wayne, northeastern Pennsylvenia. Co-ed childrens camp 6/23-8/23/83. On campus interviews March 2nd. Friendly, warm atmosphere, 12 Allevard, Lido Beach, NY 11561. Include school phone number. Campus Rep: Wendy Edenfield 545-0939

Dependable people needed for newspaper delivery in dorms: 7 days a week. Between 7:00-9:00 AM. 253-7009

The Commuter Area Government has two job openings. These positions are work-study at 15/hours/wk. Freshperson, sophomore or junior undergraduate preferred. To apply, stop by 404 Student Union 9:00-5:00 pm M-F. We are an Affirmative Action Equal Opportunity Employer. Third World, women and non-traditional students encpouraged to apply. Deadline is February 23.

Part-time work available in solar sales. Call Eric 549-5884

INSTRUCTION

Commercial Art and Cartooning Workshops. Free brochure. 586-8513

Know your car. Basic Auto Mechanics Workshop. Classroom theory + shop. Limited enrollment 253-2098

LOST

Keys on blue-clip keyring with words Le Chateau 546-8161

Short Khaki Jacket w/het end mittens in Blue Wall Fri nite 2/11/83 Please hat and mittens have sentimental value call 253-9971 Sheila.

Lost - keys on Boston Globe keychain Paula - 665-7783

MICROCOMPUTER TERMINAL

The Computer Works 253-5676 253-5755

PERSONALS

Stop Fee Increases! The student senate will hold hearings on next years student fees. Come voice your concerns Mon 14th CC 101 7 pm Tues 15th CC804 4-7 pm

JAMAICA
Spring Break

Do it right this year!
For more info call 549-0329

COMSTU Club Meeting
today
Machmer E 37
4:00 pm

All University Man
Interested in a rewarding Fraternity? Join the brothers of Alpha Phi Omega in Friendship, Leadership and Service. Tues. @ 7 PM OPEN RUSH Rm 904 C.C. Discover the true meaning of Fraternity. Look for our table in the CC Concourse on Tuesday.

Michael - Happy Easter to you too?!? Thanks for the cookies. Who are you?? Amy

JIM Sorry I couldn't make it to the Hangor Monday hopefully some other time Lisa

Retired V.B.I.: Thanx for the surprise Valentine message. Call me. Sincerely, No Appendix

To the Fentastic Chi Omega Sisters: Thanks to all for your help. Stay psyched! I love y'all, Felice.

Art Bus To N.Y.C. February 26th sign up FAC coffee shop: MW 12:15 - 1:15 TTH 2:30 - 4:30, F 10:00 - 11:00 $20 roundtrip refreshments 546-7065

Ron Super Happy 22nd you nut luv ya, Denny Jones.

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Dissertations, Theses, Cases, Papers, guaranteed acceptance, low rates, Nancy 5-0392, 584-7924

PSYCHOLOGY STUDY

Subjects needed, ages 17 -25, who have lost a parent 1 - 5 years ago, to participate in an interview study about bereavement. Experimental credits available. Call 549-4418 AM or PM, or leave a note at Tobin Hall room 603, with your phone no. & when to call.

QUISP

Farewell and Goodriddence to dearest Quisp Burns of Gorman, May the cream in your cereal always be salty, from Quake OXXOXX P.S. Cardboard turns me on.

RESUME WRITING

Professional/Confidential/Efficient special rates 253-7468 weekends, weekdays after 5

RIDE NEEDED

Ride needed to Millers Falls Thur eves 5 PM share expenses call Holly at Outdoor Center of New England 659-3926

ROOMMATE WANTED

Roommate wanted: $120/m util incl starts Feb call Mark or Dan 549-1387

Apertment-mate wanted fully-furnished 2 bedroom apt in private home. 5 minute walk to Amherst Center $250 includes utils/heat call Todd or leave message 549-6528 or 549-1916

100/month, new wall-to-wall carpeting, utilities included. ½ price for Feb. Only 4 month lease. Brittany Manor 549-4758 leave message, will call back fast

One female to share a room in a three bedroom apartment near the center of town, Ninety - Nine a month call Aline at 549-6264

Sunny house on bus route 3½ miles from campus in Hadley, available 3/1/83 105 month + utilities 586-3406

SERVICES

PAPER DUE? CAN'T WRITE? Tutor -english composition and grammar reasonable rates 6-9289

Your typewriter or mine? Accurate, reliable. $1/page Kitty 6-7302

SPRING BREAK

Vacation Specials: Florida, Bahamas, Bermuda. $125 - $325. Call Dave or John 253-3718

THE BOLTWOOD PROJECT

Boltwood is seeking volunteers to participate in recession programs for the developmentally disabled at BSS. Gain valuable experience. Credit available. Information meetings: Thurs Feb 17 and Wednesday Feb 23 rm 804 CC

TO SUBLET

1 bedroom available in Swiss Village apartment call 549-2726

TRAVEL

Floride direct by van. 3/19-27. $158. for round trip - wine & cheese - accom. info call now - S.S. Van Lines @ 617-724-8810

Daytona Beech - Spring Break - March 18-27. Party down by motorcoach, free beer party, oceanfront accomodations $165 plus tax & services. For more info call Kathie or Robin @ 256-0551

Bermuda - $315 includes everything - call 256-8941 after 6

WANTED

Class rings, gold and silver jewelry and coins. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant, Amherst, 256-0710

Apt Mate Northwood Apts own room, two bdrm apt 160.00 rent 665-3633 aft 5 pm

Help $60 reward for helping me by your parents unwanted second car 253-7189

Looking to buy dorm size refrigerator immediately call Elaine 6-9662

Math 131 Tutor needed: Will pay call Chris at 546-6422. Please keep trying.

Three Bedroom Puffton or Townehouse to rent from June on Sue 546-7393

the Hungry U Restaurant
55 University Drive
Amherst
549-5713

To: All Pizza Lovers
From: The Hungry U Restaurant
Subject: Pizza For Only $1.00

Now where can you buy a freshly prepared pizza for $1.00

Read on; starting each night at 9:00 join us for our famous pizza party. When you purchase a pitcher of beer you can buy one of our delicious small pizzas for only $1.00

Also we offer happy hour prices each night after 9:00

P.S. Bring this ad and get one free pizza topping good Mon -Wed 2/21 - 2/23

Is there a Bottleneck in your Life?
Try
The Stimulating Atmosphere of Saint Louis University's Academic Year in Madrid

Designed for the concerned student who may not be financially affluent. the one who demands seriousness in education.

For information call Shoshanna Wasserman
tel. (413) 549-5630

Enjoy the Theaters, Museums & Cultural Life of the Spanish Capital

Quality Instruction at Economy Prices in:

Accounting	Foreign Science	Political Science
Art	History	Pyschology
Business Administration	Language	Sociology
Economics	Literature	Theology
French	Teaching English as a Second Language
Philosophy

Our Center is located in the Ciudad Universitaria. Staff is recruited from three local universities. Trans-Atlantic Flights: $255 Accredible courses taught in Spanish, personal direction, educational travel. Years Tuition: $3700. 3 hundred students currently enrolled. Maintenance in family or dormitory runs from $275 to $325 per month according to degree of comfort. Half of our student body is Spanish -- Make friends with your hosts from the first minute.

Informetion: Raymond L. Sullivan, S.J., Calle de la Vina, 3, Madrid 3, Spain

Sports

Thought about writing sports? Come down to the Sports desk at the Collegian 113 Campus Center and get started now.

Minutemen take apart Rhody, 79-64

Green and Neysmith lead UMass to second league win

By JIM FLOYD
Collegian Staff

If only men's basketball coach Tom McLaughlin could pack the Curry Hicks Cage and the Minuteman fans in a suitcase and take them along on road trips the overall season record for the University of Massachusetts would look much better.

That notion became evident once again this past Saturday night when the Minutemen, led by an awe inspiring performance by junior center Edwin Green, rocked the Rams of the University of Rhode Island 79-64 before 3903 appreciative spectators in the Cage.

"Can you believe this team?" McLaughlin quizzed reporters after the game. "We're 6-3 at home."

The home crowd was treated to an offensive and defensive display by Green, who teamed up with fellow frontcourtmen John Hempel and Horace Neysmith to score 56 of the team's 79 points.

Green finished the night as the game's high scorer with 20 points on 8 of 13 shooting from the field and a perfect four for four from the free throw line. Add to that 13 rebounds and seven blocked shots that had a very intimidating effect on Ram shooting.

"Edwin Green played the best game anyone has played here since I arrived," McLaughlin said matter of factly of his center's performance.

The Minutemen came out strong from the outset of the contest and took a 4-0 lead early on before eight unanswered Ram points put URI on top 8-4.

From there, Green, Neysmith (18 points, 14 rebounds on the night) and Bobby Braun (7 first half points off the bench) asserted the Minuteman strength down low with a series of layups, short jumpers and dunks (two heart thumpers from the Green machine) pulled the locals even and then ahead of the visitors.

Once the Minutemen put a little distance on URI with a Neysmith three point play driving down the lane at 11:56 of the period to make the score 15-12, UMass never looked back.

A key moment in the first half came when Donald Russell, who has been leading the Minutemen in scoring for much of the season, hit the floor pretty hard after being cut down by a Ram defender on an outlet pass.

Russell spent a couple of nervous moments on the hardwood before finally rising and leaving the game. Though he did return to the game later, he appeared to still be feeling the effects of the crash and saw only spot action throughout the rest of the game.

Despite the handicap to the UMass team, the Minutemen were able to extend their lead, again with help from the big men inside, and left the floor at halftime with a 36-29 advantage.

In the second half, UMass pulled ahead slowly for the first seven minutes of the period. Then, starting at the 13:30 mark of the period, Mr. Green took matters into his own hands and broke the game wide open.

First, Green took a feed from John Hempel down low with the score 51-44, took one step and blasted a two handed four star slam through the rim to the delight of the partisan crowd.

John Hempel got into the act as he buried a three point shot from 21 feet out to up the ante to 56-44.

Then, once again, it was Green rejecting two Ram shots in a row, coming down to the other end of the floor and hitting two free throws to make the score 60-44 and, with less than ten minutes to play, it was panic time for Rhode Island.

Panic did not help, however, as UMass held off the Rams and went on to win their second conference win against eight losses.

Collegian photo by Dave Deuber

Darryl Carter drives to the hoop in the Minutemen's 79-64 win over Rhode Island Saturday night at the Cage.

Women hoopsters fall again; Bishops prevail

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

One of the things that is often the hardest and the most important for a young basketball team to learn is how to play with consistency.

Against Bishops College, Saturday afternoon in the Cage, the Massachusetts women's basketball team played well and only trailed the Canadians by three, 34-31 at the half.

But, in the second half, led by the pinpoint shooting of Lynn Polson and Andrea Blackwell, Bishops outscored UMass 45-16 to score a 79-47 victory over the Minutewomen.

Bishop's Wendy Verrechai scored 14 points to give the visitors three players in double figures and help hand UMass their 20th loss against five wins this year.

Massachusetts countered with the scoring of Minutewomen high scorer Wendy Ward who had 12 points. Karen Dammninger, Maria Chomentowski, and Barbara Hebel all scored eight points in the UMass effort.

Besides the high scoring of the two Bishops players, the Canadian team also excelled on defense. They blocked 11 UMass shots while only one Bishops shot was turned back by UMass. And UMass committed twenty-three turnovers against 11 by the visitors to give Bishops another edge.

UMass did outrebound Bishops 44-39, led by Nadine Jackson's 15 rebounds, but it wasn't enough to catch Bishops.

Tonight, Massachusetts faces the University of Rhode Island in their only Atlantic 10 match of the year, at the Cage at 7:30.

The Lady Rams are a talented team, led by three time Atlantic 10 Rookie of the Week Michelle Washington. The 5'9 freshman foward is currently ranked third in the league in rebounding and led URI against Northeastern, a 72-65 URI win. UMass lost to Northeastern earlier this year.

Barbara Hebel is ranked ninth in the league in scoring at a 13.3 per game clip. Carol Smith of URI is second ranked with 3.0 steals a game and Ward is right behind in third with 2.8 steals a game.

UMass will have to get some consistent and topnotch performances to keep pace with Rhode Island. Tip off is at 7:30 p.m.

Men swimmers heating up

By SCOTT HOOD
Collegian Staff

The Blue Devils came searching for some souls to steal Saturday at Boyden pool, but ended up suffering third-degree burns as the University of Massachusetts men's swimming team scorched Central Connecticut 78-35 in the Minutemen's last meet of the regular season.

Steve Rubin and Owen McGonagle led a fired-up group of UMass swimmers comprised mainly of reserves as several regulars sat and watched. Sophomore Rubin and the freshman McGonagle each registered personal bests in two events as the Minutemen led beginning to end.

The rout was on from the opening gun. The 400-yard medley relay team of Howie Abramson, Mark Surette, Chris Porter, and Rich Plunkett gave UMass the early 7-0 lead with a victory in time of 3:47.4.

Paul McNeil and Brian Spellman finished 1-2 in the 1000 freestyle to up it to 15-1. McNeil won the race going away with a time of 10:24.6.

Chris Porter ripped through the waves in the 200 freestyle, falling barely a second off the school record with a time of 1:47.92. Dave Swenson finished third.

The closest Central Connecticut would get to UMass came at 24-10 after the Blue Devils rang up first and third places in the 50 freestyle. The winning time was 22.50.

But the Minutemen again pulled away in the 200 Individual Medley with McGonagle and Rubin each recording personal bests in the race. McGonagle won in 2:09.56 to make it 32-11.

After the Blue Devils won the 1-meter diving, UMass swept the 200 butterfuly. Mickey Minutoli led the charge with a time of 2:01.52.

Central Connecticut closed the gap to 44-26 with a 1-3 finish in the 100 freestyle. Spellman finished second for UMass.

The rest of the meet was a cruise for the Minutemen as they won four of the last five events, outscoring the Devils 34-9 in the process. John Mulvaney won the 200 backstroke in 2:07.4 and Porter led a Minutemen sweep in the 500 freestyle in 5:03.99 to make it 60-28. Dave Hoover and McGonagle followed Porter.

The Devils won the 3-meter diving, but UMass responded with another sweep, this time in the 200 breaststroke. Tom Lowery led the charges with a time of 2:19.30. Rubin finished second, setting his other personal best in the process.

Men gymnasts finish first

By ELLEN RICHARD
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts men's gymnastics team traveled to Lowell on Saturday and stacked up three more wins in a four-way meet by defeating Lowell, the University of Vermont and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

UMass, which now has a record of 7-4, was six points over its closest competitor. The Minutemen scored 240.85, Lowell scored 234.3, MIT came up with 205.9 points and Vermont was in the basement with 188.45 points.

UMass started out strong winning the floor event with 44.15 points. The team performed smooth routines with John Macurdy taking the top spot with a 9.35.

Peter Lucchini also performed well in the floor exercises scoring a 9.3 and taking second in the event. Bert Mathieson put up a 9.0 and Joe DeMarco hit for UMass to score an 8.8 Co-captain Bob Goulart, not a regular floor starter, did well scoring a 7.7 in a last minute line up change.

UMass had a hard time on pommel horse but Lowell and Vermont had it worse, giving UMass a second place finish with 32.35 points. The team had trouble staying on the horse and the best it could do as an 8.1 score by Mathieson, placing him second.

Lowell inched by UMass in the rings event by a point, 42.75-41.7. Co-captain John McGonagle had a strong performance for UMass scoring a 9.1.

The Minutemen were third in the vaulting event with a 44.6. Macurdy took second in the event with 9.5 and Mathieson scored a 9.0. The team had a little trouble landing on its feet but Sbarra, Lucchini and DeMarco came through with scores in the high eights to give the team its highest event score in the match.

Macurdy placed second in the parallel bars event with an 8.65 score and Mathieson was close behind in third with an 8.6.

Macurdy and Mathieson traded places in the high bar event with Mathieson leading the way with a 9.0 and Macurdy in third place with an 8.7.

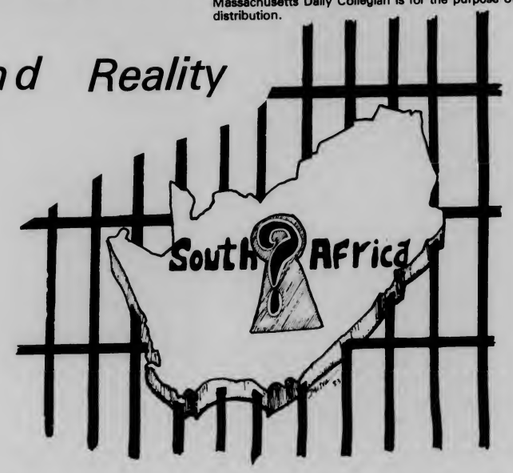
The team is still not pleased with its performances but being back home this Saturday for the first time in a month, the team may be able to put its problems behind them.

NUMMO NEWS

Tuesday, February 22, 1983 VOLUME 11 ISSUE 73

NUMMO News' ONLY connection with the Massachusetts Daily Collegian is for the purpose of distribution.

South Africa: Image and Reality



Is South Africa Acceptable?

Official Action

Last Wednesday night, the Undergraduate Student Senate unanimously approved the release of documents regarding the funding of botany professor Robert Wilce's trip to South Africa.
Last January, Professor Wilce was awarded $600 by the Faculty Research Council to attend the Sandy Beach Eco-System Congress in South Africa. The motion denounces University sponsorship or funding of any travel to South Africa.

Cause

When asked what the purpose of the motion was, Undergraduate Student Senator, Charlene Allen replied, "The motion will make public what is legally already a right. The Undergraduate Student Senate wants to see more information. We want to see the documents."
Allen answered the question- "What was the impetus behind the motion", with, "These documents are already a matter of public record, it's just that nobody will give them up. They say / can't give you that information and send you to another person who tells you the same thing until you have spoken to every person there and are repeating yourself.
Finally we asked, "What action will result from this motion?" The student senator told us, "We want the University to come forth with a policy. We suspect that there is no policy at the present time. If this is true, we would like one written with a good deal of student input.
She added, " Concrete policies are needed for these issues. Lack of such policies leads to ambiguity and mis-steps."

Principles

Although Chancellor Duffey told the Undergraduate Student Senate that he does not feel travel to countries like Russia or South Africa should be restricted, under the principle of academic freedom for academic purposes, many of the students disagree.
UMass student Robert Texeira called the $600 funding "A blatant misuse of University money."
A member of Scera's Anti-Racism team reported: "We have reason to believe that a good portion of this man's funding was by a group supported by the South African government."
He went on to say that, "It was a misconception on the part of Professor Wilce to say that the trip was non-political. It is trips for academic and entertainment purposes which the South African government uses as devices for liasons to keep South Africa an accepted patron of the arts and sciences."
A JQA resident felt that, "South Africa is just trying to get scholars and artists to come to their country so that people will think South Africa is "civilized", even the government. People equate "civilized" with "genteel". South Africa wants to appear genteel to cover up the barbaric acts of murder and oppression. They want to cover up the primary situation in their country."
A CCEBMS student commented, "The world knows, the United Nations (U.N.) knows, and we should show them that we know, and will not support - be a party to their genocidal acts and system of government.
A second Scera member said, "The U.N. has condemned South Africa, so should we. We are a university, supposedly an institution seeking knowledge and truth for the betterment of human-kind. We should in no way help South Africa perpetuate a false image of its country."

South Africa every day

by Tracey Bryant

from the Southern Africa Solidarity Committee, UMass

You wake with a start — sirens — lights flashing in the window. Shouted commands, nightsticks on doors, babies start to wail — your mind begins to work: "Where's my passbook? Did I get it stamped last week?" Your sister, up for the weekend, burrows under the bed, as you head for the street, where big men in uniforms and flashing badges are packing people in vans. Mostly women, as usual. You squeak by, but how long will your luck hold? A fine for your sister would be a half-a-week's wages, at least.

For you, it was only a nightmare. In the Republic of South Africa, it is a daily trauma for the majority of citizens. Take, for example, an eyewitness account of such a raid, reported in the Cape Times, which occurred on the 19th of October, 1982, at the "Zone 16 single men's quarters," located on the outskirts of Capetown. Note: Black workers in urban areas are prohibited from permanent residency and are not allowed to bring their families on their constant, forced migrations.

At 4 a.m., "riot police, uniformed police and Inspectors of the Western Cape Administration Board went from door to door, waking people up with loud raps. While white Cape Town slept peacefully, the residents of the barracks a few miles away were being subjected to a common, yet horrific event in the experience of Black South Africans — a pass raid. A few people managed to escape...The rest — men, women, and children — stumbled from their beds...They presented themselves in the little front rooms of each hostel for inspection of their documents and their right to be in the barracks at 4:00 in the morning. All around were men in uniform, flashing torches, barking orders...The arrestees, mostly women, went quietly...retaining their dignity...A number had babies on their backs, some wailing at the shock of being awoken so abruptly. Then, with the final slam of a van door, it was all over."

The reporter quoted one "legal" worker who was left behind: "'This is very bad. They come here twice a week and take people away. But after the fines are paid the people come back because they have nowhere else to go. If they cannot pay the fine, we make a collection. Everyone helps. But we are getting tired of these raids. We will not accept this kind of treatment forever.'"

According to the Rand Daily Mail (10-29-82), more than 2,000 Black people had been arrested in the Capetown area for pass law violations during the previous month. "This is more than double the monthly average for last year," the Daily Mail reported. (Emphasis added).

Passbooks are the documents which Black South Africans of age are required to have on their persons at all times. There is an elaborate body of laws and administrative apparatus which determines where you may live, work, visit, at each hour of the day, according to Government defined racial categories.

Sympathizers of the racist regime, following the Reagan administration's policy of "constructive engagement," feel that gradual, meaningful change is under way in South Africa, and that this can be facilitated by participation in cultural and academic exchanges sponsored by the apartheid regime. We would agree that certain cosmetic changes in the

Continued on page 3

Angela Davis Lectures: Legal forms of racist repression continue to present

By Angela Brown and Brenda Ling

Angela Davis, in a lecture entitled "Racism and the Law," stressed the pressing need for non-whites to organize against this country's pervasive racist oppression. "If we needed a movement in the late 60's, in the early 70's, then we really need one now,"' she said last Friday night to a packed auditorium at Western New England College. Sponsored by the Black American Law Students' Association, Davis said that "we all have to act in an organized, collective fashion because the power of the state is strong, it is very strong."

Davis discussed her own case in which she was charged with several murders that took place during the Soledad Brothers' trial in 1970. The handgun used by Jonathan Jackson was registered in Davis' name, though she was nowhere near the scene at the time of the courtroom shootings.

Davis described going underground, her arrest, and her trial, emphasizing that the purpose behind her persecution was not simply to protect the public from a so-called dangerous individual, as her guilt was widely contested from the start. Rather, her persecution illustrated "the extent to which this system will go, not to silence me and eliminate me as an individual, but to terrorize, intimidate, silence and eliminate an entire mass movement. It could have been anyone else," she said.

Davis' main theme for her discussion was that the legal system has to be viewed in its overall context to see whether it indeed brings about justice. For example, while she was still being sought for arrest in 1970, all over the country "hundreds of Black women were harrassed," arrested, and suspected of being Davis herself. "Obviously we don't all look that much alike!"

She said that students of the law should move towards both understanding that "the law can be used that way as well as understanding the way it can be used in conjunction with mass struggle and change."

One highly interesting note about Davis' court case is how the prosecutor resorted to appealing to the jury's sexist tendencies after his racist tactics were rejected, "hoping that he could convince the jury that after all, I was only a woman." He asserted that she was "in love" with George Jackson and would therefore be capable of murder. She described the prosecutor's logic: "I might be a philosopher (Davis' doctoral concentration)... but for a woman in love, rationality flies out the window."

In the state's "obvious effort to frighten people away from struggle," racist repression still runs rampant. Davis described Eddie Carthan's case as a carefully constructed racist attack against the progress toward bettering Blacks' lives.

In 1977, at age 27, Carthan was elected mayor of his hometown, Tchula, Mississippi, and immediately he began to improve public services by, for example, paving roads, building a library, and providing public housing. This threat to the Southern landowners' foundation forced a frame-up murder charge against Carthan in 1981.

The National Alliance Against Racist and Political Repression, an umbrella organization of multi-faceted groups fighting racism and political repression on many fronts, organized mass support; in response to the national exposure of this extra-legal incident, the jury, in forty minutes, acquitted Carthan. "The world was watching...somehow that has a way of making one far more objective than the judge's instructions."

Davis emphasised this need for official and mass movements to reinforce each other. Spontaneous outcries are not powerful enough to effect change, but systematic legal and political action, combined with public pressure will help us keep the movement going.

Pointing out the importance of "making sure that you are involved in some organization or another so that you will be ready when you are needed," she bid all to join the Alliance (which she co-chairs), reminding us, finally, that "we cannot do it alone."

For more information, NUMMO encourages interested persons to contact:

National Alliance Against Racist and Political Repression
27 Union Square West, Room 306
New York, New York 10003
10th Anniversary Conference: Chicago, May 13-15, 1983

HEALTH

This article is part of a Health series that Nummo News will be running. We hope it will be of service.

"Hypertension — The silent killer"

By Masherrill Fant

Hypertension, more commonly known as high blood pressure, affects approximately 60 million Americans. Studies indicate that Blacks are two times more susceptible to this illness than Whites. Hypertension is referred to as the "silent killer," because it can occur without any warning and may be asymptomatic, which when undetected or untreated, may lead to death by a heart attack, stroke, or kidney failure.[3]

Blood pressure is the measurement of the pressure of the blood vessels in the heart muscle during a heart beat. The systolic pressure, or the top number, is the heart contracting and the diastolic pressure, or the bottom number, is the heart relaxing between beats. A continuous blood pressure reading above 140 over 90 is considered abnormal.

Since hypertension may be asymptomatic, it is extremely important to periodically check our blood pressure, especially if we are over the age of forty. Some other high risk factors linked to hypertension are obesity, stress, smoking, and high alcohol and sodium (salt) intake.

Brothers and sisters with hypertension, remember to take your medication as prescribed and try to season your foods with herbs and spices instead of salt. There are several salt substitutes on the market, as well as special low-salt cookbooks. If you are a student, remember you should have your blood pressure checked at the University Health Services.

The Hot Trumpets sizzled in performance at the Student Union Ballroom last Tuesday as part of Black History Month.

The Message In Our Music

by Brynne Clarke

The Grandmaster Flash and the Furious Five were in the Pioneer Valley Friday, February 18. The group of young New Yorkers rocked the USA Roller Rink with an energetic and colorful show.

The crowd of 700 stood and waited for the first show which started about 11:00 p.m., with Flash cutting about nine records. The introductions were made: Mellee Mel, Mr. Ness, Raheem (who's in all the ladies dreams), The Kid Creole, and Cowboy - the rappers themselves.

The show included a lot of calling and answering between the performers and the audience. Cowboy and Raheem kept the ladies shrieking while the guys yelled "yo-o!"

In between the shows this reporter was granted an interview. I spoke with the group for about an hour. They expressed their concerns for people and the need for spreading "The Message."

Flash said that they were scared to cut the song and even wanted to release "It's a Shame" as the 12 inch off of the LP, but Mrs. Robinson, their producer said no.

The group has had about 6 bonafide hits from "Super-Rappin" to "Scorpio". They have just gotten back from a tour of Europe and are beginning to tour the USA; with "The Message".

The group began about 10 years ago with just The GrandMaster Flash. The GrandMaster Flash would play in the parks where the rappin' phenomenon began. He would hang a microphone over the table; if the rapper and Flash sounded good together then he would let them continue. If Flash didn't like them he would ask them to get off of the mic. Well Cowboy, Mellie Mel and Mel's brother-The Kid Creole passed and they became the base of a group. Later on Mr. Ness and Raheem became part of the crew. The group as is, has been together for 7 years.

A lot of the early years were done in parks and small Harlem and South Bronx clubs like "The T-Connection" and "The Renaissance Ballroom".

Photo by Brynne Clarke

Master of the Mix doing it in Chicopee

After capturing the N.Y. crowds, they recorded their first national hit, "Freedom".

The "Artist"-as they do call themselves expressed, much dismay on having one of the largest selling records of all time (The Message), and not being nominated for anything. They believe in what they do and they see it as an art. "Not everybody can rap or cut well."

When I asked Flash what the direction of rappin' will be, he answered with, "I don't know, but it won't die; and GrandMaster Flash and the Furious Five will be there."

I was quite impressed with their intelligence and ability to see what was going on around them. They believe in themselves and are doers. They are not going to let people just pass them by. They hope that soon other artist will recognize that they are doing something and it's good. This reviewer would like to note that I am not the biggest fan of rap, but I did like this show. "Flash is fast, Flash is fast", as Deborah Harry says. They get you involved in the show and you stay until it's over. "The Message" is actually quite simple -Love, Unity and Peace, to all.

• South Africa continued from page 1 •

laws, as well as Reagan's policy, are part of change in South Africa — and the reality shows that this change consists of intensified oppression of the majority, torture and assassination of oppositinn leaders, and ever-widening aggression against neighboring states.

The main element in the racists' policy of deceptive change is the "constitutional reform" currently under way in South Africa. A three-chamber parliament is proposed, one chamber each for the "whites," the "Indians" and the "coloreds". The majority "Black" population would be excluded altogether. For the most part the "Indian" and "Colored" communities are having no part of this attempt to suck them into becoming powerless accomplices in racist rule. Feelings run so high against collaboration with the regime that since agreeing to participate in the scheme, the "Colored Labor Party" "has found it impossible to hold an open meeting in Capetown, where coloreds outnumber whites by about two to one." (New York Times, 2-14-83). Futhermore, "About 60 organizations — civic associations, student groups, and trade unions — subscribed to a statement last month that declared, 'We reject the Labor Party as being in any way representative of the oppressed in their struggle for a non-racial, democratic South Africa.'"

Ironically, the most likely result of this phoney reform will be to set in motion and unite the democratic political forces that will finally put an end to the racist regime. Because the main pillars of support for the regime are Wall Street and Washington, it is especially important at this time, for us to step up to support for the campaign to isolate South Africa from all forms of official contact and support from abroad: academic, sports, military, economic, political — which is consistent with repeated declarations by the United Nations General Assembly.

Photo of the Week

Photo by John Wright

Marilyn Sargeant studying at "Yvonne's" in the New Africa House.

Interviewing techniques a la hysteria

By DONNA DAVIS

For graduating seniors this is a time of increased pressure and anxiety as we struggle to fulfill degree requirements and obtain a job. "The real world" lurks like a demon, ready to pounce upon us on May 29 (or May 30 for those with intense hangovers.)

Even the most non-conformist non-conformists are interviewing. People you thought were born in Levi's have donned neutral colored suits. Company names, corporate insignias and annual report data dance in our heads like the mysterious fruit in a Pac-Man game. (Waka waka). As you wait for a recruiter to call your name, palms sweat and you start to imagine that the most outlandish thing will happen when you try to stand up. I can see it all now. Your name is called and before you can shake Mr./Ms. Corporate America's hand a hidden fault underneath Hampshire House opens up and swallows you whole. Well, so much for the interview.

Having survived the interview experience I can only say that the fault, if indeed there is one, did not engulf me. However, I have noted that when pressed the most simple directives elicit a blank response. I was told to proceed to cubicle number 6. For a student of advanced calculus this should have been a simple task, but noool I began to mutter to myself, "One, four...no it's one, two, three, four....Oh, oh, what comes after 47!" The recruiter's steps seemed to boom behind me as the distance between us began to close. Then suddenly just over the horizon loomed cubicle number 6. Marvelous, simply marvelous.

The actual interview proceeded without any traumatic hitches. I did not find myself clinging to the GE man's leg screaming, "Damn it GE, you bring good things to living, why don't you bring good things to my life!" I even found my way out of cubicle 6.

This vignette was not meant to scare my interviewing breathren. It was simply meant to add some levity to the college experience. Your academic record is already documented on your transcript and extracurricular activities are delineated on your resume. For better or for worst the recruiter already knows what you've been up to. So relax and enjoy yourself. For real interviewing techniques, and other help with career development, use the Berkshire House Counseling and Career Development facility. The staff is excellent and more than willing to help.

ANNOUNCEMENTS • • •

Black History Month, 1983

★ ★ ★

★111 Tuesday, Feb. 22
Films: Bundle of Blues and Tap Dancin'
Student Union Ballroom, 7:00 and 9:00 pm

★111 Thursday Feb. 24
Films: Now is the Time and Malcom X: Struggle for Freedom
Malcolm X Center, Southwest Area, 8:00 pm

★111 Friday, Feb. 25
DUSK...Patti O'Neal, Dance/Theater Performance
Bowker Auditorium, 8:00 pm

★111 Saturday, Feb. 26
THIRD WORLD THEATER SERIES
"For Better Not For Worse" A comedy/drama about the struggle in South Africa to fight apartheid. Written by Selaelo Maredi, author of "Homeland" and presented by the American Committee on Africa.
Bowker Auditorium, 8:00 pm, $2.-students, $3.-general public

Sunday Feb. 27
Sweet Honey in the Rock performs at Smith College
8:00 pm, Admission

Exhibit: Afro-American, Afro-Carribean and African Leaders, Past and Present. Feb. 22-28 in Neilson Library, at Smith College.

Third World Women's Task Force Meets the first Tuesday of every month, Everywoman's Center, Wilder Hall, UMass.
For more info 545-0883

IMPORTANT NOTICE

The Financial Aid deadline for the 83-84 academic year is March 1, 1983. All Financial Aid Forms must be sent to the College Scholarship Service by the above date to receive priority funding for the next academic year.

Any questions can be referred to the Financial Aid Office, 243 Whitmore Hall.

BLACK STUDENTS' ALLIANCE OF SMITH COLLEGE PRESENTS:
Black Arts Festival

The theme is "Variations: A Spectrum of Our Cultures." The events for the weekend are:

Thursday, March 3

Tribute to Black Womanhod Award, 8:00 p.m. in Neilson Browsing Room. This year's recipient is Paule Marshall, author of Brown Girl, Brownstones and other works about West Indian life in America. A reception will follow this event.

Friday, March 4

Alumnae Registration, 3-6 p.m. in the Florence M'Wangi Cultural Center.

Concert featuring "Pieces of a Dream" a Philadelphia-based jazz ensemble, 8:00 p.m. in John M. Green Auditorium.

Admission: $4 - Smith students, $6 - non-Smith, $8 - door. Tickets are available in Seelye Basement (Smith) and Faces (Amherst).

Afterparty following Concert in the M'Wangi Cultural Center. Admission discount with concert ticket.

Saturday, March 5

Workshops, 1-3 p.m. in the Florence M'Wangi Cultural Center. Smith Alumnae will present workshops on Business, Communications, Law, Minority Admissions, etc. Open to all Five-College students and professors on a sign-up basis. contact the BSA office at ext. 2153 or 2160 for more information, Smith College.

Alumnae Banquet and Presentation of the Otelia Cromwell Award, 5:30 p.m. in the Alumnae House Banquet Hall. The banquet will also feature a dance sketch by "Celebrations," a poetry reading by Joyce Ingram, and songs by Suzanne Greenidge and Valundra Pollard. Admission: $2.50 R.S.V.P. by March 1st to Mayme Williams (Gardiner House, ext. 2285 or 586-5751).

Semi-formal Cabaret featuring Artie Dixon and "Sunsight", 9 p.m. - 1 p.m. in the Davis Center Ballroom. Also a Fashion Show presentation. Admission: $2.50 in advance, $3 at the door. Available in Seelye Basement (Smith). Afterparty in the M'Wangi Cultural Center. Discount with Cabaret ticket.

Sunday, March 6

Gospel Jubilee with Rev. Sam Gardner of the Abyssinian Baptist Church in New York City, 10:30 a.m. in Helen Hills Chapel.

If you have any further questions, contact Toni Tubman at 546-3837 or Nita Williams at 584-2700, ext. 304. Please help us make this celebration a success.

Antoinette M. Tubman
Chair, Black Arts
Festival Committee
Nita M. Williams
Chair, Black Students' Alliance of Smith College

Photo by Chris Hardin

Odetta joined the Archie Shepp Quartet during Friday night's performance in celebration of Black History Month at Simon's Rock College.

Nummo Staff

Angela Brown	Editor
Brynne Clarke	Lay-Out Editor
Mitra Samimi	Graphics Editor
Tracey Bryant	Production Manager
John Wright	Photo Editor
Keith Johnson	Researcher
Donna Davis	Business Manager

CONTRIBUTORS
Ed Cohen
Chris Hardin
Brenda Ling
Ray Saunderlin
Robert Teixeira

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian

Volume CXII, Issue 82 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003 (413) 545-3500 Wednesday, February 23, 1983

Collegian photo by David Dreher

Pam Gaver, a junior communications studies major, stands next to a plant in Dickinson Hall while both enjoy yesterday's brilliant sunshine.

SGA campaign delayed as officers miss lottery

By KEN BAZINET
and PAUL BASKEN
Collegian Staff

The official start of the Student Government Association (SGA) presidential race was delayed one day after election officials postponed to 10 a.m. today the lottery for ballot positions.

Election coordinator Mindy Ordway, acting chairperson of the Undergraduate Student Senate's Governmental Affairs Committee, said the failure of both her and SGA Treasurer Lisa Potter to attend yesterday's scheduled 10 a.m. drawing necessitated the delay.

The names of presidential candidacies Charlene Allen — Tom Ahern, David Groom, Ronald Lipof — Eric Mann, and Siobhan Powers — Fran Hegeler will at that time be drawn for placement order on the March 7 and 8 ballot, Ordway said. Also, Potter will allocate $250 to each of the four candidacies as their sole source of campaign funding.

In separate interviews with the Collegian, the candidates briefly previewed their campaigns.

Allen-Ahern

Charlene Allen, 20, a junior English major from Newton, and Tom Ahern, 20, a sophomore education major from Brimfield both have chaired committees in the SGA.

Allen, currently of Amherst, is former co-chair of the Student Senate Budgets committee, SGA Affirmative Action officer, and a former member of the Chancellor's Search Committee interview panel. She has also served on several campus-wide committees, and is running as the pair's Trustee candidate.

Ahern, also currently of Amherst, is former chair of the Student Senate Governmental Affairs Committee, Registrar of Registered Student Organizations and a member of the Student Center for Educational Research and Advocacy (SCERA). He has also served on several campus-wide committees.

Allen and Ahern said that during their campaign they will stress the importance of developing a newsletter which will inform the student body of the many facets of UMass politics.

Lipof-Mann

Ronald Lipof, 20, a political science major from Newton, and Eric Mann, 19, a business major from Rosslyn, New York, are sophomores who already hold elected positions within stuent government.

Lipof, the pair's trustee candidate, has been a student senator from John Adams dormitory in the Southwest Residential College since his freshman year, and is a student advocate in the student attorney general's office. Mann, also a student advocate in the office, is co-president of John Adams Upper.

"The most important issue," Mann said in previewing the upcoming campaign, is "student input."

As a result, he and Lipof said they planned to institute systems for increasing the amount of overall student discussion and involvement on issues, through such methods as increased use of phone and mail surveys and referenda.

Groom

David Groom, 21, a junior history major from Swampscott, is making his second consecutive bid for the SGA presidency, this year as a single candidate.

Although having held no student government position, Groom is the only candidate from a previous race, having sought SGA presidential election last March with David Stone.

Groom continues from that campaign his priority theme of revamping the current on-campus meal plan system.

His centerpiece idea of adopting a "point system" board plan, which he said is used by several major universities, is an appeal for fairness to students that he said he stressed throughout his plans.

These included Groom's expressed desire to terminate the University's "assume(d)" contract with Amherst Towing and replace it with a student-run organization sponsoring student scholarships, and his goal to restructure the administration of the profitless Campus Center.

Powers-Hegeler

Siobhan Powers, 20, the trustee candidate, a junior English major from Northboro and Fran Hegeler, 19, a sophomore political science major from Norwell have worked in the SGA and the Southwest Area Government since their freshman year at UMass.

Powers, a resident of Emerson dormitory, is currently chair of the Student Senate Finance Committee, and is a former assistant to the Speaker, former dorm president and has also served on several University-wide committees. Hegeler, a resident of Cance dormitory, is currently co-president of the Southwest Area Government, a member of the Student Senate Finance Committee, and a former member of several University-wide committees.

Powers and Hegeler said the issues they plan to address include establishing a solid General Education proposal, improving the availability of classes which are currently in demand, and implementing a restructured Student Senate.

Referendum proposal would reduce Undergrad Senate

By JOHN O'CONNELL
Collegian Correspondent

Students are collecting signatures to put a referendum on the ballot for the Student Government Association (SGA) spring elections which would reorganize the membership of the Undergraduate Student Senate at the University of Massachusetts.

The referendum, which proposes to "delete the senate in its entirety as of April 20, 1983," and adopt a different structure in its place, must be signed by 25 percent of the SGA membership by noon tomorrow to appear on the SGA ballot, elections coordinator Mindy Ordway said.

The proposal, written by SGA presidential candidates Siobhan Powers and Fran Hegeler, was criticized by SGA President Jim Murphy, who said, "They took and bastardized an idea I had last year."

Powers, who said she wrote the referendum because "students don't think that the senate is working for them," agrees that the proposal is "an idea that people have been tossing around for years."

The referendum proposes that senators be elected by residential areas, defined as, "Southwest, Northeast, Central, Orchard Hill, Sylvan, Greek Area, and Commuter Area," and that "there shall be one senate seat for every three hundred SGA members, and one Third World seat for every sixty Third World SGA members." All full-time undergraduate students are SGA members.

This would result in approximately 60 to 65 regular senate seats, and 20 to 25 Third World senate seats. All senators must be student activities fee-paying undergraduates earning 12 or more credits, and senators must live within their residential areas, according to the proposal. Under the present structure, there are 120 senate seats.

Senators are currently elected from their dorms or by commuter or Greek voters, plus 15 Third World members appointed by the senate's Third World caucus. Commuters and Greeks have one senator for every 250 SGA members in their areas. Each dormitory with a population under 250 has one senator, while dorms with populations over 250 have two senators, and dorms holding over 500 students are represented by three senators.

Students for Government by Referenda, the student group working for the referendum, has collected "about 4,000 signatures with papers still out," according to spokesman Dave McCarthy. The group was told by Mindy Ordway to collect 5,500 signatures "to be safe," because no precise estimate of SGA membership is currently available, McCarthy said.

McCarthy said he thinks the group has "a good chance" of collecting the signatures by tomorrow's noon deadline.

The proposal drew sharp criticism from SGA President Jim Murphy, and Senate Officers Sharon Davies and Lisa Potter said they had problems with it as well.

"It's obvious that they didn't put any thought into it," Murphy said. "It's only three paragraphs to reorganize the entire senate. I tend to think it's more of a campaign ploy than anything else."

Speaker of the Senate Sharon Davies said she has "a lot of very substantial problems," with the proposal.

Davies, who said that it is "only the perspective of a fraction," that the senate is not working effectively, didn't agree with the reduction of senators per constituents, and expressed fear that the new structure would centralize power with unfair results.

Senate Treasurer Lisa Potter said she is "not quite sure that having new officers and a new senate come in at once is a good idea."

McCarthy said reorganization is necessary because, "many dorms aren't getting the representation they need, while other dorms have an abundance of people willing to work in the students' interest who aren't able."

Powers said that Murphy's charge "is ridiculous on its face. It's obvious that it's not a campaign issue because we're bringing it out to referendum, not just talking about it."

Collegian photo by Michael Margolis

A horse standing next to a fence is silhouetted against the sky on the Tillson Farm.

World and National News

Reagan plan's critics silenced by Arafat

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — PLO chief Yasser Arafat, in a victory over hardliners, has convinced the guerrilla movement's political committee to refrain from publicly rejecting President Reagan's Middle East peace plan.

"The Reagan plan is not enough," sources quoted Arafat as telling the Palestinian Nation Council, or parliament, on Monday. "But to turn it down flatly would deprive the PLO of its links with the United States and of the Arab sources of badly needed financial aid."

Arafat's reported reference to "links" with the United States was unclear because both Washington and Israel have refused to talk with the Palestine Liberation Organization until it recognizes the Jewish state.f

PNC spokesman Ahmed Abdel Rahman told a news conference the council plenary would debate a committee-approved recommendation on the Reagan plan. Knowledgeable sources said the recommendation was virtually certain to win acceptance by the whole council.

The development marked a victory for Arafat, who all last week fought PLO hardliners opposed to his willingness to negotiate with Israel. They also refused to accept anything short of an independent Palestinian state.

High Court opposes sobriety test refusers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, noting the "carnage caused by drunk drivers" on the nation's highways, ruled yesterday that refusal to take a sobriety test may be used as evidence of guilt.

In a 7-2 decision, the court said it is not a violation of one's right against self-incrimination to have such a refusal used as evidence in court. The court previously held that states may force suspected drunken drivers to take sobriety tests such as measurement of alcohol content in the blood.

In today's case, Justice Sandra Day O'Connor said, "The situation underlying this case...occurs with tragic frequency on our nation's highways. The carnage caused by drunk drivers is well-documented."

The court overturned a ruling by the South Dakota Supreme Court, which said jurors cannot be told about a driver's refusal to take a Breathalyzer test because it would violate the protection against self-incrimination.

AP Laserphoto

Children of Times Beach residents help express their parents' concern over toxic waste contamination; the EPA moved to resolve the problem yesterday.

EPA to foot relocation bill for Times Beach

EUREKA, Mo. (AP) — The federal government promised yesterday to spend $33.1 million to buy the entire town of Times Beach and move its residents to protect them from dioxin contamination.

Environmental Protection Agency administrator Anne M. Burford told reporters the EPA will pay for the immediate relocation of all the town's residents and businesses, with Missouri footing the remaining 10 percent of the cost.

It is the first time the federal government has ever taken such a step.

"This is the answer to all of our prayers," said Evelyn Zufall, 49, who has raised seven children in the town. "It's what everybody wanted, except the very few who don't realize the dangers ..."

Homeowners are to be paid the prices their homes would have commanded before the dioxin contamination was discovered, and before floodwaters damaged virtually all of the town's 800 homes and businesses. Officials expect to decide within two or three weeks how to determine what the homes' value was.

Dioxin, a chemical byproduct of herbicide production, causes kidney, spleen and liver ailments in laboratory animals. Its effect on humans is unclear.

The chemical was mixed with waste oil and sprayed on streets in Times Beach and other towns to control dust a decade ago. The dioxin came from a plant in Verona, which produced the herbicide Agent Orange during the Vietnam War.

OPEC prepares for first price war battle

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (AP) — The United Arab Emirates declared OPEC's $34 base price dead yesterday and Saudi Arabia vowed to take whatever measures are necessary to protect its oil wealth in the face of a global price war.

The two countries met with fellow Persian Gulf OPEC members Kuwait and Qatar amid reports they were considering slashing the price of their oil as much as $7 a barrel, following a $5.50 cut by OPEC member Nigeria and $3 cuts in North Sea oil by non-OPEC members Britain and Norway.

Qatar's oil minister, Sheik Abdul Aziz bin Khalifa al Thani, said, "For sure there will be a price cut ... a good chance of by more than $4." He made the comment after a three-hour meeting at the home of Saudi Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani.

Yamani said earlier that Iraq and Libya were expected to join the session today, which would decide on lowering prices and on future ties with other members of OPEC.

Yamani declared that the Gulf Arab oil producers were "the principal power within OPEC." He did not specify what steps he envisioned. But possible measures the Saudis could take include cutting production, lowering prices or both.

Digest

By the Associated Press

Welfare cuts made after computer search

BOSTON — The Welfare Department reported yesterday that it has saved taxpayers about $8.8 million to date by closing 1,680 cases as a result of computer searches through recipients' bank accounts.

Harry Shea, the agency's director of finance, said records at 116 banks have been searched and 2,400 "closing notices" have gone topients who were found to have more money in the bank than allowed under the welfare program from which they are collecting.

The 116 banks represent about 30 percent of the state's banks. Shea said the department hopes to run the list of 550,000 recipients and their dependents through computers at the rest of the banks within 90 days.

The closing notices include an appeal form, Shea said, and benefits are continued until the appeal is completed.

"A significant number of people don't appeal," said Shea. "There is no response, and therefore those cases are closed."

AWACS faced with Libyan attack threats

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Libya has threatened to shoot down American AWACS aircraft in Egyptian air space, rejecting Egypt's contention that the spy planes are only on a training mission, a Lebanese newspaper reported today.

The leftist Beirut daily As-Safir quoted an official Libyan announcement as saying "the excuses of Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak and his pretext that the Egyptians will be training on these plans are rejected and will deceive no one."

The Airborne Warning and Control Systems plane were sent to Egypt after U.S. and Egyptian officials said they had detected a movement of Libyan forces that was threatening Sudan. Washington also diverted an aircraft carrier to off the Libyan coast.

Toxic waste contract OK'd amid charges

WASHINGTON — The Environmental Protection Agency sanctioned the award of a $7.7 million contract for toxic waste cleanup to a company accused of trying to cover up its own pollution problems. The company was represented by a former consultant to the EPA's administrator.

The contract to Chemical Waste Management Inc. has come under scrutiny by Congress.

Chemical Waste, of Oak Brook, Ill., is represented by Denver lawyer James Sanderson, who for 15 months was a paid, part-time consultant to EPA Administrator Anne Gorsuch — Anne Burford since her weekend marriage. Sanderson removed himself from consideration for the No. 3 job at the EPA after he was accused of improperly aiding another client while working for the agency. The FBI is investigating.

British water strike settled, sewers flow

LONDON — Management and union negotiators reached agreement yesterday on a new wage package that should end Britain's first-ever national water and sewer strike, a mediator announced.

The walkout, which began nearly five weeks ago, has left about 91,000 homes and businesses without direct water supply and forced 8.25 million Britons to boil their drinking water. Officials of the three unions representing Britain's 29,000 water and sewer workers said the employees would be asked to return to work yesterday.

Springfield defends raw sewage plan

ENFIELD, Conn. — The Springfield, Mass., public works director yesterday defended his city's plan to dump raw sewage into the Connecticut River as a necessary part of a project contributing to longterm improvement in water quality.

John J. Lyons told a meeting of about two dozen federal, Massachusetts, Connecticut and municipal officials that temporary dumping of untreated sewage appears to be the most reasonable solution to Springfield's problem.

His staff's calculations conclude that the sewage would be safely broken down in the river water and pose no public health hazard, he said.

Springfield, the most populous city on the 409-mile Connecticut River, wants to shut down a 4-foot diameter interceptor sewage pipe and a pumping station for up to two weeks next month and another two weeks in November so it can clean out and repair the pipe and modernize the pumping station.

Byrne leads in race for Chicago mayoralty

CHICAGO — Incumbent Mayor Jane M. Byrne jumped to a 19,200 lead over Richard M. Daley yesterday with nearly 650,000 votes counted in Chicago's three-way Democratic primary — an election marred by charges of vote fraud.

U.S. marshals were ordered to impound all ballots after they were counted for safekeeping and possible use as evidence in criminal prosecutions.

The primary pitted Mrs. Byrne against Daley, the Cook county state's attorney and eldest son of the late mayor who ruled the city for 21 years, and U.S. Rep. Harold Washington, whose crusade-like campaign made him the first black given a serious chance of winning the powerful post.

With 1,620 of 2,914 precincts counted, Mrs. Byrne had 225,833 votes, or 34.8 percent; Daley had 206,609 votes, or 31.8 percent; and Washington had 185,840 votes, or 28.6 percent. The remainder was divided among minor candidates.

Former state Rep. Bernard Epton was unopposed in the Republican primary, and will face the Democratic nominee April 12. A Republican hasn't won in half a century.

Today's Staff

Night Editor — Bill Wall
Copy Editor — Mike Mahoney
Layout Technician — Susan Bankert
Photo Technician — Jim Powers
Composition — Nancy Gallo, Andrea Repass Jen Winslow
Doug Chapman, Will Hopkins, Laura Shanahan, Adrianne Dufour, Laurie Frank Sheryl Silver, Terri Cooper, Marge Hochman, Gail Tanzer, Dave Rath

Subscription Rates

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday excluding vacations, exam periods, or holidays. Subscriptions are available for $18 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Massachusetts. Postmaster: Send address changes to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003.

Photo by Nick Moudios

Robert Kilgo, a junior majoring in environmental chemistry, takes advantage of yesterday's unseasonably warm weather by reading shirtless in the empty reflecting pool near the Fine Arts Center.

Belchertown man convicted on charge of raping student

By LAURIE FISHER
Collegian Staff

A Belchertown man was convicted last Thursday for the rape, kidnapping and beating of a 19-year-old Hampshire College student last April.

Robert L. Manning, 27, of 185 Metacomet St., was convicted by a jury in Northampton Superior Court on four counts of rape, one count of kidnapping and one count of beating the woman with a plastic pipe.

Under cross examination by District Attorney W. Michael Ryan, Manning said that he and his older brother Lawrence had discussed finding a woman to rape before stopping at the Hampshire College campus, where they asked a woman for directions. Returning a few minutes later, they asked the woman to write the directions for them, and then forced the woman into the van, Manning said.

Lawrence Manning, who faces charges similar to those of his brother, has been declared incompetent to stand trial, and is undergoing counseling at Bridgewater State Hospital.

According to the woman's testimony, after she was repeatedly raped by the brothers and photographed several times, they returned to the campus where they collected her belongings, including her books and sandals.

They then drove to woods in South Hadley where what to do with the woman was discussed, Robert Manning said. She was released near the college campus after she convinced the brothers she would not report the incident to the authorities, according to her testimony.

Robert Manning said of his brother, "He had no intentions of getting caught and that the best way of getting rid of the evidence was to just kill and bury her."

See Europe and the world via International Programs

By ELLEN M. RYDER
Collegian Staff

Those who yearn to visit Shakespeare's London or learn about Japanese culture in Tokyo will discover that such opportunities are offered by the International Programs Office at the University of Massachusetts.

The International Programs Office, located in the Whitmore Administration Building, offers a wealth of information about study abroad, financial aid, academic credit and related matters. Informational meetings are held during the year, and staff members offer advice on program selection and other procedures.

"There's more interest every year," said Dr. Barbara Burn, director of International Programs. "Our objective is to give UMass students the opportunity to study abroad, and make the experience...as positive as possible."

Schools participating in the UMass Overseas Study programs include those in China, Japan, Taiwan, Australia, Canada, Great Britain, Ireland, Denmark, Finalnd, France, Germany, Sweden, and Switzerland.

The International Student Exchange Program (ISEP) accepts applications for worldwide universities not sponsored by UMass.

Burn said between 400 and 500 students have been sent abroad to study this year. Currently more than 30 UMass programs participate in international exchange.

"Western Europe is the most popular area of exchange," said Burn, who had directed IPO for thirteen years.

On the other end of the exchange, UMass receives about 1000 foreign students from 90 countries. Burn described the majority of these students as being "extremely motivated, and having learned a lot about the United States."

"According to IPO policy, eligibility to participate in the international exchange program varies from program to program, but in all, good academic standing is a must. Time spans of study abroad vary from summer and intersession programs to semester and year-long stays. Financial aid may be applied for to go toward the cost of overseas study.

Literature available at IPO list the requirements and special areas of study of each university.

Increasing attention is being paid to the needs of the handicapped by Great Britain, the United States, and most of Western Europe. Opportunities concerning the exchange program as accessible to the handicapped is available at IPO.

Streetlight request tops agenda for Selectmen

By E.L. BIRK
Collegian Staff

Street lights and parking meters were the high points of last night's Amherst Board of Selectmen's meeting.

Approximately 10 disgruntled residents, mostly from Red Gate Lane, approached the board requesting that a streetlight removed from their street more than 10 years ago be replaced. Gerald P. Brophy spoke for the group from a prepared statement.

"The present lighting on this portion of Red Gate Lane is woefully inadequate," he said. "The situation is particularly aggravated when there is foliage on the trees.

"Because of the inadequate lighting, this stretch of Red Gate Lane has been turned into a mini 'Combat Zone.' Discarded beer cans, wine and whiskey bottles and contraceptives often litter the roadside. The Brophy property has been vandalized by racing automobiles invading the lawn and 'spinning out'. These sessions are generally terminated by roaring engines, squealing tires and burning rubber. We believe this deplorable condition would be greatly relieved by the installation of a street light," Brophy said.

The group voiced their concerns during a review of the department of public works proposed 1984 fiscal year budget. Stanley Ziomek, director of the department of public works responded to Brophy's statement.

"The public works department is not overly conservative to putting up lights if the need is there," he said. "We are guided by your (selectmen's) policy. If we establish a policy, the demand for lighting will undoubtedly increase and if these are supported through the tax base maybe we should provide them."

Board Chairwoman Edith Wilkinson denied the group's request saying, "If we grant one or two instances there is no way we could refuse granting other requests."

In other budgetary action, Ziomek told the board the last of the one-cent parking meters in town will be done away with this year. The meters are located primarily on Main and Amity streets and will be replaced, at a cost of $100 each, with new meters, which will cost 10 cent to use, Ziomek said.

Ziomek could not specify off the top of his head the number of meters to be replaced.

Writing Program gets director's good review

By PAUL DESMOND
Collegian Correspondent

The newly-implanted Writing Program is working "remarkably well" in its first year, Charles Moran, director of the program, said.

Moran said he hopes the new program will stress the importance of writing not only in the first year, as the old Rhetoric Program did, but throughout all four years.

"This program we've set up has focused on writing exclusively," he said. "We hope to incorporate more writing into many courses that are already in existence."

The new program, which began in September, consists of a freshman course in College Writing designed to prepare students for the type of writing that will be required of them at UMass and later in their lives, Moran said. That will be reinforced in the junior year by a writing course given within the student's major.

Moran was satisfied with the new program so far.

"I think it's going remarkably well for a program in its first year," he said.

"It seems to be the case that people aren't writing any more (than they used to) and may be writing less," Moran said. "It feels as if writing is not terribly popular outside the university context."

The new Writing Program is designed to help change that feeling, he said.

Although details of the junior year aspect of the program are still being worked out, Moran said it will be complete by fall of 1984 when this year's freshman become juniors.

Moran explained that each academic department will be responsible for deciding how to incorporate the writing requirements into its program. Each department's proposal will then be subject to possible change and final approval by the Faculty Senate. Proposals are due in early April.

Through the new specialized junior year requirement, "teachers will be able to introduce students to the special conventions of writing in that particular area," Moran said.

For example, the engineering department may elect to stress technical writing to juniors in that department since that is the type of writing they will most often be involved with.

"The function of writing in these third year courses will be to enhance and reinforce the subject being studied, not to teach grammar and spelling at the expense of that subject. Instructors will assist students primarily in formulating effective arguments and organization for a specific topic in a particular discipline," according to a Faculty Senate report on the Writing Program.

Although the junior year program is still being developed, the freshman program is under way.

Entering freshmen will take the Writing Program Placement Test to determine if they should register for College Writing, the required freshman course, or Basic Writing, for students requiring extra writing practice. Students may also earn an exemption from the Freshman Writing Requirement without credit.

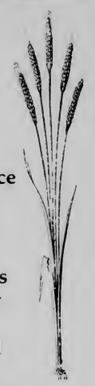
For 1982-83, students may be exempt from the Freshman Writing Requirement on the basis of SAT Verbal Aptitude or English Achievement Tests. Thereafter, exemptions will only be possible through the Placement Test or the English Advanced Placement Examination. No student will be exempt from the junior year writing requirement.

Photo by Chr s Jungmann

One anonymous child leans back and relaxes as his companion does the heavy duty pulling along the walkway near the Campus Center recently.

SOUTHERN HOME COOKIN'

In conjunction with the scheduled events of Black History Month, the Bluewall Cafeteria presents a traditional luncheon with the "down-home" flavor of Southern cuisine. While you enjoy your meal, a talented jazz duo will provide musical entertainment.



MENU

Black-eyed Peas and Rice
Collard Greens
Potato Salads
Spicy Fried Chicken
Smothered Pork Chops
With Onions, Peppers/Gravy
Corn Bread
Sweet Potato Custard

TODAY

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 23
BLUEWALL CAFETERIA
11:30 am to 1:30 pm

Newslines...

Registrar's, Records, Transcript offices closed for five Thursdays

Due to a backlog in Add/Drop, grade and transcript processing, the Registrar's, Records and Transcript Offices will be closed this Thursday and on the following Thursdays: March 3, 10, 17 and 24. Any questions should be directed to Marion Markwell at the Registrar's office.

Northampton residents sought for new Lesbian and Gay task force

A Lesbian and Gay task force is being set up in Northampton to work with the city's government. The task force will be designed to form grievance procedures with city officials and the policy, form a course of action against local harasssment and establish an anti-discrimination ordinance to city law. Any gay and lesbian Northampton residents interested in working on the task force should contact the Gay and Lesbian Activists, P.O. Box 1084, Northampton, MA 01060 by Friday, or call 773-2253. Calls will be kept in strict confidence.

Gays and Lesbians of color and of different age groups are encourage to apply, but volunteers must be Northampton residents.

HRTA Career Day scheduled all day tomorrow in Campus Center

The Eighth Annual Career Day of the Department of Hotel, Restaurant and Travel Administration at the University of Massachusetts is scheduled for tomorrow from 8:30 a.m. - 4:40 p.m. in the Campus Center Auditorium; and is open free of charge to all interested in the hospitality industry. The career day will feature formal and informal discussions and presentations with representatives from various companies in the hospitality industry. The presentations will focus on career opportunities and future trends in the industry.

Dialogue Series asks speakers, "What is an Educated Person?"

"What is an Educated Person?" is the topic of the fourth event in the Dialogue Series sponsored by the Institute for Advanced Study in the Humanities. This free event is scheduled for today at 8 p.m. in room 120 in the School of Management (formerly the School of Business Administration). The speakers for the event will be professor Joyce Berkman, department of history and Professor James Douglas, from the department of chemical engineering.

STUDENTS SAVE 40%
SUBSCRIBE BY
4:00 PM, FEBRUARY 25!

ASHES
March 3-5, 9-12 at 8:00 pm
David Rudkin's drama of a young couple whose yearning for a child becomes an obsession as the odds turn more and more against them is a work of stunning power — frank, compassionate, laced with ironic humor.

THE COMEDY OF ERRORS
April 7-9, 13-16 at 8:00 pm
This is not your typical Shakespearean play. It isn't romantic and lyrical. It is pure farce, fast and bawdy, peopled with acrobats, jugglers, musicians, and hookers. Think you hate Shakespeare? You'll love THE COMEDY OF ERRORS.

COMPANY
May 5-7, 11-14 at 8:00 pm
This brilliant, sophisticated musical by Stephen Sondheim manages to be very funny about the subject of marriage by taking it very seriously. Set to music that reflects the pulse of Manhattan life, COMPANY is about growing up and becoming human in our times.

THE RAND THEATER
FINE ARTS CENTER
Phone: 545-3511

SUBSCRIBE NOW TO SPRING 1983 AT THE RAND THEATER

Please clip and mail to: Rand Theater Box Office, Fine Arts Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003

NAME
STREET CITY STATE ZIP
PHONE (area) (evenings)

I wish to order Rand Theater subscriptions at $7.50* each and/or student/senior citizen tickets at $4.50* each for the following dates (please circle one date for each production)

April 1 4 5 9 10 11 12
7 8 9 13 14 15 16
5 6 7 12 13 14

GALA OPENING NIGHT!
March 3 April 7 May 5
You are invited to meet the cast at a reception after the show

*$4.50 subscription tickets available to students and senior citizens only. Student ID required. Subscription tickets available for Thursday, Friday and Saturday performances only. Subscription tickets available for Thursday, Friday and Saturday performances only. Subscription tickets available for Thursday, Friday and Saturday performances only

AN IMPORTANT ADDITION TO YOUR UNIFORM

The insignia of an Air Force nurse can mean a lot to you and your future. It shows that you're part of the Air Force Nurse Corps. A member of one of the most efficient health care teams in the world. It signifies you are an Air Force officer with the responsibility and prestige of a leadership position. It indicates you're on the track toward good pay and almost unlimited educational opportunities. If you're a nursing professional or about to complete your nursing education, why not consider Air Force nursing as part of YOUR future? From the day you're commissioned, you'll receive the pay and advantages of an Air Force officer. Consider your uniform and our future. Then make it yours.

AIR FORCE NURSING. A GREAT WAY OF LIFE.

For More Details Call Sandy Price
(203) 229-9641
Freshmen & Sophmores Call Capt. Pinkell
(413) 545-2137

AIR FORCE
A great way of life

COME PARTY: UMASS vs MS at S.U.B.

Beer & Wine BAR
— Proper I.D. required

All 18 and over welcome to attend

LIVE on WMUA Radio — D.J. Jeff Taylor

FRIDAY NITE — FEB 25 from 9:PM-5:AM!

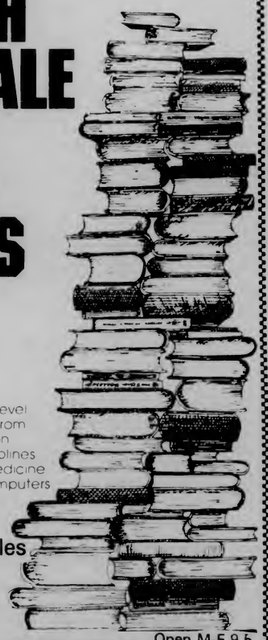
— Sponsored by the MS Dance Marathon Committee

SCI-TECH BOOK SALE

65-90% SAVINGS OFF ORIGINAL PUBLISHED PRICES

Come pick up a stack of high-level scientific and technical books from leading publishers. Our selection ranges through numerous disciplines including physics, chemistry, medicine mathematics, engineering, computers and more. Your savings range from a tremendous 65% to an unbelievable 90%.

On Special Sale Tables located in the Trade Book Dept.



UNIVERSITY STORE

Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4
Located in the Campus Center

The Counseling & Career Development Office will be offering the following workshops throughout the semester:

Workshop	Dates	Rm.	Date	Rm
Stress Management Relaxation	2/23	308	4/27	308
	3/8	308	5/3	308
	3/30	308	5/10	308
	4/12	308
Study Skills	3/1	322
	3/16	322
	4/5	308
	4/20	322
Time Management & Procrasination	3/2	322	4/19	308
	3/15	322	5/4	322
	4/6	322
Choosing a major part I	3/30	322
	4/5	322
Choosing a Major Part II	3/8	322
	4/13	322
	4/19	322
Test Anxiety	3/9	322	4/26	322
	3/29	322	5/11	322
	4/13	308

Counseling & Career Development Service
Workshop Schedule
4-6 PM Tues & Wed.
Berkshire House (3rd floor)
For further info call 545-0333

EDITORIAL/OPINION

'NOT ON MY TREE, YOU'RE NOT!'

Is big labor overly pro-defense?

Glen & Shearer

Many a trade group, think tank and private foundation have released alternatives to the Reagan defense budget in recent days, outlining either possible cuts or ways to improve U.S. military readiness at a more moderate pace.

Not among these, however, is the venerable AFL-CIO. For most of the last year, the labor giant has been mum about defense, and it will have little to add at its winter meeting in Florida next week.

Big labor's taciturnity may not surprise Americans familiar with the AFL-CIO's pro-defense tradition. The federation has always favored military expenditures as a stimulus to job creation, even to the point that it supports the idea of a "defense surtax" on both individuals and corporations.

A federation committee's interim report on military expenditures is the only defense-related item on the agenda, and its contents are based primarily on testimony from Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, several of his predecessors and the Joint Chiefs. (Outspoken Pentagon critics who asked to address the group were turned down; perhaps the panel's chairman, Iron Workers president John Lyons, has been too busy as a member of President Reagan's MX resurrection commission.)

Yet labor leaders admit that their pragmatism has been increasingly difficult to justify. As AFL-CIO spokesman Rex Hardesty says, "It's hard to keep our constituency in line on defense. You can't sustain support for national security when it's being gouged out of people's hides." According to Business Week, popular support for increased military spending has fallen from 71 to 17 percent of Americans since 1980.

Indeed, after last week's analysis by the Lansing, Mich.-based Employment Research Associates revealing that the $238 billion 1984 military budget will mean a net loss of 2.2 million jobs (most notably in textile and motor vehicle manufacturing), union members don't need Republican senators or the Heritage Foundation to tell them that cuts are in order.

While some AFL-CIO member unions, such as the Machinists, have long been outspoken about the injurious effect of defense spending, they have an uphill battle ahead of them. The United Auto Workers, for example, completed a $300,000 federal study last October on conversion of unemployed autoworkers to employable weapons makers. Such thinking may prove a touchstone for Democratic presidential contenders who hope to garner the AFL-CIO's endorsement in December. But who knows? Such an attitude could even make Ronald Reagan seem palatable as labor's man.

Mazwell Glen and Cody Shearer are syndicated columnists

State's poverty worse than ever

Josh Meyer

Poverty in Massachusetts is growing at an alarming rate, and is higher now than at any time in the last twenty years. This is a direct result of the economic policies of the Reagan administration.

The "New Federalism" of the 1980's, otherwise known as "Reaganomics" has, by principle, neglected its responsibility toward its citizens. The concept of the state providing "insurances" such as welfare, disability benefits, social security, and other aspects of the social Safety Net has been discarded in favor of a laissez-faire attitude in which virtually no assistance is given, and everyone must fend for themselves.

The New Federalism initiative has had serious implications and effects already. It is obvious that this is what the Reagan administration had in mind when they started their drive toward economic prosperity and world leadership.

In the words of the illustrious director of the Office of Management and Budget David Stockman, "I don't think people are entitled to services. I don't believe that there is any entitlement, any basic rights to legal services or any other kind of services . . . I don't accept that equality is a moral principle."

That any administration as ignorant as the one presently "running" this country could collectively promote this philosophy is a travesty of our supposed principles of democracy. Its merits could be challenged and proven invalid just by looking at the statistics. When Reagan took office, he vowed to stimulate the economy by increasing productivity. This justified actions on his part to give massive tax-breaks to the upper and middle classes, and to the corporate state. By encouraging increased productivity, this would promote (along with deregulation measures designed to increase the cost-effectiveness and profit margin of the corporations), the GNP would rise, stagflation would diminish, and the increased wealth would "trickle down" to the poorer sectors of the population. This has obviously not happened, in fact, there's no way it possibly could.

Right now, more people are living below the poverty line than at any time since the early 1960's. There has been an increase of 28 percent in the last ten years. Right now, one in ten citizens of Massachusetts, or one-half million people are living below the poverty line. While no geographic area is immune, areas such as Fall River, Springfield-Chicopee-Holyoke have poverty levels as high as 12 percent.

The poverty level itself is an absurdly low figure of $9,287 for a family of four. When those at 125 percent of this, or the "near-poor" is included, the number of people that are poverty-stricken in the state jumps to one in seven. The median income of Black, Hispanic and female-headed households is only slightly above the poverty level. However, everyone in the state is affected equally, as evidenced by the fact that nine of every eleven poor people are white.

The most obvious targets of this federal attack are indeed women, minorities, the elderly and the young. One of every four Black citizens is officially poor, and a great majority of the rest are "near-poor." Poverty defines the social reality of one in three persons of Hispanic origin. In fact, half of all Hispanic families live on less than $10,000 even though four-and five-children families are the norm.

Another trend that has been occurring is the importance of family composition in determining class status. Family compostion has joined race as the most powerful indicator of poverty. More of the poor are women, and more women are poor. Four of every seven poor families are headed by females. More than 97 percent of these families have children under 18 years of age. As budget cuts take effect, low-income working families are being cut off from AFDC benefits, Medicaid, food stamps, child nutrition programs, day-care subsidies, and housing assistance. It is estimated that by the year 2000, female headed households and their children are expected to compromise almost all of the poor.

Editor's Note: Tomorrow we will attempt to project where these trends will take the citizens of the state in coming years, particularly the poor. Some possible solutions to the problem of increasing poverty will be discussed as well.

Josh Meyer is a Collegian columnist

Letters

Black History Month ignored

To the Editor:

I am lodging a formal complaint against the Collegian staff for their lackadaisical reporting efforts concerning Black History Month.

It may be argued that every Monday a small section of the Collegian is devoted to Black and Third World Affairs. I laud this opportunity of self-expression. However, is "Black Affairs" where the Collegian's obligation concerning black events end; or should the Collegian also take it upon themselves to offer adequate coverage of black events?

If the former be the case, then the Collegian is guilty by direct implication of supporting the white majority at the expense of the Black minority; but if the latter is true, then where is the proof of the pudding? The Black History Month Planning Committee has scheduled a variety of events, but where are the articles covering these happenings?

What I am advocating is a concertive effort from the Collegian staff to show its support of Black affairs with informative, intelligent articles, instead of giving incidental sentences (i.e. J.B. Hutto in "Live Wire") to something which certainly deserves much more attention. Black History Month is not over, so there is a chance to redeem yourselves.

Nathan Shafner
Northampton

Outreach effort discussed

To the Editor:

I appreciate the publicity that the Collegian is doing on the General Education issue. I'm upset, though, about the way the discussion at the Student Senate meeting was reported last week ("Senate Approves General Education Plan," February 10), because I feel it gives students a misleading picture of what went on that night. It is important to me that students know that the Senate meeting was a discussion of the General Education Proposal. The Collegian article only covered one speech, and didn't mention that people asked questions about the Proposal for almost an hour.

Of course part of the discussion was a platform for a speech, but the General Education presentation to the Senate was an outreach effort, and by not giving adequate coverage to the questions and debate that took place at that meeting, the Collegian gave only a partial view of that effort.

Ellen Nylen
SCERA

A piece of the American dream

To the Editor:

Today's problems are social problems. Poverty, racism, unemployment; these are the issues that need the government's and the people's attention now. I urge you, students and faculty and political office-holders to turn ears and eyes to witness the inequities in our society today. Eleven percent of the United States population is living at or below the national poverty level and this figure will grow because of cutbacks in unemployment benefits and a money-starved welfare system which, incidentally, is the worst of all federal welfare systems in developed countries in the world today.

Although there are a few citizens receiving unneeded benefits, federal aid receipients largely are more than deserving of the money they receive. Freeloaders are the infrequent exception; worthy, hungry, cold, and isolated children and elderly are the norm. Workfare can't be the answer. How can the handicapped or the elderly or children or mothers with dependent children find employment? Less than two percent of welfare recipients are able-bodied males, and of those, many have mental disorders.

Racial and sexual discrimination is another major obstacle in America's path to equality and justice for all. Aside from being a very costly problem (the U.S. government spends millions of dollars a year in civil rights cases as a result of discrimination) it is also an intolerable waste of American resources. Surely, most would agree that an educated minority would help to make a better society. And that an educated minority member would become a tax payer instead of a welfare recipient in the future. These victims of discrimination can be assets to our society. They can be very valuable.

Let every American get a piece of the American dream!

Andrea E. Uviedo Jr.
Central

Letters Policy

All letters must be signed and include the writer's address and telephone number, which will not be published. Please type double spaced at 67 characters per line. Due to space limitations and the volume of mail, we regret we are unable to acknowledge unpublished letters. All letters are subject to editing for clarity and length.

Tomorrow evening

NURSING ALUMNI CAREER NIGHT

Several Alumni will speak about their past and current experiences in Nursing.

Where?

Campus Center 101

When?

8 pm - 9:30 pm

ALL ARE WELCOME

(students - faculty - others)

Sponsors:
The Division of Nursing
University Placement Service
University Alumni Office

For Additional Information call the Division of Nursing at 545-0405

ATTENTION SENIORS

DO YOU WANT TO BE IN PICTURES?
THE INDEX
(YEARBOOK)
SENIOR PORTRAIT PROGRAM IS STARTING SOON!

APPOINTMENTS will BE TAKEN
TUES FEB 22 -FRI FEB 25
by calling 545-2874 OR
by stopping by CC RM 103.

We're Back!

IMPACT®

3 Days Only

presents

LASER PHOTO ART

Poster Size
20"x 24"
4.00 each
3 for 10.00

Feb. 23, 24, & 25

Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4
Located in the Campus Center

In Front of the

UNIVERSITY STORE

♣ CONTRACT BRIDGE? ♢
Minimum Cost, Maximum Enjoyment
Many Area Games
Each Week for Beginners
through Experts
549-5084, 584-4261, 1-538-7830
ACBL sanctioned
♡ ♠

LOSE 20 POUNDS IN TWO WEEKS!

Famous U.S. Women's Alpine Ski Team Diet

During the non-snow off season the U.S. Women's Alpine Ski Team members used the "Ski Team" diet to lose 20 pounds in two weeks. That's right – 20 pounds in 14 days! The basis of the diet is chemical food action and was devised by a famous Colorado physician especially for the U.S. Ski Team. Normal energy is maintained (very important) while reducing. You keep "full" – no starvation – because the diet is designed that way. It's a diet that is easy to follow whether you work, travel or stay at home.

This is, honestly, a fantastically successful diet. If it weren't, the U.S. Women's Ski Team wouldn't be permitted to use it! Right? So, give yourself the same break the U.S. Ski Team gets. Lose weight the scientific, proven way. Even if you've tried all the other diets, you owe it to yourself to try the U.S. Women's Ski Team Diet. That is, if you really do want to lose 20 pounds in two weeks. Order today. Tear this out as a reminder.

Send only $3.00 ($3.25 for Rush Service) – cash is O.K. – to Ski Slim, P.O. Box 1372, Morro Bay, CA 93442

Don't order unless you expect to lose 20 pounds in two weeks! Because that's what the Ski Team Diet will do.

*1982

HERPES SUPPORT GROUP

The emotional stress of dealing with herpes can be more difficult to cope with than the actual virus. If you have herpes and are interested in talking to others who share similar concerns, this group is open to you. The group will be co-facilitated by two staff members from the University Health Services and is limited to students of UMass, Amherst, and Hampshire colleges. It will begin early in the semester and is limited to 15 people. For more information, call the Health Education Office at 549-2671, Ext. 181 and ask for Debbie.

DVP presents

Vincent Price
in a one man performance

Monday, March 7
8 pm at the F.A.C.

$2. 5 college students
$4. Senior Citizens
$5. General Public

Tickets on sale now at F.A.C. Box Office
sponsored by University Arts Council
and Distinguished Visitors Program

TONIGHT
DYNASTY
DRINK SPECIALS 9-11

Try the "Carrington Cooler," "Alexis' Revenge", or the "Frosty Fallon" ...each 1.50

TOP of the CAMPUS
RESTAURANT & LOUNGE
11th Floor • Campus Center • UMass

Hypercurricula

SPECTRUM MAGAZINE PRODUCTION STAFF — Layout and Paste-up training sessions today and tomorrow; attend one or both. Those members unable to attend please contact Michele at C.C. 104. Newcomers welcome. 5 to 7 p.m. Student Union 423.

UMASS PEACEMAKERS MEETING — Study, action and planning around disarmament issues. New participants welcome. 6 p.m. Campus Center.

CAMPUS CRUSADE FOR CHRIST — Film: Josh McDowell's "What's Up Josh?" He proves the resurrection is a historical fact. Josh has spoken to millions of students in over 50 countries. 6:30 p.m. SBA 109.

BICYCLE COOP MEETING — There will be a general meeting to discuss procedure and completion of requirements for opening. All are welcome. See Bulletin Board for place. 6:30 p.m.

INVESTMENT CLUB MEETING — Richard Wilson from Merrill Lynch will give an introduction to the stock market. This will be an informal question and answer session. New members welcome. 7 p.m. SBA Room 107.

SEXUAL DISEASES — This is the second of a six-part series on sexuality and health for third world women. All are invited to attend. 7 p.m. CCEBMS, New Africa House.

WOMEN'S SPIRITUALITY GROUP — A supportive group in which women can challenge traditional ways of experiencing spirituality and grow toward a new understanding of ourselves. 7 p.m., 428 Student Union.

FREE FILM: THE DYBBUK — The Dybbuk is the unusual story of a Jewish exorcism in an Eastern European community. This version was made in Israel. Everyone is welcome to attend. 7:30 p.m. Thompson 102.

ISRAELI FOLK DANCING — Join UMass Hillel for another wonderful week of dancing. This event is open to everyone at any level of experience. 7:30 p.m. beginners, 8:30 all others. Commonwealth Room, Student Union.

MIME PERFORMANCE WITH JODY SCALISE — Free. All are welcome. 8 p.m. Field Main Lounge.

INTERNSHIP REPRESENTATIVES AT THE CC CONCOURSE — Representatives from the Office of Internships will be available to speak with students on the CC Concourse. Stop by our table and have all your questions about internships answered. 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

AMHERST FIRE DEPT. STUDENT FORCE — Accepting applications to join the force for next year. Find out about this municipal fire and ambulance service at their table in the Campus Center Concourse.

BROWN BAG THEOLOGY — "Does Gandhi have anything to teach us?" is the topic of discussion led by Rev. Phil Ward. All are welcome. 12:15 to 1:15 p.m. 428 Student Union.

SCHOOL FOR FIELD STUDIES REPRESENTATIVE ON CAMPUS — A representative from the School for Field Studies, which offers unique field expeditions during the summer, will be available to speak with students on the Campus Center Concourse from 1 to 5 p.m.

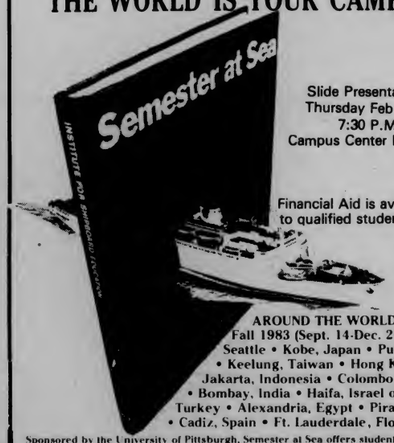
UNA TERTULIA ESPANOLA Y PORTUGUESA — Would you like to experience "fiesta" — the Spanish way? Would you like to increase your Spanish-speaking skills as well as your knowledge of Hispanidad? Come "charlar" with other interested students and teachers. 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. Herter Hall 4th floor lobby.

OLDER STUDENTS 25 PLUS CLUB SOCIAL — 25 Plus Club Survival Strategy Forum. No speakers. Check out our relaxation techniques. Open to all older students. For info tel. 545-2684. 4 p.m. Faculty Club.

THE CURRENT ECONOMIC SITUATION IN VIETNAM — Vietnamese historian, Ngo Linh Long, will be speaking about the situation in Vietnam 10 years after the peace treaty was signed. He recently visited Vietnam. 4 p.m., Campus Center 803.

GAY COUNSELING COLLECTIVE OPEN HOUSE — Lesbian and Gay Men's Counseling Collective sponsors an Open House. Meet collective members and learn about our services. Everyone is welcome. 4 to 8 p.m. 101 Campus Center.

THE WORLD IS YOUR CAMPUS



Slide Presentation
Thursday Feb. 17
7:30 P.M.
Campus Center Room 162

Financial Aid is available to qualified students

AROUND THE WORLD:
Fall 1983 (Sept. 14-Dec. 23)
Seattle • Kobe, Japan • Pusan, Korea • Keelung, Taiwan • Hong Kong • Jakarta, Indonesia • Colombo, Sri Lanka • Bombay, India • Haifa, Israel or Istanbul, Turkey • Alexandria, Egypt • Piraeus, Greece • Cadiz, Spain • Ft. Lauderdale, Florida

Sponsored by the University of Pittsburgh, Semester at Sea offers students a superior full semester academic program and supporting field experiences. This one semester experience is available to qualified students from all accredited colleges and universities.
More than 60 voyage related university courses. Faculty drawn from the University of Pittsburgh and other leading universities, augmented by visiting area experts.
Optional tours, including special tours into the People's Republic of China, available.
Semester at Sea admits students without regard to color, race or creed. The S.S. Universe is fully air-conditioned, 18,000 tons, registered in Liberia and built in America.
For a free color brochure, write: Semester at Sea, UCIS, University of Pittsburgh, Forbes Quadrangle, Pittsburgh, PA 15260, or call toll free (800) 854-0195 (in California call (714) 771-6590).

Arts

Videodrome is fuzzy

VIDEODROME
Directed by David Cronenberg
Mountain Farms Mall

By ANDREW GORDON
Collegian Staff

David Cronenberg's new film, Videodrome, began production more than two years ago and has had its release date changed about a dozen times since. All through pre and post production, the film was veiled in secrecy; it promised to be different from anything anyone might expect. In my case they were right; I expected a good movie.

Let me clarify this. Videodrome may not be a good movie, but it can't be discounted for that reason. The film achieves a lot. It creates some interesting characters and then places them into a bizarre world of the near future which is both fascinating and disturbing.

It is this world where Videodrome's strength lies. Writer/director Cronenberg's conception of where the power of cable and video could lead is frightening and in its own way, quite possible. Cronenberg draws us into this world, as he does his main character, Max Renn. Renn, played by James Woods, is the owner of a sleazy cable station, which pirates soft-core broadcasts and plays them over the air. Soon he begins picking up transmissions of a hard-core violence program called Viedodrome. This program, he soon learns, features violence that is real (snuff T.V.) and that it is causing him to experience some strange hallucinations.

The hallucination sequences are fantastic. Most of them involve Nicki Brand (Debbie Harry), a pop psychologist Max meets on a talk show. After these dream sequences, however, the film goes downhill fast. This is because we lose our reference point. Throughout the first half hour or so, Max is as astonished and surprised by the goings on as we are. When video tapes start breathing and television sets pulsate and talk to him, he gasps and stares. But then the film hits a point where Max stops questioning what's happening; he understands what's happening — but we don't. We can no longer relate to him.

As if for a loss of how to maintain everything he has created, Cronenberg introduces new characters and cultivates some half-baked detective type story with compliated twists and more shootouts than Red River. What's worse, he begins taking it all seriously.

James Wood and Deborah Harry star in Videodrome.

This is not an uncommon occurrence. Ken Russell's Altered States got silly fast; Looker, also about future video practices, didn't make good use of its own imagination, and Scanners, Cronenberg's last film, resorted to chase scenes and typical action instead of playing out its more interesting them of mind control.

The gore (what would a David Cronenberg film be without gore?) is gory all right, but it is unnecessary and gratuitous in this picture. Make-up effects artist Rick Baker does have some great T.V.set effects and puts an opening in Woods' stomach that defies explanation.

Oh yeah, and Debbie Harry can't act.

Beatitude is a blessing

BEATITUDE (Geffen)
Ric Ocasek

By TOM VINCENT
Collegian Correspondent

When I first listened to Ric Ocasek's debut solo album I couldn't help but unconsciously compare it to some of his earlier works with the Cars. It does have a lot of the familiar Cars hooks filtered through the album, and some of the themes could easily be interchangible, but after I gave it some time to digest a bit I found myself enjoying the fresh mature attitude (or "Beatitude") that Ocasek has shown on this new album.

Ric Ocasek, in the past, has contributed to much of the writing, and producing for the Cars. I suppose you could call him the leader, or front man of the band. So why should this album be different from any of the earlier Cars albums? I think it has to do with concept, and substance. The past Cars albums have always had interesting titles, but the material always seemed a bit juvenile. Ric, however, throws us a curve ball. The title Beatitude (which means blessedness) is somewhat paradoxical to the album's material. As a matter of fact the people, places, and things he writes about (if I may invent a phrase) are very un-Beatitude.

The album opens up with the song "Jimmy Jimmy," an epic of a youth who's caught up in a domestic generation of teenagers "who aren't like the other kids." This song is a good example of how "unblessed" Ocasek's characters are. The big commercial success "Something To Grab For," is probably not one of the better songs on the album, but it gives us some dancible comic relief. The second side presents us with a serious, and somewhat cynical outlook on the world today.

So if you were expecting that the new Rick Ocasek album would be a lot like the past upbeat Cars albums, don't buy it. This is not going to be one of those albums you would want to put on at a party to get everyone on their feet. However, if you enjoy mature lyrics put to a slower paced new-wave sound, then you will be pleasantly surprised.

in honor of International Women's Day

UPC PRODUCTIONS

and the womens event planning committee

PHOEBE SNOW

with Special Guest
Debbie Fier

March 8, 1983
8:00 P.M.

Tickets on Sale Feb. 25

students 5.00, 6.00 gen. pub. 6.00, 7.00

on campus: tix unlimited and the fine arts center box office

Amherst: for the record

Northampton: womonfyre books

all ticketron locations

thanx UMass Arts Council

FINE ARTS CENTER UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS

Arts

Runner hits stride

THE RUNNER STUMBLES
By Milan Stitt; Directed by Bruce Brown.
February 15-19
Curtain Theater, FAC

By SARAH BUSH
Collegian Staff

Tuesday night at 10:30 found me both exhausted and excited. I could not decide if I needed to go to bed or run a mile. It was opening night for The Runner Stumbles at the Curtain Theater and I came away more than impressed.

From the first few opening lines the conflict of the play is exposed as a handcuffed priest (played by Kevin Dyer) is thrust onstage by an abrupt rustic prison guard (J. Campbell Finnegan) who wastes little time explaining that this minister of the Lord is an accused murderer of a nun of the same. The play then becomes a series of flashbacks between the murder trial in the present, and the past actions leading up to the arrest.

Director Bruce Brown effectively juxtaposes these two different time periods by maximizing the talents of his scene and lighting designers. The stage is broken up on four different levels and playing spaces making the stage both visually exciting and practical for the actors as just a few steps could bring them from one time period to the next. Partial stage lighting clarified this effect by informing the audience where to focus its attention.

Such a well-constructed atmosphere allowed the play to move smoothly and believably. It also provided a strong base for the mood of the play to develop, something which struck me as the essential ingredient to the success of the production. Also, organ music was played before both acts to prepare the audience as to the religious theme of the play.

The costuming was also a noticeable form of support for the actions and attitudes of each of the characters: the stark black and white suit of Father Rivard which symbolized both his occupation and character, the bold lumber jacket-like plaid dress of his backwoods idolizing housekeeper, and the lawyer's stretched-out sweater and baggy pants which revealed more about him than any amount of dialogue. Also, thegirlish dress of Sister Rita worn in the traumatic love scene in the end seemed subtely appropo.

Lastly, the actors themselves pulled all of these elements together to create real people who pulled the audience forward in their seats in worry and anticipation. Kevin Dyer and Sara Whitcomb adroitly created a rise in tension through the first act which increased with such strength that when it broke with a slap at intermission. I was happy to breathe normally again.

The slew of supporting actors were truly the backbone to the strength and believability of the two fine leading actors.

Kevin J. Dyer, Elsa M. McCann, and Sara Whitcomb star in The Runner Stumbles.

Lynn Randall as the housekeeper made her presence crucial to the tension and conflict with just the right amount of energy needed before she would bustle off stage. David Spenser as the troublesome Monsignor was marvelously obnoxious and it seemed a shame that the priest and nun slapped each other instead of him. Alexandra Lopukhin was effective comic relief as a young country girl with forbidden sexual fantasies. Also, Elsa McCann as a simple-minded backwoods farmer's wife ably conveyed the attitudes and ignorance in which the conflict arises.

The writing skills of playwright Milan Stitt were in safe hands these past few days at the Curtain Theater, whose version of The Runner Stumbles at $1.50 a ticket was more than just a cheap date, it was well-crafted drama.

Aerosmith back in saddle

AEROSMITH
Friday, February 11
Springfield Civic Center, Springfield

By YANETT PENA
Collegian Correspondent

Remember Aerosmith? They were that popular Boston-based band of the mid-seventies that sold millions of albums, made the cover of Rolling Stone magazine, and made a lot of people happy (excluding the critics).

Well, as often happens to many bands, Aerosmith's career took a nose-dive when internal conflicts arose, which resulted in guitarists Joe Perry's and Brad Whitford's departure. Later on the group slowly "disappeared," reportedly due to a motorcycle accident suffered by vocalist Steven Tyler. And just when you thought it was over. Aerosmith makes a comeback with two new members, a new album, and a worldwide tour.

I recently had a chance to see them, along with the Pat Travers' Band, at the "re-opening" of the Springfield Civic Center. But after what happened Friday night, I doubt if the city officials will allow any more concerts there again. Especially since this was a "trial basis" concert where the promoters were trying for future concert bookings at the Civic Center.

At about 8 o'clock, the Pat Travers Band hit the stage. For the next hour Travers played a strong set, including new material from his Black Pearl album along with old favorites such as "Snortin Whiskey." The band was tight, and Travers did a quick solo spot, unlike some egomaniac guitarists who take an hour. For the encore, "Boom Boom (Out Go the Lights)" was blasted through the speakers to the enthusiastic participating audience.

It was after Pat Travers that trouble began.

Whether it was due to the illicit amount of drug and alcohol intake, or the over-crowding of the orchestra area (the show was general admission), or both, at least six fights broke out while awaiting Aerosmith. And it wasn't just between the male sex; there were a couple of female fists flying through the air.

Later a burly stagehand announced that although Aerosmith hadn't arrived, a big snowstorm had. By this time it was 10 o'clock and the fans were getting restless and angry. Not surprisingly, more fights broke out.

At 10:30 the announcer appeared again, told the audience there was approximately a foot of snow outside, but alas Aerosmith had arrived! It took three limousines to get them there since the cars kept breaking down due to the weather conditions.

A half hour later, the infamous black curtains covered the stage. Screeching noises filled the Center, and as the curtains were dropped, Aerosmith thundered on stage with the appropriate "Back in the Saddle." "Mama Kin" was next and during the intro Steven Tyler apologized for their tardiness, dressed as flamboyantly as ever in a purple songsleeved cape-like article of clothing with a black shirt underneath, sprayed on multi-colored pants, and brown booties. All was forgiven.

To make a long story short, Aerosmith gave an impressive performance Friday night; all those rumors of Tyler losing his voice and sex appeal are bull. Not only was Tyler's singing in top-notch condition, but he still looks good and knows how to flaunt his sexuality — sometimes crude, sometimes subtle, sometimes arrogant. His movements ranged from being as graceful as a ballerina's, to as quirky as a wind-up doll. Either way, Tyler, with all his ragged clothes and scarved microphones, has still got it

The two "new kids on the block," Rick Dufay and Joey C'espo, played loud mean guitars and were more active on-stage than Whitford or Perry ever could be. They gave the band a younger look and attitude.

After a two hour set which included such popular oldies as "Toys in the Attic," "Dream On," "Walk This Way," some new material from Rock in the Hard Place, and the "Train Kept a Rollin" encore, Aerosmith said goodnight.

Leaving the Civic Center, the stench of vomit was highly prevalent (especially in the bathrooms). Shelter was being provided at the Center for the kids who couldn't go home in the blizzard. And in a car radio somewhere, rock n' roll music was being blasted.

The Aerosmith concert at the Springfield Civic Center was an example of teenage decadence at its best (worst?), and I had a great time.

Wild Kingdom, formerly Human Sexual Response.

Humans go wild

WILD KINGDOM
Friday, February 18
Hangar One, Hadley

By JIM FEIN
Collegian Correspondent

Wild Kingdom. No, this is not the television show about animals that used to be shown on Sunday afternoons. It is the name of a Boston area band that played to a medium sized crowd this past Friday night at the Hangar One. However, they are not just another local band.

Wild Kingdom formed just a few months ago, from the remnants of what was one of Boston's most eccentric, interesting, and more successful bands, Human Sexual Response. HSR was in existence for almost five years, during which time they released two nationally distributed albums, both of which received favorable response and achieved modest success. Two of their more well-known songs were "Jackie Onassis" and "What Does Sex Mean To Me". The subject matter of their music dealt not only with sex (primarily the psychological aspects of it), but also with apprehension, tension, and fear. The band consisted of three instrumentalists (bass, guitar, and drums), one lead vocalist, and three backing vocalists. Their stage presence was enormous. The four vocalists lined the edge of the stage, acted in an off the wall manner, and sang complex, attractive harmonies. The combination of the instruments and harmonized voices resulted in very good sounding, danceable music. However, last April the band decided to call it quits.

Take the three backing vocalists out of HSR and the result is Wild Kingdom. The band is now lead singer/songwriter Larry Bangor, bassist Chris Maclachan, guitarist Rich Gilbert, and drummer Malcolm Travis. Rather than retread old ground by playing songs they've been successful with in the past, the band has chosen to move on. Of the two sets worth of music they performed, only one was from the band's old repetoire, the rest was new. A few of the memorable ones were: "Not Gonna Fall", "Purpose" and "Faith". The subject matter of their music seems to have shifted from sex to other various topics. The sound, however, is similar.

The bass and drums still provide a driving rhythm which kept the dance floor full for much of the night. Rich Gilbert's guitar playing was nothing less than impressive. Using an assortment of electronic gadgets, he eked out a myriad of different sounds from his guitar. He filled out the band's sound well, playing not only basic chord schemes, but flighty riffs and staccato as well. Without the harmony section, the instruments take on an increased presence and provide what seems to be a denser sound.

Lead vocalist Larry Bangor is the focal point of the band's live show. Not having to share the stage with so many others, he is more readily visible and really let loose, dancing about the stage and dance floor with reckless abandon. His voice and singing style are unique to say the least. He sings with a nervous edge to his voice, a certain uneasiness, all in a half serious, half put-on manner. His delivery was effective in conveying the apprehension, tension and fear that is so much a part of this band's music. My only complaint was an inconsistency in the clarity of the vocals. At times they shined through, while at others they were unclear.

Opening for Wild Kingdom were The Swallows and R-Complex. I accidentally missed The Swallows as the club started its entertainment an hour earlier than usual. R-Complex is best described as a new wave ensemble that plays originals. Their music had a good beat, which had some of the crowd dancing.

Attention Arts department

There will be a mandatory meeting to discuss the next issue of the Other Voice on Tuesday, March 1, at 7:30 p.m. in the newsroom.

TRIPLE COUPONS!

Triple Coupon — Present this coupon along with any one manufacturers' cents off coupon and get triple the savings when you purchase the item. Not to include Bag 'N' Save, retailer free coupons, or coupons greater than 99¢. Not to exceed the value of the item. Excludes tobacco products, lottery tickets and any item prohibited by law. Limit one item per manufacturers coupon. Limit 3 triple coupons per customer family please. Coupon good Wed. Feb. 23 thru Sat. Feb. 26.

Triple Coupon — Present this coupon along with any one manufacturers' cents off coupon and get triple the savings when you purchase the item. Not to include Bag 'N' Save, retailer free coupons, or coupons greater than 99¢. Not to exceed the value of the item. Excludes tobacco products, lottery tickets and any item prohibited by law. Limit one item per manufacturers coupon. Limit 3 triple coupons per customer family please. Coupon good Wed. Feb. 23 thru Sat. Feb. 26.

Triple Coupon — Present this coupon along with any one manufacturers' cents off coupon and get triple the savings when you purchase the item. Not to include Bag 'N' Save, retailer free coupons, or coupons greater than 99¢. Not to exceed the value of the item. Excludes tobacco products, lottery tickets and any item prohibited by law. Limit one item per manufacturers coupon. Limit 3 triple coupons per customer family please. Coupon good Wed. Feb. 23 thru Sat. Feb. 26.

LIMIT 3 TRIPLE COUPONS PER CUSTOMER FAMILY PLEASE.

We Do The Most!

DOUBLE Manufacturers' COUPONS All Week at Big 'Y' Details in Store

WITH E-X-P-A-N-D-E-D SERVICE DEPARTMENTS

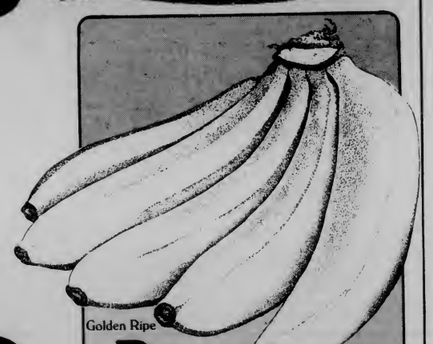
d'amour's BIG

USDA Choice Beef Chuck

London Broil Steak

USDA CHOICE

1.69 lb



USDA Choice Beef Chuck

Shoulder Roast

USDA CHOICE

1.59 lb

Golden Ripe

Bananas 5 lbs $1

5 Pound Bag — Revere Sugar 99¢ WITH THIS COUPON. And $10.00 purchase exclusive of coupon items, 50¢ any items excluded by law. Good at Northampton, Southampton & Hadley Big 'Y' stores thru Sat. Feb. 26. LL-111

Half Gallon — Breyers Ice Cream 1.59 WITH THIS COUPON. And $10.00 purchase exclusive of coupon items, 50¢ any items excluded by law. Good at Northampton, Southampton & Hadley Big 'Y' stores thru Sat. Feb. 26. LL-112

1-Pound Can — Chock Full O' Nuts Coffee 1.69 WITH THIS COUPON. And $10.00 purchase exclusive of coupon items, 50¢ any items excluded by law. Good at Northampton, Southampton & Hadley Big 'Y' stores thru Sat. Feb. 26. LL-113

YOU'LL FIND ONE OR OUR STORES CONVENIENTLY LOCATED NEAR YOU...

SALE STARTS MON., FEB. 21 THRU SAT., FEB. 26, 1983

NORTHAMPTON • N. King Street
SOUTHAMPTON • 10 College Hwy.
HADLEY • Russell St., Rte. 9

Not responsible for typographical errors. We reserve the right to limit quantities to 3 unless otherwise noted.

Bloom County — By Berke Breathed

The UMass Zone — By Mark Rollins

Katfood — By ARK

Scrod — By Dan DeBellis

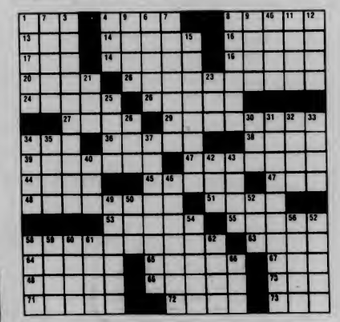
After The Fall — By R. Miller

CROSSWORD

©1983 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

ACROSS
1 Cook's choice
4 Gemstone
8 Longest river in Europe
13 Hurry-scurry
14 Quibble
16 Paragon
17 "Yes, ——!"
18 Flavoring herb
19 Light brown
20 Small fry
22 Play by Ben Jonson, 1605
24 Residue of a sort
26 Of the back
27 Bouncing sound
29 Botches
34 Bus schedule abbr.
36 High dudgeon
38 Ranger, for one
39 Theatrical VIP
41 Skip
44 Made a hole-in-one
45 Large part of Asia
47 Pinnacle
48 "Moonlight ——": familiar theme song
51 Part of a loot
53 Indians of Ohio and Pennsylvania
55 Oozes
58 Novel by Charles Kingsley, 1855
63 —— Stanley Gardner
64 Toughen
65 Garnishing fruit
67 —— King Cole
68 Skirt sections
69 In no degree
70 Battle front of 1944
71 Candied
72 Native of Copenhagen
73 Sought an office

DOWN
1 Fettucini, e.g.
2 Miguel's "farewell!"
3 Citizen of Boston
4 Wood sorrel of S America
5 Window part
6 Of the birds
7 Lithe
8 Important organs
9 Redolence
10 First place
11 Rent
12 Choir member
15 Well-read
21 Champagne state
23 Part of TWTWTW
25 Dance or rug
28 Word with some or any
30 Building adjunct
31 Citizen of Miami
32 Annul
33 Sneak a look
34 Arno, ——, amat
35 Soapbox derby
37 Playing field
40 Lemon or lime
42 Number on some clocks
43 Preserves
46 Teased
49 Just out
50 Brazilian macaw
52 Alphabet letter
54 Hindu diety
56 Silver, in Spain
57 Incite
58 Makeup items
59 "...Wilderness is Paradise ——"
60 Unfaltering
61 Sycamore
62 Dough chamber
66 In this place, to Kipling



ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

A	G	N	I		A	B	E	S		A	I	M	E	D
G	R	I	A	N		N	E	I	Z		C	O	A	T
C	O	I	N	S	T	A	N	C	E		I	N	J	U
S	W	A	T	H		P	I	V	O	T		O	D	E
		R	E	L	A	T	E	D		A	R	I	E	S
P	E	R	I		T	I	M	E		H	E	L	P
U	N	A	P	P	A	I	N		P	L	A	I	D
S	O	P	O	U		S	T	Y	L	E		T	I	Z
E	L	A	N	T		E	L	E	C	T	I	O	N
		M	I	N	Y		M	E	A	T		P	I	E
J	A	M	E	S		E	M	P	I	R	E		N
A	M	A		S	W	O	R	D		K	I	N	S	E
D	I	X	I	E		D	I	S	T	I	N	C	T
E	L	I	D	E		E	L	I	S	E		E	N	D
D	E	M	O	N		L	A	S	T		R	O	Y	S

weather

Wednesday, snow, possibly mixing with rain at times over interior sections, with wet snow changing to rain along the coast. Highs around 40 near the coast and in the mid to upper 30s over the interior.

D.C. MENU

BASICS LUNCH
Garden Sandwich, Chicken a la King/Savory Garden Biscuit

LUNCH
Roast Beef Grinder, Chicken a la King/Savory Garden Biscuit

BASICS DINNER
Eggplant Parmigiana, Baked Cod/Newburg Sauce

DINNER
Veal Parmesan, Baked Cod/Newburg Sauce, Ham and Turkey Cold Plate/Saltines, SUPER SUNDAES

WANTED
Someone who knows news

The Collegian is looking for one Associate News Editor to coordinate our coverage of the University's administration and faculty. Applicant should have some experience reporting news for a newspaper and be willing to work hard for low pay. We will provide some training and great experience. Interested UMass students should apply before next Friday, Feb. 25, to John DiPalazzo at the Collegian, 113 Campus Center, 545-3500.

The Collegian is an equal opportunity employer.

Women gymnasts drop their second meet to UNH

By ELLEN RICHARD
Collegian Staff

The performances were not there for the University of Massachusetts women's gymnastics team on Sunday as it suffered its second loss of the season to the University of New Hampshire, 176.7-169.85.

"We were a little weak the first three events," coach Ken Anderson said. "By the floor (event), there was no competition. They had an on day and there was no way we were going to get them with what we were doing."

It was the women's second loss to New Hampshire, which defeated UM in the UMass invitational in December. The Minutewomen have a record of 8-2 and are currently ranked sixth in the NCAA Eastern Region.

UMass had the right attitude at the start of the meet and scored a strong 43.7 points in the vault, tying their highest vault score of the year. Unfortunately, the vault is New Hampshire's best event and they won it with 45.1 points.

UNH has three top-ranked all-around performers and they also took the top spots in vault. Laura Cavanaugh, Diane Carlin and Lucia Cancelmo placed with scores of 9.45, 9.05 and 8.95, respectively.

Sue Allen tied for the fourth spot with New Hampshire's Toby Kapp with a score of 8.85. Chris Cloutier and Robin Low were close behind with scores of 8.8.

The uneven bars showed more of the same. Carlin won the event for UNH with a 9.0. Karen Knapp, the only one who hit her bar set, according to Anderson, scored an 8.8.

Senior Tricia Harrity was competing for UMass in the all around for the first time since being injured in her freshman year, and she scored an 8.65 in vault and 7.9 on bars.

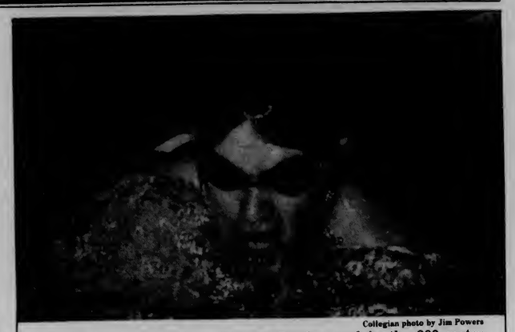
"Considering it was her first time in all around she had a very strong showing," Anderson said. "I was very happy with it."

The Minutewomen lost the balance beam event by almost two points. Cavanaugh took the top score with a 9.35 and Knapp placed second with a 9.15. Low and Barbara Lord put in fine performances to score matching 8.45's.

New Hampshire wrapped up the win in the floor event, however. Low put in a strong performance to place first. Low scored an impressive 9.2. Knapp and Lisa Griffen scored 8.6 in their floor performances.

A few members of the team had been sick the past week which made workouts tough and leaving the team with some empty spots. Anderson said this contributed to the weakness in the team's performances.

The Minutewomen will travel to Southern Connecticut on Saturday with plans of bringing home their ninth win of the season before settling at home again the following week to close out their season.



Collegian photo by Jim Powers

Howie Abramson churns through Boyden pool in the 200 meter breastroke during last Saturday's win over Central Connecticut.

★skiing

Continued from page 16

were Sue White (2nd place), Theresa Collins (3rd place) and Leslie Dale (7th place).

All of the UMass men, in a field of 80 racers, finished the slalom in the top thirty. Also in the top ten for UM were Brian Prindle (3rd place), Tim Enright (5th) and Jon Segal (7th place).

In Sunday's giant-slalom race, the UM women won again to remain undefeated and the UM men came back to take the victory over 2nd place Plymouth SC.

White won the women's giant slalom, her 8th win of the season for UM, as teammates Dale, Collins, and Luczkow followed close behind in 2nd, 4th and 9th place respectively.

The UMass women completed the regular season with an incredible record of 65-0 (win/loss ratio) in the WISC league. The other colleges in order of finish were Plymouth SC, BC, Brown, Amherst, Smith, Trinity and Army.

In the NEISC, the UMass men ended their season with an excellent record of 64-6 (win/loss ratio). The other NEISC colleges, in order of finish, were, PSC, BC, Brown, Amherst, UConn, Trinity and Army.

Martin Luther King Jr. Week Poster Contest
"Make His Day A Holiday"

The Planning Committee for Martin Luther King Week, April 4th - 9th, is sponsoring a contest to find a design for the publicity poster. The deadline for entries will be March 10th. Submit all entries to the Student Senate, 420 Student Union Building. Prize for the winning submission to be announced. In the spirit of Martin Luther King Jr. who advocated justice and equality, we encourage the entire community to take part in the poster contest and Martin Luther King week activities. For more information, please call 545-0341.

Interested in news reporting?
Come find out how real professionals do it

The Collegian is offering introductory reporting workshops facilitated by two UMass graduates who now work for the nation's largest wire services.

TONIGHT: 7:30 p.m., 901 Campus Center
With Carol Rosenberg of United Press International TOMORROW: 7:30 p.m., Dukes Room, Student Union
With Joe Quinlan of the Associated Press

Both workshops are free and open to anyone interested. Collegian staff reporters and new correspondents are especially encouraged to attend.

BUCK STEWART
PORTRAIT PHOTOGRAPHER
Also: Functions, Formals, Portfolios
545 Puffton Village, Amherst, MA (413) 549-5454
Portraits and Group Settings $15.95

BLUE WALL
CAMPUS CENTER AT UMASS

WED. Show times: 8 pm & 10 pm — EASY RIDER (with Peter Fonda and Jack Nicholson)
No Admission/Free Popcorn

THURS. 8 pm & 10 pm/Free — "The Grateful Dead" LIVE at Radio City Music Hall!

FRI. HAPPY HOUR 3-6 p.m. w/ Cliff Meyers — CRYSTAL SHIP THE DOORS TRIBUTE cover $3.00

SAT. Black History Month DANCE PARTY with WMUA D.J.'s only $1.00 Cover

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Monday - Friday • Deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10 % • discount • Phone number FREE

AUTO FOR SALE

67 VW Conv inspected needs work $400 or BO 323-5918 leave message

71 Ford Torino AM/FM stereo fair cond. $... or BO Diane 253-8463

1973 Plym Grnd Cp. 95000 m AC, stereo & more must sell 7008 549-5877 Joe aft 5

75 Olds Starfire 6 cly AM/FM cassette good cond 1275 253-2016

For sale 1970 Ford Torino - 45,000 original miles needs work - $500 or BO call 545-3500 before 5:00 549-4125 after 5:00 ask for Dan

1970 VW Squeresback functional transportation. Mechanically & strucurally sound. $350 firm. Can be seen on campus. 256-0647 evenings

73 Pontiac Grand AM 4 door cruise control climate control bucket seats excellent condition $800 or BO 82,000 miles 549-2785 evenings

BELLYGRAMS!!

Delivered by professional bellydancer for most unusual gift Thereza 253-7822

BOLTWOOD PROJECT

Interested in the Boltwood Project? Recruitment meeting Wed. Feb. 23 at 7 PM in 804 CC

C.A.G. ELECTION

Attention! Central Area Government Elections will be held on March 2nd. Nomination Papers are now available. For more information call Kathryn Mahony at 546-8052 or the C.A.G. Office at 545-2080 It's time to get involved.

CAR PARTS

Saab 96 Parts: transmission, V-4 engine, 1967 brake master cylinder, tach, special edition "Monte Carlo" body, other parts. Call Sam 774-5952 Mon to Fri 1 pm to 5 pm

COUNSELING - LOW STUDENT FEE

Licensed, experienced, caring humanist No connection U Mass. First session free. Allan Black, 253-5036

COUNSELORS

Association of Independent Camps seeks qualified counselors fo 75 member children's camps in Northeast July and August. Contact: Association of Independent Camps (MA), 157 West 57th Street, New York, New York, 10019 (212)582-3540

CRIMSON TRAVEL

Spring Break - Bermuda $289. Daytona $299. Disney $279. More info: Roberta or Steph 549-5320

DAYTONA BEACH

Daytona Beach Spring Break $299. Round trip direct non-stop jet Boston -Daytona. 7 nights Ramada Inn on the beach Free car rental departs Mar 19 Saugus Travel 617-233-8192, 617-289-6221

EMERGENCY MEDICAL TECHNICIANS

The Five College Chapter of EMT's will sponsor a seminar this Thursday Feb 24 entitled "The Leagal Implications of Emergency Medical Care" Speaker: Thomas C. Grassie, Esquire, REMT-A. Dickenson Hall (UMPD Bldg.) Room 112 at 6:30 pm sharp. Approved by OEMS for 3 CEU hours.

ENTERTAINMENT

Professional DJs For Less $99 Winter Special! Dorms, greeks, Semis. Paul 549-4405

Rackadisc Entertainment Agency Inc. Bands and discjockeys guaranteed student functions 256-0739

Megician - The Graat Charles will entertain at any occasion call Bruce 549-1177 after PM

FOR SALE

K2 Skils For Sale $50 or BO interested? call Margie 256-6612

Nikon FE for sale with 50f1.8 and 135 telephoto $375 or BO call Scott 253-7465

Ski Boots 2 pair: Raichle Freestyle & Nordica. Both new, both size 10. BO Call Scott @ 549-6101

Large wood stove $200 253-3931

Need luggege for Spring Break? Special design (CIAO!) bags various colors and styles call Jodi 546-0661

1972 VW Bug. no rust, runs well, $850 call 549-1304

HELP WANTED

Overseas Jobs - Summer/year round. Europe, S. Amer., Australia, Asia. All fields. $500-$1200 monthly. Sight-seeing. Free info. Write IJC Box 52-MA-1 Corona Del Mar, CA 92625

CRUISE SHIP JOBS! $14-928,000 Caribean, Hawaii, World. Call for Guide, Directory, Newsletter. 916-722-1111 ext Massachusettes

COUNSELORS: Camp Wayne, northeastern Pennsylvania. Co-ed childrens camp 6/23-8/23/83. On campus interviews March 2nd. Friendly, warm atmosphere, 12 Allevard, Lido Beach, NY 11561. Include school phone number. Campus Rep: Wendy Edenfield 545-0939

Dependable people needed for newspaper delivery in dorms. 7 days a week. Between 7:00-9:00 AM. 253-7009

The Commuter Area Government has two job openings. These positions are work-study at 15/hours/wk. Freshperson, sophomore or junior undergraduate preferred. To apply, stop by 404 Student Union 9:00-5:00 pm M-F. We are an Affirmative Action Equal Opportunity Employer. Third World, women and non-traditional students encpouraged to apply. Deadline is February 23.

Part-time work available in solar sales. Call Eric 549-5884

INSTRUCTION

Commercial Art and Cartooning Workshops. Free brochure. 586-8513

Know your car. Basic Auto Mechanics Workshop. Classroom theory + shop. Limited enrollment 253-2098

LOST

Keys on blue-clip keyring with words Le Chateau 546-8161

Lighter gold color lost in Thompson Hall sentimental value $1000 REWARD 6-8813

Navy blue and white ski gloves call Jackie 665-2463

Blue five-subject notebook, outside Coffee Shop 11:30 Friday 18th. Very important notes. Please call 1-532-1588. Reward

MICROCOMPUTER/TERMINAL RENTALS

The Computer Works 253-5676 253-5755

MUSICIANS WANTED

Lyricist, vocalist seeks musicians for formation of rock n' roll band Shawn 256-8938

PERSONALS

Stop Fee Increases! The student senate will hold hearings on next years student fees. Come voice your concerns Mon 14th CC 101 7 pm Tues 15th CC804 4-7 pm

JAMAICA
Spring Break

Do it right this year!
For more info call 549-0329

JIM Sorry I couldn't make it to the Hangor Monday hopefully some other time Lisa

Retired V.B.I.: Thanx for the surprise Valentine message. Call me. Sincerely, No Appendix

UMMB - 1982 pictures are here! Pick them up this week, 4-6 p.m., in Chapel

What's up Chooch? Happy Birthday! Just friends. I knew that. . .oh, well. . .Arr Arr! Love ya, M

JNB Hi Cutie! 1-4-3, Triss

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Dissertations, Theses, Cases, Papers, guaranteed acceptance, low rates, Nancy 5-0392, 584-7924

PSYCHOLOGY STUDY

Subjects needed, ages 17 -25, who have lost a parent 1 - 5 years ago, to participate in an interview study about bereavement. Experimental credits available. Call 549-4418 AM or PM, or leave a note at Tobin Hall room 603, with your phone no. & when to call.

RESUME WRITING

Professional/Confidential/Efficient special rates 253-7468 weekends, weekdays after 5

RIDE NEEDED

Ride needed to Millers Falls Thur eves 5 PM share expenses call Holly at Outdoor Center of New England 659-3926

ROOMMATE WANTED

Roommate wanted: $120/m util incl starts Feb call Mark or Dan 549-1387

One female to share a room in a three bedroom apartment near the center of town, Ninety - Nine a month call Aline at 549-6264

Sunny house on bus route 3½ miles from campus in Hadley, available 3/1/83 105 month + utilities 586-3406

Female wanted to share lg bedroom apt $150 incl 665-4980

SERVICES

PAPER DUE? CAN'T WRITE? Tutor -english composition and grammar reasonable rates 6-9289

Your typewriter or mine? Accurate, reliable. $1/page Kitty 6-7302

THE BOLTWOOD PROJECT

Boltwood is seeking volunteers to participate in recreation programs for the developmentally disabled at BSS. Gain valuable experience. Credit available. Information meetings: Thurs Feb 17 and Wednesday Feb 23 rm 804 CC

TO SUBLET

1 bedroom available in Swiss Village apartment call 549-2726

TRAVEL

Florida direct by van. 3/19-27. $148. for round trip - wine & cheese - accom. info call now - S.S. Van Lines @ 617-724-8810

Daytona Beach - Spring Break - March 18-27. Party down by motorcoach, free beer party, oceanfront accomodations $165 plus tax & services. For more info call Kathie or Robin @ 256-0551

Bermuda - $315 includes everything - call 256-6941 after 6

WANTED

Class rings, gold and silver jewelry and coins. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant, Amherst, 256-0710

Apt Mate Northwood Apts own room, two bdrm apt 160.00 rent 665-3633 aft 5 pm

Help $50 reward for helping me by your parents unwanted second car 253-7189

Three Bedroom Puffton or Townehouse to rent from June on Sue 546-7393

One pair thirteen inch tires w/wo rims John 253-5467

CAMP COUNSELORS WANTED

Timber Lake Camp, one of New York State's top co-ed summer camps, is seeking high-quality general counselors. Specialists also needed in basketball, softball, soccer, tennis, roller hockey, waterfront (W.S.I.) for lake, indoor and outdoor heated pools, audio/visual, arts and crafts, computers, AM radio, ham radio, television production.
Applications for maintenance, grounds & dining room staff also being accepted.
Contact T.L.C.'s UMASS representative:
Rich Tyroler
1112 Kennedy 546-7762
for application or interview

MAKE YOUR MARK

at OPERATION SONSHINE '83
DAYTONA BEACH, FLORIDA
Step into an adventure this spring break. For more information write or call:
Chris West, 613 JF Kennedy 546-7671
Cynthia Muller, B-7 Emerson 546-7238
Sponsored by Campus Crusade for Christ International

MUSIC GALLERY
PEAVEY, IBANEZ, TAMA, JBL, ROLAND, ACOUSTIC, BOSS, LEGEND, EV-TAPCO, HONDO, DEAN, HAMER, FOSTEX.
RT. 9 HADLEY
ON THE BUS ROUTE
586-6228

The rusty nail presents
Sat. Feb. 26 — Warren Zevon
Sun. Feb. 27 — Tower of Power
Tickets available at "For the Record" (in Faces) Amherst
Rt. 47 Sunderland, MA 665-4937 You must be 18 to enter.

Sports

More Sports on Page 14

Both UMass hoop teams stumble

URI pulls away from cold shooting Minutewomen

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

The University of Rhode Island women's basketball team could be held off for just so long. Last night, the University of Massachusetts team played well, but not well enough to keep up with URI and fell to the WRams, 71-54.

UMass led at points in the first half and even though they were down by five at the half, it was anybody's ballgame. UMass pulled to within three on numerous occasions in the second half, but they could not capitalize on poor URI shooting (34.7 percent) and feel victim to their own poor shooting in the last ten minutes of the game.

The Minutewomen pulled to within 47-44 after Nadine Jackson took a pass under the hoop, the Massachusetts attack sputtered. Rhode Island began to assert themselves.

Offensively, they found the hoop. Defensively, a nasty press forced UMass turnovers and the rebounding of the WRams denied UM the second shots.

The twelve minutes of the game, URI outscored UMass by a 24-10 margin and took control of the game.

"We played a good game forty minutes," said head coach Mary Ann Ozdarski. "We came down the floor and we couldn't score. It was the same thing that happened to us against Bishops.

"Nadine Jackson and Rebecca Kuchs played outstanding games," the coach added.

Kuchs and Jackson didn't come up with the big hoops, but played well on the defense. Jackson hustled all over the court and picked up five steals. Wendy Ward also excelled in the steals department with six.

But it was the scoring department that UMass fell short in. Karen Damminger, who got into foul trouble and had to sit out a good deal of the second half, led the Minutewomen with 14 points. Barbara Hebel sank 12 and Kelly Collins sank eight points.

On the URI side of the board, four players fell into double figures, most notably, Barbara Mitlner with 17 and Judy Ryan with 16.

Massachusetts, now 5-21, faces either Penn State or Rutgers both ranked in the top 20, in the Atlantic Ten playoffs on March 4. It will be a tall order for the Minutewomen who will look to play with more consistency.

A vocal crowd of 125 saw the last home game of the year.

RHODE ISLAND (71) Washington 4-3-11, Quantmeyer 0-0-0, Pereira 0-0-0, Hogan 1-3-5, Hathaway 0-0-0, Calvert 0-0-0, Smith 4-2-10, Miltner 7-3-17, roher 4-4-12, Ryan 6-4-16.

MASSACHUSETTS (54) Kuchs 2-2-6, Ward 2-0-4, Jackson 3-0-6, Damminger 5-4-14, Collins 3-2-8, Chomentowski 0-0-0, Bernier 1-2-4, Hebel 6-0-12

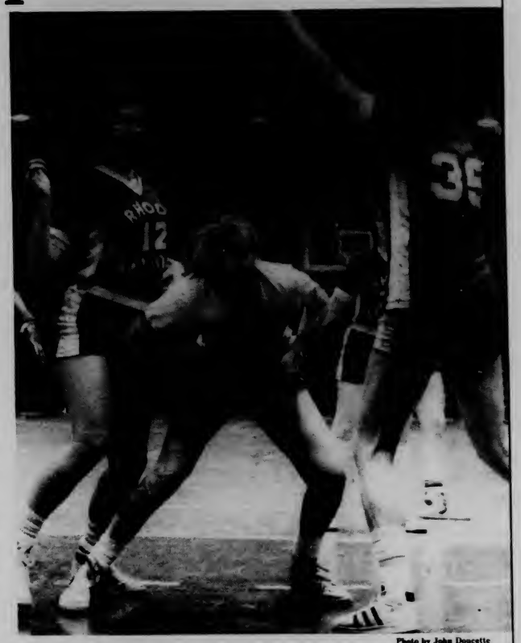

Photo by John Doucette

UMass' Karen Damminger takes the low road to the hoop between URI's Ellen Quantmeyer (12) and Barbara Miltner (35) in last night's loss at Curry Hicks.

Minutemen embarrassed by St. Peters without Russell

By JIM FLOYD
Collegian Staff

It is hard to come up with a nice way to say that your local basketball team has lost another game when the margin of defeat was 37 points.

Since it is that difficult, let us just simply report that the University of Massachusetts men's basketball team traveled to Jersey City, New Jersey to play St. Peter's College on Monday night and was soundly thrashed to the tune of 90-53.

In the Minutemen's defense, the team was without the services of sophomore guard Donald Russell, who was hurt in Saturday's win over the University of Rhode Island when he hit the floor hard following a midair collision with a Ram defender.

Forward Horace Neysmith was forced to move over to guard and Bobby Braun took over as a frontcourt starter in an effort to offset the loss of Russell. It didn't work.

The ballhandling was a key factor as UMass had 21 turnovers in the game as compared to 11 for the Peacocks (nice nickname!). Minuteman fans may remember that the only other game of the season that Russell missed was the Temple game and the end result of that contest was the same, a UMass collapse.

The Minutemen held on for the first 13 minutes of the first half and when John Hempel, who turned in his usual steady performance with a 19 point effort, scored at 7:28, UMass was within three at 23-20.

It was all downhill from there, though, as an offensive explosion by the Peacocks coincided with a scoring drought for the Minutemen and St. Peter's outscored UMass 23-4 for the remainder of the period. The end result of that spurt was a 46-24 halftime score.

In the second half, the Minutemen were not even able to crack the 20 point barrier as the Peacocks (You have to hate losing to a team with such an abhorrible name, sorry bird lovers.) held control of the ball and the game en route to the 90-53 final tally.

Hempel led UMass in scoring with his 19 points and was followed by Edwin Green who chipped in 12. Bobby Braun was the only other Minuteman in double figures as he took advantage of his starting role and tossed in 10 points.

The loss drops the Minutemen to 6-17 on the season and 0-14 on the road. The Peacocks improve to 20-4.

The next game for the Curry Hicks Cagers (as they should be called since they only win at home in the Cage) will be Thursday night against Duquesne University in (you guessed it) the Cage at 7:30 p.m.

MASSACHUSETTS (53) Hempel 9-1-19, Braun 4-2-10, Green 3-6-12, Neysmith 3-2-8, Young 0-0-0, Smith 0-0-0, Connors 0-0-0, Carter 2-0-4, Emerson 0-0-0, Ramming 0-0-0.

ST. PETER'S (90) Best 5-7-17, Gibbs 11-1-23, Krotulis 2-1-5, Murray 6-2-13, Jamison 2-1-5, Wiggins 2-1-5, Green 6-0-12, Christel 1-0-2, Riley 1-6-8.

Men and women skiers advance to Easterns

By MATT LUCZKOW
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts men's and women's ski teams have both been invited to the NCAA Eastern Regional Ski Championships in Middlebury, Vermont on February 25-27.

This coming weekend, at the Middlebury Winter Carnival, the five best men and women racers from UMass will come face to face with the toughest competition in the East. Providing some of that high-caliber ski competition, will be such New England powerhouses as Dartmouth, Middlebury, the University of Vermont and the University of New Hampshire.

It wasn't until early Monday when UMass ski coach Bill MacConnell received a call from Terry Aldrick, the NCAA race chairmen, that the Minutemen were officially invited and finally on their way.

"We've been looking forward to this all season," said head coach Bill MacConnell. "And by winning out own league titles, we were practically guaranteed an invitation to the NCAA's."

For the 14th and 7th consecutive years, the men and women skiers have captured their respective division titles in the New England (NEISC) and Women's (WISC) Intercollegiate Ski Conferences.

This past weekend both teams ended the regular season with a slalom and giant-slalom race at Berkshire East in Charlemont, Mass.

In Saturday's slalom race, the UM women took first place and the UM men finished 2nd behind Plymouth State College.

In the slalom, out of a field of 50 women racers, all of the UM women finished in the top twenty-five. In the top ten, for UM,

Continued on page 14

Trackwomen finish third in final regular season meet

By MARK FOGARTY
Collegian Correspondent

DURHAM, N.H. — The University of Massachusetts women's track team highlighted a loss to the University of New Hampshire and Springfield College with strong individual performances this past Saturday at UNH. Led by Leah Loftis, Maureen O'Reilly and freshman Debbie Cosams the UMass team compiled 28½ points to 59 for Springfield and 63½ for UNH.

Loftis set a track record in the 400 meters with a time of 59.3 and led the relay team to its best time of the year, 1:25.3. Also in the relay were Cindy Coroto, Kristi Kelly and Sue Bird.

Maureen O'Reilly also set a track record by taking first place in the 800 meters in a close, hard fought battle with UNH's top half-miler. Coach Banda described her record-setting time of 2:17.9 as "her best race of the year."

Cosams took first in the shot put with a personal best of 36', three feet further than her previous top throw.

Other strong performances came from Coroto who placed 3rd in the 220 with a time of 27.9 and 4th in the shot put. Lisa Small took 4th in the long jump with a personal best lead of 16'5". Chris Mason high jumped 4'10" to grab 3rd and the mile relay team got beat at the wire with a time of 4:08.

Banda was pleased with his young team's performance and is looking forward to a strong meet next weekend at New Englands which take place at UConn. He feels the mile relay team can go under four minutes for the first time this year and is looking for strong performances from Maureen O'Reilly and Leah Loftis. UMass placed eighth at New Englands last year.

Ramones cancel, but may be rescheduled

By JIM FINKLE
Collegian Staff

Gabba Gabba maybe!

While hundreds of students were disappointed to learn that last night's Ramones concert was cancelled, the talent coordinator of the Union Program Council (UPC) said the group may reschedule its appearance.

The concert was cancelled by the group's management because their sound equipment was stolen from a trailer while touring New York, said Bill Prichett, UPC talent coordinator.

Prichett said the 900 ticket holders may still have a chance to see the Ramones at UMass, as he is currently negotiating with the group's management to reschedule the concert. However, if he is unable to do so, UPC will refund the tickets, which cost $8 for students and $10 for others. Prichett said he expects to decide today whether it is possible to reschedule the concert.

Nineteen-year-old freshman Mark Brotman said he was disappointed by the cancellation.

"I think it's a damn shame," he said. "I am going to class tonight instead. I hope they don't reschedule it during some of my exams."

If the concert is rescheduled for a time that a ticketholder can't make, they will be able to refund their ticket, Prichett said.

Kathy Neilly, 20, said she was not as disappointed as some students.

"I don't feel bad because I just finished a long paper and want to go to bed," she said.

One woman, who declined to be named, had other plans. "We are gonna get juiced," she said. "We are really upset; we looked foward to it all week." she lamented in front of the Blue Wall. "How often do you get to see the Ramones on campus?"

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
Volume CXII, Issue 83 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003 (413) 545-3500 Thursday, February 24, 1983

Discrimination clause sought in new contract

By MARY BALDWIN
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts Society of Professors (MSP), which represents all faculty and librarians, is trying to change the way discrimination complaints are dealt with at the University of Massachusetts.

Bruce Laurie, MSP president, said his union is trying to establish grievability--the right to a grievance procedure-- in the new contract which will become effective in July.

Currently, complaints of discrimination because of race, religion, creed, color, national origin, sex, age, veteran status, or mental or physical handicap brought against the university are referred to the Affirmative Action Office, instead of being dealt with through the grievance procedure that is used for all other union member complaints.

Laurie said the union was forced to compromise during the negotiations three years ago for the current contract.

He said the union was able to sharpen the language on discrimination, but was forced into a compromise which meant losing grievability.

Laurie said although there has been progress recently, there is very little evidence that Affirmative Action is effective.

"The grievability procedures will be more effective," he said.

Asked why grievability procedures will be effective, Laurie said, "It takes too much time to develop an effective Affirmative Action program. The University has a history of foot dragging."

Thelma Griffith-Johnson, who became director of Affirmative Action at UMass in 1982, said, "In the past nothing may have happened. I think in a year, they won't be able to say nothing is happening with Affirmative Action."

"If you have a reasonably well trained Affirmative Action office, you should be able to handle any problems better than an unspecific union," Johnson said.

Johnson said she would support any union that was on the side of Affirmative Action goals of fighting discrimination.

Collegian photo by Drew Ogier

Lydia Nichy of Northampton examines the Kritosaurus, a duckbill dinosaur, on display at the Pratt Museum on the campus of Amherst College.

Candidates for SGA elections found scarce

By RICHARD NANGLE
Collegian Staff

Half of the Campus Center Board of Governors (BOG) and Residential Committee positions may not be filled due to a lack of candidates for the upcoming election.

"I'm appalled that students can do nothing but moan and complain about everything but don't have enough (initiative) to get involved," said election coordinator Mindy Ordway, who is also acting chairperson of the Undergraduate Student Senate's Governmental Affairs Committee.

Candidates filing nomination papers for BOG positions are Maria Cahillane of Cashin Dormitory in the Sylvan Residential Area, Paul Agranat of Townhouse Apartments, Paige Fernandes of Riverglade Apartments, Mary Ann Coughlin of Wheeler Dormitory in the Central Residential Area and Paul Cunnigham of Butterfield Dormitory in the Central Residential Area.

BOG seats are to be filled by one candidate from each residential area except Southwest, which has two, one Greek area candidate, three commuter candidates and ten at large candidates. Now that nominations have been closed, any potential candidates will have to run as write-ins, Ordway said.

Cahillane is running as the Sylvan candidate; Agranat and Fernandes are running as commuters; and Coughlin and Cunningham are running as at large candidates.

Candidates for Residential Committee seats are Bill Collins of Moore Dormitory in the Southwest Residential College, Howie Breslau of Patterson Dormitory in the Southwest Residential College and Janet Lannan of Butterfield Dormitory.

Residential Committee seats are to be filled by one candidate from each of the residential areas except Southwest, which has two. Another committee member is appointed in October by the Student Government Association (SGA) president. Ordway is the current presidential appointee. As in the case for the BOG, all other candidates will have to run as write-ins.

Continued on page 12

U.N. ambassador withdraws as Smith speaker

By JOE QUINLAN
Associated Press

NORTHAMPTON — After students and professors circulated protest petitions, Jeane Kirkpatrick, the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, withdrew yesterday as commencement speaker at Smith College.

Joel Blocker, an aide to Ms. Kirkpatrick at the United Nations, said her decision stemmed from the college's being unable to promise adequate security against demonstrators at the outdoor commencement May 22.

"She believes college commencements should be pleasant experiences for students, parents and speakers," Blocker said.

The 2,000-student college is the nation's largest privately endowed college for women. Both President Ronald Reagan's wife, Nancy, and Vice President George Bush's wife, Barbara, attended Smith.

Citing Ms. Kirkpatrick's support of the government in El Salvador and other regimes they called "repressive," several Smith students formed the Committee Responsible for Organizing Against Kirkpatrick — CROAK — to collect signatures for a petition urging college trustees not to award her an honorary degree.

At the same time, 110 professors — nearly half the full-time faculty — signed a petition also urging trustees not to award her an honorary degree.

Trustees had planned to meet with the students and professors later this week to discuss their opposition.

Blocker said college officials and Ms. Kirkpatrick agreed she may visit the campus another time for an indoor speech to a Smith audience.

Ms. Kirkpatrick was the second choice of the college's 650 seniors, who cast mail ballots last summer for a commencement speaker. Their first choice, Sandra Day O'Connor, the first woman appointed to the U. S. Supreme Court, declined the invitation.

College officials would not reveal how many votes Ms. Kirkpatrick received. "Those results are always kept confidential," said Marjorie Gove, a college spokeswoman.

One of the leaders of CROAK was senior Miriam Ford of Montclair, N.J., a niece of Ita Ford, one of three Roman Catholic nuns found dead Dec. 4, 1980, in El Salvador during fights between government forces and rebels.

"I was very surprised, but very pleased," Miss Ford said yesterday, citing comments by Ms. Kirkpatrick about the nuns.

The slain women, Ms. Kirkpatrick said in 1980, were "not just nuns, but political activists."

Ms. Gove said Smith officials have not disclosed their plans for a replacement speaker.

World and National News

Reagan launches 'Project Democracy'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's $65 million program to promote democracy around the world was unveiled to Congress yesterday, but skeptical congressmen said it was a bad idea that could create enemies, not friends.

Members of a House subcommittee criticized "Project Democracy" as too vague, questioned whether the administration would promote democracy in friendly as well as unfriendly countries, and predicted that most non-democratic governments would view the program as an attempt to subvert them.

"I don't see how this program can possibly do anything but get us in trouble," said Rep. Peter Kostmayer, D-Pa., in urging the administration to reconsider it. "It seems to be basically a multi-million dollar American propaganda effort."

"The more we look at this thing, the more nervous I become over it," said Rep. Joel Pritchard, R-Wash. He said he fears most nations will regard it as "mischief-making" aimed at toppling non-democratic governments.

"I'm trying to find out who is going to spend the money," said Rep. Dante Fascell, D-Fla., chairman of the subcommitee on international operations of the House Foreign Affairs Committee. "If that is not clearly nailed down in the record, then we are going to have real problems."

Secretary of State George P. Shultz, who unveiled the program before the subcommittee, told the congressmen, "Don't be nervous about democracy, about holding that torch up there."

He said the funds would be spent to train young leaders and strengthen democratic institutions, including labor unions, political parties, news media, businesses and universities, while the chief focus would be in Africa, Asia and Latin America, he said programs would be aimed promoting an "evolution...toward democracy" in the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe as well.

Today's Staff

Night Editor	Paul A. Basken
Copy Editor	Paul Belval
Layout Technician	Will Hopkins
Photo Technician	Drew Ogier
Composition	Sleepy, Dopey, Sneezy Doc, Bashful, Happy Grumpy, Jamie Katz, Matt Sajdak Tim Riviere, Marianne Walsh, Tracy Lang Donna Estabrooks

Subscription Rates

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday excluding vacations, exam periods, or holidays. Subscriptions are available for $18 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Massachusetts. Postmaster: Send address changes to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003.

AP Laserphoto

Ten-year old Juanito, a guerrilla fighter with the leftist army which took control of the town of Tejutla, El Salvador and its 12,000 residents Tuesday, sits outside a store with local children.

Watt decision still leaves states unhappy

WASHINGTON (AP) - Ignoring the wishes of six coastal states, Interior Secretary James Watt said yesterday that only 41 tracts will be deleted from the next lease sale for offshore oil and gas drilling in the North Atlantic.

Massachusetts, Maine, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Connecticut and New Jersey had asked that 98 environmentally sensitive tracts be deleted from Lease Sale 52, consisting originally of 540 tracts in the rich fishing grounds of Georges Bank.

Rep. Norman E. D'Amours, D-N.H., criticized the decision, saying experiments with unproven technology should not be risked on Georges Bank, given the region's severe weather.

"Although Interior deleted 41 particularly sensitive tracts encompassing lobster-and fish-breeding areas, the agency callously ignored our recommendation that 50 deepwater tracts and seven other critical tracts be removed from the sale," said D'Amours, chairman of the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries subcommittee on oceanography.

Rep. Edward Markey, D-Mass., called Watt's decision an invitation to lawsuits.

Rep. Gerry Studds, D-Mass., whose district includes all of Cape Cod, plans to introduce legislation in the House to remove certain tracts from future offshore lease sales. Similar legislation is expected to be introduced in the Senate by Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

In a statement, Watt said the state of Massachusetts had informed the Interior Department that it wished to end negotiations over the terms of Lease Sale 52, scheduled for March 29 in New York City.

"We regret this decision and hope that it will not seriously affect future dealings with Massachusetts," Watt's statement said.

In his statement, Watt said the Interior Department has "made a concerted effort to work closely with the New England states to reach a mutually satisfactory agreement" concerning Lease Sale 52.

Watt said his department's responsibility was to balance the national interest with the interests of the New England coastal states.

"It is unfortunate that external pressures from special interest groups apparently guided the state of Massachusetts' position on Lease Sale 52," the statement said.

"We have not officially received a copy of the decision so we have no comment," said Brian Hardy, a spokesman for Massachusetts Environmental Affairs Secretary James Hoyte, who has led the fight to delete the 98 tracts. Hardy said the state would respond this morning.

Agriculture reviving Vietnamese economy

By ANN McCRORY
Collegian Staff

Trade embargos, destroyed roads and a lack of city industry have hampered the economic recovery of Vietnam since 1973, but have not hindered it completely, a noted Vietnamese historian told a Campus Center audience yesterday.

Ngo Vinh Long, the author of several books on Vietnam and a former student of Henry Kissinger at Harvard University, described his native country, to which he returned for seven months in 1979, as a nation on the mend.

"In general, in spite of all the problems, people are making a lot of headway," said Long, who left the country in 1964. The population had increased 1,000 percent, from 450,000 to 4.5 million, upon his return there in 1979, while food production increased from 11.5 million tons in 1973 to 18 million tons of foodstuffs and 13 million tons of rice in 1979, Long said.

"There's no cases of starvation now," he said, in contrast to early post-war years when 10 million refugees roamed the country-side and city children picked through garbage dumps searching for food.

Increased food production has alleviated the problem, with three and four rice crops a year now being harvested in North Vietnam. The schedule requires "extremely tight labor organization" and has given rise to new varieties of grain, Long said. Peasants decrease the actual supply, however, by using good grain to feed pigs for pork, or leaving it unharvested to attract rats, a Vietnamese delicacy, for game, Long said.

"There's a psychology in Vietnam to make up for what you feel you've been deprived of during the war years," he said, citing immense food consumption--a villager would eat six to ten bowls of rice at one meal--and ignorance of nutrition as additional problems.

A lack of industry in cities, causing a "chronic problem of underemployment" is another hindrance to the nation's economy, Long said.

Businesses created to service the American military stationed in the country are no longer in operation, though the demand for food and manufactured goods for trade with the peasants has not abated. Poor transportation, due to roads destroyed by bombs and vehicles with rusted parts irreplaceable because of trade embargos, has also limited open market food exchanges for city dwellers.

Collegian photo by Drew Ogier

Vietnamese scholar Ngo Vinh Long speaks to students yesterday in the Campus Center on conditions in Vietnam ten years after the war had officially ended.

Collegian photo by Drew Ogier

Birds rest on the Campus Center garage railing as the cloud-enveloped Graduate Research Center tower looms behind them.

Stockbridge dispells farming myths

By JIM FINKLE
Collegian Staff

Getting the public to understand the function and problems of the agricultural community is no easy task, the chairperson of the Stockbridge professional agriculture convention said during a recent interview.

Sarah Cleveland, who chaired the Stockbridge School of Agriculture's sixth annual professional convention, said she is trying to dispell myths about farmers.

"Agriculture doesn't just mean food production," she said, nothing that Stockbridge has seven areas of concentration: aboriculture and park management, agriculture business management, animal agriculture, floriculture, fruit and vegetable crops, landscape operations and turf management.

Approximately 350 students are enrolled in the Stockbridge associate of science degree program, which is part of the College of Food and Natural Resources at the University of Massachusetts.

The program, which requires some students to carry between 16 and 20 credits per semester, involves several months of full-time practical experience in many areas of concentration, Cleveland said.

"They really put their all into something — body, heart and soul," she said.

After completion of the program, students may choose to seek work in their field of interest or enter a four-year program at the School of Food and Natural Resources, she said.

Cleveland said she was chosen to chair this year's professional agriculture convention, which was held last week at the Campus Center, because of her outstanding work in last year's convention.

She said she plans to choose the chairperson for next year's convention within the next few weeks. That person, she said, will then choose representatives from the seven Stockbridge areas of concentration and begin to recruit professionals to speak and exhibit.

She said the chairperson should make sure there is "participation, not only with students, but with the professional community."

In dealing with professionals in the field and attempting to secure proper facilities for the convention, Cleveland said, "No matter how much planning you do in advance, you cannot foresee the problems that will severely affect the final results."

Public awareness of farm issues sought

By JIM FINKLE
Collegian Staff

The public must become aware of the issues facing the farm community for the United States to remain economically stable, according to the Stockbridge Senate President, Michael Boczanowski.

"If they don't understand issues (facing farmers), then we may end up in a depression," he said.

In addition to having the practical knowledge necessary to successfully run a farm, farmers must also act as a business manager, he said.

"He is not just a man with a shovel who drives a tractor," Boczanowski said. "He has to be an economist, a philosopher."

The modern farmer, he said, has to make choices about which crops to plant, whether to use pesticides, how much they should plant, and many other issues that affect their output.

"Sometimes they don't have the chance to make these choices," he said. "The farmer has never been a real political-type person. They would rather leave it up to someone else."

Currently, one percent of the farmers in the United States produce two thirds of the farm crop. He said more and more small farmers are going out of business each year.

"Thomas Jefferson's ideal was a country of small farmers," he said. "As an economic unit, the small farm is much more efficient than the large farm, (where) it's waste, waste, waste."

While the number of small farms continues to decrease, Boczanowski said the need for these farms increases, "because of energy and transportation costs rising."

In addition to fulfilling this need, Boczanowski said he wants to enter the field because he loves the work.

"I love to plant things, I love to watch them grow," he said. "I want a quiet, peaceful life that farming will bring.

"I'd like to go off into the woods and be some sort of naturalist, but there isn't that demand out there."

Senate condemns registration law

By JOHN O'CONNELL
Collegian Correspondent

The Undergraduate Student Senate last night condemned and called for repeal of the Solomon Amendment, which would cut off federal financial aid to students who fail to register for the draft.

The senate also approved funding for two financial aid lobbying trips to Washington, D.C. and placed two referenda questions on the Student Government Association ballot March 7 and 8.

The senate moved to "condemn the Solomon Amendment because of its unconstitutionality and its discriminatory content," according to the motion.

"Financial assistance is a vital part of...equal access to higher education," and the Solomon amendment endangers that equality, the motion said.

Two weeks ago, Financial Aid Director Art Jackson told the senate that paperwork would double as a result of the amendment, and that resulting costs would be taken from financial aid funds. If a student receives aid but has not registered, Jackson said the University's entire financial aid program would be endangered.

Jackson and other University of Massachusetts officials are scheduled to attend a campus-wide meeting on Tuesday, March 1 to initiate a letter writing campaign to respond to the amendment, which was made into law last Sept. 8.

The resolution and the letters will provide students with "something solid to lobby with" when they go down to Washington, said Sheila Sullivan, chairperson of the senate's Public Policy Committee.

"It shows unity and strength," Sullivan said.

The senate also allocated $950 to send 48 members of Students Advocating Financial Aid Assistance (SAFA) to lobby Congress March 6 — 9. That is the best time to

Continued on page 5

Couples to dance the night away

By PAULA HOYT
Collegian Staff

Dancing for 29 hours straight is exhausting, but it is fun and might even help an academic career, according to a student sho will be dancing in the fourth annual Multiple Sclerosis Dance Marathon this weekend at the University of Massachusetts.

"After experienceing a dance marathon, pulling an all-nighter studing is nothing," said Paul Banks, a UMass senior who danced last year.

Fifty-six couples have signed up to dance from 6 p.m. Friday until 11 p.m. Saturday in the Student Union Ballroom.

Each year more people get involved, and more money is made from the event, said Banks, a member of the Pi Kappa Alpha (PIKE) fraternity, which sponsors the marathon.

"We now have 56 couples signed up compared to 32 couples at this time last year," Banks said.

A goal of 60 couples has been set, organizers hope to raise about $20,000 from sponsors this year, Banks said.

The past three marathons raised a total of $36,000 for Multiple Sclerosis, Banks said.

"The proceeds of the marathon go to fighting Multiple Sclerosis through public education and research," said Tom Sinnott, a member of PIKE.

There are three cash prizes for the couples who complete the marathon and collect the most money. The first-place couple collected more than $1,000 last year, Banks said.

"The easiest way to make money is for the dancers to approach businesses in town and at the mall," Banks said.

He said businesses usually are generous sponsors, and they also help by donating small prizes which are awarded to dancers, Banks said.

"Our emphasis is on entertaining the dancers," Banks said. "We have a lot of activities designed to break up the monotony, such as 'name that tune' contests and limbo dancing.

There will be a 15 minute break for the couples every two hours for blood pressure checks and refreshments.

"We provide a lot of citruses and keep up the carbohydrate intake with the food," Banks said.

In the past, only a small percentage of dancers have dropped out before the 29 hours is up, he said.

"Occasionally there is a turned ankle or some blood pressure problems when the dancers cannot continue," he said.

In addition to the dancers, 300 to 400 others are expected to attend a beer and wine party from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. on Friday at the S.U.B.

"We're hoping that because of the party, the marathon will become more of a campus-wide activity.,'Banks said.

"At certain points in the middle of the night, after all the spectators have left, it gets lonely and you wonder what you're doing there. But when the sun comes up on Saturday morning you get psyched and realize you're going to make it.,' said Banks.

"The amount of physical activity the body can endure is amazing," Banks said. "Last year, when the marathon was over, we almost went out to the Pub to dance some more.

Have You Heard About

Our Happy Hour

Happy Hours:
Mon - Fri 4 - 7
Sun - Tues 9 - 11
50° Domestic Drafts
(includes your choice of Michelob, Budweiser, Miller, Miller Lite, Lowenbrau Dark)
75° Heinekens (12 oz)
99° Bar Drinks

Tonight Beck's Night
99¢ from 9:00 - 11:00
Entertainment - Hungry Hill

Watch for more information about Plumbley's 4th Anniversary Feb. 28 - March 3

What's m-m-m-more... for a mere 75¢ you can sup on our Webster's Sampler: enjoy an appetizing platter of Buffalo chicken wings or BBQ ribs...try the Mediterranean bread...or an hors d'oeuvres cheese board!
(While kitchen is open)

Plumbley's off the common
Amherst Center • 253-9586

WANTED
Someone who knows news

The Collegian is looking for one Associate News Editor to coordinate our coverage of the University's administration and faculty. Applicant should have some experience reporting news for a newspaper and be willing to work hard for low pay. We will provide some training and great experience. Interested UMass students should apply before next Friday, Feb. 25, to John DiPalazzo at the Collegian, 113 Campus Center, 545-3500.

MUSIC GALLERY
PEAVEY, IBANEZ, TAMA, JBL, ROLAND, ACOUSTIC, BOSS, LEGEND, EV-TAPCO, HONDO, DEAN, HAMER, FOSTEX.
RT. 9 HADLEY
ON THE BUS ROUTE
586-6228

COME PARTY: UMASS vs MS at S.U.B.

Beer & Wine BAR
— Proper I.D. required

All 18 and over welcome to attend

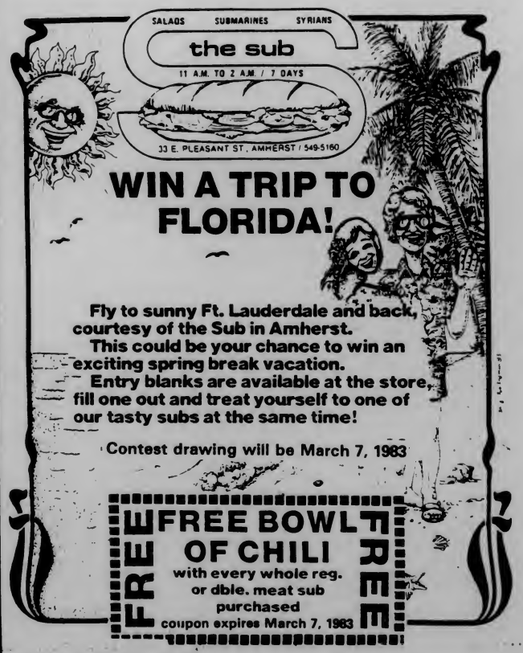
LIVE on WMUA Radio — D.J. Jeff Taylor

FRIDAY NITE — FEB 25 from 9:PM-5:AM!

—Sponsored by the MS Dance Marathon Committee

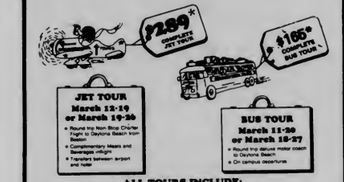
TONIGHT
NURSING ALUMNI CAREER NIGHT
Several Alumni will speak about their past and current experiences in Nursing.
Where?
Campus Center 101
When?
8 pm - 9:30 pm
ALL ARE WELCOME
(students - faculty - others)
Sponsors:
The Division of Nursing
University Placement Service
University Alumni Office

For Additional Information call the Division of Nursing at 545-0405



Thursday
OLDIES
with
Gregg Adams
TWO FOR ONE
9 til 11
all liquor drinks
no cover
THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST

Beachcomber Tours presents
14th ANNUAL
College Spring Break in DAYTONA BEACH



JET TOUR
March 12-19 or March 19-26
• Round trip Non Stop Charter Flight to Daytona Beach from Boston
• Complimentary Meals and Beverages inflight
• Transfers between airport and hotel

BUS TOUR
March 11-20 or March 18-27
• Round trip deluxe motor coach to Daytona Beach
• On campus departure

ALL TOURS INCLUDE:
LAND PACKAGE
• First Class Ocean Front Accomodations for Seven (7) Nights at the Days Inn, Beachside or the Quality Inn Reef, located directly on the Strip in Daytona Beach
• Welcome Party with plenty of FREE BEER
• Exclusive 14th Anniversary ID Card for discounts at Shops, Restaurants, Night Clubs, etc.
• On campus reservation service
• Services of the Beachcomber Staff
• OPTIONAL Kitchenettes, Walt Disney World Tour, New Epcot Center Adventure and more!
Round Trip Transportation from Hartford and Springfield to Boston Airport extended
*PRICE DOES NOT INCLUDE ADDITIONAL $50.00 FOR TAX GRATUITIES AND SERVICE
*$50 Deposit Required - Limited Space Available
Make Reservations by December 15th and
SAVE $20.00
Don't be left out in the COLD!
Contact our campus representative for reservations today
CONTACT STEVEN 549-1671
ALSO AVAILABLE:
JET FLIGHT ONLY 289
BUS TRANSPORTATION ONLY 139
LAND PACKAGE ONLY 139
(includes $7 tax, gratuities and service)
Beachcomber Tours, Inc.
SEE REVERSE FOR MORE DETAILS AND INFORMATION
MEMBER DAYTONA BEACH CHAMBER OF COMMERCE
DEPENDABILITY • QUALITY • SERVICE • SINCE 1969
room still available

Head For The Mountains
UMASS SKI CLUB
Thurs. Night Trip
to
Berkshire East 4-10
Hot Tub Party 11-12
ONLY $9.
SAT. TRIP TO
SUGARBUSH VALLEY
VERMONT
Includes: Transportation
Lift Ticket
Refreshments
ONLY $21
For more info 5-3437

Newslines...

New women's group devoted to providing support to area

"Promoting women and helping promote themselves" are the goals of the Women's Leadership Project (WLP), a new Recognized Student Organization at the University of Massachusetts.

WLP member Karen Carmichael-Brown said the organization devotes itself to "developing leadership and organizing skills for diverse groups of women."

The organization was formed more than a year ago by a small group of undergraduate UMass women which included psychology majors Carmichael-Brown and Jane Zbyszynski, English/women's studies major Mary Kay Yearin, and political science major Susan Cottle.

Carmichael-Brown said the group is committed to "providing women with access to skills they are not traditionally given, so they can participate on an equal level with men."

This semester, the WLP is offering a 3 credit practicum for women student senators on assertiveness, leadership skills, and public speaking.

"One of the group's goals is to make such workshops available to the University at large," Zbyszynski said.

The WPL meets Thursday evenings.

Amherst Selectmen approve ban on night parking at Puffers

Students who plan on partying at Puffer's Pond when the weather gets warmer should be aware of a recent decision by the Amherst Board of Selectmant to ban parking on State Street.

Parking will be banned on State Street (which runs by Puffer's Pond), from Sand Hill Road to the Central Vermont Railroad Bridge from 8:30 p.m. to 6 a.m. daily.

The ban was proposed by the town's Conservation Commission and supported by Police Chief Donald Maia and neighboring residents. Maia said neighbors had complained about traffic problems and noise during the summer months.

"The purpose of the ban is to increase safety at the pond and to eliminate problems of night-time drinking, partying, trashing, and vandalism around the pond," Conservation Director Peter Westover said in letter to the Selectmen.

Westover said neighbors had complained of an increase in rowdy behavior and destruction around the pond at night. Much of the trash picked up by the conservation crew is left their at night, Westover said.

Parking is only allowed on the north side of that section of State Street during the daytime hours.

South Pleasant St. speech to focus on Rhode Island reptiles

Chris Raithel will discuss "Reptiles and Amphibians of Rhode Island" tomorrow night at 7:30 at the Western Massachusetts Herpetological Sociaty, 525 South Pleasant St. Admission is free and open to the public.

Women's conference seeking Volunteers for workshops

The Planning Committee for the fourth annual Women and Business Conference is seeking workshop presenters for the following topic areas: management skills for working women, strategic and business planning for the entrepreneurial woman, and women and economy/issues of the 1980s. Any person with background in these areas and experience leading seminars contact Coordinator Linda Levin at the Division of Continuing Education at 545-2484 for further information. Conference dates are Nov. 4-6; locations in either Northampton or Holyoke are pending.

Ancient Central American topic of speech by Yale professor

Dr. Michael Coe, a professor of anthropology at Yale University and a pre-eminent scholar of Central American archaeology and enthnology, will speak on "Up-dating the Olmec" tomorrow at 3:30 p.m. in Room w-15 of Machmer Hall. Wine and cheese will accompany the discussion.

Nurses to share experiences with students in Career Night

Several nurses employed throughout the state in diverse clinical settings will share their professional experiences tonight from 8 to 9:15 in Room 101 of the Campus Center at the Alumni Career Night, sponsored by the Alumni Office and the Division of Nursing of the University Placement Office. The public is welcome to attend.

★ registration

Continued from page 3

lobby because the budget proposals will be coming out then, said SAFA President Jim Quinn. The trip will be "an excellent way for students to show they are a potent political force," Quinn said.

Funds were also approved to send five students to the United States Student Association National Lobbying Conference, scheduled for March 4 — 6. These students will not lobby Congress directly, but they will learn effective lobbying techniques, Sullivan said.

In other business, the senate approved two referenda questions to appear on the SGA ballot March 7 and 8. The first question will ask students to approve or oppose the proposed General Education Curriculum proposal now under consideration by the Faculty Senate.

The other question will ask students if they support a $1 per semester mandatory fee to fund the State Student Association of Massachusetts, a statewide student advocacy group.

Sound in Motion's Washington's Birthday Sale

Clarion
Clarion Deluxe Mini Chassis In Dash 12 watt AM/FM Stereo Cassette with Deluxe 4" Dual Cone Speakers
$169.00
Clarion AM/FM Stereo Cassette Receiver with pushbuttons
$149.00

Chapman SECURITY SYSTEMS ALARMS FOR ONLY $129.00 INSTALLED

"YOU CAN'T BUY A BETTER INSTALLATION!"

FOX
RADAR DETECTORS
XK Detector $99.00
The People's Choice

SOUND in MOTION
THE CAR STEREO SPECIALISTS
321 Main Street, Amherst 253-9341
(Just up the street from Whole Wheat Pizza)
MasterCard VISA
Store Hours 9 to 5 Mon - Sat Sale Ends This Saturday

FOR A MANAGEMENT CAREER WITH GREAT TASTE
LOOK TO HOST

If you're seeking a career in Restaurant or Retail Management that will be challenging, have impact, and offer a diversified experience, you'll want to take advantage of this opportunity to meet with a representative from Host, February 24 at Career Day.

You'll have a chance to learn all about us through our exciting, multi-image audio visual presentation and afterwards, we'll have the chance to talk with you.

Established in 1897, Host International, Inc., a subsidiary of the Marriott Corporation, is currently one of the nation's largest operators of airport terminal food, beverage and merchandise facilities. We also operate fine dinner houses like Charley Brown's and Casa Maria, located on both coasts.

We're looking for capable, motivated and responsible individuals to help us maintain our unsurpassed reputation for quality and service. In return, we offer careers with excellent growth potential in a spirit of friendly professionalism unequaled by any in the industry.

So, don't miss the opportunity to visit with us. We look forward to discussing the many avenues into the world of Host. If you are unable to meet with us at this time, we'd still like to hear from you in the form of a resume. Please forward it to:

Corporate Recruiters
Host International, Inc.
P.O. Box 1760, Santa Monica, CA 90406
Equal Opportunity Employer M/F

HOST
HOST INTERNATIONAL INC

CARROLL TRAVEL
Low Fares of the Week
Hartford to LA or
San Fran $99.00 one way
Amtrak
Anywhere Fare
$125.00* round trip
*certain restrictions apply
call 256-8931 for more details
15 Cowles Lane, Amherst

UMASS SKI CLUB
Goes North to
Stowe VERMONT
SKI CAPITAL of the EAST.
March 20 - 25 159.00
Includes: Transportation
5 nights hotel accomodations
5 full breakfasts
color TV & steam bath
in every room
5 days skiing
Free Hot Tub Party
2 Free Beer & Wine Parties
Indoor Heated Pool
for more info 5-3437

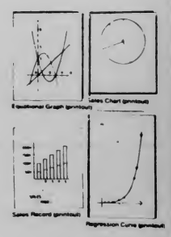
SAVE 195.00 off list price on a Personal Computer with printer.
PC 1500 Personal Computer
Now Only 184.95
with store rebate coupon reg list 300.00
CE-150 original printer 169.95 reg 250.00

SHARP PC-1500

- A new low cost handheld personal computer for professionals, students and home use.
- The PC-1500 features an extended BASIC language operating system capable of handling two-dimensional arrays, variable string lengths, program chaining, full graphic commands and many other features.
- The PC-1500 incorporates 16K bytes of system ROM and 2.6k bytes of user available RAM. Expandable up to 10.6k bytes of RAM by using optional expansion modules.
- 214 page applications manual contains over 50 ready to use programs for math, business, statistics, engineering and game applications.
- Memory Safeguard™, an added feature that conveniently prevents erasure of programs or data, even when the model is turned off.
- 4K-byte and 8K byte RAM expansion modules offer greater programming capacity.
- An 8 bit C-mos CPU enables fast data processing while consuming little energy.
- 7 x 156 dot matrix LCD display that can be programmed to create graphics, figures or special symbols.
- A special tone generation allows the programmer to add the dimension of sound.
- A simplified instruction manual that allows a beginner or an advanced programmer to begin programming immediately.
- Automatic Power Off (APO)™ saves power by turning off the computer when left unattended.
- 26 character wide LCD display.
- Full ASCII character set with upper and lower cases.

CE-150

- The CE-150, an optional printer/cassette interface, provides four color graphics, 9 different character sizes and X, Y plotting capability.
- The CE-150 can be programmed to print in 9 different character sizes ranging from 4 to 35 digits per line.
- Notate commands allow the CE-150 to print up, down, left or right.
- Uses plain paper.
- Comes with an attractive carrying case, A/C adapter/charger, 3 rolls of paper and dual cassette cables.
- Prints a hard copy "list" of your entire program.



15.00 Rebate on a PC 1500
$15.00 Rebate on PC 1500
15.00 Rebate on a PC 1500

Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4
Located in the Campus Center

UNIVERSITY STORE

UMASS SKI CLUB GOES DOWN TO FT. LAUDERDALE

SPRING BREAK 83

8 Days 7 Nights Luxurious Hotel on the Strip

Hotel only	W/Motor Coach	W/Jet
$149 tax included	$275 tax included	$369 tax included

For more Information 545-3437

Don't be abused by Price Games
The Ski Club has only luxury hotels and no hidden costs

EDITORIAL/OPINION

Equal access for all

It recently became apparent that the Board of Regents were slowing their campaign to raise current admission standards for state universities and colleges. We whole heartedly support this change in action by the state's omnipotent higher education board and applaud the Regents' effort to consult with those most affected by the standards change before recommending any policy switch.

Like the Regents, we want to see stronger academic requirements for admission to the states higher education system. Higher standards translates into a stronger academic community, a more motivated student population and a teaching faculty with a stronger impetus for educational devotion. It is the methods which were proposed and the inevitable problems these could still create which the board opposes.

The first proposal, the raising of SAT scores for incoming freshmen reflects the problems inherent in this arbitrary system of college entrance examinations. Minorities, who have traditionally attended schools in districts with below average academic standards also traditionally score lower on the SAT's. Because of this cultural bias, the numbers of minorities admitted using this new admissions criteria would inevitably drop.

This University already has a minority enrollment of less than three percent and an increased reliance on SAT's will result in even lower minority enrollment. It is interesting to note that University officials are expressing concern that the use of higher SAT's are racist, but have not moved in correcting the intolerably low minority population at UMass.

The Regents pledge to increase minority enrollment by requiring institutions to develop an Affirmative Action recruitment plan. But unlike the proposed admission criteria for public colleges and universities, the Regents are not requiring that institutions develop minimum guidelines for Affirmative Action recruitment. The Regents have the responsibility to set minimum minority employee student recruitment levels for the public institutions they control.

The second proposal put forth by the Regents suggests a stronger weighing of class rank in determining whether or not a student should attend a state college or university. Because of different demographics throughout the state, different levels of high school education and the difficulty of comparing class rank from school to school, many well-qualified students would be denied admission to state colleges. Students from highly competitive schools should not be penalized for their class rank, something which this proposal would inevitably do.

We are not questioning the sincerity of the recent suggestions concerning admissions standards put forth by the Board of Regents. It is the discriminatory, arbitrary nature of the proposals which we oppose. Higher education at the state level will only be of true quality, when all, and not a select few, have equal access to the resources offered by state colleges and universities.

Policy editorials represent the opinions of a majority of the Collegian Board of Editors

A solution to poverty needed

Editor's Note: This is the last part of a two part series.

Yesterday, we discussed the problem of rising poverty in Massachusetts, and how this has been exacerbated by the decreases in federal aid.

Poverty in the state is higher now than at any time in the past twenty years. The "New Federalism" instituted by Reagan and his administration has neglected its responsibility toward its citizens. The concept of the state providing "insurances" such as welfare, disability benefits, Aid to Families With Dependent Children (AFDC), social security, job training programs, and funding for public education have been discarded to a large degree in favor of a laissez-faire attitude in which little assistance is given, and everyone must fend for themselves.

Josh Meyer

As a result, poverty has gotten worse for a large number of Massachusetts citizens, and has affected many more that were otherwise financially independent.

These problems are the result of several trends. Average family income has been declining in terms of actual dollars spent after inflation and taxes are taken into account. Discrimination against women, Blacks, Hispanics, and other minorities has been increasing as the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission and other federal agencies neglect their duty of prosecuting discrimination cases. Federal aid for public education has been decreasing, to the point where those who can afford to send their kids to private or "good" public schools are assuring them of future success or even equal competition.

Some suggestions to these problems would be to assess the effectiveness of exiting social programs and to assess the actual needs of the poor. Ensuring that the people who really need the money get it, not students on food stamps and people who get paid under the table who want the "extra dough". Block grants to the state must be allocated efficiently and to the right sources, to prevent bureaucratic waste and overlapping of funds. Block grants should include provisions which guarantee funding for social programs like welfare, AFDC, disability benefits, job training programs, education, health and child care.

The needs of working mothers, like day care for their children and supervision of hiring and wage discrimination policies must be met to reverse the trend of the "feminization of poverty." Legal services for the poor must also be maintained at adequate levels.

It is obvious that Massachusetts will suffer greatly from the combination of Proposition 2½ and the cutoff of federal aid. The New Federalism is a joke, but not a funny one. The consolidation of human services programs into block grants provides no assurances that these programs will be funded at all. The new procedures and reduced allocations for federal funds have lowered expenditures for human service programs in the state by at least $50 million in the next two years. The weight of these cuts, some of which amount to 50 percent of the 1981-82 budget, fall disproportionately on the most disadvantaged groups — women, Blacks, Hispanics, children and the elderly. Without significant state intervention, or changes in federal policy, the standard of living for almost everyone will drop drastically. Children will grow up underfed and undernourished, undereducated and without adequate medical care. Despair, hopelessness, and lack of self-esteem will exacerbate the problem into a vicious cycle. Domestic violence, if not, child abuse, family disintegration, crime and juvenile delinquency, poor mental health, drug and alcohol abuse, and even suicide would be "by-products" of this New Federalism. The attitude of Ronald Reagan, David Stockman, and the other well-to-do politicians that have responsibility for the welfare of the country and the state of Massachusetts is a sickness that must be cured now, before the changes it has made are irreversible.

Josh Meyer is a Collegian columnist

Letters

Key to winning is fan support

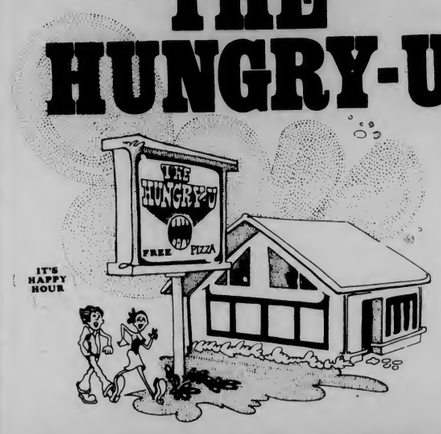
To the Editor:

It seems that everytime I pick up a Collegian these days there is an editorial in it opposing some student group or organization. I also notice that in every one of these editorials the writer manages to include the words sexism or racism. It really never bothered me before until I read the worse one of them all. It was entitled "40 Minute Gang rude, unsportsmanlike, and embarassing". The only thing rude, unsportsmanlike, and embarassing about this letter was that my fellow UMass students wrote it. I don't care if you're black, white, yellow, red, male, female or gay. The bottom line is that you're wrong. It seems that you'd have more to worry about while attending college than what someone was yelling at a basketball game. Let me tell you the real facts.

Tom McLaughlin came here two years ago to build a basketball program. I would say rebuild but he really had nothing to start with. McLaughlin, as well as any other major college coach, knew that the key to winning was first to regain fan support, then bring in better high school talent. What great high school star would come to a school with only 50 people attending the games? McLaughlin established the "40 Minute Gang" and launched an advertising campaign that has restored respect to the UMass Varsity Basketball team. And if you didn't notice, the talent on the team has also increased tremendously. I feel the "40 Minute Gang" is instrumental in bringing the crowd back as well as keeping them in the cage. Instead of putting some individual down because of what he said, you should commend him for attending the game and supporting his team. If what he said bothered you that much, you should have just walked away and sat somewhere else. There are plenty of people who are anxious to sit with us (behind the visitor's bench). It would be nice if athletic contests were won or lost on the basis of skill and talent of the players, but that's just not the way it is. I've gone to games at Villanova, St. Johns, and Boston College. The same type of attitude is held by their fan clubs. They're pretty respectable schools. Nothing Dave said was overly obnoxious and it's not any different than what you'd hear at those schools. This 'Home Court Advantage' is very important in college athletics. It can change the course of a game so much that it might enable a young, learning UMass team to beat such national powers as West Virginia, Rutgers and Penn State.

Alan Oskowsky
40 Minute Gang President

THE HUNGRY-U



Happy Hour Thursday 9 - close
Friday 2 - 5:30

FREE PIZZA

55 UNIVERSITY DR Amherst Mass. TEL. 549-5713

50¢ DRAFTS 99¢ BAR DRINKS

this summer come to clark university

- Late afternoon and evening courses allowing for summer employment
- Traditional college courses
- Intensive language study
- Study abroad programs in Mexico, Germany, Italy, and China
- Innovative job related courses for liberal arts students

Dates:
Summer Session I—May 17-June 24
Summer Session II—June 27-Aug. 5
Italy summer program—June 5-25
Mexico summer program—June 27-Aug. 5
China summer program—Aug. 18-Sept. 3
For further information, write:
Summer Programs
College of Professional and Continuing Education
Clark University
Worcester, MA 01610
or call Elizabeth Coates
at Clark University in Worcester, 793-7217.

UNION RECORDS WANTS YOU!

COME TO OUR WINTER BLIZZARD SALE AND DON'T BE ONE TO MISS OUT ON THESE GREAT SAVINGS

MISSING PERSONS - SPRING SESSION M
EDDIE MONEY - NO CONTROL
BILLY SQUIER - EMOTIONS IN MOTION
PAT BENATAR - GET NERVOUS
BOB SEGAR - THE DISTANCE
J GEILS - SHOWTIME

THE STUDENT RUN STORE

Black Affairs

Organization's proud past blurred by present

By MANNING MARABLE
From The Grassroots

I first learned about the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE) in the spring of 1961, during the civil rights movement. In December, 1960, the Supreme Court ruled in "Boynton v. Virginia" that racial segregation was illegal on all interstate buses and trains, and in all transportation terminals. On May 4, 1961, thirteen members of CORE, including national director James Farmer, traveled into the Deep South.

Predictably, the biracial group encountered violent resistance. John Lewis and another "Freedom Rider" were assaulted in Rock Hill, South Carolina on May 9. White mobs in Anniston, Alabama, attacked and burned one bus. In Montgomery, Alabama, white racists pulled Freedom Riders off the bus and gave them a brutal beating. In Jackson, Mississippi, Farmer and a group of 26 Freedom Riders were given 67 day jail sentences for sitting in the "whites-only" sections of the city's bus depot. Farmer's jail term served to mobilize every CORE chapter. Hundreds made the journey south to join the Freedom Rides.

In later years, CORE became a 'Black Power" formation, aligning itself with the more radical Student Non-violent Coordinating Committee. CORE leader Floyd McKissick stood second only to Stokely Carmichael as a nationally-known proponent of black nationalism. McKissick and CORE attacked the Johnson Administration's illegal and immoral war in Vietnam. One might disagree with CORE's controversial political stands, but not even its worst critics could claim that the organization did not identify with the goals and ideals of the oppressed Black community.

Today, this statement is no longer true. Inch by inch, CORE has retreated from the vanguard of progressive struggle into the open arms of the forces of Reaganism, racism and economic reaction. From "Black Power" of the 1960's, CORE and its leader Roy Innis have abandoned their militant history for acceptance into the posh corridors of the ruling military-industrial complex.

In 1976, CORE pushed the plan to recruit Afro-Americans to fight as mercenaries against the new progressive government of Angola. Innis advocated support for UNITA, a black puppet organization which is backed by the Republic of South Africa and the United States. Objectively, CORE was placing its name and prestige in the service of international terrorism and white supremacy.

Finally, last month, CORE reached an all-time low in the annals of the civil rights movement. At the fortieth anniversary convention of the organization, CORE gave a special award to a rightwing reactionary, Gen. William Westmoreland, who commanded U.S. troops in Vietnam. Innis declared that any criticisms of Westmoreland were unfair because "the man was (just) carrying out orders."

CORE also presented a special award to a black vice president of Anheuser Busch brewery. The firm is currently engaged in a struggle with Jesse Jackson, Operation PUSH, and other civil rights leaders of the lack of adequate affirmative action and critical black economic support. Thus Innis and CORE, by applauding Anheuser Busch at this time, have undermined efforts of civil rights activists.

At some point, we must begin to hold our so-called black leadership accountable when they objectively and pathetically serve the interests of multinational corporations and international racism. For unlike the Jesse Jacksons, whose emotional grandstanding and florid rhetoric may simply irritate, Innis has moved beyond the boundaries of political opportunism "into the camp of the enemy". The rich history of CORE and its vision of equality has been uprooted by a group of self-serving black elites who reinforce the processes of racist exploitation and economic oppression.

Female quintet to perform

"In it's eight years of existence, Sweet Honey in the Rock has become as historically vital as the National Archives" (Washington Post, 3/82). A quintet of Black women singers whose music is rooted in the tradition of Black American unaccompanied choral singing, SWEET HONEY IN THE ROCK returns to Northampton for a performance on Sunday, February 27 at 2 PM in J.M. Greene Hall at Smith College. The concert, produced by Variations in cooperation with the Smith College Black Student Alliance, Mwangi Cultural Center, and Women's Resource Center is Variations tribute to Black History Month.

Formed out of a vocal workshop in 1973 led by Bernice Johnson Reagon, then director of the D.C. Black Repertory Theater, Sweet Honey in the Rock is entering its tenth year of performing, and presently consists of Bernice Johnson Reagon, Evelyn Maria Harris, Yasmeen Bheti Williams, Ysaye Maria Barnwell, and Aisha Kahlil.

Sweet Honey's name comes from a biblical parable about a land so rich that honey flows from rocks. Explains Reagon, "We say that Black women are that land because it expresses our richness and strength."

The women of Sweet Honey are each accomplished soloists who combine to create a "stunning, sweet and powerful expression of traditional Black music." (Sweet Potato, Minn.).

They sing spirituals, gospel, blues and rhythm and blues. Their voices together create an awesome instrument for the expression of this music, imaginatively using dissonance and tiered harmonies, wordless growls and noises, and complex rhythmic structures.

Singing as Black people, as women, as political people; singing about nuclear power, occupational hazards, racism, sexism, and even love — Sweet Honey in the Rock never lose their sense of humor and convey a powerful message of hope and strength. The issues they address are hard ones, yet inherent in Sweet Honey's art is optimism and love.

Tickets for Sweet Honey in the Rock are $6; $7; $9; $4 under 16/over 70/hearing impaired, $1 more at the door. Tickets are available in Northampton at Country Comfort, Womonfyre Books, and Platterpus Records; in Amherst at Food for Thought and For the Record; in Springfield at Main Music; Greenfield at World Eye Bookshop; Brattleboro at Maple Leaf Music; Hartford at Sonya Westone Books and Cheese; and by mail (send SASE before Feb. 17) from Variations, PO Box 833, Northampton, MA 01061.

Political comedy mirrors struggle

The Third World Theater Series of the University of Massachusetts at Amherst opens the Spring 1983 season with, "For Better Not For Worse", a political comedy of hope and struggle for South Africa's future, presented by the American Committee on Africa, written by Selaelo Maredi co-author of last seasons original performance of "Homeland". With a humorous flair, Selaelo makes us laugh and cry about the brutal and painful struggles of living in a country ruled by racial hatred. The drama revolves around two Black men Shaye and Memphane both from Johannesburg, both fighting the bitter results of a system ruled by apartheid.

Memphane, still distraught over the loss of his wife, has to deal with the disappearance of one of his two daughters who was followed into exile by the security police and killed. His other daughter is struggling to go to school in Pretoria.

This unfortunate drama is skillfully intertwined with African fables and folk songs which alleviates the tension caused by the profound message of "For Better Not For Worse". Free childcare will be provided by calling 545-0190.

Playwright/actor Selaelo Maredi, will be appearing in his original play "For Better Not for Worse." Saturday, February 26, 1983, Bowker Aud., 8 p.m.

Announcements

Greetings! Each year the Black Students Alliance of Smith College sponsors a Black Arts Festival during the first weekend of March. The Festival culminates Black History Month and is a celebration of our rich Black heritage. The Festival also includes Alumnae activities. This year the Festival begins on Thursday, March 3 and ends Sunday, March 6. Our theme for this year is "Variations: A Spectrum of Our Culture", a theme recognizing that Black culture encompasses Afro-American, Afro-Caribbean, and African traditions. We invite you to join us for the weekend and share the breadth of our culture. The events for the weekend are:

Thursday, March 3;
Tribute to Black Womanhood Award, 8:00 p.m. in Neilson Browsing Room. This year's receipient is Paule Marshall, author of Brown Girl, Brownstones and other works about West Indian life in America. A reception will follow this event.

Friday, March 4;
Alumnae Registration, 3-6 p.m. in the Florence M'Wangi David Graham Dubois Reception (to honor the son of W.E.B. Debois) Friday, March 4, 1982 at 3:00. Official opening of traveling exhibit, Augusta Savage Gallery, New Africa House, 10-5, February 21-March 11

Attention all students of Color!!! The Black Mass Communication Project needs individuals interested in Radio, News, and Print media to become involved in our organization. There will be a meeting Thursday night 2/24/83 at 7 p.m. in rm. 908 C.C. and Monday 2/28/83 at 7:15 in 113, Everywoman's Center. A support group for underemployed women will be offered at Everywoman's Center beginning Tuesday, February 15 from 7 to 9:00 p.m.

Meeting for eight sessions, the group will focus on what underemployment is/isn't, coping with the stresses of underemployment, and helping individuals to feel comfortable with their present life circumstances in light of the current American economic scene. This support group will be facilitated by Gerda Kunkel and is free and confidential. Please contact the Everywoman's Center at 545-0883 to sign up for the group or for more information. Childcare will be provided upon request.

On Wednesday, March 2, a representative from the University of Hartford, in conjunction with insurance companies in the Hartford area will be on campus to interview minority students for summer internships that will prepare them for a career in insurance and a master's program in insurance or Business Administration. Only juniors are eligible. This opportunity is open for ALL majors. For sign-ups please go to Placement Services, Room 203, Hampshire House. For more information and applications, please see John Lopes at CCEBMS,5-0031. These are paid positions and an excellent opportunity for the first 14 students to sign up.

Celebrate African-American culture in fine style with "DUSK", a dance/theatre collective featuring: Patti O'Neal, Ingrid Askew, Curtis Santiago, and Michelle Bodden. 'DUSK" will give a free performance on Friday, February 25th at UMass Bowker Auditorium at 8 p.m.

STUDENTS SAVE 40%
SUBSCRIBE BY
4:00 PM, FEBRUARY 25!

ASHES
March 3-5, 9-12 at 8:00 pm
David Rudkin's drama of a young couple whose yearning for a child becomes an obsession as the odds turn more and more against them is a work of stunning power — frank, compassionate, laced with ironic humor.

THE COMEDY OF ERRORS
April 7-9, 13-16 at 8:00 pm
This is not your typical Shakespearean play. It isn't romantic and lyrical. It is pure farce, fast and bawdy, peopled with acrobats, jugglers, musicians, and hookers. Think you hate Shakespeare? You'll love THE COMEDY OF ERRORS.

COMPANY
May 5-7, 11-14 at 8:00 pm
This brilliant, sophisticated musical by Stephen Sondheim manages to be very funny about the subject of marriage by taking it very seriously. Set to music that reflects the pulse of Manhattan life, COMPANY is about growing up and becoming human in our times.

THE RAND THEATER
FINE ARTS CENTER
Phone: 545-3511

SUBSCRIBE NOW TO SPRING 1983 AT THE RAND THEATER
Please clip and mail to: Rand Theater Box Office, Fine Arts Center University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003
NAME
STREET CITY STATE ZIP
PHONE (days) (evenings)
I wish to order Rand Theater subscriptions @ $7.50* each and/or Student/Senior citizen subscriptions at $4.50* each for the following dates (please circle one date for each production):
ASHES March 4 5 9 10 11 12
THE COMEDY OF ERRORS April 7 8 9 13 14 15 16
COMPANY May 5 6 7 11 12 13 14
GALA OPENING NIGHT! March 3, April 7, May 5. You are invited to meet the cast at a reception after the show.
Patrons with discounted tickets must show appropriate ID at the door.
* PLEASE NOTE: Subscriptions for $7.50 and $4.50 expire Friday, February 25 at 4:00 p.m. Subscriptions after that date will cost $9.00 for the general public and $6.00 for students.
Enclosed please find my check or money order for $ payable to the Rand Theater.

HIGHEST PRICES PAID
- FOR -
GOLD & SILVER
IN ALL FORMS
MANHAN JEWELLERS
3 PLEASANT ST (CORNER OF MAIN)
NORTHAMPTON MA 01060
(413) 584-7000

8 Days/7 Nights!
Spring Break
FLORIDA
SPECIAL STUDENT VACATION RATES
$99 Ft. Lauderdale
$109 Daytona Beach
RATES INCLUDE 7 NIGHTS LODGING
Free DISNEY WORLD EXCURSIONS From Daytona Beach
Optional $89 Round trip Transportation Available to Ft. Lauderdale & Daytona Beach
Free*
• Welcome Party
• Beer Bashes
• Pool Parties
• Sports Tournaments
• Wiener Roasts
& much more...
*Daytona Beach
TRIP DATES CAREFULLY PLANNED TO COINCIDE WITH YOUR SCHOOL BREAK
All accommodations are fully air conditioned with private bath or shower color television, some with kitchenettes & are maid serviced. All are nearby the Top Night Spots
Call about our Special Car Rental Offer For Fort Lauderdale
All rates are subject to 5% tax & service charge
FREE BROCHURES INFORMATION & IMMEDIATE CONFIRMATION - CALL
ANDREA (413) 546-9627
AN INTERCOLLEGIATE PROGRAM MARKETED BY CAMPUS VACATION ASSOCIATION
Act Now! Don't be left out in the COLD...

in honor of International Women's Day
TYDE PRODUCTIONS
and the womens event planning committee

PHOEBE SNOW
with Special Guest
Debbie Fier
March 8, 1983
8:00 P.M.
Tickets on Sale Feb. 25
students 5.00, 6.00 gen. pub. 6.00, 7.00
on campus: tix unlimited and the fine arts center box office
Amherst: for the record
Northampton: womonfyre books
all ticketron locations
thanx UMass Arts Council
FINE ARTS CENTER UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS

Arts

Live Wire
by Dave Chevan

Hi friends! — this is not a good weekend for staying at home, unless you have an incredibly good excuse. There are so many quality shows packed into this weekend that I would suggest emptying your bank accounts right away and spending every cent you've got on weekend clubbing.

Tonight you have a choice among three local long time celebrity bands. Jim K. and Co. will be at Sheehan's for a two night stand. Incredible guitar player that Jim. Over at the Hangar is a group that recently became famous as Judith Ann Marie's backup band, but don't be fooled; Loose Caboose are very fine purveyors of that slow train called reggae music. Finally, a mix of rockabilly, Motown, and blue-eyed soul all come together with Pleasure Dots over at the Wok.

Friday night features the cry of swing that thing with local horn threats, the Valley Big Band at the Wok, and Widespread Depression's vibes player Johnny Holtzman at the Iron Horse Coffeehouse. Hotzman is starting a new career as a solo artist and he is hot. He'll be flaying the swingingest mallets this side of Lionel Hampton, so watch out.

Saturday night promises all one could ever wish with everyone's favorite excitable boy, Warren Zevon, performing at the Rusty Nail. If the show is sold out, there's always the Bobbies at the Hangar, the Black History Month Dance Party at the Bluewall, and Sheehan's will feature the Pleasure Dots.

Other local news: the Al Fuller band recently released a single, which is supposed to be pretty good. Other local bands planning to release material include local fusion whizzes, Urban Renewal. Word has it a nine song cassette album is ready and should be out within a few weeks. More as the story develops.

So, whatever you do with your weekend, be sure to enjoy it. And if you're driving, be careful, remember, the life you save could be mine.

Play by Play
by Pam Madnick

If you have even the slightest interest in theater, this is the best week to get involved. The Valley is overflowing with college and professional productions, workshops, auditions and lectures by an internationally-known director.

Smith College presents The Miracle Worker, a touching story about Helen Keller. Performances are tonight, tomorrow and Saturday at 8 p.m. in Theater 14, at Smith. Tickets are $4 general admission and $2 for students and senior citizens. For reservations, call 584-3023.

You Can Never Tell by George Bernard Shaw will be performed Friday, Saturday and Sunday at 8 p.m. in Fayerweather Theater, at Amherst College. The production is directed by Cheryl Toto and will serve as her senior thesis. Tickets are $1.

South African actor and playwright Salaelo Maredi will lecture Saturday at Hampshire College on "Black South African Theater. At Home and In Exile." The one and a half hour lecture begins at 1:30 p.m. in Emily Dickenson Hall, Division 1, Hampshire.

Maredi's For Better, Not For Worse will be performed Saturday in Bowker Auditorium. The production is sponsored by the Third World Theater.

Also Saturday, Iris Bloom will lead a one-day workshop in "Introductory Clowning for Women. "The group will experiment with basic clowning, character work, falls, rolls, tumbles and juggling. For more info., call Iris at 584-5888.

Gerald Chapman of the Young Playwrights Program will conduct a "Children's Playwriting Workshop" on Feb. 3 and 4 from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the Common Room, Wright Hall, Smith College. Chapman has worked extensively with minority teenagers here and in London. Because there is limited enrollment in the workshop, it is suggested that you reserve a space by calling the Smith College Theater Department.

Student Dance a real delight

STUDENT DANCE CONCERT
Friday, February 18
Bowker Auditorium

By JULIE PROCOPIOW
Collegian Staff

Is it a bird? Is it a plane? Is it Superman? "No, silly", I found myself saying to the person sitting next to me last Friday night in Bowker Auditorium. "Those people flying across the stage are dancers in the University of Massachusetts' Student Dance Concert!" And as I sat observing the various dancers seemingly fly across the stage, I thought to myself, "Wow, these people really can dance!"

The majority of the dance pieces, eleven in all, were in modern dance, which seems to be the most popular form of dance at present. I was genuinely impressed with practically all of the pieces presented; I witnessed some real talent.

One of my favorite pieces of the evening was titled "Bonding",choreographed by Stephen White, and included the fine artistic dance style of Phoebe Farber, Pamela Heffler, and Carl House. The way in which they presented their almost flawless performance of mostly modern dance was really quite impressive, as they took advantage of the whole stage to create a mood of attachment between three people.

Another piece that I especially enjoyed was called "Soltice" which was more in the style of jazz. This piece included 8 dancers who donned multi-colored leotards and skirts, and was beautifully choreographed by Dianna Williams. This dance was quite representative of a great many of the pieces I saw, for its tone was light and airy.

Some pieces were, however, rather sombre and the dancers of these pieces were quite successful in setting such a mood. The first sequence, "Les Crimes D'Amour" and the last one before intermission, "Crucifigor Solus", were especially dark and left the audience anxiously anticipating a revival of spirit in the second half of the show.

All in all, the show was a real delight as it helped to illustrate the true talent of many of our University's promising young dancers. I wish that more people had a chance to see the show, but don't despair, spring '83 promises more nights of worthwhile dancing entertainment.

Collegian photo by Ann Lamery

Student dancers perform a piece called Toute Seule, from the Student Dance Concert which was held last Friday.

Winston simply extraordinary

GEORGE WINSTON
Sunday, February 20, 1983
Academy of Music, Northampton

By DAVID CHEVAN
Collegian Staff

One of the hardest tasks facing a performer of so called "art music" is to draw the audience into the music without alienating anyone. Sunday's performance by Windham Hill recording artist George Winston proved that it is possible to take your audience just about anywhere you please. Winston, an accomplished pianist, performed music ranging from open ended tonal pieces to down and dirty rock 'n roll, yet not once during his performance did he lose his audience.

The moment he walked on the stage it was apparent this was not going to be an average show. Dressed in checked flannels and blue jeans, he was far from the image of ethereal his music creates. Winston made a few jokes about having to get up so early in the morning to perform at two in the afternoon and then commenced to entrance the audience with an extended piece entitled "Colors."

Winston's compositional style is so extraordinarily simple one could be easily fooled into thinking there's nothing to it; however his ability to give each composition a completely unique personality is not a simple feat. Winston's music usually begins with a quiet "A" section, during which a spacey three or four note pattern is repeated and modulated. Then he moves into as many as three or four other movements which are often entirely unrelated to the beginning except for the fact they are still in the same key. Following the middle movements, Winston restates the original theme often, allowing his notes to ring on and on. This ringing effect is one of the highlights of Winston's music. He will play a few notes and then allow them to ring, one into the other. Winston likes this effect and humorously referred to it at one point as "astral projection" music.

One of the highpoints of the show came early when Winston broke the somber atmosphere with a rendition of Vince Guraldi's music from the Peanuts T.V. specials. The piece, "Linus and Lucy," came from the Charlie Brown Christmas..."you know, when Charlie Brown asks Schroeder to play some music for the Christmas pageant, but he plays this boogie woogie thing instead." Winston also played a couple of strident piano pieces including a Fats Waller composition, "Cat and Mouse."

Not one to be limited strictly to the piano, Winston performed a short composition on guitar and a three movement piece on harmonica. The show ended with another Vince Guraldi composition, "Come Rain or Shine."

Some other features which made the show enjoyable were the intelligent use of lighting on the stage and Winstons's ability to give even following the performance. Waiting in the lobby for all those who wished, were sheet music copies of two of the pieces he performed during the afternoon. The show was sponsored by the Iron Horse Coffeehouse, a club that has become increasingly involved with bringing quality acts to the area.

The rusty nail presents
Sat. Feb. 26 Warren Zevon
Sun. Feb. 27 Tower of Power
Tickets available at "For the Record" (in Faces) Amherst
Rt. 47 Sunderland, MA 665-4937 You must be 18 to enter.

CAMP COUNSELORS WANTED

Timber Lake Camp, one of New York State's top co-ed summer camps, is seeking high-quality general counselors. Specialists also needed in basketball, softball, soccer, tennis, roller hockey, waterfront (W.S.I.) for lake, indoor and outdoor heated pools, audio/visual, arts and crafts, computers, AM radio, ham radio, television production.
Applications for maintenance, grounds & dining room staff also being accepted.
Contact T.L.C.'s UMASS representative:

Rich Tyroler
1112 Kennedy 546-7762
for application or interview

• Styles by Deborah • Styles by Deborah • Styles by Deborah • Styles by Deborah • Styles by Deborah • Styles by Deborah • Styles by Deborah • Styles by Deborah •

GIVE YOUR HAIR A NEW LIFE WITH A

FREE Shampoo with any Style Haircut
or
FREE Reconditioning Treatment
With any other salon service
With this Coupon Coupon expires 2/30/83

NOW ANNOUNCING OUR SPECIAL FAMILY DISCOUNTS

Styles by Deborah
65 University Drive Amherst
Please call for an appointment. 549-5610

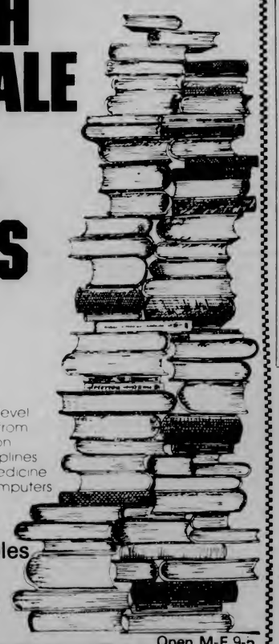
• Styles by Deborah • Styles by Deborah • Styles by Deborah •

SCI-TECH BOOK SALE

65-90% SAVINGS OFF ORIGINAL PUBLISHED PRICES

Come pick up a stack of high-level scientific and technical books from leading publishers. Our selection ranges through numerous disciplines including physics, chemistry, medicine, mathematics, engineering, computers and more. Your savings range from a tremendous 65% to an unbelievable 90%

On Special Sale Tables located in the Trade Book Dept.



UNIVERSITY STORE
Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4
Located in the Campus Center

Hypercurricula

"Hypercurricula," a listing of events held at the University of Massachusetts and the surrounding area, is published daily in the Collegian. Events are listed on the day they will take place and are listed only once. Announcements MUST be submitted on "Hypercurricula" forms available in the Collegian office, 113 Campus Center, and returned by 3:45 p.m. Friday before the event is to be held. All submissions should be written in the same style as they appear in the paper.

"Hypercurricula" notices not submitted on the standard form and not submitted by the Firday before the week the event will take place will not be run. Due to space limitations, the Collegian cannot guarantee printing of all "Hypercurricula" notices. Priority will be given to UMass organizations.

SUMMER SCHOOL — ENGLAND — A representative from the University of Warwick (England) will be on campus to meet with interested students about summer courses in history, law and education in England. 9 to 11 a.m., International Programs Office, 237 Whitmore.

NUCLEAR WEAPONS FREEZE PROXIES — UMass Peacemakers will have a table for students, staff, and faculty to sign proxy forms which will be hand carried to Washington on March 7 and 8. 9 to 3:30, Campus Center Concourse.

INTERNSHIPS PLANNING SESSION — A one-hour Planning Session which will provide detailed information about internship opportunities in all fields and application procedures. Sign up in advance by phone or in person. Office of Internships, 16 Curry Hicks, 545-0727. 12-1, 4-5 p.m., Office of Internships.

ASTRONOMY CLUB MEETING — A general meeting, open to the Five-College students and their faculty. Refreshments will be served. 7:30 p.m., GTWR 1033.

ANTI-RACISM TOWN MEETING — The Anti-Racism Team is holding it's first general meeting of the semester. The team is a group of students committed to abolishing racism on campus. All are welcome to attend. 4 p.m., 811 Campus Center.

ASIAN-AMERICAN MEETING — Important issues. Co-sponsoring play "Yellow Fever" and an AASA promotion table in C.C. Concourse. We need your help in helping everyone of you. 6:30 p.m., Campus Center 905-09.

FRENCH CLUB MEETINGS — All are welcome to the next French Club Meeting. Come learn about French culture, wines, films, food, etc. Get involved in the many activities planned for the semester. 4 p.m., Herter 3rd floor lounge.

COMMUNICATIONS CLUB MEETING — There will be a ComStu Club Meeting, followed by a wine & cheese Happy Hour. 4 p.m., Machmer E-37.

JEWISH FEMINIST ORGANIZATION MEETING — Come to the first J.F.O. meeting of the semester to help plan and organize programming and cultural events for the semester. 4:30 p.m., Dukes room.

ETA SIGMA PHI LECTURE SERIES — Prof. Gilbert Lawall will speak on Virtus and Pietas in Seneca's play Hercules Furens; general meeting of Classics Club. After shop-talk; refreshments. 5 p.m., Herter 301.

HAMANTASCHEN BAKING — We're getting ready to celebrate Purim on Saturday night and will be making a variety of different flavors of Hamantaschen. Join in on the fun! 7 p.m., Earthfoods Kitchen.

EMERGENCY MEDICAL TECHNICIAN SEMINAR — (The Five College chapter of EMTS will sponsor) A seminar entitled "The Legal Implications of Emergency Medical Care." The speaker will be Mr. Thomas C. Grassia; Esquire; REMT-A. Approved by OEMS for 3 CEV credit hours. 6:30 p.m., Dickenson Hall, Room 112.

WINE AND CHEESE CONVERSATION HOURS — Come and speak French and Italian with native people in a relaxed atmosphere. An excellent opportunity to improve your speaking and meet new people. Wine and cheese served. 12 to 2 p.m. Herter 3rd floor lounge.

OLDER STUDENTS 25 PLUS CLUB — "Live it up" with the 25 Plus Club every Thursday. Short meeting, long Happy Hour. For info. tel. 545-2684. Open to all older full-time and part-time undergrads, grad students and UWW students. 7 p.m., Campus Center 805.

UMASS CHESS CLUB MEETING — General meeting tonight, followed by games. All levels chess players are encouraged to attend. Beginners welcome. 7 p.m., 804-08 Campus Center.

★ elections

Continued from page 1

The Residential Committee insures that the Residential System response to the varied needs of dorm residents through the provision of adequate facilities, activities and services. The committee also ovesees and recommends policy and contractual changes in the system, Ordway said.

Ordway said sticker campaigns for write-in candidates are illegal and there are no spending limits for individual campaigns. The student senate does not allocate campaign funds to candidates for Board of Governors or Residential Comittee seats.

"All I can say is that (write-in candidates) better make themselves visible," Ordway said. If candidates have nicknames or names that are difficult to spell they had better clarify them since only one version of a name will be accepted during ballot counting, she said.

Also, the ballot order for SGA presidential candidates was drawn yesterday in the senate office. The order of candidates' names as they will appear on the ballot for the March 7 and 8 elections include Siobhan Powers-Fran Hegeler, Eric Mann-Ron Lipof, Charlene Allen-Tom Ahern and David Groom.

VALUABLE COUPONS

FRIED CLAM PLATE
Half pound of clam strips lightly breaded and fried golden brown. Served with vegetable and choice of baked or french fried potatoes PLUS CUP OF CLAM OR CORN CHOWDER.
coupon good thru 3/2/83
2 for $8.49
Please present coupon when ordering
C WITH THIS COUPON

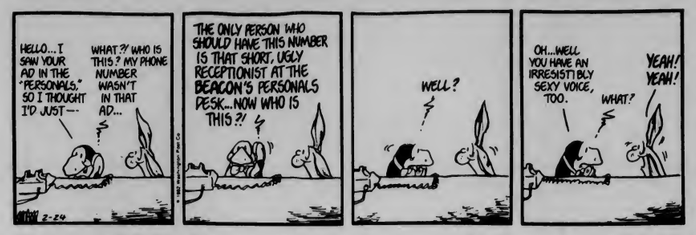
BREAKFAST SPECIAL
2 EGGS 2 STRIPS BACON
2 PANCAKES 2 LINKS SAUSAGE
WITH THIS COUPON
2 FOR $3.99
Please present coupon when ordering
SERVED ALL DAY ANYTIME
C coupon good thru 3/2/83

HOURS:
Sun. - Thurs.
7a.m. to 3a.m.
Fri. & Sat.
24 Hours

James H. McManus
eating place
CAMPUS SHOPPING PLAZA
RTE. 9, HADLEY, 256-6889
STOP & SHOP

SENIOR CITIZEN DISCOUNTS
2-5P M 20%
ALL OTHER TIMES
10%
Does not apply to Specials

Bloom County By Berke Breathed



The UMass Zone By Mark Rollins

Katfood By ARK

Scrod By Dan DeBellis

After The Fall By R. Miller

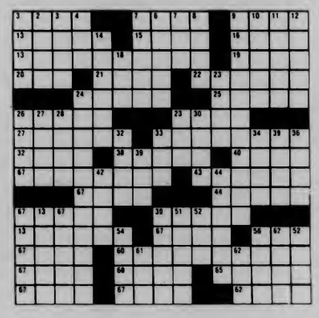
CROSSWORD

Edited by Margaret Farrar and Trude Jaffe.

©1983 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

ACROSS
1 Appoint
5 Type of type: Abbr.
9 Occurrences, old style
13 Cognizant
15 Creche figures
16 Biblical king
17 Symbol of envy
19 Waste fiber
20 —— aboard!
21 Fury
22 Counterfeit: Prefix
24 Basted
25 British whitewalls
26 Attracts
29 Magnum ——
31 Most mature
33 Slanderer
37 Helm position
38 Word of farewell
40 Thalia's sister
41 Silks and satins
43 Compares
45 Make tea
46 Kind of call
47 Emcee's spiel
50 Secrete
53 "Ivanhoe" maiden
55 Table spread
56 Sign of success
59 Zone
60 Montana range
63 Knotted
64 Major additive
65 Silk fabric
66 St. Louis bridge
67 Peter was one
68 Poi source

DOWN
1 Goddard agcy
2 G.I. offense
3 Logger's tool
4 Slip
5 Impression
6 Bandaged
7 Wharton's "The —— of Innocence"
8 Speech feature
9 Fragrant vine
10 Love, on the Loire
11 Deadly sin
12 Sights on the countryside
14 Emergence
18 Unrefined
23 Scantling
24 Calf or lamb delicacy
26 Old oath
27 Vex
28 Tip
29 Mesabi material
30 Musician Williams
32 Chaucer work
33 "My country —— of thee"
34 Queenly name
35 Aachen one
36 Rambler
39 Moisture
42 Niblick
44 Ethereal fluids of the gods
47 Enraged
48 Water wheel
49 Popular material
50 Terra ——
51 Do a tailor's job
52 Disappointing mark
54 Aid
56 Shore bird
57 Din
58 Holy Roman Emperor
61 Verbal contraction
62 Road problem



ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

P	A	N	P	A	I	L		V	O	L	G	A
A	D	D		C	A	V	I	L		I	D	E	A	L
S	I	R		A	N	I	S	E		T	O	A	S	T
T	O	T	S		E	A	S	T	W	A	R	D	H	O
A	S	H	E	S		N	O	T	A	L
		E	G	H	D		M	E	I	S	S	E	S	U P
A	R	R		A	N	G	E	R			L	O	N	E
M	A	N	A	G	E	R		E	X	C	L	U	D	E
A	C	E	D		I	N	D	I	A		I	O	P
S	E	R	E	N	A	D	E		I	N	C	H
			E	R	I	E	S		S	I	E	P	S
W	E	I	S	T	W	A	R	O	M	O		E	R	I E
I	N	U	R	E		O	L	I	V	I	E		N	A T
C	O	R	E	S		N	E	V	E	R		E	T	O
S	W	E	E	T		D	A	N	I	E	L		R	A N

weather

Partly cloudy today, highs 30 to 35 with northwest winds 10-15 m.p.h. Becoming cloudy tonight, lows 20 to 25. Chance of snow tomorrow, high in the low 30s.

D.C. MENU

LUNCH
Hamburg on Roll
Pork Fried Rice

DINNER
Simmered Corned Beef
Chicken Cutlet/Supreme Sauce,
Spinach and Mushroom Quiche

BASICS LUNCH
Oatburgers
Vegetable Fried Rice

BASICS DINNER
Chicken Cutlet/Supreme Sauce, Cranberry Sauce
Spinach and Mushroom Quiche

Interested in news reporting?

Come find out how real professionals do it

The Collegian is offering an introductory reporting workshop facilitiated by a UMass graduate who now works for the nation's largest wire service.

TONIGHT: 7:30 p.m., Dukes Room, Student Union

With Joe Quinlan of the Associated Press

The workshop is free and open to anyone interested. Collegian staff reporters and new correspondents are especially encouraged to attend.

AN IMPORTANT ADDITION TO YOUR UNIFORM

The insignia of an Air Force nurse can mean a lot to you and your future. It shows that you're part of the Air Force Nurse Corps. A member of one of the most efficient health care teams in the world. It signifies you are an Air Force officer with the responsibility and prestige of a leadership position. It indicates you're on the track toward good pay and almost unlimited educational opportunities. If you're a nursing professional or about to complete your nursing education, why not consider Air Force nursing as part of YOUR future? From the day you're commissioned, you'll receive the pay and advantages of an Air Force officer. Consider your uniform and our future. Then make it yours.

AIR FORCE NURSING. A GREAT WAY OF LIFE

For More Details Call Sandy Price
(203) 229-9641
Freshmen & Sophmores Call Capt. Pinkell
(413) 545-2137

AIR FORCE
A great way of life

What Do...

Muhammed Ali
Jack Anderson
Isaac Asimov
Mel Blanc
Julian Bond
Art Buchwald
Eldridge Cleaver
Barry Commoner
Judith Crist
Rev. Naughty
Angela Davis
Mrs. W.E.B. Dubois
Zillah Einstein
Daniel Ellsberg
Betty Friedan
Buckminster Fuller
Dick Gregory
Gus Hall
Michael Harrington
Gil-Scott Heron
Hubert Humphrey
Russell Johnson
Ted Kennedy

Have In Common ??

They were all brought to speak
by the Distinguished Visitors Program

Would you like to become involved
with this Committee?

Come To The D.V.P. Introductory Meeting

DVP Monday, Feb. 28, 1983 Rm 804-8 C.C. 7:00 p.m.

Refreshments Served

We're Back! IMPACT® 2 Days Left!

presents

LASER PHOTO ART

Poster Size
20"x 24"
4.00 each
3 for 10.00

Feb. 23, 24, & 25

Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4
Located in the Campus Center

In Front of the
UNIVERSITY STORE

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Monday - Friday • Deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10 % • discount • Phone number FREE

AUDIO

Panasonic AM-FM 8-track stereo, phono & speakers 50¢ 8-track tapes 2¢ ea 6-8185

AUTO FOR SALE

67 VW Conv inspected needs work $400 or BO 323-5918 leave message

71 Ford Torino AM/FM stereo fair cond. $300 or BO Diane 253-8463

1973 Plym Grnd Cp. 95000 m AC, stereo & more must sell 7009 549-5877 Joe aft 5

For sale 1970 Ford Torino - 45,000 original miles needs work - $500 or BO call 545-3600 before 5:00 549-4125 after 5:00 ask for Dan

1970 VW Squareback functional transportation. Mechanically & strucurally sound. $350 firm. Can be seen on campus. 256-0647 evenings

73 Pontiac Grand AM 4 door cruise control climate control bucket seats excellent condition $800 or BO 82,000 miles 549-2785 evenings

Brand-new Holly 600 4-barrel carborator retails for $225 must sell $100 or BO call 549-5586 after 11:00

1967 Saab 96 (Monte Carlo Edition) $500. Call Sam 774-5952 1-5 PM or leave message

BELLYGRAMS!!

Delivered by professional bellydancer for most unusual gift Thereza 253-7822

BOLTWOOD PROJECT

Interested in the Boltwood Project? Recruitment meeting Wed. Feb. 23 at 7 PM in 804 CC

COUNSELING - LOW STUDENT FEE

Licensed, experienced, caring humanist No connection U Mass. First session free. Allan Black, 253-5036

COUNSELORS

Association of Independent Camps seeks qualified counselors fo 75 member children's camps in Northeast July and August. Contact: Association of Independent Camps (MA), 157 West 57th Street, New York, New York, 10019 (212)582-3540

CRIMSON TRAVEL

Spring Break - Bermuda $289. Daytona $299. Disney $279. More info: Roberta or Steph 549-5320

DAYTONA BEACH

Daytona Beach Spring Break $299. Round trip direct non-stop jet Boston -Daytona. 7 nights Ramada inn on the beach Free car rental departs Mar 19 Saugus Travel 617-233-8192, 617-289-6221

EMERGENCY MEDICAL TECHNICIANS

The Five Colige Chapter of EMT's will sponsor a seminar this Thursday Feb 24 entitled "The Leagal Implications of Emergency Medical Care" Speaker: Thomas C. Grasela, Esquire, REMT-A. Dickenson Hall (UMPD Bldg.) Room 112 at 6:30 pm sharp. Approved by OEMS for 3 CEU hours.

ENTERTAINMENT

Professional DJs For Less $99 Winter Special! Dorms, greeks, Semis. Paul 549-4405

Rackadiec Entertainment Agency Inc. Bands and discjockeys guaranteed student functions 256-0739

Magician - The Great Charles will entertain at any occasion call Bruce 549-1177 after PM

FOR RENT

Couple wanted: share Townehouse Apt. with another June 1 fall option Kathy 549-1430

Amherst Canter 1 bedroom apt $325/mn available immediately 256-6402

FOR SALE

K2 Skils For Sale $50 or BO interested? call Margie 256-8612

Nikon FE for sale with 50f1.8 and 135 telephoto $375 or BO call Scott 253-7465

Ski Boots 2 pair: Raichle Freestyle & Nordica. Both new, both size 10. BO Call Scott @ 549-6101

Large wood stove $200 253-3931

Need luggage for Spring Break? Special design (CIAO!) bags various colors and styles call Jodi 546-9661

Computer for sale, Synertek Systems SYM-1 computer kit. New never been used. Very versatile. Asking $190 call Ron at 549-6999

Tickets for Eric Clapton's only NE show best offer 546-8682 keep trying

HELP WANTED

Overseas Jobs - Summer/year round. Europe, S. Amer., Australia, Asia. All fields. $500-$1200 monthly. Sight-seeing. Free info. Write IJC Box 52-MA-1 Corona Del Mar, CA 92625

CRUISE SHIP JOBS! $14-$28,000 Caribean, Hawaii, World. Call for Guide, Directory, Newsletter. 916-722-1111 ext Massachusettes

COUNSELORS: Camp Wayne, northeastern Pennsylvania. Co-ed childrens camp 6/23-8/23/83. On campus interviews March 2nd. Friendly, warm atmosphere, 12 Allevard, Lido Beach, NY 11561. Include school phone number. Campus Rep: Wendy Edenfield 545-0939

The Commuter Area Government has two job openings. These positions are work-study at 15/hours/wk. Freshperson, sophomore or junior undergraduate preferred. To apply, stop by 404 Student Union 9:00-5:00 pm M-F. We are an Affirmative Action Equal Opportunity Employer. Third World, women and non-traditional students encpouraged to apply. Deadline is February 23.

Like dancing? I need a partner! Please call 586-3379 Amy

Sales Reps Wantsd Need extra cash? Self-motivated? Want to set your own hours? Be your own boss. Become a sales representative for ARK Student Bedding, inc. Income potential is up to you. Must have own phone. For further information write: ARK Student Bedding, Inc. P.O. Box 534 Wenham, Massachusetts 01984

INSTRUCTION

Know your car. Basic Auto Mechanics Workshop. Classroom theory + shop. Limited enrollment 253-2098

LOST

Keys on blue-clip keyring with words Le Chateau 546-8161

Lighter gold color lost in Thompson Hall sentimental value $10.00 REWARD 6-8813

Navy blue and white ski gloves call Jackie 665-2463

Blue five-subject notebook, outside Coffee Shop 11:30 Friday 18th. Very important notes. Please call 1-532-1588. Reward

Aspen Ski Coat and Keys sentimental value small reward call Rich 546-7678

Keycase brown N Pleas Street 2/7; chess set Bluewall 2/15 Please call 549-0038

MICROCOMPUTER/TERMINAL RENTALS

The Computer Works 253-6676 253-5765

MUSICIANS WANTED

Lyricist, vocalist seeks musicians for formation of rock n' roll band Shawn 256-8938

PERSONALS

Stop Fee Increases! The student senate will hold hearings on next years student fees. Come voice your concerns Mon 14th CC 101 7 pm Tues 15th CC804 4-7 pm

UMMB - 1982 pictures are here! Pick them up this week, 4-6 p.m., in Chapel

DAN JOYCE from BCHI call Suzi 6-6048

Happy Birthday Sue! Today's your day so live it up! Have a good one love ya, Dee, Lee & Grunge

Scott - DJ's can really dance - thanks for an F2 time over the notch - 4th floor SA

Sigma Alpha Mu wants you to attend an Open Rush tonight at 8:00 p.m., 395 North Pleasant St. Come see what fraternity life is like

All Umass men are invited to an Open Rush at EAM, tonight at 8:00 pm 395 N Pleasant St

Lesbian/Gay Dance Saturday February 26 9-2 am 10th floor CC 2$ admission call The People's Gay Alliance at 5-0154 for more info

COMSTU CLUB MEETING
today
Machmer E 37
4:00 PM

Nimbo - wow - it has been a long time since I have heard that! Ten years of many crazy, happy, eventful, confused(?) B-days. Hope that this one is unique--aren't they the most fun!? Happy 22--Love-La Jeune Fille de Paris. P.S. Let's celebrate in PA?

Go Down with someone you know & trust
luxury hotels, no hidden costs & no BS
Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. Spring Break 83

UMass Ski Club Goes Down 546-3437

PHI MU DELTA RUSH

Phi Mu Delta is holding rush on Thursday, feb 24 beginning at 7:30 pm come see a fraternity that is more than an extension of the boy scouts. The location: 14 Elm Street call 256-8802

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Dissertations, Theses, Cases, Papers, guaranteed acceptance, low rates, Nancy 5-0392, 584-7924

PSYCHOLOGY STUDY

Subjects needed, ages 17 -25, who have lost a parent 1 - 5 years ago, to participate in an interview study about bereavement. Experimental credits available. Call 549-4418 AM or PM, or leave a note at Tobin Hall room 603, with your phone no. & when to call.

RESUME WRITING

Professional/Confidential/Efficient special rates 253-7468 weekends, weekdays after 5

RIDE NEEDED

Ride needed to Millers Falls Thur eves 5 PM share expenses call Holly at Outdoor Center of New England 659-3926

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female wanted to share lg bedroom apt $150 incl 665-4980

One bedroom in three bedroom So. Amherst house call Patrick 253-3124

Roommate wanted $115/month Feb paid for Brittany Manor heat hot water inc. on bus route with tennis courts call Jamie John or Mike 253-5606 keep trying

SERVICES

PAPER DUE? CAN'T WRITE? Tutor -english composition and grammar reasonable rates 6-9289

Your typewriter or mine? Accurate, reliable. $1/page Kitty 6-7302

Relationship difficulties? Anxieties? Depression? Try an off-campus weekly therapy group. Open house Sat 26, AM call 256-8814

SPRINGBREAK

Daytona Beach $289 March 19-26 Round trip jet and hotel directly on the beach! Montreal $59 plus tax and service. March 19-21; 26-28 round trip deluxe motor coach 3 days/2 nights in the Quality Inn downtown includes welcome party. Also! Half-price Delta Airlines coupons!

TRAVEL

Floride direct by van. 3/19-27. $148. for round trip - wine & cheese - accom. info call now - S.S. Van Lines @ 617-724-8810

Daytona Beach - Spring Break - March 18-27. Party down by motorcoach, free beer party, oceanfront accomodations $165 plus tax & services. For more info call Kathie or Robin @ 256-0551

Bermuda - $315 includes everything - call 256-6941 after 6

Experience the Keys Key West, Fla.
Spring Break March 19-26
Hotel only $159, w/motor coach $299
tax & gratuities included

for more info call 549-5959
If you're going down go all the way!

UMASS SKI CLUB GOES DOWN
to
Ft. Lauderdale Spring Break 83

8 days 7 nights luxurious hotel on Ft. Lauderdale strip with parties at: "The Button", "THe Camdy Store" "Summers" "Area Code 302" "Dallas" "Art Stocks Playpen" etc. etc. etc.
Hotel only $149 w/motor coach $275 w/jet $369
tax & gratuities included

non-members welcome
for more info call 547-3437

Ski the world's best powder. Utah! Trip includes: round trip airfare 7 - nights lodging at Temple Square Hotl 5-day all Utah lift ticket free rental car with unlimited mileage all taxes and services. All for $479.00 contact UMass Ski Club 545-3437

UMass Ski Club goes north
Spring Break 83 March 20-25
Stowe. Ski club capital of the East.
Only $159 includes: transportation, hot tub party, beer & wine parties, 5 day lift ticket, all taxes & gratuities & much, much, more. For more info contact the UMass Ski Club Rm 430A Student Union or call 545-3437

WANTED

Class rings, gold and silver jewelry and coins. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant, Amherst, 256-0710

Apt Mate Northwood Apts own room, two bdrm apt 160.00 rent 665-3633 aft 5 pm

Help $50 reward for helping me by your parents unwanted second car 253-7189

Three Bedroom Puffton or Townehouse to rent from June on Sue 546-7393

Refrigerator dormsize call Sun after 5 PM 6-1019

Two or three bedroom Puffton to rent from June till August call Letty 546-7464

SPECIAL SAVINGS
Knapsacks
$6.00 and up
Leather
Briefcases
$30.00 and up
Mountain Farms Mall
Flea market
Every Sunday

DYNAMITE RECORDS
BUY SELL TRADE
RENT
Stores in Amherst and Northampton
JAZZ - BLUES - ROCK
CLASSICAL - FOLK

Paul's Old Time Furniture
57 E. Pleasant
Thornes Marketplace Northampton 584-1580

A Special Alternative to Worcester & Hunt Suppers
Meal Plan plus $2.95
THE WEEKENDER
This Week - Featuring -
"STEAK MENU"
4:30pm - 7:00pm

全城中國餐館
Amherst Chinese Foods
Best Mandarin Food
62-64 Main St.
Amherst
Closed Wednesdays
WE DO NOT USE MSG OR ARTIFICIAL COLOR
We use FRESH Vegetables from Our Own Farm
BEER & WINE LICENSE
SUNDAY BRUNCH
ALL YOU CAN EAT
$5.95

Sports

UMass men's volleyball team will practice 1:00 p.m. Sunday at Boyden. Old and new members are invited. For more information call Dave Simeone 6-5093.

It is time to go hunting for Dukes at the Cage

By JIM FLOYD
Collegian Staff

Believe what you want. Regardless of how modern this world is, monsters do exist.

Some monsters are wicked and evil and lay in wait to devour unsuspecting human beings; sometimes whole groups of people at a time.

The University of Massachusetts men's basketball team has run into its share of monsters so far this season. There were big ferocious ones down in West Virginia and New Jersey and small tricky ones at Northeastern University. The monsters hurt our valiant warriors and cost them precious basketball games.

But, the Curry Hicks Cage has a monster of its own. It hides all over campus for much of the week, waiting, plotting, searching for new ways to hinder visiting teams in their quest for a Cage victory.

The monster has 10,000 eyes and 5,000 mouths and, although it doesn't breath fire, it can make things pretty interesting during home basketball games on the UMass campus.

If there is to be a late season pick for most valuable player on the Minuteman squad, the nod should go to the UMass fans who have stood faithfully and loudly by their team even though its record has not been a very good one.

"I can't thank them (the fans) enough," said head coach Tom McLaughlin. "They're 100 percent behind us. I really want to do well because of the students."

Being behind the Minutemen has meant that, in the past four home games, three have been sellouts (with people turned away at the door no less) and the fourth was a near capacity crowd in the middle of a long weekend.

The Curry Hicks Cage has been an intimidating place for visiting teams to play in, and they haven't fared too well. The UMass hoopsters are 6-3 at home so far this season and the monster has contributed.

"It's totally different in the lockerroom when we play here," said McLaughlin. "They (the players) really want to play when they're at home."

The players believe in themselves when they play at home, according to McLaughlin. They play tough hard-nosed basketball for themselves and for their fans.

And when they play in the Cage, the monster is their's not the other team's.

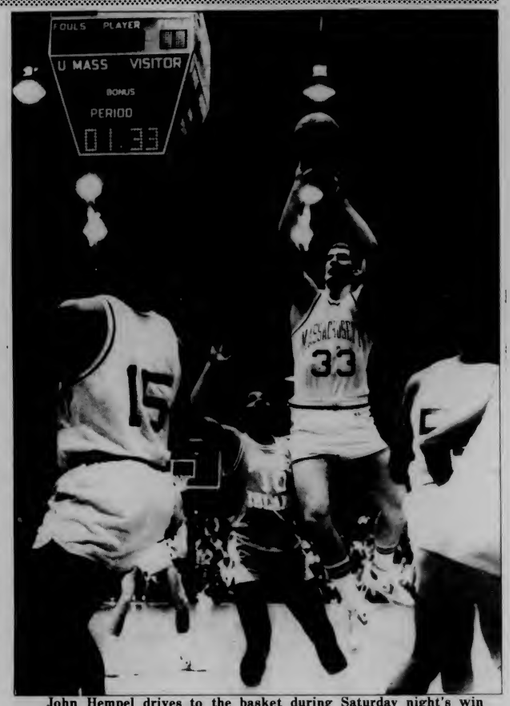
The monster will be expected to rise to the occasion tonight at 7:30 p.m. when the Dukes of Duquesne University come to town in what will amount to a big Atlantic Ten matchup for the Minutemen.

UMass now controls its own destiny in regard to whether or not they can pull ahead of the University of Rhode Island in the East Division race. URI and UMass each have two conference victories apiece but the Rams are one game behind in the loss column with nine compared to the Minutemen's eight.

Duquesne is coming off a victory over Penn State this weekend and will be looking to avenge a loss that the Minutemen gave them the last time these two clubs met in the Cage during the 1981-82 season.

On a positive note for UMass, Donald Russell, who hurt his back against URI and was forced to sit out the St. Peter's game, should be back in the lineup tonight. Russell has been undergoing treatment to alleviate the pain in his back. As was evident in the loss to St. Peter's, he is a very necessary link in the Minuteman machine.

And so the monster rises again tonight but come on down and don't be scared. The monster is you.



John Hempel drives to the basket during Saturday night's win against Rhode Island at the Cage.

Herschel Walker a pro

ATHENS, Ga. AP — Heisman Trophy winner Herschel Walker, declared ineligible to play at Georgia in his senior season, signed a contract Wednesday with the New Jersey Generals of the United States Football League that will make him football's richest player.

"He's a millionaire right now," said Jack Manton Walker's attorney, just outside Walker's apartment in Athens. "It's the highest contract ever in pro football history by far."

Manton said he could not disclose details of the contract, but said various news media reports were close. Asked if the $16.5 million figure reported earlier was accurate, Manton replied, "It could be more, it could be less."

USFL Commissioner Chet Simmons, at a news conference in Orlando, Fla., promised that Walker's signing was not a precursor to a wholesale raid on collegians "because it was a special circumstance."

While the furor over Walker's banishment from collegiate football grew in this Southern grid iron bastion, the National Football League dropped a bombshell of its own in New York.

An NFL spokesman said Walker's attorney approached the league overnight "and asked if we were interested in signing Herschel and placing him in a franchise city of his choice."

"For over 50 years, the NFL has had rules pertaining to eligibility and the draft that we believe to be in the best interests of colleges, players and professional football," the spokesman said. "We have no intention of waiving them for Herschel Walker."

They give it up for Lenten

By RUSS WHINNEM
Collegian Staff

As the Easter season approaches, Christians around the world are currently celebrating the pre-holiday Lenten season, giving something up until Easter Sunday.

The sports world likewise has been affected and below are some of these "sacrifices." Be cautioned that some may not last the entire forty days.

Pete Peeters has, for at least a short time, given up his superhuman displays, proving, that yes, he is mortal.

Frank "The Animal" Fletcher gave up his title shot with Marvin Hagler by losing to Wilfred Skypcion last week. Wilfred Skypcion may give up his boxing career after fighting Marvelous Marvin in said title shot.

The college pollsters have given up trying to figure out who is really number one in NCAA basketball, because every time they rank a team there, that team promptly gets knocked off.

The Philadelphia 76ers seem to have given up losing. This is one "sacrifice" that the Boston Celtics and all their followers hope won't last long.

The Houston Rockets (bet you thought I'd say Cleveland) and the Pittsburg Penguins have given up winning.

Many Boston sports fans wish Hayward Sullivan and Buddy Leroux would give up the Red Sox.

In an early Lenten project The Miami Dolphins gave up nearly 150 yards to John Riggins who in turn evolved them into an MVP award and a Super Bowl championship.

And finally, as if you could stand anymore, on April 2, one day before the end of Lent, the NBA players may give up pro basketball.

Minutemen football update

By KEVIN DELUCA
Collegian Staff

Tired of the winter sports scene? Do you long for America's favorite spectator sport in its purest form — college football? If so, this article is the next best thing to an actual game — a summary of the University of Massachusetts footbal program's recruiting season.

After a season which saw an injury-plagued defense often let down a Pearson-led offense, Coach Bob Pickett and his staff succeeded in landing many defensive standouts.

UMass recruited four potential linebackers, some with National Football League size.

Bruce Strange, All Western Mass as a sophomore, will be bringing his considerable talent and bulk (230 pounds) to Alumni Stadium along with another massive linebacker, the 238 pound Tom Krawszyk. The latter may also play noseguard.

Pat Keough, Billy Wise Award winner for the Outstanding Player in Western Massachusetts, and all-around athlete Mike Moran are also projected as linebackers.

On offense, with the emphasis now shifted from the departed Pearson's legs to quarterback Jim Simeone's arm, the acquisition of wide receivers was a necessity.

That need has been filled by football-trackmen Scott Brown (a soon to be converted quarterback) and New Yorker Tom Cioppa.

Stan Kaczorowski can fill spots if need be. An offensive lineman, Kaczorowski can also kick, a fact attested to by his 53 yard field goal. With the departure of senior placekicker Bob Ross, Kaczorowski's leg could prove to be very helpful indeed.

Another fine addition to the offensive line corps is Peter Montini, reputed to be "the best offensive lineman in Connecticut."

"We are very happy with the quality and depth of our recruits," said Pickett.

One can hardly wait for next fall and the return of Minutemen football.

Go scuba diving with DEEP

How would you like to spend a week scuba diving in the Florida Keys during spring break and earn college credit for it? Project DEEP at UMass., in Key Largo, Fiorida worth two credits in General Physical Education. The March 20-26 course is open to all students, certified or not. Students wishing to attend who are not certified must also participate in a Project DEEP Pre-course Training session scheduled to start the week of March 7th.

Cost is $325 includes lodging, 3 meals a day prepared by a professional cook, instruction, and boat charters including tank and weight belt rental. A general meeting and slide show will be held on Friday March 4th in Curry Hicks room 10 at 7 p.m. for anyone wishing to go on the trip.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
Volume CXII, Issue 84 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003 (413) 545-3500 Friday, February 25, 1983

Collegian photo by Jim Powers

Daryl Elliott hangs a banner in protest of U.S. involvement in El Salvador across the front entrance of the Hampshire County Courthouse in Northampton yesterday. Elliott and others demonstrated yesterday as 18 co-patriots were in a pre-trial hearing for charges stemming from a demonstration at the Northampton Army Recruiting Office last month.

Court picketed by defendants

By DAVID B. MINER
Collegian Staff

Eighteen persons arrested for taking part in a Jan. 25 protest and occupation at the Northampton Army recruiting station had their day in court yesterday both inside the courtroom and outside on the street as Hampshire County District Court Judge Richard Connon continued all charges against them until April 18.

Prior to their scheduled 9 a.m. appearance in Northampton District Court before Judge Connon, the protesters and their supporters hung a "U.S. Out" banner across the main door of the courthouse and conducted an informational picket on the sidewalk.

Organizers Peter Bohmer and Liesel Tyson said the purpose of the picket was to inform the general public on human rights conditions in El Salvador which they claim have not improved despite President Reagan's recent annnouncement to the contrary.

Bohmer and Karen Flemion, also arrested last January, were the only two University of Massachusetts students arrested in the January protest. They belong to the UMass-based Western Mass. Latin America Solidarity Committee. Other protesters were members of the Northampton Committee on Central America.

"If one makes a decision to break the law, one must be willing to pay the price," said Mike Caveseo, one of the defendants.

Inside the courtroom, the "Northampton 18" did just that. There were no dramatics or Perry Mason-style questions. The Northampton 18 submitted to "sufficient facts to warrant a finding of guilty."

Assistant District Attorney Rosemary Tarantino asked Judge Connon to continue the case without a finding for four months and to charge each defendant $25 in costs to the City of Northampton.

Defense attorney Chuck DiMare of the UMass Legal Services Office and Meade Burrons of the Pioneer Chapter of the National Lawyers Guild argued for a continuance of one month and five hours of community service work for each defendant.

In making the recommendation, Burrons attempted to read a statement which the judge interrupted.

"That is a political statement. I will not use this courtroom for your political beliefs. This is a court of law and this is not the place to air your political views," Connon said.

One of the defendants said, "There doesn't seem to be a platform anywhere on which we can air our views."

Replied the judge, "There doesn't seem to be any in El Salvador either." This brought a round of applause from the defendants.

Flanked on one side by the American Flag, the state flag on the other, Judge Connon handed down his decision: "These cases are continued until April 18, 1983. I will not order any costs to be paid to the City of Northampton, nor will I order any community service. Note that April 18th is Patriot's Day."

Rapist sentenced to four life terms

By TAMI BORTON
Collegian Staff

Robert L. Manning was sentenced to life imprisonment yesterday by hampshire Superior Court Judge John F. Murphy, Jr. for the kidnapping, rape and beating of a 19-year-old Hampshire College student in April.

Murphy imposed four life sentences, to be served concurrently, at Walpole State Prison for four counts of aggravated rape and two sentence of eight to 10 years for the charges of kidnapping and assault with a dangerous weapon, said June Thibodo, clerk of courts.

The incident occured last April 19 when the woman was abducted by Manning and his brother, Lawrence, on the Hampshire College campus. She was repeatedly raped and beaten by the brothers while driving through Amherst and South Hadley in a brown van, Thibodo said.

The victim testified that the two men approached her in their van asking directions at 3 p.m. the day of the incident. They returned a few minutes later and asked her to write down the directions. While she was doing so, they forced her into the van from behind.

She was hit over the head with a plastic pipe, causing a wound which required 13 stitches. The brothers repeatedly raped her while exchanging places in the van.

"After the crimes were committed, the brothers drove the woman to a remote area, where she convinced the men she would not report the incident to the police," said Michael Ryan, district attorney.

A person sentenced to life is eligible for parole after 15 years.

"Our office felt Manning should not be eligible until he is 50, or for 23 years," Ryan said. For that reason, Ryan called for concurrent terms of between 35 and 50 years, making him eligible for parole in 23 years, when two-thirds of the sentence would have been served.

The sentences imposed by Judge Murphy exceeded the Superior Court's sentencing guidelines, which would have made the maximum sentence 13 years, Ryan said. "When a judge exceeds his guidelines, he must put his reasons in writing. Murphy felt, as I do, that if the victim was not so resourceful and brave, she would have been killed by the brothers," Ryan said.

Manning was convicted for the crimes on February 17 by a jury consisting of eight men and four women.

Lawrence Manning was determined incompetent to stand trial and is presently undergoing treatment at the Bridgewater state prison psychiatric institution.

He was recommended for a year of treatment, at which point he will be evaluated, Ryan said. If he is still unable to stand trial, he will return to Bridgewater.

Lawrence Manning faces three charges of aggravated rape, one charge of kidnapping, one charge of assault with a dangerous weapon and assault with the intent to murder, Ryan said.

Gubernatorial entourage here next week

By KEN BAZINET
Collegian Staff

Gov. Michael S. Dukakis, Lt. Gov John Kerry, and six cabinet members are scheduled to speak at and chair several workshops during the Western Massachusetts Economic Development Conference to be held next Thursday at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst.

Dukakis will address an open meeting at 1:30 in the Student Union Ballroom and plans to discuss his entire budget proposal for fiscal year 1984, Sarah Parsons, a press aide said yesterday. Dukakis is also scheduled to speak briefly during the opening session at 10 a.m.

Kerry is scheduled to address the federal perspective of economic development during an open session at 10 a.m.

The Dukakis cabinet members scheduled to speak include Evelyn Murphy, secretary of Economic Affairs, who will chair a workshop on economic development; Frederick Salvucci, secretary of Transportation, who will chair a transportation workshop; Amy Anthony, secretary of Communities and Development, who will chair a workshop on community development. Other Cabinet members include Sharon Pollard, secretary of Energy, James Hoyte, secretary of Environmental Affairs and Paula Gold, secretary of Consumer Affairs, who will co-chair a workshop on energy and the environment. All workshops are open to the public.

This is the second regional meeting Dukakis has planned since his return to the statehouse in January, Jaymie Chernoff, special assistant for Economic Development at UMass, said yesterday. Chernoff met yesterday with Dukakis staff persons to arrange the Governor's itinerary.

Dukakis held his first regional meeting at Southeastern Massachusetts University in January and has said he will meet with mayors, community leaders and residents from all sections of the state throughout 1983.

Chernoff said she expects between 300 to 600 participants in the conference based on figures passed on to her by the Dukakis people. She said the Chancellor's Working Group on Economic Development, of which she is member, wants to act as a community leader in arranging the conference.

She said the University is not in the same competitive spectrum that many cities and towns lie in and can maintain an objective perspective.

"The Governor will have the opportunity to look at the economic prospects of the region," Chernoff said, "and (the University) will let people know what is going on here."

Photo by Nick Moudios

Keith Burrell, a senior plant and soil science major, fills containers with water and nutrients for hydroponic plants in the Bowditch Greenhouse.

World and national news

Reagan policy rewarding

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan said yesterday his domestic policies "are beginning to bring rich rewards," and he applauded the decline in oil prices as "more good news for the world economy."

The president acknowledged that the drop in oil prices may cause short-term problems for some oil-exporting nations. But he said that in the long run, the price decline will spur economic recovery and "free vast amounts of real resources that previously had been devoted to energy."

Reagan made his comments in a speech televised from the White House to audiences in Washington, London, Tokyo and Zurich, Switzerland, that were assembled by Newsweek magazine to mark its 50th anniversary.

The president said: "As the winter snows melt in many parts of America, we're seeing that these policies are beginning to bring rich rewards. A new vibrancy is evident in our economy."

He cited increases in consumer spending and housing sales.

In the transcript of an interview with a group of reporters which the White House released yesterday, the president said he still does not believe the economic recession began after he took office, as the National Bureau of Economic Research, a private think tank in Cambridge, Mass., which charts such matters, contends.

"We're going to stick with our conservative proposals for recovery and hope we'll be happily surprised," Reagan said.

As for the recession, which most economists agree ended recently, Reagan said:

"I still refuse to say that we've had a separate recession — '79, '80 and another one in '81. It's the same recession.

OPEC price cut nixed

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (AP) — Saudi Arabia held last-ditch talks with Libya yesterday in an effort to forge a new oil price reduction agreement within OPEC. But informed sources said the Saudis were growing increasingly skeptical of reaching an accord and might boycott an emergency meeting of the cartel.

Oil Minister Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani met for 2¼ hours at his office with the Libyan minister, Kamel Hassan Maghur. Yamani later eluded reporters, and Maghur said he had "no comment" on their discussions.

Meanwhile, Venezuelan Energy Minister Humberto Calderon Berti conferred in Paris with his counterparts from Kuwait, Algeria and Mexico. Mexico, which is not an OPEC member, called for intesification of contacts among OPEC and non-OPEC producers to avoid an all-out price war.

The Saudis are believed to be trying to rally the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, and other producers, around a new base price of $30 a barrel — a $4 cut.

They are facing dissension from some of their gulf Arab allies, who are reported demanding immediate action. There also is opposition from what the Saudis describe as a number of noncommitted OPEC states, including Iran and Libya as well as Nigeria and Ecuador, which already have broken the $34 base.

Informed sources said the Saudis may not attend any new OPEC meeting, unless an agreement is assured of passing.

"The current negotiations in Riyadh are the last chance to save what can be saved" for OPEC and the world economy, said the leading Saudi newspaper Al-Riyadh. The paper said the "first wave of recession" in a price war would inundate all oil producers.

AP Laserphoto

Michael Woodmansee, left, and his lawyer confer during a Rhode Island Super Court hearing yesterday. Woodmansee was sentenced to a 50-year life sentence for the 1975 slaying of a 5-year-old boy.

Killer saved child's bones

SOUTH KINGSTOWN, R.I. (AP) — An unemployed amateur actor, who kept the bones of a 5-year-old in his bedroom, pleaded guilty yesterday to charges he killed the fair-haired neighbor boy who disappeared eight years ago.

Michael E. Woodmansee, 24, of South Kingstown was sentenced to 50 years in prison, with 10 years suspended, for killing Jason Foreman. He pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of second-degree murder, avoiding a grisly trial.

"The family wants to bury Jason," prosecutor Susan McGuirl told Superior Court Judge Thomas H. Needham before sentencing. "They want to lay him to rest."

Needham agreed that "No purpose would be served by a public trial of the issues in this case."

Hundreds of volunteers and police searched eight days for the freckle-faced, blue-eyed boy after he failed to come home for supper May 18, 1975. Posters carrying the boy's picture were sent around the country by his parents, John and Joice Foreman.

Digest

By the Associated Press

Bay state educators: boost aid to schools

BOSTON — A legislative committee heard from school administrators, teachers and other speakers yesterday night who all delivered the same message: boost state aid to public schools in Massachusetts.

Most of the witnesses attacked the Bay State's current level of state aid, which ranks 39th in the country, and urged the Joint Education Committee to push for the state to pick up 50 percent of local education costs.

This year, the state supplied about $719 million in school funds, which covered 32 percent of the costs.

"I think it's clear to all of us that voters who approved Proposition 2½ were interested in decreasing the reliance on property taxes," state education Commissioner John Lawson told the panel. "It was not intended to lower the quality of education or educational services provided to the boys and girls of the Commonwealth.

"Yet in fiscal 1982, overall spending in schools was reduced 6 percent."

Duke to recommend $7B state budget

BOSTON — Gov. Michael S. Dukakis will recommend a $7.36 billion state budget next week for the year beginning July 1, including gas and cigarette tax hikes to help balance it, an administration source said yesterday.

The source told The Associated Press that Dukakis will propose an increase of four cents in the cigarette tax, raising it to 25 cents per pack. But he also will recommend repeal of the law setting minimum prices for cigarettes, in the belief that this will lower the retail price, through competition, and compensate consumers for the higher tax.

The budget message also will propose a floor of 11 cents per gallon on the gas tax, which now is 10 percent of the wholesale price. The gas tax rose to 11.6 cents in April 1981, as petroleum prices were climbing but has fallen steadily since to its current level of 9.9 cents.

Duke'll go to court to stop bank drilling

WASHINGTON — Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis said yesterday that he favors going to court to stop the next lease sale for oil and gas drilling on Georges Bank, now scheduled for March 29 in New York City.

"We are now considering whether to go to court. My feeling is, we have to take whatever action is appropriate to stop the lease sale, but I want to talk to the attorney general and come to some joint decision before going ahead," Dukakis said.

In Boston, state Environmental Affairs Secretary James S. Hoyte said he also favored court action.

Dukakis said he personally rejected the compromise worked out last week between officials from the Interior Department and the state. The compromise involved the deletion of 41 environmentally sensitive tracts from the next lease sale, which originally consisted of 540 tracts.

State daycare policy to undergo big shift

BOSTON — Gov. Michael S. Dukakis' director of human resources promised a "dramatic shift" in state day care policy yesterday and said this will be reflected in the governor's budget proposals next week.

Philip Johnston, Dukakis' staff adviser on human services, cited the governor's "deep support for day care in Massachusetts" at a news conference called by the Massachusetts Association of Day Care Agencies, an industry group, and the governor's advisory task force on day care.

The groups issued a report complaining about low wages within the industry, "inappropriate policy decisions by the state," red tape and other problems.

Bellotti: Arson is local problem

FRAMINGHAM — The state doesn't have enough money to continue its arson prevention and prosecution role, so communities must help take over, says Attorney General Francis X. Bellotti.

Addressing more than 200 police, fire and insurance investigators at a conference on arson strategy, Bellotti said Wednesday that his office cannot continue the work it has done since 1980 under the Comprehensive Arson Prevention and Enforcement System. The state Legislature didn't set aside $600,000 necessary to keep it going this year, he said.

"We will teach you our key to success, the attorney general said, "which has been setting up the necessary groundwork to prove that the crime of arson has been committed, based on the only evidence which is usually available, and that is circumstantial evidence."

Bellotti said his investigators developed extensive research into the causes of arson, and will help community probers to identify trouble spots.

Arms nominee says he didn't say 'sham'

WASHINGTON — Arms control nominee Kenneth Adelman denied under oath yesterday that he ever called nuclear arms reduction talks a sham, but the journalist who quoted him as using the word swore that he believes Adelman "is not telling the truth."

Adelman, testifying for the third time before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in his fight for confirmation, said, "I do not recall making such a statement at any time in my life."

He also said he did not remember ever being interviewed by the journalist, columnist Ken Auletta of the New York Daily News.

DC-9 landing gear delays Logan flight

BOSTON — An malfunctioning warning light gave the crew and passengers of an Eastern Airlines flight a brief scare yesterday before the pilot and airport officials figured out that the plane's landing gear was functioning properly.

The DC-9 flight from Newark with 80 passengers and a crew of five landed at Logan International Airport without incident after a warning light indicated a problem with the landing gear.

Clem Bion, operations officer at the airport's control tower, said the light in the cockpit sometimes falsely indicates that the landing gear is not locked in place.

Today's Staff

Night Editor — Ray Beauchemin
Copy Editor — Mike Mahoney
Layout Technician — Will Hopkins
Photo Technician — Tom Kudla
Composition — Laura Shanahan, Sam Levitt, Joy McCarthy, Alice Klingener, Mat Atkins, Sue Koczela, Sue Hawkins, Gail Tanzer, Liz Ward, Julie Marcinek, Laurie Frank, Terri Cooper, Adrianne Dufour

Subscription Rates

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday excluding vacations, exam periods, or holidays. Subscriptions are available for $18 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Massachusetts. Postmaster: Send address changes to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003.

Presidential race candidates rev engines

Southwest first step for SGA campaign

By ROBERT STACK
Collegian Correspondent

The campaign for Student Government Association (SGA) president was in full swing last night as three of the four candidates spoke at the Southwest Area Government meeting to present their platforms and respond to questions.

Tom Ahern, speaking first for the Allen-Ahern candidacy, proposed that the textbook annex monopoly be broken as a means of lowering student fees.

"We have to save the students' money," Ahern said, adding that he would like to work with faculty to reduce book costs.

Ahern also proposed "a newsletter in every room" that would lead to a more informed student body.

Ahern said he would initiate more activities for students by working through the area goverments. Asked if this would mean more money for area governments, he said "if that's what the students want."

He also said he would initiate a student-run bottle and can redemption center on campus and voiced support for rent control in Amherst.

Ron Lipof, representing the Lipof-Mann candidacy, proposed a reorganization of the student senate but said "I don't agree with cutting the number of senators." He said he sought to involve students in governmental concerns.

He proposed an extension of the SGA Hotline, reversing the process to implement a task force to phone students and get feedback.

Commenting on the Student Activities Trust Fund, he proposed a closer scrutiny of student dollars.

"We want a breakdown of where the money goes," Lipof said.

Lipof also advocated a student sitting on the Board of Regents.

Speaking for the Powers-Hegeler ticket, Fran Hegeler emphasized senate reorganization along with improvement of communication between area governments.

Hegeler wants "to cut the number of senators by one-third" and wants senators to be elected by area. She said 40 senate seats (one-third of the senate) are now vacant.

She said some dorms are very active while others are not and that the reorganization would make the senate "more competitive."

Helegeler's running mate Siobhan Powers spoke of improving the UMass image statewide, mentioning voter turnout as an area where University students "could really make an impact."

Candidate David Groom did not attend the forum for personal reasons.

The SWAG reps were encouraged to report to their dorms on the candidates. In other business they moved to table a finance committee request for $350 for Students Advocating Financial Aid.

SGA Presidential candidates Ron Lipof, Fran Hegeler, Siobhan Powers, Charlene Allen and Tom Ahern respond to a question posed by a member of the Southwest Area Government.

Admissions proposal to be rehashed

By KEVIN BOWE
Collegian Staff

The much debated minimum admission standards for the Commonwealth's public colleges and universities proposed by the Board of Regents will face another public hearing on Monday before the state legislature's Joint Committee on Education.

Analysis

In recent weeks the Regents have been backing off their specific proposal to rely on SAT scores and weighted class rank as the primary criteria for admission into a public four year institution. This proposal has received considerable opposition from minority groups and educators since it was unveiled early in January.

Since that time the Regents held a public hearing on the matter in early February and an educational conference for public college presidents and Trustees a week later. On both occasions stiff opposition to the specific proposal was aired. Before these events the Regents were planning to pass an admission plan in March said Regents Chairman James Martin. After these events, Martin said a plan would be passed in May.

The Regents now plan to ease up on the combined SAT and class rank levels according to a report in the Boston Sunday Globe. The use of class rank was critized by University of Massachusetts President David C. Knapp, who said the plan would bar students that had high SATs but did not graduate in the top half of their high school classes because of the competitive nature of the school.

The rift, between Knapp and Regents Chancellor John B. Duff, which initially appeared wide, now appears to have narrowed. Knapp and Duff's chief assistant Roger Schinness ironed out several of their differences during some late night socializing prior to the Regents education conference, Schinness said.

"We must set our standards as wisely as we can and give our talented students a fair chance to prove their ability. Our standards must be within the reach of students from all our communities. Standards should nor discourage students from trying to succeed. They should help us find the students who can succeed," wrote Knapp in yesterday's Boston Globe.

Quartet opens can of worms Sunday

By JIM FINKLE
Collegian Staff

Four distinguished faculty members may have potato and pastry on their faces after they finish speaking at the University of Massachusetts B'nai B'rith Hillel's debate entitled "Latke vs. Hamantaschen."

The satirical debate, which is sponsored annually by Hillel, is held to celebrate the Jewish holiday Purim. "Purim is a spooky, fun, crazy kind of holiday," said Hillel Rabbi Saul Perlmutter.

Perlmutter said that each year Hillel arranges to have four University faculty members participate in the "comic" debate.

Participants debate the strengths and weaknesses of the hamantaschen and latke, two Jewish foods. The hamantaschen is a three cornered pastry filled with either poppyseeds, prunes, apples or apricots that is served on Purim. The latke is a potato pancake traditionally served on Hanukah with sourcream, applesauce or yogurt.

Debating for the latke will be Ellen Wolf, program coordinator of the UMass internship office and Monroe Rabin, a professor of physics and astronomy. Civil engineering professor Mike Switzenbaum and sociology professor Rick Tessler will speak on behalf of the hamantaschen.

Although the participants were hesitant to discuss their presentations before the debate, they agreed to explain the basic premises from which they would speak.

Wolf, who will present "The Potato Latke: Microchip of the Future," said the potato latke represents an organization called SPUD (Society for the Prevention of Undesireable Desserts).

"That organization (SPUD) is dedicated to the future of all mankind," she said. "It holds the secrets needed to see into the future by virtue of its eyes."

According to Professor Rabin who will speak on: "The Latke: Key to Modern cosmology", the latke was responsible for the creation of the big bang theory in the same way the apple was responsible for the discovery of gravity when it dropped upon Isaac Newton's head.

"Getting smacked in the face with a latke led to one of our cosmological breakthroughs," Rabin said.

The hamantaschen, Rabin argues, rates second to the latke. "Everything is wrong about it," he said. "It is the wrong shape; it's the wrong consistency."

Professor Switzenbaum said he has collected evidence, however, that will prove Rabin's statements false. Switzenbaum will speak on "Isaac Hamantaschenseed: The Johnny Appleseed of Purim."

"An unknown folk hero went around the country planting seeds for Jewish bakeries," Switzenbaum said. "Some places they grew, some they didn't." While the Jewish bakery grew extremely well in Brooklyn it was stunted in Palm Beach, he added.

Professor Tessler praised the hamantaschen for its foresightedness and criticized the latke for its lack of substance. The latke, he said, is bitter while the hamantaschen is sweet. Tessler will present, "Hamantaschen: For Your Mental Health."

The holiday commemorates the triumph of the fictional Queen Esther who convinced King Mordechi to save the Jews from execution by evil Prime Minister Haman. Traditionally a holiday of celebration and noise making, Purim is considered a victory against anti-Semitism, Perlman said.

SGA referendum first in state for FinAid proposal

By RICHARD NANGLE
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts at Amherst will be the first college in the state to hold a referendum on the funding of the newly formed State Student Association of Massachusetts (SSAM).

Students will decide whether they want to support the financial aid lobby with a mandatory one dollar fee on their semester bills during the Student Government Association (SGA) elections March 7 and 8. The Student Senate approved the referendum during its Wednesday night meeting.

"There is a need to organize to protect student interests. Students have no real input on the decision making level," said State Student Coordinator Michael Ferrigno.

Ferrigno said students should support the referendum because an effective lobby will directly affect their ability to finance their educations.

"Students pay a lot of money for things they don't see the benefit for," he said."

Ferrigno said that earlier this month, U.S. Sen. Paul Tsongas expressed his support for the idea and said funding stability was essential to the effectiveness of the group. Senator Edward Kennedy has also expressed interest, Ferrigno said.

Southeastern Massachusetts University, the University of Lowell and Roxbury Community College are just a few of the schools along with UMass that are actively working to fund SSAM, Ferrigno said.

"We have active members who are putting in time at all levels," he said, adding that an "all for one and one for all" attitude prevails in the organization.

Ferrigno said the goal of the group is to run a referendum on every state campus by the end of the year. But the only other college definitely holding a referendum this semester is the University of Lowell, he said.

"What we don't get this year, we'll get next year," he said.

Ferrigno said the UMass referendum has a "good chance" to pass but at this point he is unsure how the fee would be implemented. SSAM hopes to gain publicity for the referendum by lobbying dormitories, advertising in the Collegian and on WMUA and getting endorsements from candidates for SGA offices.

"We're asking (students if they) are willing to spend one dollar a semester to protect and to fight for their education," he said.

Another SSAM goal is to put students on the Board of Regents in order to strengthen student decision making power, he said.

AMHERST CINEMA
$2.50 Double Feature
FRIDAY
A Thousand Clowns 7:00
King of Hearts 9:00
Sun - Tues
Two Hitchcock Favorites!
Rebecca 7:00
Notorious 9:10
Downtown Amherst
253-5426

THE GLOBE BOOKSHOP
The widest selection of journals and foreign magazines in the area and we're open evenings till 9 pm for your browsing pleasure.
Fine New & Used Books Bought & Sold
Mon-Sat 9:30am-9pm Sun 12-5pm

Head For The Mountains
UMASS SKI CLUB
SAT. TRIP TO SUGARBUSH VALLEY
VERMONT
Includes:
Transportation
Lift Ticket
Refreshments
ONLY $21
For more info 5-3437

Toxic spray used on stolen plants

By ANNE McCRORY
Collegian Staff

Two plants sprayed with potentially dangerous chemicals were stolen sometime between 4 p.m. Wednesday and 8 a.m. yesterday, said University of Massachusetts police.

Two species of strapelia had been hanging in a greenhouse sprayed that afternoon with the pesticides Pentac and orthene, said greenhouse manager Ronald Beckwith. The hazard the substances present depends on the amount of time lapsed between the spraying and the time the thief took the plants, he said.

However, Roy Vandriesche, an entomology professor and pesticide coordinator at UMass, said the chemicals should have been diluted enough before the spraying so they would not cause any danger to people.

Signs alerting personnel of the spraying were posted in the building as is normal procedure, said Philip L. Phillips, a technical assistant in the greenhouse. It was unknown whether the burglar had observed the signs, he said.

University Health Services had no information on the incident, a spokesperson in the director's office said yesterday.

"It seems unnecessary," Beckwith said of the robbery. "We would've given the plants away if they came and asked. They were only stealing from themselves."

The greenhouse will give away pieces of plants to those who ask for them, he said. The strapelia plant, among others, is an "easily propagated plant," Beckwith said.

The burglar entered the greenhouse by smashing a back window valued at $50, said police. There are currently no suspects in the incident, police said.

"It is fortunate it wasn't a cold night--there was a huge gap in the window, but no plants were killed," Beckwith said.

The two plants were valued at approximately $20, he said.

Police apprehend two, probe thefts

By LAURIE FISHER
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts police reported Thursday a stolen car, three larcenies under $100 and the arrest of a UMass student.

The student was arrested shortly after 3 Thursday morning for possesion of a small amount of marijuana. The man and a friend were arrested in the Northeast Residential Area quadrangle, police said. Both were intoxicated, police said. Police responded to a call indicating that two men were carrying a couch out of Dwight Dormitory. The incident is still under investigation. The second man is in protective custody, police said.

A 1970 Camaro was reported stolen from Lot 32 on campus Wednesday afternoon. Police said that car was white with green stripes on the hood, trunk and doors had New Jersey license plates and was stolen after 10 a.m. Wednesday. The car is valued at $3000, police said.

One hundred dollars was reported stolen from a Brown dormitory room Wednesday morning. The door to the room was left unlocked, police said. There are no suspects.

Two telephones were reported stolen from the graduate student lounge of Marston Hall at 10:34 p.m. Wednesday. The first phone was stolen from the unlocked lounge on Friday and the second was stolen between Tuesday and Wednesday, police said.

Amherst police reported the arrest of a Springfield man on charges of failure to stay within the marked lines, driving under the influence of alchohol, and driving without a license in possesion at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday on College Street.

Amherst police also received a statement from an individual at 11 a.m. Tuesday that he had been attacked after midnight on Feb. 18 in Amherst center. Police said the man suffered a a broken nose and received head injuries. He was taken to the UMass infirmary after the unprovoked attack. Police have no suspects in the matter.

Gabba Gabba Hey, the show must go on

The Ramones concert cancelled Wednesday has been rescheduled for 8 p.m. March 31 in the Student Union Ballroom, according to a spokesman for the Union Program Council (UPC).

Students may use their original tickets to attend the concert.

According to UPC talent coordinator Bill Prichett, students who were unable to attend the concert on March 31 may return their tickets for a full refund.

Since only 900 of the 1100 tickets to the concert have been sold, tickets are still available for the concert.

The concert was cancelled because the Ramones' sound equipment was stolen while touring in New York.

— Jim Finkle

STUDENTS SAVE 40%
SUBSCRIBE BY
4:00 PM, FEBRUARY 25!
ASHES
March 3-5, 9-12 at 8:00 pm
David Rudkin's drama of a young couple whose yearning for a child becomes an obsession as the odds turn more and more against them is a work of stunning power — frank, compassionate, laced with ironic humor.
THE COMEDY OF ERRORS
April 7-9, 13-16 at 8:00 pm
This is not your typical Shakespearean play. It isn't romantic and lyrical. It is pure farce, fast and bawdy, peopled with acrobats, jugglers, musicians, and hookers. Think you hate Shakespeare? You'll love THE COMEDY OF ERRORS.
COMPANY
May 5-7, 11-14 at 8:00 pm
This brilliant, sophisticated musical by Stephen Sondheim manages to be very funny about the subject of marriage by taking it very seriously. Set to music that reflects the pulse of Manhattan life, COMPANY is about growing up and becoming human in our times.
THE RAND THEATER
FINE ARTS CENTER
Phone: 545-3511
SUBSCRIBE NOW TO SPRING 1983 AT THE RAND THEATER
Please clip and mail to: Rand Theater Box Office, Fine Arts Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003
NAME _____
STREET _____ CITY _____ STATE _____ ZIP _____
PHONE (days) _____ (evenings) _____
I wish to order _____ Rand Theater subscriptions at $7.50* each and/or _____ student/senior citizen subscriptions at $4.50* each for the following dates (please circle one date for each production)
ASHES March 4 5 9 10 11 12
THE COMEDY OF ERRORS April 7 8 9 13 14 15 16
COMPANY May 5 6 7 11 12 13 14
GALA OPENING NIGHT! March 3, April 7, May 5 You are invited to meet the cast at a reception after the show
Patrons with discounted tickets must show appropriate ID at the door
* PLEASE NOTE: Subscriptions for $7.50 and $4.50 expire Friday, February 25 at 4:00 pm. Subscriptions after that date will cost $9.00 for the general public and $6.00 for students.
Enclosed please find my check or money order for $ _____ payable to The Rand Theater.

Jonathan Reid LTD
Sale ½ Price
Entire Stock of Sweaters
Manhattan Oxford
Button Downs
Reg. $19. Now $12.99

Information Data Bank IDB TIPS Taped Information Phone Service
COURSE DROPS
Monday, February 28
is the last day
for undergraduates to drop courses
with a "W".
a service of the Dean of Students Office
227 Whitmore

Dean Field faces student in reelection bid

By GLEN GOLDSTEIN
Collegian Staff

Collegian photo by Jim Powers
Mike Counter, a UMass sophomore economics major, has announced his candidacy for the Amherst town manager position.

For only the third time in twelve years, Amherst town moderator William Field, 60, will face opposition in the town election this time by a University of Massachusetts student.

Michael Counter, 23, a sophomore economics major, is contesting Field, who is also Dean of Students at UMass.

The moderator presides over the Amherst town meetings, tallies votes, and tries "to minimize tricks," Field said.

"I'm not running against Field, I'm running for the town of Amherst," Counter said.

"Field has not used the full weight of the moderator's position to address issues of importance to the town of Amherst," Counter said.

The moderator should suggest items to be on the meeting agenda, Counter said. He mentioned rent control and the water issue in Amherst as two subjects that interested him.

Field said he believes that the moderator should never put items on the agenda.

"I may vote on issues, but I never do," Field said. "I would rather resign than have to break a tie vote."

"The moderator doesn't belong to one group on another, unlike a house speaker. The moderator's responsibility is to make sure that all points of view are represented," Field said.

Counter, former campus campaign manager for Ted Kennedy, emphasized that he will campaign town-wide. "The students are instrumental in a successful campaign for us," Counter said.

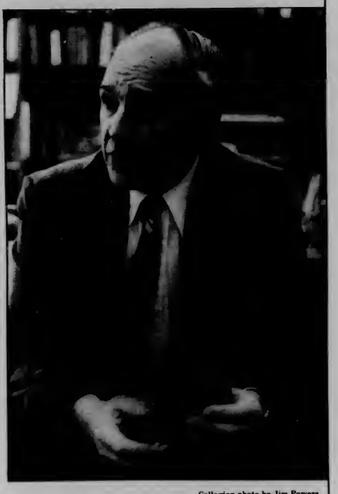
Approximately 6,000 UMass students registered to vote last fall, Counter said.

Field downplayed the students as a significant voting block.

"Is a graduate student who has lived in Amherst 10 years a student or a town person?" Field asked.

The students have many different interests. They do not all vote the same way, Field said.

The Amherst town meeting over which the moderator officiates, begins May 2, running several nights a week.



Collegian photo by Jim Powers
Dean of Students William Field, incumbent Amherst town moderator, is being challenged this year in the Amherst election for the first time in many years.

Past successes flavor MassPIRG Spring Conference

By TIM MacPHEE
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts Public Interest Research Group (MassPIRG) will sponsor its annual Spring Conference this weekend in the University of Massachusetts Campus Center.

Discussion topics will include environment, energy and political reform as well as consumer issues.

"The purpose of this conference is to give students an opportunity to develop their skills in areas such as research, grassroots fund-raising, lobbying, and the media," said Cindy Jacques MassPIRG Fundraising Coordinator.

"Students through energy, enthusiasm and determination have since PIRG's organization been able to eliminate the student meal tax and have worked on statewide issues concerning everyone, like social justice, the bottle bill and hazardous waste," Jacques said.

MassPIRG's headquarter at UMass was founded in 1972 and is one of 11 statewide.

"Students started their own group with Ralph Nader's message to students about concern of issues of the day. The idea is getting together and doing something rather than letting history just take its course," Jacques said.

MassPIRG students compose a board of directors active in PIRG chapters statewide. The board decides issues that originate throughout the state.

Students work with a professional staff of lawyers, lobbyers and researchers on issues the students choose. They hire their own executive director.

A significant cause MassPIRG lobbied for was passage of the bottle bill.

"We think it's great. It addresses the throwaway mentality of our society and is one issue that students all over the state really sunk their teeth into," Jacques said.

MassPIRG's weekend conference is open to the public.

Dinner for Two
Enjoy
any two entrees
with salad bar and a complimentary n/a beverage
12.95
Every Friday
TOP of the CAMPUS
RESTAURANT & LOUNGE
11th Floor • Campus Center • UMass

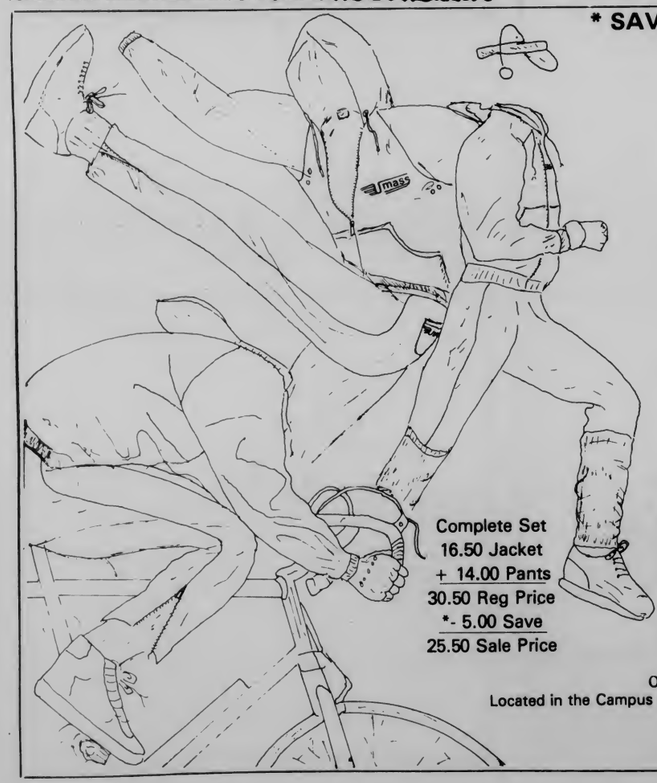
BLUE WALL
CAMPUS CENTER AT UMASS
MONDAY
LAST M*A*S*H BASH
WIDE-SCREEN T.V. Anheuser-Busch Giveaways!
BOSTON
SEOUL 34 Mi 54 KM
CONEY ISLAND 8127 Mi
SAN FRANCISCO 5746 Mi
TOLEDO 9133 Mi
Death Valley 6176 Miles
GREAT PRIZES For Best Costumes!!
FREE POPCORN • RAFFLES
Come Early!

One day Only
* Save $2.00 Off
any w/coupon
Hooded Windbreakers
Assorted Colors
Assorted Styles
In Stock

coupon
$2.00 OFF
Valid Only 2/25
$2.00 OFF
Any Windbreaker
or Shell Style Jacket in stock
Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4
UNIVERSITY STORE

the SHOE BIN
187 n. pleasant st., amherst

Lesbian/Gay Dance
Saturday, Feb. 26th 9 pm - 2 am
10th floor Campus Center
Admission $2.00
For more info call 545-0154



* SAVE $5.00 Off Complete Suit
Lightweight Nylon Running Suit
Jacket $16.50
100% nylon
hooded w/drawstrings
2 pocket
water resistant full zipper cinch waist
Pants $14.00
100% nylon zippered cuff
elastic waistband back pocket
Complete Set
16.50 Jacket
+ 14.00 Pants
30.50 Reg Price
*- 5.00 Save
25.50 Sale Price
* $5.00 Off Reg. price
with coupon
with purchase of complete outfit
Both pants and jacket
Valid only 2/25
$5.00 Off
Open M-F 9-5 Sat 11-4
Located in the Campus Center
UNIVERSITY STORE

amc THEATRES
$2.00 MATINEE & TWILIGHT SHOW
amc HAMPSHIRE 6 584-7550
Nominated for 10 Academy Awards
Tootsie DUSTIN HOFFMAN
Fri 11:30 & 4:30 @ $2.00 7:15, 9:55
PG Sat & Sun 1:30 & 4:30 @ $2.00 7:15, 9:55
MERYL STREEP
Nominated for Best Actress
SOPHIE'S CHOICE
Fri 11:00 & 4:00 @ $2.00 7:00, 9:00
R Sat & Sun 11:00 & 4:00 @ $2.00 7:00, 9:55
PAUL NEWMAN
THE VERDICT
Nominated for 5 Academy Awards
Fri 11:45 & 4:45 @ $2.00 7:30, 9:55
R Sat & Sun 11:45 & 4:45 @ $2.00 7:30, 9:55
WITHOUT A TRACE
20th CENTURY FOX
Fri 11:15 & 4:30 @ $2.00 7:00, 9:45
PG Sat & Sun 11:15 & 4:30 @ $2.00 7:00, 9:45
ROCKY HORROR PICTURE SHOW
amc MOUNTAIN FARMS 6 584-9153
LOVESICK
DUDLEY MOORE
ELIZABETH McGOVERN
Fri 12:45 & 5:15 @ $2.00 7:45, 9:55
Sat & Sun 12:45, 2:45 & 5:15 @ $2.00
7:45, 9:55
PG
GANDHI
Nominated for 11
Academy Awards
Fri 11:00 & 4:45 @ $2.00 8:30
PG Sat & Sun 12:30 & 4:30 @ $2.00 8:30
THE LORDS OF DISCIPLINE
(2:45 & 5:00 @ $2.00) 7:30, 9:45
R + Sun (12:45, 2:45 & 5:00 @ $2.00)
7:30, 9:45
The Year of Living Dangerously
Fri 12:00 & 5:00 @ $2.00 7:30, 9:55
Sat & Sun (12:30, 2:45 & 5:15 @ $2.00)
7:30, 9:55
PG
MIDNIGHT MOVIE MADNESS
amc HAMPSHIRE 6 584-7550
FRI & SAT at 12:15 a.m.
ALL SEATS $1.50
Monty Python and the Holy Grail
R
Quadrophenia
R
Harold & Maude
R

GRADUATING SOON?
You're Needed All Over the World.
Ask Peace Corps volunteers why their ingenuity and flexibility are as vital as their degrees. They'll tell you they are helping the world's poorest peoples attain self sufficiency in the areas of food production, energy conservation, education, economic development and health services. And they'll tell you about the rewards of hands on career experience overseas. They'll tell you it's the toughest job you'll ever love.
PEACE CORPS
See Mary-Jo Langston, 12 Draper Hall, UMASS, 545-2105
Tuesdays 12:00 - 3:30
Wednesdays 9:00 - 12:00
Thursdays 12:00 - 5:00

Placement urges all majors

By JOYCE KERMAN
Collegian Correspondent

Most recruiters coming to the University of Massachusetts are looking for engineering, computer science and business majors, but Placement Services Director Arthur Hilson argues that liberal arts majors should not be discouraged.

"For every technical job there is a support position somewhere in that system," Hilson said. Liberal arts skills can be used in many ways and students should take a "panoramic view of the work force" instead of "pigeon-holing themselves by looking for specific kinds of positions," he said.

Placement Service is presently installing a new video system which will assist students preparing for interviews. Students will be able to participate in mock interviewing situations and view themselves on tape afterwards, Hilson said. The new system will also enable students to see tapes prepared by potential employers.

The Placement Service also provides a walk-in resume counseling service and workshops on resume writing and interview techniques. These workshops are held weekly at the office and can also be arranged upon request for groups of students.

The office maintains credential files which consist of references students have acquired. Files may be updated by the students at any time. The Placement Service will provide potential employers with references when requested. This is a lifetime service for UMass students.

The Job Employee Matching System (JEMS) is also available at the Placement Office. JEMS is a computer system which lists employers looking for students with their qualifications. JEMS is also used by employers to find the students they are looking for.

The Placement Service also arranges on-campus interviews.

"It's imperative that students go down to Placement as soon as they can and start preparing for the job search," Hilson said.

He suggested that students start examining the job search process and identify their skills in their sophomore year. By their junior year, students should begin a "packaging process" to prepare themselves for the job market. Students should view themselves as products and the employer as the consumer, Hilson said.

Money machines proposed

By DAVID SUMMERSBY
Collegian Staff

Students tired of waiting in long lines on Friday afternoons for weekend money at the Campus Center Credit Union and Check Cashing Service may soon be relieved if a new proposal to install Automatic Teller Machines (ATM) in the Campus Center is accepted.

Campus Center Director Bill Harris announced last night at the Campus Center Board of Governers (BOG) meeting that the Student Credit Union and Shawmut bank are making agreements to provide a withdrawal service in the Campus Center. Harris said he is all for the idea but that the process for resolving the project has to be figured out first.

"This will be advantageous to the student body and the Campus Center but because we are a state agency we will have to get Trustee Approval and put the job out for bid," he said.

Harris said the Credit Union is a big promoter of the project and also mentioned the possibility of including BayBank in addition to Shawmut to further expand the service to a wider range of students.

"The Credit Union will get accounts out of Shawmut and the ATM system and this will help them very much since students would be more likely to open an account in the Credit Union with shorter lines and unlimited hours," he said.

The ATM service might be located near the check cashing area on the bottom floor of the Campus Center, Harris said. The Campus Center administration will be working on the issue before Spring Break and develop a proposal to give to John L. Denyse, vice-chancellor for Administration and Finance.

In other business the BOG voted to hire six students to fill paid coordinator jobs on the Board for the coming year. The new coordinators are: Brad Jacob, for public relations, Jennifer Pancoast, conference services, Paul Knight, food services, Gary Ziegelbaum, vendor certification and Janet Lannan, special projects.

Women's theater to hold weekend auditions

The Women's Community Theater will hold auditions over the weekend for its production "Hollandia 45". Auditions will be held at 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. Saturday and at 2 p.m. Sunday at 518 Pleasant Street (across from the bowling alley.) The show will be held in early May.

Tony nominee to make Amherst appearance

Elizabeth Swados, writer and composer, will perform some of her work at 8 p.m. Sunday in the Amherst College Buckley Recital Hall. Ms. Swados' most recent Broadway effort is the musical "Runaways", which has received four Tony Award nominations.

Labor film, 'Finally Got the News,' Monday

The University of Massachusetts Labor Center Student Caucus will present "Finally Got the News," a 1970 news documentary on the League of Revolutionary Black Workers, at 7:30 p.m. Monday in Rooms 904-908 of the Campus Center.

FOUR SEASONS
Labatts.....ale or beer.....$10.99 case
Falstaff.....cans.....$6.99 case
Utica Club.....cans.....$6.99
Old Milwaukee.....12 pk.....$4.50
Strogoff Vodka.....1.75 L.....$8.99
Wellington Gin.....1.75 litre.....$8.99
Piccala Coffee Liqueur.....L.....$7.49
Riunite Wines.....750 ml.....$2.69
Sebastiani Table Wines....1.5 L....$4.49
Gallo Varietals.....1.5 L.....$3.99
Kegs
Free Delivery
Open 10 AM to 11 PM
in front of the Malls
Wines/Liquors
rte.9, hadley, ma./584-8174

DELANO'S
February Happy Hour Special
2 for 1
Beck's Light Bottles
plus our original
twofers and hors d'oevres
7 days 7 nights
4-6 pm 10-midnight
Proper ID a must
57 N. Pleasant St.
253-5141

MUSIC GALLERY
Peavey, Ibanez, Tama, JBL, Roland, Acoustic, Boss, Legend, EV-Tapco, Hondo, Dean, Hamer, Fostex.
Rt. 9 Hadley
on the bus route
586-6228

SPECIAL SAVINGS
Knapsacks
$6.00 and up
Leather Briefcases
$30.00 and up
Mountain Farms Mall
Flea market
Every Sunday

FOREIGN MEDICAL EDUCATION

- complete service for admission into schools in the
- Dominican Republic, Mexico & Caribbean
- No placement fees
- Assistance throughout your medical education with clerkships, MSKP/ECFMG review courses and other programs
- CJ is the only organization in the U.S. which offers this service

CONTACT:
CJ Institute/Intermed Consulting Service
(a not for profit corp.)
139 85th Street,
Brooklyn, NY 11209
(212) 238-0492

Only one of these pens is thin enough to draw the line below.

The newest innovation in writing is the Pilot Precise rolling ball pen. It writes extra thin and extra smooth because of its micro ball and needle-like stainless steel collar. A unique pen at a uniquely affordable price.
Only $1.19

PILOT precise Ball Liner

The rolling ball pen that revolutionizes thin writing.

The store will be Closed
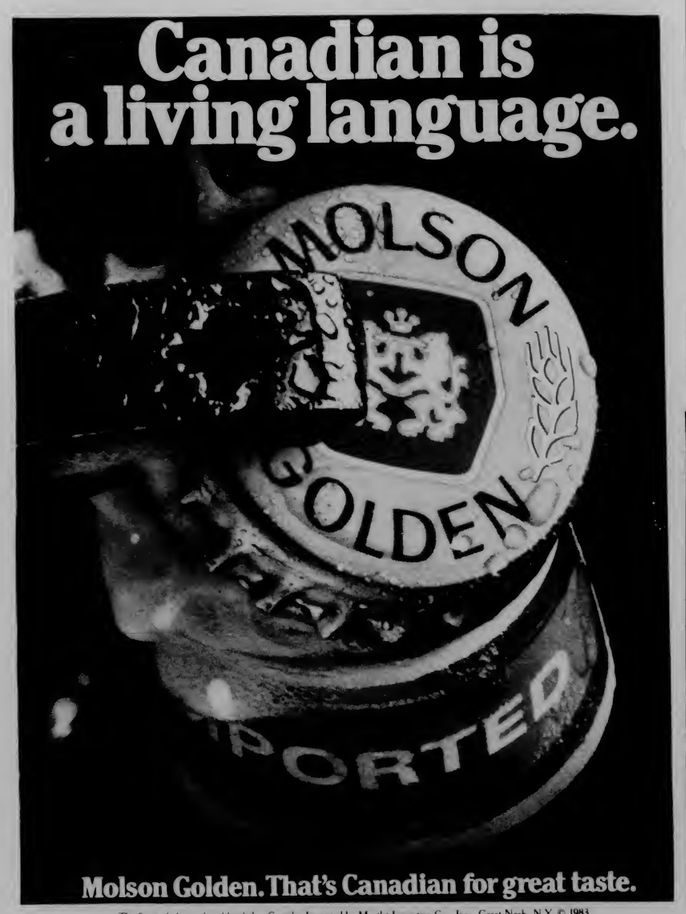
Monday
Feb. 28, 1983
for inventory.

House of Walsh, Inc.
32 Main Street
Amherst, Massachusetts
Daily 9:00 to 5:30 253-3361

Canadian is a living language.



Molson Golden. That's Canadian for great taste.

The finest ale brewed and bottled in Canada. Imported by Martlet Importing Co., Inc., Great Neck, N.Y. © 1983.

Free poster/Guide to Beer Tasting Parties.
Send self-addressed stamped #10 envelope to: Molson Golden Guide, 888 Seventh Avenue, Box M, New York, NY 10106.

Advancement

WITHOUT AN ADVANCED DEGREE

College seniors. If you plan to get a job after graduation, why not consider a profession?

- In 3 months, we prepare you for careers in law, management, finance.
- Our 8 intensive courses are nationally recognized for high academic quality.
- Over 90% of our graduates secure jobs in their specialties. Over 5,000 graduates hold positions in law firms, banks and corporations in 110 cities.
- We provide a substantial tuition refund if we cannot secure a job for you in the city of your choice.

Guarantee your future. Learn how the Institute can help you advance in a career. Our representative will be on campus February 28, 1983.

The Institute for Paralegal Training
235 S. 17th St.
Philadelphia, PA 19103
(215) 732-6600

Approved by the American Bar Association

Operated by Para Legal Inc., a Pennsylvania Corporation

RUM

☐ I would like to arrange an interview at another time. Please call me at one of the phones noted.

☐ Please send me information about the Institute for Paralegal Training.

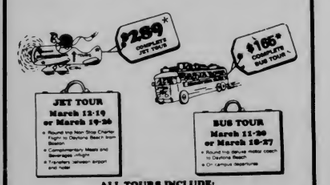
Name _____
Address _____
City, State, Zip _____
_____
College _____
Graduation Date _____
(___) _____ (___) _____
Present phone Permanent phone

Beachcomber Tours presents
14th ANNUAL
College Spring Break in
DAYTONA BEACH



JET TOUR
March 12-19
or March 19-26
- Round trip Non-Stop Charter Flight to Daytona Beach from Philadelphia
- Complimentary Meals and Beverages inflight
- Transfers, between airport and hotel

BUS TOUR
March 11-26
or March 19-27
- Round trip deluxe motor coach to Daytona Beach
- On campus departure

ALL TOURS INCLUDE:
LAND PACKAGE
- First Class Ocean Front Accommodations for Seven (7) Nights at the Days Inn, Beachside or the Quality Inn Reef, located directly on the Strip in Daytona Beach
- Welcome Party with plenty of FREE BEER
- Exclusive 14th Anniversary ID Card for discounts at Shops, Restaurants, Night Clubs, etc.
- On campus reservation service
- Services of the Beachcomber Staff
- OPTIONAL Kitchenettes, Walt Disney World Tour, New Epcot Center Adventure and more!

*PRICE DOES NOT INCLUDE ADDITIONAL $68.00 FOR THE GRATUITIES AND TAXES

$50.00 Deposit Required - Limited Space Available
Make Reservations by Phone or Mail with Deposit

ALSO AVAILABLE
JET FLIGHT ONLY $289
BUS TRANSPORTATION ONLY $139
LAND PACKAGE ONLY $139
(Includes all tax, gratuities and service)

SAVE $20.00
(per person, per trip)
Don't be left out in the Cold!

Contact your campus representative for reservations today

Beachcomber Tours, Inc.
COMPACT
STEVEN
568-1671

MEMBER DAYTONA BEACH CHAMBER OF COMMERCE
WE'RE LIVING FOR MORE DETAILS, SEND THE COUPON ON

DEPENDABILITY • QUALITY • SERVICE • SINCE 1969

room still available

EDITORIAL/OPINION

The perils of pseudo-scholars

Lise Zeiger

By eight o'clock every weeknight, most campus libraries are packed with pseudo-scholars. Students only need a quiet place in the corner with good lighting, but the pseudo-scholar demands more. They have just finished their fourth cup of coffee in twenty minutes and are currently scanning the room for familiar faces. After all, there are two things the pseudo-scholar cannot study without: caffeine and an audience.

This variety of student does not begin his work without the proper accessories. For example, highlighters have begun to play a major role in higher education. Students who used to underline formulas in Essentials of Calculus are now seen highlighting the directions on shampoo containers. "Shampoo, Rinse, Repeat" is now a fluorescent yellow, in case one forgets the essential motions after a good night's sleep. Used textbooks which have been completely covered in radioactive yellow are also available. Even the campus center reading room has managed to produce a breed of students which highlights important facts in Rolling Stone and TV Guide.

The conscientious scholar has also invested in a calculator. These multi-function-jet-propulsion-with-70 horsepower engine devices now are capable of distracting even the most devout scholar from any productive work for hours at a time. Students who religiously carry a calculator in one pocket usually carry a valium in the other. One is available in case the other doesn't work. These scholars are equipped with rechargers and Dietzgen rulers, for more efficient highlighting.

The pseudo-scholar who has neither highlighter or calculator has probably bought a Walkman. This study-aid has been crazy-glued to their ears since they were made available in this part of the nation. Walkmans not only block out distracting noises when studying, but bothersome lectures from professors and annoying girlfriends.

One of the most important preparations for studying is finding the proper atmosphere. This explains why a lot of pseudo-scholars are attracted to the same type of places. Scholars of the business persuasion might want to try out the SBA library. The only ingredient missing here is a Maitre'D. After all, the SBA pseudo-scholar is usually dressed for an evening at Anthony Pier Four, and are always armed with enough Tab and coffee to make it through four courses at any fine dining establishment. Students could enter the library and request reserved reading and a table for two. Near the window, please.

For those with a more relaxed studying style, the campus center reading room has all the ambiance of a furniture warehouse. This haunt is not recommended for those who have trouble with minimal decision making because of its confusing access points. Each morning, a campus center custodian is dispatched to the reading room to repair one door and glue another shut. Doors are made available on a random basis. Those who conquer the doors can then either join the slouching sleepers on the right or those planning to soon join them on left.

Another hot nightspot for the pseudo scholar is the Goodell entertainment center. Here, hard-core scholars are perfecting the "Goodell Glow" obtained after four years under flourescent lighting. The "Glow" can also be obtained in the Morrill Science center, where students are usually found walking aimlessly either trying to find their books in the library, or trying to figure out where the library is in the first place.

The technical pseudo-student has found an emerging chic spot in the Graduate Research terminal rooms. Students who have been waiting on line for a few days are given adequate time to review their notes. Aside from the polar conditions, and the dirtiest floors on the north end of campus, printout machines can be a little on the distracting side. Good lighting though.

Next time you plan to go out to procrastinate, or give the ol' Eastpack a workout, there are a number of places to go. You may not get anything done, but at least you'll be going about it the right way.

Lise Zeiger is a Collegian columnist

Op/Ed is your page!

Have a grievance?

An opinion?

Let us know!

The fine art of being cool on campus

Elizabeth Luciano

Have you ever wondered why so many people's favorite comic strip character is Snoopy? The answer is simple: Snoopy has that extra spark of magic, that special something that sets him apart from, and — yes, even above — ordinary folks. He is esteemed and respected in his community. He has unfailing confidence. Simply put, Snoop is just naturally cool.

Not all of us were lucky enough to be born with suave genes, but with a little training and determination, even the World's Worst Wimp — someone who was a total klutz all through high school — can acquire seemingly effortless savoir-faire. Believe me, this ex-nerd knows. In an effort to achieve just a little more dignity, I've found it helpful to follow these hints:

DO distinguish the appropriate times at which to be cool. Why be charming in class? Nobody's paying any attention to you — they're all listening to the professor. What's the use of sitting in your room, being debonair for the four walls, while you trim your toenails? It is correct to be cool in between classes. It is proper to be cool while hanging out in the Campus Center. And it is expected, even essential, to be cool at frat parties.

DON'T be clumsy. It's not chic to take a drag off a Marlboro Light and then start hacking. Not only will you look juvenile, but nobody will be thrilled at having tiny fragments of your lung tissue stuck to their clothing. And if you're unfortunate enough to frequent the D.C., avoid dropping your tray. When your fellow diners start applauding, it won't be because you command respect while standing in a pile of slimy linguine.

DO appear to be very smart. Practice faking a British accent, and use big words, like "Kafkasque", and "psuedocarpous". It's okay if you don't understand them; chances are that others will feel too stupid to ask for a definition. Lable your notebooks "Calculus VII", "Physics for Mathematical Prodigies", and "Writing the Immortal Literary Masterpiece". Carry foreign language newspapers around, and pretend to eagerly read them cover-to-cover, with complete comprehension. Own a gold-tipped walking stick and a gray flannel blazer.

DO pay attention to what you eat. Forego Oodles of Noodles and soybean burgers in favor of vichysoisse and steaks Diane. Skip the congo bars and butterscotch sundaes, and try lemon mousse for a change. And if you insist on snacking, throw out your Double Stuff Oreos and head for a wheel of Brie.

DO be socially graceful. This means not choking and crossing your eyes after swalling a screwdriver that was four parts vodka and one part orange juice. It means holding a beer mug with your pinky out, (which admittedly takes practice). It means carrying on a conversation while never letting on that you forgot the other person's name. Happily, being socially graceful also means saying to the guy who took your number and never called,

"I'm sorry, but I can't seem to place your face. Are you certain we've met?"

And, for the truly determined would-be Joe or Jane "Cool", one final suggestion:

DON'T, under any circumstances, get caught reading this column.

Elizabeth Luciano is a Collegian columnist

Letters

Neil Young review unfair

To the Editor:

I'm writing in response to the review of the Neil Young concert on February 10, in Hartford, that appeared in the February 17 Collegian.

Sugar Mountain was not played in Hartford. If the writer left the concert while Neil was playing "Don't Let It Bring You Down", than he left during the first twenty minutes of the show. A concert that is being reviewed cannot be reviewed with complete fairness if it is left by the reviewer. If he had stayed, he would have had the chance to hear the newer electronic music that was played towards the end of the show.

The screen that was set up behind the stage occasionally flashed film clips, some of Neil in his Buffalo Springfield days, and people were interviewed on it during intermission. This kept much of the audience interested.

Neil Young brought a crowd of all ages together and did what he's been doing for years; made many people happy.

Scott Kepnes
Amherst

Presuming human evolution

To the Editor:

Last semester I had the opportunity to speak to a professor in the psychology dept. regarding the ongoing debate over creationism vs. evolution. I'm a creationist. I told him I was disturbed at the way the theory of evolution was being presented as undeniable fact. I asked him if I could share with him some relevant data surrounding the controversy and promised to not even use the Bible as a source. He told me he wasn't interested as he knew evolution to be fact. I brought up the point that unless he left himself open to examine new facets he was not really being scientific at all.

Why do I bother to write of this conversation now? I see that much of what we call science on this campus is no more than our own philosophical presuppositions. Now I'm not cutting down philosophy. Philosophy is fine, but let's not kid ourselves and call it science. It isn't. If we really have a desire to be scientific we cannot simply ignore the facts that don't fit into our model of reality. Many creationists are accused of being ignorant of the evolutionary theory. This is probably partly true. But this leads me to end with a thought provoking question. Have we written off the Bible as myth, and the supernatural as impossible on the grounds of scientific examination of the facts, or on the grounds of our own presupposed philosophical assumptions?

Brian Kelley
Orchard Hill

Public employees are people

To the Editor:

As a representative of the UMass Employee's Local 1776, I will suffer in silence no longer from the attacks by cartoonist Mark Rollins on the employees which I represent. His juvenile form of humor escapes me. This is not the first time that this paper has published a cartoon demeaning the state employees.

His allegations as to the productivity of Physical Plant personnel are akin to the statement that all students are either Sexual deviates, drug addicts, or alcoholics. Why pick on us, Mr. Rollins? We're hardworking people that take pride in the University. Who do you think shovels the snow, cooks your food and keeps the power plant running?

Public employees have enough problems due to budget cuts, lack of proper equipment and unsafe buildings. Give us a break, Mark, we're people too.

Brian S. Walker
President, Local 1776
UMass Employees Union

FREE
OFF CAMPUS DELIVERY
$15.00 Minimum
TELEPHONE 253-3091
Old Milwaukee & Light 12 pk
$4.50 + 60¢ dep
Red White & Blue 12 pk
$4.35 + 60¢ dep
Carling Black Label 12 pk
$4.30 + 60¢ dep
Rolling Rock & Light 12 pk
$5.35 + 60¢ dep
California Cellars Burgundy
3 liters $5.99
C & C
PACKAGE STORE
61 MAIN STREET
"Across the street from Plumbleys"

— An Alternative —
Offering Quality Mexican Foods
QUICK • WHOLESOME • INEXPENSIVE
— Northampton —
21 Center St.
584-0673
B.Y.O.B.
TACO VILLA
— Amherst —
41 Boltwood Walk
256-8217
Beer & Wine Served

AN IMPORTANT ADDITION TO YOUR UNIFORM

The insignia of an Air Force nurse can mean a lot to you and your future. It shows that you're part of the Air Force Nurse Corps. A member of one of the most efficient health care teams in the world. It signifies you are an Air Force officer with the responsibility and prestige of a leadership position. It indicates you're on the track toward good pay and almost unlimited educational opportunities. If you're a nursing professional or about to complete your nursing education, why not consider Air Force nursing as part of YOUR future? From the day you're commissioned, you'll receive the pay and advantages of an Air Force officer. Consider your uniform and our future. Then make it yours.

AIR FORCE NURSING. A GREAT WAY OF LIFE.

For More Details Call Sandy Price
(203) 229-9641
Freshmen & Sophmores Call Capt. Pinkell
(413) 545-2137

AIR

Candy it ain't!

Mr. Boston Schnapps.
Look for Mr. Boston's two new cookbooks, the Cordial Cooking Guide and the Spirited Dessert Guide
Available at bookstores or through Warner Books
75 Rockefeller Plaza Special Sales Dept B New York, New York 10019
Mr. Boston Schnapps 54 80 and 100 proof Produced by Mr. Boston Distiller Owensboro, KY Albany GA 1982

BLUE WALL
CAMPUS CENTER AT UMASS
FRI. CRYSTAL SHIP
HAPPY HOUR 3-6 pm with Cliff Meyers
THE DOORS TRIBUTE
cover $3.00
SAT. Black History Month DANCE PARTY with WMUA D.J.'s
only $1.00 Cover

Arts

Meryl Streep and Kevin Kline portray loversin Sophie's Choice.

Sophie a good choice

SOPHIE'S CHOICE
Hampshire Mall

By STEPHEN T. JORDAN
Collegian Correspondent

After viewing the preview footage of Alan J. Pakula's latest film Sophie's Choice, one might be inclined to wonder if it isn't just another film about the atrocities of Nazi Germany during the second world war. However, after viewing the first five minutes of the actual film, any doubts about it are quickly dispelled . While Pakula's film is in part a chronicle of the effects of the war on a young Polish woman it is clearly so much more. This gripping tale of a death camp survivor living in post war Brooklyn may well be the finest film of the year. Superb acting and a brilliant script brimming with thought provoking themes combine to make Sophie's Choice one of the finest experiences ever in American film.

As Sophie, Meryl Streep is nothing short of remarkable. She brings credibility and compassion to the complex and challenging character, achieving the apex of her career in a role that illuminates her talents more clearly than ever before. In the flashback sequences Streep speaks flawless German and attains a visual image of the physical and emotional torments of Auschwitz and Dachau that haunt the audience throughout the film. She manages to make her audience feel Sophie's pain whether they want to or not. This is unquestionably the finest performance to date for Meryl Streep and one certainly worthy of the thunderous praise of critics and the public alike.

Not to be overshadowed by the raves of Meryl Streep, newcomer Kevin Kline brings the bizarre and disturbing character of Nathan to life as Sophie's lover, mentor, and veritable Sven-Ghali. Kline's characterization of the emotionally erratic Nathan leaves the viewer wondering what he will do next and literally begging for more. Likewise, Peter MacNichol portrays Stingo, the "down home" boy who comes to Brooklyn from the deep South and befriends Sophie and Nathan. He brings sensitivity and empathy to the story, adding the third facet to a magical triad of personalities.

Working with a brilliant script based of the novel by William Styron these three central characters develop a friendship that is at times unusual, often disturbing, but always somehow beautiful. As they become closer, the characters expose the central theme of the film, the painful secrets of the past. One after another, each character is developed through the revelation of some secret past experience. Through these emotional confessions the viewer is drawn into an ever tightening web of compassion and a greater understanding of the motivations of each character. Each disclosure leads to another that is more traumatic for both the characters and the audience, building to Sophie's final terrifying confession to Stingo which gives the film its elusive title.

Sophie's secret is as horrifying and painful for the audience as it is for her. Best of all however, her secret, like the rest of the film, is thought provoking and challenging to the audience in terms of their own values. In a season of so many shallow fantasy films, it is refreshing to find a picture that makes its audience think and feel and care. The complete package, contributed to by a score of multi-talented individuals leaves the viewer postively speechless and numb. Sophie's Choice is likely to receive multiple Oscars and countless other awards from the industry and public alike. More important than any award however is the fact that Pakula's new masterpiece of film proves finally and resolutely that a modern film can successfully combine pain and joy, laughter and tears, and most significant, art and entertainment.

Trailers by Andy Gordon

The big news in the film world this week concerns the announcement of the nominees for the 55*th* annual Academy Awards. Topping the list with 11 nominations is Richard Attenborough's epic Gandhi, with nominations for best Picture, best actor (Ben Kingsley) and best director. Tootsie had 10 nominations, including best picture, best actor (Dustin Hoffman) and best supporting actress bids for Teri Garr and Jessica Lange. Lange, in fact, was the first performer in 42 years who was nominated in two categories; in addition to Tootsie, Lange is up for a best actress award for her title role in the film Frances. Other nominees for best picture were E.T., The Verdict and Missing. The award ceremony will be broadcast on April 12. Look for Collegian predictions sometime before then.

The Directors Guild of America has come out with their annual nominations for outstanding achievement in a feature film for 1982. Those nominated were Richard Attenborough for Gandhi, Taylor Hackford for An Officer and a Gentlemen, Wolfgang Petersen for Das Boot, Steven Spielberg for E.T. and Sydney Pollack for Tootsie.

Speaking of awards, the N.Y. Film Critics presented their annual awards at a banquet at Sardi's last week. Best Picture went to Gandhi and best actor to it's star, Ben Kingsley. Meryl Streep was honored as best actress for her performance in Sophie's Choice. Best supporting actress went to Jessica Lange in Tootsie and supporting actor to John Lithgow for his role as the transsexual in The World According to Garp.

Only eight films are currently in production by the major studios, five in this country. Those films are: Heaven, formerly titled Ladies Night, which stars Christopher Atkins as a male stripper, Mr. Mom, To Be or Not to Be, a remake of the Jake Benny World War II comedy starring Mel Brooks and Ann Bancroft, Unfaithfully Yours, another remake, with Dudley Moore and Natassia Kinski, and Staying Alive, a sequel to Saturday Night Fever with John Travolta reprising his role and Sylvester Stallone directing. Outside this country, the three films shooting are Hanna, A Christmas Story and Stephen King's Dead Zone.

Meanwhile outside this country, there has been controversy about several English and American productions. By now everyone knows about E.T. being kept from young children in Sweden and other countries because it "presents adults as the enemies of children" Elsewhere, Gandhi met with violent demonstrations and threats to burn down theaters showing the film in New Delhi when it opened there last week. And the film Class of 84 has been banned in Berne, Switzerland because of "excessive violence." In Germany, Sophie's Choice has been pulled from competition in the Berlin Film festival so the distributor can arrange for a bigger, flashier premier.

"Superman has a cousin in Chicago," the ad campaign reads. The advance press taken out by Superman producer Alexander Salkind refers to Supergirl, which will start filming this spring for presumably a summer, 1984 release. Helen Slater has been signed for the title role and Jeannot Szwarc will direct. Szwarc made such lame shockers as Bug and Jaws II, though he also directed probably the scariest episode of Night Gallery I ever saw.

TRAILERS Trivia: A poster of the shitty 1979 film Scavenger Hunt to the first person to tell me A) who made the first Talking movie and when,and B) in what film Bill Murray played a convict named Lefty. Answer to the last question: William Hurt was Ned Racine in Body Heat, Richard Mulligan was Felix Farmer in S.O.B., Ringo Starr played Atouk in Cavemen and John Belushi was Earl Keese in Neighbors.

Jessica Lange received a best actress nomination for her role as Frances.

RUGBY SHIRT

Extra Heavy Weight

100% cotton
rubber buttons

Now Arriving

New Colors - New Styles

Regular or Pinstriped

Available Sizes
S-M-L-XL

Assorted Colors

For sports, recreation, or relaxing

Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4

Located in the Campus Center

UNIVERSITY STORE

EXCEPTIONAL MANAGEMENT OPPORTUNITIES

For exceptional College Grads
(and those who are soon to be)

CURRENT
OPPORTUNITIES:

- NUCLEAR ENGINEERING
- BUSINESS MANAGEMENT
- AVIATION • LAW
- MEDICINE • INTELLIGENCE
- SHIPBOARD OPERATIONS
- CIVIL ENGINEERING

Sign up for an interview
in the Career Placement Office
prior to 2 March or call:
Naval Management Programs
(203) 528-9988

Don't Miss It!

IMPACT®

Last Day

presents

LASER PHOTO ART

Poster Size
20"x 24"
4.00 each
3 for 10.00

Feb. 23, 24, & 25

Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4
Located in the Campus Center

In Front of the

UNIVERSITY STORE

ATTENTION SENIORS

Now is the time!
Get your face in the yearbook.

The photographer will be here
Feb 28 to March 17
Stop by CC Rm 178 or
call 545-2874 to
make your appointment.

Hypercurricula...

All Weekend

UMASS PEACEMAKERS RETREAT — At Mt. Toby, learning to work together and planning future work as well as having fun. Call 545-2661 for more information. 6 p.m. Friday to 6 p.m. Saturday, Mount Toby Friends Meeting House.

Today

SHABBAT SERVICES — Shabbat is a special time to recall experiences of the week, and being in good energy for the holiday. Services are open to everyone.

SHABBOS SERVICES — Everything you always wanted to experience from a traditional Sabbath in a really special atmosphere. All of our services are followed by meals. Come for one or the other or both, no reservations necessary — for more info. Call 253-9040. Fri. eve-after sunset, Sat. morn 10:30 a.m., Chabad House, 30 N. Hadley Rd., Amherst.

Saturday

25+ CLUB SWIM PARTY — Meet older students at Boyden Pool for a swim, followed by whatever. "Live it up" with the 25+ Club. Open to all older students. 3 p.m., Boyden Gym.

PURIM CELEBRATION!!!— Bring your noisemakers and your noisy friends! Purim is the time for celebration. Includes Megillah reading and Hamantaschen reading. 7:30 p.m., Cape Cod Lounge.

PURIM EXTRAVAGANZA — Join us for the most spirited Purim celebration in the valley. Featuring the 5 college battle of the purim spielers. There'll be reading of the Book of Esther, the play competition, singing, dancing, drinking and more. 8 p.m., Chabad House, 30 N. Hadley Rd.

Sunday

NEED A RIDE TO CHURCH? — The CHURCH BUS leaves at 9:30 from Prince House and stops at Hills North, Greenough, Grayson, Fraternity-Sorority Park, Cashin, and NOPE enroute to the Amherst churches. Call UCF, 545-2661, for more information.

ART MATTHEWS BAND — Jazz history lecture and concert. Free. All are welcome. Refreshments served. 1 to 3 p.m., Baker lobby, Central.

AMHERST AREA NEW TESTAMENT CHURCH — Come join us for our weekly Sunday service of worship, praise and teaching from the Bible. 3:30 p.m., see CC schedule for room.

ART OPENING — Reception for the sculptural installation of Rhode Island of Design graduate student Kristine Diekman. Show runs from 2/28 to 3/11. 4 to 6 p.m., Student Union Gallery

SPIRITUAL DIRECTION & SUPPORT GROUP — A group for men and women willing to examine different forms of spirituality and how it can be reflected positively in one's life. 5 p.m., 428 Student Union.

FACULTY RECITAL — Flutist Joanne Tanner, assisted by Peter Tanner on piano and percussion, will perform a program of compositions by Bach, Ingolf Dahl, Franz Krommer, and Francis Poulenc. Admission is free. 8 p.m., Bezanson Recital Hall.

Special Purchase
Athletic Weight Jersey
$7.95 w/coupon reg. $9.95
ONE DAY ONLY SALE

100% Cotton
Heavy Weight

Maroon

$2.00 Off w/coupon

$2.00 Off w/coupon

JERSEY
Reg. $9.95

OPEN
M-F 9-5

Located in the Campus Center

maroon

UNIVERSITY STORE

Coupon valid only 2/25/83

Budweiser.
KING OF BEERS.

INTRAMURAL HIGHLIGHTS

GENUINE GENUINE

Intramural Wrestling Tournament:
Weigh-In:February 28 from 4:30 p.m. until 9:30 p.m.
Matches begin Tues. March 1 at 7:30 p.m. Wrestling Room Boyden Gymnasium
Practice Times: Sat. Feb. 28 & Sun. Feb. 27 Wrestling Room 2:00 p.m. until 4:00 p.m.

Entry Dates
Teams are reminded that they may sign-up before listed entry date the lines are shorter and the choices are greater.
Softball - Men's/Women's/Co-Rec Entry Date: Thurs. March 3, 1983 with play beginning on March 28, 1983.
Soccer - Men's/Women's Entry Date: Mon. Feb. 28, 1983 with play beginning on Mon. March 28, 1983
$10.00 forfeit fee required
Co-Rec Bowling - one night, total pin fall
$12.00 non-refundable fee per team
Entries due Feb. 24, 1983 with play beginning March 1
Co-Rec Swim Meet entries due March 7, 1983 - Boyden Pool pre-register individually or by teams meet begins at 7:00 pm.

High Shooter of the Week - Intramural Basketball - Beginning 2/17/83
Men - Jaremy Viano for the Tigers 34 points
Kelly Depprich for the Lords with 34 points.
Women - Janet Miller for the Misfits with 20 points
Sharee McClain for Crempton Women of Color with 20 points
Co-Rec Women Alison Burke for the PTA's with 46 pts
Men Devid SanClemente for the Blockheads with 8
Theo Moore for Spirit with 8 points
Grad-Fac - Paul Venies for Fluid Motion with 27 pts

this Bud's for you!

家鄉園南湖
Hunan Garden Restaurant

"The Best Chinese Food"

BUFFET
Mon - Thurs
5 pm - 8 pm
Sunday Brunch
11:30 am - 3 pm
ALL YOU CAN EAT
$5.25 per person

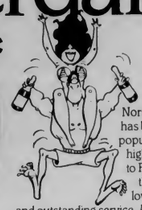
MENU
Hot & Sour Soup
Beef with green pepper
Chicken Pan Fried Noodels
Sweet & Spur Chicken
Chinese Style BBQ Pork
Pan Fried Ravioli
Chicken Fingers

Luncheon Spacial & Teke-Out Service
Full Cocktail Manu
Sun - Thurs 11:30 am - 10 pm
Fri & Sat 11:30 am - 11 pm
10 Belchertown Road
at Rte 9, Amherst
256-3252

UMASS SKI CLUB
Goes North to
Stowe VERMONT
SKI CAPITAL of the EAST.
March 20 - 25 159.00
Includes: Transportation
5 nights hotel accomodations
5 full breakfasts
color TV & steam bath
in every room
5 days skiing
Free Hot Tub Party
2 Free Beer & Wine Parties
Indoor Heated Pool
for more info 5-3437

UMASS SKI CLUB
GOES DOWN
TO
FT. LAUDERDALE
SPRING BREAK 83
8 Days 7 Nights Luxurious Hotel on the Strip
Hotel only $149
W/Motor Coach $275
W/Jet $369
For more information 545-0437
Don't be abused by Price Games
The Ski Club has only luxury hotels
and no hidden costs

Buy your ticket now for Spring Break.
Then fly nonstop from Bradley. Don't delay. Seats are going fast.
Fort Lauderdale
$119*
All seats, all flights.



Northeastern has become a popular jet highway to Florida, thanks to low fares and outstanding service. At this low price, tickets must be bought within 7 days of making a reservation. Call your travel agent. Or call us at (800) 645-1770 or (800) 327-3788.
*$119 weekdays. $129 weekends are guaranteed to Sept. 6, 1983, when ticket purchased within 7 days of placing a reservation. Certain holiday surcharges apply.
northeastern
A lot of airline for a little money.

THE LITE BEER ALL-STARS STRIKE AGAIN.

When famous bowler Don Carter invited 23 Kingpins to the First Lite Beer Bowling Tournament, it seemed like a great idea.

It was the guys who drink Lite Beer from Miller because it tastes great, against the guys who drink it because it's less filling. And once again, the All-Stars proved they're in a league by themselves.

After a lot of pins (and quite a few Lite Beers) went down and the smoke finally cleared, the score was tied, with only one man left to go. Rodney Dangerfield.

All he needed to win it was one pin. A klutz situation. Rodney, in top form, got the same amount of pins as he gets respect. None.

Teammate Ben Davidson felt Rodney deserved a break, or at least a fracture. Billy Martin didn't argue with that. Jim Honochick couldn't believe his eyes. Neither could Marv Throneberry.

So the First Lite Beer Bowling Tournament ended in a draw. And the argument over the best thing about Lite was left unsettled.

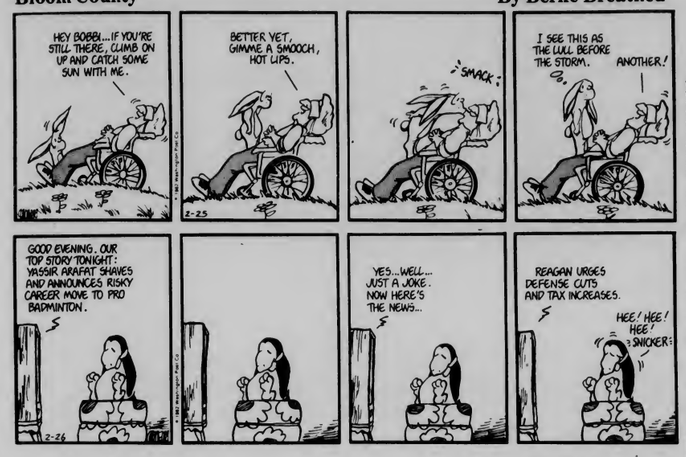
But there was one thing everyone agreed on. It was truly everything you always wanted in a bowling tournament. And less

EVERYTHING YOU AWAYS WANTED IN A BEER. AND LESS.

From left to right: Bubba Smith, Dick Butkus, Frank Robinson, Jim Honochick, Ray Nitschke, Ben Davidson, Don Carter, Billy Martin, Matt Snell, Rodney Dangerfield, John Madden, Mickey Spillane, Lee Meredith, Buck Buchanan, Marv Throneberry, Tommy Heinsohn, Boog Powell, Rodney Marsh, Steve Mizerak, Deacon Jones, Boom Boom Geoffrion, and Dick Williams. ©1982 Miller Brewing Co., Milwaukee, Wis.

Bloom County

By Berke Breathed



The UMass Zone

By Mark Rollins

Katfood

By ARK

Scrod

By Don DeBellis

After the Fall

By R. Miller

CROSSWORD

Edited by Margaret Farrar and Trude Jaffe
©1983 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

ACROSS
1 Latin dance
6 Deck items
10 Stare in wonder
14 Once more
15 Raced
16 Egyptian sun god
17 Irrigator
19 Melee
20 Eager
21 Hooter
22 —— of the road
24 Signet ring, for one
25 Huge
27 German river to the Fulda
29 Liar
33 Place to get tit
36 Neighbor of Minn
37 Set on fire
38 Welsh dog
40 —— la vista
41 Trappings
44 Mil. entertainment org.
46 Himalayan denizen
47 Saving
48 See 15 Across
50 One who maligns
52 Tributary of the Rhine
56 Writer Gay
59 Ring name
60 Pool adjuncts
61 "I never met ——"
62 White House location
65 Current hit on Broadway
66 Fed man Elliot
67 Form of pollution
68 Former sr.
69 Minerals
70 Wagers

DOWN
1 Forsyte et al.
2 Amaryllis
3 Singer Callas
4 U.S. judge at Nuremberg
5 Donkey, in Caen
6 Sidewise, at sea
7 Pacifies
8 Vetch
9 Appearing
10 Fragrant flower
11 In the thick of 12 Indoor game
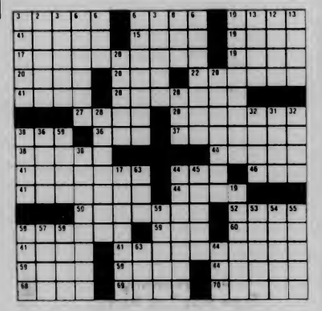
13 Grafted, in heraldry
18 Name, to Caesar
23 Scott hero
26 Monkey
28 Lace mats
30 —— bitsy
31 Negrito of P.I.
32 Pierre's location: Abbr.
33 Morals: Abbr.
34 Seamus Heaney of Ireland
35 Southern constellation
39 Used an irrigator
42 Dante's "——"
43 Khan
44 Ineffectual
45 Herb cutting
49 Man-made material
51 Billiard shot
53 Accounting procedure
54 Peewee
55 Slaves of old
56 Pungency
57 Ruler in the East
58 Turner
63 Above, poetically
64 Anecdotes



ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

N	A	M	E		I	T	A	L		M	A	P	S
A	W	A	R	E		M	A	G	I		O	M	A	R
S	O	U	R	G	R	A	P	E	S		N	O	I	L
A	L	I		R	A	G	E		P	S	E	U	D	O
	S	E	W	E	D		T	I	R	E	S
O	R	A	W	S		O	P	U	S
R	I	P	E	S	T		T	R	A	D	U	C	E	R
A	L	E	E		A	D	E	U		C	L	I	O
T	E	S	T	I	L	E	S		L	I	K	E	N	S
			B	R	E	W			C	L	O	S	E
I	N	T	R	O		C	A	C	H	E
A	D	W	E	N	A		O	T	E	O		S	A	D
A	R	E	A		B	I	T	T	E	R	O	O	T
T	I	E	D		E	L	I	S		S	U	R	A	N
E	A	D	S		T	S	A	R			U	A	R	O

WEATHER

Occasional light snow spreading into all areas by mid morning, highs in the low to mid 30s. Tonight snow continuing, lows in the 20s. Tomorrow snow ending from west to east during the day, highs in the low to mid 30s.

D.C. MENU

LUNCH
Seafood and Shell Casserole, Pizza

DINNER
Roast Top Round of Beef/ Jardinere Sauce, Fish Fry Plate/ Tartar Sauce

BASICS LUNCH
Seafood and Shell Casserole, Pizza

BASICS DINNER
Colache, Fish Fry Plate/ Tartar Sauce

Important Night Graphics Meeting
Thursday, March 3
7:00 p.m.

STADIUM

UMass Amherst

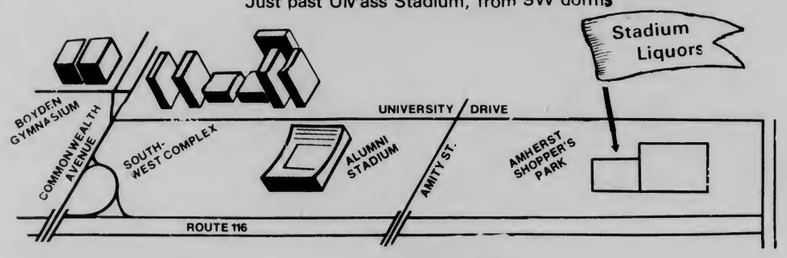
10 a.m. til 11 p.m.

LIQUORS

Kegs • Beer • Wine • Soda • Ice

University Drive, Amherst, Mass.

Just past UMass Stadium, from SW dorms



Old Milwaukee 12 pk.	$4.30	+ .60 dep
Pabst bot.	$8.90	+ 1.50 dep
Schaffer cans.	$8.95	+ 1.20 dep
Busch cans.	$9.95	+ 1.20 dep
Budweiser cans.	$10.95	+ 1.20 dep
Almaden 3 L.	$6.95
California Cellars 1.5.	$4.49
Sebastiani 1.5 L.	$4.49
Principato white 1.5 L.	$3.99
Gallo 1.5 L.	$3.99
Canadian Rare 1.75.	$10.25
Canadian Mist 1.75.	$12.59
Gordon's Gin 1.75.	$11.99
Popov Vodka 1.75.	$9.95
Regnier Schnapps 1 L.	$5.95
Strogoff Vodka 1.75.	$8.20

253-5595

not responsible for typographical errors

Sports

The UMass men's volleyball team will practice Sunday at 1:00 p.m. in Boyden. Old and new members are invited. For more information, call Dave Simeone, 6-5093.

Jenn Nicolai balances women's swim team

By GREG BOURIS
Collegian Correspondent

In team sports , reaching the plateau or excellence can only be accomplished through the perfection of a team "chemical balance." This chemistry has been achieved by the University of Massachusetts women's swim team presently 10-2 and heading for post-season competition in the New England Championships this weekend.

The success of the women's swim team is a direct result of a mix of talented young women swimming individually to reach a team goal: success.

Jennifer Nicolai, a senior from Greenfield Massachusetts, is a key element in the team's successful campaign this year. Nicolai, last season's team MVP, has proven herself to be a versatile athlete.

She competes in the 100 yard individual medely, the 50 yard and 100 yard freestyles, the 50 yard butterfly, as well as the 200 and 400 yard relays.

Nicolai is also a dedicated athlete. Working as an intern for the Boston Red Sox, she must practice on her own in Boston area pools, and commute from Boston whenever the team has a meet. This has not detracted from her aquatic success. Heading into the New England Regionals, Nicolai will be seeded in the top four in all her events this weekend. Nicolai attributes her success to hard work, good coaching and a great team concept.

Apart from being a team swimmer, Nicolai has been able to enjoy the icing on the cake; She has amassed school records in her career, including the 50 yard freestyle (24.77 sec.), 100 yard freestyle (54.40 sec), as well as sharing in records in the 400 yard and 800 yard relays.

Looking ahead to the New England Regionals and the ECAC Championships, Nicolai's outlook reverts back to the concept of chemistry.

"This year's success has been due to the great at effort we receive from our second and third place finishers. With the great depth and total team effort we have we should be able to better last year's seventh place finish," she said.

Coach Val Turtle measures Nicolai's contribution to the team in terms of the concept of chemistry.

"Jennifer's biggest contribution to the team is that she is a good team swimmer who possesses a burning desire to do her best for the team,"she said.

It appears that the UMass womens swim team has earned an A+ in chemistry as well as swimming. Most likely the two will be combined for a productive finish in both the New England Regionals and the ECAC Championships.

UM women swimmers head for New Englands

By BOB BROCK
Collegian Staff

Armed with a 10-2 record, one of their bests in recent years, the University of Massachusetts women's swimming team is primed and ready for the New England Championships, which begin tonight at Springfield College's Linkletter Natatorium.

Coach Valerie Turtle is optimistic about her team's prospects for the meet, since UMass has qualified in each event, including both the one and three meter diving.

The meet will be comprised of 15 teams from both Division I and Division II schools, but Turtle says the team to beat is defending champion, Boston College. Incidently, B.C. dealt UMass swimmers their first loss of the season.

Smith College, Springfield, University of Maine, and New Hampshire (who beat UMass two weeks age) all look to field strong teams.

"I think it could actually be a toss-up between us, Smith, Springfield, Maine and UNH," said Turtle. "They all have a lot of balance so every swim counts," she added.

Since the Minutewomen have qualified in every event, they are entering the competition in excellent shape. So good in fact that Turtle believes UMass could win some events.

In both the 200 and 400 yard freestyle relays, Umass is listed as one of the favorites. As far as individual events go, Jenn Nicolai is a top contender for a first in the 50 butterfly.

The Minutewomen also look strong in other events. Anne Whitlock, Jennifer Black and Debbie Chisholm hope to score points in the backstroke competition as do Laurie Keen and Lisa Cohen in the breaststroke event.

Besides swimming the fly, Jenn Nicolai will be looking for points in the sprint freestyles along with Connie Anderson. School record holder, Martha Samsel will be swimming the 1650 freestyle with Nancy Stevens. Caroline Walsh and Jennifer Black will be swimming both the 200 and 400 individual medleys.

Coach Turtle is optimistic about the diving events. She believes that Gina Perrone and Jean Bushee can score well in both the 1-meter and 3-meter boards.

Turtle expects good times and is looking to improve on last years' seventh place finish.

"I'd like to move up a bit, said Turtle. It should be a real exciting New England's," she said.

For people who would like to see some of the action, prelims begin at 11:00 a.m. and finals are run at 7:oo p.m. each night. Admission is $1 with a student ID for prelims and $1.50 for finals.

Men gymnasts at Boyden

By ELLEN RICHARD
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts gymnastics team will be looking for more than a victory when they host Temple Saturday. The Minutemen will be looking to break the school record of 258 points against the injury-riddled Owls.

The Minutemen, who have a 7-4 record, should have no problem defeating Temple, according to coach Roy Johnson. Temple was co-champion of the Eastern Intercollegiate Gymnastic League last year. However, injuries have hurt the team this year.

"They were a great team going into September," coach Johnson said. "If they didn't have all those injuries they'd be a good team."

Temple is not the only team with injuries. UMass has Peter Lucchini and Lew Wingert on the disabled list. Lucchini, who competes in five events for UMass, is out with a sprained knee. Jim Corbett will replace him against Temple in floor exercises, vault and parallel bars.

Wingert is still out with a strained elbow.

The Minutemen have four gymnasts in the top ten in the NCAA Eastern leaders. Bert Mathieson is in sixth place in all around competition with 52.35 points. Mathieson is also sixth in pommel horse with a 9.1.

John Macurdy is tied for eighth in floor exercises with a 9.25 and also holds the eighth spot in vaulting with a 9.5. John McGonagle in in a three-way tie for fourth in rings with a 9.45, and Tony Sbarra is fourth in high bar with 9.35.

After compiling a 2-3 record on their road trip, the Minutemen will have the home advantage again. The team will finish out the season a week from tomorrow at home against Springfield.

"The guys are a little more used to their equipment," Johnson said. "It will be a good chance to warm up for Springfield."

On Sunday the team will travel to Springfield to perform in the New England Invitational gymnastics meet. About seven teams will compete in Springfield and the Minutemen are looking to pile up some more wins before the Eastern Championships.

The Minutemen will be performing tomorrow against Temple hoping to perform well enough to reach their goal of 258 points. Meet time is 1:00 p.m.

UMass trackmen takeoff for New England meet

By LAURIE FISHER
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts men's track team left for Lewiston, Maine today to compete with 30 schools in the New England Track finals at Bates College.

"We have a very similar team going to the finals this year as we did last year. We have three strong individuals and several other opportunities for fourth, fifth and sixth placings," coach Ken O'Brien said.

The strong individuals include tried and true runner, Brian Osborne, who last year placed third in the New England 600 yard dash event. His third place time of 1:10.9 was his personal best.

"Brian rises to the level of competition. Last year he made his big performance improvement at the New Englands where the competition was stiff," O'Brien said.

High hurdler John Wright is included in the strong UMass trio. John is the leading hurdler in New England. He is 2.10 seconds faster than his closest competitor," O'Brien said.

Wright was unable to compete in the indoor New Englands last year due to a sprained ankle, although he placed third in the outdoor finals held last May at Boston College.

Senior Rick Dorion has a good shot at placing in the top three in the 3000 meter run according to assistant coach Greg Roy.

Sunday Dorion will anchor the distance medley. Last year, the Minuteman relay team won the medley with a time of 10 minutes. The team, Dorion, John Keelan, Brian Osborne, is almost the same this year with Jack Marinilli replacing John Caffney.

Penthathlers, Greg Mader and Todd Johnson, ranked fifth and sixth respectively, left Thursday night to compete in the Pentathlon held today.

"In order to break into the top three slots they are going to have to give an outstanding performance. They would have to equal or better their present records in all five events," Roy said.

"How we finish as a team depends a lot on who enters each event," O'Brien said.

RUSSELL'S LIQUORS

18 Main St. Downtown Amherst 253-5441

Budweiser 12 oz. cans.	$11.00	case + $1.20 deposit
Busch 12 oz lg necks.	$9.85	case + $1.50 dep
Labatt's beer or ale 12 oz bottles.	$3.30	+ .30 dep
Rolling Rock 12 oz long necks.	$10.00	case + $1.50 dep
Schaeffer 12 oz lg necks.	$8.75	case + $1.50 dep
Gin or Vodka 80°.	$8.99	1.75 L
Paul Masson Burgundy, Rose, Chablis, Rhine.	$4.99	1.5 L

Large selection of Mini Kegs, ¼ Kegs and ½ Kegs

TIME OUT

A Good Place to Start a Conversation

Happy Hour 4 - 6

Giant Bar Drinks $1.75

16 oz. Draft 85¢

Sandwiches served 11:30 am - 1:30 pm

AMHERST'S BIGGEST LITTLE BAR

37 N. Pleasant St.

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Monday - Friday • Deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10 % • discount • Phone number FREE

AUDIO

Penasonic AM-FM 8-track stereo, phono & speakers 50$ 8-track tapes 2$ ea 6-8185

AUTO FOR SALE

67 VW Conv inspected needs work $400 or BO 323-5918 leave message

71 Ford Torino AM/FM stereo fair cond. $300 or BO Diane 253-8453

1973 Plym Grnd Cp. 95000 m AC, stereo & more must sell 700$ 549-5877 Joe aft 5

For sale 1970 Ford Torino - 45,000 original miles needs work - $500 or BO call 545-3500 before 5:00 549-4125 after 5:00 ask for Dan

73 Pontiac Grand AM 4 door cruise control climate control bucket seats excellent condition $800 or BO 82,000 miles 549-2785 evenings

Brend-new Holly 600 4-barrel carborator retails for $225 must sell $100 or BO call 549-5586 after 11:00

1967 Saab 96 (Monte Carlo Edition) $500. Call Sam 774-5952 1-5 PM or leave message

1973 Cutlass 4 dr 84000 miles stereo well maintained $1150 Ron 549-2656

BOLTWOOD PROJECT

Interested in the Boltwood Project? Recruitment meeting Wed. Feb. 23 at 7 PM in 804 CC

COUNSELING - LOW STUDENT FEE

Licensed, experienced, caring humanist No connection U Mass. First session free. Allan Black, 253-5036

COUNSELORS

Association of Independent Camps seeks qualified counselors fo 75 member children's camps in Northeast July and August. Contact: Association of Independent Camps (MA), 157 West 57th Street, New York, New York, 10019 (212)582-3540

CRIMSON TRAVEL

Spring Break - Bermuda $289. Daytona $299. Disney $279. More info: Roberta or Steph 549-5320

ENTERTAINMENT

Professional DJs For Less $99 Winter Special! Dorms, greeks, Semis. Paul 549-4405

Reckedisc Entertainment Agency Inc. Bands and discjockeys guaranteed student functions 256-0739

Magician - The Great Charles will entertain at any occasion call Bruce 549-1177 after PM

Professional DJs for less $99 special ends March 15. Book now before price increase 549-4405

M & M Music Unlimited Professional DJ's for all occasions call Mike 546-5259

FINALLY LEGAL

My crazy sweetheart SGC - Wishing you the happiest birthday ever! This last week has been beautiful!! Until the weekend. . .your crazy admirer SLH

FOR RENT

Couple wanted: share Townehouse Apt. with another June 1 fall option Kathy 549-1430

Amherst Center 1 bedroom apt $325/mn available immediately 256-6402

Room in Brittany Menor Apt. 160/month heat & hot water included. (1)-568-1215

Storage space available by the month. Call peg (evenings 6-10 pm) 549-6852

FOR SALE

Nikon FE for sale with 50f1.8 and 135 telephoto $375 or BO call Scott 253-7465

Need luggege for Spring Break? Special design (CIAO!) bags various colors and styles call Jodi 546-9661

Computer for sale, Synertek Systems SYM-1 computer kit. New never been used. Very versatile. Asking $190 call Ron at 549-6999

Tickets for Eric Clepton's only NE show best offer 546-8682 keep trying

Soft black leather and goose-down vest. men's 42, women's 12. Almost new $85. 549-2857, Abby

Eric Clapton Tickets, 15th row, reasonable price, call 546-7504 must sell

Hagstrom Bass $280 Kustom 75w amp $230 Roland synthesizer $450 549-0453

Artists! Pints of acrylic paints for sale cheap! Call Louise 546-8527

1969 Volvo 1445, excellent body and interior. Economical!! New mufler, battery, etc. $1,000 or BO Also, Smith Corona electric typewriter (case & three cartridges included!!) $150 or BO 665-4880

Stylish womans down coat practically new hardly worn call Debbie 546-9660

FOUND

10k gold signet ring. Tell me the initials and it's yours. Call Terri at 549-0748 after 5:00 pm.

HELP WANTED

Oversees Jobs - Summer/year round. Europe, S. Amer., Australia, Asia. All fields. $500-$1200 monthly. Sight-seeing. Free info. Write IJC Box 52-MA-1 Corona Del Mar, CA 92625

CRUISE SHIP JOBS! $14-$28,000 Caribean, Hawaii, World. Call for Guide, Directory, Newsletter. 916-722-1111 ext Massachusettes

COUNSELORS: Camp Wayne, northeastern Pennsylvania. Co-ed childrens camp 6/23-8/23/83. On campus interviews March 2nd. Friendly, warm atmosphere, 12 Allevard, Lido Beach, NY 11561. Include school phone number. Campus Rep: Wendy Edenfield 545-0939

The Commuter Area Government has two job openings. These positions are work-study at 15/hours/wk. Freshperson, sophomore or junior undergraduate preferred. To apply, stop by 404 Student Union 9:00-5:00 pm M-F. We are an Affirmative Action Equal Opportunity Employer. Third World, women and non-traditional students encpouraged to apply. Deadline is February 23.

Like dancing? I need a partner! Please call 586-3379 Amy

INSTRUCTION

Music Instruction: sax, flute, clarinet, piano, brass, and voice. . .ear training, improvisation, and reading! John Root 256-8729

LOST

Keys on blue-clip keyring with words Le Chateau 546-8161

Blue five-subject notebook, outside Coffee Shop 11:30 Friday 18th. Very important notes. Please call 1-532-1588. Reward

Aspen Ski Coat and Keys sentimental value small reward call Rich 546-7878

*  REWARD *** *
Lost: 2 charms
highly sentimental
please call 6-6966

Short Khaki Jacket w hat and mittens in Blue Wall Fri nite 2/1/83 Please hat and mittens have sentimental value call 253-9971 Sheila

Rosery beads in black leather pouch lost on Feb 17 Thursday much sentimental value reward please call Lance at 584-1920

MICROCOMPUTER/TERMINAL RENTALS

The Computer Works 253-5676 253-5756

MINDY'S BIRTHDAY

Min - for all the things we've been thru together - semi-formals; noise from above (Mindy we're home!); July 4 at the Capes getting back at ER; JT - Don't fall down the hill!; the Army Lacrosse game; Rude, Crude, Raunchy & Socially Unacceptable. . .These memories & many more to come, have a great day! Love, Lori, Krista and Jodi

PERSONALS

DAN JOYCE from BCH! call Suzi 6-6048

All Umess men are invited to an Open Rush at FAM, tonight at 8:00 pm 395 N Pleasant St

Little Buddy, I love you and don't know what I'd do without ya!, ME

Cynthia Cay thank-you for everything you did on 2/22! Have a terrific day love L.F.

Kay Kevin! Party, party! Happy 22 you've gotta love it lets tap!

Guitarist wenting to join band. In Southwest area preferably. All kinds of music. Call John 6-8800

hey D.U., Sorry we haven't been around much lately. We've missed you, too! (Especially you, Tank!!!!) See ya 'round - wink wink, nudge nudge. Love JoAnne and Hannah

"And the worms ate into his brain. . ." Pink Floyd and Genesis tonight 11-2 on WSYL-FM 97.7 requests 545-0191

Pookie, Wish I could be with you on your birthday! I love you, Mommy

Erin, Legal at last in NYC! Shari

Sheri's best friend, have a fantastic 19th! Erin's best friend

Three Stooges Film Festivel. 5 Curleys. Saturday Feb. 26 CCA at 7, 9, 11 PM price $1.00

Lesbien/Gay Dance Saturday February 26 9-2 am 10th floor CC 2$ admission call The People's Gay Alliance at 5-0154 for more info

Go Down with someone you know & trust
luxury hotels, no hidden costs & no BS
Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. Spring Break 83

UMass Ski Club Goes Down 545-3437

Bobby & John - UMass Hoop goodluck Sat! The two UMass Softball players you saw at the Year of Living Dangerously

Richard Yamertino
Happy 21st
I love you lots!
ME

Bermuda Rugby Tour The Rugby Club is traveling to Bermuda for Spring Break. We have room for non-members. Come along and GO WILD! Contact Mark 549-2760 Scott 253-3544

To Aimee Happy 21st Birthday I'm so glad I took you in from the Big Bad World. Now I have a super roommate and friend. You are the best! Have a great year. I love you Karen

Robbie - Happy 19th Birthday, Buddy!! Go wild and celebrate . Hope you have a happy one love ya! "Pssssst"

Jennifer O. Happy 20th Birthday. Hope you have a great weekend . Love, Ellen

Happy 19th Birthdey Broccoli, Your the sweetest vegetable around. Luv ya! BW

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Dissertations, Theses, Cases, Papers, guaranteed acceptance, low rates, Nancy 5-0392, 584-7924

PSYCHOLOGY STUDY

Subjects needed, ages 17 -25, who have lost a parent 1 - 5 years ago, to participate in an interview study about bereavement. Experimental credits available. Call 549-4418 AM or PM, or leave a note at Tobin Hall room 603, with your phone no. & when to call.

RESUME WRITING

Professional/Confidential/Efficient special rates 253-7468 weekends, weekdays after 5

RIDE NEEDED

Ride needed to Millers Falls Thur eves 5 PM share expenses call Holly at Outdoor Center of New England 659-3926

Ride needed to Penn for Spring Break Going to Leola, Lancaster, Harrisburg, or Phili. area will share cost. Rita 546-6347

Ride needed Clepton concert Mar. 1 Worcester share expenses call John 6-4760

ROOMMATE WANTED

One bedroom in three bedroom So. Amherst house call Patrick 253-3124

Roommete wented $115/month Feb paid for Brittany Manor heat hot water inc. on bus route with tennis courts call Jamie John or Mike 253-5605 keep trying

Female roommate wented to share 1 lg bdrm apt $150 incl 665-4980

SERVICES

PAPER DUE? CAN'T WRITE? Tutor -english composition and grammar reasonable rates 6-9289

Relationship difficulties? Anxieties? Depression? Try an off-campus weekly therapy group. Open house Sat 26, AM call 256-8814

SPRINGBREAK

Daytone Beach $269 Merch 19-26 Round trip jet and hotel directly on the beach! Montreal $59 plus tax and service. March 19-21; 26-28 round trip deluxe motor coach 3 days/2 nights in the Quality Inn downtown includes welcome party. Also! Half-price Delta Airlines coupons!

TRAVEL

Floride direct by van. 3/19-27. $148. for round trip - wine & cheese - accom. info call now - S.S. Van Lines @ 617-724-8810

Daytona Beech - Spring Break - March 18-27. Party down by motorcoach, free beer party, oceanfront accomodations $165 plus tax & services. For more info call Kathie or Robin @ 256-0551

Bermuda - $315 includes everything - call 256-6941 after 6

Experience the Keys Key West, Fla.
Spring Break March 19-26
Hotel only $159, w/motor coach $299
tax & gratuities included

for more info call 549-5959
If you're going down go all the way!
UMASS SKI CLUB GOES DOWN
to
Ft. Lauderdele Spring Break 83

8 days 7 nights luxurious hotel on Ft. Lauderdale strip with parties at: "The Button", "THe Camdy Store" "Summers" "Area Code 302" "Dallas" "Art Stocks Playpen" etc. etc. etc.
Hotel only $149 w/motor coach $275 w/jet $369
tax & gratuities included

non-members welcome
for more info call 547-3437

Ski the world's best powder. Utah! Trip includes: round trip airfare 7 - nights lodging at Temple Square Hotl 5-day all Utah lift ticket free rental car with unlimited mileage all taxes and services. All for $479.00 contact UMass Ski Club 545-3437

UMass Ski Club goes north
Spring Break 83 March 20-25
Stowe. Ski club capitel of the East.
Only $159 includes: transportation, hot tub party, beer & wine parties, 5 day lift ticket, all taxes & gratuities & much, much, more. For more info contact the UMass Ski Club Rm 430A Student Union or call 545-3437

Europe this Summer? Join a charter leaving on 7/6/83 from NY - London - return from Paris. Call 549-0524 or 549-4813

Spring Break - Bermuda $269 - Florida $229 (plus tax) call Debbie 546-9660

WANTED

Class rings, gold and silver jewelry and coins. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant, Amherst, 256-0710

Apt Mate Northwood Apts own room, two bdrm apt 160.00 rent 665-3633 aft 5 pm

Help $50 reward for helping me by your parents unwanted second car 253-7189

Three Bedroom Puffton or Townehouse to rent from June on Sue 546-7393

Two or three bedroom Puffton to rent from June till August call Letty 546-7464

Looking to rent dorm - size refrigerator call Nadia 546-5901

WANTED TO RENT

2 or 3 Bedroom Townehouse or Puftonl to rent from June on Marilyn 549-1377

The rusty nail presents

Sat. Feb. 26 — Warren Zevon

Sun. Feb. 27 — Tower of Power

Tickets available at "For the Record" (in Faces) Amherst
Rt. 47, Sunderland, MA 665-4937

You must be 18 to enter.

TONIGHT! Party at the S.U.B.
(Student Union Ballroom)

——UMASS vs MS——

Beer & Wine BAR

— Proper I.D. required

All 18 and over welcome to attend

Miller High Life

LIVE on WMUA Radio — D.J. Jeff Taylor

FRIDAY NITE — FEB 25 from 9:PM-5:AM!

Good Luck
to all the dancers in the Marathon
& special thanks to all MS sponsors

- Sponsored by Pike, WMUA, & Miller High Life

Sports

More Sports on page 17

Minutemen knockout Dukes, 85-81

Hempel pours in 29 to give nod to UMass

By JIM FLOYD
Collegian Staff

Good bye Duquesne, bring on St. Joseph's.

It will be a confident University of Massachusetts basketball team that takes the floor Saturday at 7:30 p.m. when the next Atlantic Ten foe dares to try and take on the Minutemen in the Curry Hicks Cage.

Confident? Sure, why not? After all, last night UMass coasted to an easier than it looks 85-81 victory over a streaking Duquesne University team that had won five of its last six Atlantic Ten conference games.

The first half was labeled appropriately the John Hempel show. The standout freshman forward was outstanding from both the field and the foul line as he buried seven of eight shots from the field (including three for three from three point land, say that three times fast) and four for four from the charity stripe route to a 21 point first half.

Not to be outdone, Horace Neysmith, operating from the other forward position, netted ten first half points of his own.

At the half, UMass led the Dukes, 39-35.

In the second half, with a man to man defense sagging around Hempel, the rest of the Minutemen squad got into the act.

Edwin Green buried a couple of his patented fall away jumpers and a supporting cast of Darryl Carter, who played in place of a still ailing Donald Russell, Bobby Braun and Ron Young helped to fill the Minuteman basket as the home team pulled out to a 12 point bulge midway through the half.

The last eight minutes turned into a free throw clinic as the Dukes were forced to play catchup ball and did so with some effectiveness.

The Minutemen were able to withstand a last ditch comeback effort by Duquesne and improved their conference record to 3-8.

"John Hempel came ready to play," said a resolute coach Tom McLaughlin after the contest had finally drawn to a close. "Everybody came ready to play. They just played a confident, poised and patient game."

Hempel finished the game with 29 points, 12 rebounds, two assists and two blocked shots.

"The shots just felt good," said last week's Atlantic Ten Rookie of the Week. "When they went man to man on me I just took the ball to the basket."

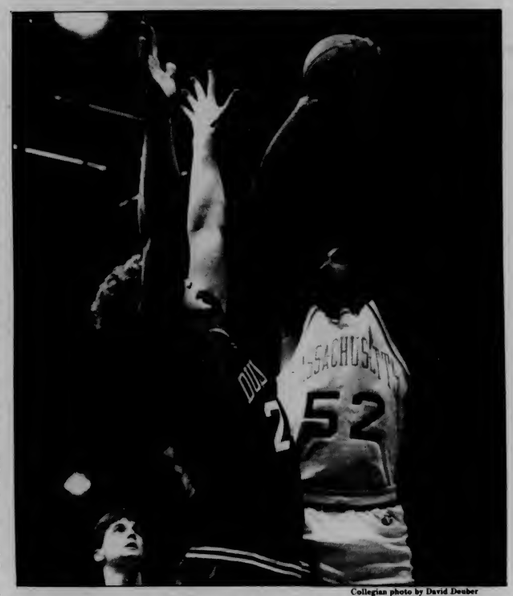
Hempel was followed in the Minuteman scoring by Neysmith, who chipped in 19 points and grabbed 13 rebounds. Carter also broke into double figures with 12 points.

And now the Minutemen want St. Joe's.

BOX SCORE:

Massachusetts: Neysmith 6-7-19, Hempel 11-4-29, Green 4-0-8, Young 2-4-8, Braun 2-5-9, Carter 3-6-12

Duquesne: Searles 8-0-16, Meyers 3-13-19, Sisinni 0-0-0, Farrell 2-0-4, Teachout 6-4-20, Eaglin 4-1-9.



Collegian photo by David Deuber

Edwin Green goes up for two in last nights 85-81 Minutemen win over Duquesne.

The UMass 40-Minute Gang: good or bad?

Glorify the Zoo Mass image

By RICHARD NANGLE
Collegian Staff

Jim, you ignorant slut.

Leave it to a beer-swilling boorish frat brother like yourself to support a bunch of overgrown children like the 40-Minute Gang. These guys would fit in well with those advanced "boy scouts" you live with in that den of iniquity known as Phi Mu Delta.

The 40-Minute Gang is the epitome of the infamous "Zoo Mass" image which haunts this university inside the Commonwealth. The insulting comments that come out of the mouths of these so-called school spirit types are, I believe, counter productive to providing a positive attitude in the Curry Hicks Cage.

A debate has been going on in the Collegian for the past two weeks proving that some people have already been put off by the 40-Minute Gang. The two writers who supported the "gang's" actions sounded so militant that perhaps they should be involved with ROTC rather than disorganized cheerleading.

And Jim, we already have cheerleaders. Those are the cheery folk dressed in Minuteman red and white who stand on the sideline opposite the team benches. I don't think Coach McLaughlin had vicious insults in mind when he designed the 40-Minute Gang. And I don't think he'd condone what many people, including myself, heard at the Rhode Island game Saturday night.

One of the Rhode Island players made the tragic mistake of not getting a haircut before the game and was subjected to real intelligent remarks like; "Hey number 13, get a haircut!" "Hey look at the faggot, what are you gay? Get a haircut." I think someone with semi-long hair like yourself, Jim, could understand the irrelevence of that kind of chastisement.

Some of the commentary was humorous but at the same time about as original as my opening sentence. Todd Bozeman was repeatedly called Bozo and Gavin Scotti heard for at least the one millioneth time; "Hey Scotti, they better beam you up!"

But other comments were not so funny. Yelling at the Rhode Island coach to shut-up while he's talking to the team during a time out is one example. Telling the team that they should have stayed home and that "we don't want you here," is another.

But Jim, I am not anti-fun. I do, in fact, cheer the good plays and harass the referees on bad calls. I just don't think I should be yellin at the opposing players to die. I save that for the Dead Kennedys concerts.

I can also appreciate a good idea. The guy with war paint in the shape of the UMass cheerleaders outfit who leads the team onto the court and hits a layup certainly puts the crowd in a good mood. And when the 40-Minute Gang holds newspapers in front of their faces while the visiting team is introduced, there is also cause for humor. But I can't help wondering if that is the only time these clowns ever look at a newspaper — assuming, of course, that they can read.

During the game Saturday I asked the guy with the war paint why he felt he had to verbally abuse the other team when some of what the 40-Minute Gang does is productive and funny. His response: "If that's how you feel, then you don't belong here. Go sit somewhere else."

Oh, now I see. He's a better fan than me because he demonstrates his school spirit by cutting down other teams and other fans. Wrong again Alpo breath.

Abusive 40-Minute Gang members should go home and kick their television sets or radios rather than subject people to their twisted brand of boosterism. And you Jim, should join them.

Re-educating UMass fans

By JIM FLOYD
Collegian Staff

Rich, you egotistical pseudo rock and roller.

First of all, what do you know about sporting activities? Everytime I see your name in the paper you're talking about bottle bills or wars in foreign countries instead of addressing important issues like the Celtics, Patriots or other topics that really interest people.

What I'm getting at is how do you expect anyone who reads the sports page to take you seriously when you walk around campus dressed in Combat Rock gear and wearing Clash buttons. Basketball is played to a disco beat, Rich.

You obviously never had the opportunity to see what major college basketball is all about. You never heard a crowd carry its team to victory by intimidating the visiting team. You were probably too busy sleeping on some sidewalk in an effort to purchase tickets to see Black Flag or the Dead Kennedys.

To you, Rich, pro wrestling is probably real.

Once Minuteman basketball hit rock bottom a couple of years ago, the fans disappeared. When new fans finally began to fill the venerable Curry Hicks Cage, they did not understand that there was more to going to a basketball game than just going to a basketball game.

You, Rich, being one of the all-time sit on the hands type fans, will probably never understand that REAL home fans want to get involved and be a part of the game.

This is the purpose that the 40-Minute Gang serves. They have tried to re-educate the fans as to how to get involved in a game and that is with loud vocal support.

Remember, Rich, that the name of the game is winning and that vocal fans can be a very integral part of winning basketball games. I'm terribly sorry if one of the URI players got made fun of because of his hair length but, maybe he thought about that when he went to the free throw line and missed.

As for my hair, by the way, I'm planning on getting it cut so that is not a factor (sorry).

We already have cheerleaders, that is true. But, what good do they do if there are a bunch of zombies such as yourself, sitting silently watching them, waiting to see if you can get a glimpse of exposed flesh. (Rich, you pervert!)

What the Curry Hicks Cage needs is to have everyone present take a lesson from the 40-Minute Gang and get involved in the action. Scream something, anything when an opposing player goes to the free throw line, howl with delight when a UMass hoopster steals an inbounds pass or boo the walls off of the place when the visiting coach complains about a call that helped your team.

And, if you think that you are any better than any of those "arrogant slobs" or this "boorish frat brother" then maybe you should take the suggestion of sitting someplace else.

Nome, Alaska would be nice.

Oh, and by the way once again, Phi Mu Delta is an academically oriented institution not a den of iniquity. (Cough!)

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
Volume CXII, Issue 85 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003 (413) 545-3500 Monday, February 28, 1983

Complaint filed because posters ripped down

By ANNE McCRORY
Collegian Staff

Citing First Amendment violations, a member of the Organization of Arab Students (OAS) is filing a complaint against student Assistant Attorney General Randy Chapman for tearing down OAS posters Friday afternoon in the Campus Center complex.

"I caught him tearing my posters down," said Mustapha Ossegran. "He said, 'I have some Zionist friends who would be offended by these.' He was ripping the posters by no authority."

The posters said "Zionism is racism," according to Ossegran.

Chapman, while agreeing he found the content of the posters "objectionable," said his main reason for tearing them down was their illegal location.

"There are specific areas on bulletin boards for posters," Chapman said. "These were taped up on glass doors."

Chapman added he was almost hit by a door when entering the Campus Center because of the obstructed vision caused by the posters.

Chapman and Ossegran went to speak with Ron Keefe, chair of the Campus Center Board of Governors (BOG) following their confrontation. While Chapman said he felt the situation "was pretty much resolved" in that office, Ossegran said Chapman and Keefe spoke privately for several minutes and returned to say nothing could be done.

Ossegran then sought recourse with the Student Activities Office, the University Legal Services and finally went to Dean of Students William Field to file a formal complaint.

Ossegran said he spent an hour and a half in Field's office.

"He discouraged me not to go in this manner," Ossegran said, "and was uncooperative."

Field said he referred Ossegran to Jim Murphy, the Student Government Association (SGA) president. Field said Murphy will meet with the head of the OAS today to get the details for the complaint which will be filed in the dean's office.

Ossegran also said Chapman telephoned him Saturday to apologize for the incident, though the apology could not be accepted.

"It's not up to me — it's the OAS' posters," he said.

Ossegran has also called in the OAS' lawyer from Boston.

"Under the First Amendment, everyone has a right to say their views," Ossegran said. "Some people are afraid the truth will change people's minds about Israel. I'm going to push it (the posters incident) as far as it goes.

Photo by Nick Moudios

Two squirrels scamper up a tree behind Stockbridge Hall yesterday afternoon.

AHA caucus to determine candidates

By ANNE McCRORY
Collegian Staff

In a pre-election caucus tomorrow, Amherst voters will choose the two candidates to run for the Amherst Housing Authority (AHA) in the April town election. Polls will be open from noon to 8 p.m. at normal precinct locations.

A caucus is held when more than two candidates are nominated for a town office post under the state Caucus Act. The caucus will narrow the race from three to two candidates for the remaining two years of resigned AHA board member Nancy Gillis' term.

The caucus will narrow the race from three to two candidates for the remaining two years of resigned AHA board member Nancy Gillis' term.

The AHA is responsible for coordinating federally and state subsidized housing in Amherst, a total of 378 units, AHA executive director Carole Collins said. The Authority places the elderly, handicapped, disabled and low income families into housing where they pay 25 percent of their income for rent, she said.

The board is made up of five members, four elected and one gubernatorial appointee, said AHA chairman Jonathan Hite.

The following are the three candidates, two of whom will appear of the April ballot as a result of the caucus.

ROBERT CHISHOLM

Robert Chisolm, the dispatch coordinator for the Amherst Fire Department, cited his "ability to work within (the) property management restrictions" of the 1980s as his qualification for the office.

"I feel I can bring a perspective not previously represented (on the board), that of financial expertise," said the former UMass accounting student and certified paralegal.

Chisolm said his prior business experience and political background will enable him "to bring a new skill to the board." He also served on the Landlord-Tenant Relations Committee and has been a Town Meeting member for nine years.

BERNARD MOREAU

Bernard Moreau, who is serving as acting board member in place of Nancy Gillis until the April election, said his goal in office would be "to help people who need help," which he said is the purpose for the AHA.

"There is less federal funding for rental assistance (now), but more and more people need it," said Moreau, who is also a UMass alumnus. "We do whatever we can to make people's lives better."

Moreau previously served on the AHA board for ten years, 1969-1979, during which time the elderly housing was constructed in Amherst. He said his background, that of a retired union plumber, gives him a "knowledgeable perspective on new building projects."

He has been an Amherst Town Meeting member for 18 years and was the chairman of the Amherst Town Democratic Committee for three years.

PHYLLIS RODIN

Phyllis Rodin, a student in the UMass graduate program for future studies, is an independent running "for my own kind — students, handicapped, senior citizens," she said.

"Students need an advocate on the AHA," said Rodin, who supppports low-cost housing for students and proposes a student housing project in Amherst open to students from all area colleges.

Rodin, a resident of Ann Whalen House, a subsidized building for the elderly in Amherst, said she is also a candidate for tenants.

"There is no tenant representation on the board — there never has been," she said. "People (who live in the subsidized housing) are intimidated, they tread very lightly," she said.

Rodin's varied political background includes being a graduate student senator for three years, the educational director of the New England Farmers Union for 13 years and a town adviser in New York City.

M*A*S*H's grand finale tonight

By JAY HOLZMAN
Collegian Correspondent

Except for a conscientious few students whose professors had the nerve to schedule tests for tomorrow, books will take a back seat to the final episode of M*A*S*H tonight as University of Massachusetts students say goodbye to one of their favorite programs.

Tonight's final episode is expected to be the most watched television show in history as people across the country tune in. How will UMass students spend their Monday night?

Some of their options include watching M*A*S*H on screens at the Blue Wall, Time Out, the Drake and College Pizza. Dormitories also plan to get into the act as "M*A*S*H bashes" take place around campus. Meanwhile, the Top of the Campus Lounge will be going all out for its viewers with their special drink, a grape Nehi martini, served by waiters and waitresses in Army fatigues.

Reactions varied as students randomly interviewed expressed their feelings on M*A*S*H finally ending after 11 years. For new student Walter Lawton, the last M*A*S*H will be a tough one to swallow.

"I can't believe it's finally ending. I'd love it to go on forever. I grew up with M*A*S*H," he said.

According to junior Michael Byers, "The end of M*A*S*H means an end to an era of what was once good television."

Sophomore Theresa Barrett is glad M*A*S*H is going off the air with a big finish.

"I'm glad they're giving it a sensible ending. I think the sequels will exploit M*A*S*H too much. It's better off that we let them rest in peace," she said.

Senior Gary Fine has mixed reactions about saying farewell to M*A*S*H.

"CBS is losing their ace program. It was a show you could always turn to. I'm psyched about the last episode, but I'm glad it's going off the air before the ratings go down. I think we'll all live without M*A*S*H, but we'll never forget it," he explained.

Some students said they could especially relate to M*A*S*H because of the things that UMass and Korea have in common.

"Graduating will be like leaving a segment of your life that you will never be able to recapture. When they leave Korea, they'll have to say goodbye and go back home just like we will," senior Rita Hubner explained.

Sophomore Karen Lawn added, "You take it for granted being at UMass and playing around. They had it rough being drafted. They couldn't come home. Here we can do whatever we want."

Meanwhile, new student Eric Price has his own ideas of why UMass and Korea are similar.

"I can relate to M*A*S*H because we're eating the same food they did. Just like being in Korea, no one's really crazy about being at UMass either," he said.

World and national news

Governors seek deficit reduction

WASHINGTON — Citing their battered state budgets, a bipartisan coalition of governors yesterday moved toward asking President Reagan and Congress to consider tax increases and defense cuts to reduce federal deficits described as "ruinous to our economy."

A draft budget resolution urging this stand had strong support among members of the National Governor's Association (NGA), but there were misgivings expressed by chief executives wary of trying to set specific goals for the federal budget.

"We've had no sense or word from the White House at all that they are opposing what we're trying to do," said Gov. Scott Matheson, a Democrat from Utah who is chairman of the governors' association.

However, Matheson and Gov. James Thompson of Illinois, a Republican who will be the next NGA chairman, acknowledged that the White House was opposed to the call for trimming Reagan's proposed increases in defense spending.

Thompson told a news conference at the opening of the association's three-day winter meeting that "our concern is that out-year deficits now forecast by almost everybody would be ruinous to our economy and certainly by their prospect, if not actuality, choke off any chance for recovery."

New leaders promise bloodshed will cease

NEW DELHI, India — A new government was sworn in yesterday in Assam, and the new chief minister promised to restore peace and provide relief to victims of the election-time riots and massacres that left an estimated 1,300 dead and 100,000 homeless.

Hiteswar Saikai, a member of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's Congress Party, took the oath along with a 12-member council of ministers, ending nearly a year of direct federal rule in the northeastern state.

Saikai, 44, told reporters in Gauhati, the main city, that his task would be to end the bloodshed that erupted Feb. 2 in an attempt to block the elections and to provide for its victims.

The Congress Party took 90 seats in the 126-seat state assembly. Violence prevented voting in 18 districts, whose seats would remain vacant "indefinitely," election officials said. The major opposition parties boycotted the election.

Digest

By the Associated Press

AP Laserphoto

Firefighters and arson investigators remove the first victim of a Brockton apartment house fire. At least three people died in the blaze and some 50 were left homeless. Authorities say the fire is of "suspicious origin."

Today's Staff

Night Editor — Michelle Murray
Copy Editor — Anne McCrory
Layout Technician — Jim Floyd
Photo Technician — Drew Ogier
Composition — Mat Atkins, Sue Koczela, Jim Finkle
Donna Maurice, Laura Shanahan, James Shanahan, Sam Levitt

Subscription Rates

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday excluding vacations, exam periods, or holidays. Subscriptions are available for $18 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Massachusetts. Postmaster: Send address changes to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003.

Oil price slash to $20 possible

KUWAIT — A top member of Parliament said yesterday that OPEC's official $34-a-barrel base price for oil is unsound and could plunge to $20-a-barrel, the newspaper Al-Watan reported.

"The belief that the present benchmark can be defended is mistaken and unsound," Jassem al-Khorafi, head of Parliament's Economic and Financial Affairs Committee, was quoted as saying.

He sharply criticized the Arab states on the Persian Gulf for their "leniency toward OPEC outlaws who have been trying to further the interests of their countries through violation of OPEC's prices and production quotas."

He attributed OPEC member states' inability to defend current prices to the substantial drop in demand for oil by industrialized countries, and the success of consumer nations in developing alternatives and energy conservation measures.

"If we are now hesitating to slash our prices by $3 to $4 a barrel, I am afraid a day which is not too far will come when we will be obliged to cut prices to as low as $20 per barrel," he said.

Toxic waste legislator criticizes EPA head

NEWPORT, R.I. — The author of the so-called Superfund legislation for cleaning toxic waste sites yesterday called for the replacement of Environmental Protection Agency(EPA) Administrator Anne M. Burford.

Rep. James J. Florio, D-New Jersey, criticized Mrs. Burford for a "philosophy of non-enforcement" of environmental laws after he toured Rhode Island's worst hazardous waste dumps by helicopter.

"She should either resign or be replaced. The whole agency should be reviewed," Florio, an outspoken critic of the EPA, told the annual meeting of the environmental group Save the Bay.

"It's clear there is no great interest in the present EPA administration in enforcing environmental laws. We are starting to see now in public debate some real questions of motivation as to why these laws aren't enforced," he said.

"I don't think there's any question that a philosophy of non enforcement and basic hostility to environmental laws pervades the department's operations over the last two years," he added.

Join the ENERGY EXPLOSION with
GLORIA STEVENS AEROBICS!

The COMPLETE Fitness Center for Women

- Aerobic Dance Classes
- Individual Aerobic Programs
- 30 - 45 min. Groups
- Easy to Live With Diets
- Advanced Programs
- Maternity Programs

Student Discounts Available

Bring in this COUPON for a Free AEROBIC CLASS!

Gloria Stevens FIGURE SALONS

Hadley
584-0105
Mon-Fri. 9 to 9 • Sat. 9 to 3

Refugees claim 3,000 dead in tribal raids

BULAWAYO, Zimbabwe — Prime Minister Robert Mugabe's troops are alleged to have killed as many as 3,000 civilians over the last few weeks in the tribal lands that form a powerbase for opposition leader Joshua Nkomo.

The government denies the claims as vastly exagerrated, but is under mounting pressure from church leaders, relief agencies and human rights groups to allow an independent investigation of the situation in Matabeleland.

Villagers who have fled the province, home of the minority Ndebele tribe, have told foreign journalists harrowing tales of massacre, rape, looting and torture by the troops, most of them members of the dominant Shona tribe.

The refugees say the atrocities were committed by North Korean-trained soldiers of the 5,000-strong Fifth Brigade — a special force raised by Mugabe to battle rebels and guard against invasion from white-ruled South Africa.

Collegian photo by Drew Ogier

Joel Ario (far left), a MassPIRG consumer advocate, leads a workshop entitled "Small Claims Court Reform" during the MassPIRG Annual Conference this weekend at the University of Massachusetts.

Corporate influence one topic of conference

By RICHARD NANGLE
Collegian Staff

More than 200 students from across the state attended the Massachusetts Public Interest Research Group's (MassPIRG) annual Spring Conference over the weekend in the Campus Center at the University of Massachusetts.

The students attended workshops run by the MassPIRG staff members. Topics included hazardous waste, telephone rate restructuring, investigative research, Small Claims Court reform and a forum on local politics directed by Student Government Association President Jim Murphy.

In a workshop entitled "Corporate Influence in Political Campaigns," citizen organizer Jonathan Darnell discussed the heavy influence corporations can have on referendum questions — notably the bottle bill.

Darnell said MassPIRG is sponsoring a bill which would require shareholder approval before corporations can spend money on referenda or political candidates. But the measure is unlikely to be supported since many members of the Massachusetts State Legislature hierarchy benefit from corporate expenditures, he said.

The way the law is structured now, Darnell said, corporations may only spend a certain amount on candidates but may spend unlimited amounts on referendum questions. The reasoning behind it is that corporations could corrupt candidates but cannot corrupt voters.

Darnell pointed to the Massachusetts Bottle Bill vote in 1976 as proof that corporations can indeed corrupt segments of the voting population. Before the election, 70 percent of the voting population supported the Bottle Bill, he said. But after corporations spent $2 million on "misleading" advertising, the controversial referendum was defeated by less than one percentage point, he said.

The vote has gained national recognition as an example of the need to reduce potential corporate influence in referendum campaigns, Darnell said.

An example of indirect corporate involvement is corporate funding of Public Broadcasting System television shows, he said.

"They (corporations) like to think that they're supporting culture while they're destroying it at the same time," said Gene Severins, a former student at Clark University.

In a workshop concerning emergency planning for accidents at nuclear power plants, energy attorney Mike Ernst discussed what he termed the "absurdity" of plans to evacuate the Plymouth area in the event of a mishap at the Pilgrim plant.

He said plans exist to close the bridges to Cape Cod if the wind is blowing south after a radiation leak in order to avoid traffic congestion with people trying to leave the immediate area of the site. He added that if the wind blew south after an accident it would affect people on Cape Cod who would have no way to escape.

SSAM officials discuss funding, organization

By MARY CRESSE
Collegian Staff

If a referendum question supporting funding of the State Student Association of Massachusetts (SSAM) passes in next week's Student Government Association elections, the University of Massachusetts at Amherst would be one of the first universities in the state to support the SSAM and its drive for increased financial aid and student power in state government, SSAM organizer Michael Ferrigno said.

Plans to implement the drive for funding went into motion Saturday as representatives from area schools met here for a conference to discuss organizing the group and wording the referendum.

UMass SSAM officials said they have not yet decided on the form of the referendum which could ask to add a mandatory one dollar fee on the tuition bill or a separate card calling for an optional donation.

If approved, each chapter of the SSAM will attempt to obtain funds through these measures from its school and place the money in a general fund, which will be appropriated by a Coordinating Committee. Regardless of size, each campus will place one delegate having one vote on the committee, which will meet monthly to discuss issues and appropriate money.

The emphasis at this point is on obtaining the funding, SSAM officials said.

"If there's one thing that can stop us from being completely successful, it's the funding," said Michael DeLuca, University of Lowell student president.

"If we get the money, it's a downhill battle, because we've got the people and the enthusiasm everywhere," he said.

According to Ferrigno, the group would be dedicated to increasing student power on the state level and ensuring that students are informed of issues affecting them and can act on these issues.

"For too long the student has been short shrifted by politicians who don't think we're worthy of input," he said. Ferrigno pointed out the lack of student representation on the Board of Regents and the appointments of members from high-technical fields serving on the board.

If the referendum is passed, Ferrigno estimates UMass Amherst financial support of the SSA would be approximately $17,000.

Other schools interested include North Adams State College, Holyoke Community College, Southeastern Massachusetts University, Mount Wachusett College, UMass Boston, Bridgewater State College and Salem State College.

Conference participants listened to Janice Fein, president of the United States Student Association, describe a typical SSA budget, organization of chapters in other states and how Massachusetts might consider constructing its chapter.

Fein stressed quick organization and a firm financial base to get the group started.

"With a strong financial backing, you can form a chapter that will continue even after you've graduated, one that will be heard. Too many politicians consider college students benign constituencies who don't care about or don't pay attention to what is happening politically. With a strong organization, you can be heard," Fein said.

Fein added that the establishment of an office and permanent staff members were crucial to maintaining a strong student chapter.

HRTA career day a success

By CYNTHIA JOHNSON
Collegian Correspondent

An estimated 1,000-1,500 Hotel, Restaurant and Travel Administration (HRTA) majors attired in business suits, talked informally with representatives from 32 companies in the hospitality industry at the Eighth Annual HRTA Career Day Thursday in the Campus Center Auditorium.

Students also attended formal presentations by representatives, who described career opportunities and training programs available to prospective employees.

"It's a great way for the companies to know the department and for the students it's a great way to make connections... all the seniors are passing out their resumes. It's not like a formal job interview, it's nice and casual," said Barbara Hurley, a student organizer for the event.

Almost everyone in the HRTA department was involved in the Career Day preparations, which began six or seven months ago, she said. HRTA major James Anello was also a coordinator for the event.

Representatives from all areas of the hospitality industry, including catering, institutional food service, gourmet and fast food restaurants, and hotel and travel administration were available to talk with students.

Art Parks, a student staffing the information booth for the department, said, "All the major companies are here. Students can get an idea of what's happening in the industry. It's a great program, you can hang out and talk to people. It's best for seniors, they can find out about the companies on an informal basis."

A representative from Denny's Restaurants, Don Kirkham said, "Both the students and the industry take a mutual look at each other, and assess the qualitites of the individual. It's a day for sharing expectations and for students to focus on a career objective more effectively. We're definitely looking for prospective job candidates today."

"I feel more comfortable in saying that we've always met with high quality candidates from UMass. If an employer hadn't considered UMass, they'd be making a mistake. The faculty prepares the student body to be well informed of the company's needs and expectations,they groom the students for the business world. I am honestly impressed," Kirkham said.

John Weaver, a representative of the Sheraton Corporation and a 1981 graduate of the UMass HRTA program agreed with Kirkham.

"It's the most popular school percentagewise. We've taken more trainees from UMass in the past five years than any other school. It's a well rounded program," he said.

"Career Day is good for both students and companies," said Jane Tremer, HRTA major and waitress at the luncheon held for the representatives.

"Even if you're not a senior, you can get a feeling for what's going on in the industry. They try to get a big diversity in the companies. There's lots of contact possibilities. Besides, it's fun," Tremer said.

Photo by Ann Lamery

Francis Bradford and Mary Carney dance into the twentieth hour of the 29 hour MS dance marathon held at the Student Union Ballroom last weekend.

RECORD SALE

Bob Seger

$4.49

$3.99

$4.99

Joni Mitchell

Re-ac-tor

$3.99

Rod Stewart

$3.99

Blondie

$3.99

Gary U.S. Bonds

$3.49

3.49

Nurds

$3.49

Carly Simon

GregRockiln Roll Band

$3.49

Robin Lane

$2.99

Sale Ends 4/12/83

Many other Sale Records available in our Record Dept. quantities limited on sale items

Located in the Campus Center

Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4

UNIVERSITY STORE

Apply to

CAMP KINGSWOOD

at the Counsellor Affair at UMass, Amherst
March 2, 1983

Camp Kingswood is located on Woods Lake in southern Maine. . .200 Boys and Girls, 70 Staff. The following staff positions are open: WSI, DRAMA, PHOTOGRAPHY, BOATING, ARTS & CRAFTS, CAMPING, ATHLETICS, MUSIC & SINGING (Hebrew), etc. Also SECRETARY/BOOKKEEPER, KITCHEN. An agency of Combined Jewish Philanthropies of Boston or CALL 617-542-8080 ext. 420 OR 617-372-7849

U.N. speaker hails new era in politics

By TURA GUDMUNDSSON
Collegian Staff

As increasing numbers of African, Asian and Caribbean countries become free, the more the balance of power in the United Nations and its priorities change in their favor, said a former U.N. official during a lecture Friday night at Amherst College.

In the lecture "Women and Social Change," Leila Doss, a member of the U.N. for 35 years and the former director of Social and Economic Information of the U.N. spoke about the racial changes in the U.N.

"The U.N. used to be a wonderful place because it was the domain of a few countries who ran it the way they wanted it and who could buy or pressure for votes, which happened constantly," Doss said.

"But the U.N. is changing," she said. "In the earlier days the struggle within the U.N. was that of people wanting to be free."

"The U.N. is turning brown, yellow and black, anything but the white and pink that have dominated it so far," she said.

As a result of this, there has been a change in the priorities, emphasis, voting patterns and the perspectives of world issues, Doss said.

"The pink and white faces haven't gotten used to this nor have they absorbed or adopted it yet," she said.

At the first U.N. sponsored Women's Convention in Mexico in 1975, "Many women didn't know what they were talking about because they had never been in a political arena before, and had no idea of what the issues were about, nor the documents of the voting patterns," she said.

"After the conference I felt that I never wanted to see another woman in my life again," Doss said.

While Doss criticized the press' "Disdainful coverage" of the second convention held in Copenhagen in 1980, where women were accused of behaving like men, Doss said "it lead to several resolutions as well as many conflicts, but it showed women had grown up."

"These women were now involved in the real world of politics. They were no longer wil' pretty people. They had studied the issues, and came to put ideas across," she said. Although women represent one third of the world's labor force, they earn one tenth of its income, and own less than one percent of the world's property, she said.

"Women in Copenhagen created a plan of action of what they wanted out of life in the domains of education, family and employment," she said.

The resolutions of the two conventions have become incorporated in the law of 46 countries, she said, ranging from the Soviet Union to Sweden, Gabon and Vietnam.

Doss, who grew up in Egypt, said she started to work in the U.N. "because I believed in the U.N., and so I walked into their headquarters in Egypt and told the personnel officer I was willing to scrub floors for the U.N."

Women's Week

MONDAY

"Mid-wifery: Reclaiming Women's Tradition of Autonomy and Intimacy" will be held at 5 p.m. in the Neilson Library Browsing Room at Smith College. Midwives Marcia Stahl and Kathy Martin will give the lecture.

Sexual Harassment Workshop will be given at 6:30 p.m. in the Campus Center in room 901. The workshop will end in plenty of time for M*A*S*H.

"Women on the Left: Views on Social Change" will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the Wright Hall Common Room at Smith College.

TUESDAY

The Women's Caucus of the Student Senate will meet at 5 p.m. in the Campus Center in room 803. Senate issues, publicity and the International Women's Event will be discussed. All women senators are encouraged to attend. All women students are invited to voice concerns they may have.

Committee for Equal Rights and Reproductive Freedom (CERRF) will meet in the Campus Center in room 165.

Support Group for Underemployed Women will meet at 7 p.m. at the Everywoman Center.

"Walking Quietly Away from the Jargon: Toward a Phenomenology of Women's Experience of Self and Work," by Gail A. Hornstein, will be held at 7:30 p.m. in McConnell Auditorium at Smith College.

Eleanor Smeal, former president of the National Organization of Women (NOW) will speak on "Women Weren't Born Democrats, Republicans, or Yesterday" at 8:30 p.m. in Sage Hall at Smith College. A reception will follow the lecture.

Panel to discuss nuclear growth

"Nuclear Proliferation: Who is Next to Get the Bomb?" will be the topic for this year's fifth Great Decisions panel discussion that will take place at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the Main Lounge of Webster House in Orchard Hill. Panelists will be Wayne Decker, department of politics, Mount Holyoke College; Edward Feit political science, University of Massachusetts; Allan Krass, division of natural sciences, Hampshire College; and Kandula Sastry, a nuclear physicist teaching at UMass.

Court decisions topic of talk

An anthropology seminar entitled "Access to the Legal System: A Study-in-Progress of the Decisions of the Clerk of the Court in Franklin County, Massachusetts" will be held at 3:45 p.m. today in Machmer Hall, room W-15. The discussion will be conducted by Barbara Yngvesson, an associate professor of anthropology at Hampshire College.

UMASS SKI CLUB GOES DOWN TO FT. LAUDERDALE

SPRING BREAK 83

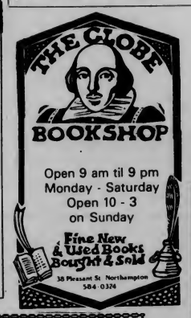
8 Days 7 Nights Luxurious Hotel on the Strip

Hotel only	W/ Motor Coach	W/Jet
$149 tax included	$275 tax included	$369 tax included

For more information 545-3437

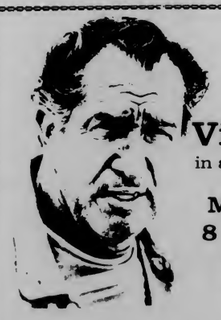
Don't be abused by Price Games
The Ski Club has only luxury hotels and no hidden costs

THE GLOBE BOOKSHOP



Open 9 am til 9 pm
Monday - Saturday
Open 10 - 3
on Sunday

Fine New & Used Books Bought & Sold
30 Pleasant St. Northampton 584-0324



DVP presents
Vincent Price
in a one man performance
Monday, March 7
8 pm at the F.A.C.
$2. 5 college students
$4. Senior Citizens
$5. General Public
Tickets on sale now at F.A.C. Box Office
sponsored by University Arts Council and Distinguished Visitors Program

BLUE WALL
CAMPUS CENTER AT UMASS
MONDAY
LAST M*A*S*H BASH
WIDE-SCREEN T.V. Anheuser-Busch Giveaways!
BOSTON
SEOUL 34Mi 54 KM
CONEY ISLAND 8127Mi
SAN FRANCISCO 5428
TOLEDO 9133Mi
Death Valley 6176 miles
GREAT PRIZES For Best Costumes!!
FREE POPCORN • RAFFLES
Come Early!

EXCEPTIONAL MANAGEMENT OPPORTUNITIES

For exceptional College Grads
(and those who are soon to be)

CURRENT
OPPORTUNITIES:

- NUCLEAR ENGINEERING
- BUSINESS MANAGEMENT
- AVIATION • LAW
- MEDICINE • INTELLIGENCE
- SHIPBOARD OPERATIONS
- CIVIL ENGINEERING

Sign up for an interview
in the Career Placement Office
prior to 2 March or call:
Naval Management Programs
(203) 528-9988

AN IMPORTANT ADDITION TO YOUR UNIFORM

The insignia of an Air Force nurse can mean a lot to you and your future. It shows that you're part of the Air Force Nurse Corps. A member of one of the most efficient health care teams in the world. It signifies you are an Air Force officer with the responsibility and prestige of a leadership position. It indicates you're on the track toward good pay and almost unlimited educational opportunities. If you're a nursing professional or about to complete your nursing education, why not consider Air Force nursing as part of YOUR future? From the day you're commissioned, you'll receive the pay and advantages of an Air Force officer. Consider your uniform and our future. Then make it yours.

AIR FORCE NURSING. A GREAT WAY OF LIFE

For More Details Call Sandy Price
(203) 229-9641
Freshmen & Sophmores Call Capt. Pinkell
(413) 545-2137

AIR FORCE

ATTENTION SENIORS

Now is the time!
Get your face in the yearbook.

The photographer will be here
Feb 28 to March 17
Stop by CC Rm 178 or
call 545-2874 to
make your appointment.

Special Purchase
Athletic Weight Jersey
$7.95 w/coupon reg. $9.95

100% Cotton
Heavy Weight
Maroon

$2.00 Off w/coupon

JERSEY
Reg. $9.95

$2.00 Off w/coupon

Open
M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4

maroon

Located in the Campus Center
UNIVERSITY STORE

EDITORIAL/OPINION

Goodbye M*A*S*H

MASH-a metaphor for war

John F. Hudson

Trudging through the cold, the snow and the biting wind, I bundled up my collar as best I could and plodded toward home. Home to warm food, a fairly warm house and a dose of insanity, laughter or perhaps seriousness with a small helping of intelligent commentary thrown in for good measure — home to M*A*S*H. Dorm residents and commuters alike share this daily ritual of sorts day in and day out. The wonders of cable T.V. now allow the true M*A*S*H addict a "fix from 5 to 8 p.m. Many of us have grown up with this anything-but-typical T.V. sitcom.

To put it in perspective, in the fall of 1972 when the show began, Nixon was President, Henry Kissinger was saying that "peace was at hand" in Vietnam, "The Godfather" swept the Academy Awards, the number one song was "American Pie," and the seniors reading this column were just entering the fifth grade. Forget that the Korean War was three years long and M*A*S*H 11, and forget that many claim the show has gone downhill since its best writer (Larry Gelbart, a Oscar nominee for Tootsie) and funniest character (McClean Stevenson as Colonel Blake) left in 1976. It has earned its place as a small piece of Americana, yet its unauspicious beginnings provided no indication it would rise to the level of popularity it has today.

At the beginning, M*A*S*H was enigma, a little known book by a little known author about a Korean Mobile Army Surgical Hospital. The book was rejected by seven publishers before reaching the stores. As a film, it was a rather dark, bloody comedy by the eccentric director Robert Altman, and it earned high grosses and numerous Academy Award nominations. Yet disattached limbs, bloody operating rooms and war-torn Korea were hardly the stuff which network executives jumped at for sitcom material. Ignoring this, Larry Gelbart and Gene Reynolds brought the idea to CBS. Immediately it ran into large problems. The executives were adamantly opposed to such a program.

"Blood, death and human suffering are not the makings of a successful T.V. sitcom," they said. "Give us a happy white family, suburbia, and apple pie." Finally after much haggling and compromise the show began in September of 1972 and proceeded to fall right on its face: a ratings flop. Luckily CBS stuck with it and the rest is history as they say.

Why has the show been such a huge success? Historically, the show hit a very responsive chord. The setting of Korea could have easily been replaced by the rice paddies of Southeast Asia. Though 1972 marked the tail end of the Vietnam war, the questions which pervaded through many of M*A*S*H's episodes were the questions many American's were asking about Vietnam. Like Hawkeye Pierce, many in the U.S. were rebelling against this undeclared war. For the first time, the enemy was no longer easily apparent, the "good" and "bad" guys were no longer clear. Instead of Hitler or Mussolini, we had (in Frank's words) "Godless communists" as our enemies. It was no longer good vs. evil. It was not East vs. West, communism vs. democracy, and the "free world" was being threatened by the "dominoe theory." Another portion of the series which reflected the ambiguities of the Vietnam War were the episodes which dealt with the victims of the war. The orphaned children, teenage soldiers and pompous American generals which passed through the care of the 4077th could have easily been replaced by principals which were involved in the conflict in Southeast Asia. The children died at the hands of Liet. Calley at the Mai Lai massacre, teenagers from Middle America died fighting for a cause they didn't understand and General William Westmoreland, military chief in Vietnam, pompously informed America that we would not be defeated; on these two levels, M*A*S*H captured all which was wrong with Vietnam.

Though the show comes to end this evening, the problems it so deftly portrayed still seem to go on. Wars currently rage in the Middle East, Ireland, and Central America. The U.S. and the U.S.S.R. seem to be drawing closer to confrontation, with each passing day witnessing an increase in the temperature of rhetoric being exchanged between the two superpowers. M*A*S*H will be sorely missed for its irony, humor, grim reality and attempt to show us war for what it really is, a tragicomedy of errors where no one truly wins and everyone loses. Unlike the television which we will reluctantly turn off at the end of M*A*S*H tonight, the specter of war which threatens humanity cannot be so easily turned off. That is the real tragedy.

John F. Hudson is the Collegian Exec Ed.

Suicide isn't painless

"Suicide is painless, it brings on many changes, and I can take or leave it if I please."
— Theme song from M*A*S*H

"I don't like Mondays
— The Boomtown Rats

It is perhaps the ultimate contemporary irony that the cast of M*A*S*H took themselves off the air.

As a member of a generation that grew up with both the mass media influence of television and the carnage of the Vietnam war, the cancellation of M*A*S*H marks the end of a thread of continuity that has run through at least half of my young life.

M*A*S*H. I had two kissing fish named Hot Lips and Frank. For eleven years I could think, "Well, M*A*S*H is on tonight," and I would plan my time accordingly. When this monolith of shows became syndicated, I was thrilled that I could see the 4077th for an hour and a half, two hours a day. I couldn't believe it when Colonel Henry Blake was killed. I cried that episode, just as I have cried every time I have seen it since then. My favorite segments were the ones with the "Spam lamb," "Yankee Doodle Doctor," and the time Hawkeye and Margaret were in love (albeit it lasted only a few hours).

As I grew, M*A*S*H grew with me. When I was fourteen I loved the practical jokes that the inhabitants of "the Swamp" indulged in, while as the years passed, I came to appreciate the depth, humanity and sanity of the main characters.

Radar, Winchester, Margaret, Hawkeye. Their departure from the world of video truly has the potential of making it a wasteland. It's like watching your best friends from next-door move to Idaho.

I'll never forget watching M*A*S*H and discovering that Klinger and my mother owned the same dress. (And I won't tell Mom who looked better either.) Or finding out that Margaret had left Frank for a Lieutenant Colonel that ultimately jilted her. And I always wanted to see Hawkeye's dad in Crabapple Cove, because Alda had the ability to make me feel the presence of such a man, somewhere in Maine.

How am I every going to find a substitute for these friends of mine that I have laughed, cried and prayed with for almost as long as I can remember? Can John Forsyth fill the vacancy in my heart left by Alan Alda? Will Wayne Rogers be remembered more for House Calls than for M*A*S*H? And what did Larry Linville do after he left his role of Frank Burns to avoid being typecast?

I suppose I should be used to having the rug pulled out from under me by now, but losing Doonesbury, the Who and M*A*S*H in such a short time has left me feeling a bit weak around the knees. And the question remains: What will I do now?

As a person who believes in the divine fallability of spin-offs, I doubt I'll watch much of the sequel which is tentatively titled, *After M*A*S*H*. Just as Bloom County is slowly filling the void on the comics pages left by Doonesbury, so must I turn my bloodshot eyes to the catho-ray tube and network programming geniuses to find another show to win my heart.

I like Hill Street Blues.

Tonight will be the last night the faceless voice over the P.A. system makes general announcements to the staff of America's best-known mobile army surgical hospital. The helicopters will land on the soil of celluloid's principal war-torn nation for the last time; the answer to an eleven years of pleaing for the end of war's insanity.

Tonight I will dust off my martini glass and raise a toast to the end of an era. And yes, I'll have a box of Kleenex within reach at all times.

In the final analysis, M*A*S*H was always wrong. Suicide isn't painless.

Mary Beth Hebert is the Collegian Assoc. Exec. Ed.

Letters

Is the economy working?

To the Editor:

Mr. Moran's offer of a "fresh perspective" on the economy in Tuesday's Collegian is but a stale apology for the collapse of the economy's ability to provide opportunities for work, and decent standards of living, over the past several years. Stating that the economic forecasting community expects growth in the GNP this year, for example, does not imply that unemployment will fall; in fact, with a small rate of growth, an increase in the size of the labor force could lead to higher unemployment by the end of 1983. Moreover, there is long tradition among those championing right-wing viewpoints to bolster their arguments with anecdotal evidence. It is always possible to trot out a story about one person who is cheating on the welfare system. But what is happening to the average person? Is the economy working for him/her? I think the answer is an obvious and resounding no.

Witness the growth of the 'new poor', that is, of the thousands of families who two or three years ago had a steady income, a house with a mortgage, etc., who now are on the streets of Denver, Houston, or San Fransisco completely penniless and supported only by private charity. Over 1/2 of those currently unemployed have had their unemployment benefits run out. And for those who still have benefits, supporting a family, mortgage, health insurance, etc., is impossible in most cases, forcing them to deplete whatever savings that they might have in a matter of months. The NY Times had an editorial last week which cited the explosion of infant mortality rates in the last several years; these rates have risen to levels comparable to Honduras in areas of high unemployment such as Atlanta and Detroit. Meanwhile, government programs to feed poor children are being cut back. Even in Massachusetts, with a relatively low rate of unemployment compared to the U.S. average, we hear of incidents such as one where a Greenfield man killed himself by going out to look for jobs within weeks of having a heart attack, because if he didn't, his unemployment benefits would have been cut off. Last but not least, the affects of the recession on minorities is exaggerated by comparison, e.g. with black youth unemployment now sitting above 50 percent.

One reads scores of articles in the papers over the last several years of how 10,000 people show up when 200 low-paying jobs are advertised in some city. On the other hand, capacity utilization of manufacturing capacity is below 70 percent (a post war low), with utilization rates much lower in some big industries such as steel. What this says is that on the one side there is productive capacity, on the other, willing workers. Why can't those who are willing be allowed to be employed?

Meanwhile, the corporations and the very wealthy were given large tax breaks two years ago as a means to solve this problem. The result: the money that the wealthy were taxed two years ago is now lent to the same government, and paid interest. Corporations have taken their cash and speculated in the stock market, bought up other companies, and engaged in other non-job creating endeavors.

No sane person can deny there is a problem with our economy. The cause clearly has to do with the forces which lead the economic policies of President Reagan and the actions of corporate heads to ignore the plight of the majority of American citizens and workers. In bad times as in good, the profit motive is not cure-all for such problems.

Michael Hillard
Northampton

Artist knows manure

To the Editor:

I found Dan DeBellis' comic strip "Serod" February 24, 1983 to be very distasteful.

I am a Stockbridge student and very proud of it. As I read the comic, I realized how ignorant he was about Stockbridge. He most likely doesn't know Stockbridge was the founding school of UMass. I would also like to inform you that the milk that the dining commons carry is from the University's farm.

One last word for Mr. DeBellis, you probably know more about "Basic Manure" than us Stockbridge students, seeing as you are the one dishing it out.

Shawn Colliss
Stockbridge Student

WE NEED COLUMNISTS!

What Do...

Have In Common ??

They were all brought to speak
by the Distinguished Visitors Program

Would you like to become involved
with this Committee?

Come To The D.V.P. Introductory Meeting

DVP Monday, Feb. 28, 1983 Rm 804-8 C.C. 7:00 p.m.

Refreshments Served

Smith College Rec Council
and the
University of Massachusetts Fine Arts Center present
The National Touring Company of
SECOND CITY

Theater 14, Smith College
March 10, 1983
8:00 pm
5-College $3.00
General Public $5.00

Tickets available at
Fine Arts Box Office, UMass
Seelye Basement, Smith 9:00-12:00
For the Record, Amherst

MONDAY
BACKGAMMON TOURNAMENT
$ CASH PRIZES $
- $2. entry includes free mug drawing -
- B.Y.O.B. (that's BOARD not beer!) -
- Minors Welcome -

Starts 9 pm
EVERY MONDAY NIGHT

for info
call Rich
665-7574

THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST

tpc PRODUCTIONS

SOUTHSIDE JOHNNY
&

MARCH 17, 1983
8:00 P.M.
Student Union Ballroom
Students 8.00 Gen. Public 10.00

On Campus: Tix Unltd.
Amherst: For the Record
& All Ticketron Outlets

University of Massachusetts

Arts

Attention all Arts Staffers:
The meeting concerning the upcoming Other Voice has been changed to Wed. at 7:30 p.m. in the newsroom. Be there.

It just gets better

FOR BETTER NOT FOR WORSE
By Selaelo Maredi
Saturday, February 26
Bowker Auditorium

By TIM MACPHEE
Collegian Staff

The Third World Theater Series launched its spring season with a strong production of Selaelo Maredi's For Better Not For Worse, Saturday night in Bowker Auditorium.

The two-act play, seen by an audience approaching 200 young and old, white and non-white — explored the relationship between two black friends living under the daily struggle of apartheid (dubbed "apart-hate" by one) in present-day South Africa.

The drama brought the audience through emotions ranging from quiet empathy to seeming delight.

As the play opens, Mampane (Moeketsi Botibe) and Shai (Salaelo Maredi) are rejoicing over the assassination of their (white) prime-minister, in Mampane's cottage where the play is set.

In this, one of the lighter moments in the drama, the actors' ability to be off-the-wall is highlighted as we explore the bright side of the characters. The scene is only to be outdone by Mampane's amusing recollections of his not so amusing days of clearing the dirt off of rich white employee's dogs, and his ride in the car to "Pet-O-Pet's" shop where his mistress spent more money on her poodle than Mampane does to eat.

The highlight of the play, however, came at the moment that Mampane enters the stage holding a telegram announcing that his youngest daughter was blown-up by a package bomb. At this moment not a sound could be heard from the audience as it watched the darkened stage lighted centrally on a father's pictures of his daughter.

The exploration of racial injustice was compounded by music seeping from the background, gradually forming recognizable messages, "How long are we gonna keep running/Why must we suffer such injustices because of the color of our skin?"

One particular sensory treat occured when the two men went out for the evening and the South African security police searched Mampane's home (looking for evidence of his daughter's having been in a refugee camp.) This scene was particularlay well done and immediately brought to mind such frightening images as the silent searches of Orwell's Thought Police.

Through effective lighting, music, and characterization, Maredi provided us with not only a sensory treat, but a message that should stay with one long after leaving the theatre.

Rock's excitable boy

WARREN ZEVON
Saturday, February 26
Rusty Nail, Sunderland

By ED BEEN
Collegian Correspondent

Warren Zevon, rock's excitable boy, let an audience of 700 into his living room Satuday night — so to speak — and played soulful renditions of his greatest songs, in what was billed as a "solo concert recital."

Zevon finally took the stage at midnight (some people had been there since 7 p.m.), and armed only with an acoustic 12-string guitar, opened with a delightful version of "Lawyers, Guns, and Money."

After switching to piano, he slowed the pace with the beautiful ballad, "Hasten Down The Wind," and the comical "Bill Lee," at which point Zevon remarked, "The Spaceman thinks this song is too short, but that's what I think about his career."

Zevon also included songs from his latest release, The Envoy, one of which, "Jesus Mentioned," is a cynical satire about Elvis Presley. Just for fun, Zevon did the Stone's "Before They Make Me Run," at which point he yelled out, "Where's Keith?"

Zevon wound down his 90 minute performance with crowd pleasers like "Roland The Headless Thompson Gunner," "Poor Pitiful Me," and "Excitable Boy." But the man saved the best for last as Zevon concluded the show with an extended version of his most popular song "Werewolves of London" that included an "intellectual jazz break," caustic references to John Hurt and Jeff Bridges, and the added lyric, "I saw Ronald and Nancy Reagan walking with the Queen, and they were doing-nothing."

Although Warren Zevon has not gained massive commercial success, he proved during the show, another stop on his "Live At Least Tour," why he remains a kind of cult star. He is honest and accessible. Dressed in a tweed jacket and sporting a beard and headband, Zevon shook hands with everyone in reach and approached the whole performance with a mellow and confident air, that set the entire evening's comfortable atmosphere.

Zevon was very professional, but not overly slick, and he was in complete control, and lived up to his promise to "play more music, and do less of this Las Vegas patter jive." His guitar and harmonica playing was as impressive as his piano work, which included many extended solos and instrumental segues, but he more than made up the deficiency, with vocal energy and emotion.

Warren Zevon was definitely exciting.

Collegian photo by Joseph A. Troiano

No, this is not John Lennon. It's Warren Zevon who performed at the Rusty Nail Saturday night.

Twist and crawl

TWISTING BY THE POOL
(Warner Brothers)
Dire Straits
By DEAN RANZO
Collegian Staff

I was really curious when I first saw this extended dance play disc from Dire Straits. I had no idea what to expect from Mark Knophler, the band's nucleus and most consistent rocking R&B songwriter of the '80s. None of Dire Strait's previous material could be considered actual dance floor material and for such a band to commit itself to a "dance" album would require a lot of self confidence. Oh yeah, it also takes talent, and it seems that Knophler has more of both of these attributes than most current songwriters have of one. As a result, Knophler has recruited a new line-up including Rockpile drummer Terry Williams.

The phrase "extended dance play" is appropriately prominent on the album cover because it will virtually extend your dance play to the maximum even if you don't dance. The title cut "Twisting By The Pool" is a gyrating twister worthy of only Dave Edmunds and I think even he will be jealous of this one. If this tune doesn't get you to cut the rug then donate your legs to somebody who needs them.

Knophler extends also the boundaries of dance as he pulls a Joe Jackson avatar with "Badges, Posters, Stickers, T-shirts." Knophler exhausted my presumptions as he brings swing alive with this fantastic piece of upbeat yet lazy jazz that I thought was all but extinct. This song not only shows Knophler's creative versatility and guitar expertise, but also his appreciation for the origins of modern dance music.

"If I Had You" sounds like surplus from Making Movies. It is the one cut that most resembles Dire Straits as we all know and love but it keeps the dance pace; and Knophler's usually clever lyrics are regressed to a simple ode to a boy dreaming of romance:

If I had you
I'd go get your name tattoed on my chest
It'd just say my baby's she the best
I could be your superman
You could be my Lois Lane
I could be your Tarzan
You could be my sweet Jane

These simple and corny lyrics dominate the EP, reflecting the pure fun of it, which is the way a dance album should be.

Knophler lives up to his consistent label with Twisting By The Pool and makes even more exciting than ever, the anticipation of Dire Strait's next album. Until then take the Clash, Michael Jackson, and all new wave off your turntable and refresh yourself with Dire Straits.

AN IMPORTANT ADDITION TO YOUR UNIFORM

The insignia of an Air Force nurse can mean a lot to you and your future. It shows that you're part of the Air Force Nurse Corps. A member of one of the most efficient health care teams in the world. It signifies you are an Air Force officer with the responsibility and prestige of a leadership position. It indicates you're on the track toward good pay and almost unlimited educational opportunities. If you're a nursing professional or about to complete your nursing education, why not consider Air Force nursing as part of YOUR future? From the day you're commissioned, you'll receive the pay and advantages of an Air Force officer. Consider your uniform and our future. Then make it yours.

AIR FORCE NURSING. A GREAT WAY OF LIFE.

Call:SSgt Sandy Price (203)229-9641 or Capt. Dasher(413)545-2437 (Collect)

AIR FORCE
A great way of life

Hypercurricula...

STUDENTS FOR GARY HART MEETING — A meeting to finalize plans for Sen. Hart's UMass appearance on March 4th will be held. Anyone interested should attend. For information call Dave at 256-6255. 7 p.m., Machmer W-23.

ARMENIAN STUDENTS ORGANIZATION MEETING — Important meeting about semester events. New members welcome. 7 p.m., Brett Dorm Basement.

STUDENTS AGAINST MILITARISM MEETING — Find out about what SAM is doing concerning draft registration, the arms build-up and U.S. intervention in the Third World. 7:30 p.m., 801 Campus Center.

MASS PIB MEN'S BIBLE STUDY — All men are invited to come and study with us in an informal setting the life and teachings of Jesus Christ as described in the Bible. 8 p.m., Campus Center Room 911.

BACKGAMMON TOURNAMENT — The Amherst Backgammon Club presents its weekly Monday night tournament. Cash prizes, free mug drawing, and only $2 entry. All welcome, including minors. Sponsored by the Amherst Backgammon Club. 9 p.m., The Pub, 15 E. Pleasant St., Amherst.

ANIMAL RIGHTS — Filmstrip and discussion group forming. First meeting tonight. 4 p.m., 911 Campus Center.

UMASS HUNGER TASK FORCE MEETING — Anyone willing to help and share ideas about solving the problem of world hunger is welcome. Emphasis on educating university community. 4 to 5:00 p.m., 428 Student Union.

OPEN HILLEL MEETING — Theme of tonights meeting: Are you getting your needs met by Student Senate? New folks welcome. 6 p.m., Dukes Room, 310 Student Union.

WOMEN'S ISSUES TEAM — We will be having a workshop on sexual harassment at the meeting. Please come and bring a friend. 6:30 p.m., 901 Campus Center.

MEDITATION CLASS — Six week meditation, relaxation class offered by Ananda Marga, an international spiritual socio-political organization which coordinates schools, homes, clinics and other service work. Free. 6:30 p.m. through April 11, 177 Campus Center.

Archer Kent

191 No. Pleasant St.
Amherst
253-3534

(prices effective thru March 6, 1983)

Visit Our NEW Expanded College Stationary Dept.

SPECIALS!

Massengill Disposable Douche regular, herbal, vinegar/water and New belle-mal
6 oz
69¢
reg. $1.09

Fostex Acne Soap
3.75 oz.
$1.39
reg. $2.29

Anacin
100 tablets
$2.59
reg. $3.29

Cepacol
18 oz.
$1.79
reg. $2.69

Aspergum
orange or cherry
16 count
95¢
reg. $1.49

Health Food Center
by Rexall

Headquarters

Open 24 Hours—7 am Mon. thru Fri. Midnite

in Hadley-Amherst and Pittsfield stores.

Bottom Round Roast Beef Round USDA CHOICE ..... lb 1.79

Beef Round Bottom Round Steak	lb 2.19	USDA Choice Beef Round Eye Round Roast	lb 2.59
USDA Choice Beef Round Top Round Roast Up to 5 lbs	lb 1.89	USDA Choice Beef Chuck Boneless Chuck Steak	lb 1.89
Center Cut Bottom Round Beef Round Roast	lb 1.99	USDA Choice Beef Chuck Shoulder London Broil	lb 2.19
USDA Choice Beef Round Rump Roast	lb 1.99	USDA Choice Beef Round Top Round Steak	lb 2.59

Fresh U.S. Grade A Turkeys

Marval 10-13 lbs — Pick up one for now and one for the freezer at this special price! lb 59¢

Turkey Drumsticks Fresh Marval lb 49¢

Turkey Cutlets Fresh Marval 2.39 lb

Boneless Turkey Roast Fresh Marval 3-4 lbs 1.49 lb — White and dark meat

COUPON COUPON COUPON

Double your coupon savings.

It's time to STOP & SHOP

Your manufacturers' coupons are worth twice as much at Stop & Shop!
Details in store.

corner deli Available in stores featuring a service deli.

Weaver Chicken Roll 1.99 lb — Save a $1 a pound

White Torino Salami Carando Brand 2.49 lb

Money Saving Specials

Semi Boneless Cooked Ham Portions 1.89 lb — Colonial Water added

Colonial Master Smoked Pork Shoulder 1.29 lb — Water added

Cooked Ham Rump Portion — Skinless & Shankless Colonial water added 1.59 lb — Shankless Portion 1.79 lb

Smoked Pork Butt Armour water added 1.99 lb

Fresh Scallops 3.79 lb — Florida Calico

Fiesta Brand Peeled & Deveined Shrimp 2.99 — 1 lb pkg Frozen

Raisin Bread Stop & Shop 99¢ — 16 oz loaf Sliced

Colgate Toothpaste 4.6 oz Gel or 5 oz Regular Tube 99¢

'White Gem' Chicken Wings — Guaranteed fresh, meaty and delicious or your money back — 5-6 lb pkg lb 59¢

Chicken Thighs 'White Gem' 5-6 lb pkg lb 79¢

Chicken Drumsticks 'White Gem' 5-6 lb pkg lb 89¢

Chicken Breast Split with Back 'White Gem' 5-6 lb pkg lb 1.09

'White Gem' Chicken Legs 5-6 lb pkg lb 69¢

produce Pick your own fresh produce!

The Freshest Salad Greens in Town!

Lettuce — Pick Your Own

Red or Green Leaf Romaine Boston or Green House 2 heads $1

Fresh Escarole or Chicory 2 lbs $1 — Pick Your Own Fresh Spinach lb 59¢

Watercress or Radishes bunch 39¢ — Fresh Scallions 3 bunches for $1

Apple Sale! Pick Your Own!

Red Delicious, McIntosh, Empire, Ida Red or Cortland. US Fancy and Extra Fancy 3" min. 2 lbs 89¢

Sunkist. Sunshine! Stop & Shop brings you the pick of the western groves!

Oranges Sunkist Navel size 72 5 for $1

Lemons Sunkist size 75 5 for $1

Tangerines Sunkist Navel size 165 lb 59¢

Radicchio Italian Chickory lb 1.49

Fresh Green Peppers lb 59¢

Three Diamonds Light Tuna — Chunk Light in water 6½ ounce can 79¢

Golden Grain Dinner — Macaroni & Cheddar 7¼ ounce package 3 for $1

Duncan Hines Cake Mix — Deluxe II Asst'd Flavors 18½ ounce can 79¢

Progresso Clam Sauce — Red or White 10½ ounce can 99¢

Scott Big Roll Towels — Asst. colors & prints 119 1 ply sheet roll 69¢

2 Ply Facial Tissue Stop & Shop — White, Yellow or Aqua 2 ply 200 sheet pkg 2 for $1

Cottage Cheese — Low Fat or Small Curd Breakstone's 16 oz cup 99¢

Ore-Ida Potatoes — Dinner Fries, Homestyle, Wedge Planks or Sliced 24 oz pkg 1.09

Lender's Bagels — Plain, Egg or Onion 12 oz pkg 59¢

C Save 25¢ Real Sharp Cheddar — White or Yellow Wedge or White Bar or Imported Finland Swiss Stop & Shop Random Weight Pkg

42 ounce package Ajax Laundry Detergent — Stronger than Dirt 99¢

10¾ oz can Stop & Shop Chicken with Rice Soup or Noodle O Chicken FREE

Premium Pack Tropicana Orange Juice Half Gallon carton 99¢

119 1 ply sheet roll Scott Big Roll Towels assorted FREE

Prices effective Sun. Feb. 27 Sat. Mar. 5 W. Mass. Mon. Feb 28 Sat. Mar. 5. We reserve the right to limit sales to three packages of any items offered for sale. Not available in case lots or to other dealers or wholesalers. Copyright 1983 by Stop & Shop Supermarkets. Not responsible for typographical errors.

Bloom County — By Berke Breathed

The UMass Zone — By Mark Rollins

Katfood — By ARK

Scrod — By Dan DeBellis

After the Fall — By R. Miller

CROSSWORD

Edited by Margaret Farrar and Trude Jaffe

©1983 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

ACROSS
1 Of a poem
5 Plenty
10 White House canine
14 Comedienne Imogene
15 A sign of spring
16 Stravinsky
17 Rain hard
18 Emanate
19 Bewildered
20 Obligations
22 Mammals' hairy coats
24 Irritate
25 First person
26 Show off
29 Drillers' disappointments
33 Aloha symbol
34 Colonnades
36 Slowpoke
37 Periods of progress
39 Fabric
41 Proverbial marcher
42 Light meals
44 Hammers
46 Disencumber
47 Naval might
49 Scathing affairs
51 Sills' solo
52 Auction word
53 Violent flow
56 Counsel for the plaintiff
60 Willow
61 Its capital is Katmandu
63 Train station, in Toulon
64 Exploit
65 Provoked
66 Somebody or nobody follower
67 Eclat
68 Organic compound
69 Nucleus

DOWN
1 Eight: Prefix
2 Person with ambition
3 Bakery worker
4 Tourist's trapping
5 Tinseltown types
6 Plague
7 Eastern name
8 Bad mouth
9 Hare-footed
10 Thin thread
11 Excited
12 —— face
13 Fine ——
21 Popular opera
23 Word after out and in 26 Certain cadets
27 Lofty location
28 Rope
29 More calamitous
30 Hideouts
31 Deadline
32 Aspen conveyances
35 Returnees
38 Autonomous
40 University official
43 Angry
45 Unique
48 Churchill's sobriquet
50 Bywords
52 Flood
53 Slight quarrel
54 N.Z. Great Barrier island
55 Paper unit
57 Glen 58 Scottish Gaelic
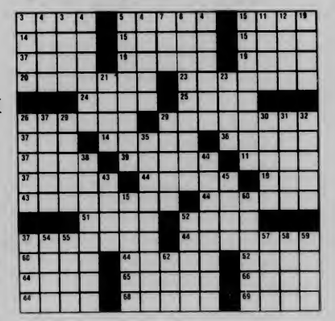
59 Wood wind
62 Way to stand



ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

K	E	L	P		S	T	O	P		R	A	M	A
A	D	A	R		A	M	O	M	E		E	L	E	M
N	E	M	O		L	U	N	A	R		S	L	A	B
T	R	A	F	A	L	G	A	R		S	Q	U	A	R	E
		O	P	E	S			U	L	N	A	R
F	I	O	R	T		S	A	I	D	A	T
F	O	R	M		A	S	T	R	O	S		U	P	A
A	N	T	A	R	C	T	I	C		A	C	L	E
Y	I	D	S		E	N	O	C	M	S		O	L	A	F
		S	N	E	A	K			T	M	A	N
A	V	O	I	D			A	S	E	A
B	E	R	M	U	D	A	T	R	I	A	N	G	L	E
I	N	R	I		A	V	A	I	L		C	O	U	P
O	A	I	L		M	O	R	E	L		E	R	R	O
E	L	S	E		A	N	T	S	Y		D	I	E	S

WEATHER

Mostly sunny and mild today. Highs 45 to 50. Increasing cloudiness tonight. Lows 25 to 35. Cloudy tomorrow with a chance of rain developing coastal areas and a chance of rain or snow inland. Highs 35 to 45.

D.C. MENU

LUNCH
Tacos, Corn Fritters/ Sausage Links, Maple Syrup

BASICS LUNCH
Spinach Noodle Casserole, Corn Fritters/Maple Syrup

DINNER
Roast Lamb/Gravy, Mint Jelly, Chicken Shortcake/Savory Garden Biscuits, Fruit Plate with Saltines

BASICS DINNER
Carrot Loaf/White Sauce, Chicken Shortcake/Savory Garden Biscuits

Help Wanted

The Collegian has two job openings for this semester. Both require a little experience, but we will train.

Associate Managing Editor

Edit Collegian news copy, AP wire one night per week. Newspaper writing or editing experience required.

Layout Technician

Design pages of the Collegian one night per week. Arts or design experience preferred.

Interested UMass students should apply before 3 p.m. Friday, March 4, to the Collegian, 113 Campus Center.

The Collegian is an equal opportunity employer

Important Night Graphics Meeting
Thursday, March 3
6:45 p.m.

UMass men gymnasts blow away Owls

By ELLEN RICHARD
Collegian Staff

Strong performances by University of Massachusetts gymnasts John Macurdy and Bert Mathieson in Saturday's victory over Temple boosted the two into the top five in the East and a step closer to competing in the Nationals.

UMass easily outmanned the injured Owls 252.6-66.8. Temple had only four healthy performers and sent up only one man each in four of the six events. The most competitors in any event for the Owls was three in the pommel horse event.

Although a few gymnasts performed well for Massachusetts, some low scores prevailed and coach Roy Johnson is looking to improve scores of six and seven up to the mid-eights.

"It was a good meet for some people," Johnson said. "I think we're doing everything right in practice because it's definitely working for some people. If everyone would just have a little more patience it would all fall together."

Collegian photo by Jim Powers

Willie Stevens prepares to dismount from his rings routine in Saturday's whipping of Temple.

Mathieson scored a season high 54.2 in all around competition which moved him into the upper five in the East. He won three events and shared the high score on rings with co-captain John McGonagle. Mathieson will need more scores of 54 and higher to reach the Nationals. Macurdy won the other two events.

"I just have to keep a real positive attitude and train efficiently," Mathieson said. "I knew exactly what I had to work. I zeroed in on (it), followed through and did it."

Macurdy moved up into the first five in the floor exercises and vaulting. He put in a fine performance in the floor exercise, scoring a 9.35 and performed an excellent double front somersault vault to score a 9.65. The vaulting score tied his all time high in vault. He needs at least one more good away score to qualify him for Nationals.

The Minutemen performed well in the floor exercises scoring 44.8 points. Behind Macurdy's 9.35 was Mathieson and Willie Stevens with a 9.0. Joe DeMarco and Jim Corbett put in fine performances to score 8.75 and 8.7 respectively.

Mathieson won the pommel horse event with a 9.0. Temple's Joey Accordino placed second with an 8.1 and Mark Quevillon came in third with an 8.05.

Rings went well for Massachusetts with Mathieson and McGonagle placing first with matching 8.85's.

Although McGonagle had a shaky performance, he needs two more away scores of 9.5 or better to qualify him for the Nationals. His best score is 9.45.

UMass had its best score of the season in vaulting with 46.15 points. Behind Macurdy's 9.65, Stevens hit nicely to score a 9.4, performing a double front somersault vault.

Mathieson scored a 9.25 and Tony Sbarra scored a 9.05, both also performing double front somersaults. Corbett hit for an 8.8.

Mathieson led the way again in parallel bars with a 9.15. Temple's Accordino placed second with an 8.65 and co-captain Bob Goulart came in third with an 8.4.

High bar showed Mathieson in front with an 8.95 and Sbarra placed second with an 8.85.

With Temple short of performers, UMass had the chance to send up extra men in exhibition. Johnson was pleased with their performances.

In floor exhibition, Glenn Schaff scored an 8.25. Schaff also performed on pommel horse, scoring a 7.35 and scored an 8.0 on rings.

Mark McGaunn performed in pommel horse scoring a 6.75. Jim Emmet scored a 7.7 in pommels.

John Baliunas performed in parallel bars scoring a 6.4 and in the high bar scoring a 7.35.

The Minutemen will close out the season on Saturday at home against Springfield. The meet will be a close one as both teams are at the same level in competition.

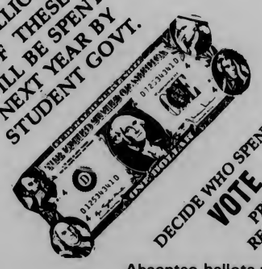
HIGHEST PRICES PAID
- FOR -
GOLD & SILVER
IN ALL FORMS
MANHAN JEWELLERS
3 PLEASANT ST. (CORNER OF MAIN)
NORTHAMPTON, MA. 01060
(413) 584-7000

New England Conservatory
Presents
NEW WORKS
The five winning compositions in the 1982-1983 New England Conservatory NEW WORKS Competition will be performed by the NEC Contemporary Ensemble.
John Heiss – Artistic Director
Eiji Oue – Guest Conductor
The Winners
Peter Child – "Ensemblance"
Edward Cohen – "The Ruin"
Edward J. Miller – "Playing the Odds"
Mark Saya – "Two Lullabies"
Harvey J. Stokes – "Values and Proposals"
The Concert
Sunday, March 6
UMASS Bezanson Recital Hall, Amherst
8:00 p.m.
Tickets: $3 ($2 senior citizens and students)
FREE FOR STUDENTS OF THE FIVE COLLEGE CONSORTIUM
Fine Arts Center Box Office: 545-2511
This competition and concert have been made possible with support from the Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities, a state agency.

Assorted Sports
Jerseys $5.95
Assorted Styles & Colors
on Special Sale Rack Reg. $7.95
Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4
UNIVERSITY STORE

Vincent Price
Film Festival
Sunday march 6
2:00 pm - Theatre of Blood
4:00 pm - Pit and the Pendulum
6:00 pm - The Masque of Red Death
8:00 pm - The Raven
75¢ for all you can see
C.C. Auditorium

1.7 MILLION OF THESE WILL BE SPENT NEXT YEAR BY STUDENT GOVT.



DECIDE WHO SPENDS YOUR MONEY
VOTE
PRESIDENTIAL/BOG/
RESIDENTIAL ELECTIONS
MARCH 7, 8
Absentee ballots will be available from 1 - 3 PM in 420 S.U.B.

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Monday - Friday • Deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10 % • discount • Phone number FREE

AUDIO

Panasonic AM-FM 8-track stereo, phono 6 speakers 50$ 8-track tapes 2$ ea 6-8185

AUTO FOR SALE

67 VW Conv inspected needs work $400 or BO 323-5918 leave message

For sale 1970 Ford Torino - 45,000 original miles needs work - $500 or BO call 545-3500 before 5:00 549-4125 after 5:00 ask for Dan

73 Pontiac Grand AM 4 door cruise control climate control bucket seats excellent condition $800 or BO 82,000 miles 549-2785 evenings

Brand-new Holly 600 4-barrel carborator retails for $225 must sell $100 or BO call 549-5586 after 11:00

1967 Saab 96 (Monte Carlo Edition) $500. Call Sam 774-5952 1-5 PM or leave message

1973 Cutlass 4 dr 84000 miles stereo well maintained $1150 Ron 549-2656

1976 Subaru DL 5-speed AM/FM 30-35 mpg, new tires, $1395 or BO 549-0569

BOLTWOOD PROJECT

Interested in the Boltwood Project? Recruitment meeting Wed. Feb. 23 at 7 PM in 804 CC

COUNSELING - LOW STUDENT FEE

Licensed, experienced, caring humanist No connection U Mass. First session free. Allan Black, 253-5036

CRIMSON TRAVEL

Spring Break - Bermuda $289. Daytona $299. Disney $279. More info: Roberta or Steph 549-5320

ENTERTAINMENT

Rackadisc Entertainment Agency Inc. Bands and discjockeys guaranteed student functions 256-0739

Professional DJs for less $99 special ends March 15. Book now before price increase 549-4405

M & M Music Unlimited Professional DJ's for all occasions call Mike 546-5259

FOR RENT

Couple wanted: share Townehouse Apt. with another June 1 fall option Kathy 549-1430

Amherst Center 1 bedroom apt $325/mn available immediately 256-6402

Room in Brittany Manor Apt. 160/month heat & hot water included. (1)-568-1215

FOR SALE

Tickets for Eric Clapton's only NE show best offer 546-8682 keep trying

Soft black leather and goose-down vest. men's 42, women's 12. Almost new $85. 549-2857, Abby

Eric Clapton Tickets, 15th row, reasonable price, call 546-7504 must sell

Hagstrom Bass $280 Kustom 75w amp $230 Roland synthesizer $450 549-0453

Artistol Pints of acrylic paints for sale cheap! Call Louise 546-8527

1969 Volvo 1445, excellent body and interior. Economical! New mufler, battery, etc. $1,000 or BO Also, Smith Corona electric typewriter (case & three cartridges included!!) $150 or BO 665-4880

Stylish womans down coat practically new hardly worn call Debbie 546-9660

Microacoustics multiaxis FRM-3 bookshelf speakers. Excellent condition $125 pair call 549-6032

New Skis Dynastar Omeglass II Slalom Cut still in pkg 200 cm $150 call Pit 549-5896

FOUND

10k gold signet ring. Tell me the initials and it's yours. Call Terri at 549-0748 after 5:00 pm.

HELP WANTED

Overseas Jobs - Summer/year round. Europe, S. Amer., Australia, Asia. All fields. $500-$1200 monthly. Sight-seeing. Free info. Write IJC Box 52-MA-1 Corona Del Mar, CA 92625

CRUISE SHIP JOBS! $14-$28,000 Caribbean, Hawaii, World. Call for Guide, Directory, Newsletter. 916-722-1111 ext Massachusettes

COUNSELORS: Camp Wayne, northeastern Pennsylvania. Co-ed childrens camp 6/23-8/23/83. On campus interviews March 2nd. Friendly, warm atmosphere, 12 Allevard, Lido Beach, NY 11561. Include school phone number. Campus Rep: Wendy Edenfield 545-0939

ALASKA JOBS Summer/year round, earn great money in this opportunity rich state, ie., earn $10,000 - $12,000 on three month fishing boat. Send for 1983 employer listing and information packet covering all industries. $5.00 Lentel Research Dept. AA2114 P.O. Box 99405 Cleve., Ohio 44199 satisfaction guaranteed.

INSTRUCTION

Music Instruction: sax, flute, clarinet, piano, brass, and voice. . .ear training, improvisation, and reading! John Root 256-8729

Know your car. Basic Auto Mechanics Workshop. Classroom theory & shop. Limited enrollment 253-2098

LOST

Kays on blue-clip kayring with words Le Chateau 546-8161

Short Khaki Jacket w hat and mittens in Blue Wall Fri nite 2/1/83 Please hat and mittens have sentimental value call 253-9971 Sheila

Calculator Texas Instrument Lost in Hasbrouck Rm 20 on Tuesday 22 call 6-9464

Glasses in a red case please call Helene 665-2848 Reward.

* Reward *******
lost 2 charms
highly santimental
please call Chris 6-6966

MICROCOMPUTER/TERMINAL RENTALS

The Computer Works 253-5676 253-5755

PERSONALS

Guitarist wanting to join band. In Southwest area preferably. All kinds of music. Call John 6-8800

Casey your brain isn't all I love & yes you are touched hugs & cuddles.

You've got your ticket, now get to the station, the "A" train will be coming soon.

To Suey - Happy Birthday Sweetheart! I love you - Mutt.

Aimee, To a "True" Friend. Happy Birthday. Happiness Always! I love you Brenda.

Lila - Happy 20th 2/28

Bermuda Rugby Tour The Rugby Club is traveling to Bermuda for Spring Break. We have room for non-members. Come along and GO WILD! Contact Mark 549-2760 Scott 253-3544

Go Down with someone you know & trust
luxury hotels, no hidden costs & no BS
Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. Spring Break 83

UMass Ski Club Goes Down 545-3437

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Dissertations, Theses, Cases, Papers, guaranteed acceptance, low rates, Nancy 5-0392, 584-7924

RESUME WRITING

Professional/Confidential/Efficient special rates 253-7468 weekends, weekdays after 5

RIDE NEEDED

Ride needed to Penn for Spring Break Going to Leola, Lancaster, Harrisburg, or Phili. area will share cost. Rita 546-6347

Ride needed Clapton concert Mar. 1 Worcester share expenses call John 6-4760

Ride needed to Prov/Newport R.I. Thurs. March 3rd will share gas expense Karen 549-6646

ROOMMATE WANTED

We need an easygoing female to join our sunny Amherst home please call us at 256-8225

RUDOLPH & STONE

E.T. endorses Timmi W. Rudolph and Jay Stone for Central Area Co-Presidents.

Animal Rights filmstrip and discussion group forming tonight at 4:00 p.m. CC Rm 911. All welcome. Call 253-5674

SERVICES

PAPER DUE? CAN'T WRITE? Tutor -english composition and grammar reasonable rates 6-9289

SPRINGBREAK

Daytona Beach $269 March 19-26 Round trip jet and hotel directly on the beach! Montreal $59 plus tax and service. March 19-21; 26-28 round trip deluxe motor coach 3 days/2 nights in the Quality Inn downtown includes welcome party. Also! Half-price Delta Airlines coupons! 253-7625

TRAVEL

Florida direct by van. 3/19-27. $148. for round trip - wine & cheese - accom. info call now - S.S. Van Lines @ 617-724-8810

Ski the world's best powder. Utah! Trip includes: round trip airfare 7 - nights lodging at Temple Square Hotl 5-day all Utah lift ticket free rental car with unlimited mileage all taxes and services. All for $479.00 contact UMass Ski Club 545-3437

UMass Ski Club goes north
Spring Break 83 March 20-25
Stowe. Ski club capital of the East.
Only $159 includes: transportation, hot tub party, beer & wine parties, 5 day lift ticket, all taxes & gratuities & much, much, more. For more info contact the UMass Ski Club Rm 430A Student Union or call 545-3437

Europe this Summer? Join a charter leaving on 7/6/83 from NY - London - return from Paris. Call 549-0524 or 549-4813

Spring Break - Bermuda $269 - Florida $229 (plus tax) call Debbie 546-9660

Spring Break Riders Wanted to Florida couple preferred call eves. 253-3908

Last chance Bermuda $315 - call 256-6941 after 6

WANTED

Class rings, gold and silver jewelry and coins. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant, Amherst, 256-0710

Help $50 reward for helping me by your parents unwanted second car 253-7189

Two or three bedroom Puffton to rent from June till August call Letty 546-7464

Looking to rent dorm - size refrigerator call Nadia 546-5901

Scotland and bagpipes do you know anything about Scottish traditions? If you do, call 6-9886

Three badroom apartment in Puffton for fall 1983 call Mike 546-4116

Cash for your records, tapes 545-2836 (ask for Jaromir/leave message)

WANTED TO RENT

2 or 3 Bedroom Townehouse or Puffton! to rent from June on Marilyn 549-1377

Dear Phil, just like Wella Balsam, I love your hair (what's left of it). If Dick's up to it, I'll see if we can all get married. Laura

the Hungry U Restaurant
55 University Drive
Amherst
549-5713
To: All Pizza Lovers
From: The Hungry U Restaurant
Subject: Pizza For Only $1.00
Now where can you buy a freshly prepared pizza for $1.00
Read on, starting each night at 9:00 join us for our famous pizza party. When you purchase a pitcher of beer you can buy one of our delicious small pizzas for only $1.00
Also we offer happy hour prices each night after 9:00
P.S. Bring this ad and get one free pizza topping good Mon -Wed 2/21 - 2/23

UMASS SKI CLUB
Goes North to
Stowe VERMONT
SKI CAPITAL of the EAST.
March 20 - 25 159.00
Includes: Transportation
5 nights hotel accomodations
5 full breakfasts
color TV & steam bath
in every room
5 days skiing
Free Hot Tub Party
2 Free Beer & Wine Parties
Indoor Heated Pool
for more info 5-3437

MUSIC GALLERY
PEAVEY, IBANEZ, TAMA, JBL, ROLAND, ACOUSTIC, BOSS, LEGEND, EV-TAPCO, HONDO, DEAN, HAMER, FOSTEX.
RT. 9 HADLEY
ON THE BUS ROUTE
586-6228

Recycle this Collegian

Sports

More Sports on Page 14

Hawks swoop in on UMass, 89-78

By JIM FLOYD
Collegian Staff

The Minuteman balloon flew high for 45 minutes (40 in regulation and five in overtime) Saturday night against St. Joseph's University, but it burst in double overtime when they were outscored 17-6 and lost 89-78.

If you weren't one of the near capacity 4107 on hand to witness this classic battle between two Atlantic Ten foes, then you really missed out.

The Hawks flew ahead early and built up an 8-0 lead before Darryl Carter, who started in place of Donald Russell, got the Minutemen on the scoreboard with a pull up jumper, to begin what would turn out to be a catch up struggle that would last over ten minutes.

The home team did win that struggle, as a team effort by Edwin Green, John Hempel, Horace Neysmith, Carter and Bobby Braun off the bench, started things cooking to set up a game tying twisting layup by Skip Connors and UMass was even at 20-20.

St. Joseph's would have no part in giving away the lead though. Powered mainly by the shooting of Bob Lojewski and Maurice Martin, the Hawks held UMass at bay, holding bulges as large as six points after the tie.

Again the Minutemen began to climb back into the game. In perfect sequence, Donald Russell, who despite being plagued by a painful back injury, still logged 27 minutes during the course of the evening, teamed with Hempel to chip in eight points to St. Joseph's two in the final three minutes of the half.

A Russell 18-footer was the final tally of the half and gave UMass a lead for the first time, 34-33.

In the second half, the Minutemen became pursued and St. Joe's became the pursuer. As in the first half, eventually the two squads drew even, this time 56-56 with just 7:29 showing on the clock.

The volume decibal level was high as the crowd sensed its impact on the visiting team and began to get louder and louder.

And there was plenty to get loud about.

The Hawks forged ahead, 59-56, on six unanswered points but Green responded by calmly launching a three pointer.

Russell pushed UMass ahead with a 16-footer at the 5:28 mark but the Hawks, again in the person of Lojewski, tied the score at 61-61.

Lojewski hit two free throws at the 4:58 mark after being fouled by Braun to put the Hawks ahead. But a John Hempel three pointer put UMass back in the drivers seat 63-62.

And then things got interesting.

Following a timeout, Ron Young dribbled around the top of the key and then mysteriously fired up a 30-footer with a man all over him.

"He thought the shot clock was still on," said Tom McLaughlin when the game was over.

St. Joseph's got the ball and Martin was fouled by Hempel. Martin made one of two shots and the score was deadlocked again (again, again, again...) this time at 64-64.

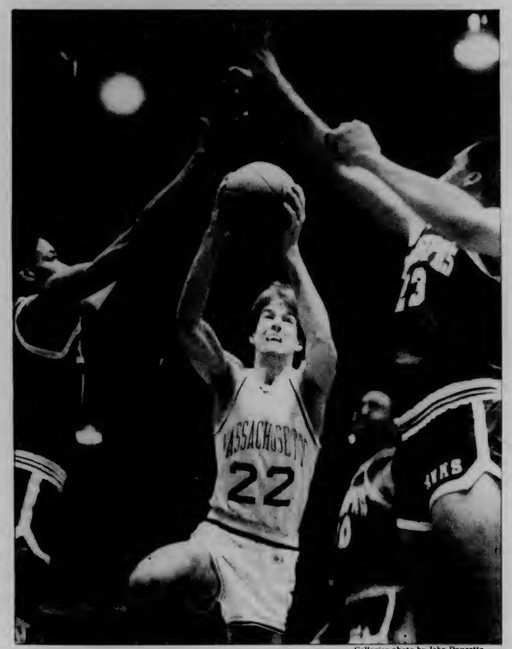
Two Hempel free throws were negated by another Lojewski hoop before two Russell free throws at :29 put the Minutemen ahead 66-64.

UMass then got the ball back when Green threw a Lojewski shot back in his face with the Minutemen recovering but, on the ensuing desperation foul, Young was unable to hit from the charity stripe. The Hawks then got a tip in with time running out to send the contest into overtime.

In the first overtime, the Minutemen scored the first four points on a Russell jumper and a Green dunk but Wayne Williams of St. Joe's scored four points of his own. Double overtime.

In the second OT, it was all St. Joe's as the Minuteman machine just ran out of gas. The Hawks went ahead and never looked back, to pull away for the 89-78 win.

Editor's note: Jim Floyd had a severe case of the blahs after the Minuteman loss. Blah, Blah, Blah...



Collegian photo by John Doucette

Skip Connors drives past the St. Joe's defenders in the first half of the Minutemen's 89-78 double overtime loss Saturday night at the Cage.

Coach Ozdarski: Will she stay or will she go?

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts women's basketball coach Mary Ann Ozdarski told her team Thursday that she would not be returning next year to coach the Minutewomen.

But University of Massachusetts athletic director Frank McInerney released a statement Friday stating that no decision has been made on Ozdarski's future and none will be made until the present season is over.

Ozdarski was unavailable for comment this weekend.

The Minutewomen travel to Rutgers Friday to face, most likely, Penn State, ranked 15th in the nation, in the Atlantic Ten basketball championships.

Ozdarski told her team Thursday it was time for a change, according to freshman guard Barbara Hebel.

"Coach gave no reason at the time," said Hebel. "She said that she had enjoyed it (coaching) and told us (the players) it wasn't our fault."

The Minutewomen have had a tough year, posting a 5-20 record so far. This was the second straight losing year for UMass. In 1981-82 the team went 9-16, the first losing women's team since 1971-72.

Under Ozdarski, Massachussetts had four consecutive winning seasons from 1976-77 to 1980-81. The squad won the MAIAW state champsionship in 1976-77 (18-5) and 1978-79 (18-7).

"I was really surprised," said Wendy Ward. "She has been my coach for three years and she wasn't just a coach, she was someone I could talk to. I am disappointed she's not coming back."

The team was down after Ozdarski told them her feelings, Hebel said.

Rebecca Kuchs expressed similiar sentiments. "I'm sorry to see her go," said Kuchs. "I would've liked to see her come back."

"I feel bad that she's not going to be around," said Hebel. "She took really good care of us."

But, Ozdarski may not be back next year and the Minutewomen still have the Atlantic Ten Championships Friday.

With the announcement by Ozdarski and the monumental task of playing Penn State, UMass is practicing hard for the Nittany Lions.

"We have nothing to lose," said Hebel. "We would like to win one more before she leaves."

Kuchs agreed.

"This will make us work harder. I hope we can go out with a win."

Trackwomen place seventh

By MARK FOGARTY
Collegian Correspondent

Leah Loftis and Elizabeth Patterson broke school records to lead the University of Massachusetts women's track team to a strong seventh place finish in New England Championships. Over thirty schools from throughout the region competed in the meet at UConn on Saturday.

Loftis broke the record in the 400 meters with a time of 57.8, good enough to give her a first place finish.

She also led the mile relay team to a stunning second place finish, upsetting New England powers such as Boston College and Fitchburg State. Debbie Smith led off with a split of 59.8, followed by Loftis (58.6), Kristi Kelly (61.3), and anchored by Sue Bird (60.5). The time of 4:00.8 was the best this season.

Coach Banda was pleased with the performance of freshman shot putter Elizabeth Patterson. After missing a meet last weekend due to illness, she surprised everyone by tossing the shot 41'1 3/4", her personal best and a new UMass record. The throw was good enough to give her fourth place.

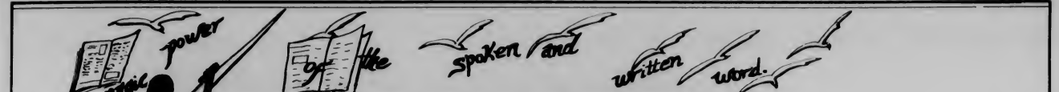
In other races, Maureen O'Rielly ran the 800 meters in 2:17.6 to place fifth and Sue Bird ran the 400 meters in 60.5 seconds but did not place.

Banda was happy with the overall performance of his team, citing the fact that among the teams UMass beat were URI, Vermont and last week's opponent, Springfield College, all of which are New England powers. The University of Connecticut won the meet, followed by Boston College and Boston University.

Next weekend Leah Loftis will compete at Easterns along with the mile relay team.

Collegian photo by Jim Powers

Mark Quevillon scored an 8.05 in his pommell horse routine Saturday against Temple. See story on page 14.



NUMMO NEWS

Monday, February 28, 1983 VOLUME 11 ISSUE 74

NUMMO News' ONLY connection with the Massachusetts Daily Collegian is for the purpose of distribution.

UMass Administrators Oppose SAT standards

By SEGUN EUBANKS

Paul Barrows, Director of the Committee for the Collegiate Education of Black and Minority Students (CCEBMS) and Rudolph Jones, University of Massachusetts Admissions Advisor, have expressed strong opposition to the attempt to introduce new minimum standard requirements for admission to state colleges and universities. Barrows, who testified against the proposal in a public hearing held on February 15, by the Board of Regents, called the proposals "unfair to minority and low income urban students." Jones said the proposal "would create unnecessary exclusion of a significant percentage of incoming students."

A draft of the proposal, which has been under discussion for the past year, is currently being distributed by the Board of Regents of Massachusetts, under the title of "Admissions Standards." Its chief support has come from Roger Schiness, Vice Chancellor of Academic Affairs for the Board of Regents. However, the proposal is facing much criticism and opposition from educators and administrators throughout the state.

The supporters of the proposal allege that implementation would improve the quality of students entering state colleges and universities.

The proposal, if implemented would follow the three basic criteria of Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) scores, class rank and high school preparation (see table). A typical high school senior in 1986, in order to be considered for admissions to the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, would have to score a combined math and verbal SAT total of 825, be in the upper 50 percent of the class, have three years of college prep English, two years of college prep Math, two years of Social Science, two years of Natural Science, and one year of a foreign language. The standards in all categories would increase gradually every year until 1989.

Another important and controversial aspect of the proposal is a stipulation that would allow colleges and universities to recommend exceptions to the minimum standards. According to the proposal: "Each institution, as a part of its policy, will recommend the special criteria by which it will evaluate and admit non-traditional and educationally disadvantaged students who will be exempted from the minimum standards." Two such groups mentioned were older students and minority students.

Barrows, said that the idea of developing exceptions to minimum standards would create minority "quotas" on campuses and would "have the potential to stigmatize" that group of students. Jones' added that "In this post-Bakke era the Regents would be setting themselves up for a class action suit by displaced white students who scored higher than minority students." Both men also suggested that since colleges could only "recommend" criteria, the final decision of the percentage of exceptions lay in the hands of the Regents.

Jones' said that the current criteria for admissions is much more adequate. There is currently no minimum SAT cutoff, and the admissions office uses a number of other criteria, including high school transcripts. Barrows agreed, saying that consideration for admission to the University must include "the detailed evidence of competent academic performance, which a high school transcript provides.

Mr. Barrows also stressed, "I am for the quality of students and the quality of education at the University." He said that he could support the portion of the proposal requiring vigorous high school preparation if the Regents came up with a viable way to supply resources and finances to public high schools, especially in the urban centers. Mr. Jones says that the politics behind the proposal is to improve education in public high schools, however, he also strongly questions the availability of resources.

The question of cultural bias in the SAT is another important consideration. According to Jones, Black students score an average of 200 points below white students. He says that 70 percent of the whites score above 700 while 60 percent of the Blacks score below 700. Barrows feels this is due to inadequate high school preparation and the lack of coaching for SAT exam. Studies have also shown that different cultural and experiencial backgrounds between the racial groups call into question the validity of standard intelligence and performance tests.

Barrows also pointed to the potential overload of community colleges, the unreliability of class rank, and exclusion of programs such as CCEBMS in the development stages of the proposal, as a few other concerns.

When asked what students, especially Third World and low income students should do to help block the proposal, Barrows said "anything and everything." He pointed to the fact that many of us would not be here if the proposal were in effect. He said that the best way to show the Regents that they are wrong about their assumptions that standards are too low is to excel in all academic areas.

Photo by John Wright

Rudy Johnson of the UMass Admissions office.

Regent Proposal
For September 1986

Institutions	minimum combined SAT and weighted class rank	High school preparation
Top Echelon UMass Amherst/Worcester/Boston, SMU, University of Lowell	775 and upper 40 percent or 825 and upper 50 percent	*partial compliance to Carnegie Point System
Middle Echelon Nine State College i.e. Fitchburg State	725 and upper 50 percent or 775 and upper 60 percent	*partial compliance to Carnegie Point System
Lower Echelon Community College i.e. Roxbury Community, STCC	Open Admissions	H.S. Diploma

*Carnegie Point System: Equivalent of 16 courses of college prep work i.e. English, Math, Soc. Science, etc.

SAT Admissions Standard: Elitist Trends in higher ed.

By CHARLENE ALLEN
ANGELA BROWN

The recently proposed minimum SAT requirement, a subject of debate for quite some time, indicates by its mere existence that there is a strong need to clarify the issues of access to, and diversity in, public higher education.

The fact that the proposed SAT scores have actually been subject to extensive intellectual debate by those purported to be the most learned in our society indicates that retrogressive ideas continue to influence higher education policymakers. It is clearly ludicrous to seriously consider this proposal a means of upgrading a university.

Let's begin with the basic rationale maintained by our esteemed Board of Regents, which put forth this proposal in the first place. The rationale is:

1) the minimum SAT standard will improve the quality of classroom education by admitting only those students who have had superior preparation for college work;

2) the institution of these standards throughout the state will force the state's secondary schools to improve their curricula and adminstration and;

3) access to higher education for underrepresented and low-income individuals will be guaranteed through provisions for students in "special categories."

Our contention is that the proposed SAT standards will result in the following:

1) a decrease in access to higher education;

2) a hindrance of the development of a constructive approach to the problems of secondary schools and;

3) an elitist approach to the University's self-evaluation.

Decreased Access

The SAT requirement will undoubtedly result in discrimination against those of lower economic or racially oppressed backgrounds. Every individual has not had an adequate opportunity to sufficiently prepare himself to meet traditional admissions criteria. The "special categories" provision will not allow for the fair or equal representation of those who are in every other way qualified to attend. Rather, these individuals will be admitted in a stigmatized manner, tainting their college experiences and hindering their progress. Even when those of "non-traditional" backgrounds are "allowed" onto this campus, conditions are not always conducive to their academic efforts.

The problems in Massachusetts' secondary schools will not be alleviated by mere pressure. Unfortunately, the solution must address the disease, not the symptoms. The fact is that Massachusetts high schools are afflicted by economic problems which cannot be separated from educational quality. Massachusetts law mandates that schools receive a minimum level of funding from state sources that provides only the skeleton of an educational institution, i.e. a building and a primary staff. Any further funding must be provided by the relevant district. Naturally, those districts with high-income residents are more capable of contributing money to their schools, than are low-income residents. Furthermore, the economic needs of those born into low-income families result in the district's emphasis on a vocational rather than a college-

Shirley Chisholm speaks at Hampshire

By RUSSELL D. JORDAN

Former New York congresswoman, Shirley Chisholm, spoke at an informal reception held in her honour at Hampshire College last Tuesday. The reception was sponsored by the Black Studies Executive Committee. The Committee is made up of Black faculty here in the five-college area. Chet Davis, chairman of that organization and Afro-American studies professor at the University of Massachusetts, welcomed Ms. Chisholm to the gathering.

The reception opened with the film, "Chisholm Pursuing a Dream." The film chronicled Ms. Chisholm's unsuccessful, but significant, bid for the 1972 democratic presidential nomination. Ms. Chisholm, a congresswoman from New York City at the time, said in the film a main impetus for her campaign was, win or lose, "to get the white forerunners to deliver something to the Black masses." Despite her loss, Ms. Chisholm is credited with shaking up the traditional, largely white male influence of the party.

Ms. Chisholm said a large degree of success, despite being Black and a woman, was due to the fact that she "understood the power of the Black vote." Ms. Chisholm said after the film, that a large measure of her strength in dealing with the often biased special interest groups that dominate the American political arena lay in the fact that she was always able to "maneuver". "I am a catalyst for change," she said to the gathering at the reception. "My goals are and always have been to enhance and develop an understanding of Black people, what they mean and their attitudes."

Ms. Chisholm, who left political life to accept a position at Mount Holyoke College, in Hadley, Massachusetts, said that, "most of the students come from sheltered backgrounds. They don't have the breadth and depth of experiences to change their attitudes." It is her frankness and honesty, Ms. Chisholm believes, that allows her to make headway in opening young people's minds. "My classes are loaded," she said, "I'm very frank. I step on toes and I have no time for foolishness. I have a job to do, things to accomplish. I love people, and naturally, I want people to love me. But, what someone thinks of me is their problem, not mine." Ms. Chisholm continued by saying, "I am a humanitarian. America is a multifaceted, variegated country." Ms. Chisholm chastised both Blacks and Whites for rigid, doctrinaire thinking. Progress comes through understanding," she said.

Ms. Chisholm, whose political career was based on championing the cause of the "disenfranchised" and "disenchanted," said that though her goals may not be accepted in her time, "I hope they pave the way for future gain. I've caught hell, but I don't regret anything I've done." Ms. Chisholm cited a "deep concern" for the young people of this country and an "unshakeable faith in their character," in her hopes for the future.

Ms. Chisholm, who spent part of her childhood in the Caribbean island nation of Barbados, claimed her disciplined West Indian upbringing, her faith in God and her "tremendous confidence" in herself, has stood her in good stead against the rigors of political life. Ms. Chisholm finished by thanking the Five College Black Studies Executive Committee for sponsoring the reception and closed by saying, "I accept the challenge in this Valley. I don't listen to rumors or people with biased feelings. Once I observe and find out for myself, you can't stop me."

NCAA passes minimum SAT requirement

By KEITH W. JOHNSON

As the state Regents ponders the idea of initiating a minimum SAT requirement, the NCAA has already passed a ruling that requires a minimum SAT score of 700 for all athletes who enter college in order to participate in varsity sports.

This ruling, titled Proposal 48, was introduced and passed at the NCAA convention in January in San Diego and is scheduled to go into effect in August 1986. The ruling was introduced by an all-white committee that evaluated the proposal.

But it has met with strong opposition with Black people involved in college sports. Dr. Jesse Stone Jr., President of Southern University and Dr. Robert Randolph, President of Alabama State are but two of many presidents from predominantly Black colleges that are opposed to the ruling. Georgetown's famed basketball coach John Thomson has even come out against the ruling.

Many feel that the ruling has a racist tone to it. It has been noted that the SAT's themselves are racially bias in that they pertain to more white middle class standards. It is a fact that about 56 percent of Black high school students receive a score below 700. But there are also a number of white students that also receive scores below this figure.

Some feel that the white institutions are trying to cut down the number of Blacks on their teams. Others feel that the ruling is an attempt to disrupt the athletic programs at Black colleges which have just recently begun to participate in the mainstream of national collegiate competition.

Some Blacks are in favor of the ruling. Harry Edwards of the University of California is one. He was the militant leader of Black athletes on the U.S. team during the 1968 Olympics in Mexico City. Others feel that a score of 700 is undermining all athletes.

At the conference in San Diego, the head football coach of National Champion Penn State, Joe Paterno, in speaking of the Black opposition to the ruling, stated, "but it's for your own good..." But many Blacks can not understand how Paterno knows more about Blacks than Black people do. Between now and 1986 opponents of the ruling will be trying to overturn or amend Proposal 48.

SAT Standard continued

preparatory curricula. In short, a vicious cycle prevails in the district educational system, which is not addressed by outside attempts to improve its quality.

The Elitist Trend

Closer to home, the minimum SAT proposal has an immediate effect upon the public's perception of what an educational institution is all about. The proposal makes grades the sole objective of a college education. Consequently, it reduces students to tunnel-visioned grade-seekers, rather than individuals seeking the "universal" discoveries embodied in a university education. This concept not only bastardizes the intention of higher education, but also makes a negative statement about those of us who are currently here. Were these standards already in effect when we were applying to UMass, many of us would not have been admitted. The proposal deligitimizes our right to be here. In fact, it is based on a view which designates our presence here the cause of a problem necessitating the proposal of higher SAT standards in the first place.

The 'Image' Problem

The Board of Regents, by making this proposal, is essentially asserting that our endeavors, as students of the University of Massachusetts, are not those which lend to its ideal image of the University. but is it not we, the consumers, who ought to be deciding upon what image we want to create? After all, an "image" is nothing less than a reflection of the underlying goals we seek to achieve at this university. Therefore, it becomes clear that this proposal is a starting point for changing the nature of higher education to suit the Regents' needs rather than those of UMass students.

The Regents are currently "reconsidering" the SAT proposal due to the pressure that has been applied on them from within the state. They have apparently recognized the folly of bringing to public conscience the deep-rooted afflictions of the state's education system. We, however, must take advantage of this blunder and see to it that the question is not allowed to fade back into obscurity. This entire situation is indicative of an even larger problem. The afflictions of the entire system will not cease to haunt us even if this proposal to intensify them were to disappear. We are fighting ideas which continuously dawn new disguises. The struggle must not die with every superficial change. •

Important Notice

The Financial Aid deadline for the 83-84 academic year is March 1, 1983. All Financial Aid Forms must be sent to the College Scholarship Service by the above date to receive priority funding for the next academic year.

Any questions can be referred to the Financial Aid Office, 243 Whitmore Hall.

Se desmoraliza el Ejencito del Salvador?

Por MIGUEL CEVASCO
CINDY VELAZQUEZ

La ciudad de Suchitato ha estado situada por las guerrillas desde Feb. 11, 1983. El Gobierno has estado mandando ayuda militar por medio de helicopteros, ha havido una lucha constante en las calles de Suchitato.

Suchitato con una poblacion de 6,000 personas, a 27 millas al norte del Salvador, es el puerto mas importante al norte de la capital, pues esta tience dos proyectus hidroelectricos que suplen ma's del la mitad de la energia electrica del Salvador.

El ejercito salvadoreno esta confundido respecto al proxima paso a tomar, debido a la ocupacion de Berlin por las fuenzas guerrilleras.

La operacion militar en grande escala ha sido completamente inefectiva contra las guerrillas del frente de Liberacion Nacianal Farabundo Marti. Los consejeros norteamericanos han criticcado las tactica ulitzadas, y han empujado al ejencito a utilizar peguenas unidades de patrullas para combatir las guerrilllas, esto le ha dado mas sentido de inseguridad alos comandantes del ejercito.

el ejercito del Salvador has creado una dependencia tal en el entrana miento de los batallones del ejercifo en Estados Unidos, que es tos no pueden combatir a menos que sea junto a estos batallones. Con ma's del 60• de las tropas enlistadas y con un entranamiento irregular, el espiritu del ejercito se ha do al piso, despues del ultimo atague de las guerrillas en Berlin.

Despues de tuomar 293 prisioneros del ejercito salvadorino, entre octobre y diciembra de 1982, y 153 soldados el pasado mes de energo, podemos decir que la politica de las guerrillas de tomar prisioneros ha sido efectiva.

Photo of the Week

Photo by Brynne Clarke

Steven "Chuckie" Bagley and Denise Bulgar acting up outside the SUB on Friday.

Photo by Brynne Clarke

Two members of Dusk dancing up a storm at Bowker Auditorium on Friday.

Patti O'Neal and Dusk

By DONNA DAVIS

"What became of the people of Sumer?"
"Ah," the old man sighed,
"They lost their history and then they died."

Patti O'Neal and Dusk revived some of the history and culture of Black people Friday evening in Bowker auditorium. With dance, poetry and a slide show the troupe recounted the joys and sorrows of the Black experience.

The futility of loving someone while being a slave was voiced poignantly by a mother with her child. She asked how could someone become attached to someone knowing that this person could be sold to a distant land at any time. The hymn heard in the background reminded all of the Black person's struggle to remain human while bound to a "peculiar institution."

The art slides exposed the diversity of creative expression in Africa. Carefully carved busts of African women revealed the prevalent norms of beauty without sacrificing individual traits.

In the proceeding scene Ms. O'Neal mimicked the unnatural poses characteristic of the Egyptian art form. her hands and forearms formed angles perpendicular to her body as her shoulders undulated. She danced rather coolly at first, then her movements became more frenzied and spastic as the music's tempo quickened.

Again slides were used to transport the audience back in time. Images of Black leaders flashed on the screen. W.E.B. DuBois, Marcus Garvey, Malcolm X and Martin Luther King, Jr. were among them. Children in their Sunday best and folks in the streets of Harlem came to life. Billie Holiday once again seemed to sing the blues.

The nightclub scene displayed the troupe's ability to "act up." Each woman in this segment had her own story to tell about life, love and loving. One woman, undoubtedly the most enviable of the three, strutted and sauntered on the stage as her companions yelled, "Jump back baby, jump back!" She complied with their request by doing a playful skip. They were Black women hanging out and just talking about being Black women.

The performance in Bowker soliditied the connection between knowledge of one's history and survival. Through creative imagery Patti O'Neal and Dusk breathed truth into the lives Black people have led. They captured and pointed out the significance of an old saying: It is impossible to know where you are going unless you know where you have been.

African dance at area high school

By RUSSELL D. JORDAN

On February 18th, at the Amherst Regional High School, a packed house was treated to a concert honoring the heritage of Black dance and music. The African dance troupe, directed and choreographed by Deamma Battle, was sponsored by the Massachusetts Artists-in-Residence Program. The troupe spent several weeks at area schools instructing students in the art of Black dance.

The show was a heart-stopper from start to finish with the percussion section, headed by Bamidele Osumarea, leading the dancers in a poetic display of exuberance in motion. Traditional Black/African dances from the continent and the diaspora were featured. The dancers technical expertise was highlighted by the colorful traditional costumes that they wore.

The sheer physical and emotional exuberance of the performers swept the audience along, head bobbing and hand clapping throughout. After an intermission the audience saw a brief performance by area youngsters and members of the Wildwood dance club. They performed a traditional African ceremonial dance and the audience was visibly pleased. At the end of the performance, and a rousing standing ovation, members of the audience, not wanting the magic to end, crowded onto the stage to join in the dancing.

This reporter, for one, was moved by so vibrant a representation of the richness and vitality of Black culture. As an example of the proud heritage that Blacks everywhere share, this performance was an unparalleled success.The performers and students who participated in the performance, in whatever capacity, are to be commended.

HEALTH

This article is part of a Health series that Nummo News will be running. We hope it will be of service.

"Alas, there may be a brighter future for sickle cell victims"

By MASHERRILL FANT

Sickle Cell Anemia (SCA) is an inherited disease in which the shape of the red blood cells is adversely affected. Genes inherited from your parents are responsible for the shape and function of the red blood cells. If a person is born with a sickle gene from both parents he has SCA. Approximately one in every six hundred Blacks is born with SCA.

SCA is an incurable, painful, and oftentimes a debilitating disease that can shorten life expectancy. However, with proper medical treatment and management the severity of the disease can be controlled. Until recently, there has been little, if any hope for the SCA victims; alas there appears to be a brighter future.

Recent research from the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute in Bethesda, Md. reports that a new drug, 5-azacytidine, has proven effective in preventing SCA by activating dormant adult genes, which cause the production of normal red blood cells. This drug remains in the experimental stage and is not yet available on a routine basis.[1]

Sickle Cell Trait (SCT) is not a disease. If a person is born with a normal gene from one parent and a sickle gene from the other parent, he has SCT. One in every ten Blacks has SCT. If both parents have SCT there is a one in four chance that each pregnancy will result in an offspring with SCA.

There is also a brighter future for couples in which both partners have SCT. There is a new test available which checks the fetus in vitro for abnormal blood cells, thus providing a couple with an opportunity for genetic counselling.[2]

SOURCES

1. JET, Dec. 27, 1982, 63(16):31.
2. The New England Journal of Medicine, July 1, 1982, 307(1):32-6.

Martin Luth King, Jr. Week Essay and Poster Contest

"Make his day a Holiday"

The planning committee for Martin Luther King, Jr. week, April 4-9 is sponsoring an essay contest in addition to the poster contest. The winning essay will be read at a candlelight vigil to be held April 4th. The deadline for poster designs is March 10th and the due date for essays is March 20th. Please submit all entries to the Student Senate, 420 Student Union Building. The prize for both the winning essay and poster will be $75.00. In the spirit of Martin Luther King, Jr. who advocated justice and equality, we encourage the entire community to take part in the poster and essay contests as well as the Martin Luther King week activities. For more information, please call 545-0341.

Photo by Mary Sanderlin

Moeketsi Botibe and Selaelo Maredi in "For Better Not For Worse" on February 26th.

For Better Not For Worse

By KEITH JOHNSON

This past Saturday in Bowker Auditorium the Third World Theater Series presented the firstplay of its spring season entitled "For Better Not For Worse." The play was written and performed by famed South African playwright Selaelo Maredi.

The play, a political comedy, was a two-man performance. It not only featured Selaelo Maredi as Mampane, but it also featured South African actor Moeketsi Botibe in the role of Mampane's good friend Shai.

The play is the story of two friends, Mampane and Shai. As the play opens, Mampane is taking pictures of himself in order to prepare a passport so that he can see his daughter in Bophuthatswana, one of the homelands reserved for Africans. When Sahi comes over to Mampane's apartment, he tells him the news that the Prime Minister has been assassinated by rebels. With this news they celebrate by drinking in the park.

When they come back Mampane invites Shai to dinner at the house of a friend. While the two are away at dinner, the Security Police come to search Mampane's apartment. When the two men come back they find the paratment ransacked and the only things missing are the pictures and a letter from Mampane's daughter.

A couple of days later Mampane receives the terrible news that a package had been sent to his daughter. When she opened it the package blew up killing her and six other children. Mampane realizes that the bomb was sent by the Security police.

Mampane's wife had died long ago and with one of his daughters murdered he is filled with grief. But then he receives a letter from his other daghter who lives in Pretoria. She says that she is leaving the country to join the rebel forces. Although the news adds to his grief, he also feels pride. He comes to realize that it is the only solution to the oppression in his country.

The play was a fine two-man performance. It was very humorous which can be attested by the good amount of laughter from the audience. The play also featured sets of African music that was either sung by the performers or played in the background. This displayed the fine harmony that can be found in South African songs.

The play was a fine mixture of music, humor and the reality of South African apartheid. It received a standing ovation from the good sized audience who definitely enjoyed the evening.

ANNOUNCEMENTS • • •

Japanese Film Festival at Smith College

Tuesday, March 1 Smith College will present a Japanese Film Festival.

The Story of the Last Chrysanthemum (1939), MIZOGUCHI

I Was Born but . . . (1932), OZN

For more information contact Tomiko Narahara at the Asian Studies Department, 5-0349

The Far World Comes Near

Saturday March 5

Sponsored by the SouthEast Asian Cultural Society at Pratt Auditorium, Mount Holyoke College.

12-7 p.m. — Arts & Crafts exhibition and gourmet food catering service

3 p.m. — Fashion show, music and folk songs, traditional dances.

Admission: $2, student ID required

9 p.m. — 1 a.m. Asian party, Torry Hall, Mount Holyoke College

Admission: $2, student ID required

The Asian American Students Association (AASA) is an organization open to all 5-College students who are interested in raising the awareness of the community to Asian culture. The group plans and announces social, education and cultural events in the area. Co-chaired by Cindy Chin and Phillip Chung, the AASA is a Registered Student Organization with an office at 423C SUB. Weekly meeting are held on Tuesdays at 6:30 in the Campus Center (check Hypercurricula for the room number). All are encouraged to participate.

Join the 3rd World Caucus

There will be a 3rd World Caucus meeting on Wed., March 2nd at 6:00 p.m. in the Office of Third World Affairs. Rm. 318 SUB.

For more info: call the OTWA at 545-2517

All are invited.

Panorama newscast

Panorama is a Latin-American newscast every Monday 8 p.m. and Saturdays at 3 p.m. on WMUA 91.1 FM. Panorama is a production of Concepto Latino.

CONCEPTO LATINO — WMUA 545-2876
545-2877

Schedule:

Monday	2-6 a.m., 7-10 p.m.
Thursday	6-0 a.m.
Friday	9-12 noon
Saturday	1-4 p.m.

Justice Berger of Canadian Supreme Court at Smith

Thomas R. Berger, justice on the Supreme Court of British Columbia and an outspoken defender of native rights and civil liberties in Canada, will speak at Smith College about "Human Rights in Canada: The English, the French, and the Native Peoples" on Tuesday, March 1, at 4:30 p.m. in the Browsing Room of the Neilson Library. The free, public lecture is part of the series "From a Canadian Perspective" being sponsored by the Five College Program in Canadian Studies.

Help Wanted

The Commuter Area Government has two job openings; Office Manager and Film Coordinator. These positions are work study at 15 hours/week. Freshperson, Sophomore, and Junior undergraduates preferred. To apply, stop by 404 Student Union 9:00 - 5:00 p.m. M-F. We are an Affirmative Action Equal Opportunity Employer. Third World, women and non-traditional students are encouraged to apply. Deadline for applications has been extended to March 3rd.

Third World Theater Series

Day of Absence & Los Vendidos

two original one-act plays

Thurs., Fri., Sat., March 3, 4, 5

Hampden Theater 8 p.m.

American Music Festival Concert features Max Roach

Members of the University of Massachusetts music faculty will perform the second concert of an American Music Festival at Bezanson Recital Hall in the Fine Arts Center on Tuesday, March 8, at 8:00 p.m. The all-jazz concert will feature solo percussionist Max Roach and the University Chamber Jazz Ensemble. Ensemble members, along with Roach, are Fred Tillis, saxophone; David Sporny, trombone; Jeff Holmes, trumpet and piano; and Salvatore Macchia, bass. Admission to the event is free of charge.

The program will feature jazz works composed by Roach, Tillis, Holmes, Macchia, Duke Ellington, Clifford Brown, and Charlie Parker.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Minority Business Students and those with an interest in business
Meet the Dean of
The School of Management
Have "Dessert with the Dean"
Tuesday, March 1st
7 - 9 p.m. Rm. 1009 Campus Center

Black Arts Festival

The Black Students' Alliance of Smith College presents a Black Arts Festival.

The theme is "Variations: A Spectrum of Our Cultures,"

The events for the weekend are:

Thursday, March 3

Tribute to Black Womanhood Award, 8:00 p.m. in Neilson Browsing Room. This year's recipient is Paule Marshall, author of Brown Girl, Brownstones and other works about West Indian life in America. A reception will follow this event.

Friday, March 4

Alumnae Registration, 3-6 p.m. in the Florence M'Wangi Cultural Center

Concert featuring "Pieces of a Dream" a Philadelphia-based jazz ensemble, 8:00 p.m. in John M. Green Aud.

Admission: $4 - Smith students
$6 - non-Smith,
$8 - door.

Tickets are available in Seelye Basement (Smith) and Faces (Amherst)

Afterparty following Concert in the M'Wangi Cultural Center. Admission discount with concert ticket.

Saturday, March 5

- Workshops, 1-3 p.m. in the Florence M'Wangi Cultural Center. Smith Alumnae will present workshops on Business, Communications, Law, Minority Admissions, etc. Open to all Five-College students and professors on a sign-up basis. Contact the BSA office at x2153 or x2160 for more information, Smith College.
- Alumnae Banquet and Presentation of the Otelia Cromwell Award, 5:30 p.m. in the Alumnae House Banquet hall. The banquet will also feature a dance sketch by "Celebration," a poetry reading by Joyce Ingram, and songs by Suzanne Greenidge and Valundra Pollard. Admission: $2.50. R.S.V.P. by march 1st to Mayme Williams (Gardiner House, x2285 or 585-5751)
- Semi-formal Cabaret featuring Artie Dixon and "Sunsight", 9 p.m. - 1 a.m. in the Davis Center Ballroom. also a Fashion Show presentation. Admission: $2.50 in advance, $3.00 at the door. Available in Seelye Basement (Smith).

Afterparty in the M'Wangi Cultural Center. Discount with Cabaret ticket.

Sunday, March 6

Gospel Jubilee with Rev. Sam Gardner of the Abyssinian Baptist Church in New York City, 10:30 a.m. in Helen Hills Chapel.

If you have any further questions, contact Toni Tubman at 586-3837 or Nita Williams at 584-2700, x 304. Please help us make this celebration a success.

NUMMO STAFF

ANGELA BROWN	EDITOR
BRYNNE CLARKE	LAY-OUT EDITOR
JOHN WRIGHT	PHOTO EDITOR
MITRA SAMIMI	GRAPHICS EDITOR
DONNA DAVIS	BUSINESS MANAGER
TRACEY BRYANT	PRODUCTION MANAGER
KEITH JOHNSON	RESEARCHER

• • • • • • • • • •

CONTRIBUTORS

ED COHEN
CHRIS HARDIN
BRENDA LING
RAY SANDERLIN
ROBERT TEIXEIRA

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY

Collegian

Volume CXII, Issue 86 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003 (413) 545-3500 Tuesday, March 1, 1983

Collegian photo by Nick Moudios

Seven Picnic tables outside the Campus Center plaza score a "hat trick" as they resemble vaudeville-style straw hats in this shot taken above the plaza.

Workshop defines harassment

By MICHELLE HYDE
Collegian Correspondent

The subject of sexual harassment — its definition, emotional consequences, and the possible actions against it — was discussed last night at a sexual harassment workshop given by the Women's Issues Team, part of the Student Center for Educational Research Advocacy (S.C.E.R.A.).

Sexual harassment was defined at the workshop as anything ranging from unwanted physical contact, sexual overtones in a work atmosphere, verbal slurs, to requests or demands for sexual favors.

"A few years ago a survey of UMass women was conducted, which asked the question, 'have you ever been sexually harassed?' and 60 percent said they had experienced at least a mild form of harassment," said Jane Zbynszynski, workshop facilitator.

Zbynszynski said it is important to emphasize that the gesture or physical contact is unwanted. "That's where it should stop," she said.

She also said there was an issue of power involved in sexual harassment.

Zbynszynski said one topic she likes to discuss in the workshops is sexual harassment as a women's issue. "Sexual harassment does happen to men, but 96 percent of it happens to women."

"It makes sense when you look at who the bosses and professors are," said Tildy Turchinetz, a Women's Issues Team member. There might be a woman somewhere in the middle, but chances are, the big bosses are men," she said.

Possible solutions and actions that can be made against sexual harassment including filing a complaint with the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, if the harassment occurs in an employment situation, Zbynszynski said.

Another step is to write down the exact situation, when it occurs, she said.

"Write down when it happened, and where, and who was around, in order to get it down on paper," she said.

The Everywomen's Center and Legal Services Office offer counseling and referrals to those who have been harassed, she said.

There are two channels of the Sexual Grievance Procedure, which went into effect this semester, she said. The first option is an informal complaint filed with the ombudperson, where the offender may admit to harassment charges.

The formal option involves filing a complaint with the Affirmative Action Office and then going before a hearing panel, which consists of the two parties involved, plus an objective member.

Brain chemicals may modulate behavior

By TURA GUDMUNDSSON
Collegian Staff

A recently discovered class of brain chemicals called neuromodulators, suspected to play a major role in behavior control, is the focus of a University of Massachusetts research team.

According to the team's director, Professor Gordon A. Wyse of the zoology department, neuromodulators (NM) research is "a new and hot field" which will have a "phenomenal impact" in the areas of medicine and psychology, while also carrying direct social and political implications.

Describing NM as a "functional class of brain chemicals," Wyse explained that NM are thought to act upon and alter the behavior of another class of brain chemicals known as neurotransmitters.

It is believed that whereas neurotransmitters act locally to either excite or inhibit the conduction of information from one nerve cell to another, NM might have effects over large regions of the brain simultaneously.

As a consequence, NM may carry the ability to control overall brain functioning and thus have a direct influence on behavior and psychological states.

Until the discovery of NM, in the mid-to-late 70's, scientists tried to associate specific behaviors to the specific neurotransmitters known, Wyse said. For example, sleep may involve the neurotransmitter seratonine, while motor behavior was associated with another neurotransmitter called dopamine.

In addition to the possible interaction between NM and neurotransmitters, NM also directly affects the hormone system by regulating the release of hormones from the pituitary gland.

For his NM research Wyse and graduate student, Stan Rane use a single neurotransmitter involving muscle contractions in horseshoe crabs, while observing a specific NM that might be directly influencing this motor activity.

"This preparation is simple enough to find out how and where a neuromodulator is working, and how it may turn a motor behavior on or off," Wyse explained.

Pointing out that the same basic nerve cell structure, and some common NM and neurotransmitters have been found in both the horseshoe crab and human nervous systems, Wyse said that studying simpler systems can help us to understand how more evolved systems work.

Wyse said that because of the complexity of the vertebrate nervous systems, you can not tell exactly what is the function of these new chemicals.

Wyse acknowledged that NM will become highly medically important because new drugs will be designed based on NM involvement in specific behaviors. However in treating problems from simple headaches to schizophrenia, he cautioned that "brain science can be subject to social abuse like anything else."

"People may use the information to modulate behaviors in ways that we do not like," Wyse said citing as an example the misuse of psychology and drug therapy in the Soviet Union for supressing political descent.

"We can paint a Clockwork Orange senario here and say that we are going to take all anti-social individuals, play with their neuromodulators, and whip them into shape," Wyse said.

Standards face further criticism

By KEVIN BOWE
Collegian Staff

BOSTON — Minimum admissions standards for students wishing to attend four-year public colleges in Massachusetts underwent another round of opposition yesterday at a public hearing held by the Legislative Committee on Education.

State Education Commissioner John R. Lawson said he "wholeheartedly" endorses the intent of improved admission standards but expressed serious reservations about the specific criteria proposed for college entrants by the Board of Regents.

Lawson was critical of the use of a minimum SAT score and the requirements that students have a minimum amount of high school math, science, and foreign language courses.

"We're not training a sufficient amount of teachers for this (minimum high school curriculum) needs," Lawson said.

"Implementation will force school to spend most of their money on college-bound students and ignore non-high school-bound students," he said.

Lawson estimated that about 75 percent of Massachusetts high school students do not graduate from college.

The foreign language requirement for college admission would bar those students attending vocational schools because they do not offer foreign language courses, Lawson said.

The use of a combined SAT score is also flawed, Lawson said, because the margin of error on the score is approximately 120 points. The Regents propose the minimum combined SAT score of 800 for the University of Massachusetts.

"Despite some serious reservations, we support the improving of admission standards," Lawson said. Chancellor of Higher Education John B. Duff defended the Regents' proposal.

"We believe there will have to be increased funding for education (from the state," Duff said, in explaining how the local school districts will find the improved high school curriculum the Regents want.

"I endorse the concept of earmarking local aid for education," Duff said.

Representative William Mullins, (D-Ludlow), expressed concern that emphasis on high school class rank would hinder a student who has not matured enough to take school seriously.

Funding proposal dropped from ballot

By RICHARD NANGLE
Collegian Staff

The proposal to fund the State Student Association of Massachusetts (SSAM) through a mandatory one dollar fee on student semester bills will not appear as scheduled on the Student Government Association (SGA) election ballot next Monday and Tuesday.

SGA leaders met with officials from SSAM, the United States Student Association (USSA) and the Massachusetts Public Interest Research Group (MassPIRG) over the weekend and decided to pull the question because the method of funding may not be in the best interests of either SSAM or MassPIRG, said Sharon Davies, Speaker of the Undergraduate Student Senate at yesterday's Coordinating Committee meeting.

SSAM had hoped to fund themselves the same way MassPIRG funds its college chapters, by allowing student the option of contributing when paying their bills. But officials from all the groups said they feared that kind of funding method would once again fuel the fire of certain state legislators who have supported "Kill MassPIRG" legislation in the past, said SGA president Jim Murphy.

SGA leaders now propose to fund the group through an increase in the Student Activities Trust Fund (SATF). The referendum will probably occur after Spring break, Davies said.

"The idea is to give ourselves about a month's time to do some campaigning," she said.

"We have to get the wheels in motion. We can't wait till this time next year," Murphy said. "It's basically an opinion poll."

The Coordinating Committee voted unanimously to remove the question from the ballot.

World and national news

Court affirms deal with AT&T

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court upheld the settlement yesterday that broke up the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., and ruled separately that cities may fight local unemployment by insisting that jobs on public construction projects go to city residents.

The court affirmed the Justice Department's deal with AT&T without even waiting to hear oral arguments in the case. The justices rejected by a 6-3 vote an appeal by 13 states that said the settlement infringed on state regulatory powers and may leave phone users with inadequate service.

By a 7-2 vote, the court said Boston did not violate the Constitution in requiring that its residents hold one-half the jobs on taxpayer-financed projects within the city.

While the Boston case dealt only with a 50-50 job quota, the decision seemingly grants cities the power to exclude all nonresidents from jobs supported by local or federal tax dollars.

The court also:

—Agreed to consider whether public broadcast stations receiving federal aid can be barred from airing editorials. A federal judge in Los Angeles struck down law imposing the ban.

The Federal Communication Commission says the ban is needed to assure that broadcasters will not be pressured into becoming government propaganda organs.

—Agreed to decide, in a case that could affect thousands of self-described political refugees, what proof aliens must show to demonstrate they will be politically persecuted if deported.

Reagan angrily rejects appeal

WASHINGTON (AP) — An angry President Reagan "came out swinging" at a meeting yesterday with U.S. governors and rejected their appeal to consider scaling down his plans for increasing the defense budget.

"He took strong issue with that part of our budget resolution which suggests a decrease in the growth rate of spending for defense," Republican Gov. James Thompson of Illinois said.

One participant in the one-hour meeting who insisted on anonymity quoted the president as saying, "I have serious problems with your calls for excessive cuts in defense spending."

"He came out swinging on the matter of his defense position," said Gov. Scott Matheson of Utah, a Democrat who is chairman of the National Governors' Association.

The governors, in the capital for their annual mid-winter meeting, are debating a resolution calling on Reagan and Congress to consider reductions in the proposed defense budget as well as tax increases to cut federal budget deficits.

The resolution would set a goal of reducing the deficit to $90 billion by 1988. The Congressional Budget Office forecasts a $267 billion deficit for that year, while the White House goal is to get it down to $116.7 billion.

Over the period, the president has proposed a 10 percent average annual increase in defense spending. The governors want it held to an average annual increase of between 3 and 5 percent.

The bipartisan coalition that has been working to make the resolution the official policy of the governors' association has been threatened by some Democrats. They want language condemning the Reagan budget cuts because of the impact they have had on the poor.

AP Laserphoto

President Reagan is greeted warmly by first lady Nancy Reagan as he arrives at Point Mugu Naval Air Station yesterday. The Reagans were enroute to their Santa Barbara, California ranch, where they are scheduled to entertain Queen Elizabeth II of England today.

Mass. Gov. Michael Dukakis

Housing plan to aid the homeless

BOSTON (AP) — Gov. Michael S. Dukakis promoted his proposed $171.6 million public housing program yesterday as a way to help the homeless and address the worst housing shortage in the state's history.

"Never before in the history of the commonwealth have we faced a housing shortage of such critical proportions," Dukakis said in a statement, read by an aide, to a legislative committee. "Over the last few years, housing production has lagged behind our need by more than 20,000 units each year...

"That the situation has reached a crisis point is reflected in the many thousands of people and families in Massachusetts who are literally without a place to sleep," he said. "... There is no question that homelessness is a symptom of an underlying and increasingly serious problem in Massachusetts — a severe shortage of decent and affordable housing."

In his formal message to the Legislature, Dukakis said the plan calls for building 2,550 units of new public housing, construction that will create about 5,000 jobs.

Amy S. Anthony, state secretary of communities and development, told the Legislature's Housing and Urban Development Committee that nationally housing problems "are the most acute that they have been since the depression."

The legislation filed by Dukakis, who sees it as a first step to meet the homeless' needs, would provide the first increase in funding for public housing programs since 1980, she added.

The proposal, she said, would provide:

—$66.6 million for constructing 1,500 new units of housing for the elderly.

—$40 million for 700 units of housing for low income families.

—$10 million to build 350 units of housing for handicapped people.

—$55 million to improve existing older public housing.

But, she added, "Clearly the state's public housing programs cannot meet the entire need that we face."

Dukakis has created a task force on private housing to come up with programs to stimulate housing production, she said.

Testifying for the bill, Elder Affairs Secretary Richard Rowland noted the size of the state's elderly population — 12.7 percent are 65 years or older — and said nursing homes have become the housing of last resort for the elderly.

Digest

By the Associated Press

Dukakis asked to study Springfield sewage plan

WASHINGTON — Connecticut Gov. William A. O'Neill has asked Massachusetts' governor Michael Dukakis to take a careful look at Springfield's plan to dump sewage into the Connecticut River as the city improves its sewer system.

The Massachusetts city plans to repair a sewage pipe and upgrade the York Street pumping station in March and November. In the process eight to 10 million gallons of raw sewage would bypass the Springfield Regional Wastewater Treatment Plant daily and be dumped into the river about 4.5 miles north of the Connecticut border.

House passes proposal to clean waste sites

BOSTON — A bill creating a $25 million state "superfund" for hazardous waste clean-up passed the House yesterday and went to the state Senate, where quick action also is expected.

A similar bill died before in the state Senate late last year. But Commissioner Anthony Cortese of the Department of Environmental Quality Engineering said Senate leaders have assured him they will move quickly.

"If we don't get the bill by mid-spring, it will jeopardize federal clean-up schedules" for hazardous waste sites in Massachusetts, Cortese said.

Routine traffic violation turns into murder case; Seven arraigned after state trooper was killed

WORCESTER — Four men and three women were arraigned in Central District Court yesterday after State Trooper George L. Hanna was gunned down in Auburn, apparently after stopping a car for a routine traffic violation.

Hanna, 36, of Holliston was killed during a scuffle in a parking lot at J&S Liquors, 871 Southbridge St., Auburn, about 8:15 p.m. Saturday, police said.

Hanna, a trooper since 1974, was shot once in the leg with a large-caliber weapon and six times in the body — including three times in the back — with a small-caliber weapon, said Medical Examiner Jerome L. Fielding.

Hanna died about 9:50 p.m. during surgery at St. Vincent Hospital. State police said Hanna was conscious when he arrived at the hospital and asked for a priest to hear his confession before he died.

Appearing in Central District Court charged with murder were: Jose William Hernandez, also knowh as Jose Colon, 32; Miguel A. Rosado, 32; and Abimael Colon-Cruz, also known as Emilio Otero, 32.

Today's Staff

Night Editor — Eileen Galligan
Copy Editor — Robin Mandel
Layout Technician — Jim Finkle
Photo Technician — Dave Deuber
Composition — Marge Hochman, Sheryl Silver, Adrianne Dufour, Dave Rath, Donna Estabrooks, Nancy Gallo, Jackie Femino, Tim Riviere, Marianne Walsh, Ken Kalinowski

Subscription Rates

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday excluding vacations, exam periods, or holidays. Subscriptions are available for $18 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Massachusetts. Postmaster: Send address changes to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003.

Judge issues injunction; segregated voting to stop

DEDHAM — A Norfolk Superior Court judge yesterday ordered Braintree to stop its voting practice of making men and women stand in separate lines at the polls for election.

Judge Edith Fine issued the preliminary injunction, requested by the attorney general's office, according to Frank Falacci, spokesman for Attorney General Francis X. Bellotti.

Salvador gunfire ceases as Pope plans his visit

MEXICO CITY — El Salvador's leftist guerrillas yesterday declared a cease-fire for Pope John Paul II's visit to their war-torn homeland next Sunday, March 6.

Guillermo Ungo, the spokesman for the Democratic Revolutionary Front, announced the cease-fire at a news conference in Mexico City. He called on the government "to make the same decision" and said the guerrillas of the Farabundo Marti Liberation Front would defend themselves if attacked by government forces.

There was no immediate response from the U.S.-supported conservative government in San Salvador. Earlier, Defense Minister Jose Guillermo Garcia said it was up to the guerrillas to offer a truce because they "imposed" the 40-month-old civil war on the government.

Fight occurs on PVTA bus

By RAY BEAUCHEMIN
Collegian Staff

A bloody fight on a PVTA bus and a subsequent police chase resulted in the arrest of a 19-year-old man early Saturday morning. The man, a Canton resident not listed as a University of Massachusetts student, was charged with assault and battery with a dangerous weapon (a shod foot) at 1:44 a.m. Saturday, Sgt. Frank Mazzei of the UMass police said.

Police said a group of about four or five students boarded the bus near Fearing Street, early Saturday morning. The assailant and a companion reportedly verbally harassed two women in the group. A man accompanying the women attempted to defend them and was hit by the assailant. A second man, also with the group, attempted to help but was assaulted by the arrested man, who had braced himself on an overhead bar and kicked the victim in the face. The driver of the bus notified the PVTA dispatcher who in turn notified UMass police.

When the bus stopped at the Campus Center circle, the assailant and his companion exited the bus and fled. Police arrived at the scene shortly thereafter and pursued the assailant on foot to John F. Kennedy dormitory in Southwest where he was arrested. The second man was not arrested.

The victim was taken to the UMass infirmary where he was treated for facial cuts then released.

In other police business, at 6:13 a.m. Sunday, a 20-year-old student, who had caused a disturbance in the UMass infirmary, was arrested and charged with possession of a Class B substance, cocaine, with intent to sell or distribute. The John Adams resident was in the infirmary with a cut hand but refused treatment, creating a disturbance. When police arrived, the Franklin native was found to have in his possession approximately 3 grams of cocaine packaged with price tags in a cigarette case, police said.

A 19-year-old student, driving along University Drive on its sidewalk near Lot 22, was arrested Sunday morning and charged with being a minor transporting alcohol, operating a motor vehicle on a sidewalk and possession of a Class D substance, marijuana.

Collegian photo by John Doucette

The Blue Wall gears up for its "M*A*S*H Bash" with this takeoff sign from the hit series which aired its last episode last night.

Senate proposal voted off ballot

By RICHARD NANGLE
Collegian Staff

A referendum that proposes to drastically reorganize the Undergraduate Student Senate will not appear on next week's Student Government Association (SGA) presidential ballot because it conflicts with the SGA constitution.

In order for the proposed amendment which would cut the senate by one-third and alter its election process to become law, it must be approved by four of the seven area governments and two-thirds of the current senate, according to Article VI of the SGA bylaws. Because a reorganization cannot be mandated by just a referendum as the current wording of the proposal advocates, the Senate Coordinating Committee voted to keep the question off next week's ballot.

The referendum calls for area representation in the senate rather than the current system which allows for each dormitory on campus to have at least one senator. Government Affairs Committee member Bruce Levy said the referendum as worded calls for changes in the bylaws but does not state what those changes would be.

Senate Speaker Sharon Davies said if the wording has to be substantially changed, the signatures collected by Students for Government by Referenda may become invalid and new signatures will have to be collected.

Dave McCarthy, a spokesman for the student group which collected over 6,000 signatures for the referendum said he disagreed with the Coordinating Committee's action.

"The Coordinating Committee, demonstrating the arrogance of a politburo, have shown once again that they have no conception of the needs and the wants of the undergraduate population. ...More than 25 percent of the undergraduates wanted to see that question on the ballot. Problems with the wording could have been worked out if all parties had been brought together, but no one was notified and again the senate zigged while the students zagged," McCarthy said.

The referendum will probably take place after Spring break, said SGA president Jim Murphy.

Women now offered option of midwives

By MARY BALDWIN
Collegian Staff

Pregnant women who are uncomfortable with physicians and hospitals have another option for complete maternity care- the nurse-midwife.

In a lecture last night at Smith College, Marcia Stahl and Kathy Martin, both registered nurses and certified nurse midwives at Hampden County Medical Group in Springfield spoke on "Midwifery: Reclaiming Women's Tradition of Autonomy and Intimacy."

"Midwifery is based on the needs of normal women and family centered care. The child bearing experience is a family experience," said Stahl.

"Midwifery is the education of women. We try and educate them to the factors involved," she said.

The role of the mid-wife is the care of women by a certified nurse-midwife from the start of pregnancy to after the birth, including infant care, the speakers said.

A midwife stays with a woman during labor in order to provide comfort measures and emotional support as well as to supervise and evaluate the progress of labor, they said.

Instead of hospital care, a woman who chooses the care of a midwife can have natural childbirth in a birthing center outside of a hospital which has a home-like atmosphere. Another alternative Stahl said, is for the woman to give birth at home with her family.

"When we went to give home births we found the grandmother, the children and whoever wanted to be there. In hospitals there is no room for this," Stahl said.

Of traditional maternal care, Stahl said, "While working for Planned Parenthood, often when the physician left the room I would be bombarded with questions."

Stahl said not every woman can have natural child birth because of complications.

If complications are expected, the mid-wife immediately refers the case to an obstetrician who then takes over the case, Martin said.

Until recently there have not been any malpractice suits against midwifery, Stahl said.

"This isn't to say that midwives do not make mistakes. It is just that the nurse-midwife and patient have a relationship and they understand that people make mistakes," Martin said.

"We work very hard and are very committed and are not paid very much but bringing new life into the world is very gratifying," Martin said.

Martin said despite the stormy history of midwifery, midwives in the United States are more autonomous than British midwives who are still under the supervision of physicians.

Stahl said she did not like being a maid to doctors and patients so she became a midwife.

Collegian photo by Dave Deuber

A German language class taught by Mrs. Eva Schiffer got a treat yesterday when desks and chairs were brought outside Herter Hall to enjoy the spring temperature.

Fast loans aid needy students

By PAULA HOYT
Collegian Staff

Most students think that loans originating from the Whitmore Administration Building involve thousands of dollars, but students faced with unexpected emergencies can borrow an immediate $25-$50 from the University of Massachusetts Dean of Students Office.

Students in need of emergency loans can apply for an interview at the Dean of Students office. After signing an agreement to meet a two week payment deadline the student can pay back the loan interest free, said Gladys Rodriquez, assistant to the Dean of Students.

The service is specified for unexpected problems. Expenses such as book money or student fees are not included, Rodriguez said.

"School bills and food expenses are everyday, run-of-the-mill things which students are expected to provide for," she said.

She said emergency loans are given when something unplanned is involved, such as for a sick child or for auto repairs. One example is the problem of delayed paychecks, Rodriguez said.

"The employment paperwork gets messed up and the paycheck is late. It doesn't happen too often, but to me, that is an emergency," Rodriguez said.

Granting a loan and deciding the amount is dependent on each individual case. The average amount borrowed is about $25, she said.

"We are flexible and will go higher or lower depending on the situation. After listening to the student's problem we decide if the loan is necessary," she said.

Rodriguez said that about 80 emergency loans have been granted so far this semester. There are six separate loan funds in use recently that were granted to the university from different organizations.

There are some problems with the emergency loan system, however. A number of funds which began as healthy amounts, have been depleted because people have failed to pay them back, she said.

Rodriquez said that students who fail to meet the payment deadlines are subject to administrative withdrawal. The problem comes when people leave the university or move away and don't pay the money back, she said.

Of six loan funds, only two of the larger ones are being used this year. Some of the depleted grants haven't been used in a few years and the possibility of building them back up is "down the tubes", Rodriguez said.

The latest, and largest, endowment received is the $20,000 Alan Fox student loan fund. Alan Fox, who was the Assistant State Librarian in Massachusetts, died in 1979. The fund was established by the UMass Board of Trustees in December.

Other loans include the Field Fund, which consists of proceeds from a 30th anniversary roast for the Dean of Students held last year. Another new fund is made up of profits from the freshman dance and the first week of activities last year, Rodriguez said.

ATTENTION SENIORS

Now is the time!
Get your face in the yearbook.

The photographer will be here
Feb 28 to March 17
Stop by CC Rm 178 or call 545-2874 to make your appointment.

STRESSED?

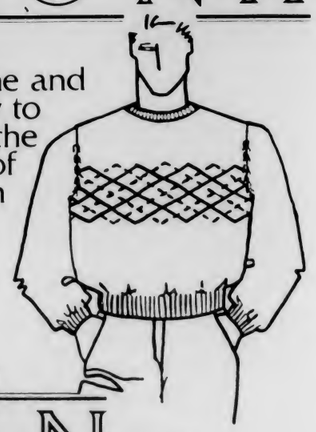
Learn more about how stress affects you and some techniques to manage stress at the UHS Stress Management Workshop on Tues. Mar. 1 at 7 in Rm 304. Call 549-2671 ext. 181 for more info.

MUSIC GALLERY
PEAVEY, IBANEZ, TAMA, JBL, ROLAND, ACOUSTIC, BOSS, LEGEND, EV-TAPCO, HONDA, DEAN, HAMER, FOSTEX.
RT. 9 HADLEY
ON THE BUS ROUTE
586-6228

CHONA

Come to a champagne and jazz party to celebrate the opening of Chona Men

Thursday
March 3rd.
7-9 p.m.



CONTEMPORARY FASHION FOR MEN

MEN

2nd FLOOR
THORNES MARKET
150 MAIN STREET NORTHAMPTON

AN IMPORTANT ADDITION TO YOUR UNIFORM

The insignia of an Air Force nurse can mean a lot to you and your future. It shows that you're part of the Air Force Nurse Corps. A member of one of the most efficient health care teams in the world. It signifies you are an Air Force officer with the responsibility and prestige of a leadership position. It indicates you're on the track toward good pay and almost unlimited educational opportunities. If you're a nursing professional or about to complete your nursing education, why not consider Air Force nursing as part of YOUR future? From the day you're commissioned, you'll receive the pay and advantages of an Air Force officer. Consider your uniform and our future. Then make it yours.

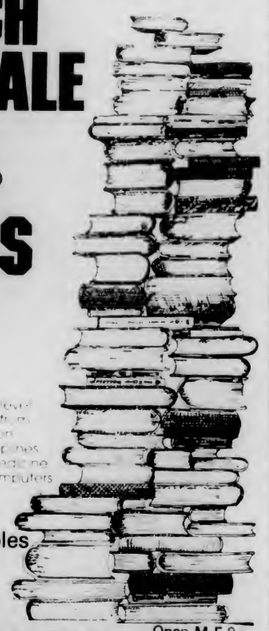
AIR FORCE NURSING. A GREAT WAY OF LIFE

For More Details Call Sandy Price
(203) 229-9641
Freshmen & Sophmores Call Capt. Pinkell
(413) 545-2137

AIR FORCE

SCI-TECH BOOK SALE

65-90% SAVINGS OFF ORIGINAL PUBLISHED PRICES



Come pick up a stack of high level scientific and technical books from leading publishers. Your selection ranges through numerous disciplines including physics, chemistry, medicine, mathematics, engineering, computers and more. Your savings range from a tremendous 65% to an unbelievable 90%.

On Special Sale Tables located in the Trade Book Dept.

UNIVERSITY STORE

Open: M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4
Located in the Campus Center

Delegates to participate in nuclear freeze lobby

Local delegates from the Amherst area will participate in a national citizen's lobby for the nuclear freeze in Washington, D.C. on Tuesday, March 8. Original freeze sponsors Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Rep. Silvio O. Conte, D-Pittsfield, along with Sen. Paul E. Tsongas, D-Mass, are scheduled to meet with lobbyists.

Although the entire Massachusetts delegation voted for the freeze last year when it failed in the House 204-202, lobby organizers said local efforts will now be aimed at getting the Congressmen to lobby stronger among their colleagues.

The lobby is planned statewide by the Massachusetts Coalition for a Nuclear Weapons Freeze, and sponsored locally by several groups.

The American Friends Service Committee (AFSC), 3 Langworthy Rd., Northampton is chartering a bus to Washington for anyone interested in lobbying. The bus, which will cost $30 per person, is scheduled to leave Northampton at 11 p.m. on Monday, March 7, and arrive in Washington the following morning. A lobby training workshop and appointments with Congressmen are scheduled for March 8, with the return bus leaving Washington around 11 p.m.

The AFSC is also collecting proxy forms in support of the freeze which voters unable to go to Washington may sign and have brought to the Capitol for them by the lobbyists.

For information either on attending the lobby or signing a proxy, contact Victoria Safford at 586-9084 or Frances Crowe at 584-8975.

Lecture on theology to be addressed tonight

"From Artificial Intelligence to Natural Theology" is the topic of the second Fellows Lecture of the Institute for Advanced Study in the Humanities of the University of Massachusetts. The lecture will be held tonight at 8 p.m. in SBA 120. Professor Michael A. Arbib, IASH Fellow and professor of Information Science at UMass, will be the speaker.

News-lines . . .

New financial aid law will be topic at meeting

The new law affecting the financial aid eligibility of college men who have not registered for the draft will be the topic of a meeting tonight in Campus Center, rm. 904 at 7 p.m.

Art Jackson of the Financial Aid Office and Abbe Bjorklund of UMass Students Against Militarism will speak on arguments against the law and what can be done at UMass to oppose it. For more information, contact Jon Braine of UMass Students Against Militarism at 253-3713.

SGA candidacy debate to be aired on WMUA

Candidates for Student Government Association president will square off twice tonight in debates on WMUA radio and in the Campus Center.

At 6 p.m., all four candidacies will answer questions on WMUA's "Hotline" show. Listeners may call in questions for the candidates during the one-hour show, following introductions and questions by the WMUA news staff.

A debate sponsored by the SGA will be held from 7:15 to 10 p.m. in room 163 of the Campus Center. Following introductions of the candidates, the candidates will be asked questions by four student senate representatives and by one Collegian staff member.

Students will then have the opportunity to ask questions of the candidates.

Both debates will be moderated by Mindy Ordway, chair of the student senate's Governmental Affairs Committee.

Couples danced to raise funds for MS marathon

By NANCY GONTER
Collegian Staff

Forty-four couples danced for 29 hours to raise a total of $14,000 in the fourth annual Multiple Sclerosis Dance Marathon held last weekend in the Student Union Ballroom.

The marathon, which was co-sponsored by Pi Kappa Alpha (PIKE) and WMUA, lasted from 6 p.m. Friday to 11 p.m. Saturday. Couples were given a 15 to 30 minute break every two hours.

Three couples failed to last through the 29 hours of dancing. One couple didn't finish the marathon because one partner twisted her knee. The other two couples didn't finish because they had other commitments on Saturday afternoon, according to Michael Grady, a member of PIKE and chairman of the marathon.

The couples who completed the marathon and who collect the most money from pledges will be declared the winners on March 9. Couples have until that date to collect their pledges.

A beer and wine party held in the Ballroom Friday night attracted 800 people, Grady reported. Other events were held during the Marathon, including a costume party on Saturday night.

Amherst police involved in several recent accidents

By DAVID B. MINER
Collegian Staff

Amherst Police reported the arrests of two University of Massachusetts students over the past weekend.

Police said that at 12:40 a.m. on Sunday, the Speed and Alcohol Patrol (SAP) stopped a 19-year-old UMass student for speeding on College Street. Police charged the student with speeding and having an altered driver's license.

The other arrest, Amherst Police said was on Saturday. Police said that at 11 p.m. another UMass student was stopped on North Pleasant Street as he was running. Amherst Police said that he was drinking a beer and carrying a six pack. He was arrested and charged with being a minor in possession of alcohol and having an altered driver's license.

In other news, Amherst Police reported several minor accidents including a school bus and automobile collision on Monday morning and an accident involving an Amherst Police cruiser on Thursday afternoon.

Amherst Police say that at 7:40 a.m. on Monday morning, an automobile driven by an Amherst resident collided with an Amherst school bus at the intersections of Gray and Taylor Streets. The school bus was not carrying passengers at the time.

The driver of the automobile was transported to Cooley-Dickenson Hospital complaining of back and neck pain, and was cited by Amherst Police for failure to stop at a stop sign.

In what has become one of a series of mishaps involving Amherst Police cruisers in the past two weeks, two Amherst detectives apparently escaped serious injury when the cruiser they were riding in was "rear ended" on Route 9 in Hadley.

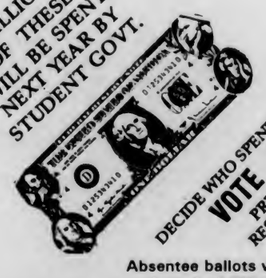
Amherst Police said that the two detectives were returning from Northampton on Thursday when they were struck from behind by another car.

Amherst Police say that the cruiser was attempting to make a right turn when the other vehicle's breaks failed. The Amherst cruiser sustained over $500 in damage. The driver of the car was cited by Hadley Police for having faulty equipment (brakes).

This was the fifth accident involving an Amherst cruiser in the past two weeks.

Past accidents, according to Amherst police include an incident where a cruiser sustained extensive damage when ice fell off the Amherst Town Hall causing roof damage; a mishap when another cruiser was struck while parked in Northampton; an accident where a cruiser was damaged when it was struck by a car which was backing up; and still another incident when a cruiser was slightly damaged in a fender-bender with a state vehicle while responding to an alarm.

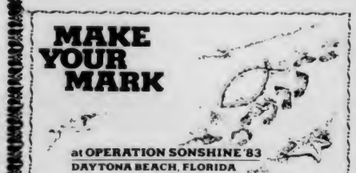
1.7 MILLION OF THESE WILL BE SPENT NEXT YEAR BY STUDENT GOVT.



DECIDE WHO SPENDS YOUR MONEY
VOTE SGA
PRESIDENTIAL/BOG/
RESIDENTIAL ELECTIONS
MARCH 7, 8

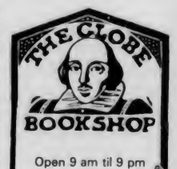
Absentee ballots will be available from 1 - 3 PM in 420 S.U.B.

MAKE YOUR MARK

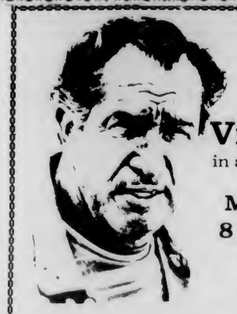


at OPERATION SONSHINE '83
DAYTONA BEACH, FLORIDA
Step into an adventure this spring break. For more information write or call
Chris West, 613 JF Kennedy 546-7671
Cynthia Muller, B-7 Emerson 546-7238
Sponsored by Campus Crusade for Christ International

THE GLOBE BOOKSHOP



Open 9 am til 9 pm
Monday - Saturday
Open 10 - 3
on Sunday
Fine New & Used Books Bought & Sold
38 Pleasant St. Northampton
584-0374



DVP presents
Vincent Price
in a one man performance
Monday, March 7
8 pm at the F.A.C.
$2. 5 college students
$4. Senior Citizens
$5. General Public
Tickets on sale now at F.A.C. Box Office
sponsored by University Arts Council and Distinguished Visitors Program

UPC PRODUCTIONS

RAMONES
Rescheduled for March 31
Student Union Ballroom
February 23 tickets will be honored on March 31
Students 8.00 Public 10.00
Tickets available: For the Record, The Fine Arts Center & Tix
Ticket holders please note: ticket holders may return tickets at Tix Unlimited March 2 8 a.m. - 11 a.m. & 12:15 p.m. - 1:15 p.m.; March 3 11 a.m. - 2 p.m.

TONITE

HAVE SOME FUN WITH 3 FOR $1

35° Drafts

$2.00 Pitchers

POOR RICHARD$ ASHFIELD

★★MOVIE★★

TAPS

Starring

George C. Scott

Wed. March 2nd

Engineering East Aud.

7, 9, 11 p.m.

Summer Employment

Camp Young Judaea

Amherst, New Hampshire

(Resident, Co-ed, 1 hour from Boston) is in need of Department Directors and Activity Specialists for this summer in: Athletics, Gymnastics, Swim Instruction (WSI), Waterskiing, Sailing, Arts & Crafts, Campcraft, Israeli Dance, Drama, Israeli Folk Song, Riflery, Tennis, Photography, Office Personnel and Nurses (R.N.). Excellent Salaries and fringe benefits. Please contact Dr. Charles B. Rotman, Director, 81 Kingsbury Street, Wellesley, MA 02181, 617-237-9410.

ATTENTION

A SALE FOR YOU

ALL E ALBUMS

regularly priced

at 8.98

now only 5.99

MASTER RECORDINGS ARE ONLY 8.98

Union Records Unlimited

The Student Run Record Store

201 Student Union
Univ. of Mass.
Amherst, MA 01003
413-545-2360

YOUR SUPPORT WILL KEEP SALES ABUNDANT!

Summer at Brandeis

An Educational Adventure

May 31 - July 1 • July 5 - Aug 5

- Undergraduate and Graduate Courses
- Humanities, Social Sciences, Natural Sciences, Computer Sciences and Fine Arts
- Theater Arts Program
- Premedical Sciences Program
- Near Eastern and Judaic Studies
- Archaeological Field Research Internship

Small classes taught by Brandeis Faculty

Suburban campus close to the excitement of Boston/Cambridge

Information, catalog and application

BRANDEIS UNIVERSITY SUMMER SCHOOL
Waltham, MA 02254 617-647-2796

MATHEMATICALLY TALENTED?

AMBITIOUS?

You need not be an engineer or computer scientist to realize your full salary potential and the challenges you desire. Consider a business career as an ACTUARY. Actuaries are mathematically trained executives in the Insurance industry. They evaluate the risks in insuring, design financially sound insurance and pension programs, and are involved in virtually every phase of their company's operations. An F.S.A. (Fellow of the Society of Actuaries - i.e. "Actuary") must complete a rigorous series of 10 exams administered by the Society. The first five deal with the applied mathematics pertinent to Actuarial work and the last five cover economics, taxation and legislation affecting insurance, pricing, etc.. A number of undergraduates pass 1-3 exams. Starting salaries range from 21-25K while new F.S.A.'s are currently earning 40K+. Actuaries pogress quickly to management positions and frequently to the executive ranks. According to labor statisics they are the third highest median income group. There are fewer than 10,000 F.S.A.'s nationwide (versus 500,000 lawyers) and the demand is growing faster than the supply. Entry level jobs demand at least one exam passed and a G.P.A. of at last 3.25. Interested? Talk with Mike Gauger, Actuarial Program Director, Room 1115J, GTWR, Telephone # 545-0982. Students are assisted in finding summer and January-intersession internships (Juniors-Seniors), and eventually in finding permanent positions. Tuition and fees scholarships are available after the second exam is passed, through a grant funded by Aetna, CIGNA, John Hancock, and Massachusetts Mutual.

UMASS SKI CLUB GOES DOWN TO FT. LAUDERDALE

SPRING BREAK 83

8 Days 7 Nights Luxurious Hotel on the Strip

Hotel only	W/Motor Coach	W/Jet
$149 tax included	$275 tax included	$369 tax included

For more information 545-3437

Don't be abused by Price Games
The Ski Club has only luxury hotels and no hidden costs

EDITORIAL/OPINION

The Hatch — just another white elephant?

Chris Ferretti

What happens when the Campus Center invests $355,000 renovating the Hatch and no one comes? That was the problem that the Campus Center had to deal with last semster and it must deal with this semester. Their solution was to close the alternatives down and force the students to come to the Hatch. As a result, the Coffee Shop now closes after 3 p.m. daily and on weekends. It is an exercise in irrationality, but the Campus Center Complex does have to justify those renovations some way.

The facility was originally named the "Tomahawk and Hatchet" twenty five years ago, hence the origin of the present name: the Hatch. As a freshman it was always a toss-up each Friday afternoon as to whether to take advantage of the drink specials at the "Hatch" or to wait in line at the Bluewall for pitchers. It's true, the room was gaudy, even tacky, but it possessed a character unto itself. Remember all those wonderful drawings of tomahawks and peacepipes that decorated the pillars? To my eyes, the only renovation needed was a coat of paint. $355,000 can buy a lot of paint. Now those things are just memories, it is 1983 and we have a new "Hatch"; complete with white washed pillars, a wine-bar, a deli, an Italian Restaurant, and a food service area that is chained up each night. Even the name of the place seems incongruent now.

The problem remains for Food Services — if they did not close alternatives like the Coffee Shop no one would go to the "Hatch". With the exception of Friday afternoons, during the week it has been my routine to study at the Coffee Shop. It has been my home away from the dorm for three and a half years. Granted, the coffee it serves is lousy, but that has always been a University tradition. The food it serves is also not great, but edible. Now I am forced to leave these cherished surroundings and go to the "Hatch" every day at 3 p.m. Somehow, I cannot accustom myself to this new "Hatch."

It is indeed larger and can accomodate more people than the Coffee Shop, and although there are all those new tables to spread my work all over, somehow, I am not comfortable there. In keeping with tradition, the coffee is lousy, and the food is rubbery, just like the Coffee Shop, but there is more. One has to contend with the continual blare of the jukebox that always seems to play that one defective record when you stop socializing and begin studying, turning a three minute song into a fifteen minute ordeal. Then, there are the periodic announcements of the numbered orders that interrupt the music, "Numbers 2, 14, and 6." On first hearing those announcements last semester I figured that it was some English Major trying to count. Now I know better, even though I can't count and I am an English Major. The "Hatch" will also occasionally get busy nights when the number of orders at La Cuchina exceeds sixty; if you are lucky, you will hear the nervous snicker that comes when number "69" is announced. In all, its enough to make you wish those renovations never occurred.

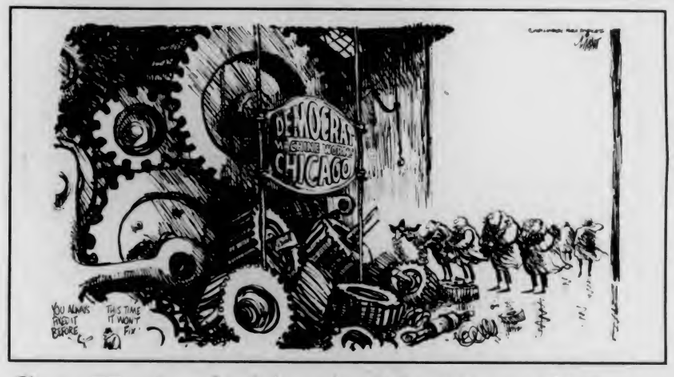
From a business standpoint I find the Campus Center Complex's policy of shifting funds to be very unwise. Under this policy, profits from one trust fund are shifted to another to cover losses. With this in mind, why would a business that was making money be closed, and a business which was losing it remain open? It doesn't take an Economics or a Management Major to see a level of irrationality in this type of reasoning. The Coffee Shop was making money, and the "Hatch" was not. So what happens? The Coffee Shop is closed and the "Hatch" remains open. The whole idea borders upon the ludicrous. Why bother in the first place? The created rationale is more choice and a better selection.

Let's face it, the Campus Center made a mistake. It created a "white elephant," reared in the grand tradition of the Ford Edsel. What they have done is to look a gift horse (coffee shop) in the mouth and pull all it's teeth out.

The Campus Center does have a policy to maintain a service like the "Hatch" as a community service, despite the losses generated. Who is paying for this service? We are. There is a yearly $87 fee we pay aside from bond revenues, that helps curb the effect of such losses. So, whether or not you use the Food Service facilities like the Hatch, you are helping to pay for them. Does this not mean then, that we are in fact paying to have the Coffee Shop closed? In effect, the answer is yes.

Aside from all these problems of profits, losses and fees, however, my study place still closes at 3 p.m. daily and on weekends. The Newman Center and Goodell Library are too crowded and I am forced to go, not to the "Hatch", but to another great "white ele--, er...institution," our Library Tower. Can one ever win? One cannot, I guess, when dealing with a gift horse at the University.

Chris Ferretti is a UMass student



Gary Hart — looking for Mr. Young Vote

Glen & (Ampersand) Shearer

Gary Hart has his work cut out for him. Already an underdog, Colorado's senior senator has keyed his chances for 1984's Democratic presidential nomination on an elusive electoral bloc; young voters. On paper, Hart may have an edge with this group. But circumstances make him no more likely than his rivals to turn the young and restless to his advantage.

In his announcement Feb. 17 on Colorado's capitol steps, Hart left little doubt that the "vast, unorganized majority of Americans" in his sights included many of the same voters on whom he focused as campaign manager for George McGovern in 1972. "I believe Americans...sense the passage we must make between two worlds — the world of our parents and the one we will leave to our children" he said.

Yet, in his post-McGovern reincarnation, Hart sees in a younger America a similarly up-to-date outlook; He knows that it's skeptical about politicians but yearning for someone with an honest, constructive vision of the future.

Hart, 44, has tried to fill that bill. His renunciation of contributions from political action committees (a not-so-penitent vow matched by front-runner Walter F. Mondale) befits a reputation of self-conscious independence cultivated during his first Senate term. It also caters to the public's abhorrence of special-interest groups.

Meanwhile, Hart has almost blatantly peddled himself as an ideal candidate for thinking Americans, among whose ranks everyone likes to be considered. He talks of compassion, but within limits; of a strong defense, but at the right price; of a revived industrial base, but without protectionism. He has few rivals in his advocacy of government for high technology and education — two flashpoints for a younger generation of working Americans.

Hart's faith in change and active government has inspired a significant following of campaign workers from the professional ranks, many of whom might have heeded John Kennedy's call for the best and brightest had they been old enough.

Were his battleground the Oxford Union, Hart would probably win the war of ideas in 1984. But the U.S. electoral system repeatedly rebukes the intellectual. As much as Hart may have mastered the system's technicalities, voters may ignore his futurism for the here and now.

Presently frustrating for Democratic contenders are reports of an economic upturn. In the end, everyone votes his or her pocketbook. If the rate of GNP growth and housing starts are seen to improve, the candidates must attempt to distinguish themselves on a variety of other issues where the distinctions are inevitably fuzzy. Indeed, the scramble has already begun.

Among voters in the 18- to 34-year-old bracket, NBC exit polls last Nov. 2 indicated that the threat of nuclear war, environmental protection and social issues — abortion, women's rights — were key areas of concern.

The problem is that these issues leave little room for imaginative politics. Hart has pledged to sit down with the Soviets upon entering office, but so have Mondale and Sen. Alan Cranston of California. Hart has committed himself to a clean environment, affordable housing and equitable salaries, but so have the others.

At the same time, younger Americans are more sophisticated than most politicians give them credit for. They're drawn to realists, but not self-touting answer men; they want action but sense the complicated nature of the nation's ills. In turn, "their" issues provide flimsy stepping stones upon which to reach the White House.

If Hart fails to overcome the odds this time, Hart will have at least set a standard for presidential candidates. Over time, younger Americans will appreciate someone who's keeping their futures in mind — whether Hart's the one or not.

Glen & (Ampersand) Shearer are syndicated columnists

Letters

Hunger article was misleading

To the Editor:

I appreciated the front page coverage of Francis Moore Lappe's talk given Feb. 16, 1983, on hunger issues. One complaint however — the article ended with a quote by Ms. Lappe which discussed Americans' fear to lash out against the destructive "democratic" system we live under. The quote — "We cling to what we have...because we fear the only other alternative — authoritarian communism" — worries me because it might give those who did not attend the speech the feeling that Lappe said the latter part of it seriously, when in fact the statement received laughs from the audience as it was said facetiously.

Frances Moore Lappe does not see communism as the only alternative to our troubled nation's politics, by any means! She would like true democracy to reign in our land, a politic for people and by people, not by imperialists for an insensitive elite.

M.K. Small
Hunger Task Force

Evolution is scientific fact

To the Editor:

I am writing in response to Brian Kelly's letter "Presuming human evolution". Mr. Kelly mentions that many creationists are probably ignorant of the theory of evolution. Obviously he is the president of this club. Mr. Kelly insinuates that the theory of evolution, as well as science in general, is nothing more than our own "philosophical presuppositions". I would like to inform him that the theory of evolution was ascertained by many years of examining evidence and facts by some of our greatest thinkers, Charles Darwin being the father.

Mr. Kelly claims he has some relevant data which I'm willing to bet is unsubstantiated data. The Bible merely presents a bunch of stories which may or may not be true. The same can be said for Aesops' Fables I would also like to point out that scientists do not simply ignore the facts that don't fit into the model as Mr. Kelly suggests. Scientists conduct experiments and examine the results to try and answer these unanswered questions. Please accept the fact that human beings will never know the answers to all the questions and the simple mention of the word GOD will not satisfy the curiosity of all those who seek answers. It seems to me that creationists are afraid to accept the fact that we are just another animal. Isn't it an honor to be a member of the human species which is the highest form of animal that has evolved on this planet and perhaps the universe?

Jay Salhaney
Amherst

WE NEED COLUMNISTS!

AMHERST AVALANCHE OF SAVINGS

DOWNTOWN AMHERST

Help us celebrate our 6th Birthday!

And you get the gifts, of course!

FREE beachball

with any cake purchase
(great for Spring Break on the beach)

FREE gifts with any purchase over $1.
while supplies last

BASKIN-ROBBINS ICE CREAM STORE

28 Main St, Amherst — 253-9774
daily 11-10 pm
across from Amherst Common

Resume Paper
at
A.J. HASTINGS
Newsdealer and Stationer
45 S. Pleasant St., Amherst

"Shop downtown Amherst"

PREPARE FOR
MCAT · LSAT · GMAT
SAT · ACT · DAT · GRE · CPA
Our 45th year

- April 9, 1983 — MCAT classes start 3/10/83
- April 16, 1983 — DAT classes start 3/5/83
- April 23, 1983 — GRE classes start 3/7/83
- June 15, 1983 — LSAT classes start 4/27/83

OTHER COURSES AVAILABLE
GRE-PSYCH & BIO · MAT · PCAT · OCAT · VAT · TOEFL
MSKP · NMB · VQE · ECFMG · FLEX · NDB · RN BOS
SSAT · PSAT · SAT ACHIEVEMENTS
SPEED READING

Call Days, Eves & Weekends

Stanley H. KAPLAN EDUCATIONAL CENTER
TEST PREPARATION SPECIALISTS SINCE 1938

In Amherst: 253-5108, 71A North Pleasant St
Springfield: 737-3788, 15 State St
For information About Other Centers Outside N.Y. State CALL TOLL FREE 800-223-1782

---

adventura travel
549-1256

Airline tickets
Eurailpasses
Amtrak
233 N. Pleasant St.
Amherst Carriage Shops

TUESDAY
TWO FOR ONE
all liquor drinks
9 till 11
with music by
RACK-A-DISC

9 til 1 — NO COVER
THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST

Ridiculous Prices
End of Winter Sale
up to 70% Off
check our new Spring fashions for vacations

16 Main Street
across from the Common
Store Hrs. 9-5:30 Mon-Sat
Tel. 253-9800

HAIR IDEAS...

JD PERMANENT WAVE.
Long lasting cut. Build-in conditioning formula beautiful shine with bounce.
Now only $28.00 with this ad. (One expires 3-18-83)

JOHN DELLARIA SALONS
26 MAIN STREET • AMHERST • 253-9293

FABULOUS FIRST ANNIVERSARY SALE
SAT., MARCH 5 - SAT., MARCH 12

VALLEY BICYCLES

Everything Discounted!!
NEW FUJI'S IN STOCK
30% Off Some Models

20% OFF
Cannondale Bags, All Clothing, Shoes, Rhode Gear Bags, Racks, ALL TIRES & TUBES (Buy now for the season)

15%OFF All other accesories in stock

89 MAIN ST., AMHERST 256 - 0880
Behind the Cheese Shop and Valley Farms Dairy Store

Plumbley's

YOU ARE CORDIALLY INVITED TO HELP US CELEBRATE OUR

4TH ANNIVERSARY

To thank all of our customers we are offering a three day special. . .a parts you won't want to miss. .

Tuesday through Thursday
March 1st - March 3rd, 5 p.m. till...

OUR REGULAR $9.95 PRIME RIB DINNER $5.95

JOIN THE CELEBRATION AS IT MOVES TO WEBSTER'S LOUNGE FOR 3 SPECIAL DAYS!

TONITE, March 1st
Special Stolichnaya Vodka Night - all Stolichnaya drinks 99¢ 9-11 p.m.

Wednesday, March 2
Budweiser Night 50¢ all night

Thursday, March 3rd
Irish Night with Hungry Hill - All Jameson's Irish Whiskey Drinks 99¢ 9-11 p.m. Mass. w/ Hungry Hill 9 p.m. - 1 a.m.

Plumbley's
Reservations 253-0856

---

adidas

Stan Smith Tennis Shoes

$5.00 OFF
from March 1 - 5
AF 1028 only

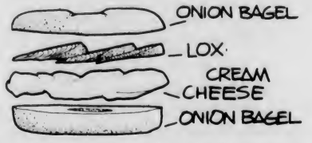
Mathews SHOE STORE
The Village Common, Amherst

---

think spring!

the SHOE BIN 187 n. pleasant st., amherst

Can we build one for you?



Design your favorite bagel sandwich and bring us the blueprint - we'll build it to exact specs. We're the bagel engineers at

THE AMHERST DELICATESSEN
Amherst Carriage Shops 549-6314

Campus Card.

No matter what your schedule or workload is, you can now do your banking at the new X-Press 24 located in the Newman Center cafeteria. There's only one card that lets you do all your regular banking at more than 350 X-Press 24s around Massachusetts — the BayBanks X-Press 24™ Card.

To get your card, just visit our Amherst Office at 75 East Pleasant Street today.

Try Something Better

SALE
20 - 50% off most winter clothing
20 - 30% off many styles Chinese shoes
50% off all calendars
Brighten Your Room
Posters India Print Bedspreads
Mugs-Jewelry-Rugs
Open Daily 10 am - 5:30
THE MERCANTILE
AMHERST CARRIAGE SHOPS

Arts

Down the beaten path

PATHFINDERS
By Gail Sheehy
Bantam Books, 625 pages, $4.50

By CHRISTINE MARINI
Collegian Staff

Gail Sheehy's Pathfinders did not change my life. However, to give credit where credit's due, I must admit that it tried. Pathfinders is a follow-up volume to Sheehy's "classic" Passages, and runs along similar pop-psychological lines.

Pathfinders is concerned with the process of successful living as experienced by "high-well-being" people. Sheehy distributed questionaires and interviewed people from all over the country trying to compile a list of characteristics and modes of expression common to those who have their lives in order. Apparently, the resulting book was meant to be a lesson for the rest of humanity. But Sheehy's research raises a lot more questions than answers.

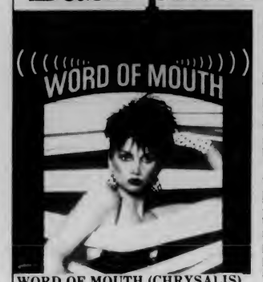
Sheehy opens her book with Robert Frost's "The Road Not Taken" — a nice poem, but one quoted to death by philosophical high school seniors in innumerable yearbooks. Pathfinders carries more than a touch of a whimsical, slightly desperate adolescent mood that makes it uncomfortable. One can picture Sheehy's readers all too well — unhappy, bored, tired and driven to grasping at straws like this book.

There is a disturbing dichotomy in Pathfinders that adds to the puzzlement. The brightly-covered mass-market paperback format seems at odds with the footnoted, indexed interior. Just whom is this book really meant for? In her formulas for well-being Sheehy states that her participants came from all walks of life, but almost all of the case studies in Pathfinders deal with the upper-middle class. Problems of what to do with that extra Doctorate degree or MBA seem a little petty these days.

For all of the talk of fulfillment and meaning in a happy, balanced life, success is still usually couched by these "pathfinders" in material terms. One 54-year-old mother of 12 with a personal income approaching $750,000 says, "We've done terrific things together. We've gone to Europe, sent kids to Harvard, bought antiques..." This woman is not alone in her materialism. Most of Sheehy's examples of "high well-being" people are highly educated, materially ambitious, and quite well-off, despite the author's claim that there are happy and unhappy people at all levels of society.

Advice is easy to give but hard to swallow if a natural tendency toward the idea is not pre-existent in the individual. Perhaps Pathfinders' major flaw lies in this unescapable truth. At best, Pathfinders might reaffirm natural traits toward success in those that already have them. But there is a very real danger that books like Pathfinders can plant seeds of self-doubt and inadequacy in a searching mind ripe for any direction from any source. What the unfulfilled need least of all is another book telling them that they are unfulfilled.

Basil passes the word



WORD OF MOUTH (CHRYSALIS)
Toni Basil

By PETER BENTTINEN
Collegian Staff

To begin with, this album has a bundle of excellent studio players and letter perfect production by Greg Mathieson and Trevor Veitch, who also double as musicians on the record. It is motion on record. Music on video. The complete Toni Basil experience for us to savor.

"Mickey" opens the album with an upbeat "Oh Mickey you're so fine, you're so fine, you blow my mind. Hey, Mickey!" A happy, easily accessible song, it has that Farisfa organ sound, made popular by South-western groups, to keep the beat moving along. This song was written by a famous duo of English songwriters, Chinn and Chapman, who pen tunes for the like of Suzi Quarto.

"Rock On," a song written by David Essex follows, a tune that was a major hit in the early seventies. On this album it is as fresh as ever, with a fine bass and drum flowing throughout. I wonder where he is now. I'm sure he would be impressed by this remake.

Next on side one is a new approach to songwriting, at least to me. It's called "Shoppin' From A to Z" and projects a bit of pop foolishness,going through the alphabet naming out food items. Nothing for X though. Toni certainly has a fine voice to make these songs stand out, ably assisted by these top class musicians.

The first song on the flip side starts out with a real rock and roll kick. The guitar playing on this song, done by Bob Mothersbaugh and Bob Castle helps the tune move quickly along. "Nobody" is the name of this real up-tempo song. The player's names have been changed to protect the innocent on this song, but the synthesizers command attention as does Goodsall's guitar playing (whoops, I wasn't supposed to reveal his name) does near the beginning.

"Space Girls" on side two has some interesting tones, including the over-dubbing of Toni's voice in places as it moves around the room, jarring you into consciousness.

"Thief On The Loose" again has Goodsall out front at the beginning and Paul Delph lending a little meat to the song with his synthesizer. This tune has a little less depth to it than "Noboby," yet it is still a fine composition. The recorded part of Toni's work ends with "Time After Time." It starts out with a lot of guitar chording helped by some fine back-up musicianship. This song has already been recorded by Nick Gilder on his Rock America album, and it should of been a hit then.

As mentioned earlier, Word of Mouth is on video cassette also. Basil conceived, directed, choreographed and edited everything on the video. She's quite the video wizard, so it seems. Anyway, that the complete Toni Basil experience. You might be interested in taking it in.

Attention all Arts Staffers:

The meeting concerning the upcoming Other Voice has been changed to Wed. at 7:30 p.m. in the newsroom. Be there.

TIMEX
Sinclair 1000
Personal Home Computer

Our low price 76.95
*Less mfgs. mail in rebate 15.00 your Final Cost 61.95
org. price 99.95

Learnable and programmable! Single key entry of command plus full range of math & scientific functions. 2K RAM expanable to 16K RAM. Use your TV as display monitor & your cassette recorder to retrieve and enter programs. #01-1000.

TIMEX
Sinclair 16K
RAM Module
$44.95
reg. $49.95

Helpful memory bank option lets you do further advanced programs plus ingenious graphic displays.

* Rebate coupons available in the store

Open M-F 9-5

Located in the Campus Center
UNIVERSITY STORE

Arts

X-ceptional LA punk

X
Wednesday, February, 23
The Paradise, Boston

By JIM FEIN
Collegian Correspondent

One of America's best punk rock bands, X, visited the region (Boston, Worcester, and Hartford) last week. The Los Angeles based band played their driving, unrelenting brand of music to a capacity crowd last Wednesday evening at the Paradise in Boston. X does not, however, fit into the stereotyped image of a punk rock band.

The band is Exene Cervenka (vocals), John Doe (bass and vocals), Billy Zoom (guitar), and D.J. Bonebrake (drums). Their music is a cross between punk and rockabilly. It's punk in the sense of attitude — rebellious, honest and desperate — but not fashion. The band is indiffernt to the rigorous standards of punk uniform, dressed casually in non-descript jeans and t-shirts. Bass and guitar are played at a quick pace to generate a grueling and grinding type of music, which is complemented by strong drumming. The guitar adds the final touch with quick, short, rockabilly riffs. One would have to consider X's lyrics to be the band's strong point, though.

John and Exene, a singing/songwriting man and wife team, are to be credited for that. During the course of the band's hour and twenty minute performance, which included two encores (much to the crowd's delight), the subject matter of the songs was diverse. They sang of paranoia ("The Hungry Wolf"), infidelity ("White Girl"), the victimization of women ("Johnny Hit and Run Paulene"), and other unsettling topics which highlight some of the more unfortunate aspects of life. Their straining voices, when alone, yearn of desperation. However, in harmony, there is a special chemistry of sorts between them that increases their effectiveness.

X sings of many of the more rotten aspects of our existences like other punk bands, but their choice of songs for encores clearly puts them above the rest. While many punk bands have a habit of uncovering the problems but offering no solutions, X considers the bad in life and tells us what to do about it. Their first encore was a new song called "True Love," which they sang eagerly, suggesting perhaps, that love might be a means of dealing with the problems of the world. This was followed by more optimism, an inspired version of The Doors' "Soul Kitchen," with emphasis on the phrase "learn to forget."

Billy Zoom, Exene Cervenka, John Doe, and D.J. Bonebrake of X

The sultry sound of Tower of Power

TOWER OF POWER
Sunday, February 28
Rusty Nail, Sunderland

By GUS MARTINS
Collegian Staff

Sunday night at the Rusty Nail the famed Tower of Power, preceded by the Mitch Chakour Band, dualed the price of admission to help make one forget how much money was left at the door.

Chakour, lead vocals and guitar, has struck out on his own after a five year stint with the Joe Cocker band. Much of that good rhythm and blues sound associated with Cocker seemed to have rubbed off on Chakour, whose bluesy vocalizing and rockin' energy reflect the diverse influences this band leader has had. Chakour said that there is a definite religious element in his sound.

"My father was on an African Zionist kick at a Methodist church when I was growing up in Connecticut," he said. "I grew up listening to Ray Charles, other soul players and Beethoven, but Stevie Wonder is all over my work."

Most of the compositions they played were Chakour originals and the last song, Donny Hathaway's "The Ghetto," capped a solid performance by the seven-piece band which featured the bass and saxophone players formerly of the Shaboo All-Stars, a former guitarist from a Joe Cocker band, and a percussionist who has worked with Chakour over the last five years.

The Tower of Power (yes, that same old band west coast funksters who throughout the 1970's were probably as popular as the Oakland Raiders football franchise from where they came) proved that tradition is the stick from the glue that bonds certain bodies and allows them to endure.

Even though the band has been absent in these parts for the last four years, they have lost none of the verve and audacity that helped establish them.

"The record companies kept telling us that we couldn't come to the East coast without a new product," said saxophonist and band spokesman Emibio Castillo. "I always knew we could play out here and now that we are back the offers being made to us are fantastic."

The band, having not recorded in over three years because of legal disputes involving two record companies, could have something in their new album entitled, What a Way to Make a Buck, that could reassert them back in the den of today's music.

The group possesses that uncanny ability to fashion the musical elements pervasive in pop and dance music today, with that familiar charcteristic they brought with them since they formed in the late 1960's. However evolving is their sound, it never totally leaves the parameters from which it was developed.

"Our sound reflects our environment, and we take advantage of technology and growth within the industry, but we always sound like the Tower of Power," Castillo said.

"Formerly we were known as the Motowns. When we signed our first contract, we changed our name to the Tower of Power and by 1970 we released "East Bay Grease," Castillo said. "Then we switched to Warner Brothers and did Bumo City with Steve Cropper."

Castillo then went on to produce the next seven albums for the band, while they underwent a few personnel changes that sound remained intact. Back to Oakland, Urban Renewal, Tower of Power, Drop It In The Slot, and Ain't Nothing Stoppin Us Now were some of the more familiar album covers.

Lenny Williams, the original lead singer with the band left in the mid-70's to launch a solo career. Michael Jeffries, the present lead vocalist, is a soulful falsetto who has been with the band since 1977. His sultry yet urbane sound gives the Tower of Power that sophisticated lead vocal they have always had.

The horn section, their most overwhelming component, was as awesome as ever. Marc Russo, the new face on line, belted out some strong solos while the alumni of Greg Adams trumpet, Mic Gillette trumpet, Steve Kupka baritone sax, and Emilio Castillo on tenor sax lived up to its legendary reputation.

The band reached back into its expansive reservoir of sound and did some of the oldies but goodies in medley form. Lead vocalist Jeffries handled the earlier numbers with ease, while he belted and/or caressed the new tunes they played.

It is a good feeling to see the Tower of Power back and in good form. Some things come and go, whatever value it had depreciates in the volatile arena of what's happening versus what's not, anymore.

When a certain body or collective is able to weather the bad as it basked in the good, and continue to grow, a niche has to be carved to signify that contribution.

The Tower of Power, then, has left their mark ingrained in the woodwork of mainstream American music.

Boy George, Culture Club's lead singer

Cultured rock and roll

CULTURE CLUB
Friday, February 25
Agora Ballroom, W. Hartford

By LISA MOSLEY
Collegian Staff

Boy George is a living, breathing contradiction. He emphasizes his gender in songs like "I'm the Boy," but with his perfectly made-up face, long braided hair and feminine gestures, he could easily pass for a woman by anyone's standards. He's not black, yet in many songs, he disdainfully snarls at "white boys." Had I never seen him perform, I'd have shrugged him off as nothing more than a fadster out to make a fast buck in the fickle world of pop music.

But I did see Boy George perform with his band Culture Club, and I was thoroughly impressed. The Agora Ballroom was packed to near capacity Friday night with an interesting mix of hard and fast Culture Club fans and curious gawkers who decided that it was worth eight fifty to see "some guy who looks like a girl." Despite the diversity, the crowd seemed satisfied with the show, and well they should have been.

The band played the sexual ambiguity theme to the hilt, and had a marvelous time doing so. Their musical expertise, however, kept their attitude from becoming haughty and obnoxious. The drummer, guitarist, and bassist that form the musical core of Culture Club were complimented by two horn players, a keyboardist, and a wonderful round eunuch of a backup singer who never stopped dancing. The playing was smooth, tight, and for the most part, flawless. Even more important, though, the band was obviously having fun. It's been a long time since I've seen a band enjoy itself so much. The band members' great rapport with each other was topped only by Boy George's rapport with the audience.

Boy George, who wore round sunglasses and no shoes, sang in a voice that could be described only as sweet, and he never stopped his fluid, graceful dancing. His stage manner perfectly matched Culture Club's dancable signature sound: energetic, but controlled.

Throughout the show, George playfully licked the tip of his mierophone and held it phallicly at his crotch. At one point, he gleefully asked, "What am I?" to which the audience responded with shouts that ranged from "A boy!" to "We don't know, show us! Don't tease us!" Toward the end of the encore, George appeased the adoring crowd by lifting his shades to reveal colorfully made up eyes and thin penciled on eyebrows.

The show was flawed only by its length — just under an hour. A short set is to be expected, though, from a relatively new band with only one album.

CAMPUS TRAVEL CENTER

SPRING BREAK ESCAPE

Springfield to Ft. Lauderdale

$125.00 round trip

on Amtrack

Campus Center 2nd Floor, UMass, Amherst 01003
545-0500

CAMP COUNSELORS WANTED

Timber Lake Camp, one of New York State's top co-ed summer camps, is seeking high-quality general counselors. Specialists also needed in basketball, softball, soccer, tennis, roller hockey, waterfront (W.S.I.) for lake, indoor and outdoor heated pools, audio/visual, arts and crafts, computers, AM radio, ham radio, television production.

Applications for maintenance, grounds & dining room staff also being accepted.

Contact T.L.C.'s UMASS representative:

Rich Tyroler
1112 Kennedy 546-7762
for application or interview

Ashes

A Play by David Rudkin
Rand Premiere-Rand Theater
University of Massachusetts Fine Arts Center
March 4 - 6 12 1983 8:00 pm
Reservations 545-3511

You can still subscribe to all three Rand Theatre productions Ashes, The Comedy of Errors, and Company

Hypercurricula...

SURREALIST AND EXPRESSIONIST THEATRE — "The Marriage of Sartre and Jean LucGoddard" Premiere area showing of this influential 1981 film. Donuts and Kool-Aid at four forty-five. 5 p.m., 231 Herter Hall.

WOMEN'S CAUCUS MEETING — The caucus will meet to discuss upcoming senate issues publicity and International Women's Event. All women senators are encouraged to attend. 5 p.m., Rm. 803 CC.

COMMITTEE FOR EQUAL RIGHTS AND REPRODUCTIVE FREEDOM — We will be holding our weekly meeting, and discussing future activities that CEERF will be involved in. Everyone is welcome - come with a friend. 6:30 p.m., 165 CC.

KIBBUTZ: PAST, PRESENT, FUTURE — Moshe Giladi, Professor from Haifa, Israel, will speak on the origins, ideals, and society of the Kibbutz. Professor Giladi is the dean of the School of Education for the Kibbutz movement at Haifa University. 7 p.m., Herter 114.

COPING WITH STRESS WORKSHOP — Learn more about how stress affects you and some techniques to manage it. Better use of time and relaxation skills are included. 7 p.m., 304 University Health Services.

UMASS FILM PRODUCTION CREW MEETING — Organizational meeting, anyone interested in acting or film production is invited. Films will be shown and current productions will be discussed. All ideas welcome. 7 p.m., 12th floor, Washington.

PRE-MED CLUB MEETING — New members welcome. 7 p.m., 801 Campus Center.

JOURNALISM CLUB MEETING — We want to get things started. Come to the meeting tonight and help us out. 7 p.m., Bartlett 108.

CAMPUS-WIDE MEETING ON DRAFT REGISTRATION AND FINANCIAL AID — General meeting to discuss the Solomon Ammendment which will deny federal financial aid to men who cannot prove that they have registered for the draft. Speaker, Art Jackson, Financial Aid Director. 7 p.m., 904 Campus Center.

UJA CAMPAIGN BEGINS TODAY — Today is the first day of the UJA campaign. Featuring a lecture given by Rabbi Y. Deren.

UMASS BICYCLE CLUB MEETING — General Meeting. Details of Bike Raffle. We'll be passing out tip sheets, equipment lists and itineraries for the Spring Break Tours. New members welcome. 7:30 p.m., Campus Center 803.

GAMMA SIGMA SIGMA OPEN MEETING — Interested in serving the campus and community? Would you like to meet new people and share fun times? A National Service Sorority · Join us. tel. 545-2068. 7:30 p.m., Campus Center 174.

MASS PIB WOMEN'S BIBLE STUDY — All women are invited to come and study with us in an informal setting the life and teachings of Jesus Christ as described in the Bible. 8 p.m., Campus Center Room 901.

AL-ANON — Having a problem with someone else's drinking? Come to a meeting. 8 p.m., Campus Center.

RUN FOR RITTER — Mandatory meeting of all Directors. Anyone interested in information or pledging support, welcome. 9 p.m., Newman Center Classroom.

AFRO AMERICAN STUDIES MAJORS AND ALL INTERESTED STUDENTS

ARE INVITED TO ATTEND AN ALUMNI/AE CAREER NIGHT

When: Wednesday, March 2, 1983 8:00 PM

Where: Campus Center 163

Graduates of the Department of Afro American Studies will discuss and answer questions about their careers and your career possibilities.

Participating Alumnae:
Paul Barrows, Director, CCEBMS, UMass
Merianne F.Thelwell, Attorney
Gary Lewis, Marketing
Imani Kazani, Urban Planning
Rudolph Jones, University Admissions/ Public Relations

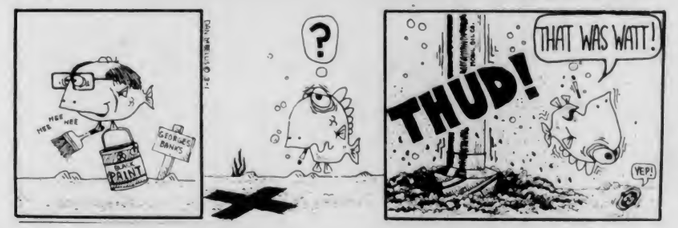
Sponsored by:
The Alumni Association
The University Placement Service
W.E.B. DuBois Department of Afro American Studies

Bloom County By Berke Breathed

The UMass Zone By Mark Rollins

Katfood By ARK

Scrod By Dan DeBellis

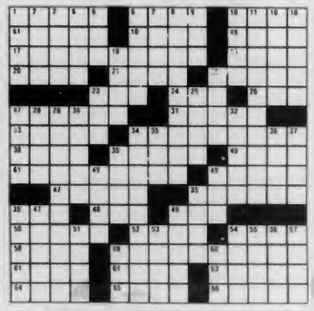


After the Fall By R. Miller

CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1 Abreast, at sea
6 Small amount, to Pablo
10 Namesakes of a Gabor
14 Cheer from a crowd
15 Early sinner
16 "Arrivederci, ——"
17 "Madam," for example
19 Search, as the horizon
20 Winter runner
21 To be, in Brest
22 Had in mind
23 Word with one or more
24 "—— was saying"
26 Ranch sound
27 Sheltered
31 Equatorial African
33 On one's toes
34 Head on
38 Italian banknote
39 Hoax
40 Recompenses
41 Dratted
43 —— Haute
44 S' ——: "high living"
45 One who adjusts the shade
46 Semicircle
48 Airline abbr
49 Disallow
50 Wake up
52 Pull in
54 Persian ruler
58 —— monster
59 Lexicon
61 Norway's patron saint
62 Jogger's problem
63 Compact
64 Bentley item
65 Cars of yore
66 Scandinavian

DOWN
1 Snakes of the Nile
2 Ancient Semitic idol
3 French pronoun
4 Greedy
5 Calendar abbr
6 Pictorial unit
7 Redolence
8 Happened
9 One's flat, in Soho
10 Gaelic
11 Contents of 59 Across
12 Church Society of cen. Iowa
13 Cruz or Claus
18 Ending with in, pen or tri
22 Mark on a coin
23 Creativity
25 Desert feature
27 Prefix meaning lime
28 Hodgepodge
29 Jargon
30 Do away with, in a way
32 Recorded
34 Chinese culinary concoction
35 Tum ——
36 Minstrel's companion
37 Flanders river
39 Basis for glazes
42 Algonquian
43 Prime time
45 Eastern princess
46 Dialect
47 Turbulent
49 Snacks
51 Partner of sound
53 Imitate
54 Winter wonder land want
55 Hearty's partner
56 Barren
57 Jekyll, at times
59 Women's assn
60 WWII spy org



ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

3/1/83

WEATHER

Today and tonight, mostly cloudy west and cloudy east. Occasional rain on Cape Cod and a chance of rain elsewhere, except a chance of showers in the western hills by afternoon. Highs in the mid and upper 40s. Lows in the 30s. Becoming partly cloudy west. Remaining cloudy tomorrow. Highs 40 to 45.

D.C. MENU

BASICS LUNCH
Garden Sandwich, Fish in Batter/Tartar Sauce

LUNCH
Turkey Club Sandwich, Fish in Batter/Tartar Sauce

BASICS DINNER
Tofu Shen, Chili Cheese Puff

DINNER
Baked Ham/Fruit Sauce, Chili Cheese Puff, Baked Ziti

Help Wanted

The Collegian has two job openings for this semester. Both require a little experience, but we will train.

Associate Managing Editor

Edit Collegian news copy, AP wire one night per week. Newspaper writing or editing experience required.

Layout Technician

Design pages of the Collegian one night per week. Arts or design experience preferred.

Interested UMass students should apply before 3 p.m. Friday, March 4, to the Collegian, 113 Campus Center.

The Collegian is an equal opportunity employer.

Important Night Graphics Meeting
Thursday, March 3
6:45 p.m.

WHERE HILLS TURN TO MOUNTAINS.

Why conquer hills when you can challenge a mountain. Just over the border is Mount Snow with 2 gondolas, 12 chairlifts, 52 trails and 1700 feet of vertical.

More than 6 feet of snow since January and continuous snowmaking have the skiing the way you want it. Base depths top off at 6 feet. 50 trails are open on all 3 mountain faces. Challenge the steepest in the East or wind your way 2 ½ miles from the 3600 foot summit. We've got the snow, let yourself go!

Mount Snow VERMONT

THE SHORTEST DRIVE TO BIG MOUNTAIN SKIING
LOCATED IN EASY TO REACH SOUTHERN VERMONT ON VT 100
LODGING (802) 464-8501 • SKI REPORT (802) 464-2151

Collegian photo by Dave Druber

Coach Tom McLaughlin and the Minutemen won't have the comfort of the Cage when they travel to Temple Wednesday night for an Atlantic 10 showdown.

Wright wins NE hurdles title

By LAURIE FISHER
Collegian Staff

LEWISTON, Me. — The weekend at the New England track championships at Bates College was filled with mixed performances by a University of Massachusetts men's track team that had more than its share of injuries.

Senior John Wright won the high hurdle event, Sunday, with a time of 7.53 seconds. Saturday, in the trials, Wright broke the New England record with a 7.41 effort.

Minuteman John Keelan placed fifth in the 1000 yard run with a 2:12.5. Paul Fisher, from team champion Boston University, had the fastest time at 2:11.6. Keelans time qualified him for the IC4A's (International Collegiate Amateur American Athletic Association) meet.

"It was a very close race with less than one second separating the top five people," coach Ken O'Brien said.

Rick Dorion placed sixth in the two mile race with a time of 9:10.7. Dorion, who three weeks ago ran a time of 8:46, is on crutches today as a result of strained tendons and ligaments in his right leg.

Dorion has already qualified for the IC4A's, but because of his injuries, he may not run. Dorion will take the situation day by day.

Brian Osborne, 600 yard runner, never got to compete due to a sprained ankle he suffered practicing the mile relay at Curry Hicks on Thursday. Osborne, who placed third in the 600 yard dash last year, was hoping to qualify for the IC4A's in Maine.

Greg Mader and Todd Johnson finished in fourth and sixth places respectively in the Pentatholon on Friday. Mader and Johnson both gave their best performances of the season, and Mader broke the school record.

Steve Hyder, suffering from strained tendons in his hand, threw the shot put 53'2" to finish seventh and qualify himself for the IC4A's.

The Minutemen finished ninth with a score of 18 points, while BU took the meet with 132 points.

Sponsored by Baker House

THE GRADUATE
Tuesday March 1st
Where:
Student Union Ballroom
When: 5 pm, 7 pm, 9 pm, 11 pm
Cost - Only $1.00 for the 5:00 showing
$1.50 for all others

Vincent Price Film Festival
Sunday march 6
2:00 pm - Theatre of Blood
4:00 pm - Pit and the Pendulum
6:00 pm - The Masque of Red Death
8:00 pm - The Raven
75¢ for all you can see
C.C. Auditorium

Camp Day
Wednesday
March 2nd 9-5
Campus Center Auditorium
featuring: 45 Camps from the Northeast
Massachusetts New York Maine
Cape Cod New Hampshire
New Jersey Vermont Pennsylvania will be interviewing for Summer Employment
Information and sign-ups are available at the Student Employment Office
239-A Whitmore Walk-ins Welcome
Summer Employment

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Monday - Friday • Deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10 % • discount • Phone number FREE

AUDIO

Panasonic AM-FM 8-track stereo, phono & speakers 50$ 8-track tapes 2$ ea 6-8186

AUTO FOR SALE

67 VW Conv inspected needs work $400 or BO 323-5918 leave message

For sale 1970 Ford Torino - 45,000 original miles needs work - $500 or BO call 545-3500 before 5:00 549-4125 after 5:00 ask for Dan

73 Pontiac Grand AM 4 door cruise control climate control bucket seats excellent condition $800 or BO 82,000 miles 549-2785 evenings

1967 Saab 96 (Monte Carlo Edition) $500. Call Sam 774-5952 1-5 PM or leave message

1976 Subaru DL 5-speed AM/FM 30-35 mpg, new tires, $1395 or BO 549-0569

BOLTWOOD PROJECT

Interested in the Boltwood Project? Recruitment meeting Wed. Feb. 23 at 7 PM in 804 CC

CAPE COD SUMMER RENTALS

West Yarmouth Seagull Beach six rooms four bedrooms two baths sleep eight includes utilities 5-29-83 thru 9-6-83 $4650. 253-7436
Duplex newly redone two bedrooms sleeps four includes utilities $2550. 253-7936

COUNSELING - LOW STUDENT FEE

Licensed, experienced, caring humanist No connection U Mass. First session free. Allan Black, 253-5036

ENTERTAINMENT

Rackadisc Entertainment Agency inc. Bands and disc jockeys guaranteed student functions 256-0739

Professional DJs for less $99 special ends March 15. Book now before price increase 549-4405

M & M Music Unlimited Professional DJ's for all occasions call Mike 546-5259

FOR RENT

Couple wanted: share Townehouse Apt. with another June 1 fall option Kathy 549-1430

Room in Brittany Manor Apt. 160/month heat & hot water included. (1)-568-1215

FOR SALE

Tickets for Eric Clapton's only NE show best offer 546-8682 keep trying

Soft black leather and goose-down vest. men's 42, women's 12. Almost new $85. 549-2857, Abby

Hagstrom Bass $280 Kustom 75w amp $230 Roland synthesizer $450 549-0453

Microacoustics multiaxis FRM-3 bookshelf speakers. Excellent condition $125 pair call 549-6032

New Skis Dynastar Omeglass II Slalom Cut still in pkg 200 cm $150 call Pit 549-5896

Sweaterladies are back with spring stuff! 40% off retail 3/3 CC 11 - 4

Kinx Concert! 2 tickets March 31st Worcester Centrum good seats 546-4419

FOUND

10k gold signet ring. Tell me the initials and it's yours. Call Terri at 549-0748 after 5:00 pm.

HELP WANTED

Overseas Jobs - Summer/year round. Europe, S. Amer., Australia, Asia. All fields. $500-$1200 monthly. Sight-seeing. Free info. Write IJC Box 52-MA-1 Corona Del Mar, CA 92625

CRUISE SHIP JOBS! $14-$28,000 Caribbean, Hawaii, World. Call for Guide, Directory, Newsletter. 916-722-1111 ext Massachusettes

COUNSELORS: Camp Wayne, northeastern Pennsylvania. Co-ed childrens camp 6/23-8/23/83. On campus interviews March 2nd. Friendly, warm atmosphere, 12 Allevard, Lido Beach, NY 11561. Include school phone number. Campus Rep: Wendy Edenfield 545-0939

Cruise Ship Jobs: $14 - $28,000 Carribean, Hawaii, World. Call for Guide, Directory, Newsletter. 1-916-722-1111 ext Massachusettes

Counselors: Camp Vega for girls will be present for Camp Day, Wed, March 2, to interview qualified candidates for counselors positions, swimming, tennis, gymnastics, landsports, waterskiing, sailing, hiking, bicycling, camp craft, arts & crafts, piano accompanist, theater, horseback riding, secretary.

Applications now being accepted for part time nights, at Kay Jewelers, Hampshire Mall

INSTRUCTION

Know your car. Basic Auto Mechanics Workshop. Classroom theory & shop. Limited enrollment 253-2098

LOST

Keys on blue-clip keyring with words Le Chateau 546-8161

Short Khaki Jacket w hat and mittens in Blue Wall Fri nite 2/1/83 Please hat and mittens have sentimental value call 253-9971 Sheila

Glasses in a red case please call Helene 665-2848 Reward.

I lost a signet ring with my initials on it (RR) in the area of Whitmore or Boyden. If found, please call 549-5487 thanks

Big blue scarf - 1st floor bathroom GRTW Feb. 16th $ reward $ call Thea 546-5504

MOTORCYCLES

77 Kawasaki KZ 400 less than 6000 mi runs & looks new 2 helmets must be seen! $950 546-5280

PERSONALS

Guitarist wanting to join band. In Southwest area preferably. All kinds of music. Call John 6-8800

Red, You brighten up the days Love Me!

!Balloons! Dear Rand Happy Belated 22nd B-day. - A balloon admirer -

The "A" Train arrives tomorrow. have your bags packed!

Write-in Jim Finkle for SGA President.

Frank Tenore Congratulations! From the one who knew you could do it.

Go Down with someone you know & trust
luxury hotels, no hidden costs & no BS
Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. Spring Break 83

UMass Ski Club Goes Down 545-3437

Davey Belt Lives! It loves you and so do we. Laugh Laugh

Mike Happy 20th Birthday I love you always Love Sue

"Movie"TAPS!! wed. March 2, Eng. East Aud., 7, 9, 11 p.m.

Issingrhu Karate Club organizational meeting March 2 Wednesday CC 911 7:00 new members welcome PE classes especially

Katherine with a K! It's your birthday sonofabitch! Hope it's great. Thanks for all the fun! Love ya, Lena

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Dissertations, Theses, Cases, Papers, guaranteed acceptance, low rates, Nancy 5-0392, 584-7924

RIDE NEEDED

Ride needed to Conn. on Fri the 4th So. Windsor-Vernon area or to UConn call 6-9648 after 5 pm or before 10:30 am ask for Adrianne

ROOMMATE WANTED

We need an easygoing female to join our sunny Amherst home please call us at 256-8225

Roommate wanted in one bedroom Puffton apartment immediately summer option call Johanna 549-4827

RUDOLPH & STONE

E.T. endorses Timmi W. Rudolph and Jay Stone for Central Area Co-Presidents.

SERVICES

PAPER DUE? CAN'T WRITE? Tutor -english composition and grammar reasonable rates 6-9289

SPRINGBREAK

Daytona Beach $269 March 19-26 Round trip jet and hotel directly on the beach! Montreal $59 plus tax and service. March 19-21; 26-28 round trip deluxe motor coach 3 days/2 nights in the Quality Inn downtown includes welcome party. Also! Half-price Delta Airlines coupons! 253-7625

THE EXORCIST

Wednesday, March 2nd. S.U.B. 4:30, 6:45, 9:00, 11:15. $1.50 a show. $1.00 at 4:30

TRAVEL

Florida direct by van. 3/19-27. $148. for round trip - wine & cheese - accom. info call now - S.S. Van Lines @ 617-724-8810

Ski the world's best powder. Utah! Trip includes: round trip airfare 7 - nights lodging at Temple Square Hotel 5-day all Utah lift ticket free rental car with unlimited mileage all taxes and services. All for $479.00 contact UMass Ski Club 545-3437

UMass Ski Club goes north
Spring Break 83 March 20-25
Stowe. Ski club capital of the East.
Only $159 includes: transportation, hot tub party, beer & wine parties, 5 day lift ticket, all taxes & gratuities & much, much, more. For more info contact the UMass Ski Club Rm 430A Student Union or call 545-3437

Spring Break Riders Wanted to Florida couple preferred call eves. 253-3908

Last chance Bermuda $315 - call 256-6941 after 6

WANTED

Class rings, gold and silver jewelry and coins. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant, Amherst, 256-0710

Help $50 reward for helping me by your parents unwanted second car 253-7189

Two or three bedroom Puffton to rent from June till August call Letty 546-7464

Looking to rent dorm - size refrigerator call Nadia 546-5901

Scotland and bagpipes do you know anything about Scottish traditions? If you do, call 6-9886

Three bedroom apartment in Puffton for fall 1983 call Mike 546-4116

Cash for your records, tapes 545-2836 (ask for Jaromir /leave message)

Records LPs cash or trade Dynamite Records 584-1580

WANTED TO RENT

2 or 3 Bedroom Townehouse or Puffon! to rent from June on Marilyn 549-1377

WILLIAM PETER BLATTY'S
THE EXORCIST
Directed by WILLIAM FRIEDKIN
R From Warner Bros
SUB
Wed. Mar. 2
4:30, 6:45, 9, 11:15
1.50 all shows
*$1. 4;30 show

UMASS SKI CLUB
Goes North to
Stowe VERMONT
SKI CAPITAL of the EAST.
March 20 - 25 159.00
Includes: Transportation
5 nights hotel accomodations
5 full breakfasts
color TV & steam bath
in every room
5 days skiing
Free Hot Tub Party
2 Free Beer & Wine Parties
Indoor Heated Pool
for more info 5-3437

STYLES BY DEBORAH
NEW WAVE
&
DESIGN HAIRCUTS
$8.00 with this coupon
10.50 with shampoo & Blow Dry
11.50 long hair shampoo & Blow Dry
Free Consultations
please call for an appointment
STYLES BY DEBORAH
65 University Drive, Amherst
549-5610 C

Sports

More Sports on Page 14

Gymnasts win New England crown

Men take twelve medals

By ELLEN RICHARD
Collegian Staff

LOWELL — The University of Massachusetts men's gymnastics team captured the New England Collegiate Gymnastics championship Sunday at the University of Lowell, highlighted by the winning of twelve medals.

Nine teams in New England were represented at the championships and UMass surpassed them all with 252.1 points to take the first place trophy. Lowell came in second with 229.9 points and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology placed third with 202.65 points.

Bert Mathieson and Willie Stevens received medals as the top two all arounds in the competition. Mathieson, who won two other First Place medals, scored a 53.6 total to capture the all around title and Stevens had a fine meet particularly on the high bar where he won another medal, and secured second place in the all around with 50.7 points. Pete MacDonald of Southern Connecticut placed third with 48.75 points.

"All I've wanted to do is score 50," said Stevens, who averaged 50 points last year and had complications this season but has worked hard to put his performance back together. "It was reassuring cause I haven't done it enough. I was happier today than I've been lately."

John Macurdy walked away with three medals including a first place finish with a strong floor exercise performance. Scoring his best in floor this season, Macurdy notched a 9.45 to dominate the exercises. Mike Erlich from MIT came in second with a 9.2.

"It was fantastic on a non-spring floor," coach Roy Johnson said of Macurdy's performance. "He had a little cleaner routine. He didn't do as much difficulty and didn't have as much a chance to lose points."

First place in the pommel horse event was accounted for by Mathieson. Perhaps a little underscored, according to Johnson, Mathieson received 8.7.

"I thought Bert had a little better performance on pommel horse than what his score is," Johnson said. "I thought that was the best routine he's ever had. He was really swinging."

Mathieson said he was happy with his performance but was a little too excited before his routine which produced a few shakes in his performance.

"I was a little nervous so I had a few bobbles," Mathieson said. "I have to psych myself down for meets instead of up. I'm kind of naturally hyper so I didn't quite psych myself down enough."

Jack McCrae and Linus Kelly from MIT placed second and third respectively behind Mathieson. McCrae had an 8.15 and Kelly scored 8.1.

Mathieson and co-captain John McGonagle placed in the still rings event. Mathieson won a medal for second place with an 8.95 behind Lowell's Bruce Sutter who had a 9.35. McGonagle, who had problems with his dismount, placed third with an 8.85.

"He did okay today," Johnson said of McGonagle's performance, "He just had a little trouble with his dismount. It's at the end of his set so he doesn't have as much strength."

Macurdy won second place in vaulting with his second highest score ever. He performed a powerful double front somersault which scored 9.6 and placed behind Knowled who had a 9.65. A three-way tie gave third place to Lowell's Jim MacCarish, MIT's Dave Roberts and Southern Connecticut's MacDonald each with a 9.45.

Mathieson controlled the parallel bars, taking the top spot with an 8.9. Macurdy placed a close second with a score of 8.85.

"It was basically the best set I've ever done," Macurdy said. "I'm getting confident on the parallel bars. I'm really satisfied with the way I'm swinging. It's the first time I've gotten a medal for anything but floor."

Collegian photo by Jim Powers

UMass' John Macurdy performs on the floor during last Saturday's meet with Temple.

Tony Sbarra executed a solid routine in the high bar swinging strong and hard to capture first place medal with a 9.35. Stevens also had an excellent performance winning second place with a 9.05.

Stevens performed nicely but had only one problem with his release skill, which is a dangerous trick. Stevens said he didn't swing hard enough and bobbled his kip before the skill.

"I thought Willie deserved a little higher score than he got," Johnson said. "It shows their (Stevens and Sbarra) coming along. I'd like to see both of them qualify for finals at the EIGL's.

UM takes 15th NEISC title

By MATT LUCZKOW
Collegian Staff

For the fifteenth consecutive year, University of Massachusetts men's ski coach Bill MacConnell has guided his men skiers to victory in the New England Intercollegiate Ski Conference.

Coach MacConnell's men ended their season on top and kept the winning tradition alive this past weekend by capturing the NEISC Championship crown at Waterville Valley, N.H.

"It's a great feeling to see your team win," said MacConnell. "And when we win, it's because we ski so well together as a team."

The Minutemen took first place overall in the championship events, ahead of the eleven other colleges selected from the Osborne, Thompson and MacBrien divisions of the NEISC league.

UMass dominated Saturday's slalom race by taking first, second and third place. Co-captain Brian Prindle won the race, while teammates Dan Conway took 2nd and Tim Enright came in 3rd. Also skiing well for UMass, in a field of 60 racers, were Bob Faigel (9th) and Kris Vanderzee (34th).

The Minutemen clocked a team time of 401.46 seconds (best four individual times) to finish the slalom in front of 2nd place Boston College (422.27). Amherst College took 3rd place with a team time of 447.20.

In Sunday's giant-slalom race, UMass was upset by rival Plymouth State College. PSC's team time of 520.73 was just fast enough to beat the Minutemen's total time of 521.73. BC was third at 526.68.

Doug Karwoski from PSC won the giant-slalom, while Brian Prindle, Jon Segal and Dan Conway finished 2nd, 5th and 6th place, respectively, for UMass. Enright (17th), Faigel (24th) and Vanderzee (26th) also contributed for UMass.

The UMass men skiers had an outstanding winter of competition in the NEISC. They finished the season with a 64-6 (win/loss ratio) record. Conway, Prindle and Segal took 2nd, 3rd and 4th place respectively in the individual league standings. Karwoski from PSC took the individual title.

The season was highlighted by some strong individual efforts, some great team skiing and, most of all, a whole lot of fun.

"The key to our success is in our ability to work together as a team," said head coach MacConnell. "We train hard every day during the month of January and when the season starts, we're more prepared than the other teams."

Leaving the ski team this year will be senior co-captains Brian Prindle and Jock Montgomery. Prindle, after four years on the team, has compiled one of the best records in the history of UMass skiing. He went out in style this past weekend by winning the combined title at the championships.

Coming back next year, in the hopes of improving their and the team's performances, will be the rest of the men's team. They look forward to hitting the slopes to continue the long, winning tradition of UMass ski racing.

Bye Georgia, Hello USFL Hershel takes the plunge

By RUSS WHINNEM
Collegian Staff

The college football fan stood alone in the dark room.

He watched the television screen and listened to reports that Herschel Walker was now a professional football player. Shock of the news was setting in. Gone was the record breaking senior season. Gone was another shot at the Heismann Trophy and the mythical National Championship. Gone was the Olympic chance. Born was an instant millionaire. The college football fan slid a black and orange armband on.

The United States Football League executive sat back in his big chair and smiled. A friend had just called to say that Herschel Walker had just inked a pack with the New Jersey Generals for five million dollars over three years. Gone was

Commentary

Walker's eligibility. Born was instant credibility for his new league. Suddenly, they had become legitimite instead of a dream. The USFL executive lit up a cigar.

The college football fan was trying to figure it all out. He was disillusioned. Herschel wasn't supposed to do this. He wasn't supposed to forget all his reasons for staying in school and get turned inside out by big money.

Instead, he had simply proved he was human. Dangle that kind of money round and not too many people would turn their back. To the college football fan, though, Herschel Walker should have.

The USFL executive listened to reports that college football coaches were furious. That many were imposing bans on league scouts. He thought about the accusations that his league had broken their rule not to draft undergraduates. Yes, he thought, they had. But the USFL was sure this was a one time exception to the rule.

The college football fan heard the same accusations and even tossed a few out himself. Was it really as they claimed? The one exception because Herschel was so important a catch for the new league? Or was this only until the next superstar that the USFL decided they needed came along? The college football fan was decidedly angry.

The USFL executive thought about Walker. He thought about all he had done in college and how much he would do in the new league. He thought about the competition, which was, of course, not the NFL. The USFL executive thought about the thousands of yards Walker would run for.

The college football fan thought about Herschel's college days. He thought about the times he watched Herschel run through, around, and over opponents. He thought about Herschel saving the lady from a burning car last season by actually ripping the door off.

It had been more All-American than should be humanly possible. The college football fan thought sadly that possibly the major rememberance of Herschel's college days would be a bitter ending.

The USFL executive sat back again in his big chair and took a puff on his cigar. He smiled and anticipated the big opening of his league. For the USFL executive there was enjoyment.

The college football fan slowly reached over and turned off the television. For him there was only disappointment. Sheer disappointment.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
Volume CXII, Issue 87 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003 (413) 545-3500 Wednesday, March 2, 1983

Collegian photo by Jim Powers

Student Government Association presidential candidates listen to a question posed by announcer Lori Butterfield during last night's forum broadcast by WMUA.

SGA candidates debate issues

By JOHN O'CONNELL
Collegian Staff

Candidates for Student Government Association (SGA) president last night debated the merits of a constitutional convention and reorganization of the Undergraduate Student Senate, in the only SGA-sponsored debate of the campaign.

Siobhan Powers and Fran Hegeler, Ron Lipof and Eric Mann, Charlene Allen and Tom Ahern, and David Groom took turns answering questions from panelists representing the senate and the Collegian and from members of the audience of about 50 people.

Although administrative and funding issues were the most popular topics, the candidates also addressed Third World and women's problems, as well as human oppression in general.

Debate was sharp on a question pertaining to reorganization of the student senate, but three of the candidacies said they would support a proposed constitutional convention which Hegeler and Powers said had been requested by six of the seven area governments. Ahern did not indicate whether he supported the convention.

"During the last few months, we have been updating the (SGA) constitution," Ahern said.

Powers, who supported the referendum to reorganize the senate, said that from her contact with students during the campaign, "I find that there is a real problem with the senate." Powers said students don't know what is happening in the senate and called the referendum "a more concrete method for students to make the senate more responsive and responsible to them."

Groom called the reorganization "entirely unnecessary," and that while the senate "could be better," it is good the way it is.

"I don't think we should just shatter the senate," said Groom.

Lipof also opposed the reorganization, asking, "How are you going to increase student input by cutting the senate by one-third?"

Responding to Hegeler's argument that reducing the senate would create competition and increased motivation for senate seats, Lipof questioned "whether competition increases motivation, I'd like to see that happen."

Tom Ahern agreed, saying, "If you want competition, you should go to a horse race. We want open communication."

Ahern said the problem is not lack of student involvement, but "a lack of information on how to become involved."

All four candidates supported a $2 per year increase in the Student Activities Fee to fund the State Student Association of Massachusetts (SSAM) but disagreed on methods to increase funds granted to the area governments.

"All student groups are in need of money," said Ahern. "We must look externally for funds." Allen suggested replacing some staff in the Student Activities Office with students, with the resulting savings going to the area governments.

But Hegeler challenged the likelihood of such a move.

"The SGA has been fighting the Student Activities Office for seven years without success," Hegeler said.

Groom also suggested that an increase in funds could come from outside the Student Activities Trust Fund (SATF).

"Union Video could be a profitable organization," Groom suggested as an example, if they sold more services outside the SATF.

The candidates agreed that trust fund interest should be returned to campus trust funds, instead of going to the UMass presidents' office.

Candidates also discussed the possibility of a student member on the Board of Regents, relations with the UMass administration, co-ed bathrooms, and Groom's meal plan proposal, in addition to a number of other questions.

Smeal speaks about ERA at Smith College

By GLEN GOLDSTEIN
Collegian Staff

"Women Were Not Born Democrats, Republicans, or Yesterday," was the title of a speech given last night by former National Organization for Women president Eleanor Smeal to a crowd of more than 350 people at Smith College last night.

Smeal's speech emphasized the lessons learned from the Equal Rights Amendment ratification campaign, and the subsequent formation of women as a voting block.

"I couldn't speak without trying to invoke more people in the fight for justice," Smeal said.

"The Republicans have deserted women's rights, but the Democrats have not put us high enough on their list," Smeal said.

Eighty-three percent of Republican members of Congress voted no on the ERA, while 55 percent of the Democratic members of Congress voted yes, according to Smeal.

Smeal laughed while admitting that she was a cheerleader in high school.

"Cheerleading probably prepared me more for this (political) life than anything else," Smeal said.

Smeal explained that when she was in the balconies of state legislatures she was on the "sidelines" cheering, while the players (politicians) were out on the field.

"The atmosphere at the legislatures is like a stag party, leading one person to refer to it as 'stagnation'," Smeal said.

Smeal said that she never had so many passes made at her as when she was lobbying for the ERA.

"At first I laughed about the passes," Smeal said. "But as the years get on and my hair gets grayer, I stopped laughing."

The reason that the female opponents of the ERA were so well known is that they are so unusual, Smeal said. It is rare to oppose your own rights, Smeal said.

Smeal mentioned actor Alan Alda as one of the many men who have helped the women's rights movement in the past.

"Men involved in the women's movement have been subjected to as much ridicule from within the movement as from the outside," Smeal said.

After the defeat of the ERA last July, Smeal said that NOW "hit the road running for the November elections."

Smeal believes that a women's voting block exists with the numbers to swing an election. It is this voting block that Smeal refers to as the "gender gap."

The ERA has been introduced in the Congress with over 200 sponsors in the House and 55 in the Senate without an organized campaign, Smeal said.

"The sponsors saw the power of the gender gap in 1982 elections, and they don't want it to get them in '84," Smeal said.

Smeal ended her speech by saying that women will never be considered equal until they are involved in military conscription.

Speaking about the men in Congress, Smeal said, "They're not protecting you, they're keeping you in a cowardly state so that they can say that they're protecting you."

Smeal's speech was sponsored by the Smith College Women's Resource Center, the Smith Student Lecture Committee, and the Hampshire County Chapter of NOW.

Photo by Maria Hall

Eleanor Smeal, former president of the National Organization of Women, emphasizes a point while speaking at Smith College last night.

Chisholm and Moreau to compete in Amherst Housing Authority election

By NANCY GONTER
Collegian Staff

Robert Chisholm and Bernard Moreau were the top vote-getters in a pre-election caucus held yesterday to choose two candidates to run for the single available seat on the Amherst Housing Authority.

Moreau, of Sunset Avenue, received 283 votes and Chisholm, of Grantwood Drive, received 259 votes. The two candidates' names will be placed on the ballot for the April 5 election. Phyllis Rodin, the third candidate in the caucus, received 117 votes.

The caucus was held to narrow the race from three to two candidates for the seat vacated by Nancy Gillis, who resigned late last fall. Moreau is currently serving as an acting board member in place of Gillis. Two years remain in the open term.

The Amherst Housing Authority, (AHA) coordinates federally and state subsidized housing in Amherst and places elderly, handicapped, disabled and low-income families and individuals in low-income housing.

The most recently completed project of AHA is Watson Farms, which opened in September of 1982. Watson Farms includes 15 apartments of federally subsidized housing designed for families. One of the apartments is equipped for a family with a member who is handicapped.

Moreau, who served on the housing authority for ten years, from 1969-1979, when elderly housing was constructed in Amherst, Moreau said that if he is elected he will work "to help people who need help."

Because he is a retired union plumber, Moreau said that he would have a knowledgeable perspective on the authorities new building projects.

Moreau, a University of Massachusetts alumnus, has been an Amherst Town Meeting member for 18 years and was the chairman of the Amherst Town Democratic Committee for three years.

Chisholm, the dispatch coordinator for the Amherst Fire Department, said that his financial experience would bring a new perspective to the authority.

Chisholm is a certified paralegal and former UMass accounting student. He has served on the Landlord-Tenant Relations Committee and has been a Town Meeting member for nine years.

Digest

By the Associated Press

AP Laserphoto

Led by mounted police, hundreds of state troopers march to St. Patrick's Cemetary in Natick to honor and lay to rest fellow Trooper George Hanna, who was slain on duty Saturday during a traffic check.

Official says Reagan can't decide the course on expansion of military aid to El Salvador

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration may expand both the number and the role of American military trainers in El Salvador to meet what one congressman calls a rapidly deteriorating military situation.

An escalation of U.S. manpower in El Salvador would be in addition to the administration's request for a $60 million increase in military assistance this year.

A senior American official traveling aboard President Reagan's plane to California on Monday told reporters the administration has been reviewing policy toward El Salvador for the past four weeks under orders from the president.

The official, who insisted on anonymity, said Reagan has not yet made up his mind on what course to take, partly because he has been receiving conflicting advice from his subordinates.

Since March 1981, the administration has set a ceiling of 55 military trainers in El Salvador and limited their role to non-combat situations. The current number of trainers is 37.

The administration's reassessment of the situation appears to reflect dissatisfaction with the performance of the Salvadoran military in recent weeks.

Contrary to American advice, the Salvadorans have been mounting massive sweeps of the countryside rather than frequent small-scale patrols.

United Steelworkers approve contract, hope to save jobs by cutting worker wages, benefits

PITTSBURGH — The United Steelworkers of America approved a historic contract yesterday cutting wages $1.25 an hour and reducing benefits in an effort to save jobs by helping the industry fight foreign competition.

The USW's Basic Steel Industry Conference of about 250 local presidents from mills nationwide ratified a 41-month contract by a secret ballot vote 169-63, with three abstentions.

The concessions — first in the union's 40-year history — took effect immediately because the 266,000 union workers affected by them do not vote on contracts under union bylaws.

The granting of substantial wage reductions by so large a union is unmatched in modern labor history. The United Auto Workers union accepted wage freezes, but not cuts, to help keep the struggling U.S. automakers afloat in recent years.

"The industry badly needed the interim relief provided in the new agreement. Collective bargaining has survived an important test," said J. Bruce Johnston, a U.S. Steel Corp. vice president and chief negotiator for the seven major companies bargaining with the USW.

Senior citizens picket, protest Reagan policies

BOSTON — More than 100 senior citizens, including the mother of U.S. Rep. Barney Frank, picketed a federal office building yesterday to protest President Reagan's' war on the elderly" and proposed changes in the Medicare program.

Similar demonstrations were organized in several other Bay State communities by the Gray Panthers and Legislative Council for Older Americans in hopes that opposition would mount to the Medicare plan in Reagan's Fiscal 1984 budget proposal.

"President Reagan should be ashamed of himself as a senior citizen," Frank Manning, president of the legislative council, said as he watched the seniors march outside a Social Security administrative office in Boston.

Arlo Guthrie in group building a TV station

PITTSFIELD — A group of investors, including folksinger Arlo Guthrie, has been awarded a construction permit for a new commercial television station on UHF channel 51 in Pittsfield.

The Federal Communications Commission said Monday the decision by Administrative Law Judge Edward J. Kuhlman will become effective in 50 days unless an appeal is filed within 30 days.

The judge found that more of Housatonic's owners had pledged to become involved in the day-to-day management of the station, that none of its stockholders held any other media interests and that four of the stockholders who pledged to work full time at the new station also had pledged to move to Pittsfield.

Tornado damages Los Angeles buildings and seven are injured in a 'Midwest' type storm

LOS ANGELES — A tornado ripped off part of the Los Angeles Convention Center's roof and damaged 90 to 100 other buildings yesterday as the season's worst storm collapsed a dam, triggered mudslides and flipped vehicles.

The tornado's fury was centered in a square-mile residential and commercial area south of downtown. The section was sealed off by police following the arrest of several looters, authorities said.

At least seven people were taken to hospitals with injuries related to the tornado.

"It was just like in the Midwest," said Associated Press photographer Wally Fong, who "stumbled onto" the damage area on the way to work, shortly after the 8:30 a.m. tornado struck.

"Businesses had broken glass, the sides of buildings were damaged. I saw a couple of buildings that were completely collapsed."

Boston University president wants to withhold aid to students who don't register for the draft

BOSTON — President John R. Silber says Boston University may deny financial aid of any type next year to young men who register for classes but fail to register for the military draft.

"Many people love to parade their conscience in front of people — until it costs them something. No one has the right to live in a free country if they won't make their contribution to the free country," Silber said at an informal quesion-and-answer session Monday night in a student dormitory.

Federal law requires schools to deny federal financial aid to non-registrants.

Some college administrators are considering using school funds to make up that loss to non-registrants, but Silber said he favored withholding all forms of financial aid to students who don't sign up.

Wilber said officials have discussed implementing such a policy next school year, but nothing has yet been settled. He provided no further details. A final decision would likely need approval from the school's board of trustees.

Today's Staff

Night Editor — Bill Wall
Copy Editor — Rich Nangle
Layout Technician — Susan Bankert
Photo Technician — Jim Powers
Composition — Donna Maurice, Andrea Repass Jen Winslow
Doug Chapman, Will Hopkins, Laura Shanahan, James Shanahan, Laurie Frank Sheryl Silver, Terri Cooper, Joy McCarthy, Sam Levitt

Subscription Rates

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday excluding vacations, exam periods, or holidays. Subscriptions are available for $18 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Massachusetts. Postmaster: Send address changes to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003.

WEDNESDAY
PUB MUG NIGHT
Music By
AL STONER
DISCO-ROCK
35¢ PUB MUGS
9 pm - 1 am — no cover
THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST

Give a Friend a Gram
High Notes
Singing Telegram and Balloons
Delivered by Tuxedoed Messenger for any and All Occasions
Lowest Prices
Call 665-7664 VISA/MC

MUSIC GALLERY
PEAVEY, IBANEZ, TAMA, JBL, ROLAND, ACOUSTIC, BOSS, LEGEND, EV-TAPCO, HONDO, DEAN, HAMER, FOSTEX.
RT. 9 HADLEY ON THE BUS ROUTE
586-6228

AMHERST CINEMA
$2.50 Double Feature
Wed - Sat
A Street Car Named Desire 7:00
Burn 9:05
Downtown Amherst
253-5426

HIGHEST PRICES PAID - FOR - GOLD & SILVER IN ALL FORMS
MANHAN JEWELLERS
3 PLEASANT ST. (CORNER OF MAIN)
NORTHAMPTON MA. 01060
(413) 584-7000

Collegian photo by Drew Ogier

This sculpture opposite the Newman Center provides an alternative study site for Claudia Mackay, a junior Spanish major, as she enjoys the good weather last Sunday.

Amherst picks interim head

By TAMI BORTON
Collegian Staff

Amherst College trustees named G. Armour Craig, an Amherst graduate and English professor of 42 years, as acting president of the college this weekend.

Craig, 68, was selected by the trustees to replace former president Julian H. Gibbs, who died Feb. 19 of a heart attack, until a new president can be found, said Carl Vigeland, associate secretary for public relations.

The decision was made late Saturday following a memorial service for Gibbs. The trustees also established a committee to conduct a search for a new president which should begin mid-March, Vigeland said.

Craig, who was graduated from the college in 1937, has been teaching English at the school since 1940. He has served on the Committee of Six, the main faculty governing committee, since 1981.

The Cleveland, Ohio native earned his masters and doctoral degree at Harvard University. In 1976, he was named a Samuel Williston Professor of English and in 1980, a William R. Kenan Professor of English.

Craig has also served as dean of freshman students from 1978 to 1980, as chairman of the English department, and was a member of the search committee which selected the late president Gibbs, Vigeland said.

Five trustees were appointed Saturday to the committee to search for a permanent replacement for the late president. Four faculty members, three alumni, and three students remain to be selected by their respective colleagues.

"Mary Catherine Bateson, Dean of Faculty, presided over the college last week," Vigeland said. Both she and the trustees felt her crucial duties would be best served by remaining as dean, he said.

Writing program & Freshman Seminar endorsed by a Faculty Senate report

By SEAN CASEY
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts Graduate Student Senate last night passed a motion expressing its support of the report of the General Education Committee of the Faculty Senate.

The motion read: "The University of Massachusetts Graduate Student Senate urges the Faculty Senate to adopt the final report of the ad-hoc committee on General Education."

The Senate was addressed by Charles Hutchinson, chair of the committee, and Johnetta Cole, Assistant Provost for Undergraduate Education and a member of the committee.

Hutchinson and Cole summarized the 400 plus page report which was originally started by the six faculty, two student committee in the spring of 1981.

The basics of the proposal calls for the continuation of the writing program and the inclusion of a Freshman Seminar, Quantitative Reasoning and "Breadth of Knowledge" requirements.

According to Hutchinson and Cole, one of the most important features of the proposal is the Freshman Seminar, in which a team of professors would concentrate on a certain subject all semester-long with the students in the lecture. Approximately two out of three weekly classes would be taught by individual professors with roughly a twenty to one student-teacher ratio, while the other session would be held in a standard lecture format.

The main benefit of this seminar would be an early "mentoring" process between professors and students. This "mentoring" is not happening enough or early enough in education today, Cole said.

The Breadth of Knowledge program would require students to take six courses in the fields of Community and Change, Expressive Culture, The Individual, Societies and Institutions, The Biological World, and The Physical World.

In other business last night, Gustavo Barbosa-Canovas, a senator from the Food Engineering Department, and Steven Rizk, a graduate student from the Food Science and Nutrition Department, reported to the senate on the status of the plan to consolidate their two departments.

Barbosa-Canovas and Rizk reported that the proposed merger, which was originally scheduled for March 1, has been placed on the "back burner" by the departments' administrations.

Election law subject of Amherst suit

By E.L. BIRK
Collegian Staff

Litigation dominated the discussion at last night's Amherst Board of Selectman meeting.

At the request of the Assistant Attorney General of Massachusetts, Paul Lazour, the town of Amherst along with eight other towns, will be filing suit in United States District Court of District of Columbia sometime later this month, Town Counsel Robert W. Ritchie said last night.

The suit will oppose certain "administrative burdens" imposed on the town after an Amherst voter turnout for the 1968 Presidential election failed to reach a minimum percentage of the town's registered voters as prescribed by the Voting Rights Act of 1965, Ritchie said. The 1965 law states that at least 50 percent of a town's registered voters must participate or the town will have to prove through extensive documentation that obstacles to voting are neither implemented nor ignored by town officials.

"Years ago, the percentage of voters fell below that magic number making the town suspect," Ritchie said. "This town can withstand scrutiny very well."

The civil action will eventually be brought on behalf of all Massachusetts cities and towns, he said. Presently the suit names either other towns: Belchertown, Ayer, Sandwich, Wrentham, Harvard, Shirley, Bourne and Sunderland.

A second civil suit involving the town was brought by a firefighters union representing personnel stationed at the North Pleasant Street station, Town Manager Barry L. Castilho said.

The firefighters want the town to stop substituting them with part-time personnel on nights when the full-time fighters are in Northampton attending training sessions, Castilho said. On those nights only four full-time firefighters staff the station while one part-time volunteer joins them, he said. Five full-time firefighters normally staff the station.

Lt. Richard Jenks, president of the union bringing the suit, was unavailable for comment at press time. He was attending a training session at Cooley Dickinson Hospital in Northampton, according to a fire department dispatcher.

Stockbridge is eligible to vote the SGA ballot

By JOHN O'CONNELL
Collegian Staff

All Stockbridge School of Agriculture students are eligible to vote in next week's Student Government Association (SGA) elections, Elections Coordinator Mindy Ordway said.

During last year's SGA spring elections, Ordway instructed ballot box attendants not to allow Stockbridge students to vote.

Ordway said that last year she "was under the assumption that they (Stockbridge students) couldn't vote...because I was aware that they had their own class presidents."

She also said that there was some confusion about whether the parial Student Activities Fee paid by Stockbridge students allowed them to vote in the SGA elections. Ordway blamed her confusion in last year's election on her inexperience and lack of preparation for the job.

"Last year I was appointed as elections official in the first week of February," Ordway said. "By the third week in February, nomination papers were closed."

Ordway said that during the two weeks of campaigning, "I had so many questions to ask, and nobody to ask, since Jim (Murphy) was a candidate." SGA President Jim Murphy was elections official for the 1981 SGA elections.

"Stockbridge has their own two presidents; one for each class," Ordway said. "The SGA has a student campus president/student trustee, and they represent both schools to the trustees and to the Faculty Senate."

"That's not to say that the Stockbridge presidents are not officially recognized," she added.

Ordway said she had the misunderstanding announced in Monday's Stockbridge Senate meeting, to make sure that Stockbridge students realize they can vote.

The 367 Stockbridge students pay $90 per year to the Student Activities Trust Fund (SATF), while UMass undergraduates pay $96 yearly fee, senate Treasurer Lisa Potter said.

Not only do Stockbridge students pay the student activities fee, said Ordway, but "they do pay the Campus Center fee, so they vote for the Campus Center Board of Governors, and if they live in the dorms, they vote for the Residential Committee also."

U.N.'s Kirkpatrick will get a degree from Smith College

NORTHAMPTON (AP) — Smith College will grant an honorary degree to Jeane Kirkpatrick, the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, even though she canceled her graduation speech amid a campus protest of her support of El Salvador.

The trustees decided last weekend to abandon tradition and award the degree in absentia, college spokeswoman Marjorie Gove said yesterday.

Their decision came after seniors told them they didn't want Kirkpatrick to receive an honorary because of her support of the El Salvador government and other foreign policy positions. The trustees chose Kirkpatrick for an honorary Doctor of Laws in October but did not disclose that decision until last weekend.

Seniors originally pledged a protest during Kirkpatrick's speech, and 110 professors added their support by signing a petition. But Kirkpatrick canceled her speech last week, saying Smith would be unable to prevent a disruptive protest during the outdoor ceremony.

Kirkpatrick was heckled last month during a speech at the University of California at Berkeley, where an audience protested her support of the El Salvador government.

"Obviously, we're disappointed," Smith senior Miriam Ford said. Ford, one of the protesters, also is a niece of Ita Ford, one of three Catholic nuns killed in 1980 in El Salvador.

Kirkpatrick said in 1980 that the slain women were "not just nuns, but political activists."

That comment drew criticism in 1981 at Trinity College in Washington, D.C., where seniors planned a protest for Kirkpatrick's scheduled commencement speech there. A month before the graduation, though, the ambassador canceled the speech.

Gove said the "extraordinary" circumstances of Kirkpatrick's decision to cancel her graduation speech at Smith possibly played a role as trustees confirmed their vote to grant the honor. The college frequently picks recipients of honorary degrees and delays awarding them until recipients can attend a commencement, Gove said.

A new speaker has not been chosen, Gove said.

"The trustees said they were impressed by our presentation, and some of them even said they sympathized with our concerns," Smith senior Jennifer Vidis said of the students' protest.

"But it came down to procedure and the trustees' concern of the public perception of the decision. I suppose they felt it would have been a dishonor to withdraw the award, but for most of us we see giving the award as a dishonor," Vidis of Waterloo, Iowa, said.

CAMPUS CENTER FOOD SERVICES PRODUCTIONS PRESENTS
THE GREAT DINNER MOVIE DEAL!
TOP of the CAMPUS RESTAURANT & LOUNGE
fine dining ...a meal with a view
CHOOSE from our starring entrees:
* CHICKEN KIEV
* TURKEY PARMESAN
* COUNTRY STYLE BAR-B-Q RIBS
* FRESH CATCH OF THE DAY
served with our SALAD BAR and your choice of beverage, and
RECEIVE a FREE MOVIE PASS
ONLY 6.95
DINNER SPECIAL is available TUESDAY-THURSDAY nights
MOVIE PASS is valid SUNDAY-THURSDAY
8 Theaters... Your choice for entertainment
amc THEATRES
584-7550 HAMPSHIRE MALL
584-9153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL

25% OFF Clearance Sale
on selected Hooded Sweatshirts
Limited quantity
Hooded Pastel Sweatshirts
No Rainchecks
Assorted Styles & Colors
On Special Sale Table in Clothing
Not all sizes or colors available
Located in the Campus Center
OPEN M-F 9-5 Sat 11-4
UNIVERSITY STORE

Ashes
A Play by David Rudkin
Frank Prentice Rand Theater
University of Massachusetts Fine Arts Center
March 4-5, 9-12, 1983, 8:00 pm
Reservations: 545-1511
You can still subscribe to all three Rand Theatre productions
Ashes, The Comedy of Errors, and Company

ATTENTION SENIORS
Now is the time!
Get your face in the yearbook.
The photographer will be here
Feb 28 to March 17
Stop by CC Rm 178 or call 545-2874 to make your appointment.

UMASS SKI CLUB
SAT 3/5 TRIP
to
Stowe VERMONT
Ski Capital of the East. Period.
Includes
Lift Ticket
Transportation
Refreshments
ONLY $21
For more info
430 A Student Union 5-3437

Newslines...

WMUA publice affairs show to discuss the gay community

"Focus," the WMUA weekly public affairs series, will air a special report on problems facing the gay community in the Amherst-Northampton area. The show, hosted by Kenneth Mosakowski, will be on Thursday at 6 p.m. It will consist of interviews with members of the gay community about increasing incidents of threats and violence against homosexuals in the area.

New Africa House Art Gallery presents paintings, sculptures

The Augusta Savage Art Gallery located in the New Africa House, is currently presenting an exhibition of paintings and sculptures by Arturo Lindsay which will run from February 21 to March 11.

Lecture on natural theology to be addressed tonight in SBA

"From Artificial Intelligence to Natural Theology" is the topic of the second Fellows Lecture of the Institute for Advanced Study in the Humanities at the University of Massachusetts. The lecture will be held tonight at 8 p.m. in SBA 120. Professor Michael A. Arbib, IASH Fellow and professor of Information Science at UMass, will be the speaker. This notice was inadvertently reported to be held last night in yesterday's Collegian.

Some Whitmore offices will be closed next four Thursdays

The Registrar's, Records and Transcripts Offices will be closed tomorrow and the following Thursdays: March 10, 17, 24. Any questions should be directed to Marion Markwell at the Registrar's office.

Women's Week events go on all day at the Five Colleges

TODAY

International Women's Event planning meeting will be held at 1 p.m. Check Campus Center schedule for room number.

Support Group for Lesbian Couples will meet at 7 p.m. at the Everywoman Center. Call the Center for further information.

Sexual Violence Workshop will be held at the Bilingual Collegiate Program office in Wilder Hall. Issues of sexual violence such as rape, battering and incest will be discussed.

"Owning Our Past and Claiming a Feminist Future," a lecture by feminist author and poet Marge Piercy, will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the Sage Hall at Smith College.

"Women Depicted in the Judeo Spanish Folktales" will be discussed by Professor Reginetta Haboucha at 7:30 p.m. at the Alumni House at Amherst College.

CAMP COUNSELORS WANTED
Timber Lake Camp, one of New York State's top co-ed summer camps, is seeking high-quality general counselors. Specialists also needed in basketball, softball, soccer, tennis, roller hockey, waterfront (W.S.I.) for lake, indoor and outdoor heated pools, audio/visual, arts and crafts, computers, AM radio, ham radio, television production.
Applications for maintenance, grounds & dining room staff also being accepted.
Contact T.L.C.'s UMASS representative:
Rich Tyroler
1112 Kennedy 546-7762
for application or interview

LAZY?
MAKE IT WORK FOR YOU GET THE
"LAZY STUDENTS GUIDE TO A 4.0"
Send check or money order to:
Student Guide Org.
P.O. Box 962
Hadley, Mass. 01035
☐ yes! Please send ___ copies at $3.98 ea.
_____enclosed

TONIGHT
DYNASTY
DRINK SPECIALS 9-11
Try the "Carrington Cooler," "Alexis' Revenge," or the "Frosty Fallon" ...each 1.50
TOP of the CAMPUS
RESTAURANT & LOUNGE
11th Floor • Campus Center • UMass

BLUE WALL
CAMPUS CENTER AT UMASS
WED. FREE ADMISSION & POPCORN
Alfred Hitchcock's PSYCHO
SEE THE ORIGINAL "PSYCHO" TONIGHT!
PSYCHO... 8PM
FRENZY... 10PM
FRENZY
THURS. FREE ADMISSION & POPCORN
FRENZY... 8PM
PSYCHO... 10PM
FRI. HAPPY HOUR 3-6 p.m. w/ Paul Wayne
BEST BOSTON BAND
THE NEIGHBORHOODS
w/ special guests "FAST, CLEAN & SAFE"
SAT. Queen of the Blues!
KOKO TAYLOR
and the HASH BROWN BLUES BAND
$3.00 COVER
sponsored by U.P.C. and the Duke Ellington Committee

In spite of Reaganomics jobs are holding up well for graduates

in PUBLIC HEALTH

The Division of Public Health at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst offers graduate programs in

Biostatistics — Community Health Education
Environmental Health — Epidemiology
Health Administration — Public Health Nutrition

For Information

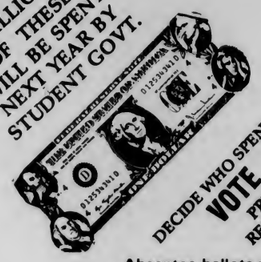
Come to the OPEN HOUSE. Friday, March 4, 1983
10 a.m. - 12 noon Room 803, Campus Center

CONTACT:

Robert W. Gage, M.D., Graduate Program Director
313 Arnold, University of Massachusetts,
Amherst, MA 01003
(413) 545-1317

OPENINGS ARE STILL AVAILABLE
FOR SEPTEMBER ADMISSION

1.7 MILLION OF THESE WILL BE SPENT NEXT YEAR BY STUDENT GOVT.



DECIDE WHO SPENDS YOUR MONEY
VOTE S. Govt. Exec.
PRESIDENTIAL/BOG/
RESIDENTIAL ELECTIONS
MARCH 7, 8

Absentee ballots will be available from 1 - 3 PM in 420 S.U.B.

Vincent Price
Film Festival
Sunday march 6

2:00 pm - Theatre of Blood
4:00 pm - Pit and the Pendulum
6:00 pm - The Masque of Red Death
8:00 pm - The Raven
75¢ for all you can see
C.C. Auditorium

★★MOVIE★★

T A P S

starring

GEORGE C. SCOTT
WED. MARCH 2nd
ENGINEERING EAST AUD.
7, 9, 11 p.m.

AFRO AMERICAN STUDIES MAJORS AND ALL INTERESTED STUDENTS

ARE INVITED TO ATTEND AN ALUMNI/AE CAREER NIGHT

When: Wednesday, March 2, 1983 8:00 PM

Where: Campus Center 163

Graduates of the Department of Afro American Studies will discuss and answer questions about their careers and your career possibilities.

Participating Alumnae:
Paul Barrows, Director, CCEBMS, UMass
Merianne F.Thelwell, Attorney
Gary Lewis, Marketing
Imani Kazani, Urban Planning
Rudolph Jones, University Admissions/
Public Relations

Sponsored by:
The Alumni Association
The University Placement Service
W.E.B. DuBois Department of Afro American Studies

Chancellor's Lecture Series

Mark W. Roskill

"Photojournalism: Its Early Life & Times"

Thursday, March 10, 8 p.m.
Campus Center Auditorium
University of Massachusetts at Amherst

EDITORIAL/OPINION

A violation of conscience

Does anyone remember a 1980 presidential candidate named Ronald Reagan? He was a peace-loving man who looked forward to the eradication of nuclear weapons from the face of the earth and held a rather strong position against registration for the draft. "I am categorically opposed to registration," he proclaimed. "What I am for is an increase in wages in the military in order to keep talented women and men who would otherwise turn to the private sector for employment." Since the Carter-Reagan debate to the Reagan presidency, rhetoric took a U-turn on the road to reality. Middle class and low-income students are now faced with exclusion from federal aid for college if not registered with the Selective Service.

Aside from the moral questions that arise from the Reagan about-face, we can ask whether the link between financial aid and draft registration is even constitutional. Aside from discriminating on the basis of age, sex, and race, the new Selective Service legislation assumes guilt (non-registration) until proof is provided to the contrary. This seems to contradict the precept of "innocent until proven guilty," and involves self-incrimination, which is prohibited under the Fifth Amendment.

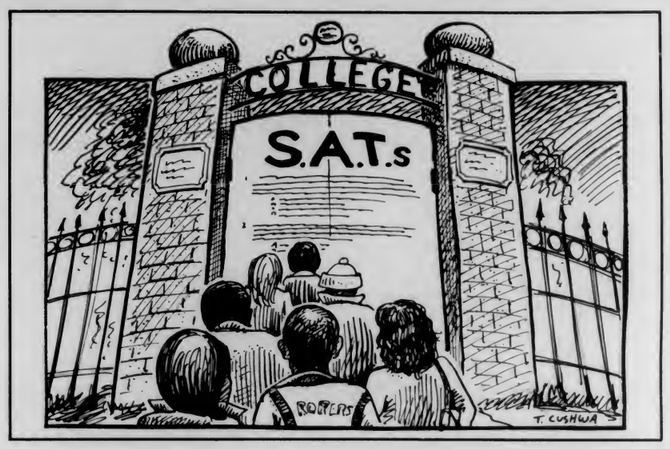
Another important problem with the law is its blatant discrimination on the basis of economic class. It is clear that those people who don't need federal aid to attend college will remain unscathed by the law. Conservatives argue that a college education is not a right and those who choose to obtain federal aid are subject to the federal restrictions that go along with it. However, "laissez-faire" economics and social mobility, two keys to conservative philosophy, both depend heavily on an educated population. Further, no one "chooses" to get federal aid. Such aid is distributed on the basis of need, not desire. Perhaps it is cheaper for the economic elite to keep the working class on the dreaded "dole" than it is to really cut them a piece of the economic pie.

This legislation and overall military policy reflect the Reagan's Administration's choice to ignore the lessons of Vietnam. Sure, history repeats itself, but Vietnam borders on being current events. Those of us who hold fast to our principles will lose vital financial aid, which, ironically, will be spent on advisers to train not American students, but the armies of a right-wing dictatorship in El Salvador. This writer fears that capitalism and democracy have polarized and that the former is superseding the latter in the legislative process.

Failure to register is a felony, but failure to stand up for what one believes in is a violation of conscience. As former Senator George McGovern once said, "Thoughtful Americans understand that the highest patriotism is not a blind acceptance of official policy, but a love of one's country deep enough to call her to a higher standard."

Scott Bennett

Scott Bennett is a UMass student



Do we need a National Prayer Day?

During the first half of his Presidency, Ronald Reagan made many silly and dangerous statements. However, as he begins his third year in office, Mr. Reagan's comments and plans have gone too far in threatening the very underpinning of our country, the First Amendment.

One of the main duties of the President is to uphold the Constitution of the United States. That includes the First Amendment, in particular, the part that guarantees freedom of religion.

Kevin DeLuca

Freedom of religion is what established our country, and what has and still does make the United States of America better than most other countries. The vital aspect of this amendment is that be encouraging freedom of religion, as a natural outgrowth, freedom of thought is also encouraged. And free-thinking people are the highest form of life known and the salvation of mankind.

And now our current President, in his infinite wisdom, is going about erasing freedom of religion.

First, he declares May 5 National Prayer Day. Not so bad, since prayer is an aspect of nearly all religions, right? Wrong! Freedom of religion includes the right to live without formal religion, or any religion at all, if one so chooses. So all agnostics and atheists are having their Constitutional rights violated by the alleged upholder of our Constitution.

The same argument can be applied to the practice of prayer in public schools. Yet the President has said that he will continue to support a school prayer amendment "until we succeed in restoring religious freedom in the United States." (If that statement sounds contradictory, do not worry, it is. Logic has never been one of President Reagan's strongsuits.)

Besides, school prayer is an obvious breach of separation of church and state, and the courts agree. Mr. Reagan may say that the Federal Courts are "wrong," but then again, what does a man who thinks trees cause air pollution know? Whenever a government starts to support religion, the phrase "freedom of" is soon edited out.

But declaring May 5 National Prayer Day is not enough for our pious President. He also is going to issue a Presidential Proclamation making 1983 the "year of the Bible." Mr. Reagan made this statement in front of a group of preachers (necessarily Protestant). He also added that the country should "face the future with the Bible."

This all may sound amusing or even encouraging if one is Protestant or maybe Catholic. But Jews, Islamists, Hindus, Buddhists, those of other faiths, agnostics, and atheists must wonder what is going on.

That Reagan is not going to declare any of the ensuing years the year of the Koran, Veda, or any other religious work is quite obvious with his "face the future with the Bible" statement. So what are people who do not worship the Bible to think and do?

They should probably realize that there are right-wing extremists who will take the President seriously and that religious persecution seems to lurk just below the surface of any society.

Consequently, they should safeguard their rights by suing the President through the courts; asking for an injunction against National Prayer Day and "the year of the Bible." When it is abused, the Constitution provides for ways to stop such abuses.

Kevin DeLuca is a Collegian columnist

Collegian

Board of Editors

Kevin Bowe Editor-in-Chief
Ed Levine Managing Editor
Stuart Sajdak Production Manager
Joel Myerson Business Manager
John Hudson Executive Editor
John DiPalazzo News Editor
Cris Schuster Women's Editor
Doug Muise Arts Editor
Gus Martins Black Affairs Editor
Billy Shea Sports Editor
Kevin J. Fachetti Photo Editor

Associate Editors

Paul Basken, Ray Beauchemin, Eileen Galligan, Michelle Murray, Bill Wall, Associate Managing Editors; James P. Shanahan, Marianne Walsh, Associate Production Managers; Mary Beth Hebert, Josh Meyer, Associate Executive Editor; Mary Baldwin, Associate Women's Editor; Lisa Mosley, Associate Arts Editor; Jim Powers, Associate Photo Editor.

Business Staff

Craig Robbins, Advertising Manager; Jeff Taylor, Jeff Hershberg, Associate Advertising Managers; Steve Savard, Associate Business Manager; Maria Karassik, Finance Manager; Paul Krause, Associate Finance Manager; Brad Hammer, Circulation Manager.

Letters

Government run by the wealthy

To the Editor:

I have been surprised to see so little mention in the Collegian, and no action among students, about the recent implementation of a law requiring eighteen year old male students to provide proof of having registered for the draft in order to be eligible for financial aid.

This is a frightening and dangerous law — it makes educational institutions assume the role of Big Brother for the government, compromising a citizen's right to education by tying that right to an "enforced patriotism." It is ageist, classist and racist in the extreme (leave it to the Reagan administration to get all three at once — they're real pros!). Students from wealthy (and usually white) families can still attend college, without financial aid and without registering for the draft. Working class students (usually minorities) are precisely those who most need financial aid, and who will be forced to bear the brunt of this kind of coercion. Once again, in the great American tradition, money and privilege (hence color) become the standards by which laws are enforced and the government is run. And what about Conscientious Objector status? Is that also to become a privilege of the wealthy?

Many colleges have already spoken out against this newest assault on our freedom, some stating publicly they will not support or enforce it. I surely hope there is enough concern here at UMass among students, faculty and administration, to do the same. It is an unconstitutional and immoral law; and these kinds of small, quiet erosions of the rights and freedoms of the non-priveleged classes have always been recognized (usually in hindsight) as painfully clear harbingers of a move toward totalitarian government. It can happen here — are we so used to these assaults on our rights and freedoms that we will now assist in their destruction?

Susan MacDonnell
Sunderland

Zevon concert barely alive

To the Editor:

The review of the recent Warren Zevon show by Ed Been in the Collegian appears to be of a different show that I saw at the Rusty Nail. To me Zevon represented complete artistic irresponsibility. Hundreds of people paid $10 plus 5 hours of drink prices waiting for a drunken egomaniac with a strained voice, an amateurish talent for piano and guitar, and a harmonica reminiscent of the worst of Dylan to play 60 minutes of unInspired trash. The thin crowd remaining at the end testified to the overwhelming boredom. While a few wanted an encore most wanted a refund. It wasn't, as has been said, "for fun" that he played "before they make me run."

David Garbose
Belchertown

GRADUATION NOTICE

The 1983 Commencement exercise at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst will be held on SATURDAY, MAY 28, 1983

SUPER SALE
on HP-34C and HP-38C
only $69.95

(this is not a misprint)
Save almost 50% off our regular low price of $134.95
Save $80.00 of list price $150.00

HP-38C

The HP-38C is an ideal tool for real estate agents, financial analysts, accountants, bankers, managers and business students.

- Advanced financial functions including discounted cash flow analysis
- Amortization schedules
- 99 program lines for handling repetitive calculations
- Continuous Memory saves programs and data

The HP-34C offers computer-strength "solve" and "integrate" in a handheld calculator. Designed for scientific students and professionals who need the flexibility and power of advanced programming.

HP-34C

- "Solve" key finds real roots of equations
- "Integrate" key finds definite integrals
- 210 program lines
- Continuous Memory saves programs and data

HP-31C Advanced Programmable Scientific

Limited quantities available no rainchecks

Located in the Campus Center

OPEN
M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4

UNIVERSITY STORE

Are the Biblical Records Reliable?

The reliability and integrity of the Bible traditionally have been scorned by secular scholars. Josh McDowell, well known Christian speaker and author, originally set out to completely discredit Christianity and the Bible. As a result of many hours of research, he not only was unable to achieve this, but came to personal faith in Christ. In his book, "Evidence that Demands a Verdict", McDowell outlines in detail his research into the historical reliability of Christianity. A few of the highlights of his findings concerning the historical reliability of the New Testament will be presented here.

How is the reliability of any piece of ancient literature to be evaluated? C. Sanders, in his text, "Introduction to Research in English Literary History", has put forth three basic tests of historical literature. They are the bibliographical test and the tests of internal and external evidence.

The bibliographical test is concerned with the manuscript support and transmission of the document from the original. This involves consideration of both the number of manuscripts and the time span between the manuscripts and the original. Based on this test it is easily concluded that the manuscript support for the accuracy of our present New Testament is far greater than that of any other piece of classical literature. There are over 24,000 ancient manuscripts of the New Testament, over 5,300 in Greek alone. Among ancient classics, Homer's Illiad ranks a distant second with 634 manuscripts. It can now be generally concluded that the New Testament was written between 40 and 80 A.D. John Ryland's manuscript, an Egyptian manuscript containing part of John's Gospel, is dated at 130 A.D. Ditessaron: meaning "a harmony of four parts". The Greek "dia Tessaron" literally means "through four". This was a harmony of the 4 Gospels done by Tatian (about 160 A.D.). We also have two nearly complete manuscripts of the entire New Testament and over half the Old Testament, Codex Vaticanus and Codex Sinaiticus, which are dated about 325. By comparison, the oldest manuscript of Homer is dated nearly 500 years after the original. The comparison of New Testament manuscript support to that of other ancient literature is shocking. Ten manuscripts of Caesar's Gallis Wars are still in existence, the oldest of which is dated nearly 1000 years after the time of Caesar. Plato's Tetralogies are supported by only seven manuscripts dated 1300 years after the time of Plato.

The test of internal evidence evaluates the competence of the sources and the internal consistency of the text. In examining a document, critics still hold to Aristotle's decree that the benefit of the doubt belongs to the document, not to the critic. Therefore, the claims of a document must be accepted, unless contradiction or factual error can be proven.

The New Testament authors were eye-witnesses or took their material from eye-witnesses. Luke 1:1-3 is an example; "Inasmuch as many have undertaken to compile an account of the things accomplished among us, just as those who from the beginning were eye-witnesses and servants of the Word have handed them down to us, it seemed fitting for me as well, having investigated everything carefully from the beginning, to write it out for you in consecutive order, most excellent Theophilus;". New Testament witnesses and accounts are clearly consistent although not word for word.

Some of the outstanding external support for the historical accuracy of Scripture has come from archeology. Nelson Glueck, a former president of Jewish Theological Seminary and a leading archeologist has written, "It may be stated categorically that no archeological discovery has ever controverted a Biblical reference." As part of a study of Asia Minor, Sir William Ramsey concluded that Luke, the author of Acts, "should be placed among the greatest of historians."

In light of all this evidence, of which this represents only a very brief highlight, it is puzzling that many scholars still regard the Bible as unreliable. The unbiased critic must apply the same tests of historical reliability to all literature, whether secular or religious.

John Warwick Montgomery says that, "To be skeptical of the resultant text of the New Testament books is to allow all of classical antiquity to slip into obscurity, for no documents of the ancient period are as well attested bibliographically as the New Testament." As Josh McDowell says, "Reject not, - til you have examined the evidence.

Submitted by Eric Passler
U.Mass Senior
in Chemical Engineering

For more information on the Reliability of the Bible come to SBA 109 6:30pm
skeptics welcome!

WED. MAR. 2 - Historically Reliable - 3 Criteria
MAR. 9 - A Sure Foundation - Film
MAR. 16 - The Resurrection - Hoax or History

CAMPUS CRUSADE for CHRIST

Black Affairs

South African speaks openly

By TRACY ROBBINS
Collegian Correspondent

He is the most unlikely looking rebel. Slightly grayed and middle-aged, charming and witty, Selaelo Maredi resembles an Uncle Louie who told you stories of his Korean War days when you had the measles.

But, to dig a little further into his life, it becomes quite apparent that Salaelo Maredi is anything but a fictional uncle, he is very serious and determined. Maredi is hoping to gather support for his revolutionary movement in his native South Africa.

Born in Sophiatown, one of the oldest ghettos in Johannesburg, Selaelo was still at school when all the Black families, including his, were "removed from their homes by policemen and bulldozers, because Sophiatown had become attractive to the White community."

He grew to be a man under the harsh reality of apartheid; he knew both the victims, the victors, and also those who kept resisting in a thousand different ways. Those are the people he brings to life in his plays.

Theatre has been a life long passion for Maredi. His first plays were, "A Little Education Is Dangerous" and "It's My Blackness They Hate Not Me." He wrote and directed both and won his first awards for them from the South African Youth Club National Theater.

Maredi's next efforts at writing and directing produced "Prosecution" and "Mboni." In 1971, he and several associates formed The Experimental Theater Workshop. This presented a colloquim focusing on theater fundamentals and skills development.

In the performance of "For Better Not For Worse," Maredi has encountered several forces of opposition, as well as praise for his efforts. "The other night in Albany, (New York), several whites walked out of the audience. I don't understand that. I heard a speaker one night say how distressed he is when he hears Blacks talk about slavery; well the Jews still talk about the Holocause, in my opinion they are equally relevent parts of history," Maredi said.

"When Blacks in America and South Africa speak of their plight with the white ruling class, it is socially unacceptable, it is a good thing that the whole world does not revolve on such a small axis."

When asked if his plays make too much of a political statement to be performed in his native South Africa, Maredi answered with an adamant, yes.

"In South Africa you are permitted to do nothing. You are required to apply for all sorts of permits," he said. "I haven't thought of sending anything home, though there is a theater in Johannesburg that wants to produce my play 'Homeland'; I will give them the script but the penalty will be on their heads — not mine," he said.

"South African regime would turn its back on many things, but not a play where we celebrate the death of the Prime Minister".

"For Better Not For Worse" will tour the country through the summer, and there is a tentative invitation to perform at a theater festival in Amsterdam in June. Maredi looks forward to this engagement in Holland because he feels that by opening the eyes of people around the world, he can strive toward a greater understanding of his country's plight.

"American people, both black and white, are progressive. They must begin to delve through the propaganda given them by American companies. These companies are not doing South African citizens (black) any justice."

"We need more support. The boycott we are trying to mount must succeed. If we could only influence American entertainers and make them understand, we would be on the road to freedom."

Maredi made several comparisons to racism in America as opposed to racism in South Africa. "Racism in this country is apparent, you know it's there — yet it is very subtle, almost invisible. There is also a problem in England. Wherever we live together, no matter where, there will be tension in some form."

"When people starve, they go for each other's throats. Black people can relate to the experiences I give to them in my plays. They laugh and stomp. Whites often become very offended.

It seems strange that a comedy by a talented writer/director is not always welcome by the dignitaries of one's own country, yet often revolutionary artist are subject to incarceration for displeasing the regime.

"There is no freedom of speech. The South African government has money to sell their propaganda to the world. I have nothing to lose by telling the truth — only to gain."

Maredi is creating a revolutionary-musical-comedy with jazz great Hugh Masakela. "At this point, we are looking for someone to produce it for us. The play will be called "Melodie," I will write the play — Masakela will write the music. We are anticipating a large scale musical."

He has said about American capitalism that, "the production of too many useless things results in the production of too many useless people."

"Television's 'The Jefferson's' tell us that it is better to forget and move on up to the east side, but we must know about the past, without a past there is no present. No knowledge of the present leaves no hope for a future," Maredi said.

Bassist Curtis Harmon, keyboardist James Lloyd, and drummer Cedric Napolean of the jazz trio Pieces of A Dream.

Talented trio to perform

By GUS MARTINS
Collegian Staff

The Black Student Alliance of Smith College will present the musical group Pieces of a Dream this Friday night at the John M. Greene Hall at 8 p.m.

This group out of Philadelphia is a fantastic trio of jazz/funk artists whose exceeding abilities are surpassed only by their surprising youth.

All three members have yet to turn the age of 20, but when one listens to their music one might expect that they have been playing at least that long.

Their command of electronic instrumentation, basses and synthesizers, along with their appreciation and finesse toward the acoustic ambiance of the traditional jazz make the "Pieces of a Dream" a perfect example of what has been happening musically for many decades here in America.

The trio has been playing together since Jr. High School back in the Mt. Airy section of Philadelphia. Since then they have played all the major music halls in their hometown, including the Philadelphia Academy of Music.

Drummer Tony Williams helped them in the early going, but the band has recorded under G-man productions and producer/saxophonist Grover Washington.

Washington has played on both albums recorded by the terrific trio and "Pieces of a Dream" are currently featured on Washington's new album "The Best is Yet to Come."

The band has been guided by the father of bassist/vocalist Curtis Harmon and he continues to serve as their manager.

Their first two albums have been top quality material and the group has been joined by vocalist Barbara Walker. Her lead vocal work on "Warm Weather" from the album Pieces of a Dream and her duet with Harmon, "You Know I Love You," from their second LP We Are One adds a nice dimension to an already accomplished gig.

The band toured Europe in 1982 and continues to improve with every passing day. At their remarkably young age it leads one to wonder which corridor of sound motion the band should next explore. Whatever direction it chooses to take, it's reasonably accurate to presume it will reach that pinnacle, but more timely now is that whatever goals this young trio has set, it's accurate to think that the "Pieces of the Dream" are in immediate reach.

Dusk explores Afro-American experience

By YADIRA A. BETANCES
Collegian Staff

A small audience gathered at Bowker Auditorium on Friday, February 25th to witness a collection of rich legacies pertaining to the past, present and future of Black Americans.

In an hour of songs, dance and a slide show, Dusk, a group of women revived the heritage of a semi-diluted lineage.

It's an African tradition to reveal inner feelings through rhythmic body movements. Dusk was extremely able in doing this. Their dance expressed the struggle of slavery, the pain of maternal love and psychological damage produced by this separation and the prototype of the black women as being a gay, though frustrated individual.

Through every dance, the women of Dusk reached within themselves and brought their feelings out for the audience to capture.

The background music in the dances and slide shows progressively moved the audience through times of struggles for Black Americans, Malcolm X, Marvey Garvy, Martin Luther King, Civil Rights and the unforgettable streets of Harlem.

Always Read Black Affairs

Announcements

On March 3, 4, 5, 10, 11, 12 at 8 p.m. in Hampden Theater in Southwest, UMass, the second production of the Third World Theater Series of the University of Massachusetts, Amherst will be a presentation of two satirical comedies, "Day of Absence" by Douglas Turner Ward and "Los Vendidos" by Luis Valdez. Both plays take a comic look at stereotypes of southern Black Americans and Mexican Americans.

"Day of Absence," written in 1965, is laced with belly shaking humor. It reverses the concept of the minstrel show, with black actors in white face portraying white characters. One day all the the blacks from a small southern town mysteriously disappear leaving their white neighbours and employers in total dismay. Through "Day of Absence" Turner cleverly outlines southern white stereotypes.

On the other hand, "Los Vendidos," a contemporary of "Day of Absence," is probably the most well known of the agit-prop plays which emerged from the Chicano Theater movement. "Los Vendidos" is a fantasy which takes place in "Old Sancho's Used Mexican Showroom." A representative from the then Governor Reagan's cabinet is looking for a "Model" Mexican American for the administration. The ironic surprise ending reveals the complexities of Chicano-Anglo relations.

All plays are accompanied by a workshop, for this production the workshop will be held on March 12 from 4:00 -5:30 p.m. at Hampden Theater, Southwest, UMass.

George Bass, associate professor of Theater and Afro-American studies at Brown University, and director of Theater company "Rites and Reason," will present "Art, Reality, and the Sacred Rite of Being in the Afro-American Adventure."

Tickets: $2-students, $3-general at the Fine Arts Center Box office, M-F 12-4 p.m. (545-2511) or at the door the evening of the performance beginning at 7 p.m. Reservations of the Hampden show can be made by calling 545-2803. Group discounts available.

The Augusta Savage Memorial Art Gallery will present a W.E.B. DuBois exhibit from Feb. 21 - March 11. A reception will be held in New Africa House March 4 from 3 - 5 p.m., in honor of visiting instructor and international journalist David Graham DuBois, all interested people are welcome.

Martin Luther King, Jr. Week Essay and Poster Contest

The planning committee for Martin Luther King, Jr. week, April 4-9 is sponsoring an essay contest in addition to the poster contest. The winning essay will be read at a candlelight vigil to be held April 4th. The deadline for poster designs is March 10th and the due date for essays is March 20th. Please submit all entries to the Student Senate, 420 Student Union Building.

The prize for both the winning essay and poster will be $75.00. In the spirit of Martin Luther King, Jr. who advocated justice and equality, we encourage the entire community to take part in the poster and essay contests as well as the Martin Luther King week activities. For more information, please call 545-0341.

All members of the Student Senate of the Third World Caucus are urged to attend the weekly meeting at 6 p.m. on Wednesday March 2nd in 308 of the Student Union.

Author Paule Marshall will receive the Tribute to Black Womanhood Award at 8 p.m. on Thursday, March 3, in the Neilson Library browsing room. Ms. Marshall's novel "Praisesong for the Widow" has been recently published by G.P. Putnam's Sons. She writes about West Indian life in America, and her works include three other novels, numerous short stories, articles, and an adaptation for telelvision of her novel "Brown Girl, Brownstones."

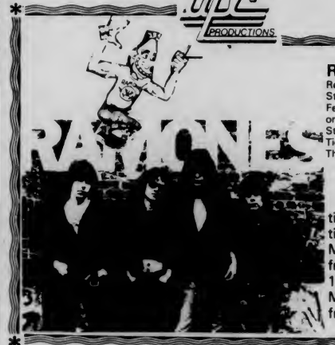
Assorted Sports Jerseys $5.95

Assorted Styles & Colors
on Special Sale Rack Reg. $7.95

Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4

UNIVERSITY STORE

upc PRODUCTIONS



RAMONES
Rescheduled for March 31 - Student Union Ballroom
February 23 tickets will be honored on March 31
Students 8.00 - Public 10.00
Tickets available: For the Record, The Fine Arts Center & Tix

Ticket holders please note:
ticket holders may return tickets at Tix Unlimited:
March 2
from 8 am to 11 am & 12:15 pm to 1:15 pm
March 3
from 11 am to 2 pm

DVP presents

Vincent Price
in a one man performance

Monday, March 7
8 pm at the F.A.C.

$2. 5 college students
$4. Senior Citizens
$5. General Public

Tickets on sale now at F.A.C. Box Office
sponsored by University Arts Council
and Distinguished Visitors Program

upc PRODUCTIONS

We're havin' a party...

with

SOUTHSIDE JOHNNY

and the

ASBURY JUKES

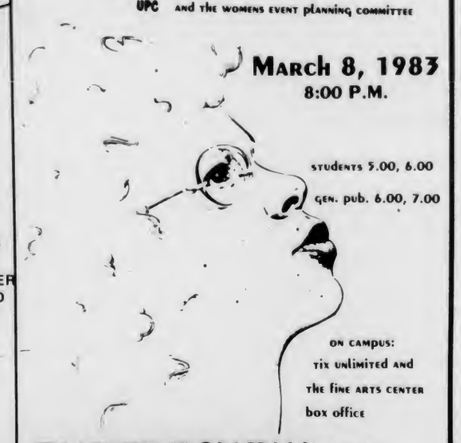
SAINT PATTY'S DAY
MARCH 17
STUDENT UNION BALLROOM
8:00

TICKETS AVAILABLE AT:
- TIX UNLIMITED
- UNION RECORDS UNLIMITED
- FINE ARTS CENTER
- FOR THE RECORD

YOU WON'T WANNA GO HOME!

in honor of International Women's Day
UPC and the womens event planning committee

March 8, 1983
8:00 P.M.



students 5.00, 6.00
gen. pub. 6.00, 7.00

on campus:
tix unlimited and the fine arts center box office

PHOEBE SNOW
with Special Guest Debbie Fier

Amherst: for the record
Northampton: womonfyre books
all ticketron locations

thanx UMass Arts Council
FINE ARTS CENTER UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS

Arts

Pop country singer Emmylou Harris

Queen of pop country

THRILLER (Epic)
Michael Jackson

By ROBIN ROSIELLO
Collegian Correspondent

For the past five years Emmylou Harris, the undisputed queen of popular country, has almost nonchalantly delivered a series of masterpieces. Under the watchful eye of her husband-producer, Brian Ahern, she's resurrected legendary country classics while showcasing the industry's brightest young writers. For some reason, perhaps because she's not yet attempted it, Harris has opted for a live album this time out. For the first time in years Nashville's meticulous princess has erred. The flaw in this album is that she adds absolutely nothing to her live performances. All that distinguishes this from her studio albums is the lack of craftsmanship that made those albums something special. That's not to say that no craftsmanship goes into her live shows, but on record the session work is far more convincing.

Could all this mean that Emmylou Harris has wasted even an inch of vinyl? Not a chance, she's just not budgeted it well. What saves the album is Emmylou's extraordinary talent. The lady's been blessed with the voice of an angel, she'll work with no one but Nashville's finest, and she can still pick a great song. If you think that sounds like the stuff great records are made of, you're right, but that's not quite enough.

The haunting reality of last year's cover of Springsteen's "The Price You Pay" is totally lost on this year's nod to the Boss, "Racing In The Streets". Harris makes you believe it when she sings the opening line, "I got a '69 Chevy with with a three ninty-six," but the song's meaning is quickly lost in the flat-out country rendition that it wasn't intended for. The cold unadorned honesty that gave the original version substance has been a but forgotten and no efforts been made to bring the chorus to it's forceful climax.

However, this album does have it's share of golden moments. Golden indeed is her rendition of Gram Parsons desperado epic, "Grievous Angel." Harris was part of the late singer's band when he recorded the song; she's obviously learned well from one of the original "outlaws." Don Johnson's dixieland piano and soaring harmony help make this an anthem highway beaten cowboys everywhere. She also excels on the classic Conway Twitty ballad "(Lost His Love) On Our Last Date." Again Johnson's harmony demands attention as he sweeps across the scale with Emmylou. Minus the doo-wops this song sounds like it should have been pumped from the speaker of your '55 Chevy, tucked snugly between Twitty's "It's Only Make Believe" and perhaps Patsy Cline's "Crazy" while you await the drive-in premier of Geant or something. Yes, it's that much of a classic.

Not much can be said about the balance of the record. The selections range from an uninspired version of Hank Snow's "I'm Moving On" to a somewhat more lively cover of the Carl Perkins oldie, "Restless," and Neil Young's "Long May You Run" borders on boring. Whether it's state-of-the-art technology, a more controlled atmosphere, or the intimacy of the environment, these songs could have been brought to life in Brian Ahern's studio. Similar ones have been. The failure in doing this live is exemplified in the last number. Harris sets aside her folk guitar for lead and plays "Buckaroo," this may have been fine for a live audience to stomp along to, but does nothing for the listener. She then jumps in singing Buck Owens "Love's Gonna Live Here" ending the album with virtually no climax where one was so necessary.

"Live" in this case, was a concept that achieved nothing and even proved to be a handicap at times. We can respect Emmylou Harris for trying to break out and cross that platinum bridge to superstardom. What seemed like a good idea has produced a good album. The problem is it could have been great, these songs to be liked may have, in another setting, been loved.

Jackson's a thriller

LAST DATE (Warner Bros.)
Emmylou Harris

By DON NAREY
Collegian Correspondent

Vibrant and danceable, Thriller is certainly Michael Jackson's finest display of talent. The pulsating beat and melodic vocals blend together to produce an enchanting effect.

The opening two songs, "Wanna Be Startin' Somethin'" and "Baby Be Mine," feature a disco beat characteristic of Off the Wall and the lyrics are delivered with a virility that sets the tone for the remainder of the album. Unfortunately, as soon as you begin to respond to this energy and sensuality, you are subjected to "The Girl Is Mine," a sappy pop duet with Paul McCartney (you've probably heard it a million times on the radio), that dampens your enthusiasm. Don't lose hope, however, because this is the only drawback on the entire album.

Undoubtedly an impressive quality is Michael Jackson's compatibility with other artists who enhance his personal style. For example, a musician as completely different from Jackson as Eddie Van Halen performs a solo on "Beat It," effectively combining the power of a rock guitar with the basic dance tempo. Even Vincent Price contributes to the title cut of the album. Beginning with the sounds of a creaking door and the howling of the wind and of a coyote, the piece progresses to a rap by the master of horror himself. Price completes the haunting atmosphere by concluding the song with a long, sinister laugh.

By far the most energetic and electrifying creation on Thriller is "Billie Jean," the tale of a man desperately proclaiming his innocence: "She's just a girl who claims that I am the one/But the kid is not my son." The song features an electrifying tempo and emotional, powerful vocals.

The remaining pieces include one lively dance number and two ballads which beautifully express a certain vulnerability and sensitivity. The slow tempo of these songs mixes well with the disco/funk style of the rest of the album.

I suggest you buy Thriller, even if you are not a disco fanatic. Although disco is the prevalent style of the album, there is depth and intensity that surpasses Jackson's last album, Off the Wall. You will relate to the release of frustration that obviously inspired this record. I especially recommend it to Jackson Five fans like myself. The adorable ten-year-old soul brother with the extremely high-pitched voice has developed into a sophisticated solo artist. Take a look at the impressive cover photography; note the adorable tiger cub perched on a sleek-looking Michael Jackson's knee! This cover alone is sufficient reason to part with seven or eight precious dollars. You will be thrilled!

Michael Jackson

Martin Luther King, Jr. Week
Essay and Poster Contest
"Make His Day A Holiday"

The planning committee for Martin Luther King, Jr. Week, April 4-9 is sponsoring an essay contest in addition to the poster contest. The winning essay will be read at a candlelight vigil to be held April 4th. The deadline for poster designs is March 10th and the due date for essays is March 20th. Please submit all entries to the Student Senate, 420 Student Union Building. The prize for both the winning essay and poster will be $75.00. In the spirit of Martin Luther King, Jr. who advocated justice and equality, we encourage the entire community to take part in the poster and essay contests as well as the Martin Luther King week activities. For more information, please call 545-0341.

THE HEBREW UNIVERSITY OF JERUSALEM
ROTHBERG SCHOOL FOR OVERSEAS STUDENTS
1983/84 PROGRAMS

☐ ONE YEAR PROGRAM— for college sophomores and juniors
☐ REGULAR DEGREE STUDIES— for college transfer students toward B.A. and B.Sc. degrees
☐ FRESHMAN YEAR— for U.S. high school graduates
☐ GRADUATE STUDIES— Master's, Doctoral and Training Graduate programs
☐ SUMMER COURSES— given in English

For Application and information, write
Office of Academic Affairs
American Friends of the Hebrew University
1140 Avenue of the Americas New York, NY 10036
(212) 840-5820

Name
Address
City/State/Zip
Present School

The rusty nail presents

Wed. March 2 — Heartbreaker
Thurs. march 3 — Cruise Control
March 4 — David Johansen
Sat. March 5 — Mitch Chakour

Tickets available at "For the Record" (in Faces) Amherst
Rt. 47, Sunderland, MA 665-4937
You must be 18 to enter.

Beachcomber Tours presents
14th ANNUAL
College Spring Break in
DAYTONA BEACH

$289* COMPLETE AT THE $195* COMPLETE BUS TOUR

JET TOUR
March 13-19
or March 19-26

BUS TOUR
March 11-20
or March 18-27

ALL TOURS INCLUDE:
LAND PACKAGE
- First Class Ocean Front Accommodations for Seven (7) Nights at the Days Inn, Beachcomber or the Quality Inn Reef. Right directly on the Strip in Daytona Beach.
- Welcome Party with plenty of FREE BEER
- Exclusive 14th Anniversary ID Card for discounts at Shops, Restaurants, Night Clubs etc.
- On campus reservation service.
- Services of the Beachcomber Staff.
- OPTIONAL Excursions: Walt Disney World Tour, New Epcot Center Adventure and more!

*$50 Deposit Required - Limited Space Available
*Hotel Supplement for Beachcomber 10th and Ocean

ALSO AVAILABLE
JET FLIGHT ONLY - $599*
BUS TRANSPORTATION ONLY - $129*
LAND PACKAGE ONLY - $199*
(Includes all taxi, gratuities and service)

SAVE $20.00
Don't be left out in the COLD!

Beachcomber Tours, Inc.
STEVEN
545-1671

DEPENDABILITY • QUALITY • SERVICE • SINCE 1969
room still available

THE GLOBE BOOKSHOP
Open 9 am til 9 pm
Monday - Saturday
Open 10 - 3
on Sunday
Fine New & Used Books Bought & Sold
30 Pleasant St. Northampton
584-0374

Recycle this Collegian

Hypercurricula

BROWN BAG THEOLOGY — "Ordination of Women" is today's topic for theological discussion, led by Rev. Phil Ward. All are welcome. 12:15 to 1:15 p.m. 428 Student Union.

UMASS PEACEMAKERS MEETING — Work on disarmament issues on campus — Proxy forms being pushed for rally in D.C. on March 7-8. Help always welcome. 6 p.m. CC 802.

TIME MANAGEMENT AND PROCRASTINATION — A one-session workshop designed to explore behavior of procrastination and to become aware of time management strategies. 4 to 6 p.m. 322 Berkshire House.

25-PLUS CLUB SOCIAL — Meet other older students in the relaxing atmosphere of the Faculty Club at Stockbridge House. Get answers to questions regarding non-traditional students. Open to all older students. For info. tel. 545-2684 or 253-7814. 4 p.m., Faculty Club.

"ISSUES FOR UMASS WOMEN" — A one credit colloq. is being offered by the Northeast/Sylvan Women's Center. Each week will feature a different workshop concerning the stresses of university life. 7 p.m., Northeast Women's Center located in the basement of Knowlton.

ISRAELI FOLK DANCING — Another wonderful week of Israeli folk dancing IS YOURS just by showing up at the Commonwealth Room this evening. It is open to all and lots of fun. 7:30 beginners, 8:30 all others. Commonwealth Room, S.U.

WHEELER GALLERY OPENING RECEPTION — VARIETY — works by Jeff Fitzgerald. Show runs from March 2 — March 16. All are welcome. 7:30 p.m., Wheeler Dorm B-7.

SPECTRUM MAGAZINE PRODUCTION STAFF — All members please check office bulletin board by Wednesday. Meeting. 5 p.m., S.U. 423 Communications Office.

SENATE WORKSHOPS — Lobbying and parliamentary procedure workshop will be held this week. These workshops are mandatory for senators. 6 p.m. 905-909 Campus Center.

SPANISH CLUB TERTULIA — Come practice your Spanish. Refreshments wil be served. 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. Herter 4th floor lobby.

CAMPUS CRUSADE FOR CHRIST — Everyone invited to a talk on the reliability of the Scriptures, the authenticity of the Bible. Come for great fellowship. 6:30 p.m. SBA 109.

WOMEN'S SPIRITUALITY GROUP — A supportive community in which women can share, question, and grow toward a new understanding of ourselves. 7 to 9 p.m. 428 Student Union.

UMASS AMATEUR RADIO ASSOCIATION MEETING — This will be a regular club meeting. Newcomers are welcome. Check the Campus Center schedule for room number. 4:30 p.m., Campus Center.

INVESTMENT CLUB MEETING — Stockbroker Neale Dobkin, from Shearson American Express will give a lecture on Technical analysis and options. A short meeting will follow this. New members welcome. 7 p.m. SBA Room 107.

Hypnotizing, magnetizing, mesmerizing, energizing, fascinating, captivating, exciting, amusing, entertaining, original Tom DeLuca.

Hypnosis that goes beyond entertainment and ESP, an original comic parody of ESP

"One of the most requested acts on college campuses today" —Newsweek

Appearing:
Student Union Ballroom
Sunday
March 6th
8:00pm, $1.00

Professors Gur and Dalia Ofer of the Hebrew University of Jerusalem will be available to talk to students on an individual basis about programs for American students at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem (1 year/Graduate/summer) from 11:30 am - 1 pm in the Dukes Room, Student Union, on Friday, March 4. For appointments, call Debbie at 545-2526 or drop by the Hillel Office (302 SU).

Professors Ober will also be speaking at the conference on Current issues facing Israel this weekend (March 4-6) at Mt. Holyoke College. All 5-College students are invited.

START YOUR FUTURE TODAY
Internship Planning Sessions
Are Being Held Daily
Through April 29
Plan now for summer and fall
Office of Internships
16 Curry Hicks
545-0727

The Columban Fathers extend
AN INVITATION
. . .to young Catholic men with idealism, courage and generosity to join over 800 Columban mission priests serving the poor and needy in eight Third World countries. . .and have a happy rewarding life.
For more information on becoming a missionary priest, contact:
Father Michael Harrison
COLUMBAN FATHERS
310 Adams St.
Quincy, Ma. 02169
(617) 472-1494

UMASS SKI CLUB
GOES DOWN
TO
FT. LAUDERDALE

SPRING BREAK 83
8 Days 7 Nights Luxurious Hotel on the Strip

Hotel only	W/ Motor Coach	W/Jet
$149 tax included	$275 tax included	$369 tax included

For more information 545-0437

Don't be abused by Price Games
The Ski Club has only luxury hotels and no hidden costs

CARROLL TRAVEL
Low Fares of the Week
ALL AMERICA SALE
$99* or less one way to most pts within U.S.
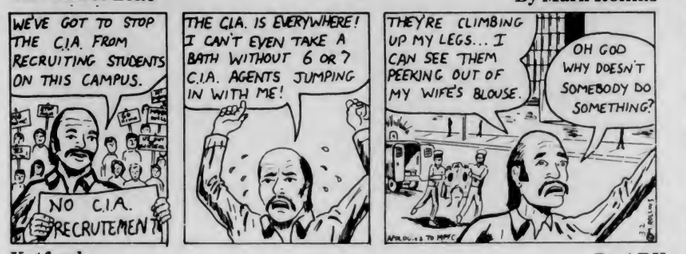
AMTRAK
Anywhere Fare
$125* round trip
*certain restrictions apply
256-8931 call our travel consultants for further information
15 Cowles Ln. Amherst

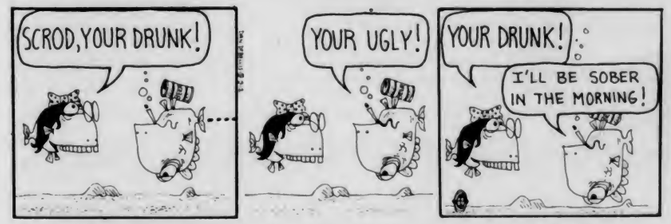
Bloom County — By Berke Breathed

The UMass Zone — By Mark Rollins



Katfood — By ARK

Scrod — By Dan DeBellis



After the Fall — By R. Miller

CROSSWORD

Edited by Margaret Farrar and Trude Jaffe
©1983 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

ACROSS
1 Escort
4 Orange-red stones
10 Capital of Manche
14 Sailors' saint
15 Godspeed
16 Early capital of Nicaragua
17 Son of Eve
18 Common mineral
20 Computer equipment
22 Hook's partner
23 Choice
24 North Atlantic hazard
25 Gap
28 Catalysts
32 "What's in ——?"
33 Earp's helpers
34 Parseghian
35 Kinfolk
36 "—— porridge hot..."
37 Hustles
38 Samuel's mentor
39 Kind of laugh
40 Men of means
41 Played, as music
43 False doctrine
44 Derby
45 Dromedary's feature
46 Resembling a bear
49 Legal writ
53 Transparent wrapper
55 Like some bowls
56 Faithful, for Burns
57 Turkic tribesman
58 Diamond figure
59 Baksheesh
60 Be frugal
61 Scoria

DOWN
1 Jacob's wife
2 Exile isle
3 Part of U.S.A.
4 The dumps
5 Desert
6 Worship
7 Laugh, in Montmartre
8 Room
9 Realty deal
10 Farrier's tool
11 Care for 12 Prospector's find
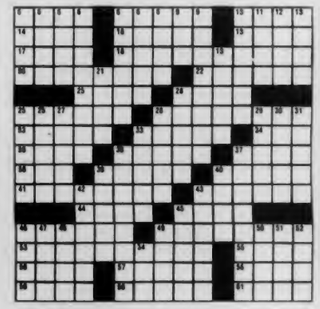
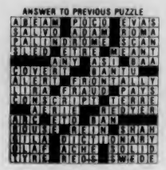
13 Lulu
19 Oversize
21 Abate
24 Nickname for Elizabeth
25 Type of beam
26 Feeble
27 Vacation home
28 Explorer Amundsen
29 Artless
30 Sandalwoods
31 Pert
33 Martinique volcano
36 Impressions through senses
37 Whalers' gear
39 Bingo relative
40 Rope material
42 Practices
43 Part of H.H.H. ——?"
45 Province of China
46 USC rival
47 Spool
48 Bridge coup
49 Queen of Egyptian gods
50 Wicked
51 Zola work
52 Shake —— (hurry)
54 Something to wear



ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE



WEATHER

Rain ending this morning and becoming partly cloudy. Highs in the 40s. Fair tonight. Lows in the mids 20 to the low 30s. Tomorrow, sunny and mild. Highs in the 50s.

D.C. MENU

LUNCH
Hamburg on Roll, Egg-roll/Duc Sauce, Soy Sauce

DINNER
BBQ Beef Cubes, Baked Cod/Orange Sauce, Squash Bake

BASICS LUNCH
Golden Burgers, Egg-groll/Duc Sauce, Soy Sauce

BASICS DINNER
Baked Cod/Orange Sauce, Squash Bake

Help Wanted

The Collegian has two job openings for this semester. Both require a little experience, but we will train.

Associate Managing Editor

Edit Collegian news copy, AP wire one night per week. Newspaper writing or editing experience required.

Layout Technician

Design pages of the Collegian one night per week. Arts or design experience preferred.

Interested UMass students should apply before 3 p.m. Friday, March 4, to the Collegian, 113 Campus Center.

The Collegian is an equal opportunity employer.

Collegianites
Staff Meeting
7 p.m. Thursday
in the newsroom
Important Night Graphics Meeting
6:45 p.m. Thursday

Jumbo Head California
Iceberg Lettuce
FREE
WITH THIS COUPON
And $10.00 purchase exclusive of coupon items 50 cents items excluded by law. Good at Northampton, Southampton 50 Hadley Big Y stores thru Sat., Mar. 5, 1983 LC 111

Strictly Fresh Dozen
Large White Eggs
FREE
WITH THIS COUPON
And $10.00 purchase exclusive of coupon items 50 cents items excluded by law. Good at Northampton, Southampton 50 Hadley Big Y stores thru Sat., Mar. 5, 1983 LC 112

DOUBLE MANUFACTURERS COUPONS All Week at Big Y Details in Store

WE DO THE MOST
With E-X-P-A-N-D-E-D Service Depts.

d'amour's BIG

USDA Choice
Beef Chuck First Cut Blade
Chuck Roast
99¢ lb

FRESH FROM OUR DELICATESSEN FRESH FROM OUR BAKERY DEPT

Genuine, Freshly Sliced to Order Imported Ham
2.59 lb

Freshly Baked
Italian Bread
3 16 oz Loaves $1

All Flavors, Half Gallon
Sealtest Ice Cream
99¢
WITH THIS COUPON
And $10.00 purchase exclusive of coupon items 50 cents items excluded by law. Good at Northampton, Southampton 50 Hadley Big Y stores thru Sat., Mar. 5, 1983 LC 114

Big 'Y' 1-Pound Pkg.
Sliced Bacon
99¢
WITH THIS COUPON
And $10.00 purchase exclusive of coupon items 50 cents items excluded by law. Good at Northampton, Southampton 50 Hadley Big Y stores thru Sat., Mar. 5, 1983 LC 115

YOU'LL FIND ONE OR OUR STORES CONVENIENTLY LOCATED NEAR YOU...
Sale starts Mon., Feb. 28 thru Sat., Mar. 5, 1983
Not responsible for typographical errors. We reserve the right to limit quantities to dealers otherwise noted
NORTHAMPTON•N. King Street
SOUTHAMPTON•10 College Hwy.
HADLEY•Russell St., Rte. 9

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Monday - Friday • Deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10 % • discount • Phone number FREE

AUTO FOR SALE

67 VW Conv inspected needs work $400 or BO 323-5918 leave message

For sale 1970 Ford Torino - 45,000 original miles needs work - $500 or BO call 545-3500 before 5:00 549-4125 after 5:00 ask for Dan

73 Pontiac Grend AM 4 door cruise control climate control bucket seats excellent condition $800 or BO 82,000 miles 549-2785 evenings

1976 Suberu DL 5-speed AM/FM 30-35 mpg, new tires, $1395 or BO 549-0569

80 Detsun 310GX excellent condition. Rear defrost/wiper stereo AM/FM cassette one owner $4500 549-5666

Grend Prix 72 very dependable 350.00 BO 549-3503 must sell soon.

1973 Cutless 4 dr 84000 miles stereo well maintained $1150 Ron 549-2656

CAPE COD SUMMER RENTAL

Duplex newly redone two bedrooms sleep four includes utilities. Ideal for a group of 4 or 8 $2550. 253-7436

COUNSELING - LOW STUDENT FEE

Licensed, experienced, caring humanist No connection U Mass. First session free. Allan Black, 253-5036

ENTERTAINMENT

Reckedisc Entertainment Agency Inc. Bands and discjockeys guaranteed student functions 256-0739

Professional DJs for less $99 special ends March 15. Book now before price increase 549-4405

M & M Music Unlimited Professional DJ's for all occasions call Mike 546-5259

Magician - The Great Charles will entertain at any occasion call Bruce 549-1177 after 6 PM

FOR RENT

Cape Cod Summer Seasonal Rentals: W. Yarmouth & Dennis. 1, 2, 3, & 4 bedroom units. Rent direct from owners & save. 617/528-8300 or 771-2233.

FOR SALE

Tickets for Eric Clapton's only NE show best offer 546-8682 keep trying

Hegstrom Bass $280 Kustom 75w amp $230 Roland synthesizer $450 549-0453

Microscoustics multisxis FRM-3 bookshelf speakers. Excellent condition $125 pair call 549-6032

Sweaterladies are back with spring stuff! 40% off retail 3/3 CC 11 - 4

Kinks Concert! 2 tickets March 31st Worcester Centrum good seats 546-4419

Round trip air ticket to Palm beach open time schedule $200 or BO Steve 549-6974

Sunglasses: Raybans and Vuarnets at low student prices. Call Andy or Bruce at 549-1177 look for our table in the CC Concourse Wed.

Electric typewriter one year old $200 sewing machine $60 call 256-6174

1974 Ford Van - Runs well, will probably run forever $650 firm. Steve 6-6064

Seiko men's digital quartz watches reg $129 now $60 call Rick 253-3598

HELP WANTED

Oversees Jobs - Summer/year round. Europe, S. Amer., Australia, Asia. All fields. $500-$1200 monthly. Sight-seeing. Free info. Write IJC Box 52-MA-1 Corona Del Mar, CA 92625

CRUISE SHIP JOBS! $14-$28,000 Caribean, Hawaii, World. Call for Guide, Directory, Newsletter. 916-722-1111 ext Massachusettes

COUNSELORS: Camp Wayne, northeastern Pennsylvania. Co-ed childrens camp 6/23-8/23/83. On campus interviews March 2nd. Friendly, warm atmosphere, 12 Allevard, Lido Beach, NY 11561. Include school phone number. Campus Rep: Wendy Edenfield 545-0939

Crusie Ship Jobs: $14 - $28,000 Carribean, Hawaii, World. Call for Guide, Directory, Newsletter. 1-916-722-1111 ext Massachusettes

Applications now being accepted for part time nights, at Kay Jewelers, Hampshire Mall

General Office Help. Must type 50 wpm +. Work Study preferred. Call Jenny at UPC 545-2892

INSTRUCTION

Know your car. Basic Auto Mechanics Workshop. Classroom theory & shop. Limited enrollment 253-2098

LOST

Keys on blue-clip keyring with words Le Chateau 546-8161

Glasses in a red case please call Helene 665-2848 Reward.

Big blue scarf - 1st floor bathroom GRTW Feb. 16th $ reward $ call Thea 546-5504

Blue Eastpack Bookbag with Psychology and Law book very important Reward 549-0157, 546-5009

Did you mistakenly take my coat from Poor Richard's, Friday Feb. 26? Long, black, wool coat, size 5, brand Peabody. Please call 253-5339

Lost - gold bracelet, Bartlett - Thompson Hall area. I really want it returned - it belonged to my mother. Reward. 323-5900

Long brown corduroy coat lost Friday night at Bluewall. Reward. If found, call 546-7898.

Jodi Leong, vocalist, Mark Raszak, pianist: TOC Lounge, Fri. & Sat., March 4 & 5.

MICROCOMPUTER/TERMINAL RENTALS

COMPUTERM
Terminal wo/monitor $130/rest of sem.
Terminal wo/monitor $160/sem.
Terminal (complete) $180/sem. @ 546-7672

MOTORCYCLES

77 Kawasaki KZ 400 less than 6000 mi runs & looks new 2 helmets must be seen! $950 546-5290

NUCLEAR FREEZE

Proxy forms for Nuclear Freeze are available in 428 SU or at Peace table on Wed & Fri. Out of state students encouraged stop by!

PERSONALS

Guiterist wanting to join bend. In Southwest area preferably. All kinds of music. Call John 6-8800

Red, You brighten up the days Love Me!

Write-in Jim Finkle for SGA President.

To the fantastic new pledges of Chi Omega congratulations and get psyched. We love you all the sisters and pledges of Chi Omega

To my scarecrow alies toastman hope the next six are even better. Now that we know it let's celebrate in the sunshine Happy Anniversary to the most special person in my life - I love you love the cutest squirrel on campus

The "A" train is on campus. Get it on with Allen and Ahern!

Don't miss the hypnotist Sunday March 6 8:00 PM SUB $1.00 sponsored by GPC

Fischgesicht - Yay, Brenda, you're 20. Of course I'm enthused! Have a fantastic day and don't forget to buy me my booze! Dein Schatz, Nike

Go Down with someone you know & trust
luxury hotels, no hidden costs & no BS
Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. Spring Break 83

UMass Ski Club Goes Down 545-3437

*MovieTAPS!! wed. March 2, Eng. East Aud., 7, 9, 11 p.m.

Issingrhu Karate Club organizational meeting March 2 Wednesday CC 911 7:00 new members welcome PE classes especially

Squint - So, so sorry about Thursday night. Promise i won't let it happen again. Please forgivel Love, Cat

Rich - 7 months until we are together for ever. I truly love you. Always, Judy

Vote for experience Jay Stone and Jim Rudolph Central Area Co-Presidents

Vote Lori Bellofatto Central Area Vice President

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Dissertations, Theses, Cases, Papers, guaranteed acceptance, low rates, Nancy 5-0392, 584-7924

RIDE NEEDED

Ride needed to Conn. on Fri the 4th So. Windsor-Vernon area or to UConn call 6-9648 after 5 pm or before 10:30 am ask for Adrianne

ROOMMATE WANTED

We need an easygoing female to join our sunny Amherst home please call us at 256-8225

Roommate wanted in one bedroom Puffton apartment immediately summer option call Johanna 549-4827

SERVICES

PAPER DUE? CAN'T WRITE? Tutor -english composition and grammar reasonable rates 6-9289

Typing - Fast - Reliable $1/pg. IBM Selectric!! nancy 549-1642

SPRINGBREAK

Daytona Beech $269 March 19-26 Round trip jet and hotel directly on the beach! Montreal $59 plus tax and service. March 19-21; 26-28 round trip deluxe motor coach 3 days/2 nights in the Quality Inn downtown includes welcome party. Also! Half-price Delta Airlines coupons! 253-7625

THE EXORCIST

Wednesday, March 2nd. S.U.B. 4:30, 6:45, 9:00, 11:15. $1.50 a show. $1.00 at 4:30

TRAVEL

Florida direct by van. 3/19-27. $148. for round trip - wine & cheese - accom. info call now - S.S. Van Lines @ 617-724-8810

Ski the world's best powder. Utah! Trip includes: round trip airfare 7 - nights lodging at Temple Square Hotl 5-day all Utah lift ticket free rental car with unlimited mileage all taxes and services. All for $479.00 contact UMass Ski Club 545-3437

UMass Ski Club goes north
Spring Break 83 March 20-25
Stowe. Ski club capital of the East.
Only $159 includes: transportation, hot tub party, beer & wine parties, 5 day lift ticket, all taxes & gratuities & much, much, more. For more info contact the UMass Ski Club Rm 430A Student Union or call 545-3437

Spring Break Riders Wanted to Florida couple preferred call eves. 253-3908

Last chance Bermuda $315 - call 256-6941 after 6

VOTE GROOM

Vote Groom Dave Groom for SGA President

WANTED

Class rings, gold and silver jewelry and coins. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant, Amherst, 256-0710

Help $50 reward for helping me by your parents unwanted second car 253-7189

Two or three bedroom Puffton to rent from June till August call Letty 546-7464

Looking to rent dorm - size refrigerator call Nadia 546-5901

Cash for your records, tapes 545-2836 (ask for Jaromir/leave message)

Records LPs cash or trade Dynamite Records 584-1580

Programming Producer wanted for cable system call GPC: 545-2733

Extra-fine pair of used stereo speakers 500 dollar cash limit 527-5714

WANTED TO RENT

2 or 3 Bedroom Townehouse or Puftonl to rent from June on Marilyn 549-1377

Student Telephone Directories Are Here

On-Campus Students: will receive directories through their dormitories.

Off-Campus and Greek Students: can pick up directories on the Campus Center Concourse.

Because o limited number ore available, please pick up one directory per hone or dormitory room.

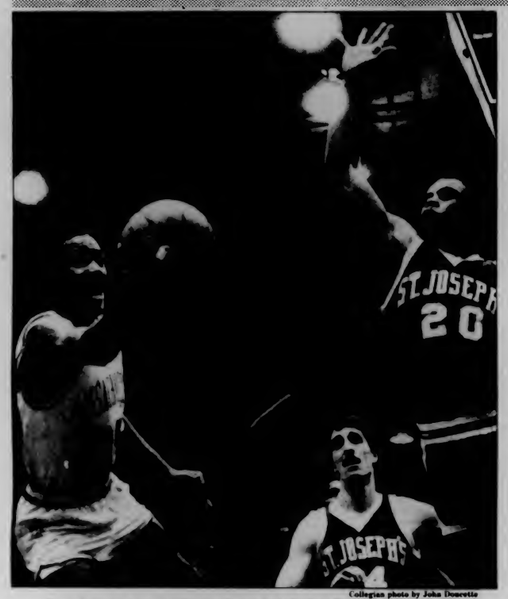
IDB TIPS a service of the Dean of Students Office 227 Whitmore

WILLIAM PETER BLATTY'S
THE EXORCIST
Directed by WILLIAM FRIEDKIN
R From Warner Bros.
SUB
Wed. Mar. 2
4:30, 6:45, 9, 11:15
1.50 all shows
*$1. 4;30 show

UMASS SKI CLUB
Goes North to Stowe VERMONT
SKI CAPITAL of the EAST.
March 20 - 25 159.00
Includes: Transportation
5 nights hotel accomodations
5 full breakfasts
color TV & steam bath in every room
5 days skiing
Free Hot Tub Party
2 Free Beer & Wine Parties
Indoor Heated Pool
for more info 5-3437

Sports

Jeff Cohen, Executive Vice President of the Boston Breakers, will discuss the operations of the Boston Breakers from the front office perspective, tonight at 8 p.m., Rm. C.C. 165-69.



Collegian photo by John Doucette

Darryl Carter goes airborne for a shot during Saturday night's disappointing double overtime loss to St. Joseph's at the Cage.

UMass wants revenge

By JIM FLOYD
Collegian Staff

The Minutemen will have a score to settle tonight when they take the floor of McGonigle Hall on the campus of the Temple University Owls.

The Owls (certainly another candidate for the All-Bogus Nickname team) are the only team that has been able to come into the Curry Hicks Cage this season and soundly defeat the Minutemen. Their visit, during intersession, resulted in a 19 point loss, 73-54.

But, that was January 12. Donald Russell was sidelined with an injury and UMass lacked the maturity to adjust to playing without the services of their star guard.

Today, calendar buffs, is March 2 and this is, quite simply, a different team. This is a team that has come into its own. The Minutemen are a much better ballclub than they were back on that bleak winter night.

And, Donald Russell should be back in the lineup.

"He (Russell) practiced yesterday for the first time," said coach Tom McLaughlin. "If he is able to play I would think he would start."

Russell did not start in the classic double overtime loss the Minutemen suffered against St. Joseph's University this past Saturday in the Cage, but he did come off the bench and logged 27 minutes of playing time.

"We brought Donald in when we felt we needed him to settle things down a bit," said McLaughlin.

The starting backcourt tandom, Darryl Carter and Ron Young, did do a pretty effective job handling the ball.

Offensively, freshman John Hempel has turned into a scoring machine as of late and when left open in three point land, can bust a game wide open with long bombs. In fact, Hempel leads the Atlantic Ten in scoring percentage from downtown.

Recordwise, by the way, UMass is now 3-9 in league play and 7-18 overall while the Owls possess an identical league record of 3-9 and a 10-14 overall mark.

The Minutemen will also be seeking to pick up their first win on the road. (That means that the seven games that they have won were won at home.)

Game time will be at 7:30 p.m. since Owls only come out at night.

Women gymnasts win

By ELLEN RICHARD
Collegian Staff

It was not one of the best meets for the University of Massachusetts women's gymnastics team, who have a rescheduled meet tonight at 7:30, but they persevered to win the match against Southern Connecticut State College, 168.6-167.4.

"It was a rough meet for us," coach Ken Adnerson said. "Beam really made the difference for us because we wer behind 1.4 points and we beat them by 1.75 (in beam) so that really turned the meet around for us."

Christie Clark-Deary of Connecticut won the vaulting event with a 9.05. Robin Low had problems with one of her vaults and took third with an 8.75.

The Minutewomen had a few more complications on the uneven bars and lost it to Southern by a point. Clark-Deary took the event with a 9.15. Karen Knapp and Sue Allen both placed second, each with 8.85's.

UMass was trailing Southern at this point but did not get discouraged. The team won the balance beam event by almost two points and the floor exercises by almost one point.

"It shows the kind of talent we have on the team," Anderson said. "It's exactly what made the difference in the meet. They got their heads on straight and pushed through the beam and the floor exercises and just pulled us away."

Barbara Lord finished first for UM in the balance beam with an 8.85. Low placed second with an 8.65.

The women had fine performances in the floor exercises and won the event with 42.7 points. Low came in second with an 8.8 behind Clark-Deary, who had a 9.05. Knapp was third with an 8.65.

Allen placed second in the all-around with 34 points, her career high. Low scored 33.85 and Knapp had 33.55 points.

The Minutewomen will compete tonight in Boyden against Springfield in a meet that was snowed out on February 12. The rescheduled match will begin at 7:30 and will be a close one. Coach Anderson said he is expecting a winning performance from the women.

Bob Goulart a late bloomer

By ELLEN RICHARD
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts gymnast Bob Goulart said he has felt a lot of pressure in his life during the past few months while trying to balance school, gymnastics and a full time job.

"I feel a lot of pressure from all sides," the senior computer systems engineer major said. "I'd be in the gym for two or three hours, run three to five miles and teach trampoline classes. Then I'd stay up all night studying. Last semester was the hardest semester I ever had."

Since last summer, Goulart, co-captain of the UMass men's gym team, has been working to develop a programming system through independent study at UMass. The project requires approximately five hours a night and, after a few months of testing, it is now in its programming stage.

Goulart was born in Dorchester and moved to Natick in seventh grade. He did not start "playing around" with gymnastics until his junior year in high school.

"I imagined gymnastics to be all these people running around in tights and I said I didn't want to do that. I basically got into it because all of my friends were getting into it," he said.

After trying the high bar and vaulting in high school, he settled into parallel bars and still rings in college. Besides gymnastics in high school, he did pole vaulting. His high score in pole vaulting is a memorable one because after vaulting over he landed between the mats and broke his leg.

Putting aside his plans of going into the Navy, he went to UMass to have a good time but gymnastics was especially important to him.

"At first gymnastics was the first thing on my mind," he said. "For some reason it's just a sport that grabs you. You have to like being in front of a crowd and I definitely like being in front of a crowd."

Because Goulart got started late in gymnastics, he had to work hard to catch up with his teammates, most of whom started in junior high school. His high school coach worked with only the trained gymnasts who had experience, but Goulart was different.

"Usually after their sophomore year I say, 'You can work out but don't bother me,' " said his high school coach Robert Theriaque, now a gymnastics judge. "He was the exception. He worked outside the gym to improve. He worked extremely hard to get where he is today."

Goulart has been captain of the UMass team for two years and said that he got the title "Probably because I threw the best parties." When asked if it were his leadership, he joked, "Yeah, I have a big mouth so they figured, 'if we can't shut him up, he might as well be captain.' "

"In gymnastics he always comes through with clutch performances," Umass coach Roy Johnson said. "But it's very hard to get him to work what he has to work. He's real easy going."

Engineering has taken time away from his gymnastics. Although he said he cannot picture himself in the "real world," he has to think about what he is going to do when he graduates next January.

"I want to get into hardware computer design," he said. "It's like circuit designing. It's constructing a computer. There's a lot of programming in it and it gets a little frustrating but there's more money in it. I have to think of that."

Collegian photo by Jim Powers

Women swimmers do well

By BOB BROCK
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts women's swimming team broke five school records and won two relays enroute to a sixth place finish in the New England Swimming and Diving Championships, held last weekend at Springfield College.

As expected, Boston College took the team championship for the second year in a row, tallying 724 points, easily outdistancing runner-up Maine, who scored 630. The host team, Springfield, took third place honors scoring 564 points followed by New Hampshire (508), Smith (449), and UMass (413). The University of Connecticut finished seventh in the 17-team field with 299 points.

"We had some good swims and some disappointing ones," said UMass coach Valerie Turtle. "But we were aiming for the top six, so we did make our goal, we would have just liked to catch Smith," she added.

The Minutewomen did turn in some excellent performances. The 200-yard freestyle relay team of Jenn Nicolai, Anne Whitlock, Connie Anderson and Liz Feinberg churned out a 1:40.10, good for first place and a UMass record. The 400-yard free relay of Nicolai, Anderson, Feinberg and Martha Samsel also took a gold in a UMass record of 3:40.93, just nipping UMaine at the touchpad.

Three other UMass records were set. Whitlock, Laurie Keen, Maura Sweeney and Anderson combined to take third place in the 200-yard medley relay in 1:55.30. Keen and Sweeney also swam legs with Jennifer Black and Feinberg on the 400 medley relay, which finished seventh in a UM record of 4:15.45.

Keen also set a new mark of 2:34.52 in the 200 breastroke, where she finished third. The freshman finished fourth in both the 50 (:32.97) and the 100-yard breastrokes (1:11.62).

UMass had other fine showings too. Nicolai took a second in the 100 freestyle and a third in the 50 freestyle. She also added a ninth place in the 50 butterfly. Anderson placed 4th in the 50 freestyle and Whitlock took third in the 50 backstroke recording a :29.36. Other UMass swimmers to score points in their events were Debbie Chisholm, finishing 15th in the 100 backstroke, Maura Sweeney, 15th in the 50 butterfly and the 800 yard free relay which finished ninth.

The UMass divers fared well as Jean Bushee finished fifth on the one-meter board with 361.30 points. Gina Perrone was a close sixth, tallying 357.55. On the three-meter board, Bushee placed eighth (356.90) and Perrone ninth (349.35).

Looking back on the meet, Coach Turtle was reasonably happy with her team's showing.

"We didn't have some good starts in some events and it hurt us in some events but we did move up from last year and we did set five new school records. So it was a good New England's for us," she said.

Ten UMass swimmers will be going to the first-ever ECAC Swimming Championships this weekend at Iona College. The meet is open to all divisions of the NCAA, so Turtle is not sure just who UMass will be up against.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
Volume CXII, Issue 88 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003 (413) 545-3500 Thursday, March 3, 1983

Senate debates reorganization, draft registration

Realignment referendum taken off SGA ballot

By JOHN O'CONNELL and MARK J. WELCH
Collegian Staff

The Undergraduate Student Senate last night rejected a committee's recommendation to put a revised version of a referendum to reorganize the senate on next week's presidential election ballot.

The senate voted to accept an amendment to the committee's recommendation, delaying the referendum to an April ballot already scheduled to consider funding of the State Student Association of Massachusetts. But the meeting was adjourned before the amended recommendation could be approved because the majority of the senators had already left.

Earlier in the day, the Governmental Affairs committee of the senate recommended that the question be made non-binding and be put on next week's ballot. The revised referendum will ask students if they favor reducing the senate by one-third and electing senators by area rather than by dormitory, if the senate approves.

After hearing arguments that the revised question would have just five day's publicity, the senate accepted an amendment to delay the referendum until an April ballot scheduled to ask students' opinion of increasing the Student Activities Fee to fund the State Student Association of Massachusetts.

Though emphasizing, "we can't ignore 6,000 students' signatures," Student Government Association President Jim Murphy argued that students would vote in the later election if the issue was important to them.

Also, earlier in the evening, the senate unanimously approved a resolution opposing the full-costing plan approved be the Board of Trustees last month.

The resolution requests the Trustees exempt the Student Activities Trust Fund (SATF) from the 2.4 percent "tax" they placed on all University trust funds.

Senate Treasurer Lisa Potter explained the SATF already pays for a number of central costs, including accounting personnel and Physical Plant overhead. In addition, Potter said some money in the SATF, which spends about $3.7 million annually, is transferred in from other trust funds who will be also paying the 2.4 percent "tax."

Criticizing the "proliferation of surcharges and recharges," Potter asked that the central costs already paid be taken into account before assessing the 2.4 percent charge, or else that the SATF be completely exempted from the charges.

Collegian photos by Katie Walters

Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey, above, speaks on the Solomon amendment requiring men of draft age to show proof of registration before being given financial aid, while Mindy Ordway, below, recommends the Senate place a referendum question for its reorganization on the ballot.

Duffey urges repeal of Solomon amendment

By JIM FINKLE
Collegian Staff

When Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey attended his first Undergraduate Student Senate meeting last semester, he sat on the floor because there were no seats available in the crowded room. Last night, however, he remained standing for nearly an hour as he answered questions from students.

The evening began with many of the students nodding their heads in agreement with Duffey as he responded to a question on his position on the Soloman amendment.

Terming the law which requires students seeking financial aid to prove they have registered with the Selective Service System "a cowardly amendment passed in the dark of the night," Duffey said he would work for its repeal.

"Many Members of Congress are ashamed of the amendment, but it is there in law," Duffey said. "I hope it will be repealed before the spring."

He urged students to work for repeal of the law by requesting the University of Massachusetts Faculty Senate to pass a motion asking the state's congressional delegation to work to repeal the bill.

Duffey received criticism from three members of the audience when they questioned him on the policy regarding the use of University funds for scholars to travel to the Republic of South Africa.

"I am firmly against any restrictions on travel," Duffey said. "Many scholars and students can serve the cause of human rights by their travel."

Duffey also said he supports naming the Tower Library in honor of the late black civil rights leader W.E.B. DuBois. The collection of DuBois' letters and other writings is housed in the library.

In response to a question on whether Duffey feels co-ed bathrooms are still an issue with students, he said the topic was not high on his priority list.

"I have never understood the furor in the first place," Duffey said. "I understand for some people it is a serious issue. I hope it can be resolved without my having to deal with it."

Prompted by a question regarding the status of Office of Planning and Budget Director Marie M. Reid, Duffey said of her special assignment to the School of Education, "I do not think either of us would describe it as a matter that has been resolved. It is an arrangement she finds satisfactory. I still hope she returns to the budget office."

Future can be different for women in society, poet tells Smith crowd

By BECKY THATCHER
Collegian Staff

We can create alternative institutions if "we have a vision of what might be," a feminist poet and author last night said to a Smith College audience.

In a speech titled "Owning our past and claiming a feminist future," Marge Piercy urged people to have a vision and boldly imagine a future where technology serves the ordinary people, instead of an elite few.

Piercy said history has not accurately portrayed women because it has been a story told by men.

"History has not told the story of women except for queens and a few women who forced their way into effectiveness," she said.

Piercy said growing up in the fifties was being stuck in a perenial adolescence, as "change seemed inconceivable."

"It was the reign of General Foods, General Motors, General Eisenhower and general miasma," she said.

Piercy also spoke of trying to write one of her most famous novels, Women on the Edge of Time.

"The hardest part was trying to imagine a future without sexism, racism, contempt of the poor and hate of the rich," she said. "I had to try to imagine a society that valued people more than things; a society that stressed cooperation and creativity."

She said society already respects some kinds of creativity.

"We respect people who juggle the stock market and rob working people of their pay," she said.

Piercy said we have to fight being coerced by a patriarchal culture, and pursue technology which helps the people.

We can not go to the mass media to find images of a desireable future because big conglomerates have bought the publishing houses and do not publish what might offend, Piercy said.

"Much popular fiction is sold in drug stores because it is in fact a drug. I urge you all to support political novelists by buying them and if necessary, reading them," Piercy said.

Piercy concluded her speech by saying every battle must be fought.

"Somebody has to fight against nuclear power, somebody has to try to improve school lunches, somebody has to fight sexual harrassment. And it all has to be done this morning," she said. "Let us make a future whose history is one of our struggle."

Having issued budget, Dukakis visits UMass

Compiled from staff and Associated Press reports

Gov. Michael S. Dukakis, who yesterday filed his proposed $7.3 billion state budget with the legislature, is scheduled this morning to take part with Lt. Gov. John Kerry and cabinet members in the Western Massachusetts Economic Development Conference at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst.

UMass Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey is scheduled to deliver a welcoming address to the conference at 9:30. After speeches by several invited guests, Dukakis is scheduled to discuss economic "Priorities, Prospects and Processes," and be followed by Kerry, who will speak on "The Federal Perspective" of the state's economy.

Dukakis cabinet members scheduled to speak include Evelyn Murphy, secretary of economic affairs, who will chair a workshop on economic development; Frederick Salvucci, secretary of transportation, who will chair a transportation workshop, and Amy Anthony, secretary of communities and development, who will chair a workshop on community development. Other Cabinet members include Sharon Pollard, secretary of energy, James Hoyte, secretary of environmental affairs, and Paula Gold, secretary of consumer affairs, who will co-chair a workshop on energy and the environment. All events are open to the public.

In filing his state budget recommendations yesterday, Dukakis stressed that his plans required legislative cooperation — not always forthcoming — to succeed. Thus a hard sell is expected, particularly on the revenue side of the ledger, which requires legislative approval of gasoline and cigarette tax increases and a variety of other measures.

Dukakis' bill, according to an administration source, depends on new revenue-raising initiatives for about $215 million. More than $100 million more of what has been described as a revenue gap is offset by management savings steps, improved tax forecasts and tax enforcement and other measures, the source said.

The administration has avoided "any tax increases that will affect all citizens across the board," Frank Keefe, Dukakis' secretary of administration and finance, said Tuesday.

Keefe also acknowledged, "It's fair to say that in some quarters there seems to be interest in across-the-board tax increases."

Senate President William M. Bulger recently proposed a sales tax increase, and Senate Ways and Means Chairman Chester G. Atkins issued a report on Monday that said Massachusetts' recovery from the recession will be slower than the nation's.

World and national news

O'Neill pushes health care

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., said yesterday he favors adding $200 million for health care programs to a $4.6 billion emergency jobs program, and wants to strip out "pork barrel" provisions setting aside transportation funds to areas represented by key lawmakers.

O'Neill made his comments as Republicans drafted their own alternative jobs bill, a move one aide conceded was doomed to defeat when the heavily Democratic House votes today.

By his comments, O'Neill indicated the $4.6 billion measure would increase in size by the time it is finally approved, although he said he wants to avoid a veto confrontation with President Reagan. Reagan has endorsed a $4.3 billion plan for jobs as well as food and shelter for the needy.

Rep. David Obey, D-Wis., is leading the move to increase spending on the Democratic bill by $200 million for maternal and child health care, community based health centers and other programs. Comments by O'Neill and other Democratic leaders indicate that increase is almost certain to be approved.

As for transportation, O'Neill said a move by Rep. James Howard, D-N.J., to increase spending for mass transit and distribute it more evenly around the country "would pass overwhelmingly on the floor."

All of the $110 million now in the bill for mass transit would go to areas represented by members of the Appropriations Committee or O'Neill's own area of Boston and its suburbs.

"I think it is wrong to do that," O'Neill said. "I will personally tell them...I personally was disappointed in what they did."

AP Laserphoto

Alviso, Calif. residents yesterday use their bodies to shore up a levee while they wait for more sand bags. The town's residents were evacuated and Alviso roads were being closed by the hour following heavy rains throughout the area.

Congress gets EPA records

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — President Reagan yesterday ordered that Congress be granted access to all Environmental Protection Agency documents sought by House and Senate committees investigating the agency.

But the president refused to appoint an independent commission to conduct an impartial investigation into allegations of agency misconduct.

Deputy White House Press Secretary Larry Speakes, who relayed Reagan's orders to reporters, said Reagan continues to stand behind EPA Administrator Anne Burford despite calls from several congressmen for her resignation.

In a separate interview with The Associated Press, White House chief of staff James Baker said "there are no present plans" to fire the controversial administrator.

Speakes said Reagan, relaxing at his mountain top, received a briefing this morning on the EPA situation from Baker.

As a result, Speakes said, the president directed that Congress "shall continue to have complete access to any and all documents they seek in conjunction with oversight of the Environmental Protection Agency."

El Salvador receives Pope

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — Pope John Paul II arrived yesterday with messages of hope and peace for Central America — a region shattered by violence that has killed 100,000 people in the past five years.

The pontiff's plane touched ground at 3:24 p.m. 4:24 p.m. EST after a 14-hour flight from the Vatican with a stopover in Portugal. Sirens sounded to mark John Paul's arrival as his custom Alitalia jetliner taxied on the tarmac.

Hundreds of thousands of residents of this heavily Roman Catholic nation of 2.5 million — an oasis of political calm in a troubled area — lent a festive atmosphere to the Lenten season, generally a time of penance for the faithful.

John Paul kissed the ground at San Jose's Juan Santamaria airport, repeating a gesture from his three previous trips to Latin America, and then rode 18 miles to the city to meet with Central American bishops. Rain stopped just before the arrival, but skies remained overcast.

Cheering Costa Ricans waved and held aloft signs saying "Te queremos, Juan Pablo," Spanish for "We love you, John Paul." All business shut down at noon, and the government virtually stopped operations for the rest of the week, as the whole country appeared to want to make the best impression possible.

Costa Rica was playing up the religious aspect of the event. "We do not have to use his visit for propaganda purposes," said a government official. He asked not to be identified, apparently so he would not offend neighboring countries the pope will visit, where sensitive political issues are involved.

Digest

By the Associated Press

Haig cites Falklands as cause of downfall

BOSTON - Former Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. says his failure to negotiate an end to the Falkland Islands war gave "preditators " in the Reagan administration an excuse to push him out.

"A little blood dripped from the veins for predators to feast at," Haig told The Boston Globe in what the newspaper said was his first interview since he left office eight months ago.

Haig told the Globe his resignation followed a long period of dissatisfaction and dissension as a member of the Reag. cabinet. Haig also said he planned to leave his job after the November elections, but his offer to resign was quickly accepted by the president.

"The president took up my option...because clearly his counselors said now was the time," he said. "There were many, many contributors to that. Not only minute-by-minute tensions in the Middle East, but also the Falklands situation."

Radiation not needed for children's leukemia

BOSTON — Routine doses of radiation to the head can be avoided in treating most cases of childhood leukemia, because drugs alone will prevent the disease from recurring just as effectively, researchers say.

Children with acute lymphocytic leukemia, or ALL, are often given head radiation to keep the disease from spreading to their central nervous systems.

Doctors have become increasingly concerned about the effects of radiation on the brain. Two studies have shown that youngsters' IQs typically drop 12 points after having the treatment.

The latest research, conducted on 506 young leukemia victims, compared the use of head radiation with a drug called methotrexate. Some received head radiation plus spinal injections of methotrexate, while the rest got both spinal and intravenous doses of the drug but not radiation.

When the risk of further disease was considered to be moderate, the relapse rate was the same in both groups — 27 percent during 40 months of follow-up.

Curable infection might be causing infertility

BOSTON — A common, easily curable bacterial infection appears to be a major cause of infertility, and treating it may allow many couples to have children, research shows.

The bacteria is often passed through sexual contact, and its symptoms are so mild that most victims do not even realize that they have it.

Dr. Attila Toth said that about a third of all childless couples seen at his infertility clinic at New York Hospital have this infection is cured with antibiotics, 60 percent of them are able to achieve pregnancy within three years.

The culprit is a germ called Tmycoplasma or ureaplasma urealyticum that invades the genital tract in both men and women.

At least 15 percent of all married couples in the United States are infertile, and Toth says, "It's my belief that at least half of all infertility cases are due to infection, and a large percentage of these are due to mycoplasma."

Toth's study was published in today's issue of the New England Journal of Medicine. A second study on the bacteria, directed by Dr. Gail H. Cassell at the University of Alabama in Birmingham, was also published in the journal.

In the New York study, the doctors used culture testing to reveal infection in 161 men whose wives had not been able to become pregnant. Both partners were given the antibiotic doxycyline, and the drug wiped out the bacteria in 80 percent of them.

During the next three years, 60 percent of those couples who had been freed of the infection were able to get pregnant, compared with 5 percent of those who still had the infection.

Toth said that other drugs are also effective against the bacteria, and doctors eventually are able to clear up the infection in all but 2 or 3 percent of the cases.

Asbestos in school forces closing in Ayer

AYER — Concerned about high levels of asbestos, school officials yesterday closed Ayer Junior-Senior High School for an indefinite period, ordering the school's 1,100 students and staff to clean their lockers.

School Superintendent R. Neville Markham ordered the school closed by 1:30 p.m. because of "asbestos problems."

The decision came Tuesday night in an emergency meeting of the school board. David Naperstek, director of the Nashoba Associated Boards of Health and Stephen Slarsky, chairman of the Ayer Board of Health, asked school officials to close the school based on the findings of asbestos tests conducted at the school on Monday.

Markham said those tests found high levels of asbestos in the school's classrooms, cafeteria and auditorium.

Alaska man kills 6 in shooting rampage

GLENNALLEN, Alaska — Authorities say an unemployed computer programmer went on a shooting rampage in a snow-bound, backcountry village, killing six of its 22 residents before he fled in a snowmobile and was arrested by troopers.

In custody at Anchorage, charged with six counts of first-degree murder, was 39-year-old Louis D. Hastings. He was held yesterday in lieu of $300,000 bond, and authorities said they had no clue to what prompted the shootings.

Christopher Richards, one of two injured survivors of the violence in the town of McCarthy, told police he remembered vividly the words of the man who shot him Tuesday:

"Look, you're already dead. If you'll just quit fighting, I'll make it easy for you."

Instead, the 29-year-old Richards said, he grabbed a knife, slashed his assailant and fled in his stocking feet into the snow.

He was picked up by a neighbor on a snowmobile and taken to an airstrip in McCarthy, an old mining town in the Wrangell Mountains 225 miles east of Anchorage. It is inaccessible by road in winter.

Today's Staff

Night Editor — Paul A. Basken
Copy Editor — Paul Belval
Layout Technician — Steve Anderson
Photo Technician — Katie Watters
Composition — Laurie Frank, Third Herd, Sheryl Silver, Joy McCarty, Dave Rath, Brian Fitz Maurice, Terri Cooper, Marge Hochman, Jackie Femino, Tracy Lang, Tim Riviere, Jamie Katz, Sue Hawkins, Kathy Baglio, James Shanahan, Marianne Walsh

Subscription Rates

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday excluding vacations, exam periods, or holidays. Subscriptions are available for $18 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Massachusetts. Postmaster: Send address changes to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003.

Photo by John Dourette

Students crowd nuclear freeze table to sign proxy forms to express to their Congressional representatives their support for ending the arms race.

Peace group asks students to sign up for nuke freeze

By TRICIA YACOVONE
Collegian Staff

Students walking into the Student Union today and tomorrow will be asked to sign proxy slips which will be brought to congress by the national citizens' lobby for the nuclear freeze, to be held next Tuesday in Washington, D.C.

The drive, sponsored by the Traprock Peace Center of Deerfield and the University of Massachusetts peacemakers, was organized to have the proxies signed to be brought to the students' U.S. senators and representatives, asking them to vote for the resolution. By noon, yesterday approximately 200 students had signed proxy forms, said Lisa Phoenix, a UMass anthropology major who is interning with the Traprock group.

Their lobbying group, which will leave Northampton for Washington at 11 p.m. next Monday, has taken the responsibility of delivering these forms to the senators and representatives.

"Whoever supports the freeze and cannot be there on Tuesday can sign one of the proxies to get representation," Phoenix said.

Phoenix said only two people who had approached the table actually said they did not support the freeze and would not sign the proxy. Phoenix also said the Nuclear Freeze issue would gain more support if people realized the effects of a nuclear war.

"People don't realize that nuclear war is irreversible and final. There is no such thing as Civil Defense in a nuclear exchange. The radioactivity travels everywhere, getting into everything," Phoenix said.

The timing of the lobby is crucial in that it will occur just before the House's vote on the deployment of missiles in Europe, she said.

"We're going down next Tuesday to show our support for the freeze before its vote will occur in the House.

"The freeze is to be voted on either March 9 or 10, so we're going down to Washington next Tuesday to show our support and insure the passage of this referendum before the house votes on where and how many Cruising and Pershing missiles it will deploy in Western Europe," Phoenix said. "It is important that we get this referendum passed now, otherwise it will be very difficult if there are already nuclear weapons in Europe."

Collins claims economy hurt as state's schools decline

By JIM FINKLE
Collegian Staff

To compete in the national and international economies, Massachusetts must improve its primary and secondary schools, according to the chairman of the state House of Representatives Committee on Education.

Rep. James G. Collins, D-Amherst, said in a recent interview that the past few years have been negative ones for education in Massachusetts due to the cuts brought about by Proposition 2½.

A 1968 graduate of the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, Collins was appointed chairman of the Committee on Education in January, replacing retired chairman Frank Matrango, D-North Adams.

"The past few years...are reflective of what has been happening in this country — a deterioration of its public school system and a trend where people are taking their children out of public schools and putting them into private schools," Collins said.

"If our children are not educated as well as they can be educated, if they can't develop their full potential and talent, then we are not going to be able to compete with other countries, such as Japan, West Germany and the Soviet Union, that are paying attention to the education of their children," he said. "If that's the case, then the children of today, as adults, will not have work tomorrow. And if that's the case, there will not be anybody around to pay for our Social Security system when I am gray and needing my Social Security benefits. It is in everyone's interest that we have quality education."

"What we intend to do is rebuild the public schools in this state, increase public support by increasing the quality of public education — K through 12 — and increase the support for public higher education," Collins said.

To increase support for public education, Collins said the state must rebuild its public primary and secondary schools. Consequently, he said, the state's public higher education institutions will receive increased public support.

"Massachusetts has one of the lowest shares of state support for local education of any state in the country," Collins said. "In fact, we rely the most heavily on the local property tax to raise revenues for the local schools. That creates a situation of unequal educational opportunity between wealthy and poor school districts. Some school districts spend three times as much as others on the education of their children. You get unequal educational opportunity and the quality of your education depends on where you live."

Besides increasing funding for local schools, Collins said his committee will look at other issues , affecting the local schools as curriculum, state-wide testing to see how well students are learning the curriculum, and programs to provide professional development of teachers and administrative staff.

"Basically, I want to elevate the teaching profession," Collins said. "I think it has been wrongly attacked. A student at UMass going into public education almost has to be a martyr or a saint these days, looking at it practically speaking. This is not the correct way to look at things if we want to have excellence in the classroom and attract dedicated, competent people into our classes as teachers."

New program strives to recruit teachers

By BECKY THATCHER
Collegian Staff

A new program which intends to attract talented math and science majors to the education field, instead of high technology, will begin in June under the auspices of the University of Massachusetts' School of Education.

The program, described by the School as a "coordinated graduate degree program linking private industry, public schools and UMass at Amherst," will take place in the Greater Boston area.

Co-director Dr. Klaus Schultz said the purpose of the program is to allevaite a serious shortage of secondary school teachers in Massachusetts.

"Of 49 colleges surveyed, the number of people planning on being certified to teach are two in chemistry and two in physics," Schultz said. "Nationwide, of new teachers that were hired, 50 percent were not qualified to teach."

The industries are spelling their own doom by taking away all the bright people because they rely on people from local high schools to fill technician's jobs, the former physicist said.

The Math/Science/Technology Education Project will be an intensive 14-month masters degree program which will combine work in private industry, teaching in public schools and courses in education, he said.

The participants will be paid for their work and possibly be given loans to pay their tuition. "We are trying to provide two incentives to go into education, one financial and the other excitement--the excitement of being where things are happening in industry," Schultz said.

"If you have an interest in the human rewards of teaching, this will make it more attractive," he said.

Graduates of the program will be certified to teach in Massachusetts and have a commitment to teach in Massachusetts for three years, he said.

Though recruitment is taking place across the nation, Schultz said, "I would like to have a good representation of UMass students."

Salvadoran tells other side

By DAVID B. MINER
Collegian Staff

Lucio Lleras, a spokesman for the Farabundo Marti Front for National Liberation (FMLN) movement in El Salvador, was on the University of Massachusetts campus yesterday to present the FMLN viewpoint of the situation in his country.

Lleras said it is his contention that because the press in El Salvador is under close government scrutiny, the American people are not getting a clear picture of what is happening in the Central American country which, since 1980, has been engulfed in a bloody civil war that he claims has seen at least 40,000 civilian casualties.

"Contrary to what has been claimed in the American press," he said, "the FMLN is not a communist front."

He claims the FMLN is made up of a number of different groups and has a wide spread grass roots popular support.

He said the government of Mexico recognizes the FMLN as the representative of the Salvadorian people and that the United Nations has passed a resolution calling for a negotiated settlement in El Salvador.

He said the United States has provided more than $1 billion in aid to the Salvadorian government, and that President Reagan has just promised an additional $60 million in military aid.

He said the American government has been the biggest supporter of the FMLN, since most of its military supplies are "recouped" American weapons.

Lleras concluded his speech by saying, "Morale is very low in the Salvadorian army. Many low to middle ranking Salvadorian army officers favor a negated settlement (with FMLN). There will be a morale collapse in the Salvadorian army which will allow for a FMLN victory.

"The only thing we fear is direct US military intervention."

Lleras will speak again at 7:30 this evening at Amherst College in place to be announced today.

Photo by Ann Lamery

Two students use couches on the bottom floor of the Campus Center to catch up on some sleep.

Suspect to appear in court

By BILL WALL
Collegian Staff

A New Bedford man, who currently faces four criminal charges in connection with the stabbing last semester of freshman basketball player Arthur J. (A.J.) Wynder at the University of Massachusetts and has since been in the Hampshire County House of Corrections, is schedules to attend a pre-trial conference Monday.

Micoyan N. Von Dyke, 19, was indicted by the Hampshire County Grand Jury and subsequently arraigned in front of the Hampshire County Superior Court on charges of assault and battery with a dangerous weapon, a knife, assault with intent to murder, assault with a dangerous weapon, and assault and battery, said David Angier, the assigned prosecuting attorney. The latter two charges are in connection with an alleged incident involving Von Dyke and a mutual female friend of Von Dyke's and Wynder's, Angier said.

"There will be a conference in front of the court on March 7 for the prosecutor and l to discuss potential plea bargaining and to exchange evidence," said Richard Rubin, lawyer for Von Dyke. The exchange of evidence — "discovery" as it is known — has to be completed before a trial date can be set, Rubin said.

A plea of innocent was entered on Von Dyke's behalf at his arraignment Dec. 6 and a lawyer was appointed for him, Angier said. Rubin said the Massachusetts' Public Defenders Committee located in Springfield represents the accused in front of the Superior Court in felony cases.

Angier said the stabbing resulted from a disagreement between Von Dyke and Wynder concerning a relationship with their mutual female friend. Wynder was stabbed in the lower abdomen at about 10 p.m. on Dec. 5 in the area of Kennedy Dormitory in the Southwest Residential College, according to police reports.

Wynder, a six-foot-two guard from New York, said he is doing well this semester, but is not practicing with the team and is "red-shirted" for the season, which means he will not play with the team and will retain a year of eligibility.

Summer Employment
Camp Young Judaea
Amherst, New Hampshire
(Resident, Co-ed, 1 hour from Boston) is in need of Department Directors and Activity Specialists for this summer in: Athletics, Gymnastics, Swim Instruction (WSI), Waterskiing, Sailing, Arts & Crafts, Campcraft, Israeli Dance, Drama, Israeli Folk Song, Riflery, Tennis, Photography, Office Personnel and Nurses (R.N.). Excellent Salaries and fringe benefits. Please contact Dr. Charles B. Rotman, Director, 81 Kingsbury Street, Wellesley, MA 02181, 617-237-9410.

Amherst Chinese Foods
Best Mandarin Food
62-64 Main St.
Amherst
Closed Wednesdays
WE DO NOT USE MSG OR ARTIFICIAL COLOR
We use FRESH Vegetables from Our Own Farm
BEER & WINE LICENSE
SUNDAY BRUNCH
ALL YOU CAN EAT
$5.95
253-7836

Hart to speak at UMass

By RICHARD NANGLE
Collegian Staff

Sen. Gary Hart of Colorado, candidate for the Democratic nomination for president, is scheduled to speak tomorrow morning in the Student Union Ballroom at the University of Massachusetts.

The topic of his speech is "Education and the Economy in the 1980's and 90's."

The event, which is free and open to the public, is scheduled to begin at 10:30 with a speech by Michael Ferrigno who will outline the goals of the State Student Association of Massachusetts. James Quinn, president of Students Advocating Financial Aid, (SAFA) will follow. Quinn will talk about student involvement with next week's SAFA lobbying trip to Washington, D.C.

At 10:55, UMass Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey will give the welcoming address for Hart.

Hart is scheduled to speak for 15 to 20 minutes and then take questions from the audience for another 15 or 20 minutes.

"In the last four years we have seen an administration divide the country rather than unite it. The American public must work together for the good of the future country rather than individual special interests," said Dave Nelson, western Massachusetts student coordinator for the Hart campaign and co-president of the UMass Recognized Student Organization, Students for Gary Hart.

Academic support services finally seeking dean

By JIM FINKLE
Collegian Staff

After nearly a year of operation without the supervision of a permanent dean, applications for a dean of academic support services are now being reviewed by a search committee.

The dean of academic support services coordinates what interim Dean of Academic Support Services Larry G. Benedict calls "enrollment management."

"Enrollment management is the theme song of academic support services," said Benedict, who also serves as Associate Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs.

Enrollment management is a tool the administration uses to look at recruitment, enrollment, maintenance and graduation of UMass students, he said. "It is the cutting edge."

"The challenges are always to effect better delivery for the students, to look at the needs of the student as he or she moves through the system," said Assistant Chancellor Deidre Ann Ling, who served as dean of academic support services from March 1981 to May 1982.

The admissions, counselling and career development, financial aid, and I.D. offices are under the jurisdiction of that area.

The dean also supervises placement services, the registrar's office, the scheduling office and Veteran's services.

Program Coordinator of the UMass Internship Office, Ellen Wolf, who is heading the 8-member committee, said Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs Dennis L. Madson asked her to time the search so the new dean "will be on board this summer."

The search committee is comprised of two students, two faculty members, one alumni representative and three representatives from departments within academic support services.

Whoever is hired for the job will become the second dean of academic support services. The area was created by Vice Chancellor Madson two years ago during a reorganization of the entire student affairs area.

The academic affairs area was created to allow the administration to better coordinate related areas such as admissions and financial aid, Madson said.

"The most successful dean can conceptualize what problems are and pull them into pieces faculty and students can get after," Madson said. "It's a team leader, coordinating kind of effort."

HARVARD
this summer

Harvard Summer School, the nation's oldest summer session, features open enrollment in nearly 250 day and evening liberal arts courses and pre-professional programs. The diverse curriculum includes courses appropriate for fulfilling undergraduate requirements as well as programs designed for career and professional development. The international student body has access to the University's outstanding libraries, museums, athletic facilities and cultural activities, with the additional benefits of Cambridge and metropolitan Boston. Housing is available in Harvard's historic residences.

Liberal Arts
Undergraduate and graduate courses in more than 30 liberal arts fields are offered at convenient hours. Intensive foreign language and writing programs are available. Among the many areas represented are Anthropology, Computer Sciences, Fine Arts, Mathematics, Psychology, Music, and Visual and Environmental Studies.

Pre-Professional and Education
The Summer School offers all basic courses necessary for pre-medical preparation. Courses to prepare students for classes in government and economics, Business courses include computer programming, financial accounting, statistics, and a business writing workshop. Non-credit review courses for the GMAT, GRE, and MCAT are offered. Graduate level courses in education and management theory and application are also available.

Special Programs
These include the Harvard Summer Dance Center, Drama Program, Expository and Creative Writing Program, English as a Foreign Language, and the Ukrainian Summer Institute. The Harvard Health Professions Program is for ethnic minorities and economically disadvantaged students interested in the health professions. A special pre-... college program for qualified high school ... is also offered.

Academic Calendar
JUNE 27-AUGUST 19, 1983

For further information, return the coupon or call: 617-495-2821, information; 617-495-2464, 24-hour catalog request line.

Please send a Harvard Summer School catalog and application for Arts & Sciences
English as a Foreign Language
Dance Center
Drama
Secondary School Student Program
Health Professions
Writing
Name
Street
City
State
Harvard Summer School
20 Garden St., Dept. 203
Cambridge, MA 02138

Isn't it time you got an "A"
The Student Note & Printing Service Can Help!
If you are currently enrolled in any of the following courses. . .

Astron 100 Schloerb
BA 210 Hare
Botany 100 Shapiro
COINS 121 Coleson
COINS 123
Com Stu 121 Davis
Com Stu 150 Cronen
Econ 103 C Flamm
Econ 103D Tarditi
Econ 104 A Treyz
Econ 104 B Podgursky
Econ 104 C Bausor
Econ 104 D Wolff
Econ 104 E Ackerman
Econ 104 F Deere
FSN 101 Clydesdale
FSN 102 Sawyer
FSN 130 Bert
Geog. 145 McNeill
Geol. 103 Carritt
Mgt. 301 Odiorne
Mktg. 301 Rosenberg
Psych 100 B Moss
Psych 100 C Riseman
Psych 110 D Gold
Psych 150 B Simonson
Soc 103 Chilton
Zoo 102 Coles, Ludlam
Rauch, Nutting

. . .then come to

Student Note & Printing Service

403 Student Union (upstairs)
OPEN: M-Th 9-5 Fri 10-3
Tel. 545-2271
Good quality lecture notes for a valuable study aid (the rest is up to you)

Photo by Peter Marks
Two dogs mirror bored expressions as they wait tied up outside Boyden Gymnasium.

Power outage cripples Boston

BOSTON (AP) - A manhole fire destroyed seven power lines yesterday, blacking out Boston's busy financial district near the waterfront when the electric company had to cut power to a six-square mile area of downtown, officials said.

The blaze knocked out power to the city's major banks and investment houses, darkening offices, traffic lights, computers, and trapping dozens of people in stalled skyscraper elevators. Hundreds of thousands of workers were forced to leave offices early.

No injuries were reported.

Reinforced police patrols moved afternoon rush-hour traffic out of the city's most densly populated commercial area - including historic Faneuil Hall - and guarded the darkened buildings after nightfall.

Boston Edison Co., the city utility, said 15 crews were working to restore power to the approximately six-square-mile area by this afternoon, said Carl Gustin, Edison's director of public information.

"We're asking people to treat this like a snowstorm and not drive to work and take public transportation tomorrow," Boston Traffic Commissioner John Vitaglione said yesterday.

The fire broke out in a manhole at Milk and Pearl streets in the heart of the financial district about 2:30 p.m., said Mike Monahan, a Boston Edison spokesman. The fire destroyed seven cables, and the utility decided to cut off all other service in the area to prevent further damage to other equipment.

He said the city had decided against closing the area, preferring to leave that decision to individual companies.

Besides Faneuil Hall in the middle of the renovated Quincy Market area, other buildings affected were the headquarters of the Sheraton Corp.; the headquarters of the First National Bank of Boston, the nation's 16th largest; and the waterfront New England Aquarium, which hooked up a generator truck to its building to prevent damage to its live fish exhibits.

Women drivers facing hazards

By LISA PEDULLA
Collegian Staff

The most constructive way for women to avoid physical assault when they are driving alone is to stay in control of the situation, said counselor/advocate Cathy Roach of the Everywoman's Center (EWC) at the University of Massachusetts.

Roach said women must be aware that attacks can happen to anyone and they must take precautions.

"Every situation is different," she said. "We want to talk about prevention, but we don't want to tell women not to go out."

One problem, she said, is most women do knot know a lot about cars. This makes them dependent upon strangers if their cars break down. It is important for women to not put themselves in this situation, she said.

"Getting lost can be a real hazard. The more women can travel in control, the better off they will be," Roach said.

Roach also said it helps to be aware of the surroundings one is in.

"It is easy to get lost in parking garages. Women should be aware of the exits and where security is located," she said.

"It is best to park close to where one is going and to try and find people to walk with going back and forth from parking lots, she said.

When accepting rides from strangers (as through ride boards), it is important to check out the driver or have someone familiar along for the trip. Or, Roach said, women should only accept rides from other women.

"It is sometimes unavoidable. Women have to take chances a lot," she said. "The best thing is to know where service places are and to make sure someone is aware of your destiny, who you're riding with and when you should arrive," she said.

From the rape handbook of preventive measures put out by the Hampshire County Rape Information and Prevention Council and the Family Planning Council of Western Massachusetts, the following is a list of safety tips for women drivers.

Be aware of surroundings.
Walk to your car with purpose.
Have keys ready.
Keep doors locked while driving.
Avoid deserted roads.
If you think you're being followed head for the nearest police station or well lit heavily populated area.
If you run out of gas, lock your doors and wait for police.
Do not accept rides from strangers; simply ask them to call for aid.
If you pass another motorist in trouble, call for help. Do not stop, it could be a trap.

Controversy surrounds 'integration of knowledge' proposal

Editor's Note: This is the fourth in a series on General Education.

By RITA MURPHY
Collegian Staff

One of the most controversial parts of the General Education Curriculum proposal now before the Faculty Senate of the University of Massachusetts is the Integration of Knowledge component.

Integration of Knowledge is divided into two parts: the Freshman Seminar and the Junior/Senior Seminar.

The Freshman Seminar is, according to the proposal, the "cornerstone of the General Education Program."

The seminar would be a class consisting of 20 students which would deal with "important contemporary issues from an interdisciplinary perspective," the proposal states.

One of the major goals of the seminar would be "to introduce students to the General Education Program on campus," according to the report.

The emphasis placed on tenured faculty has created most of the controversy concerning the seminar "because it requires the involvement of a large proportion of the faculty and asks them to perform a kind of teaching with which many of them may not be familiar," according to the proposal.

Ellen Nylen, task force coordinator for the student subcommittee on education, said the seminar would "get faculty out of research and into classrooms."

Currently, the University does not "reward undergraduate teaching as heavily as they do research and publishing," Nylen said.

The seminar attempts to change that by giving tenured faculty the incentive to teach, she said.

According to the proposal, the "Provost will give particular attention to faculty work in freshman seminars" when awarding "merit pay and promotion recommendations from departments and deans."

There is controversy among senators involving the economic implications of such a program. At the Feb. 3 senate meeting, several senators expressed doubts as to whether such a program would be financially possible.

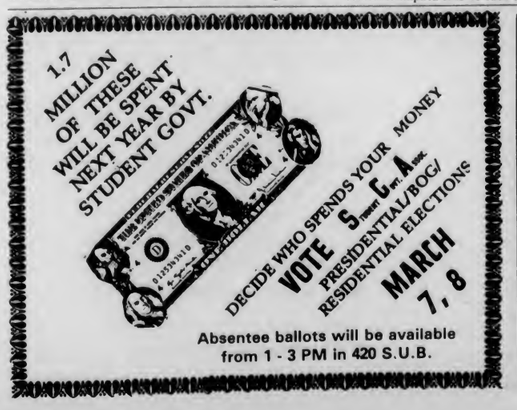
Since that meeting, the senate still has not been provided with the potential costs of the program, and that of the freshman seminar in particular.

According to the proposal, "While the freshman seminar may indeed be costly in terms of financial and human resources, not to institute this cornerstone of the General Education Program may be more costly in terms of the integrity of the program."

The Junior/Senior Seminar, if approved by the senate, would be merged with the third year writing course currently under review by a senate committee.

Such a merger means that for every undergraduate student there will be one course that integrates issues of general education with the student's own departmental major, with practical attention to writing, according to the report.

At its meeting today, the senate is expected to focus debate on the Integration of Knowledge component of the proposal.



Absentee ballots will be available from 1 - 3 PM in 420 S.U.B.

Note-Worthy

ONKYO TX-21 Receiver
SONY PS-LX2 Turntable
Stanton 680EE Cartridge
Boston Acoustics A-60 Speakers
$499

Sound & Music Good Advice Honest Price
90-92 King Street (Rte. 5), Northampton, 584-9547
Mon.-Wed. 10-6, Thurs., Fri. 10-9, Sat. 10-5

Compulsive eaters can get help

By LISA PEDULLA
Collegian Staff

Dr. Robert Bradt is on a mission.

He wants to help people deal with what he calls "the syndrome of chronic dieting," Brandt, co-director of Focus Awareness on Compulsive Eating (FACE program) in Northampton, said the program was developed "tc restructure attitudes on food and fatness."

"There is an epidemic of compulsive eating on college campuses that didn't exist 10 years ago," Brandt said.

He said he attributes this to the increase in the proliferation of dieting.

For college students especially, there is the increased pressure of grades, social pressure and being away from home. The issue of compulsive eating often begins in late high school and early college years, he said. College students receive mixed messages: one to look good to make the social scene, and the other to "pig out" with friends, he said.

"For years people have bought the notion that dieting equals weight loss," Brandt said. He said he believes dieting has failed, when people get deprived of food. They often start binging and end up gaining more weight than when they started, he said.

"When a person goes to a party or the dining commons and others are eating pizza and ice cream, but you can't... you feel deprived and end up binging," he said.

The FACE Program helps dieters to develop new concepts about food, he said. If a person enjoys food more, they will be more satisfied and actually eat less.

He defined what he called a food-o-stat, which tells when a person has eaten too much or too little and balances the two. Brandt said people should be aware that the amount of food taken in can fluctuate with no harmful effects due to this built in mechanism.

The program is not behavior modification because that would be like telling people they're not in control of their inner feelings, he said.

The program was started two years ago by Brandt, a licensed clinical psychologist, and his wife, Joan w-Brandt, a social worker. He said their approach to the weight control program is a personal as well as professional one.

For ten years, Swerdlow-Brandt fought her own obsession with food, during which time she learned to deal with the issues around food and fatness, and decided to help others, Brandt said.

It is important to deal with what is on the inside as well as what is on the outside, he said. The program, he said, works on dealing with peoples attitudes on food and fatness.

FACE is a two month program of group discussions aimed at changing people's attitudes about the foods they eat, and helping them find the ideal weight for their bodies. The sessions include food awareness experiments, Brandt said, "which work to heighten the awareness of the taste and quality of food."

UMass police 'shape up' for patrols

By NEIL RHEIN
Collegian Correspondent

Since early January, University of Massachusetts police have been toning up their bodies at "The Body Shop" in the North Physical Education gymnasium.

Forty-three police and support staff have devoted up to 45 minutes of their regular shifts to workouts on hydraulic equipment, said Mary Dumas, staff development and community relations officer for the University police. The purpose of the program is to prepare police for the physically demanding aspects of their job, she said.

The idea for the program was devised by the University police themselves, Dumas said. In a recent "needs assessment survey," she said, police indicated the need for a physical fitness program within the department, ranking it second in importance.

With the help of Assistant Professor Patty Freedson and Dr. Frank Katch, Chairman of the Exercise Science Department, Dumas said a battery of fitness evaluation tests were performed. None of the officers was deemed physically unfit, she said. Tests included a treadmill stress test, underwater weighing to determine total body fat, and an electrocardiogram to assess heart function when the body is at rest, she said.

The exercise program involves the use of Hydra-Fitness Hydraulic Resistive Exercise equipment, Dumas said. This is a new concept which promotes cardiovascular fitness and strength improvement, she said. Access to the equipment is provided twenty four hours a day to allow police on all shifts an opportunity to workout, she said.

Police stay in constant radio communication with headquarters in case of an extreme emergency, Dumas said.

The program has received favorable response from the local community, Dumas said.

"There has been lots of enthusiastic support from students in "The Body Shop,'" said Dumas. She cited this support as being helpful in increasing the popularity of the program. Currently over 50 percent of the force is voluntarily participating, she said.

Each of the officers is scheduled to be reevaluated at the end of May to assess any progress made, Dumas said.

Where the world is turned upside down

Editor's Note: Richard Martin, a Journalistic Studies major from Taunton, is spending his junior year as an exchange student at the University of Queensland in Brisbane, Australia.

By RICHARD MARTIN
Collegian Staff

BRISBANE, Australia — The immediate question that comes to mind is, "Why the hell should I bother to read about Australia?", isn't it? Most of you know a bit about the country; it is still tied politically to England, it is halfway around the world from us (21 hours by air from Boston), its seasons are reversed and it is home for animals such as the kangaroo, the wallaby, and the koala.

Australia, however, enjoys fantastic mineral wealth and has plenty of other natural resources to keep its people content. The generally warm weather throughout the country means that energy resources are not spent on heating homes. In addition, the Australian military forces are rather small, so their national budget is not burdened by defense spending.

Despite all this, Australia has always been shackled by a lack of a national identity, a sense of purpose among its people that allows the sum to become greater than the whole of its parts.

This search is further complicated by the fact that Australia is a land of contrasts. Its land mass is equal to that of the United States, yet its population is approximately the same as the state of Massachusetts (13 million).

There are many more contrasts. The intense feeling of environmentalism versus the desire to expand the country is a prime example illustrating Australia's internal debate as they search for a sense of their national self.

Slowly, however, they have made progress on other levels. There is legislation pending in their national government to change the Australian Flag, by removing England's Union Jack from its place in the upper left-hand corner. Likewise, there is a popular movement abreast to change the national anthem to something more Australian.

Finally, Australia is in the midst of a national election for their Parliament and Prime Minister, which will go a long way in deciding their future. Fraser represents the Liberal Party (actually it is more conservative than our Republican Party) and has pursued policies over the last nine years that are similar to Reagan's and England's Margaret Thatcher's.

The Labour Party's Bob Hawke (their Labour Party is slightly more conservative than our Democratic Party) is trying to unseat him and could be successful in a country with 10 percent unemployment, stagnation, and a shortage of professional-type people.

THE HUNGRY-U

Happy Hour Thursday 9 - close
Friday 2 - 5:30

FREE PIZZA
55 UNIVERSITY Dr Amherst Mass. TEL. 549-5713

50¢ DRAFTS 99¢ BAR DRINKS

DVP presents

Vincent Price
in a one man performance

Monday, March 7
8 pm at the F.A.C.

$2. 5 college students
$4. Senior Citizens
$5. General Public

Tickets on sale now at F.A.C. Box Office
sponsored by University Arts Council
and Distinguished Visitors Program

Vincent Price
Film Festival
Sunday march 6

2:00 pm - Theatre of Blood
4:00 pm - Pit and the Pendulum
6:00 pm - The Masque of Red Death
8:00 pm - The Raven
75¢ for all you can see
C.C. Auditorium

Photo by John Doucette

Student firefighters get "hands-on" training while hauling their hose to a blaze.

Student firefighters helping protect campus community

By MICHAEL R. FLYNN
Collegian Cofrespondent

Student firefighters do not pay rent to live in North Station, home base for the student firefighting force, but they earn their keep by fighting fires and responding to medical emergencies.

The members of the student force are constantly training to maintain their status as a highly qualified and proficient engine company of the Amherst Fire Department, said Doug Osmond, captain of the student fire fighting force.

"Engine Company 3 of the Amherst Fire Department is unique among volunteer forces," Osmond said. "It is an independent engine company, manned by students who operate the equipment, drive the trucks and ambulance, and respond to emergencies in the Amherst area."

The student force was founded in March 1956 by Paul Knight III of Waltham, a 1959 University of Massachusetts graduate, to "take up the slack" of the Amherst Fire Department, according to a newspaper clipping from Jan. 1962.

"We are here to augment the Amherst Fire Department," Osmond said. "But we have the training and the mechanical ability to be a front line engine company."

"The training we do is very intense," Osmond said. "We require a student to have a minimum of 100 hours EMT (Emergency Medical Training) and 25 hours of pump operator training, before he is considered a

The members of the student fire fighting force receive no pay for the work they do.

Last semester, Russell said he was called to an accident in front of Mike's Westview Cafe, where two students had been struck by a car.

When Russell arrived on the scene, he said the two students were lying in the road and in need of help.

"One man wasn't breathing properly," Russell said, "and the other man had a crushed foot. I had to decide immediately what the best course of action would be.

"Fortunately we had enough qualified people there to help them both. It was cold out and I remember I was shaking when I applied pressure to this guys foot. He kept asking me 'how is my foot, will I play baseball again?' I wasn't able to tell him until we were in the ambulance.

"Being calm, collected, and decisive in a pressure situation like that is where the satisfaction of this job comes from."

The students maintain their proficiency by keeping a rigorous training schedule, said Bob Charbenneau, a lieutenant in the student company.

"We have a three hour drill once a week and one all day drill once a month," Charbenneau said, with "as much live-fire training as possible."

Twice a year, the students travel to the Belchertown smoke-house where members become acclimated in the use of an oxygen mask in a smoke-filled building.

"Each member puts on a mask and must crawl and feel his way around the building while searching for a simulated victim," said Charbenneau. "It can be a very disorienting experience."

Newslines . . .

Polish dramatist to speak in Amherst area

Polish dramatist Jerzy Grotowski will present this week at four area colleges a series of lectures on his innovative work in theatre. The series will begin today with a discussion at Mount Holyoke College.

The public is invited to attend the free lectures. "Theatre of Sources: A Dialogue Between Jerzy Grotowski and Richard Mennen" will be presented first today at 1 p.m. in the Theatre Building Auditorium at Mount Holyoke College, and again next Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the Converse Assembly Hall at Amherst College.

"Montage for Theatre Directors" will be presented tomorrow from 11:20 to 2 in Sage Hall Two at Smith College.

"Before Theatre and Anthropology" will be delivered Saturday at 1 in the Performing Arts Center at Hampshire College, and on Sunday and Monday, both at 8 p.m., in the Converse Assembly Room at Amherst College.

Volunteers sought to be swimming instructors

Volunteer swimming instructors are wanted for a seven-week instructional swimming program for children at the North Sphysical Education (NOPE) building. Sessions will be held Monday through Friday from 4 to 5 p.m. Interested volunteers should inquire at the NOPE main office.

Women's Week

THURSDAY

Anti-racism team will meet at 4 p.m. Check the Campus Center schedule for room number.

"Tribute to Black Womanhood," a lecture and aware presentation, will be held at 8 p.m. in the Neilson Library Browsing Room.

Women's Leadership Project will meet at 7 p.m. in the Dukes Room in the Student Union building. The Speaker's Series and internal education will be discussed. All interested women are invited to attend.

FRIDAY

"Women, Politics and International Relations" will be discussed at 3:30 p.m. in the Wright Hall Common Room at Smith College.

"Goddesses Among Us" will be held at 7:30 p.m. at 17 Kellogg Ave. The lecture will be followed by an intensive weekend workshop which will explore the different aspects of the feminine as they affect people's lives. For further information, call 584-1545.

Mostly Motown Disco will be held to celebrate the first anniversary of the Gay and Lesbian Activists (GALA) from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. at the Red Barn at Hampshire College.

UMass, high tech link up

By DAVE LINTON
Collegian Staff

The financial success this past year of the University of Massachusetts Applied Technologies Center has established it as a working link between industry and the University.

The center ended the 1982 fiscal year with twice as many contracts and three times the income of the previous fiscal year according to Lloyd Kent, managing director of the center.

The center had 22 contracts valued at $710,000 last year, he said.

UMass technological expertise and facilities are made available by the center to industry for research and development problems, Kent said. Fees are negotiated separately for each contract with individual industrial clients who underwrite the cost of research and development projects.

Various companies, including Digital, IBM, DuPont, North East Utilities and other smaller firms, are attracted to the center because of the reputation and expertise of the School of Engineering's faculty, Kent said.

"The program is helpful for both industry and faculty because the professors learn about the state of the art, and industry learns about the theoretical side of the coin," Kent said.

"At one meeting between two professors and some hardware designers, both sides had their notebooks out in 30 seconds and were learning from each other," he said.

Some of the contract money has been used to buy equipment to improve the University's facilities in addition to financing the center, Kent said. Occasionally, contracts support research a professor is doing, but those instances are rare, he said.

Companies have the center work on research and development problems for various reasons. Sometimes a company may not have the manpower or the expertise to solve a specific problem, Kent said, and other times a fast-growing company may not want to divert the efforts of their engineers.

THE WEEKENDER
This Week featuring
~ITALIAN MENU~
4:30pm - 7:00pm

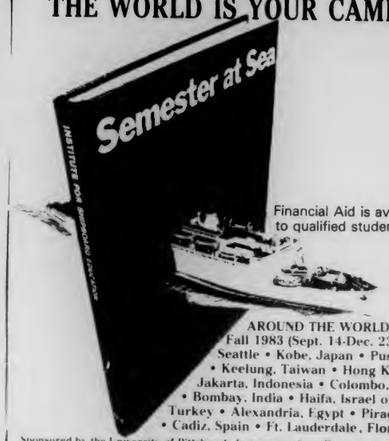
MAKE YOUR MARK

at OPERATION SONSHINE '83
DAYTONA BEACH, FLORIDA
Step into an adventure this spring break. For more information write or call:
Chris West, 613 JF Kennedy 546-7671
Cynthia Muller, B-7 Emerson 546-7238
Sponsored by Campus Crusade for Christ International

UMASS SKI CLUB
SAT 3/5 TRIP
to
Stowe VERMONT
Ski Capital of the East. Period.
Includes
Lift Ticket
Transportation
Refreshments
ONLY $21
For more info
430 A Student Union 5-3437

Check Out The
FINE ARTS CENTER
Better Entertainment For Less
The Fine Arts Center
University of Massachusetts
Box Office: 545-2511

THE WORLD IS YOUR CAMPUS



Financial Aid is available to qualified students

AROUND THE WORLD:
Fall 1983 (Sept. 14-Dec. 23)
Seattle • Kobe, Japan • Pusan, Korea • Keelung, Taiwan • Hong Kong • Jakarta, Indonesia • Colombo, Sri Lanka • Bombay, India • Haifa, Israel or Istanbul, Turkey • Alexandria, Egypt • Piraeus, Greece • Cadiz, Spain • Ft. Lauderdale, Florida

Sponsored by the University of Pittsburgh, Semester at Sea offers students a superior full semester academic program and supporting field experiences. This one semester experience is available to qualified students from all accredited colleges and universities.
More than 60 voyage related university courses. Faculty drawn from the University of Pittsburgh and other leading universities, augmented by visiting area experts.
Optional tours, including special tours into the People's Republic of China, available.
Semester at Sea admits students without regard to color, race or creed. The S.S. Universe is fully air-conditioned, 18,000 tons, registered in Liberia and built in America.
For a free color brochure, write: Semester at Sea, UCIS, University of Pittsburgh, Forbes Quadrangle, Pittsburgh, PA 15260, or call toll free (800) 854-0195 (in California call (714) 771-6590).

EUROPE by CAR
RENT or BUY
LOWEST PRICES
FOR STUDENTS, TEACHERS
EUROPE BY CAR
One Rockefeller Plaza
New York, NY 10020
Phone (212) 581-3040
Mail this ad for Special Student/Teacher Tariff.
☐ RENTAL ☐ LEASE ☐ PURCHASE
☐ EURAIL PASS ☐ YOUTH PASS

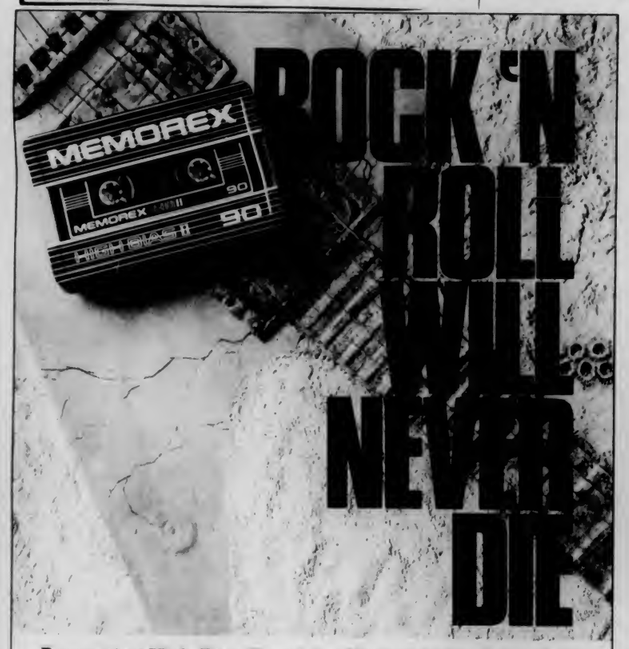
MUSIC GALLERY
Peavey, Ibanez, Tama, JBL, Roland, Acoustic, Boss, Legend, EV-Tapco, Hondo, Dean, Hamer, Fostex.
Rt. 9 Hadley
on the bus route
586-6228

Collegian Staff:
Important Meeting Tonight
7:30 p.m.
In the office

EYES OF LAURA MARS
Times 5, 7, 9, 11
ONLY
$1 for all shows
Campus Center Aud.

adventura travel
549-1256

Airline tickets
Eurailpasses
Amtrak
233 N. Pleasant St.
Amherst Carriage Shops



ROCK 'N ROLL WILL NEVER DIE

Presenting High Bias II and the Ultimate Tape Guarantee.
Memorex presents High Bias II, a tape so extraordinary, we're going to guarantee it forever.

We'll guarantee life-like sound.
Because Permapass," our unique oxide bonding process, locks each oxide particle—each musical detail—onto the tape. So music stays live. Not just the 1st play. Or the 1000th. But forever.

We'll guarantee the cassette.
Every facet of our cassette is engineered to protect the tape. Our waved-wafer improves tape-wind. Silicone-treated rollers insure smooth, precise tape alignment. Housing is made strong by a design unique to Memorex.

We'll guarantee them forever.
If you are ever dissatisfied with Memorex High Bias II, mail us the tape and we'll replace it free.

YOU'LL FOREVER WONDER.
IS IT LIVE, OR IS IT MEMOREX

Hypnotizing, magnetizing, mesmerizing, energizing, fascinating, captivating, exciting, amusing, entertaining, original Tom DeLuca.

Hypnosis that goes beyond entertainment and BSP, an original comic parody of ESP.
One of the most requested acts on college campuses today. —Newsweek

Appearing:
Student Union Ballroom
Sunday
March 6th
8:00pm, $1.00

Northampton
a shopping event!

NOW OPEN
AT THE GRANARY
102 MAIN ST.
NORTHAMPTON
584-0671
TOWN FARM
RESTAURANT & SALAD EXPRESS
BREAKFAST
LUNCH
MUFFIN & FRUIT JUICES
PASTRIES
FREE
CARROT JUICE OR HOMEFRIES

HIGHEST PRICES PAID
- FOR -
GOLD & SILVER
IN ALL FORMS
MANHAN JEWELLERS
3 PLEASANT ST. (CORNER OF MAIN)
NORTHAMPTON, MA. 01060
(413) 584-7000

Your Ad Should Be Here
Call 545-3500 For Our
Special Thursday Rates!

THE GLOBE BOOKSHOP
Open 9 am til 9 pm
Monday - Saturday
Open 10 - 3
on Sunday
Fine New & Used Books Bought & Sold
50 Pleasant St. Northampton 584-0374

BETTER YET

JON POUSETTE-DART
also MITCH CHAKOUR
SUN MARCH 13
7 & 10 PM
$6 TIX NOW
20 Center St., Northampton • 8 am Midnight
Information & Ticket Reservations: 584-0610
Cafe Fare • Full Bar • Coffee • Desserts
IRON HORSE Coffeehouse

DYNAMITE RECORDS
BUY SELL TRADE
RENT
Stores in Amherst and Northampton
JAZZ - BLUES - ROCK
CLASSICAL - FOLK
In Paul's Old Time Furniture
57 E. Pleasant, Amherst
Thornes Marketplace, Northampton 584-1580

NORTHAMPTON WOOL
Quality traditional & contemporary yarns & patterns
20% off Lopi and Lopilight
5 Armory St., Northampton
586-4331

runner'shop
ANNUAL SPRING SHOE SALE
Save as never before! We've got hundreds of sport shoes on sale at greatly reduced prices. Shoes for running, tennis, basketball, soccer, volleyball, track, hiking, etc. And all shoes are priced at $5.00 $10.00 $15.00 $20.00 $25.00 $30.00
a pair, none higher. All are first quality, no seconds; these are discontinued, overstocked or slow-selling models. Our loss is your gain.
Sale ends April 16. Please - no phone calls.
runner'shop 114 Main Street, Northampton, Mass.

SANYO Mini Stereo Cassette Player with Lightweight Headphones!
- cue and review
- protective auto shop
- balance control

MG9
Extra Special
Maxell UDXL II C90
$2.99 ea.
(with this coupon)
Reg. $40.00 SALE $29.88
Electronics Center
586-2270

AMHERST AVALANCHE OF SAVINGS!

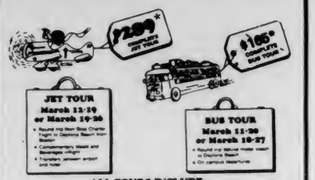
545-3500
Could Get You On These Pages

Ridiculous Prices
End of Winter Sale
up to 70% Off
check our new Spring
fashions for vacations

THE SALT BOX
16 Main Street
across from the Common
Store Hrs. 9-5:30 Mon-Sat
Tel. 253-9800

Thursday
OLDIES
with
Gregg Adams
TWO FOR ONE
9 til 11
all liquor drinks
no cover
THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST

Beachcomber Tours presents
14th ANNUAL
College Spring Break in
DAYTONA BEACH



ALL TOURS INCLUDE:
LAND PACKAGE
- First Class Ocean Front Accommodations for Seven (7) Nights at the Days Inn, Beachside or the Quality Inn Reef, located directly on the Strip in Daytona Beach.
- Welcome Party with plenty of FREE BEER
- Exclusive 14th Anniversary ID Card for discounts at Shops, Restaurants, Night Clubs etc.
- On campus reservation service.
- Services of the Beachcomber Staff
- OPTIONAL - Kissimmee, Walt Disney World Tour, New Epcot Center Adventure and more!

*$25 Deposit Required - Limited Space Available
*Make Deposit Before 12/15/82 and
SAVE $20.00
Don't be left out in the COLD!
(NO OTHER DISCOUNTS APPLY)

ALSO AVAILABLE
JET FLIGHT ONLY $299*
BUS TRANSPORTATION ONLY $139*
LAND PACKAGE ONLY $199*
(INCLUDES all TAXES, gratuities and service)

Beachcomber Tours, Inc.
COMPACT
STEVEN
549-1671

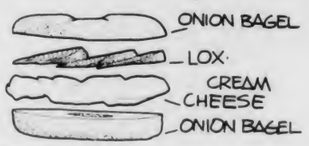
DEPENDABILITY - QUALITY - SERVICE - SINCE 1969
room still available

Campus Card.

No matter what your schedule or workload is, you can now do your banking at the new X-Press 24 located in the Newman Center cafeteria. There's only one card that lets you do all your regular banking at more than 350 X-Press 24s around Massachusetts — the BayBank X-Press 24™ Card.
To get your card, just visit our Amherst Office at 75 East Pleasant Street today.

Try Something Better

Can we build one for you?



Design your favorite bagel sandwich and bring us the blueprint — we'll build it to exact specs. We're the bagel engineers at

THE AMHERST DELICATESSEN
Amherst Carriage Shops
549-6314

adidas
Stan Smith Tennis Shoes

$5.00 OFF
from March 1 - 5

Mathews SHOE STORE
The Village Common, Amherst

FABULOUS FIRST ANNIVERSARY SALE
SAT., MARCH 5 - SAT., MARCH 12

VALLEY BICYCLES Ltd

Everything Discounted!!
NEW FUJI'S IN STOCK
30% Off Some Models

20% OFF
Cannondale Bags, All Clothing, Shoes, Rhode Gear Bags, Racks, ALL TIRES & TUBES (Buy now for the season)

15%OFF All other accesories in stock

89 MAIN ST., AMHERST 256 - 0880
Behind the Cheese Shop and Valley Farms Dairy Store

DOWNTOWN AMHERST

PREPARE FOR
MCAT·LSAT·GMAT
SAT·ACT·DAT·GRE·CPA
Our 40th Year

- April 9, 1983 — MCAT classes start 3/10/83
- April 16, 1983 — DAT classes start 3/5/83
- April 23, 1983 — GRE classes start 3/7/83
- June 15, 1983 — LSAT classes start 4/27/83

OTHER COURSES AVAILABLE
GRE PSYCH & BIO · MAT · PCAT · OCAT · VAT · TOEFL
MSKP · NMB · VQE · ECFMG · FLEX · NDB · RN BDS
SSAT · PSAT · SAT ACHIEVEMENTS
SPEED READING

Call Days, Eves & Weekends

Stanley H. KAPLAN EDUCATIONAL CENTER
In Amherst 253-5108 Mid North Pleasant St
Springfield 737-3788 15 State St
TEST PREPARATION SPECIALISTS SINCE 1938
For Information About Other Centers Outside N.Y. State CALL TOLL FREE 800 223-1782

Help us celebrate our 6th Birthday!

And you get the gifts, of course!
FREE beachball
with any cake purchase
(great for Spring Break on the beach)
FREE gifts with any purchase over $1.
while supplies last

BASKIN-ROBBINS ICE CREAM STORE 31
28 Main St. Amherst
253-9774
daily 11-10 pm
across from Amherst Common

JOHN DELLARIA SALONS

HAIR IDEAS . . .

JD PERMANENT WAVE.
Long-lasting curl. Built-in conditioning formula. Beautiful shine with bounce.
Now only $28.00 with this ad. Offer expires 3-18-83
26 MAIN STREET • AMHERST • 253-9293

Resume Paper
at
A.J. HASTINGS
Newsdealer and Stationer
45 S. Pleasant St., Amherst

SALE
20 - 50% off most winter clothing
20 - 30% off many styles Chinese shoes
50% off all calendars
Brighten Your Room
Posters India Print Bedspreads
Mugs-Jewelry-Rugs
Open Daily 10 am - 5:30
THE MERCANTILE
AMHERST CARRIAGE SHOPS

the SHOE BIN 187 n. pleasant st., amherst

Have You Heard About
Our Happy Hour

Happy Hours:
Mon - Fri 4 - 7
Sun - Tues 9 - 11
50° Domestic Drafts
(includes your choice of Michelob, Budweiser, Miller, Miller Lite, Lowenbrau Dark)
75° Heinekens (12 oz)
99° Bar Drinks

— Tonight —
Jameson's Irish Whiskey Night
99° from 9:00 - 11:00
Entertainment - Hungry Hill

What's m-m-m-more...

for a mere 75¢ you can sup on our Webster's Sampler: enjoy an appetizing platter of Buffalo chicken wings or BBQ ribs...try the Mediterranean bread...or an hors d'oeuvres cheese board!
(While kitchen is open)

Plumbley's off the common
Amherst Center • 253-9586

EDITORIAL/OPINION

EPA "Superfund" a super mess

Last night in the news I heard that a "powerful Democratic congressman" investigating the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) hazardous waste cleanup effort said that he has "specific information of criminal conduct" within the administration, and challenged President Reagan to release all documents relating to it. It's about #&!%! time!

Not that any evidence of impropriety has emerged before this. Just because Rita LaVelle, that porcine head of the EPA Superfund Toxic Waste Cleanup Program, was fired by Reagan doesn't mean that they're trying to keep her quiet about anything. Or that two others have been released due to an "internal Housecleaning" right after they criticized the EPA has anything to do with a cover-up.

Josh Meyer

I mean, just because three paper shredders were found in the EPA's Hazardous Waste Division after they were asked to turn over their records to Congress doesn't mean anything is wrong. That would be like saying Dick Nixon was covering something up when he "deleted" 18 minutes of tape from the Watergate proceedings material. Like the situation at EPA, I'm sure it was just a matter of coincidence.

Let's not kid ourselves. There is definitely a cover-up over at EPA, and the Reagan Administration is doing all they can to keep it under wraps. Anne Gorsuch Burford, head of the EPA claims that withholding evidence from Congressional committees investigating the EPA is due to Executive Priviledge, because investigations underway would have their "covers blown" if the material is released. She, with the total and unwavering support of the President, are using Executive Priviledge in order to withhold corporations at the expense of us, the citizens. A technicality like Executive Priviledge should never be used to prevent Congress from reviewing documents that are known to show evidence of administrative misconduct that borders on criminal activity. Particularly when it relates to something as deadly as toxic waste disposal.

Times Beach, Missouri, where the government had to buy the town for $33 million because it was unsafe to live in, gives you an indication of the seriousness of the problem.

Rita LaVelle has already testified that there is "gross mismanagement at the highest levels" of the EPA. She denies doing anything improprietous, which would lead one to believe that she is aware of others doing so. Anne Gorsuch has been cited for contempt of Congress and for failure to turn over records, yet nothing has been done. Attorney General William French Smith is even being investigated for possible "impeachable offenses" for his refusal to honor the contempt of Congress citation against Gorsuch, among other things.

So it seems that Ron (you've seen one redwood, you've seen 'em all) Reagan and the EPA are scared. Maybe there's another Watergate brewing — it's certainly possible. As Newsweek magazine said this past week, toxic waste disposal and clean-up is a life and death matter that affects everyone, even those not born yet. It is an issue that is literally in voters backyards', as proved by an EPA report several weeks ago that stated that there are at least 14 toxic waste sites above the dangerous level in Massachusetts alone, including three of the ten most dangerous ones in the country. This could prove detrimental to public support for Reagan — in last weeks Newsweek poll, 47 percent of the population were not happy with Reagan's environmental policies.

I have found many faults with the Reagan administration, as I have with all other administrations, Democrat or Republican. But when a President and the head of something as powerful as the EPA start hiding things as dangerous as toxic waste dumps from the public it's time to put a stop to it. No one wants to get leukemia from cancer-causing agents, and no one wants their future offspring to be born as "frog-babies." These things are already happening, and the government is well aware of it. Efforts to prove "improprieties" are a waste of time. The improprieties are there, and now its time to stop them. As House Majority Leader Robert Michel said last week, "Where there is so much smoke, there is surely a little fire."

Josh Meyer is a Collegian columnist

Nuclear weapons for a Soviet threat

Often seen in the valley are bumper stickers reading "STEP 1-US/USSR NUCLEAR FREEZE." I frequently wish that I could add, "STEP 2 — US DIES!"

People supporting any negotiations with the USSR, particularly a nuclear freeze, are either incredibly naive, unbelievably uninformed, or are dedicated to the destruction of the United States.

Consider this after the establishment of the USSR by a revolution of the most bloody and ferocious sort in 1917, the new government initiated a series of purges unequaled even by Nazi Germany. This, combined with an organized denial of even the most basic individual rights, has contributed to its oft-repeated goal of the destruction of the United States. The USSR has never swerved from the Communist ideal of world domination by any useful means. Among the list of victims; Poland, East Germany, Rumania, Albania, Hungary, Czechoslovakia,....and now Afghanistan.

Laurence M. Wright

Further, the USSR has never abided by any arms control treaty it has ever signed. Conventions against the use of chemical and biological agents are laughed at by the Soviets; confirmed Soviet use of mycotoxins against undefended civilian populations has been reported in Afghanistan and Southeast Asia, with indications that Anthrax, a deadly biological agent, is being produced for future use.

Still more alarming, all Soviet armored vehicles are now designed for use in NBC (Nuclear, Biological, Chemical) environments, and all Soviet troops are extensively trained to operate in NBC contaminated areas. The Soviet Union also operates a massive Civil Defense network designed to reduce the effectiveness of the United States' MAD (Mutual Assured Destruction) policy. USSR Civil Defense is so good that some experts doubt the ability of the U.S. to inflict serious losses should the USSR launch a surprise attack against us.

Clearly then, any negotiation with the USSR will be useless unless conducted from a position of strength, for the Soviets will only respect an agreement they cannot afford to break. Time and time again it has been shown that the Soviet strategy is to attack the weak and to wait for the strong to weaken.

The U.S. is engaged in an undeclared war against an enemy unalterably opposed to all things American; a war we must win or die. Still, the Soviet Union has one great weakness; its system of government and its economy are far less efficient than a free market, for it must constantly feed off the economies of it's satellite countries. If we can contain and completely isolate the Soviet Union, it wil decay in its own corrosive policies. The U.S. is still the "Great Arsenal of Democracy", but the walls are crumbling, the floors are rotting, and those on the walls are despised from within.

History shows that great nations collapse only when they are not willing to fight when attacked. The U.S. must remember the cause for which the Founding Fathers fought and bled — "Life, Liberty, and the pursuit of Happiness!" The U.S. must rebuild the walls of our "Arsenal" to contain the USSR, rebuild the floor to hold the tools we need to resist tyranny, and show respect for our guardians once again.

The first step in our rearming must and should be an extensive program of Civil Defense, to shelter those who can be sheltered, and to move those who cannot be.

I already have my plans. Do you?

Laurence M. Wright is a UMass student

Collegian

Board of Editors

Kevin Bowe Editor-in-Chief
Ed Levine Managing Editor
Stuart Sajdak Production Manager
Joel Myerson Business Manager
John Hudson Executive Editor
John DiPalazzo News Editor
Cris Schuster Women's Editor
Doug Muise Arts Editor
Gus Martins Black Affairs Editor
Billy Shea Sports Editor
Kevin J. Fachetti Photo Editor

Associate Editors

Paul A. Basken, Ray Beauchemin, Eileen Galligan, Michelle Murray, Bill Wall, Associate Managing Editors; James P. Shanahan, Marianne Walsh, Associate Production Managers; Mary Beth Hebert, Josh Meyer, Associate Executive Editors; Tami Borton, Mary Cresse, Mark J. Welch, Associate News Editors; Mary Baldwin, Associate Women's Editor; Lisa Mosley, Associate Arts Editor; Yadira A. Betances, Associate Black Affairs Editor; Kevin DeLuca, Gerry deSimas, Associate Sports Editors; Jim Powers, Associate Photo Editor.

Business Staff

Craig Robbins, Advertising Manager; Jeff Taylor, Karen Teicher, Associate Advertising Managers; Andrew May, Associate Business Manager; Maria Karassik, Finance Manager; Paul Krause, Associate Finance Manager; Rick Weishaus, Circulation Manager.

WE NEED COLUMNISTS!

Letters

Will the U.S. support criminals?

To the Editor,

In response to the growing controversy of failure to register with the Selective Service System and being denied Government Financial Aid, I would like to point out that there is no agrument to be had.

1. The U.S. Government in this case is the creditor and as such may set its own standards for qualifications for a loan, just as any other creditor.
2. The law clearly states that all males upon reaching their 18th birthday are required by law to register with the Selective Service System. Those who have failed to comply with this are criminals; in direct violation of the law.

Why should the U.S. Government give it's money and support to criminals against the State? End of discussion.

Andre LaMontagne
Northeast

Cleaning campus poster boards

To the Editor,

It's about time that UMass makes a few changes in its campus advertising system.

By carefully scrutinizing the various papers and posters on the hallway walls between the Coffee Shop and the Hatch, it seems that this particular area is in stiff competition for "The Ugliest Scenery of the Year Award".

The truth to the matter is that much of this prime advertisement territory looks like hell warmed over (and that's putting it mildly). An individual really doesn't have to look too much further to find out why our school is nicknamed, "Zoo Mass".

Organizations and persons preaching their respective causes can be very rude and inconsiderate. If a person, for example, were to staple an ad trying to sell his or her books, it's a sure bet that by the next day it would either be torn off or covered by someone else's masterpiece.

I'd like to see the aforementioned area, as well as the sample wall space in the Student Union Building, controlled and policed by a reputable student organization. Nobody should get an ad placed on a wall bigger than anyone else. All ads should be stamp-approved and dated. To cut down some of the confusion, certain sections of the bulletin board should be designated for specific matters (i.e. books, apartments, activities, rides, etc.)

Paying a nominal fee for this advertising is a very reasonable idea. Since UMass students are already cutting each others' throats for ever precious space, I believe all would benefit from such a plan. The money raised could perhaps go towards decreasing student fees or some other humanitarian need.

My proposal may not be the best way to resolve this dilemma but I believe it's a step in the right direction.

Frank Zabierek
Amherst

Evolution's religious theory

To the Editor;

I have enjoyed reading articles in the Collegian which are written in support of the scientific theory of evolution. One such article appeared on Tuesday by Jay Salhaney. In that article Jay laid down the inviolable law propounded by evolutionists: "Thou shalt never dispute Darwin's theory of evolution." This was the between the lines message of Jay's letter. Jay has also called Charles Darwin the father of the theory of evolution. He has therefore made Charles Darwin both an evolutionist and a creationist. Charles Darwin is an evolutionist because of his belief in evolution, and he is a creationist because he is the father or progenitor of his beliefs.

Also attributable to Charles Darwin the father of the theory of evolution is the creation of a new religion called Re-evol-ligion or Reevolligion. The adherents of the religions, Reevolligion, refer to Charles Darwin as simply Charles the Father. One might wonder if there is such a religion as Reevolligion? This can be easily verified. All one has to do is to take the name of Charles the Father in vain, or to disclaim his theories as false by placing other theories before them, or to say that there is more to the existence than that which the theory of evolution embraces. Certainly after doing any one of the above, an ardent and reverent devotee of Charles the Father will come forward, and armed with facts, figures, and most importantly conjectured opinions based upon the educated guesses of Reevolligion's prophets — the best known contemporary prophet being the prophet Carl-the-Sagan-, and thoroughly thrash the heretic for being an Anti-Charles.

But more importantly than the above, Jay states in one of his most lucid lines the key aspect of Reevolligion's dogma: "Please accept the fact that human beings will never know the answers to all the questions...". Faith plays an important role in the life of a Reevolligion devotee. This can be easily seen by substituting the word faith for the word fact in the above quote. Jay sheds further light on the doctrine of Reevolligion by stating: "It seems to me that creationists are afraid to accept the fact (faith) that we are just another animal. Isn't it an honor...". I for one am not afraid to accept the fact (faith) that anyone who purports to hold this doctrine is just another animal, and I will certainly honor him by calling him or her top dog.

John R. McVey
Amherst

Making it through Amherst mud

To the Editor,

Yes folks, Mud Season is here. You can see its effects as you watch people with eyes fixed on the ground half-stepping their way across campus. You can see people tip-toeing through it in their new white Nikes, desperately trying to avoid that initial splattering of slop. Such foolishness. The mud will eventually win out and coat your feet, it's inevitable.

There is one type of pedestrian who walks tall in this mud wrestling dilemma — the "Bean Booters!" Bean Boots are those mocassin type boots that have a unique characteristic: they're waterproof. The people who wear these are the ones who had, and still have, the good sense to listen to their mothers when told to "put your rubbers on."

Mud season is paralleled only by slush season, which we are still partially experiencing. However, there is a bright spot to all this dirty business. Mud Season is a sure indication of Spring!

So if you can't handle "slip slidin' away" for another month or so, do what I do: stay off campus until mid-April.

Neil Rhein
Amherst

Letters Policy

All letters must be signed and include the writer's address and telephone number, which will not be published. Please type double spaced at 67 characters per line. Due to space limitations and the volume of mail, we regret we are unable to acknowledge unpublished letters. All letters are subject to editing for clarity and length.

The Presidential sideshow has begun

The battle for the Democratic Presidential nomination has already begun, believe it or not, despite 1980 promises that the next campaign would be shorter. The fact is that in order to win a modern presidential election a strong groundwork must be laid the winter prior to the New Hampshire primary.

Currently laying that groundwork is former Vice-President and Senator from Minnesota Walter Mondale, Senator Alan Cranston of California, Senator John Glenn of Ohio, Senator Gary Hart of Colorado, Senator Dale Bumpers of Arkansas, Senator Ernest Hollings of South Carolina and former Florida Governor Reubin Askew.

All of the above have benefitted from Senator Edward Kennedy's decision not to run. And to an extent the trailers in the race think they have benefitted from Arizona Congressman Morris Udall's decision not to run. But the fact remains that most of them still need a decision by Mondale not to run in order to have a realistic shot at the nomination and that won't happen.

Rich Nangle

What had originally looked like a Kennedy/Mondale dogfight has been transformed to Mondale being portrayed by the media as the frontrunner and perhaps rightly so. But there is a danger in allowing the media to elect a president before the voters do. There is still a year to go before New Hampshire goes to the polls.

Mondale has picked up some key Kennedy and Carter people who make his organization formidable. He also has well-organized grassroots campaigns in Iowa and New Hampshire. But Cranston and Hart have also established themselves in the two states. The Iowa caucus may be just an exhibition game but no candidate can afford not to take it seriously.

Glenn has not started as strongly as his more liberal competitors, but as the strongest of the moderate to conservative candidates he still has the opportunity to make up for lost time. Glenn will be the last candidate to officially announce. He will do so in the late spring. He hopes to gain some attention for himself at that point rather than join the array of candidates who have announced their intention to run, or stay home, in recent weeks. Glenn has had a further advantage which unfortunately takes a front seat to issues in political campaigns. He is the hero candidate by virtue of his being in the first spaceship to orbit the earth. If Glenn is elected, our last four presidents will have been a football player, a peanut farmer, an actor and an astronaut.

It's important to recognize the issues and realize that Glenn (who should eventually weed out ideological similars like Hollings and Askew) is far apart in the issues department from the other Democratic frontrunners. He has not supported cuts in the military or a nuclear freeze. And it has been questioned whether he would be in favor of abortion rights or the Equal Rights Amendment.

Cranston has talked only about the nuclear freeze. If he does not make some headway in other directions his candidacy will be in severe trouble early on.

Hart, however, has offered a distinct differential from the other candidates. He is known as one of the "Atari Democrats" who are emphasizing high tech and therefore more funding for higher education. He offers himself as a liberal who has a greater sense of fiscal responsibility. He appears to be the only serious candidate who wants to scale down the ridiculously high military budget by a large margin.

His chances depend on making early headlines and he seems to have developed a strong organization to reinforce his ideas with the people. If students are to take an active role in deciding who cleans up Reagan's mess, they would do well to show action, rather than talk. Mr. Hart begins his own UMass odyssey on Friday. The Presidential sideshow has begun!

Rich Nangle is a Collegian columnist

Human rights progress in El Salvador

What is progress? Webster's defines it as, "to move forward, to develop to a more advanced stage." Apply this definition if you will, to the current government in El Salvador, and the Reagan Administration's claims of "progress" in the area of human rights, and you will wonder what dictionary they are using.

5339 civilians were killed last year, 450-850 civilians disappeared, the land reform program that has been promised is going nowhere, the military still controls the government...but everything is fine as the Salvadoran government makes, "a concerted and significant" effort to protect human rights. Who is kidding whom? The murder of the American nuns has still gone unpunished, and the murders of two American agrarian reform advisors has still gone unsolved, yet the government is,

Randolph T. Holhut

"making serious efforts to improve the situation" according to our State Department. Their report concluded that despite continued problems, human rights are being protected in El Salvador. This finding has cleared the way for Congress to send at least 26 million dollars of aid to the Salvadoran military to fight the guerilla forces for fiscal 1983.

If that wasn't bad enough, this week the Reagan Administration has ordered a full-scale review of our involvement in El Salvador. Unfortunately, the reevaluation is tilted towards committing more military aid to the region. President Reagan wants an additional 60 million dollars in military assistance for the government, plus more advisors and a possible increased role in their campaign against the guerillas. It is felt that the government cannot survive without additional U.S. aid. It is also felt that the guerillas cannot be allowed to, in the words of Secretary of State George Shultz, "shoot their way into the government." Their review apparently does not include any provisions for allowing the guerilla forces to have a role in the government, or for any kind of peaceful settlement of the Civil War, which has been raging unabated for the last four years.

The Reagan Administration has kept anteing-up the stakes in El Salvador, increasing the amount of aid and advisors. We have painted ourselves in a corner with our treatment of Central America. Fighting communism is a noble cause, but when it is fought by supporting right-wing despots that have no popular support in their perspective countries, you wonder why more countries in the region have not exploded into bloody conflicts like El Salvador. How do we get out of the mess we created for ourselves? First, we ought to withhold military aid to the government. Secondly, a cease-fire should be established with the government and the guerillas coming to the bargaining table to work out a peaceful settlement to the war. Room has to be made in the Assembly for the FMLN, with the possible inclusion of them in the running of the government. New elections, with the guerillas involved in them, would be held. Without some sort of negotiated settlement to the fighting and later sharing powers with the guerillas, El Salvador may be doomed to a continuing bloody civil war, with more American dollars and possibly soldiers added to make the situation worse. We have watched the situation deteriorate these past four years. Things are not likely to get better. Unless the Reagan Administration recognizes this, we wil be treated to more of the same.

Randolph T. Holhut is a Collegian columnist

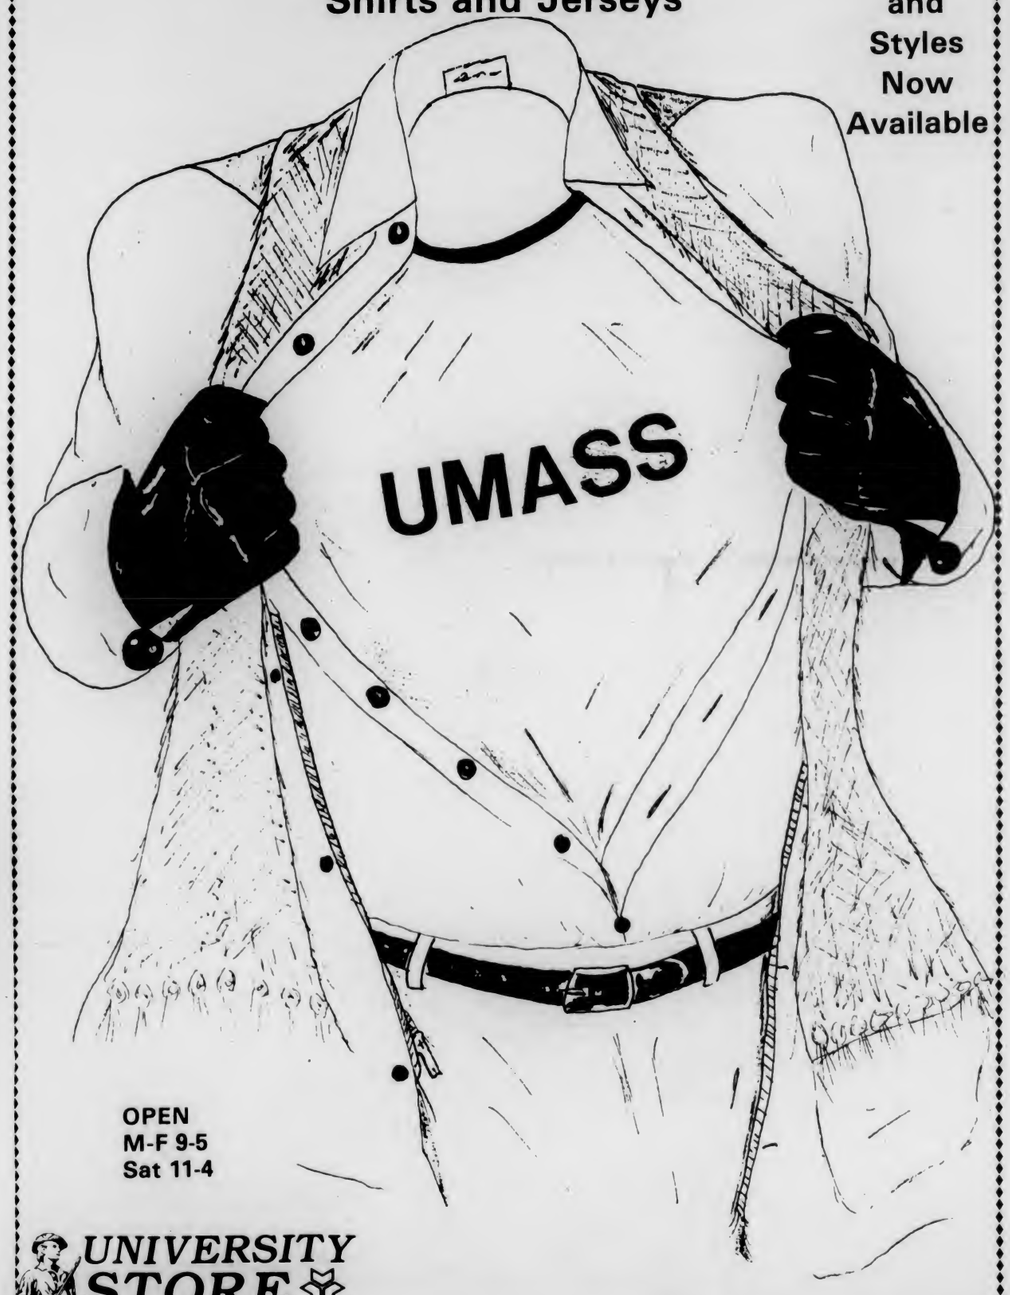
SPRING'S HERE

It's Time To Show Your Colors with UMass Imprinted Shirts and Jerseys

Spring Colors and Styles Now Available



OPEN
M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4

UNIVERSITY STORE

Wednesday, March 9

At Advanced Micro Devices, we're getting really good at what we do, and we're doing the right things the right way. We're on the leading edge of every critical technology in the semiconductor industry. There's still a lot more to do before we're Number One. If you're good at what you do, talk to AMD and Catch the Wave.

With your MBA, BS, MS or PhD in Electrical Engineering, Solid State Physics, Materials Science, or Computer Science, you can catch the wave with Advanced Micro Devices. AMD's wave carries the most exciting career opportunities in the semiconductor industry with a company that just passed $300 million in sales, and has its sights set on being a Fortune 500 company.

Make an interview appointment at your Career Planning and Placement Center. Or, if you can't make it on the above date, send your resume to Barbara Toothman, College Relations Manager, Dept. CN-UMC-39, Advanced Micro Devices, 901 Thompson Place, Sunnyvale, California 94086.

Advanced Micro Devices

An equal opportunity employer m/f/h

Hypercurricula...

NORMA GALO — The Coordinator for Eastern Managua of the Christian-based Communities, and member of AMNLAE will speak on Nicaraqua's Struggle: A Woman's Perspective. 8 p.m., CC 904.

WINE & CHEESE CONVERSATION HOUR — All are welcome to the next French and Italian conversation hour. Wine and cheese served. An excellent opportunity to practice your French or Italian with native speakers in a relaxed atmosphere. 12 to 2 p.m., Herter 3rd Floor Lounge.

UMASS HANG GLIDING MEETING — General meeting to organize fund raisers and fly ins. 7 p.m., 803 Campus Center.

FRENCH CLUB MEETINGS — Come to the next French Club Meeting and learn all about French food, films, culture, wines, etc. Lots going on this semester you won't want to miss. New members welcome. 4 p.m., Herter 3rd Floor Lobby.

ANTI-RACISM TEAM — The team will be meeting this week to discuss plans for the semester. Also the film "The Klan, Legacy of Hate" will be shown. All are welcome to attend. 4 p.m., 905 Campus Center.

WORKSHOP — AMHERST RENTAL HOUSING CRISIS — Workshop focuses on Amherst's rental housing crisis: the need for regulations and controls. 5 p.m., Campus Center.

AMERICA — FROM HITLER TO REAGAN — Documentation which exposes America's industrial support of Hitler; reveals top corporate and banking links with facism; and shows connection between bankers and first strike policies. 7 p.m., room 163 Campus Center.

WOMEN'S LEADERSHIP PROJECT MEETING — WLP will meet to discuss the speaker's series and internal education. All interested women are encouraged to attend. Refreshments will be served. 7 p.m.; Dukes Room, Student Union.

STUDENTS FOR GARY HART MEETING — Last minute preparations for Sen. Hart's UMass appearance. All are welcome and volunteers are invited to press conference proceeding Sen. Hart's speech. Call Dave 256-6255. 7 p.m., Machmer W23.

25 PLUS CLUB MEETING & SOCIAL — Older students are invited to "Live it up" with the 25 Plus Club every Thursday. Variety of activities in the works. Get in on the planning. Open to all older students. Call 253-7814 or 545-2684. 7 p.m., 805 Campus Center.

RESUME WORKSHOP — There will be a resume workshop for all interested people. Learn how to sell yourself to increase job opportunities. Members and nonmembers welcome. 7 p.m., SBA 108.

NEW TESTAMENT FELLOWSHIP — Come join us for an evening of worship, fellowship and teaching from the Bible. 7:30 p.m., 175 Chestnut St.

CREDIT, MONEY & JOB: LECTURE — Stephan Pollan, renowned author, banker, lawyer, professor and lecturer will show you the right moves. Start planning now for today's "money" game. Free. 7:30 p.m., Cape Cod Lounge.

FACULTY CONCERT — Violinist Julian Olevsky and pianist Estela Olevsky will perform works of Schumann, Schubert, Wieniawski, as well as several popular dance tunes by Spanish composers. Admission to the concert is free. 8 p.m., Bezanson Recital Hall.

NURSING-SPONSORED BAKE SALE — The Division of Nursing is alive, well, and sponsoring a bake sale to benefit the class of 1983. Stop by and get your blood pressure taken by a professional. 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., Campus Center Concourse.

It's not what you see.

It's how you see it.

Kodak

Happy Hour
IT'S NEW!
THURSDAY
Draft Beer... only 60¢
3-7 PM
LIVE ENTERTAINMENT
the hatch
GROUND FLOOR/STUDENT UNION

Ashes
A Play by David Rudkin
Frank Prentice Rand Theater
University of Massachusetts Fine Arts Center
March 4-5, 9-12, 1983, 8:00 pm
Reservations 545-3511
You can still subscribe to all three Rand Theatre productions
Ashes, The Comedy of Errors, and Company

Arts

Live Wire

by Dave Chevan

Right now I'm sitting with Bob Cummings of Urban Renewal listening to their new cassette album, and if the tunes get any better, I probably won't get around to writing Live Wire. This band has got the L.A. fusion sound down. But don't get me wrong, these grooves are quite the "Get down".

Formed in August of '82 by former Michael Gregory Jackson sideman, Bob Cummings, the band spent their first six months as Mitch Chakour's backup band. By the way, Chakour, former musical director for Joe Cocker, may soon be found on vinyl himself; negotiations are underway for a lucrative contract. While working with Mitch, Urban Renewal also spent time in New York City with Leah Kunkel, performing on a special recording project. Currently, the band has a regular Wednesday night gig over at Sheehan's Cafe. Their new album, "Urban Renewal", will be out shortly and available at most local record stores. Incidentally, Bob and several other band members will be playing with Mitch Chakour this Saturday at the Rusty Nail.

Urban Renewal, who've just completed their first self-titled LP, will perform at Sheehan's, Wednesday night.

Tonight, the Dead's lyricist, Robert Hunter, will be at the Hangar One. The In and Instant Improv Players will be at Hampden Dining Commons at 9:30, that one's free, and Bellvista, a hot fusion act out of Boston will be at the Seperate Entrance in South Deerfield.

Friday night Berlin Airlift will be at the Hangar, the Neighborhoods will be at the Bluewall, and the Gun Club is at Hampshire College. David Johansen will be at the Rusty Nail.

Loose Caboose will be at the Wok Saturday night and R-Complex will be at Sheehan's Cafe.

Next Tuesday is a concert not to be missed. Brownie McGhee, veteran of the long and winding blues road, will be at the Iron Horse Coffeehouse. Brownie, Sonny Terry's better half will perform two shows, at 7 and 10 p.m.

This week's trivia question: Which member of the Monkees could actually play a musical instrument?

Send your answer by next Wednesday, twelve noon. Good luck!

David Johansen will be at the Rusty Nail Friday night.

Arts

Play by Play

by Pam Madnick

Have you ever become obsessed with someone or something that you couldn't have? In David Rudkin's Ashes, a couple in their thirties want desperately to have a baby. The odds turn more and more against them, as their obsession to be parents grows. Ashes will be performed by the University Ensemble Theater tonight, tomorrow and Saturday nights at 8 p.m. in the Rand Theater, FAC. Tickets are $3.50 for the general public and $2.50 for students and senior citizens. For reservations, call 545-3511.

The Third World Theater will perform two original one-act plays this weekend and next in the Hampden Theater. Day of Absence by Douglas Turner Ward is a satricical look at minstrely shows, where the stereotypical roles of blacks and whites are reversed. The troupe will then present Los Vendidos by Chicano playwright Luis Vendidos. Showtimes are tonight, tomorrow and Saturday night at 8 p.m. in the Hampden Theater, Southwest. Performances will also take place next Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Tickets are $2 for students and $3 for the general public. For reservations call 545-2803.

TWT will also hold a workshop with George Bass, Associate Professor of Theater and Afro-American studies at Brown University and Director of the Rites and Reasons Theatre Co.. Bass will speak on "Art, Reality and Sacred Rites of Being in the Afro-American Adventure." For more info., call 545-0190.

Well-known and controversial theater director Jerzy Grotowski will continue a series of guest lectures in the Valley until March 8. Tomorrow at 11:30 a.m., he will speak on "Montage for Theater Directors" at Sage Hall 2, Smith College.

"Before Theater and Anthropology" is the title of his lecture to be held Saturday 1 p.m. at the Performing Arts Center, Hampshire College. The lecture will be repeated twice on March 6 and 7 at 9 p.m. in the Red Room, Converse Hall, Amherst College.

Need a cheap, but classy date? For just $1, you can see The Miracle Worker tonight at Smith College. The show will continue tomorrow and Saturday, but tickets will be $2 for students and senior citizens and $4 for the general public. The Miracle Worker can be seen in Theater 14 at Smith.

Christine Staples, Moira Driscoll, Alan Arenius and Lawrence Devine star in the Rand Theater production of Ashes.

Tom Deluca, a nationally renowned comedian who integrates hypnotism into his act, will appear on Sunday March 6 at 8 p.m. in the Blue Wall. Admission is $1.00, and tickets may be purchased in advance at TIX on Thursday and Friday.

Ballads with political sting

REVOLUTIONARY SONGS OF EL SALVADOR (Flying Fish)
Yolocamba Ita

By ROGER ATWOOD
Collegian Staff

A year and a half ago, five musicians from El Salvador gathered at a Canadian recording studio to cut their first North American album. All five were members of El Salvador's Democratic Revolutionary Front, a broad coalition of anti-government groups, and all five were forced into exile in 1980.

The result is this unconventional album of folk songs and ballads with political sting. Among the tunes are homages to revolutionary martyrs, songs of life among the guerrillas and stern warnings that if the Marines invade with their tanks and planes here they'll find their graves ...

The passion of lyrics like these makes Yolocamba Ita so striking. Whatever the listener's ideology, he or she will have to be moved by the raw power--even rage--of these lyrics. They are sung and printed in Spanish, and translated with feeling into English.

Not all the songs are so direct. One, "The Dance of the Little Animals," charms its way through lyrics like:

Three little animals ...
The first the gorilla
Who with his back-pack cannot dance ...
Now here comes the little pig,
Always just from money and coffee ...
The third is a donkey
Who directs this show from behind the curtains.
As always he wears a tie,
Is very rich, and plays games with the other two ...

Gorillas, pigs, donkeys. Now who could they be?

The musicmanship is excellent and entirely acoustic, consisting mainly of several guitars and percussion of various types. It is possible, with this ingenuous playing and the vocalist's cheerful intonation, to enjoy an uninformed listen. But pondering the lyrics will give an interesting and entertaining alternative to New York Times coverage of the war. For the power of the music and its first-rate translations of revolutionary poetry, this record has enormous value.

Yolocamba Ita is not available in most stores yet. Write Flying Fish Records, 1304 W. Schubert, Chicago, 60614.

Urban blues keeps Ironhorse moving

SON SEALS
Ironhorse Cafe
Tuesday, February 22

By PETER BANTTINEN
Collegian Staff

This show shoud have been held in a place where there was room to dance. I've never heard of a blues concert held in a hall where there was no room to move your feet. But the size of the Ironhorse Cafe certainly didn't stop the Son Seals blues machine from lighting up the heart and soul of the audience.

The musicians gave their all in both the 7 p.m. and the 10 p.m. performances. The second set was especially fine since the band had loosened up and become accustomed to the small stage. Son Seals himself had to stand in front of the tiny stage throughout both sets. Scrapper Mitchum, who sported dreadlocks, played an unusual bass guitar that appeared to have no tuning head. He is the only member of the band besides Son himself who played here a year ago when the band appeared at the Hanger.

The rest of the band included Carl Schcinde on keyboards, Michael Vaughn, who played rythm guitar, sang and played saxophone, and an excellent drummer named Clyde "Youngblood" Tyler.

During the sets, two songs were often segued together. The best segue was the one between "She's Fine" and "Call My Job". These songs are on Seals' 1978 release, Live and Burning.

Seals' face showed the pains of the blues while he played. The biting notes screeched through the Ironhorse, cutting right to the heart. From the first few notes, it was apparent who the leader of this band was. On one song in the second set, Seals traded in his trusty Guild for a Fender Stratocaster, which lent a sharper bite to the music.

On "Everybody Have the Blues", Seals sang and played remarkably like B B King. It was easy to see the effort put into old standards such as "I Can't Hold Out". When you figure that Seals plays 250 nights a year, and does at least two sets a stop, it is truly amazing to note the energy he puts into each song.

As soon as this American tour is over, Seals is going to bring his show to Europe. Then there will be another continent of people who will have had the joy of listening to his version of the only American musical invention: the urban blues.

Buy your ticket now for Spring Break.
Then fly nonstop from Bradley. Don't delay. Seats are going fast.

Fort Lauderdale

$119*

All seats, all flights.

Northeastern has become a popular jet highway to Florida, thanks to low fares and outstanding service. At this low price, tickets must be bought within 7 days of making a reservation. Call your travel agent. Or call us at (800) 645-1770 or (800) 327-3788.

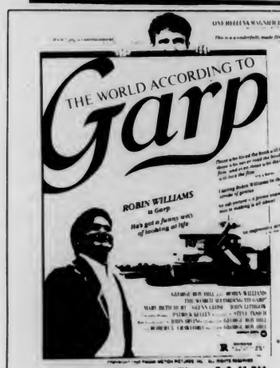
*$119 weekdays, $129 weekends are guaranteed to Sept. 6, 1983, when ticket purchased within 7 days of placing a reservation. Certain holiday surcharges apply.

northeastern
A lot of airline for a little money.

Summer at Brandeis
An Educational Adventure
May 31 - July 1 • July 5 - Aug 5

- Undergraduate and Graduate Courses
- Humanities, Social Sciences, Natural Sciences, Computer Sciences and Fine Arts
- Theater Arts Program
- Premedical Sciences Program
- Near Eastern and Judaic Studies
- Archaeological Field Research in Israel

Small classes taught by Brandeis Faculty.
Suburban campus close to the excitement of Boston/Cambridge.
Information, catalog and application
BRANDEIS UNIVERSITY SUMMER SCHOOL
Waltham, MA 02254 617-647-2796



Date Friday, March 4 Time 7, 9, 11 PM
Place Engin East Aud Admission $1.50

We compete to win!

Nike® All Court™
Now $18
Men's and Women's

Nike® Diablo™
Now $18
Men's and Women's

Brook's® Villanova™
Now $18
Men's and Women's

At Olympian, we compete to win.
With top quality Brandname styles. Unbeatable prices.
Come to where the action is and pick a winner at Olympian.
With famous Nike® and Brooks® styles for only $18 you are on the right track for all kinds of rugged sports or just casual wear.
Sale ends March 22, 1983

OLYMPIAN
We thrive on competition.
Hampshire Mall, Rte. 9, Hadley.

Meet the Total Communications Solution.

The communications industry is accelerating at a rapid pace. Presenting a diversity of exciting challenges that demand comprehensive solutions. And M/A COM—with over $500 million in annual sales—is the total communications solution.

The M/A COM Components Group manufactures the broadest line of highly specialized microwave components in the world—from fiber optic components to communications networks.

As part of M/A COM's 22-company effort, we can offer you a challenging career in a smaller company environment. You'll enjoy leading-edge sophistication. High visibility. And the opportunity to play a vital role on a diversity of projects. From start to finish.

Meet the challenges of the fast-growing communications industry. Meet M/A COM. The total communications solution.

Opportunities exist for individuals who are candidates for a BS, MS or PhD in Electrical or Electronic Engineering, or students with semiconductor engineering interests.

UNIVERSITY OF MASS.
INTERVIEWS
TUESDAY
MARCH 15, 1983

Contact your Placement Office to arrange an interview, or if unable to attend, please forward your resume and a cover letter describing your career plans, to: Manager, College Relations, M/A COM, Building #3, South Avenue, Burlington, MA 01803.

M/ACOM
The Total Communications Solution
An Equal Opportunity Employer M/F

Bloom County

By Berke Breathed

The UMass Zone

By Mark Rollins

Katfood

By ARK

Scrod

By Dan DeBellis

After the Fall

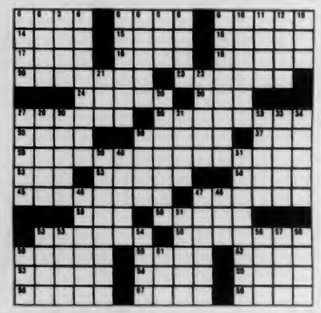
By R. Miller

CROSSWORD

Edited by Margaret Farrar and Trude Jaffe
©1983 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

ACROSS
1 Home of Zion National Park
5 Porous rock
9 Sounds of mirth
14 Pro or annual beginning
15 Iridescent gem
16 Separated
17 Hit hard
18 —— date
19 No way
20 Make into different form
22 San Diego players
24 Scoffs
26 —— jacet (here lies)
27 Bring down
30 Prophetic
35 Take —— view of
36 False wing
37 Poet's "before"
38 Starting point
42 Hole in one
43 —— Antoinette
44 The birds
45 Six-line poetic forms
47 Withdraw
49 Catchall abbr.
50 Brimless, close-fitting hat
52 Eases
55 Late
59 Mature
60 Small evergreen tree
62 State
63 Dugout
64 The west wind
65 Transportation cry
66 Style
67 Ceremony
68 Within: Prefix

DOWN
1 UN init.
2 Prefix in communications
3 Football's Stagg
4 Track event
5 Headpiece
6 Sleeping compartment
7 A —— chance
8 Broadway mistake
9 Disadvantage
10 Hasty glance, in France
11 Acquire
12 Greek god
13 Power vessel: Abbr.
21 Federal agcy.
23 Time and ——
25 Lone performer
27 Hindu titles
28 Develop
29 Small change
31 Man's nickname
32 Take off
33 Curved
34 Della, the singer
36 City of the Taj Mahal
39 Copied
40 Cartoon moppet
41 Tear
46 Be a tattletale
47 Escort
48 Where Lux. is
51 Singing group
52 Jewish month
53 Half-moon figure
54 Lead
56 Popular name in Wales
57 Immediately following
58 Singing group
59 Deed
61 "—— Were King"



ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

L	E	I	A	D		S	T	A	R	D	I	S	T	I	C	D
E	L	M	O		A	D	I	E	U		L	E	O	N
A	R	I	E	L		H	O	R	S	E	N	O	T	E
			D	W	A	R	F		R	A	D	I	O
			M	A	N	A			E	A	G
L	A	G	U	N	A		P	E	A	G	E		N	I	S
A	N	A	K	I	N		P	O	S	S	E		A	R	A
S	T	U	F	F		P	I	A	S	T	R	E		K	I	T	E	S
E	L	I			P	E	E	N	Y		H	A	V	E	S
			M	O	R	E	S	O		P	E	E	N
				I	T	A	L		P	U	M	P
U	R	T	H	O	N	E		S	U	P	P	O	R	C	A
C	H	E	I	N	O		P	L	A	N	E		O	V	A	L
U	S	O		U	N	A	F	A	I	R		K	N	I	T
A	L	I	A	S		S	H	O	W	N		E	M	A	G

WEATHER

Today, sunny and mild, highs in the 50's. Tomorrow, again sunny and mild, temperature reaching 60.

D.C. MENU

LUNCH
BAGEL BONANZA
Assorted Bagels with Meatballs; Italian Sausage; Shaved Beef, Turkey or Ham; Lox and Cream Cheese

DINNER
Baked Chicken/Supreme Sauce, Cranberry Sauce, Ratatouille, Spinach and Mushroom Quiche

BASICS LUNCH
BAGEL BONANZA
Assorted Bagels with Italian Tofu Balls; Eggplant Cutlet; Vegetable Grinder Filling; Lox and Cream Cheese

BASICS DINNER
Baked Chicken/Supreme Sauce, Cranberry Sauce, Ratatouille

Help Wanted

The Collegian has two job openings for this semester. Both require a little experience, but we will train.

Associate Managing Editor

Edit Collegian news copy, AP wire one night per week. Newspaper writing or editing experience required.

Layout Technician

Design pages of the Collegian one night per week. Arts or design experience preferred.

Interested UMass students should apply before 3 p.m. Friday, March 4, to the Collegian, 113 Campus Center.

The Collegian is an equal opportunity employer.

Collegianites
Staff Meeting
7 p.m. Thursday
in the newsroom
Important Night Graphics Meeting
6:45 p.m. Thursday

AN IMPORTANT ADDITION TO YOUR UNIFORM

The insignia of an Air Force nurse can mean a lot to you and your future. It shows that you're part of the Air Force Nurse Corps. A member of one of the most efficient health care teams in the world. It signifies you are an Air Force officer with the responsibility and prestige of a leadership position. It indicates you're on the track toward good pay and almost unlimited educational opportunities. If you're a nursing professional or about to complete your nursing education, why not consider Air Force nursing as part of YOUR future? From the day you're commissioned, you'll receive the pay and advantages of an Air Force officer. Consider your uniform and our future. Then make it yours.

AIR FORCE NURSING. A GREAT WAY OF LIFE.

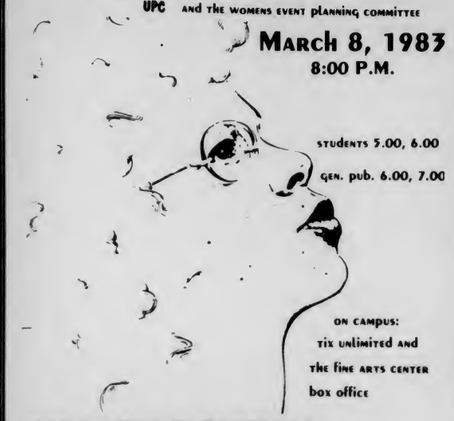
For More Details Call Sandy Price
(203) 229-9641
Freshmen & Sophmores Call Capt. Pinkell
(413) 545-2137

AIR FORCE

UPC PRODUCTIONS

in honor of International Women's Day
UPC and the womens event planning committee

March 8, 1983
8:00 P.M.



students 5.00, 6.00
gen. pub. 6.00, 7.00

on campus:
tix unlimited and
the fine arts center
box office

PHOEBE SNOW
with Special Guest
Debbie Fier

Amherst:
for the record

Northampton: womonfyre bool

thanx UMass Arts Council

all ticketron locations

FINE ARTS CENTER UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS

Southside Johnny March 17th
Tickets on sale tomorrow
Students $8.00 Gen Public $10.00

BREAK AWAY TO A BRAND NEW WORLD.

Imagine time-traveling from the era of the dinosaurs to the age of the stars. Discovering the secrets of a Mayan pyramid. Dining beneath the Eiffel Tower. Spiraling through the universe inside an 18-story sphere.

Now, imagine doing it all in one place. Walt Disney World Epcot Center.

Wherever your spring break takes you in Florida, you'll be just a step away from the wonder all the world is talking about.

A single-day admission to this new world of wonder is only $15, and a three-day World Passport - allowing admission to both Epcot Center and the Magic Kingdom - is just $35.

This year make your visit to Florida more than a break.

Make it a break away from the world of today.

And an adventure into the dreams of tomorrow.

Walt Disney World EPCOT CENTER

1983 Walt Disney Productions

Sports

McGonagle shooting for a trip to Nationals

By ELLEN RICHARD
Collegian Staff

Being on top of things is one thing University of Massachusetts gymnast John McGonagle knows how to do.

The twenty-two year old mechanical engineer major is the co-captain of the UMass men's gymnastics team and the number one man in the still rings event for the team. His high score of 9.7 is a school record that established last year.

This year, McGonagle, who is vice president of Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity, has a 9.65 for his high score and is looking for a place in the Nationals. He needs two more scores of 9.5 or above to qualify. In November 1981, he broke his wrist and missed qualifying by over 8/100th's of a point.

"I better score over a 9.7 and go to the Nationals," he said, "or I'll be very unhappy."

McGonagle was born in Hyde Park and moved to Milton in seventh grade. He ran cross country in ninth grade but was not interested enough to stick with it.

"I wanted to play another sport," he said. "I didn't like cross country or soccer and I was too small for football so I figured I'd try gymnastics. The head coach bet the assistant coach I'd quit in two weeks."

He didn't quit and went on to compete in the still rings event and the pommel horse for Milton High School in his senior year he was third in the state in pommel horse and second in the state rings.

He was second in the Bay State League in both pommels and rings and won a Globe All-Scholastic Award.

As a freshman at Boston State College, he was third in New England rings. After a year of college as a physics major, he decided to go into the Marines to get some discipline to study.

In boot camp he was on top. While at UMass, he is a Marine reserve member, which takes up one weekend a month and two weekends in the summer. When he graduates, he plans to enter the Navy to be a nuclear engineer. He entered UMass in fall 1980 as a continuing education student and became a full-time student that spring. In the New England Collegiate Championships last Sunday, he won third place in rings with a low score, for him, of 8.85.

"He's been an excellent performer because even when he misses a routine he still scores an 8.9," coach Roy Johnson said. "He's been excellent to have on the team to strengthen our ring team.

"He was contemplating retiring gymnastics this year and after we talked and designed a special program for him he decided to continue. I'm glad he did and I hope he is too."

With his heavy schedule of being co-captain of the team, vice president of his fraternity, an engineer major and a corporal in the Marines, he said he gets tired but does not mind it.

"I kind of feel like I'm wasting time when I sit around," he said. "Sometimes I'm so tired that I don't want to come to practice. Sometimes I can't swing because my shoulders are too sore. But I don't even feel it when I'm in a meet."

UM women skiers capture New Englands

By MATT LUCZKOW
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts women's ski team is number one in the Women's Intercollegiate Ski Conference (WISC) for the seventh consecutive year of ski competition.

The women outskied seven other colleges last weekend at Waterville Valley to capture the WISC crown.

"The women have skied fantastic all year," said head coach Bill MacConnell. "And we were expecting to go all the way by winning at Waterville."

After an undefeated season the Minutewomen were the team to beat at the championships. Unfortunately, the skiers suffered their only loss of the year to Plymouth State College on Saturday when number one skier Sue White fell down in the slalom.

As a result, PSC posted a team time of 341.34 seconds (best-three individual times) to take the win. UMass (349.03) came in second and Boston College placed third (364.43). The other schools in order of finish were Boston University, Brown University, Skidmore College, Marist College and North Adams State.

Finishing the championship slalom in 4th and 5th place, respectively for UMass were Leslie Dale and Theresa Collins. Sue White managed a 10th place finish despite falling, while teammates Lisa Luczkow (12th) and Kim Loftus (15th) also did well. Also skiing for the Minutewomen were Sue Levy, Diana Swain and Laurie Webber.

Lisa Klein (Brown) took 1st place in the slalom, Liz Goodnight (PSC) came in 2nd and Mary Whipple (PSC) was 3rd.

The women's team snapped back on Sunday to take the giant-slalom race by storm. UMass clocked a total time of 415.54 to put themselves far ahead of second place Boston College at 423.71. Brown (429.93) came in 3rd and PSC (423.11) came in 4th.

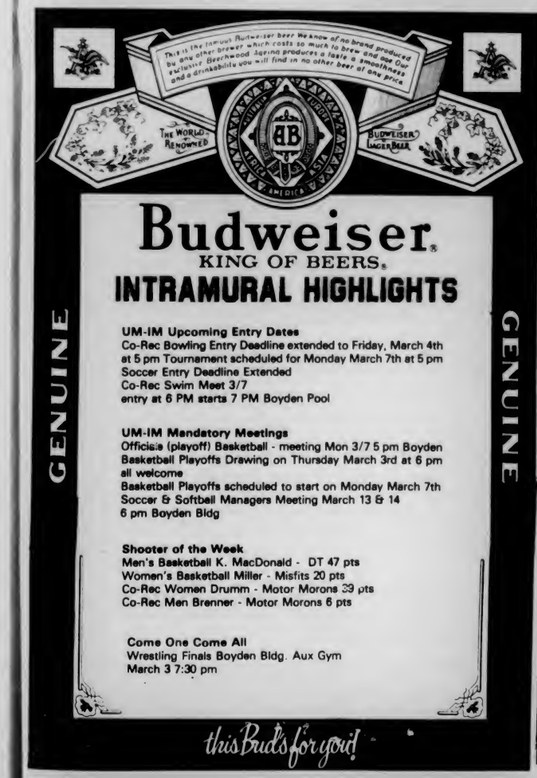
White Collins and Dale contributed to the UMass victory by taking second, third and sixth place. Luckzkow (14th) and Loftus (22nd) also finished well in the 40 women field, as did their teammates Levy, Swain and Webber. Amy Glackin from BC won the race.

The women's ski team was number one this year in all categories of WISC ski competition. They ended the regular season with a flawless record of 65-0 (win/loss ratio). On top of that, White captured the individual league title while her teammates Collins and Dale took third and fourth place in the standings.

Graduating this year and leaving the ski team behind will be senior co-captain Kim Loftus and senior Leslie Dale.

In their four years at UMass both women have achieved numerous personal and athletic goals as well as having made substantial contributions to the team.

Next winter, the rest of the women's team will return to the slopes in anticipation of another successful year of college ski racing. Think Snow.



Budweiser
KING OF BEERS.

INTRAMURAL HIGHLIGHTS

UM-IM Upcoming Entry Dates
Co-Rec Bowling Entry Deadline extended to Friday, March 4th at 5 pm Tournament scheduled for Monday March 7th at 5 pm
Soccer Entry Deadline Extended
Co-Rec Swim Meet 3/7
entry at 6 PM starts 7 PM Boyden Pool

UM-IM Mandatory Meetings
Officials (playoff) Basketball - meeting Mon 3/7 5 pm Boyden
Basketball Playoffs Drawing on Thursday March 3rd at 6 pm all welcome
Basketball Playoffs scheduled to start on Monday March 7th
Soccer & Softball Managers Meeting March 13 & 14
6 pm Boyden Bldg

Shooter of the Week
Men's Basketball K. MacDonald - DT 47 pts
Women's Basketball Miller - Misfits 20 pts
Co-Rec Women Drumm - Motor Morons 39 pts
Co-Rec Men Brenner - Motor Morons 6 pts

Come One Come All
Wrestling Finals Boyden Bldg. Aux Gym
March 3 7:30 pm

this Bud's for you!

CAMP COUNSELORS WANTED

Timber Lake Camp, one of New York State's top co-ed summer camps, is seeking high-quality general counselors. Specialists also needed in basketball, softball, soccer, tennis, roller hockey, waterfront (W.S.I.) for lake, indoor and outdoor heated pools, audio/visual, arts and crafts, computers, AM radio, ham radio, television production.

Applications for maintenance, grounds & dining room staff also being accepted.

Contact T.L.C.'s UMASS representative:

Rich Tyroler
1112 Kennedy 546-7762
for application or interview

LIFT THE BIG ONE

16 oz of Solid Drink

Thursday All Nite

POOR RICHARD$ A STEP UP

ATTENTION SENIORS

Now is the time!
Get your face in the yearbook.

The photographer will be here

Feb 28 to March 17

Stop by CC Rm 178 or call 545-2874 to make your appointment.

Harvard Summer School

the dance center

11th Season June 26 – August 5, 1983

Comprehensive Dance Program: Choreography Workshop/Ballet/ Modern/Jazz/Tap/Composition/Dance History/Writing for Dance/ Student Performance Workshops

David Brown • Leon Collins • Iris M. Fanger • Bill T. Jones • Pamela C.R. Jones Bill Mackey • Elisa Monte • Stephanie Moy • Kathryn Posin • Anamarie Sarazin Marcus Schulkind • Beth Soll • Arnold Wengrow • Arnie Zane
Additional faculty to be announced

Harvard Summer Dance Center
20 Garden St., Dept. 192, Cambridge, MA 02138 (617) 495-5535
Director: Iris M. Fanger

In spite of Reaganomics jobs are holding up well for graduates

in PUBLIC HEALTH

The Division of Public Health at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst offers graduate programs in

Biostatistics Community Health Education
Environmental Health Epidemiology
Health Administration Public Health Nutrition

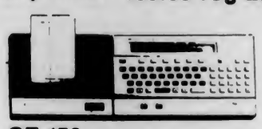
For Information
Come to the OPEN HOUSE, Friday, March 4, 1983
10 a.m. - 12 noon Room 803, Campus Center
CONTACT:
Robert W. Gage, M.D., Graduate Program Director
313 Arnold, University of Massachusetts,
Amherst, MA 01003
(413) 545-1317
OPENINGS ARE STILL AVAILABLE
FOR SEPTEMBER ADMISSION

SAVE 195.00 off list price on a Personal Computer with printer.

PC 1500 Personal Computer Now Only 184.95
with store rebate coupon reg list 300.00
CE-150 original printer 169.95 reg 250.00

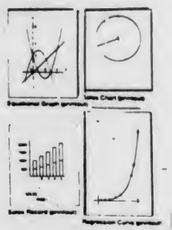
SHARP PC-1500

A new low cost handheld personal computer for professionals, students and home use.
The PC-1500 features an extended BASIC language operating system capable of handling two-dimensional arrays, variable string lengths, program chaining, full graphic commands and many other features.
The PC-1500 incorporates 48k bytes of system ROM and 2.6k bytes of user available RAM. Expandable up to 10.6k bytes of RAM by using optional expansion modules.
214 page applications manual contains over 80 ready to use programs for math, business, statistics, engineering and game applications.
Memory Safeguard TM, an added feature that conveniently prevents erasure of programs or data, even when the model is turned off.
4k byte and 8k byte RAM expansion modules offer greater programming capacity.
An 8 bit C-mos CPU enables fast data processing while consuming little energy.
7 x 156 dot matrix LCD display that can be programmed to create graphics, figures or special symbols.
A special tone generation allows the programmer to add the dimension of sound.
A simplified instruction manual that allows a beginner or advanced programmer to begin programming immediately.
Automatic Power-Off (APO)TM saves power by turning off the computer when left unattended.
26 character wide LCD display.
Full ASCII character set with upper and lower cases.



CE-150

The CE-150, an optional printer/cassette interface provides four-color graphics, 9 different character sizes and X, Y, plotting capability.
The CE-150 can be programmed to print in 9 different character sizes ranging from 4 to 36 digits per line.
Rotate commands allow the CE-150 to print up, down, left or right.
Uses plain paper.
Comes with an attractive carrying case, A/C adapter/charger, 2 rools of paper and dual cassette cables.
Prints a hard copy "list" of your entire system.



15.00 Rebate on a PC 1500

$15.00 Rebate on PC 1500

15.00 Rebate on a PC 1500

Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4
Located in the Campus Center

UNIVERSITY STORE

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Monday - Friday • Deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10 % • discount • Phone number FREE

ATTENTION BOLTWOOD VOLUNTEERS

The seminers are Sundeys 3/6 end 3/13 at 7 pm in the Commonwealth Room

AUTO FOR SALE

67 VW Conv inspected needs work $400 or BO 323-5918 leave message

For sele 1970 Ford Torino - 45,000 original miles needs work - $500 or BO call 545-3500 before 5:00 549-4125 after 5:00 ask for Dan

73 Pontiac Grand AM 4 door cruise control climate control bucket seats excellent condition $800 or BO 82,000 miles 549-2785 evenings

1976 Subaru DL 5-speed AM/FM 30-35 mpg, new tires, $1395 or BO 549-0569

80 Datsun 310GX excellent condition. Rear defrost/wiper stereo AM/FM cassette one owner $4500 549-5666

Grend Prix 72 very dependable 350.00 BO 549-3503 must sell soon.

73 Valient, good cond. 225 slant six, $700 or BO 253-5956

BELLYGRAMS!!

Delivered by professional bellydancer for most unusual gift. Thereza, 253-7822

CAPE COD SUMMER RENTAL

Duplex newly redone two bedrooms sleep four includes utilities. Ideal for a group of 4 or 8 $2550. 253-7436

CHEENO'S

Cheeno's Thursday on Campus Center pants, shorts, jackets, sweaters first quality $10.00

COUNSELING - LOW STUDENT FEE

Licensed, experienced, cering humanist No connection U Mass. First session free. Allan Black, 253-5036

ENTERTAINMENT

Rockedisc Entertainment Agency Inc. Bands and discjockeys guaranteed student functions 256-0739

Professional DJs for less $99 special ends March 15. Book now before price increase 549-4405

M & M Music Unlimited Professional DJ's for all occasions call Mike 546-5259

Magician - The Great Charles will entertain at any occasion call Bruce 549-1177 after 6 PM

Jodi Leong, vocalist, & Mark Baszak, pianist. TOC Lounge, Fri., Sat., March 4 & 5

FOR RENT

Room for rent Brandywine Apts call Mark or Kenny 549-4719

FOR SALE

Tickets for Eric Clapton's only NE show best offer 546-8682 keep trying

Hegstrom Bass $280 Kustom 75w amp $230 Roland synthesizer $450 549-0453

Kinks Concert! 2 tickets March 31st Worcester Centrum good seats 546-4419

Sunglasses: Raybans and Vuarnets at low student prices. Call Andy or Bruce at 549-1177 look for our table in the CC Concourse Wed.

Electric typewriter one year old $200 sewing machine $60 call 256-6174

1974 Ford Van - Runs well, will probably run forever $650 firm. Steve 6-6064

Seiko men's digitel quertz watches reg $129 now $60 call Rick 253-3598

Skis: package deal, Hart, Solomon, Nordica, Steal, $100, must sell 546-5314

Guiter: Westbury Std. w/DiMarzio pick ups. Very good cond. $175 w/case. 546-6015

Tom Petty: tickets Worcester Centrum March 24 (over break) call Rick 549-4007

FOUND

Women's 3 speed bike. No. Pleasant St. Call with registration number after 5 549-4766

HELP WANTED

Oversees Jobs - Summer/year round. Europe, S. Amer., Australia, Asia. All fields. $500-$1200 monthly. Sight-seeing. Free info. Write IJC Box 52-MA-1 Corona Del Mar, CA 92625

CRUISE SHIP JOBS! $14-$28,000 Caribean, Hawaii, World. Call for Guide, Directory, Newsletter. 916-722-1111 ext Massachusettes

COUNSELORS: Camp Wayne, northeastern Pennsylvania. Co-ed childrens camp 6/23-8/23/83. On campus interviews March 2nd. Friendly, warm atmosphere, 12 Allevard, Lido Beach, NY 11561. Include school phone number. Campus Rep: Wendy Edenfield 545-0939

Crusie Ship Jobs: $14 - $28,000 Carribean, Hawaii, World. Call for Guide, Directory, Newsletter. 1-916-722-1111 ext Massachusettes

Applications now being accepted for part time nights, at Kay Jewelers, Hampshire Mall

General Office Help. Must type 50 wpm+. Work Study preferred. Call Jenny at UPC 545-2892

Summer Jobs Let us send you booklet of 200 plus working vacation opportunities. Resorts, National Parks, Hotels. Act now for this summer and next. send $2.00 and self-addressed stamped envelope to Marand, P.O. Box 7728, Columbus, Georgia 31908.

Alaska Jobs summer/year round, earn great money in this opportunity rich state, ie, earn $10,000-$12,000 on three month fishing boat. Send for 1983 Employer Listing and information packet covering all industries $5.00 Lental Reseach dept AA2114 satisfaction guaranteed

INSTRUCTION

Know your car. Basic Auto Mechanics Workshop. Classroom theory & shop. Limited enrollment 253-2098

LOST

Keys on blue-clip keyring with words Le Chateau 546-8161

Glesses in a red case please call Helene 665-2848 Reward.

Blue Eestpeck Bookbag with Psychology and Law book very important Reward 549-0157, 546-5009

Did you mistakenly teke my coet from Poor Richard's, Friday Feb. 26? Long, black, wool cost, size 5, brand Peabody. Please call 253-5339

Lost - gold bracelet, Bartlett - Thompson Hall area. I really want it returned - it belonged to my mother. Reward. 323-5900

Watch timepiece, hamilton, between Hatch and NOPE, sentimental value, Sue 549-1463

TERMINAL RENTALS

COMPUTERM
Terminal wo/monitor $130/rest of sem.
Terminal wo/monitor $160/sem.
Terminal (complete) $180/sem. @ 546-7672

MOTORCYCLES

77 Kawasaki KZ 400 less than 6000 mi runs & looks new 2 helmets must be seen! $950 546-5280

NUCLEAR FREEZE

Proxy forms for Nuclear Freeze are available in 428 SU or at Peace table on Wed & Fri. Out of state students encouraged stop by!

PERSONALS

Guiterist wanting to join bend. Ir Southwest area preferably. All kinds of music. Call John 6-8800

Red, You brighten up the days Love Me!

Write-in Jim Finkle for SGA President.

Don't mise the hypnotist Sunday March 6 8:00 PM SUB $1.00 sponsored by GPC

Felice - Congrats on a great rush! You did an excellent job! Now get some sleep -Love, Chi-O

Lynn O Had fun Friday, sorry about Saturday Night. Maybe we can get together sometime. An Admirer. PS No more GLC

Dennis - Had a great time this weekend I miss having a roomie I love you Liz

Go Down with someone you know & trust
luxury hotels, no hidden costs & no BS
Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. Spring Break 83

UMass Ski Club Goes Down 545-3437

To the kind women on Mondey's bus. . .thankyou for the orange. It was delicious and a great surprise too! C.C.

A.S.A. presents bustrip to N.Y.C. March 12 signup FAC coffeeshop MW 9-10:00 12:15-1:15 TuTh 12:15-1:15 2:30-4:30 F 10-11:00 $20 roundtrip refreshments 546-7065

Emergency Care/First Aid Workshop March 7 @ UHS 7-9 pm for more info/sign-up call UHS 549-2671

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Dissertetions, Theses, Cases, Pepers, guaranteed acceptance, low rates, Nancy 5-0392, 584-7924

RIDE NEEDED

Ride needed to Conn. on Fri the 4th So. Windsor-Vernon area or to UConn call 6-9648 after 5 pm or before 10:30 am ask for Adrianne

SERVICES

PAPER DUE? CAN'T WRITE? Tutor -english composition and grammar reasonable rates 6-9289

TRAVEL

Floride direct by van. 3/19-27. $148. for round trip - wine & cheese - accom. info call now - S.S. Van Lines @ 617-724-8810

UMass Ski Club goes north
Spring Break 83 March 20-25
Stowe. Ski club capital of the East.
Only $159 includes: transportation, hot tub party, beer & wine parties, 5 day lift ticket, all taxes & gratuities & much, much, more. For more info contact the UMass Ski Club Rm 430A Student Union or call 545-3437

Spring Break Riders Wanted to Florida couple preferred call eves. 253-3908

Last chence Bermuda $315 - call 256-6941 after 6

VOTE GROOM******

Vote Groom Dave Groom for SGA President

****

WANTED

Class rings, gold and silver jewelry and coins. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant, Amherst, 256-0710

Help $60 reward for he[illegible]ng me by your parents unwanted secon[illegible]ar 253-7189

Cash for your records, tapes 545-2836 (ask for Jaromir/leave message)

Programming Producer wanted for cable system call GPC: 545-2733

Extra-fine pair of used stereo speakers 500 dollar cash limit 527-[illegible]14

Scandinavian Auto Service
EXPERT SAAB & VOLVO REPAIRS
SAVE 10% OFF PARTS & LABOR
With This Coupon
Offer Ends March 31, 1983
Rte. 116, Sunderland, Sunoco Station
665-7665

BARSELOTTI'S
Thursday Night Special
DOWNTOWN AMHERST
$1.00 off any name Pitcher of beer
with this coupon
DON'T FORGET OUR FRIDAY HAPPY HOUR
WITH MORE FOOD THAN EVER!

The rusty nail Inn presents

Thurs. March 3
Cruise Control

Fri. March 4
David Johansen & the Enemy

Sat. March 5
Mitch Chakour

Rt. 47, Sunderland, MA 665-4937
You must be 18 to enter.

Sports

There will be a meeting for anyone interested in playing women's JV softball, Friday, March 4 at 4:00 p.m. in Room 153 NOPE. For further information call 5-0038.

Temple break loose against UMass, 91-64

By BILL SHEA
Collegian Staff

Philadelphia — Road woes continue for UMass coach Tom McLaughlin and his young UMass team as the Minutemen travelled to Temple University and were handed a resounding 91-64 loss last night.

The Minutemen were lookin for a little revenge against the Owls, who came to the Curry Hicks Cage and pressed UMass into a 73-54 loss in January. Without guard Donald Russell, who was sidelined at the time with an injured wrist, the Minutemen had no chance against the high-flying Owls.

But with Russell back in and UMass in the race for the third place in the Atlantic Ten East division, a spot that would give the Minutemen an automatic berth to the conference tournament, the Minutemen were expected to give a better showing.

But, Russell is not nearly a fully recovered from the painful fall against Rhode Island a couple of games ago. The sophomore guard started against the Owls, logged 17 first half minutes and 27 minutes overall, but finished 0 for 10 from the field and was not a factor in the game.

Just like when the Owls routed the Minutemen here in January, junior guard Terence Stansbury stole the show. The 6'5" 180 lb guard busted loose for 39 points, good enough for a career high and also broke John Hempel' two week old Atlantic ten single game record of 37 points.

Umass stayed close in the first half and went to the locker room at intermission down 38-32.

But Temple, behind Stansbury and junior guard Jim McLoughlin (23 points), opened the game up early in the second half, jumping to a 55-38 lead with 15:11 remaining in the game.

Charles Rayne was the only other Temple player to hit double figures for the Owls. The 6'5" forward finished with 10 points.

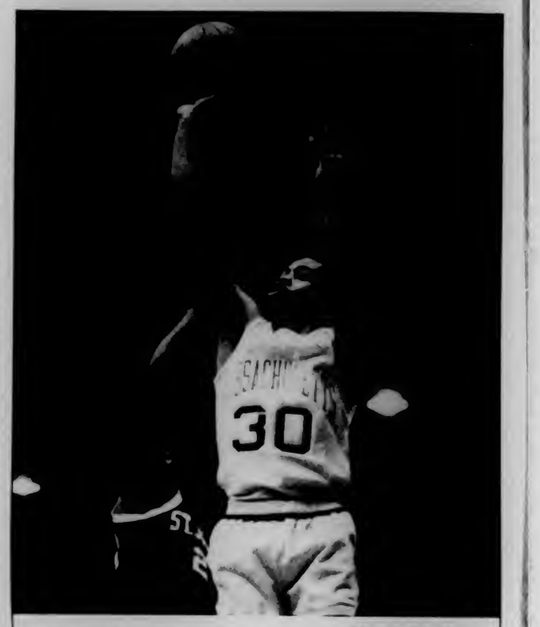
Edwin Green continues to give coach McLaughlin excellent play, both offensively and defensively. The 6'7" junior turned in a fine performance, scoring 20 points and pulling down 13 rebounds.

Freshman forward John Hempel was the only other Minuteman player in double figures Hempel, who was named Atlantic Ten Rookie of the Week for the second straight week and third time this year for his offensive explosions at the Cage, finished with 12 points.

Darryl Carter had nine points, Horace Neysmith followed with seven and Tom Emersom, who saw 12 minutes of a action his most time this year, hit for six points.

The Minutemen now fall into a fourth place tie with the University of Rhode Island in the Atlantic Ten East. The fourth and fifth place finishers play a qualifying game for the right to join the top three teams in the conference tourney at the Spectrum March 7.

The loss gives UMass an 0-14 record on the road (7-19 overall) this season. Fortunately, UMass the Minutemen will be at the Curry Hicks Cage for their all-important Atlantic Ten finale against St. Bonaventure, Saturday night at 7:30 p.m.



Collegian photo by John Doucette

Ron Young goes up for two in the Minutemen's double overtime loss to St. Joe's Saturday night.

Collegian photo by John Doucette

Sue Allen is airborne during the pommell horse competition last night at Boyden.

UM women gymnasts blow out Springfield

By ELLEN THATCHER
Collegian Staff

It was the best meet of the season for the University of Massachusetts women's gymnastics team as it tumbled over Springfield College 175.5-163.3.

"They were great," coach Ken Anderson said. "It was their best meet ever. The last couple of weeks they've been sick and they're starting to put it together the way I know they can."

The Minutewomen won the vaulting event by almost two points and had their highest score ever. Robin Low and Sue Allen led UMass with an 8.9 score and solid vaults. Tricia Harrity was close behind with an 8.75 as the women dominated Springfield 43.75-41.9.

Springfield slacked off in the uneven bars event and the Minutewomen used the advantage to bounce out to a six point lead, winning the event 43.65-39.55. Allen was out in front with an 8.95. Karen Knapp was right behind in second with an 8.85.

Low was the overall best as her lowest score in the contest was an 8.8 in the uneven bars. She won the all around with 35.75 points, close to a 9.0 average.

Knapp performed well for UMass placing second in the all around with 34.9 points. Allen had 34.55 points and Harrity scored 34.45 points.

The Minutewomen kept improving. In the balance beam event the team scored an all-time high of 44 points.

Low had an outstanding balance beam routine in which she scored an all-time best of 9.05. Barbara Lord and Knapp shared second place with an 8.85. Harrity placed third with an 8.65.

Massachusetts went a step further in the floor exercises by scoring 44.1, their best total in the meet. Lisa Griffen put out a fine performance to take the top spot in the event with a 9.1.

"It was the second time in a meet that she's ever done a double twisting back somersault," Anderson said. "She had trouble with it in Southern Connecticut, but she stood it up tonight.

"They had a great floor set. It's the first time they've hit four events in one meet," he said.

Low placed second in the floor event with a fine 9.0 performance and Knapp scored 8.95 with a strong routine.

"I told them two months ago that that's what they were capable of doing (scoring 175)," Anderson said. "That's what they were striving for and that's what they hit."

Swimmers heading for New England trials

By SCOTT HOOD
Collegian Staff

Ha Ha, you can't fool me. I know what all you UMass sports fans are asking. You're asking: "How can a 4-7 team actually expect to finish in the upper echelon of a major meet?"

For those of you who don't know what all these fans are inquiring about, it is the UMass men's swim team. And, yes, their record is right and they do expect to finish among the elite in the New England collegiate swimming championships, which start today and run until Saturday, March 5 at Springfield College's Linkletter Natatorium.

"The top two teams are Williams and Tufts. After that it's going to be a dogfight for the number three to eight positions", said UMass coach Russ Yarworth. "With a few good swims we could do well."

Key performers for the Minutemen include junior co-captain Chris Porter and senior Brian Spellman. Porter is ranked among the top six in the 200-yard freestyle and the 100 freestyle Spellman, although bothered by shoulder problems and unable to train at full speed, will go in the sprint, freestyles and relays.

Other swimmers include Phil Surette, described by Yarworth as the hardest worker on the team, Paul McNeil, Mark Surette (no relation to Phil), and Brian Semle.

Phil Surette will swim the 400 individual medley, the 200 individual medley and the 200 breaststroke.

"He deserves to do well," said Yarworth.

McNeil, a sophomore, is hoping to place in the distance events (1650 and 500 freestyle), plus the 200 freestyle.

Mark Surrette will swim the relays and the backstrokes, while Semle, like Spellman, is bothered by a nagging shoulder but expects to compete in the distance events.

"Our last four meets we have swam pretty well, and with the rest (the Minutemen's last meet was February 19 against Central Connecticut) we should perform well in the New England's," said Yarworth. "We are definitely ready. We look good. Hopefully we can do it."

"Last year was a dogfight and hopefully we will be in that dogfight again. We are looking to avenge some of our losses in the meet."

According to Yarworth, UMass prime competition will come out of a group that includes Southern Connecticut, the Coast Guard, MIT, University of Rhode Island, University of New Hampshire, University of Lowell, Amherst College, and Springfield College.

Minutemen face conclusion of Curry Hicks hoop season

By JIM FLOYD
Collegian Staff

Tomorrow night's men's basketball clash between the Minutemen and the Bonnies of St. Bonaventure may be the last home appearance for Coach Tom McLaughlin and his troops this season.

It "may be" because the Curry Hicks Cage contest and a game between Temple University (who defeated the Minutemen Wednesday night) and the University of Rhode Island both carry important significance in the pairing of teams for the upcoming Atlantic Ten playoffs.

The results of these two games will decide the who, what, when and where's of the intitial rounds of the playoffs and here's the way things shape up.

There are two angles at which to approach this problem; should UMass win and should UMass lose on Saturday.

Should the Minutemen defeat the Bonnies and the Rams down the Owls then UMass, URI and Temple would all finish 4—10 in the conference. But, since UMass only has one win in the division and URI and Temple each would finish with three wins, UMass would finish in last and would finish with three wins, UMass would finish in last and would have to play the loser of a coin flip between the other two at the loser's home court on Monday night.

If, in a different situation UMass wins and, Temple beats URI, Temple would finish third at 5—9 and the Minutemen would place fourth at 4—10. Consequently, UMass would host last place URI at home Monday night at 7:30 p.m. in the preliminary round.

Now, should UMass lose and URI win, the same situation as the previous URI win would arise with a coin flip being held between URI and Temple. The Minutemen would play the loser of the flip Monday at the loser's place.

And finally, should the Minutemen lose and Temple win, then Temple would finish in third and UMass and URI would tie but, since the Rams have a better inter-divisional record, the Monday night game would be held at 8 p.m. in Kingston.

Have you got all that? Read it again.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY

Collegian

Volume CXII, Issue 89 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003 (413) 545-3500 Friday, March 4, 1983

Conference draws Dukakis and company

Tuition lid would be five year first

By KEVIN BOWE
Collegian Staff

For the first time in more than five years, students at the University of Massachusetts may not face an increase on their tuition bills.

Governor Michael S. Dukakis has recommended in his 1984 budget request that the Board of Regents not increase tuition at any of the public colleges or universities in the state. During his gubnatorial campaign bid Dukakis said that tuition rates should be frozen for at least one year or until a "sensible" tuition policy could be developed.

Yesterday Chancellor of Higher Education John B. Duff said there is a very good chance that the Board of Regents would go along with Dukakis' recommendation.

"I'm quite certain the Board of Regents will be presupposed to the Governor's recommendation," he said.

"I'm certainly not recommending an increase," Duff said.

Since the Regents were created three years ago, tuition at UMass rose approximately 35 percent. In May of 1981, tuition at UMass was $750 a year; today it costs $1129 to attend UMass.

To ease the impact of the cuts the Regents instituted a tuition waiver program for students who could not afford the increases. About 12,000 students a year receive a partial tuition waiver under the program.

But the waiver program did not appease all the critics of the Regents' tuition increases. Many pointed out the room and board fees were also increased with no compensation to needy students. The tuition increases also came at a time when the Reagan Administration was proposing massive federal financial aid cuts many students rely on.

Also included in Dukakis' budget recommendation is a $4.1 million increase in the state scholarship program. In the budget statement Dukakis expressed a commitment to increase the scholarship fund in the future to levels "commensurate with other states".

Collegian photo by Kevin J. Fachetti

Governor Michael S. Dukakis explained his proposals for the 1984 state budget during a press conference/briefing in the Campus Center yesterday. The budget proposes a $14 million increase to state public higher education next year.

Duke eats turkey brushes off pie

By E.L. BIRK
Collegian Staff

The Governor of Massachusetts is not a tall man. But he is a big man.

He muet be a big man to sit in the Campus Center Auditorium and eat the same turkey and lettuce on rye (hold the mayo) that any UMass student could purchase in the Hatch.

He also must be a big man to shrug off the time he visited Umass during his last administration when a wide-eyed proponent of higher education had hurled an ill-aimed whipped cream pie at The Duke. The student was apparently angry with several budget cuts Dukakis had made.

"I think he was throwing it at someone else," the governor said yesterday during a lunch break between his economic development conference and budget briefing. "It was a very difficult period that I never want to go through again. We went through a troubled period because the economy was falling apart."

He used words such as, "disasterous and bankrupt," to describe the state economy way back then. "Fortunately we've caught it just in time," he said.

UMass' future looks bright. High technology working with higher education is partly responsible. But the marriage of politics and higher education must receive some of the credit.

About the man once described by author Timothy Crouse as "the would-be senator from Connecticut" and now Umass Chancellor Joseph Duffey, Dukakis said, "Joe's experience and success in politics is a benefit to the University. I've known him for a long time and he's a friend of mine."

No faculty vote on General Ed.

By RITA MURPHY
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts Faculty Senate yesterday rejected a controversial motion which would have required faculty-wide approval of any senate action concerning the General Education Curriculum proposal.

The motion was criticized by some senators who claimed it defeated the purpose of the Faculty Senate.

The senate is "elected to do this job and we do it quite well," said Jay Demerath, sociology professor.

Demerath said if the motion were passed it would mean every time the senate was called upon to decide controversial issues, the responsibility would immediately be shifted from the senate and onto the faculty. "This would viscerate the role of the senate," he said.

Thomas Ashton, of the English department, defended the motion, which he introduced at the last senate meeting, February 17.

"A "no" vote denies colleagues rights to vote," he said.

This denial would "be the same kind of thing that exists in South Africa and El Salvador," he said.

Demerath said he "resents (Ashton's) parallels to El Salvador and South Africa" because they have nothing to do with the motion.

Walker Gibson, professor of English, said the motion "is an invitation to say no" to the general education proposal.

Jim Murphy, president of the Student Government Association, urged senators not to vote for the motion because "it would cut students out of the vote."

Following the rejection of the motion, Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey expressed his approval of the general education proposal.

Continued on page 4

Governor courts western leaders

By RAY BEAUCHEMIN
and TAMI BORTON
Collegian Staff

Governor Michael S. Dukakis emphasized the important link between public higher education and the state's economy in opening remarks to the Western Massachusetts Economic Development Conference held at the University of Massachusetts yesterday.

Dukakis, who was here with Lt. Gov. John F. Kerry and several cabinet secretaries, opened the conference in the Campus Center yesterday morning. The conference, organized by concerned western Massachusetts business, government, education and community leaders, comprised preliminary remarks from Dukakis, Kerry, UMass Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey, conference chairman Gordon Oakes, and Alden Raine of the governor's office on Economic Development. Also included in the agenda were workshops on economic policy, community development, education and employment, transportation, environment and energy and a press conference explaining the fiscal year 1984 budget.

Dukakis said in an opening statement, "In an economy increasingly based upon knowledge, this state's reputation for educational quality and educational excellence is essential to our economic future. "Fortunately for us, to a very great extent, whatever success we have had in economic terms, whatever our special advantage over other parts of the country is because we have not depended on the smokestack industry. We have had this very special resource, education, brains and technology, that has given us a competitive edge and it is important for us to maintain and strengthen and build on that."

[see related stories on page 5]

In a brief speech following Dukakis' address, Kerry urged careful monitoring of long term effects of the state-federal relationship regarding the proposed budget.

"With federally imposed tax cuts and defense spending, it will be hard to avoid a confrontation with the impact of that budget on the state," Kerry said. A seven percent reduction in federal block grants imposed by President Ronald Reagan will mean a $200 million cut in Massachusetts, said Kerry, who has been concentrating on developing a strong relationship with the congressional delegation in Washington.

However, the governor's budget reflects the impact of the federal government cuts," Kerry said, "Every bit of our energy is dedicated to an effort to conserve progress in the state."

Kerry reiterated the governor's budget and emphasized the role of regional relations on the economic future of the state.

"We will monitor present policy, focus on future policy and continue with programs to help communities move grants through Washington. We got that message while campaigning this fall, we took it back and are working with it."

Chancellor Joseph Duffey welcomed Dukakis and the other legislators with a feeling of confidence and optimism in the governor's effort to form what he called " a neighborly mutual concern and cooperation to make things work."

"The Governor's appearance shows his concern for western Massachusetts business and education," Duffey said. However, this is not a new concern for Dukakis, Duffey said. In his first administration as governor of Massachusetts, Dukakis visited Massachusetts in efforts to save the once failing Miller's Falls Tool Company and develop other businesses in the area, he said.

The chancellor recognized the interaction between theeastern and western parts of the state in several analogies. "You bring us lobsters from the Cape and we send you asparagus. You gave us presidents John Adams and Thomas Jefferson and I won't mention we gave you Calvin Coolidge," he said.

Digest

By the Associated Press

House heads toward approval of $4.6 billion recession relief

WASHINGTON — The House passed 324-95 yesterday a $4.9 billion package of recession relief designed to provide temporary employment for nearly one million people as well as food and shelter for the neediest.

The plan was attached to $5 billion in funds needed to assure continued payment of unemployment benefits. Together, these provisions constitute the first major anti-recession initiative of the 98th Congress that took office two months ago.

Final passage came after the House adopted a last-minute proposal requiring that most of the jobs funds go to areas with high unemployment. The vote on that provision was 335-83.

The Senate is expected to approve its own, slightly less expensive legislation next week. President Reagan, after abandoning earlier opposition to such a jobs bill, has signaled he will probably sign the measure when it reaches his desk.

"I hope that the president will help us do more, by supporting a second-phase program that restores confidence to those still facing economic tragedy," House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., said in a statement issued after the vote.

"With 11 million people out of work and two million people without homes, we need to enact this bill — and we need to do more."

Soviet Union ambassador to United Nations says his country favors nuke freeze

HANOVER, N.H. — The Soviet Union's ambassador to the United Nations said yesterday the Soviets, not just Americans, favor a nuclear arms freeze.

Ambassador Oleg Troyanovsky also blamed Washington for breakdowns in nuclear arms negotiations.

At a news conference at Dartmouth College, Troyanovsky said the Soviet Union twice endorsed nuclear freeze resolutions in the United Nations. He noted that the United States voted against the proposals and failed to ratify the SALT II agreement in 1979.

"As far as our country is concerned, I feel we have a fair position, while I am not sure about the Americans," he said. The Soviets, he said, have the feeling that the United States is seeking arms superiority, not arms control.

Hub fire paralyzes city 2 days straight

BOSTON — New England's financial hub was virtually paralyzed for a second straight day yesterday because a flash fire in a manhole snapped off electricity to downtown Boston's high-rise banks and businesses.

Thousands of workers at brokerage houses, mutual funds, law firms and banks, including the Federal Reserve Bank's regional headquarters, were given the day off.

Meanwhile, 100 utility workers stretched power cables above ground around the ruined manhole yesterday, trying to restore the power that was cut off Wednesday afternoon when the underground fire near Post Office Square cut seven power cables.

Seabrook builders seek $30 million

MANCHESTER, N.H. — The builders of the Seabrook nuclear power plant sought permission yesterday to borrow $30 million from the firm managing the project and to raise another $35 million through a stock sale.

Public Service Company of New Hampshire asked the Public Utilities Commission for approval of the loan, and for approval for the sale of 1.4 million shares of preferred stock at $25 a share, a spokeswoman said.

Myra Rivera of the company said United Engineers and Constructors of Philadelphia, the architects and engineers for the project, offered to lend the $30 million in a long-term note to help finance construction.

Today's Staff

Night Editor — Ray Beauchemin
Copy Editor — Mike Mahoney
Layout Technician — Will Hopkins
Photo Tech — Tom Kudla
Composition — Sam Levitt, Stuart Sajdak, Lauri Neely, Julie Marcinek, Matt Sajdak, Alyssa Rusiecki, James Shanahan, Jamie Katz, Brian Fitz Maurice, Laurie Frank, Joy McCarthy, Margie Hochman, Sheryl Silver, Adrianne Dufour, Liz Ward, Gail Tanzer, Alice Klingener

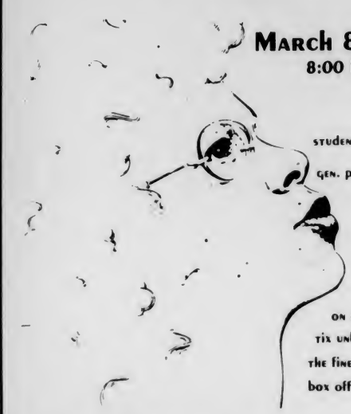
Subscription Rates

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday excluding vacations, exam periods, or holidays. Subscriptions are available for $18 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Massachusetts. Postmaster: Send address changes to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003.

UPC PRODUCTIONS

in honor of International Women's Day

UPC and the womens event planning committee



March 8, 1983
8:00 P.M.

students 5.00, 6.00
gen. pub. 6.00, 7.00

on campus:
tix unlimited and
the fine arts center
box office

PHOEBE SNOW
with Special Guest Debbie Fier

Amherst: for the record
Northampton: womonfyre bool
all ticketron locations

thank UMass Arts Council
FINE ARTS CENTER UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS

Special Purchase
Athletic Weight Jersey
$7.95 w/coupon reg. $9.95

100% Cotton
Heavy Weight
Maroon

$2.00 Off w/coupon
JERSEY
Reg. $9.95

$2.00 Off w/coupon

Open
M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4

maroon

Located in the Campus Center
UNIVERSITY STORE

Interviewing?

the SHOE BIN
187 n. pleasant st., amherst

Collegian photo by Tom Kudla

Norma Galo, coordinator for Eastern Managua of the Christian-based Communities, spoke last night in the Campus Center about the struggle for liberation in Nicaragua.

Women support revolution

By TRACY ROBBINS
Collegian Correspondent

In an effort to secure gains from the revolution in Nicaragua, women have become a major force in protecting their land and children from United States-backed anti-revolutionary forces, said the coordinator for Eastern Managua of the Christian-based Communities.

Norma Galo spoke last night at the University of Massachusetts about the perspective of women in the Nicaraguan struggle for independence from the Nicaraguan leader Samosa.

"Samosa ruined our children. He made them give up God," Galso said. "They saw despair. Mothers worried because the Christian youth argued that God was in allegiance with the anti-revolutionary forces."

The youths of the country argued that the church responded to the needs of the capitalists, she said. "Finally, we mothers had to concede."

Galo said she spoke as a mother who had a great fear for her children in a war-torn world. As a mother of five, she was especially concerned, she said.

"We were wrongly accused of Marxism and Communism." Galo said he hometown was, "terribly religious." "The poor fought to their deaths for bread, peace, and dignity," she said. Galo said "it was the children who started to convert their pencils to rifles, because for them there were no guns."

She said she speaks of women because it was a national force of women that kept the revolutionary struggle alive.

"Even the elderly women worked in the forces behind the lines to do their part. At that point in our country's history, and still now, the consciousness and intelligence of our women has been raised to a plateau never before reached," she said.

Nature provides women with the instinct of protection. They must protect their homes and children. Without children, there is no future, she said.

Women play an important and beautiful role in the world. It is time that they unite and come together to build a new society," she said.

Phoebe tops program for Women's Event

By MICHELLE HYDE
Collegian Correspondent

International Womens Day, held in honor of demonstrations by women factory workers more than 100 years ago, will be celebrated at the International Women's Event Monday and Tuesday at the University of Massachusetts.

The two-day event will feature a concert by Phoebe Snow Tuesday night at the Fine Arts Center. A photo exhibit, women venders and a series of workshops and films will also be held in the Campus Center.

International Women's Day began in March, 1857, when women from the needle trade protested their working conditions by marching to the wealthier neighborhoods to embarass the rich.

Again in 1908 women garment workers marched for shortened work days and the end of child labor.

Then in 1911, Clara Zetkin, a socialist and leader of the German women's movement proposed celebrating these women's demonstrations internationally by scheduling yearly demonstrations on March 8.

"Women and Work" is the theme of the event organized at UMass by the Women's Issues Team, the Women's Leadership Project and the Commuter Collective.

Karen Olsen, a Women's Issues Team member, described International Women's Event as a "celebration of women." Tildy Turchinetz, also a member of the women's issues team, said the word 'celebration' is used because International Women's Day is "the only holiday for women celebrated around the world besides Mother's Day,but that doesn't count," she said.

Planning for International Women's Event began at the end of October, she said, with more than 100 phone calls made and letters sent all over campus. "The main thing was the public outreach," she said, which included getting people together to help organize the event.

During intersession, meetings were held to discuss "the main thrust" of planning the event, the structure and theme. "We spent hours upon hours and never really came up with one (a theme)," she said. "In the past they had really poetic phrases like 'Women Moving Forward.' 'Women and Work' is pretty vague; it covers a lot."

Busy agenda for Event

By MICHELLE HYDE
Collegian Correspondent

The International Women's Event will be held Monday and Tuesday at the University of Massachusetts.

The schedule for Monday ranges from a poetry reading by Schyleen Qualls at noon in room 163 of the Campus Center to seven films, including Babies and Banners at 1 p.m., Hard Work at 3 p.m., and Straight Talk about Lesbians at 4 p.m. All films will be shown in the Campus Center rooms 162-175.

Tuesday's events in the Campus Center concourse include a photography exhibit from the Sophia Smith Collection at Smith College and women singers, including the New Harmony Sisterhood Band at noon and Patty Larkin at 2 p.m.

Also scheduled for Tuesday in the Campus Center are a martial arts demonstration at 11 a.m. in room 101 and workshops including "Women and Labor Unions" at 1 p.m. in room 811-815, "Women in the Private Realm" at 3 p.m. in room 803 and "Women Finding Their Own Voices" at 9 a.m. in room 905.

Members of The Valley Women's Voice and the Valley Advocate will give a workshop entitled "Women Finding Their Own Voices" at 9 a.m. in the Campus Center in room 905-09.

At 11 a.m., members of Ahmerst Aikikai, Valley Women's Martial Arts, and the Karate Health Fitness Center, among others, will demonstrate martial arts in the Campus Center in room 101.

An oral history of textile workers will be given by Victoria Morriss and Lee Ash, who is employed by Nine to Five in Boston. The oral history will be given during the "Women and Labor Unions" workshop at 1 p.m. in room 811-815.

"Women and the Private Realm" will be discussed by Janet Shepard, an area lawyer and Jackie Smethurst, an official at Northfield-Mt. Herman High School in Northfield at 3 p.m. in Campus Center room 101.

BOG outraged over proposed Campus Center fee boost

By DAVID SUMMERSBY
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts Campus Center fee is rising again and the Board of Governors, the student body in charge of the Campus Center, is upset.

With the passing of the Trust Fund Management Policy several weeks ago the Campus Center is now required to pay $336,000 of its total budget towards "full costing" and apparently the only source of this money next year will be students' fee money.

Ron Keefe, BOG chairperson, said he was very shocked at the news from Whitmore that the Campus Center fee for next year is going to increase $8.50 to $87.50 from a $79 fee proposal presented earlier this semester.

All semester the BOG office has been attempting to prove to the University and Campus Center Administration that there are other sources to account for full costing rather than students but it is now evident that their efforts have been for naught.

Even as of last week the BOG had a fairly positive outlook about next year's fees because of an agreement with Campus Center Director Bill Harris that there would only be a four dollar increase up from the proposed $79. Keefe said he felt this was an acceptable increase, but with the new increase yesterday he feels it is "fraud."

"We spent a lot of hours showing that students should only be paying $79 and now all of a sudden it is $87.50. We are not sure who is making this decision. No one seems to know, Keefe said.

Keefe said he has been getting "the run around" from everybody on the issue but he is certain that money for full costing should come from other sources than just students.

"We feel the existing management areas of the Campus Center such as the University Store and Retail Services should make a substantial portion. The University Store always underbudgets its revenue estimate which makes them seem poorer than they are," he said.

"Everybody is standing behind the $87 and we think the figures are wrong. The Current Campus Center Budget is $75,000 ahead of what it is projected for, but they are still saying that the revenue and expenditure budgets will break even at the end of the year. It is insane," he said.

Scientist confronts religion

By TURA GUDMUNDSSON
Collegian Staff

Addressing the issues of reality, God and free will from a scientist's perspective, University of Massachusetts professor Michael Arbib addressed an audience of about 100 people at the School of Management Wednesday evening.

In his speech entitled "From Artificial Intelligence to Natural Theology," Arbib raised the question "whether there is any transcendental reality that goes beyond the scientific reality of space and time."

Defining natural theology, Arbib said "it involves looking for evidence for the truth of religion in nature, as disinct from systematic theology which is looking at the Holy books and trying to see what they tell us about the nature of God."

Arbib, who teaches in the Computer and Information Sciences department, described himself as an atheist, and said his interest was to "start from science and go on from that to see to what religious reality must be."

While Arbib said that God had different meanings to different people, he said the scientists' view of God was closest to the more abstract notions of God as seen in Buddhism, or Spinoza's philosophy.

"When scientists use the word "God", it is in a much more abstract way, it is not a god of personal concern, but rather an expression that there is some sort of order in the universe," Arbib said.

"All of us as scientists have staked our bets on there being some sort of order and that as we do our science, we will understand more and more in some way about this order," he said

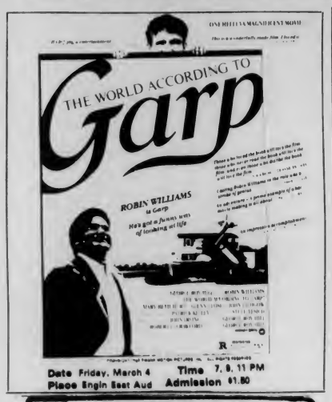
While Arbib maintained that "in principle, whatever happens in society can be understood in terms of what goes on in the minds of the individuals, which can in turn be understood in terms of neural interaction," he admitted "we cannot afford to throw any other levels of description of reality away."

Arbib concluded by disagreeing with the idea that we are going to understand ourselves better by replacing the notion of order as used in science, with that of a god who cares for people or is part of a transcendental reality and salvation.

But, Arbib stressed "that we cannot hold on to our views in a dogmatic way. There must be a continuous questioning of our beliefs, as we try and make our humanity a little bit more human."

Photo by Peter Marks

This railroad tressel could very well be the subject of a geometric study in parallel lines as its tracks disappear in the distance.



DELANO'S

MARCH SPECIAL
St. Pauli Girl
& O'Keefe Bottles
2 for 1
plus our original
twofers and hors d'oevres
7 days 7 nights
4-6 pm 10-midnight
Proper ID a must
57 N. Pleasant St.
253-5141

Duffey reopens vice-chancellor search

By JIM FINKLE
Collegian Staff

The beleagured year-long search for a vice-chancellor for University Relations and Development will face another delay.

University of Massachusetts Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey said Wednesday night he plans to reopen the search for the vice-chancellor position to be filled for the first time.

The search committee, last December, recommended Regis Ebner, vice president for development at Duquesne University and David S. Leiderman, director of government relations for the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies of New York.

"I have had second thoughts about what should be included in the job," Duffey said. "I want a good look at a broader field of candidates. I feel a need to reexamine the job description.

He said he decided to reopen the search because of "many reasons" that are "too complicated to explain." Duffey declined to say whether he would retain the original search committee or appoint a new group.

The search continued this fall when Duffey took office in October. After original screening, the search committee invited five semi-finalists to visit the campus for a two-day series of interviews.

Members of the search committee said they wanted to give the incoming chancellor a chance to have input into the search process. The search for a chancellor was just beginning at that time.

The new vice-chancellor will be responsible for coordinating all relations between the University and external communities. The offices of community relations, governmental relations and public information at UMass are under the jurisdiction of that area, according to a proposed University organization chart.

SWAG kicks into reorganization fund

By ROBERT STACK
Collegian Correspondent

The Southwest Area Government (SWAG) granted $25 to "Students for Government by Referendum" last night to support a non-binding referendum concerning senate reorganization on the April ballot.

Dave McCarthy, a representative for the group, said the referendum would cut the size of the Undergraduate Student Senate by one third and conduct elections by area. He said cutting the number of senators would increase competition and allow Southwest to "flex our muscles for more money."

Howard Breslau, of Patterson Dorm, disagreed with the policy of reorganization.

"The students should have their voice heard through a senator (in their own dormitory) in the Student Government Association," Breslau said.

Janice Chicoine, a representative from Cance, said she likes reorganization because "coming from Southwest as a senator, intead of a single dormitory, gives power."

Representatives from the Mediation Project informed SWAG reps about the project. Duncan Mackay, an intern with the project, said, "We are trying to build a referral network that recognizes the Mediation Project as an alternative to the judicial system.

Mackay said the program is "university-based but community-oriented." The mediators assist in disputes involving housing dormitory and landlord-tenant problems, sexual harassment cases, racial conflicts and family disputes, he said.

Voter registration to hit road

On Saturday March 5th, a voter registration drive will be held at the following places: 11 a.m. - noon, Puffton Village Pool; 12:15 -1:15 p.m., Colonial Village Pool; 1:30 - 2:30 p.m., Rolling Green main driveway; and 2:45 - 3:45 p.m., Brittany Manor Pool. Amherst residents must register to be able to vote in the April 5th town election.

Women's yoga at Hampshire

A two-day Yoga and meditation seminar for women, given by Yogic Nun Ananda Marga from the Spiritual and Social Service Organization, will be held at 3:30 p.m. today and at 10 a.m. tomorrow at the Hampshire College donut #5, Greenwich. The seminar is free. For further information, call 253-9354.

★ Fac/Senate Continued from page 1

Duffey called the proposal a "bold and risky act for a university of this size and diversity."

Duffey urged the senate to avoid "petty squabbles" from within the ranks of the senate.

A curriculum "should be allowed to change and grow," he said. The general education proposal allows this to happen, he said.

The proposal is "an ambitious plan" which is "committed to reconsideration."

"Whether it is accepted or not, revised or not, (general education) is an ongoing process, and should remain so," he said.

In other action, the senate approved a motion which urges the "immediate repeal" of the Solomon amendment which states that draft-age college males who have not registered for the draft cannot receive federal grants and loans after June 30, 1983.

Duffey urged the senate to repeal the act which would require the university to "handle 30,000 pieces of paper which it shouldn't be required to do."

A report released by the senate concerning the act, said "student access to education must never rest on race, sex, creed, or political position."

Dinner for Two
Enjoy
any two entrees
with salad bar and a complimentary n/a beverage
12.95
Every Friday

TOP of the CAMPUS
RESTAURANT & LOUNGE
11th Floor · Campus Center · UMass

BLUE WALL
CAMPUS CENTER AT UMASS
FRI. ROCK WITH HAPPY HOUR/3-6 PM with Paul Wayne
THE NEIGHBORHOODS
$3.00 COVER
w/ special guests "FAST, CLEAN & SAFE"

SAT. KOKO TAYLOR
and the HASH BROWN Blues Band
$3.00 COVER
sponsored by U.P.C.
and the Duke Ellington Committee

Collegian photo by Kevin J. Farbetti

As Governor Michael S. Dukakis delivers an opening address to participants of the Western Massachusetts Economic Development Conference, members of his cabinet remain attentive. Later in the program, the cabinet members led workshops in various areas of economic development.

Workshops provide forum for regional idea exchange

Compiled by Collegian staff

An important part of the Western Massachusetts Economic Development Conference yesterday was the workshop segment of the program. Dukakis aides chaired several panels including economic policy, community development, education, training and employment, transportation,and environment and energy.

Local legislators, educators and members of the business community had their turn to offer suggestions, comments and criticisms in the "Regional Economic Development" workshop.

University of Massachusetts President Knapp stressed that the University offers more to the western Massachusetts economy than just an educational institution.

"Our payroll is the second biggest in western Mass. and we have a pump priming problem and infrastructure problem of the most serious kind," Knapp said. "Thirty-eight percent of our buildings are over 25 years old and most of them are built to last 25 years. We will have a ripple effect if we begin work on the University up and down the valley."

Recoiling from a discussion dominated by the marriage of high technology and higher education, Big Boy restaurant owner Ronald Abdow told the panel his business "provides jobs for youth, for minorities and for part-time housewives, we hope you address our problems."

Secretary of Communities and Development, Amy Anthony, informed the 75 community leaders who attended her seminar that the main emphasis of her administration will be to increase the linkage between her department and the communities.

Praising western Massachusetts for its history of innovative ideas, she pledged her support in helping the communities develop means to cope with cuts in funding.

She said that she is chairing a task force to develop private funding for housing projects which will take a hard look at both short and long term housing needs.

The "Education, Training and Employment" workshop was co-chaired by Lt. Gov. Kerry and Gerald Indelicato, special assistant to the governor for Education.

The purpose of the workshop was to discuss the implementation of a job training partnership program between government, business and labor groups.

James Hoyle, secretary of environmental affairs, Sharon Pollard, secretary of energy and Paula Gold, secretary of consumer affairs, spoke at a workshop on the administration's goals to seek "new and creative" solutions to problems involving the "Environment and Energy."

Several members of the audience, which consisted primarily of local officials from related environmental fields, questioned the cabinet members on their plans to deal with hazardous and other waste treatment problems.

In the transportation workshop, Fredrick Salvucci, state secretary of transportation, said the Dukakis administration is prepared to review several proposals to improve many of the state's highways and bridges but added that supplemental funds from the federal government will be hard to come by because such projects aren't federal priorities.

Duffey faces showdown with Regents over budget

By KEN BAZINET
Collegian Staff

The process that the University of Massachusetts budget will undergo will be long and tiring, but that has always been the case for most of the state's bureaucracies. This year, however, there is evidence that UMass may be headed for a showdown with the Chancellor of Higher Education and the Board of Regents to get its rightful share of the state's monies.

Gov. Michael S. Dukakis has proposed $406,550,521 for higher education in Massachusetts, and the figure represents about an eight percent increase for the state's colleges and universities. Dukakis held firm his promise to initiate a drive to make the state's public schools among the most competitive in the nation.

"A first rate educational system is essential to this state's future economically and otherwise," Dukakis said yesterday during the Western Massachusetts Economic Development Conference here. "We need to build the biggest and the best network of quality educational systems in the U.S. and we have the resources to do it."

While the Dukakis proposal begins to ensure growth for UMass and other state schools, a lack of communication between UMass and Dr. John Duff, chancellor of Higher Education, may stifle that promise for the future.

The problem begins with Duff's belief that a 5.5 percent increase above last year's funding for UMass-Amherst is adequate. "(UMass) Chancellor Joseph Duffey should be enthusiastic with the increase, he said. Duffey isn't.

"No comment," Duffey said, "that should explain my stand."

Unfortunately, it does not. It does mean that Duffey is not enthusiastic, but should he choose to remain silent he will be cheating the students, faculty and administration out of state monies that could mean extra computer terminals or an extra teaching assistant or a library subscription to a rare periodical.

Duffey is quick to say, however, that if the Dukakis proposal passes its test in the House and Senate of the Massachusetts legislature, there will be more jobs available at UMass. There is also talk of

News Analysis

$3.8 million going towards the repair of the library tower and by way of some bureaucratic maneuver, there is the possibility of freeing an additional $2.5 million for work in the library including new books and periodicals.

"This will enable the University to restore the library to its fullest capacity," Duffey said.

While there is no disputing that library maintenance is a priority, the University administrators should not simply accept what the Regents decide is best for the state's so called "premiere university." Fortunately, most of the administrators yesterday said they are prepared for a fight to get UMass' proportional share.

If Duffey goes public with his oppostion to Duff and the Regents and UMass President David C. Knapp continues his campaign against the questionable practices of the Regents, UMass will come out with the proper funds to ensure its continued growth.

Support heard for tax hikes

By DAVID B. MINER
Collegian Staff

Only a few hours after Governor Michael S. Dukakis revealed his proposed fiscal 1984 state budget, which included increases in taxes on cigarettes and gasoline, local legislators in both the House and Senate were predicting easy passage of the "revenue enhancement" package.

The legislators made their predictions yesterday while attending an economic development conference sponsored by the governor.

State Senator John Olver, D-Amherst, said, "No problem."

Rep. William D. Benson, D-Greenfield, called the tax increases, "non-controversial."

Rep. Raymond Jordon, D-Springfield, said the taxes were needed.

"If we are to provide increased state aid to cities and towns which are in dire need, we must have these increases", he said.

The governor is proposing a 4-cent-per-pack increase in the tax on a pack of cigarettes and an at least 11 cents per gallon tax on gasoline.

Revenues raised from these taxes would help fund some $28 million in state funding earmarked for western Massachusetts which includes $14.6 million for the University of Massachusetts to repair the Tower Library, renovations to Marshall Hall, and other projects.

Although most legislators appear to support the increases, Rep. Jordan said that there could be some slight opposition to the increases by some "persons who put their interests before the interests of the community as a whole," he noted.

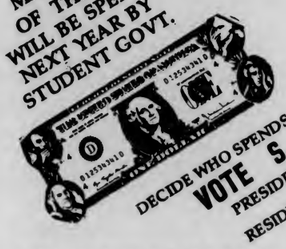
Jordan said, "Just because I come from a city that is economically sound, does not mean that I'm not concerned with the plight of some of the smaller communities, such as Sunderland which are hurting."

amc THEATRES
$2.00 MATINEE & TWILITE SHOW
amc HAMPSHIRE 6 584-7550
amc MOUNTAIN FARMS 6 584-9153

Tootsie
DUSTIN HOFFMAN
PG
LOVESICK
DUDLEY MOORE
ELIZABETH McGOVERN
PG
MERYL STREEP
SOPHIE'S CHOICE
R
GANDHI
PG
PAUL NEWMAN
THE VERDICT
R
THE LORDS OF DISCIPLINE
R
ONE DARK NIGHT
PG
The Year of Living Dangerously
PG
MIDNIGHT MOVIE MADNESS
FRI & SAT at 12:15 a.m.
ALL SEATS $3.50
amc HAMPSHIRE 6 584-7550
ROCKY HORROR PICTURE SHOW
R
THE WHO Quadrophenia
R
Harold and Maude
R
Monty Python and the Holy Grail
R

FREE
OFF CAMPUS DELIVERY
$15.00 Minimum
TELEPHONE 253-3091
Rolling Rock & Light
..... 12 oz refill $10.00 + dep
Schaefer 12 oz refill..... $8.75 + dep
Budweiser 12 oz cans.... $11.00 + dep
Beer Balls..... $15.99
Carling 12 oz refillables..... $7.50 + dep
California Cellars 3 liters.... $5.99
C & C
PACKAGE STORE
61 MAIN STREET
"Across the street from Plumbleys"

1.7 MILLION OF THESE WILL BE SPENT NEXT YEAR BY STUDENT GOVT.



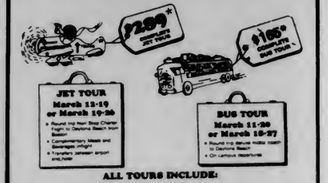
DECIDE WHO SPENDS YOUR MONEY
VOTE Student Govt. Assoc.
PRESIDENTIAL/BOG/
RESIDENTIAL ELECTIONS
MARCH 7, 8

Absentee ballots will be available from 1 - 3 PM in 420 S.U.B.

AMHERST CINEMA
$2.50 Double Feature
Fri & Sat
Streetcar Named Desire 7
Burn 9:05
Sun - Tues
Blue Collar 7:00
Norma Rae 9:00
Downtown Amherst
253-5426

MUSIC GALLERY
PEAVEY, IBANEZ, TAMA, JBL, ROLAND, ACOUSTIC, BOSS, LEGEND, EV-TAPCO, HONDO, DEAN, HAMER, FOSTEX. RT. 9 HADLEY ON THE BUS ROUTE
586-6228

Beachcomber Tours presents
14th ANNUAL
College Spring Break in
DAYTONA BEACH



JET TOUR
March 13-19
or March 19-26
BUS TOUR
March 11-20
or March 18-27
ALL TOURS INCLUDE:
LAND PACKAGE
ALSO AVAILABLE
SAVE $20.00
Don't be left out in the COLD!
Beachcomber Tours, Inc.
COMPACT
STEVEN
545-1671
DEPENDABILITY • QUALITY • SERVICE • SINCE 1949
room still available

ATTENTION
A SALE FOR YOU
ALL E ALBUMS
regularly priced
at 8.98
now only 5.99
MASTER RECORDINGS
ARE ONLY 8.98

Union Records Unlimited
The Student Run Record Store
201 Student Union
Univ. of Mass.
Amherst, MA 01003
413-545-0400

YOUR SUPPORT
WILL KEEP SALES
ABUNDANT!

Hypnotizing,
magnetizing,
mesmerizing,
energizing,
fascinating,
captivating,
exciting,
amusing,
entertaining,
original
Tom DeLuca.

Hypnosis that goes beyond entertainment and BSP, an original comic parody of ESP.
One of the most requested acts on college campuses today. Newsweek
Appearing:
Student Union Ballroom
Sunday
March 6th
8:00pm, $1.00

WANTED:
Student Staff for
Northeast/Sylvan

Applications for RA/AHR positions are available at the following information sessions:

Mon., March 7, 9:00 PM: Johnson House, N.E.
9:00 PM: Brown House. Sylvan
Tues., March 8, 5:00 PM: New Africa House
CCEBMS Information School
8:00 PM: Crabtree House, N.E.
9:30 PM: Cashin House, Sylvan
Wed., March 9, 8:00 PM: Thatcher House, N.E.
Third World Applicant
Information Session*
Thurs., March 10, 9:00 PM: Lewis House, N.E.

Application deadline is

*BCP students: contact B.C.P. main office for more information. Asian-American students: contact NE/S office for further information (545-0290)

NE/S is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer

EDITORIAL/OPINION

Just keeping an eye on clockwatchers

UMass students are obsessed with knowing the time. For example, a woman sits on a bus with a look of casual indifference. In the past five minutes she has looked at her watch seven times. If you asked her what time it was, she would have to look again. Her nervous quirk began developing in the third grade when no one told her to set her clock back for daylight savings. Today her little phobia is a campus trend.

Those who don't bother much with clocks put a lot of stock in their watches. Everyone likes to be seen wearing a watch, but no one likes to be caught dead looking at it. It takes years of practice to learn to efficiently glance at a watch in class without the professor noticing. The worst time to get caught looking at a watch is during a passionate embrace. Arms can only stretch so far, and eventually your boyfriend will figure out what you're up to. Unless you're trying to end the relationship, don't risk it.

Watches, like their owners, usually come equipped with various personality disorders. I have always wondered about watches without numbers. These usually have a dot on them somewhere, to tell the owner when they are upside down. These are designed for relaxed people who don't care if it's four or five. These people don't go to UMass. Umass watches make small beeps in the middle of lectures, so the rest of us can see if our own are still working. The 1812 Overature loses most of its magnificence when played on a Casio Quartz. This is especially true when its owner is vainly attempting to stifle the symphony in the middle of the Chem III midterm.

What would UMass students do without their watches? They could gauge years by the average length of time it takes for a student to make up an incomplete. They could gauge a month waiting on hold with health services. They could gauge a day by recording the length of the library tower's shadow. The time it takes for a campus center carnation to wilt is the equivalent of an hour. It takes one minute for a Brittany Manor party to clear out when the keg runs dry. It takes one second for the computer to obliterate a lifetime of programs. Hang onto your Timex.

Fortunately, UMass students are not a picky breed when it comes to matters such as this. Do other universities have chapel clocks that chime thirteen at six o'clock? Students don't really care whether they have the correct time, just a rough approximation will do the trick. That's why there are places like Herter Hall. Here, nonconformist clocks present their original versions of the correct time. Occasionally these clocks experience rather traumatic moments where they gain forty minutes in a matter of seconds. This doesn't bother students in the least; now they have a revised version of the correct hours.

Dorms have also become a breeding ground for clockwatchers. Most rooms are equipped with two clocks so that exchange students from Oregon can set their clocks according to their home time zones. Some dorm residents set their clocks seven minutes ahead of everyone else. They feel that this keeps them one step ahead of the competition. These are the same lost souls who show up for Monday classes on a day when the University has declared that day a Thursday. If nothing else, they were on time.

Lise Zeiger is a Collegian Columnist

Lise Zeiger

Letters

The Solomon Amendment is a means to a constitutional end

To the Editor:

This letter is in response to a letter to the editor from Susan MacDonnell that appeared in the "Collegian" on March 2. Ms. MacDonnell fails to realize one very important fact. The law that eighteen year olds must register for the draft is exactly that, a law. It may be a "frightening and dangerous law" to Ms. MacDonnell, but it is a law. As most people know, a law that is not enforced will most likely be a very ineffective law. The Solomon Amendment which requires students over 18 to register for the draft in order to be eligible for financial aid is a means of enforcing a law.

Ms. MacDonnell argues that the Solomon Amendment compromises a "citizen's right to education." I think that this statement is ludicrous on two grounds. First, although I am not an expert on the Constitution, I do know that there is no guarantee for a college education in the Bill of Rights. Second, the only way that financial aid will be denied to a needy student is if he breaks the law--the draft registration law. When a citizen decides to break a law of the people based on moral grounds he/she is engaged in a form of civil disobedience. When this type of action is taken, the law-breaker must be willing to accept the consequences of his/her actions.

Ms. MacDonnell states that the Solomon Amendment is an "assault on our freedom." Wrong again, since when are citizens allowed the freedom to break laws and not be punished? Ms. MacDonnell goes on to say that the law (she does not say which one) is "unconstitutional and immoral." If Ms. MacDonnell is referring to the Solomon Amendment then she is wrong. The Solomon Amendment is a legitimate means of accomplishing a constitutional end. Whether or not the Solomon Amendment is moral is up to the individual citizen to decide. If Ms. MacDonnell means to say that the draft registration law is unconstitutional and immoral then she is wrong again. Article I section 8 of the constitution states that, "The Congress shall have power to raise and support armies." Again, this law may be immoral but the determination of the morality of a law must be left to individual citizens and not to Ms. MacDonnell.

Daniel E. Feder
Northeast

I'm just wooing a poetic muse

Sometimes, when I'm trying to sound sophisticated about writing these columns, I often tell people I write after wooing the poetic muse that lives within us all. Let me say that again. I woo muses, not screw mooses.

Well, once again it was time to exercise my writing muscles. Unfortuantely, my muse was out to lunch. I tried getting in touch with it at The Lord Jeff (a place it frequently dines at ever since it talked me into giving it an expense account) but the maitre d' informed me that my muse was musing and did not wish to be disturbed.

Mary Beth Hebert

I lamented my fate to an old friend of mine who had, at one time, considered himself to be something of a writer. This person told me that whenever he had a similar problem, he called on three small gnome-like creatures named Satire, Sarcasm, and Cynicism to help him out. I must have looked skeptical, for my friend offered to loan them out to me on a trial basis, now, and for a limited time only. How could I resist such a clever marketing ploy?

I should have known better than to expect something for nothing. Or I should have at least expected that such a fabulous deal would be wrought with hidden pitfalls.

First, they were all grumpy and ill-tempered. They all moaned and complained as I tried to take them to my house. Cynicism thought that this was the dumbest idea he had ever heard of and told me that my muse had fallen in love with a blonde buildingsroman and they were running off to Sweden on the next boat. He mentioned that he knew where I could get an old romantic for less than half price. Sarcasm kept looking out the window and muttering, "Yeah...We'll be able to give this woman about as much help as T.V. evangelists give to their followers." Satire just looked kind of sick.

Not only were these little guys a real pain in the ass to deal with, but they were too small and kept getting lost. That's how I lost poor Sarcasm. Seems he fell into the typewriter and was pecked to death. The last thing I heard him say was that this was the only way I could get him to read any of my stuff.

Satire looked tremendously offended at this act of carnage on his companion. "What are you trying to do here?," he yelled at me. "Ruin everything? We had such a marvelous system and now you've ruined a good one third of it through your carelessness and insensitivity."

"All right," I said. "Quite frankly, I've always thought that dealing with you people was beneath my dignity and you're certainly proving it." "As a matter of fact," I went on, as the evil wheel in my brain started turning, "I don't think I need you at all."

Wham! I smashed Satire's little deformed body into the back of my filing cabinet and slammed the drawer shut.

Cynicism had no choice but to try to run away.

"Hold on," I said. "Just where do you think you're going?"

Cynicism just kind of giggled nervously. "It's just that I never knew you were such a humanitarian," he said under his breath.

"What did you say?" I screamed.

"Uhhh...I said you ought to give serious thought to becoming a vegetarian."

I thought that that was such an excellent idea that I began using him for compost.

A few days later I got a visit from my friend who happened to be in the neighborhood. He was rather taken back when I had my muse open the front door to let him in.

"What happened?," he asked her. "I thought you had run off with the buildingsroman."

"I was going to but he had some problems with premature exclaimation and I really couldn't deal with it," she replied.

I knew he was going to ask me where his titilating trio was and he did. I explained to him how I had systematically destroyed every last one of the little darlings.

"That's all right," he said. "I've got a date tonight with your muse."

Mary Beth Hebert is a Collegian columnist

Letters Policy

All letters must be signed and include the writer's address and telephone number, which will not be published. Please type double spaced at 67 characters per line. Due to space limitations and the volume of mail, we regret we are unable to acknowledge unpublished letters. All letters are subject to editing for clarity and length.

AN IMPORTANT ADDITION TO YOUR UNIFORM

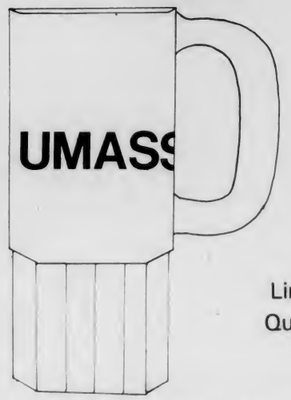
The insignia of an Air Force nurse can mean a lot to you and your future. It shows that you're part of the Air Force Nurse Corps. A member of one of the most efficient health care teams in the world. It signifies you are an Air Force officer with the responsibility and prestige of a leadership position. It indicates you're on the track toward good pay and almost unlimited educational opportunities. If you're a nursing professional or about to complete your nursing education, why not consider Air Force nursing as part of YOUR future? From the day you're commissioned, you'll receive the pay and advantages of an Air Force officer. Consider your uniform and our future. Then make it yours.

AIR FORCE NURSING. A GREAT WAY OF LIFE

For More Details Call Sandy Price
(203) 229-9641
Freshmen & Sophmores Call Capt. Pinkell
(413) 545-2137

AIR FORCE

SPECIAL VALUE
$1.50



Limited Quantity

UMass Plastic 12 oz.
Tankard
Blue - Red - Green

Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4

UNIVERSITY STORE

CCC Productions

Duke Ellington Committee

BLUES IN THE BLUE WALL

The Duke Ellington Committee Presents

March 5th Koko Taylor
March 9th James Cotton Band

Blues at Its Best

Admision $3.00
General Public

Solos & Duos

Featuring top jazz artists in an intimate atmosphere

March 4 - J.R. Mitchell/Walter Davis Jr. Drums/Piano

All shows begin at 8:00 P.M.

March 11 - Jackie McLean/Renee McLean Saxophone/Reeds

April - Abbey Lincoln (Aninata Moseka) Piano

All shows begin at 8:00 P.M. Cape Cod Lounge, Student Union Building Free to the public.

Black Affairs

Affirmative Action head cites issues

By RHONDA SWAN
Collegian Correspondent

Thelma Griffith Johnson, Director of the Affirmative Action department at the University of Massachusetts, adds strong and capable leadership to a very integral aspect of campus life.

Johnson is relatively new to this university. She has been here only eight months. In this time, Johnson says that she hasn't encountered any problems other than dealing with the slow rate at which the university system revolves. "The system moves slowly and it is very cumbersome," said Johnson.

"One needs patience to deal with it." She says that she doesn't find it difficult, however, because she has a background in bureaucratic administration.

Johnson was previously employed by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in civil rights legislation. In her capacity as director of a regulatory agency, Johnson had to deal with several controversial issues and she compares the racial climate in Pennsylvania with that of UMass.

"In Pennsylvania Third World people know what to expect," said Johnson. She said that racism there is not covered up, and no attempt is made to hide it compared to the situation at this university.

"In some segments of the university, racism is more sophistocated, more Machiavellian and subtle," said Johnson.

"People coming to the university expect that highly skilled, intelligent people would put aside stereotypical attitudes of other people, but this is not so," said Johnson. Despite this, Johnson said that not all white people on this campus are racist, and, in fact, "some are very decent."

Referring to the educational system at UMass Johnson raised several questions. "In the history department, are we letting young white students know about the contributions made to twentieth century literature by black authors such as W.E.B. Dubois, Langston Hughes, James Baldwin, and Ida Welles," asked Johnson?

The answer to this question is no, said Johnson, and therefore, she believes the works of these authors should be incorporated into the curriculum.

However, Johnson feels that it should be an addition to, and not a substitute for the Black Studies department. "I don't want this to be taken as a sham to disband the Afro-Am studies department," said Johnson.

Johnson believes that the drama department also lacks contributions from black playwrights. "Why doesn't the drama department compare the version of "Othello" portrayed by Paul Robeson, black patriot and also the first black to graduate from Rutgers, to that of Lawrence Olivier as opposed to the comparison of Olivier's to that of another white actor," asked Johnson?

Collegian Staff photo by Jay Oboe
UMass Affirmative Action Director, Thelma Griffith Johnson.

Johnson said that students in the legal studies department are ignorant to at least one major contribution made by a black. "Do these students know that Adam Powell, Jr., a congressman from Harlem, is responsible for the Elementary-Secondary Schools Act (E.S.S.A. ACT), which incidentally supported many poor white children," asked Johnson?

Johnson doesn't believe that blacks have come very far in terms of education in this society. "We have not made enormous strides in quality education for minorities in this country," said Johnson.

Despite this fact she believes that progress is possible. "I don't believe that oppressed people, once they have seen the light, will be brought back from where they came," said Johnson.

In view of this she feels that blacks have certain responsibilities to undertake. "Blacks have a responsibility to keep their eyes on the ball. Don't get too comfortable with the good fortune of being on this campus," she warned.

"Keep aware of what affects you and yours, and find strategies that let the whole society know that ain't nobody gonna turn you around."

Collegian photo by John Deserette
Minutewomen point-guard Wendy Ward takes it to the hoop the right way.

Haitian dictator says country to hold ballot

By KERNAN TURNER
Associated Press Writer

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — There are no candidates, no political rallies, no radio slogans. Ten months after President-for Life Jean-Claude Duvalier announced he would hold "free and honest, democratic elections," he hasn't said when.

The only things resembling political posters around the capital city are portraits of Duvalier and his wife Michele tacked on lampposts.

At night, a string of lightbulbs over a dry fountain a few blocks from the glistening white presidential palace spell out in French "Long Live Jean-Claude Duvalier."

Duvalier promised elections in a speech April 22, the 25th anniversary of his family's autocratic rule. He announced three concessions to democracy: elections for town councils and magistrates, appointment of a National Human Rights Commission, and a promise to seek a dialogue with political exiles and to free political prisoners.

Duvalier freed 25 political prisoners, but kept about a dozen others in jail. He also appointed a National Human Rights Commission, which reports directly to him.

But no date has been set for elections, although they were promised again in his "State of the Republic" speech Jan. 2.

Elections are rare in this country of 6 million people, the poorest nation in the Western Hemisphere. Haiti, which became independent in 1804, had 22 dictators between 1843 and 1915 and was occupied by U.S. Marines from 1915 to 1934.

Francois "Papa Doc" Duvalier declared himself president-for-life after being elected in 1957. A constitutional amendment granted Jean-Claude the same title when the father died in 1971. A rubber-stamp national legislature was elected in 1979 in balloting supervised by the military.

Duvalier's style of government in recent years has been to announce reforms and then crack down hard on dissidents.

Refugee crisis in West Africa seen as staggering

By BAYARD RUSTIN
A. Philip Randolph Institute

No year passes without some great crisis involving refugees. The circumstances of each crisis are now almost predictable. The pattern has been repeated in a variety of settings. Almost always the victims are black or yellow. Almost always they are fleeing abject poverty or some form of political barbarism. Almost always the world stands by unable or unwilling to prevent the tragedy that unfolds before its eyes.

Over 2 million Ghanaians have lived in Nigeria for years as a result of that country's petroleum-based economic expansion. Because oil prices have plummeted as a result of declining Western demand, Nigerian President Shehu Shagari ordered the expulsion of all Ghanaians working in his country. Shagari accused the Ghanaians of ruining his country'seconomy by taking needed jobs and draining the country's resources. He told the estimated two million Ghanaians living in Nigeria to clear out and return totheir native land within two weeks.

The result was a mass exodus and a refugee problem of staggering proportions. The virtually uninterrupted sea of refugees pouring into Ghana brought with them stories of incredible inhumanity. Ghanaians were robbed of their luggage and other belongings by Nigerian thieves. Near Nigeria's capital in the slums of Ijora, bodies of mutilated young Ghanaian women were found among eight corpses. Many of those who fled did not finish the 120-mile trek back home, having died of starvation and exhaustion, buried anonymously in the bush and along the beaches.

Once in Ghana, the refugees were faced with starvation in a desperately poor country whose government already faces severe economic difficulties and is on the verge of bankruptcy.

Some international relief has been forthcoming. The U.S. has committed nearly 800 tons of food; the European Economic Community has granted $5.5 million in emergency refugee aid.

While some observers recognize that Nigeria could no longer afford to cope with a huge population of foreigners who strained its economy, virtually everyone believes that the rapidity with which the expulsion order was implemented caused needless suffering and death. Had the Nigerian leadership acted more responsibly it would have enabled international relief agencies to prepare for the influx of refugees into Ghana.

Yet, the blanket expulsion may eventually backfire on Nigeria. Work reportedly has stopped on a number of construction sites which utilized Ghanaian workers. The school system was heavily dependent on Ghanaian teachers, who, although formally unaffected by the expulsion order, now find the atmosphere within the country virtually intolerable. Moreover, such oppression can lead to increased tensions within Africa and may rekindle longstanding ethnic animosities.

In the final analysis the plight of the Ghanaians underscores the fact that the idealized view of racial solidarity is far from a reality in African life. Thus, the fact that this cruelty has been perpetrated by blacks against blacks should not surprise us. It should, however, call forth a vigorous response from both black and white Americans. What is needed at present is refugee assistance combined with a strong public condemnation of Nigeria's inhumane and irresponsible conduct.

Haitian President-for-life. Jean Claude Duvalier announced there would be free elections. So far no date has been set, little other indication causes speculation in Haiti.

SUN TANS
Safe tanning WITHOUT a burn on our supersun sunbed.

Start your spring or Florida tan now!

RACQUET AND FITNESS CENTER
Rt. 116 Sunderland 3 mi from UMass
Hours M-F 7 am - 9 pm Sat wkends 9 - 9 pm

ONE FREE VISIT
when you buy two at the regular price of $5 per visit.
this coupon must be presented to receive free visit

RUSSELL'S LIQUORS
18 Main St. Downtown Amherst 253-5441

Budweiser 12 oz. cans	$11.00	case + $1.20 deposit
Busch 12 oz lg necks	$9.85	case + $1.50 dep
Miller & Lite 12 oz bots	$11.00	case + $1.50 dep.
Rolling Rock 12 oz long necks	$10.00	case + $1.50 dep.
Labatt's beer or ale	$3.30	6/pack + .30 dep
Gin or Vodka 80°	$5.45	liter
Folonari Soave	$3.99	1.5 liter

Many More In Store Specials. . .
Including Mini Kegs, ¼ Kegs, & ½ Kegs

WANTED**
Southwest Resident Assistants for Fall 1983

How to Apply:
All those interested in applying must must attend an information session. R.A. applications are available at information sessions only.

Information Sessions:
Sun. March 6 7:30 pm John Adams 12th floor lounge
Mon. March 7 7:30 pm Pierpont Main Lounge
Tues. March 8 5:00 pm New Africa House Library
Tues. March 8 9:00 pm Washington 12th floor Lounge
Wed. March 9 7:30 pm Thoreau Main Lounge
(A.S.L. interpreter on hand)
Thurs. March 10 7:30 pm Coolidge 12th floor lounge

Free Popcorn — TIME OUT — Two TV's
A Good Place to Start a Conversation
Coming Monday:
USFL Night Football
Happy Hour Prices
9 - closing
AMHERST'S BIGGEST LITTLE BAR
37 N. Pleasant St.

ATTENTION SENIORS
Now is the time!
Get your face in the yearbook.
The photographer will be here
Feb 28 to March 17
Stop by CC Rm 178 or call 545-2874 to make your appointment.

Assorted Sports Jerseys $5.95
Assorted Styles & Colors on Special Sale Rack Reg. $7.95
Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4
UNIVERSITY STORE

Arts

Freddy's fabulous

FAB FIVE FREDDY
Tuesday, March 1
University Gallery, FAC

By SARAH BUSH
Collegian Correspondent

Fred Braithwaite, otherwise known as Fab Five Freddy performed an hour of "dance-art" at the University Gallery last Tuesday night. The several spray-painted canvases of his graffiti spread throughout the room proved not to be the show itself, but merely one small component.

You see, Fab Five Freddy doesn't just paint, he raps. Rapping originated in the streets of New York City when somebody decided to "rap" along with the music while simultaneously keeping his peers dancing. It's flashy sure, but flash is what it's all about--the drab decor of the University Gallery must have experienced quite an identity crisis.

Freddy Braithwaite seems to have wanted to capture this and show the rest of the world a rather spontaneous, colorful, alive art perspective; sort of the culture of a subculture. His graffiti paintings help to set the mood and although they had a rather haphazard style, they still basically adhered to the mores of composition, as did his musical program. However, there was more repetition than anything else, and to see this show anymore than once would be positively boring.

But Freddy was cool with his sunglasses, and black leather jacket. Equipped with an expensive stereo system and D.J. spy Fab Five Freddy didn't expect his audience to passively view his graffitied world, he expected them to live it. And after about five minutes of coaxing, Freddy had most of the audience on its feet and ready to boogy. Definitely not your average art opening.

It seemed that to Freddy Braithwaite that life is art and people were making it downtown as well as uptown; it just doesn't look the same. Instead of feeling the need to take art off its pedestals and bring it down to a street level he was saying it was already there and that the reverse was needed. In order to make his statement to the audience—those gallery-viewers and museum-goers—he made them a part of it. But then again, maybe he just wanted some attention and found himself a clever and successful way to get some. Perhaps Fab Five was doing a bit self-glorifying that rainy Tuesday evening, but that's okay,because everyone else was too.

Fab Five Freddy

That's Robert DeNiro peeking out in a scene from Martin Scorsese's new film, The King of Comedy. DeNiro stars as Rupert Pupkin, an aspiring comedian who kidnaps a talk-show host (Jerry Lewis) and forces him to make him a star. The film will be released locally in the next couple of weeks.

Lords lacks discipline

By STEPHEN T. JORDAN
Collegian Correspondent

Take five parts An Officer And A Gentleman, stir in two parts Taps and sprinkle a little sadism on top for flavor. Stir carefully and serve to an unsuspecting audience. The result: Herb Jaffee's new, hopelessly sophomoric candidate for "B" movie of the year, The Lords of Discipline. This latest installment in a long series of military academy chronicles is, bar none, the most disappointing, disreputable and generally offensive film yet to be released about the "boys in blue".

The premise of the film is simple enough: the old good guys vs. the bad guys. However, in this film honorable and dishonorable, good and bad are carried to sickening extremes. The film opens with a commanding general telling the class of 1964 at the Carolina Military Institute that "a cadet will not tell a lie, cheat, or steal. Nor will he tolerate one who does. It's a simple code, but a stern one." With this little tidbit of profound morality firmly established in the minds of the audience a study in the immorality of the system begins. Soon, the general who speaks these words of wisdom is identified as the ultimate "baddie" in the film. Is this supposed to be ironic?

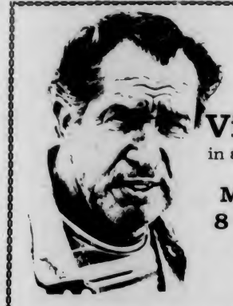
On "hell night" we are treated to scenes of severe verbal and physical abuse of the new cadets by the seasoned seniors. The honorable young seniors seem to find great pleasure in whipping, beating, and various other sadistic games. These hazings are condoned, indeed even encouraged by the Institute administration in its attempt to produce the "whole man." The games cease to be fun when a stereotypical misfit is driven to suicide by the antics of his superior officers.

As if to balance the immorality of the system, Cadet Will (Bubba) McClain is introduced . The role is well acted by David Keith, but it is essentially the same role he played in An Officer And A Gentleman. Yes, they've even stolen the casts of previous academy films. Is this guy ever going to get a role where he doesn't have to get a crewcut and say "yes sir!" every five minutes? The morality of his character is, unfortunately, overbearing to a fault. At one point in the film a fellow cadet says: "Bubba's a candidate for sainthood." This couldn't be closer to the truth. His concern with the corruption of the system soon turns into a comic book style crusade that leaves the audience wondering if his next line will be something like "truth, justice, and the American way."

Beyond the fact that the plot and characterizations are contrived and unoriginal, The Lords tread on some very thin ice in terms of American values. The film depicts the American military academies as nightmarish institutions where sadism and torture are part of the day to day education of the cadets. Will is told "The hazing is part of your duty" by his superior officers. Time and again we see scenes that exploit the immoral and inhuman aspects of military education, virtually ignoring the benefits of a military career, until the military becomes the anatagonist supreme. We are never told which branch of the military is serviced by the Carolina Military Institute and there is good reason to believe that this is because no American military organization would have its name connected with such a brutal, negative portrait of academy life.

If the film has one redeeming quality it is its treatment of the theme of southern racism in the early 60's. This issue is dealt with sensitively by the introduction of Cadet Pierce, the first black student at the academy. He is frightened and severely abused but wants to succeeed so that other black students can follow in his footsteps. Will comes to his aid, providing perhaps the only true human element in the film.

For all its faults and its questionable morality The Lords of Discipline remains a remarkably boring film. Its characters are one dimensional imitations and never manage to draw any compassion from the audience. Thus, we couldn't care less about any of them. Paper doll emotions and simple minded conflicts lead us to a predictable ending reminiscent of a network T.V. movie of the week.



DVP presents
Vincent Price
in a one man performance
Monday, March 7
8 pm at the F.A.C.
$2. 5 college students
$4. Senior Citizens
$5. General Public
Tickets on sale now at F.A.C. Box Office
sponsored by University Arts Council and Distinguished Visitors Program

Vincent Price Film Festival
Sunday march 6
2:00 pm - Theatre of Blood
4:00 pm - Pit and the Pendulum
6:00 pm - The Masque of Red Death
8:00 pm - The Raven
75¢ for all you can see
C.C. Auditorium

La Cuchina

WEEKEND SPECIAL !!!

Spaghetti Dinner

includes: small salad and garlic bread...

only $1.99

Saturday & Sunday

5:00 pm-11:00 pm

the hatch

GROUND FLOOR/STUDENT UNION

Hypercurricula...

Today

SHABBAT SERVICES — Shabbat is a chance to be part of an expressive community, recall experiences of the week, and receive and give lots of good energy. 5:30 p.m. at the Dukes room, Student Union.

GAY AND LESBIAN DISCO — Gay and Lesbian Activists (GALA) and the Lesbian Alliance at Hampshire College are sponsoring a "Mostly Motown" disco at the Red Barn at Hampshire College. Refreshments available. The dance floor is wheelchair accessible, but bathrooms are not.

NUCLEAR WEAPONS FREEZE PROXIES — Stop at UMass Peacemakers' table to sign proxy forms which will be hand carried to representatives in Washington, March 7-8. Special appeal to OUT-OF-STATE students. 9 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. on CC concourse.

SEN. GARY HART'S UMASS APPEARANCE — Presidential Candidate Sen. Gary Hart will speak on "Education and the Economy in the 1980's and 90's." Everyone is welcome and encouraged to attend. 10:30 a.m. in the Student Union Ballroom.

INTERVIEWS WITH HEBREW UNIVERSITY REPRESENTATIVES — Representatives from the Hebrew University in Jerusalem will be available today to offer information and answer questions about their programs. Please contact Debbie Propper (545-2526) to make an appointment. 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. at the Dukes room, Student Union.

Saturday

FIVE COLLEGE COFFEEHOUSE — Talent in many forms will be shared at this five-college event. Open to all! Sponsored by B'nai B'rith Hillel, 8:30 p.m., Elliot House, Mount Holyoke College.

25 PLUS CLUB SWIM PARTY — Meet older students at Boyden Pool for a swim, followed by "whatever." This 25 Plus Club is open to all part-time, full-time undergrads, grad students and U.W.W. students. Tel. 253-7814, 3 p.m. Boyden Pool.

UNIVERSITY WIND ENSEMBLE CONCERT — The 40-member University Wind Ensemble will present a free concert of works by Percy Grainger, Aaron Copland, Pierre Leemans, and John Philip Sousa. The Graduate Woodwind Quintet will also perform on the program. 8 p.m., Bowker Auditorium, Stockbridge Hall.

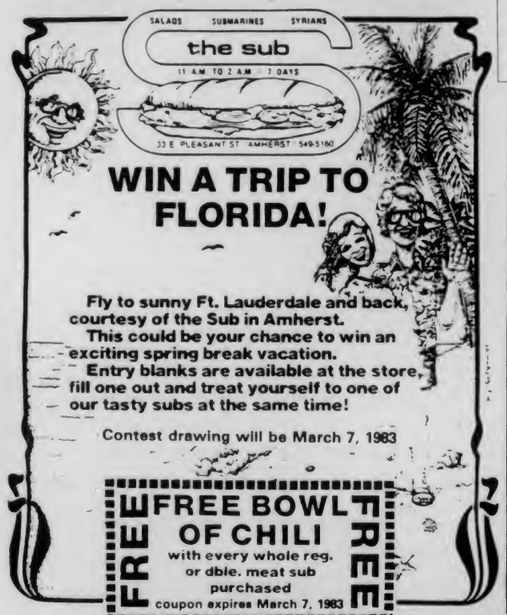
SERVICES AND BRUNCH WITH JEWISH GRADS, OLDER UNDERGRADS, AND WORKING FOLKS — Join the grad group for morning services at Congregations B'nai Israel in Northampton, then a brunch following it in Florence, with a small fee for food. New members welcome. Call 584-1404 for info.

Sunday

NEED A RIDE TO CHURCH? — The CHURCH BUS leaves at 9:30 from Prince House and stops at Hills North, Greenough, Grayson, Fraternity-Sorority Park, Cashin, and NOPE enroute to the Amherst churches. Call UCF, 545-2661, for more information, 9:30 a.m.

AMHERST AREA NEW TESTAMENT CHURCH — All are welcome to join us for our weekly meeting of worship, fellowship and teaching from the Bible, 3:30 p.m., Campus Center.

SPIRITUAL DIRECTION & SUPPORT GROUP — A group for men and women willing to examine different forms of spirituality and how it can be reflected positively in one's life, 7 to 9 p.m., 428 Student Union.



WIN A TRIP TO FLORIDA!

Fly to sunny Ft. Lauderdale and back, courtesy of the Sub in Amherst.
This could be your chance to win an exciting spring break vacation.
Entry blanks are available at the store, fill one out and treat yourself to one of our tasty subs at the same time!

Contest drawing will be March 7, 1983

FREE FREE BOWL OF CHILI with every whole reg. or dble. meat sub purchased coupon expires March 7, 1983 FREE FREE

FOUR SEASONS

Labatts	ale or beer	$10.99	case
Falstaff	cans	$6.99	case
Utica Club	cans	$6.99
Old Milwaukee	12 pk	$4.50
Strogoff Vodka	1.75 L.	$8.99
Wellington Gin	1.75 litre	$8.99
Piccala Coffee Liqueur	L.	$7.49
Riunite Wines	750 ml.	$2.69
Sebastiani Table Wines	1.5 L.	$4.49
Gallo Varietals	1.5 L.	$3.99

Kegs — Free Delivery

Open 10 AM to 11 PM in front of the Malls

Wines/Liquors

rte.9, hadley, ma./584-8174

the rusty nail inn presents

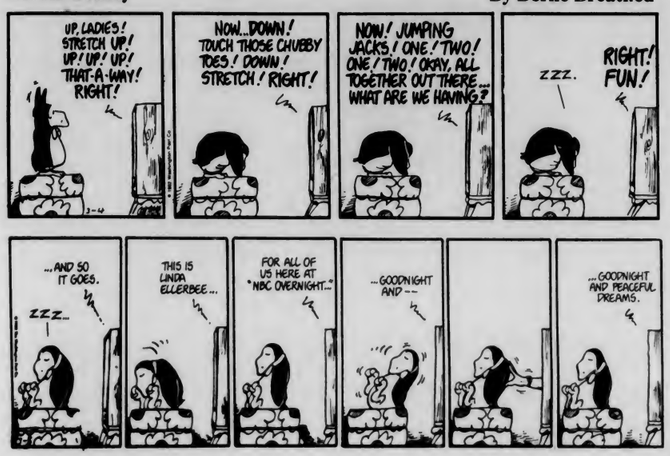
Fri. March 4
David Johansen & the Enemy

Sat. March 5
Mitch Chakour

Rt. 47, Sunderland, MA 665-4937

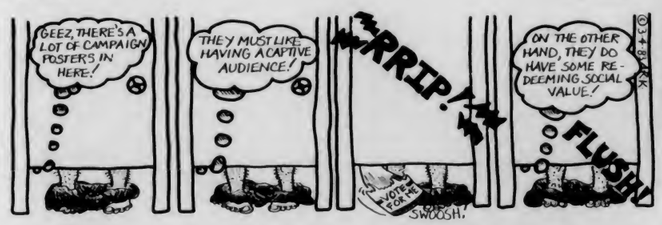
You must be 18 to enter.

Bloom County — By Berke Breathed



The UMass Zone — By Mark Rollins

Katfood — By ARK



Scrod — By Dan DeBellis

After the Fall — By R. Miller

CROSSWORD

Edited by Margaret Farrar and Trude Jaffe

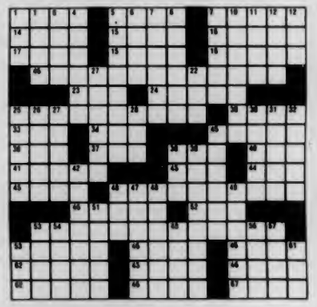
©1983 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

ACROSS

1 Swoop
5 —— the way
9 Not stagnant
14 Old Norwegian verse
15 Colorful wading bird
16 Gaelic segment
17 Coward
18 "—— we forget"
19 Gave a try
20 Rant and rave
23 OSS follower
24 Prefix with surgeon
25 Horticultural asset
29 Etats ——
33 Capitol Hill fig.
34 Sewing or quilting
35 Persona non ——
36 Latin I word
37 Suffix with lemon
38 Ledger keeper, for short
40 "Whether —— nobler..."
41 Wanted for
43 Canine's comment
44 Foolish one
45 Carbine
46 Unobserved frailty
50 Memorial stone pile
52 "The Princess and the ——"
53 Glare angrily
58 Lab dish
59 French-German river
60 Gradations of color
62 Corroded
63 Mythical Norse hero
64 Osprey's cousin
65 Incites
66 Opposite of acquiesce
67 Current measure

DOWN

1 Branch of Buddhism
2 The nose knows this
3 Concert halls
4 Hostility
5 Kind of woodpecker
6 Espouse
7 One of a Hindu triad
8 Respect
9 Belly —— (grouser)
10 Taste experience, to a Briton
11 Site of a Napoleonic victory, in Italy
12 Somewhat flattened sphere
13 Kind of blanket
21 Sailor of myth
22 Confer knighthood on
25 Up for ——
26 Pay off
27 Style of verse
28 Half a laugh
30 Of one's birth
31 "—— far, far better..."
32 Impudent
35 Old man
38 Persian or Siamese
39 By the rules
42 Asked for more
46 Topmast support
47 Made a textual change
48 Hire
49 Nut
51 "The Old Maid" author Zoe
53 TV producer Norman
54 Preminger
55 Make headway
56 Ambience
57 Home of a sort
58 Vigor
61 Clique



ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

U	T	A	H		T	U	F	F		H	A	M	A	N
S	E	W	E	R		O	P	A	L		A	G	A	R
S	L	O	E		U	P	T	O		M	E	T	E	R
			R	E	S	I	N	A	P	E
A	D	U	L	T		A	L	U	M	I	N	A
J	U	M	P	I	N		G	O	D		A	C	R	E
A	G	E		M	A	R	I	N	E		A	R	I	A
			T	E	A		C	O	A	T
A	I	N	T		S	O	U	T	H	E	R	N
A	R	O	U	N	A		S	I	N	U	A	T	E	N
C	A	R	O	B		A	P	E	A		H	A	R	D
T	H	E	N		R	I	N	S	E		E	N	T	O

WEATHER

Mostly sunny today. Highs in the mid 40s. Winds northeast 10 miles an hour. Becoming cloudy tonight. Lows 25 to 30. Northeast winds 10 miles an hour. Mostly cloudy tomorrow with a chance of occasional rain. Highs 40 to 45.

D.C. MENU

LUNCH
Tuna Boat, Shells in Cheese Sauce

BASICS LUNCH
Lentil Spinach Stew, Tuna Boat

DINNER
Meatloaf/Salsa Con Verdure, Fish Fry/Tartar Sauce

BASICS DINNER
Carrot and Cauliflower Pie, Fish Fry/Tartar Sauce

Be A Star

★

Become a star reporter for the Collegian. One of New England's largest daily college newspapers! We need people to write news and women's affairs. Great experience for any students interested in journalism or communications. Come by the Collegian anytime and ask for an editor. It's easy and it's fun. Everyone's welcome.

The Collegian
113 Campus Center
545-3500

STADIUM

UMass Amherst

10 a.m. til 11 p.m.

LIQUORS

Kegs • Beer • Wine • Soda • Ice

University Drive, Amherst, Mass.

Just past UMass Stadium, from SW dorms

St. Pauli	$14.50	+ 1.50
Busch 12 oz cans	$9.95	+ 1.20
Miller 12 oz bottles	$9.95	+ 1.20
Lite 12 oz bottles	$9.95	+ 1.20
Carling 12 oz bottles	$6.95	+ 1.50
Budweiser 12 oz cans	$10.95	+ 1.20
O'Keefe 12 oz bottle	$12.95	+ 1.20
Old Milwaukee 12 pk cans	$4.30	+ .60
Paul Masson 1.5	$4.20
California Cellars 3 litres	$5.95
Gallo 1.5 L	$3.99
Travola 1.5	$5.69
Cinzano Asti 750 ml	$6.99
Folonari 1.5	$3.99
Canadian Mist 1.75	$12.59
Black Velvet 1.75	$12.75
Popov Vodka 1.75	$9.95
Strogoff Vodka 1.75	$8.20
Gordon's Gin 1.75	$11.99
Gordon's Vodka 1.75	$9.95
Burnett Gin 1.75	$11.85

253-5595

not responsible for typographical errors

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Monday - Friday • Deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10 % • discount • Phone number FREE

ATTENTION BOLTWOOD VOLUNTEERS

The seminars are Sundays 3/6 and 3/13 at 7 pm in the Commonwealth Room

AUTO FOR SALE

67 VW Conv inspected needs work $400 or BO 323-5918 leave message

For sale 1970 Ford Torino - 45,000 original miles needs work - $500 or BO call 545-3500 before 5:00 549-4125 after 5:00 ask for Dan

73 Pontiac Grand AM 4 door cruise control climate control bucket seats excellent condition $800 or BO 82,000 miles 549-2785 evenings

1976 Subaru DL 5-speed AM/FM 30-35 mpg, new tires, $1395 or BO 549-0569

80 Datsun 310GX excellent condition. Rear defrost/wiper stereo AM/FM cassette one owner $4500 549-5666

Grand Prix 72 very dependable 350.00 BO 549-3503 must sell soon.

73 Valiant, good cond. 225 slant six, $700 or BO 253-5956

BELLYGRAMS!!

Delivered by professional bellydancer for most unusual gift. Thereza, 253-7822

CAPE COD SUMMER RENTAL

Duplex newly redone two bedrooms sleep four includes utilities. Ideal for a group of 4 or 8 $2550. 253-7436

COUNSELING - LOW STUDENT FEE

Licensed, experienced, caring humanist No connection U Mass. First session free. Allan Black, 253-5036

ENTERTAINMENT

Rackadisc Entertainment Agency inc. Bands and discjockeys guaranteed student functions 256-0739

Professional DJs for less $99 special ends March 15. Book now before price increase 549-4405

M & M Music Unlimited Professional DJ's for all occasions call Mike 546-5259

Magician - The Great Charles will entertain at any occasion call Bruce 549-1177 after 6 PM

Jodi Leong, vocalist, & Mark Baszak, pianist. TOC Lounge, Fri., Sat., March 4 & 5

FOR RENT

Room for rent Brandywine Apts call Mark or Kenny 549-4719

Cape Cod Summer Seasonal Rentals. W. Yarmouth & Dennis; 1, 2, 3, & 4 bedroom units. Rent direct from owners & save. 617/528-8300 or 771-2233

One bedroom in three bedroom So. Amherst house call Patrick 253-3124

Storage Space Available by the month call Peg (evening 6-10 pm) 549-6852

FOR SALE

Kinks Concert! 2 tickets March 31st Worcester Centrum good seats 546-4419

Electric typewriter one year old $200 sewing machine $60 call 256-6174

1974 Ford Van - Runs well, will probably run forever $650 firm. Steve 6-6064

Skis: package deal, Hart, Solomon, Nordica, Steal, $100, must sell 546-5314

Round trip ticket to Palm Beach open time schedule $200 or BO Steve 549-6974

Ferarri Sunglasses foldable with carrying case included limited supply $15. call 256-8982

Raleigh 10 spd men's 26 in ex cond $100 or BO Pattie 546-9631

Sunglasses: Raybans and Vuarnets at low student prices call Andy or Bruce at 549-1177 look for our table in the CC Concourse Friday

FOUND

Women's 3 speed bike. No. Pleasant St. Call with registration number after 5 549-4766

Found: A large grey winter coat on Feb. 23. Call 546-8059 and ask for Beth

HELP WANTED

CRUISE SHIP JOBS! $14-$28,000 Caribbean, Hawaii, World. Call for Guide, Directory, Newsletter. 916-722-1111 ext Massachusettes

Cruise Ship Jobs: $14 - $28,000 Carribean, Hawaii, World. Call for Guide, Directory, Newsletter. 1-916-722-1111 ext Massachusettes

Applications now being accepted for part time nights, at Kay Jewelers, Hampshire Mall

General Office Help. Must type 50 wpm+. Work Study preferred. Call Jenny at UPC 545-2892

Summer Jobs Let us send you booklet of 200 plus working vacation opportunities. Resorts, National Parks, Hotels. Act now for this summer and next. send $2.00 and self-addressed stamped envelope to Marand, P.O. Box 7728, Columbus, Georgia 31908.

Alaska Jobs summer/year round, earn great money in this opportunity rich state, ie, earn $10,000-$12,000 on three month fishing boat. Send for 1983 Employer Listing and information packet covering all industries $5.00 Lental Reseach dept AA2114 satisfaction guaranteed

Programming Producer wanted for cable system call GPC: 545-2733

Cruise Ship Jobs! Great income potential, all occupations. For information call: 602-837-3401 ext 833

Representative wanted for effective, guaranteed scholarship location service. Brief profile to DMR Group, 29 Morningside Drive, Westfield, MA 01085

INTAS BIRTHDAY

Feliz cumplianos a Inta: Hope you have a great birthday. Have a wild weekend! Long live Tlapacoyan!!!

LOST

Keys on blue-clip keyring with words Le Chateau 546-8161

Did you mistakenly take my coat from Poor Richard's, Friday Feb. 26? Long, black, wool coat, size 5, brand Peabody. Please call 253-5339

Lost - gold bracelet, Bartlett - Thompson Hall area. I really want it returned - it belonged to my mother. Reward. 323-5900

Blue Eastpack Bookbag with psychology and law bok very important rewatd 549-0157, 546-5009

Lost: Jade teardrop-shaped stone with metal top to put on an earring. Has great sentimental valuell Reward!!! call Lee @ 546-9091

Lost - a gold twisted hoop earring personal value Kim 6-5100

Lost gold class ring 1946 256-6750

Lost blue plastic folder in Goodell with very important papers. Can't replace. Reward! Pat: 549-4810

MOTORCYCLES

77 Kawasaki KZ 400 less than 6000 mi runs & looks new 2 helmets must be seen! $950 546-5280

NUCLEAR FREEZE

Proxy forms for Nuclear Freeze are available in 428 SU or at Peace table on Wed & Fri. Out of state students encouraged stop by!

PERSONALS

Guitarist wanting to join bend. in Southwest area preferably. All kinds of music. Call John 6-8800

Don't miss the hypnotist Sunday March 6 8:00 PM SUB $1.00 sponsored by GPC

B.A.D. its been almost a year now. I've spent some of the best times of my life with you. I hope you feel the same. Time to move on. . .Love D.B.A.

Write-in Jim Finkie for SGA President

To all those "Sammies" and Little Sisters bound for special traing - kick a--! Show sense our sammy spirit

"Ille" Koala have a bear-u-tiful and happy day love "Le"

Kath thanks for coming I love you: your little potatoehead

Der Bingle But it is YOU that I love! Don't forget the FURBALL!

Drubus - Happy Daze. . .now that you've awakened. . .enjoy! Judies H.H., teenies, hunky dory - welcome to the American way luv B.T. itz

Go Down with someone you know & trust
luxury hotels, no hidden costs & no BS
Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. Spring Break 83

UMass Ski Club Goes Down 545-3437

To the kind woman on Monday's bus. . .thankyou for the orange. It was delicious and a great surprise too! C.C.

Emergency Care/First Aid Workshop March 7 @ UHS 7-9 pm for more info/sign-up call UHS 549-2671

Ani P. Happy 20th (almost). We're still waiting to throw you a party! Mushaha Love Jane

Jaime, Happy Belated Valentine's Day ich liebe dich Michael

Ronnie/Mescaline Peak on your 21st! Iced teas - fmc's - oranges?! Happy Birthday, you nut. Love and XO's, Maura

Gino McP: There is a Kappa after your heart . . .S.

To the women of 3A Brandywine!! Thanks for the terrific time, lets do it again real soon, or after my next exam!! Your Rented Rugger

Jodi: "Want some?" Happy 19th! LOve ya--Karen

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Dissertations, Theses, Cases, Papers, guaranteed acceptance, low rates, Nancy 5-0392, 584-7924

RIDE NEEDED

Ride needed to Conn. on Fri the 4th So. Windsor-Vernon area or to UConn call 6-9648 after 5 pm or before 10:30 am ask for Adrianne

RIDERS WANTED

Driving to San Francisco California on or about March 23. Need someone to share expenses. Call Larry: days 732-2161 ext. 109, nights 562-2485

ROOMMATE WANTED

Need roomate in Brittany Manor Apt for March, April, May, June lease call 253-3588 Brian Steve #135 will talk fin.

Male roommate wanted in Puffton, low rent, call 549-5206

Female wanted for apertment in Cape Cod. $50 a week call 546-9617 or 546-9616

Have a beautiful spacious Cape Cod house short walk to beach 5 spaces left call Lisa 549-3802

Wanted one person for own room in two bedroom apartment rent $116/month call 665-3104

SERVICES

PAPER DUE? CAN'T WRITE? Tutor -english composition and grammar reasonable rates 6-9289

ILLUSTRATIONS done for your papers professional quality call 413-253-9648

Your typewriter or mine? I'm reliable and accurate. $1/page Kitty 6-7302

TERMINAL RENTALS

COMPUTERM
Terminal w/o/monitor $130/rest of sem.
Terminal w/o/monitor $160/sem.
Terminal (complete) $180/sem. @ 546-7672

TO SUBLET

Part furn one bedroom apt in Cliffside $285 mo inc. option on lease 549-5689

TRAVEL

UMass Ski Club goes north
Spring Break 83 March 20-25
Stowe. Ski club capital of the East. Only $159 includes: transportation, hot tub party, beer & wine parties, 5 day lift ticket, all taxes & gratuities & much, much, more. For more info contact the UMass Ski Club Rm 430A Student Union or call 545-3437

Last chance Bermuda $315 - call 256-6941 after 6

Ride needed for two to Florida for spring break. Will share driving and expenses. Call 665-7076 eves please!

WANTED

Class rings, gold and silver jewelry and coins. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant. Amherst, 256-0710

Help $60 reward for helping me by your parents unwanted second car 253-7189

Cash for your records, tapes 545-2836 (ask for Jaromir/leave message)

Extra-fine pair of used stereo speakers 500 dollar cash limit 527-5714

Used Economics book wanted by Paul Samuilson Call Glenn 665-3079

Drums $100 maximum spending price for 7-piece set wanted by end of March call between 6 & 9 PM 549-1342

WANTED TO RENT

2 or 3 bedroom Townhouse or Puffton to rent from June on. John 546-9139 Mike 546-9141

Professors Gur and Dalia Ofer of the Hebrew University of Jerusalem will be available to talk to students on an individual basis about programs for American students at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem (1 year/Graduate/summer) from 11:30 am - 1 pm in the Dukes Room, Student Union, on Friday, March 4. For appointments, call Debbie at 545-2526 or drop by the Hillel Office (302 SU).

Professors Ofer will also be speaking at the conference on Current Issues facing Israel this weekend (March 4-6) at Mt. Holyoke College. All 5-College students are invited.

THE HEBREW UNIVERSITY OF JERUSALEM
ROTHBERG SCHOOL FOR OVERSEAS STUDENTS
1983-84 PROGRAMS

☐ ONE YEAR PROGRAM — for college sophomores and juniors
☐ REGULAR DEGREE STUDIES — for college transfer students toward B.A. and B.Sc. degrees
☐ FRESHMAN YEAR — for U.S. high school graduates
☐ GRADUATE STUDIES — Master's, Doctoral and Visiting Graduate programs
☐ SUMMER COURSES — given in English

For Application and information write:
Office of Academic Affairs
American Friends of the Hebrew University
1140 Avenue of the Americas New York, NY 10036
(212) 840-5820

Name
Address
City/State/Zip
Present School

家酒園南湖
Hunan Garden Restaurant

"The Best Chinese Food"

SUFFET
Mon - Thurs
5 pm - 8 pm
Sunday Brunch
11:30 am - 3 pm
ALL YOU CAN EAT
$5.25 per person

MENU
Hot & Sour Soup
Beef with green pepper
Chicken Pan Fried Noodels
Sweet & Spur Chicken
Chinese Style BBQ Pork
Pan Fried Ravioli
Chicken Fingers

Luncheon Special & Take-Out Service
Full Cocktail Menu
Sun - Thurs 11:30 am - 10 pm
Fri & Sat 11:30 am - 11 pm
10 Beichertown Road
at Rte 9, Amherst
256-9252

Be ecological! Recycle this Collegian... But read it first

Sports

UMass will host the 3rd annual Umass Indoor Field Hockey Tournament this Saturday in Boyden Gym. Competition begins at 9:00 a.m. with the championship game starting at five.

There will be a meeting for anyone interested in playing women's J.V. softball today at 4:00 p.m. in room 153 NOPE. For further information call 5-0038.

Minutemen looking for it their way

By JIM FLOYD
Collegian Staff

And now, the end is near and so I face, the final curtain
I've loved, my UMass hoop
when it was good, when it was hurtin'

I've lived, through those big wins
I've taken losses, just like a man
And proudly now, I tell you all
I'm still a fan

Regrets, they've been so few
Some injuries, some missed free throws
But that's, part of the game as any real, hoop fan knows

The teams all tried their best with zone defense and man to man
And now, as it all ends
I'm still a fan

Yes, there were times
I'm sure you knew
The team played well
but, lost by two
But, when they won
we all had fun
The Cage would rock
the team would run
And I saw it all
and I stood tall

'Cause they were my team...

Well, this may be it. The last basketball game this season at the Curry Hicks Cage may be tomorrow night. It may be the last hurrah, the last night of an odd love affair that has gone on all season between the Minutemen and their home court advantage, a.k.a. the UMass fans.

For seniors (myself included, sob) it will be the last chance to be a part of the crowd, unless a playoff game is held in the Cage. (See details on page one.)

Sure, you can always come back to see the Minutemen do battle after graduation, but then things won't really be quite the same. You'll be a visitor, not a student. It won't be "your" team, it will be your alma mater playing another team.

For underclassmen, the situation is a little easier, but then it will still be your last chance to watch, wish, and cheer as the Minutemen try to pull out another victory for at least this season.

The Curry Hicks Cage has been a magical place for the Minutemen this season. And a very big part of that magic has been the support the students have given to a struggling team in a rebuilding situation. And the team has responded.

But, no need to lament the end before it has come. Let's have a party in the Cage tomorrow. Come dressed weird. Make the place rock like it hasn't rocked all year, like there's no tomorrow.

There may not be.

Yes, they were my team (and yours)...

Collegian photo by John Doucette

John Hempel and the Minutemen will be shooting for a spot in the Atlantic Ten playoffs when they host St. Bonaventure.

Women in Atlantic Ten Championships

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts women's basketball team faces a monumental task as they take on 10th ranked (nationally) Penn State in the opening round of the Atlantic Ten basketball championships at Rutgers this afternoon, in what may be coach Mary Ann Ozdarski's finale on the UMass bench.

Several papers reported that Ozdarski would not be back next year and she told her team that last week, according to team members. Her status will be clarified once the season is over.

But the big thing on the mind of the Minutewomen is today's 3:00 game with Penn State, the top seed in the conference with a 20-6 record.

Massachusetts was seeded eighth in the eight team tourney with a 5-21 record and have their work cut out for them.

"We have to do everything near perfect to win," said Ozdarski. "They (the players) have to play the best game of their lives, as individuals and as a team."

Penn State will be tough to beat because of team balance. The Lady Lions are led by the latest Atlantic Ten Player-of-the Week, Kahaddejah Hebert. Hebert has been a clutch player for Penn State, scoring and rebounding in double figures ten times this year.

Hebert averages 15.7 points a game and teammate Cheryl Ellison is close behind averaging 13.7 a game.

UMass is not without its leaders. Freshmen Barbara Hebel (12.8 points a game) and Karen Damminger (12.0) are the top scorers for the young Minutewomen.

Wendy Ward, with 9.9 points and 2.9 steals a game, is the voice of experience that leads the Minutewomen on the floor.

What has been a problem all season long for the Minutewomen, inexperience, will probably hurt the team today. If UMass can overcome this pitfall, the Minutewomen will have a chance.

The winner of the tourney gets an automatic bid to the NCAA women's basketball championships. The Atlantic 10 Final will be Sunday at 2:00 p.m.

Gymnastics teams in finals this weekend

By ELLEN RICHARD
Collegian Staff

On Saturday, the University of Massachusetts men's gymnastics team will be looking to break the school record of 257.45 in a tough home match at 7:00 p.m. against Springfield College.

"I think we're the better team but we're going to have to hit to win," coach Roy Johnson said. "If we stay on pommel horse we should be able to shoot for our highest score."

Two years ago on March 7, UMass met Springfield and established the school record. If the Minutemen performances fall in place the team could have a remake of that Springfield-UMass match.

Last year, the Chiefs defeated UMass 258.55-255.85. The two teams will have a close competition tomorrow as Springfield's high score this year is 255.8 and the Minutemen's best is 255.35. However, Massachusetts has a season record of 9-4 and Springfield owns a 2-7 record.

"We're probably a litle better than our record indicates," Springfield College Sports Information Director Bob Marx said. "We're fairly consistent. We just haven't got up to peak yet."

Coach Johnson agreed.

"They might not be looking that good but they do have the potential to score 252. It could be one of the most exciting meets this year. It could come down to the lsst event."

UMass co-captain John McGonagle will have competition in the still rings event against Springfield's Jeff Coelho. McGonagle's top score for the season is 9.65 and Coelho, who is undefeated this year in the rings, has a high of 9.75.

The two-time All American Coelho is first in the nation in Division II and in the Eastern Gymnastics League in rings.

He is also first in the nation in long horse vaulting which will give Massachusetts' John Macurdy, 1982 vault champion, a challenge. Macurdy's best score is a 9.65 last weekend against Temple. Coelho is just ahead of Macurdy with a 9.7.

Bert Mathieson should have no problem tackling the Chief's top all around, Mike Conlon. Mathieson has a high score of 54.2, a 9.0 average, and Conlon's top score is 52.8, an 8.8 average.

The match will be the last of the season before the Eastern Intercollegiate Gymnastics Championships on March 11 and 12, which will be held at Springfield College. It will also be the final ever for seniors Macurdy and co-captains McGonagle and Bob Goulart.

"It's kind of a sweet and sour type of thing," Macurdy said. "For the most part I've done what I want to do in the sport, so I don't feel sad about leaving the sport in that sense. But I think I am going to miss it."

By ELLEN RICHARD
Collegian Staff

Coach of the University of Massachusetts' women's gymnastics team Ken Anderson said the women will be performing on Saturday against Rutgers at 1:00 p.m. mainly to qualify for the Eastern Regionals and Nationals.

"They're not really much competition," Anderson said of Rutgers. "We'll try to repeat what we did last night (Wednesday night's win against Springfield). We may be even better."

The Minutewomen are sixth in the NCAA Eastern Region which is a big accomplishment considering the Eastern region is the largest in the country. The region makes up more than one-third of all of the gymnastics schools in the country.

"If they produce the performances that they did last night (Springfield) in the next three meets, there is an outside chance we'll go," Anderson said, about the team's chances to make the Nationals. "It's a long shot."

The Minutewomen have a 10-2 record with their only losses coming from top ranked University of New Hampshire. The women scored their best team total this season on Wednesday night in a rescheduled meet against Springfield, with a 175.5 score.

Massachusetts is on a roll now and look to keep rolling its way right into the Nationals. The match tomorrow against Rutgers is not going to be a close one with both teams battling it out down to the end.

Rather, it will be a meet for UMass to push itself up in the standings and do its best. Karen Knapp and Robin Low will lead the way in the all around competition. Tricia Harrity and Sue Allen will also be important in getting top scores in the four events for UMass.

Barbara Lord will be important for the Minutewomen in the balance beam event and Lisa Griffen will be a factor in raising the scores in the floor exercises. All around Yael Kantor has been sick but will compete and be important for UMass.

It will be the last meet for seniors Karen Knapp and Janice Baker. Knapp has been a steady performer and a top all around for Massachusetts. Baker, a 1976 Olympic trialist, was injured in her freshman year and started competing for UMass again this season. Baker will not be competing tomorrow, however, because of a recent knee injury.

The meet is the last one of the season and will start at 1:00 p.m. at Boyden.

"It will be a good one because they'll be putting out their best performances ever," Anderson said. "They'll be putting on a show."

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
Volume CXII, Issue 90 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003 (413) 545-3500 Monday, March 7, 1983

Dormitories will close for break

By ANNE McCRORY
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts students will not be allowed to remain in their dormitories over March break this year for security reasons, a recent memo from Joseph A. Zannini, executive director of Housing Services, stated.

"We are motivated to adopt this stance in order to provide a secure residence hall system while the residents are away from campus," the memo read.

"It leaves us in an awkward and vulnerable position," said Jerry Quarles, Housing Assignment coordinator, of the former policy.

"We don't have adequate security to guarantee safety (of the remaining residents.) (Also), there's no one there to guarantee the welfare of condition of the buildings," he said.

Students having guests or propping open doors while residence hall staff were away for the vacation jeopardized both dormitory property and the safety of residents, Quarles said. Consequently, if something were to happen to a student, lawsuits could result, and students could be blamed for dormitory damage occurring when there are few residents in the building, he said.

Officially there will be no exceptions to the new policy, although vacancies may be available in Prince House, a year round facility, to handicapped or foreign students, Quarles said. Thus far only one exception has been made for a handicapped student, he said.

In the past, students who had "a valid reason for being there," such as students from distant states, foreign countries or members of athletic teams, were permitted to remain on campus during the vacation, Quarles said. The three percent of students affected by the policy change will have to seek housing "through personal resources" this year, he said.

The finishing touch...

Collegian photo by John Doucette

Minuteman center Edwin Green reverse slams in two of his game-high 23 points, 10 rebounds and five blocked shots near the end of Massachusetts' 81-72 victory over St. Bonaventure in the Curry Hicks Cage Saturday night. The win, coupled with Temple's victory over Rhode Island Saturday, brings the URI Rams to the Cage at 7:30 tonight for the opening game of the Atlantic-10 Conference championships. Tickets for tonight's contest, priced at $2 for UMass students and $5 for others, will go on sale this morning in the Boyden Ticket Office.

SGA race enters the final round

By KEN BAZINET
and PAUL BASKEN
Collegian Staff

The race for the presidency of the Student Government Association (SGA) of the University of Massachusetts heads into homestretch today with the first of two days of balloting.

Siobhan Powers and Fran Hegeler, Ronald Lipof and Eric Mann, Charlene Allen and Tom Ahern, and David Groom will appear, in that order, on the ballot which also includes the twenty Campus Center Board of Governors (BOG) positions, and one referendum question.

Mindy Ordway, acting chairperson of the Undergraduate Student Senate's Governmental Affairs Committee, said she is coordinating and, except for the BOG contest, officiating the election.

All full time undergraduates of either the University or the Stockbridge School of Agriculture, includinng any continuing education students who have paid their Student Activities Fee, are eligible to vote, Ordway said.

Besides the three student government races to be held through tomorrow, undergraduates will be asked for their position on the University's General Education proposal, currently being debated by both the faculty and student senates. Voters will indicate whether they support, do not support, or do not have enough information on the proposal, Ordway said.

The question will remain the only one on the ballot, as one addressing reorganization of the student senate was last week rejected by its Coordinating Committee, despite supporters who said they collected more than 6,000 student signatures for it.

Commuters and Greek area residents can vote both days from 9 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. in front of the Hatch in the Student Union Building, while on-campus residents will vote in their area's dining commons both days from 11 a.m. to 6:30 p.m.

In separate interviews with the each candidate discussed their priorities for the election.

Continued on page 5

Hart confronts arms race in campaign speech

By RICHARD NANGLE
Collegian Staff

Senator Gary Hart, D-Colorado, attacked Reagan Administration's policies and pointed to education as a necessary remedy to the nations woes, in a speech to 500 people in the Student Union Ballroom at the University of Massachusetts Friday.

Hart was the first of the 1984 presidential hopefuls to visit the University.

"This country cannot continue to lurch from crisis to crisis," Hart said. "Education in this country is becoming a national scandal."

Hart said it is imperative to promote education in the United States to ensure the country's ability to compete in the marketplace in years to come.

"Instead of making this country an arsenal of nuclear weapons we ought to make this country the university of the world," he said.

As long as the U.S. participates in the "mindless and unnecessary" arms race, Hart said, it will not become more secure, but less secure.

The Senator also said he opposes Selective Service registration and advocates a self-supporting energy policy to end dependence on foreign fuel. He said he fears if the U.S. is cut off from Middle Eastern oils, military intervention will follow.

"I think if this country sheds the blood of one young American for someone else's oil it will be a moral outrage," he said. "We must resurrect the goal of energy independence in our society."

He also denounced the cut-throat mentality that says we can't cut inflation and unemployment at the same time."

If elected, Hart said he would engage the nations of the world in negotiations for sharp arms control reductions and "hopefully" a nuclear freeze. He said he would also propose to freeze the production of plutonium, the active ingredient in a nuclear warhead. He said he would work to prevent the availability of weapons to terrorist nations.

During a question and answer session with the audience after his speach, Hart touched upon a variety of topics.

On military aid to El Salvador:

"I think we have to reverse our policies almost 180 degrees in Latin America," Hart said.

On the controversy with the Environmental Protection Agency:

"I think we ought to fire all of them and start all over again."

Concerning the Equal Rights Amendment:

"I will not rest until that amendment has been adopted and become part of the constitution," Hart said, adding his support for equal pay for equal work.

Hart called the struggle of gays and lesbians a "fundamental quest of civil rights and civil liberties."

He also said he supports abortion rights.

"I have consistently voted pro-choice and will continue to," he said.

Although he does not support a national health insurance plan, Hart said he wants to initiate a comprehensive insurance plan for children up to age six. He also expressed support for "catastrophic insurance" for people of all ages.

"If we can afford to have MX missiles and B1 bombers, we can afford to have comprehensive health care for the children of this country," he said.

Hart said he would not engage in a campaign that might result in another split in the Democratic party. He said he would not campaign against other Democratic candidates.

"I'm running against Ronald Reagan and his policies and for the future of this country," he said.

Campaign ethics were another issue addressed by Hart.

Collegian photo by Jim Powers

Sen. Gary Hart addresses the crowd at the Student Union Ballroom Friday.

World and national news

Kohl victorious in West German elections

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Chancellor Helmut Kohl's conservative coalition, pledged to deploy NATO nuclear missiles in Western Europe, swept to a solid victory in yesterday's parliamentary elections.

The executive secretary of Hans-Jochen Vogel's opposition Social Democrats, Peter Glotz, conceded less than an hour after the polls closed, saying his party "did not reach its goal."

Horst Emke, deputy chairman of the party's parliamentary caucus, said: "We have to congratulate the CDU for a clear election victory."

The main domestic issue was the economy, gripped by recession and high unemployment, but international attention focused on the debate over deployment of U.S.-made nuclear missiles in West Germany and other NATO countries.

Kohl and his allies support NATO's decision to deploy 572 medium-range cruise and Pershing 2 missiles in Western Europe later this year — 204 of them in West Germany — unless an arms-control agreement is reached with the Soviet Union that includes a reduction of the SS-20 missiles targeted on NATO nations.

Vogel wants the United States to make a greater effort toward an agreement with the Soviets, and said that if he had been elected, he would deploy the missiles only under "extreme circumstances." He did not renounce the missiles or the Western alliance.

Minutes after the polls closed, the ARD network said its projections showed Kohl's Christian Democratic Union with 48 percent of the vote in balloting for the Bundestag, the lower house of Parliament that elects the chancellor.

Kohl's coalition partners, the Free Democrats, were polling 6.5 percent in the projection, which would give the center-right coalition a clear majority in the new Bundestag, which is expected to have 496 seats.

The projection gave Vogel's Social Democrats 39.5 percent and the anti-nuclear, anti-NATO Greens Party 5.5 percent. If that proves correct, the Greens would enter the Bundestag for the first time.

Under the West German system, parties must win at least 5 percent of the vote to gain seats in the Bundestag.

The preliminary results represented a sharp drop for the Social Democrats, who won 42.9 percent of the vote in 1980 under Chancellor Helmut Schmidt.

With so much at stake, both the United States and the Soviet Union showed intense interest in the campaign. Vice President George Bush visited West Germany in January, and U.S. officials warned that a Vogel victory could strain German-U.S. relations.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko also visited Bonn in January and warned of grave implications for peace in Europe if NATO went ahead with the missile deployment.

Digest

By the Associated Press

Cigarette smoking habit most common addiction

WASHINGTON — Cigarette smoking is "the most widespread example of drug dependence" in the United States and causes more illness and death than all other drugs, the government said yesterday in a new anti-smoking pamphlet.

The publication "Why People Smoke Cigarettes" said the cigarettes puffed by 56 million Americans are addictive because nicotine "reinforces and strengthens the desire to smoke and causes users to keep on smoking."

"For years smoking was thought of as a habit — a 'nasty habit,' Mark Twain called it," it said. "It has now been established that for many smokers it is more than this, that it is, in fact, the most widespread example of drug dependence in our country."

Pope heavily guarded; leads chants for peace

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador — Pope John Paul II yesterday led hundreds of thousands of people in war-torn El Salvador in the chant, "We want peace!" and made an emotional appeal for an end to Central American warfare that "has sown the land with graves."

As he spoke, some 2,000 troopers and policemen armed with rifles and machine guns and stationed every 10 yards in some places stood guard. Overhead, military helicopters maintained constant patrols.

There were no reports of battlefield action in the country, locked for the past 40 months in civil war. Leftist guerrillas had called a one-day truce for the pope's visit, and the Defense Ministry said its forces would not initiate any combat.

But both left and right had warned of death plots against the pontiff, and the government deployed men from the army, national guard, national police and treasury police to protect John Paul — who has survived two assassination attempts.

Students reject Nixon World Affairs Institute

LA VERNE, Calif — Trustees of the private University of La Verne rejected a proposed $12 million Richard M. Nixon World Affairs Institute.

A poll of 276 students by the campus newspaper last week showed 62 percent favoring it and 16 percent opposed. Faculty approved 53-45 vote and the Alumni Relations Board backed it 5-4.

But university second vice president Richard G. Landis said the narrow margin of approval by faculty and alumni led trustees to conclude the institute would be "too divisive."

EPA investigation continues in D.C.

WASHINGTON — Probes of the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) dominate Congress again this week, with the main event a scheduled committee appearance Thursday by its chief Anne McGill Burford.

Mrs. Burford, under seige and hanging onto her job, is subpoenaed to appear before one of the six congressional panels investigating her agency. She has been ordered to produce sensitive EPA documents.

Six panels are investigating the agency's handling of the $1.6 billion "superfund" program to clean up abandoned chemical waste dumps.

More women judges could change attitudes

BOSTON — A woman who resigned her judgeship to head the National Conference of Black Lawyers says the best way to change sexist attitudes in the legal profession is to get more women on the bench.

Margaret Burnham, who resigned recently as judge in Boston Municipal Court, said if the public, and women who have become judges and lawyers, would take a more active role in the bar, it would make the profession more responsive and ultimately produce a "genderfree jurisprudence."

Today's Staff

Night Editor — Michelle Murray
Copy Editor — Anne McCrory
Layout Technician — Jim Floyd
Photo Technician — Drew Ogier
Composition — Lauri Neely, Stuart Sajdak
Jim Finkle, Sue B. Hawkins, Sue Koczela
Donna Maurice, Gail Tanzer, Sheryl Silver
Will Hopkins, Dave Rath, Laurie Frank, Sam Levitt
James Shanahan, Brian Fitz Maurice, Adrianne Dufour

Subscription Rates

"The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday excluding vacations, exam periods, or holidays. Subscriptions are available for $18 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Massachusetts. Postmaster: Send address changes to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003.

Join the ENERGY EXPLOSION with
GLORIA STEVENS AEROBICS!

The COMPLETE Fitness Center for Women

- Aerobic Dance Classes
- Individual Aerobic Programs
- 30 - 45 min. Groups
- Easy to Live With Diets
- Advanced Programs
- Maternity Programs

Student Discounts Available

Bring in this COUPON for a Free AEROBIC CLASS!

Hadley
584-0105
Mon-Fri 9 to 9 · Sat 9 to 3

Gloria Stevens FIGURE SALONS

Stowaway flees Polish oath

MONTREAL — A Polish airline mechanic fled to Canada by hiding in the freezing baggage compartment of a Polish jet for 14 hours. He said he left his homeland because the government tried to blackmail him into signing a loyalty oath.

Speaking through an interpreter, Ryszard Kuzminski said in an interview Saturday that the Communist government told him he would lose his job within a month if he did not sign a document pledging his allegiance to the military regime.

Kuzminski arrived dirty, tired, cold and hungry Friday at Montreal's Mirabel International Airport. He jumped 10 feet off the plane to the ground and ran to approaching Royal Canadian Mounted Police to seek asylum.

"I was afraid LOT (Poland's national airline) employees would take me and force me to go back to Warsaw," he said.

Rebel victory seen as solution in El Salvador

By DAVID B. MINER
Collegian Staff

Calling this a year of crisis, former United States Ambassador to El Salvador Robert E. White said in an interview Friday that the Reagan Administration should begin to seek a negotiated settlement in El Salvador.

The former Ambassador made his remarks on the situation in Central America following a private luncheon hosted by his long-time friend, University of Massachusetts Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey.

White said, "This is a year of crisis, both for the U.S. administration and for El Salvador. Our coalition (of support) could quickly fall apart and the potential for public (U.S.) backlash is great."

"The only military solution I can see is for a rebel victory. There is no way the government can win," he said.

He went on to note that he feels that there could be an acceptable solution in El Salvador, "provided the Reagan Administration accepts the principle of negotiation."

White, who is a Stoneham, MA native, has served as Ambassador to Paraguay and El Salvador, and was formerly the U.S. representative to the Organization of American States (OAS) and the Latin American Director of the Peace Corps.

He retired in 1981 after more than 25 years in the Diplomatic Corps.

Currently he is a senior associate of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace and the president of the Board of Directors of the American School in Honduras.

"The rebels in El Salvador could not exist without wide-spread popular support," White noted.

El Salvador is more like Massachusetts rather than Vermont or New Hampshire, he said, because Massachusetts is more urbanized than the other two states.

"There is no place for the rebels to hide. If the population did not support them, there would be no rebellion," he said.

White said that the morale of the Salvadoran armed forces was low.

"For years the Salvadoran leaders had been telling their troops not to get captured by the rebels because they would be tortured and killed," he said.

This is not the case, White said.

"In fact," he said, "the rebels treated their prisoners with such great care that when they were turned over to the Red Cross the stories they told were so favorable to the rebels that they (the prisoners) were suspected of being fifth columnists," (consciously aiding the rebels.)

Although the former Ambassador said that he is not an expert on Vietnam, he did make a comparison to the early days in Vietnam and what is now happening in El Salvador.

"To date no official has stood up and given a speech outlining our goals in El Salvador or told the American public what is going on," he said.

White said the United States could live with a negotiated settlement with El Salvador and the "domino theory" does not apply.

"There is a difference between Soviet style Marxism and the style of Marxism as practiced by the rebel leadership in El Salvador," he noted. "These people are more nationalist than Communist."

"Just because there is revolution in El Salvador does not mean that there will be revolution in Honduras," he said. "Conditions must be right for a revolution to happen."

Collegian photo by Tom Kudla

George Hope, top, a freshman engineering major; Mike Zona, left, a senior zoology major; and Gary Safer a junior hotel, restaurant and travel administration major shoot a little hoop in Southwest Saturday.

U.S. orders disclaimer for controversial film

By MITCH ZEMEL
Collegian Correspondent

A controversial Canadian film on the medical effects of nuclear war was shown in Northampton to area media last Thursday by the American Friends Service Committee.

Earlier last week the Justice Department ordered that the film must include a disclaimer stating the film is propoganda, and that film distributors notify the government who requested the film.

"The incredible success of the freeze movement is what caused the censorship," Crowe said. "The Pentagon is afraid we're going to demand a freeze."

Frances Crowe, the Western Massachusetts community representative of the committee, said their copy of the film was "donated months ago, before the Justice Department's ruling, so we do not have the disclaimer."

"The incredible success of the freeze movement is what caused the censorship," Crowe said. "The Pentagon is afraid we're going to demand a freeze."

Crowe said she does not know if her group will have any trouble because they are not reading the disclaimer. They have not registered the film yet, either.

"I have no idea if we'll get in trouble for not registering. I don't know if we have to," she said.

The film consists mainly of a lecture by the Physicians for Social Responsibility President Helen Caldicott. It also shows some of the effects of nuclear explosions by showing films of Hiroshima and Nagasaki. The film was produced by the National Film Board of Canada.

Crowe says that the Reagan Administration's request for more aid to El Salvador is another attempt to hinder the freeze movement. She says that this will draw attention to El Salvador and away from the freeze movement.

The media is a powerful source of education, Crowe says, and they should educate the people to the perils of nuclear war. She also said that the American Friends Service Committee will rent the film to whoever wants to see it.

"We'll come with the projector, the screen and the film. Just call," she said.

People must learn that if there is a nuclear war, even if the bombs don't kill everyone, the chances are great that there won't even be enough physicians around to care for the sick, Crowe said.

"There won't be any students, let alone teachers, if we don't stop the arms race," she said.

Students vote on General Ed

By RITA MURPHY
Collegian Staff

Students will be asked whether or not they support the General Education Curriculum Proposal in a referendum question during the Student Government Association (SGA) elections today and tomorrow.

Although the referendum is non-binding, the results could have a significant impact on the University of Massachusetts Faculty Senate, which is scheduled to vote on the proposal April 6.

In recent weeks Faculty Senate members have doubted whether the proposal has the support of the student body. Because of this doubt, several faculty senators have expressed hesitation at approving the proposal.

The proposal, if approved by the Senate, would greatly alter academic requirements for incoming students in future years.

One of the things the proposal calls for is the replacement of the current distribution (core) requirement system with a Breadth of Knowledge component. Breadth of Knowledge is divided into six areas: Continuity and Change, Expressive Culture, the Individual, Societies and Institutions, the Biological World, and the Physical World. Students would be required to take at least one course each of the six areas.

One of the most controversial parts of the proposal is the Integration of Knowledge component. There is much debate currently going on in the Faculty Senate concerning the Freshman Seminar part of this component.

One of the requirements of the Freshman Seminar is that only tenured faculty, as opposed to non-tenured faculty and teaching assistants, may teach the courses. Many faculty oppose the seminar because it "requires the involvement of a large proportion of the faculty and asks them to perform a kind of teaching with which many of them may not be familiar," according to the proposal.

The proposal is expected to face stiff opposition in the Faculty Senate. Many senators support the Breadth of Knowledge component, oppose the Freshman Seminar and are divided on the proposal as a whole.

While the Senate will vote on the proposal in three parts, the SGA ballot will contain only one question.

Students lobby in capital against financial aid cuts

By RICHARD NANGLE
Collegian Staff

Today is the first of a three day financial aid lobbying trip by Students Advocating Financial Assistance (SAFA) in Washington, D.C. The University of Massachusetts group is working in conjunction with the United States Student Association (USSA) which is sponsoring National Student Action Day today.

SAFA has been called the most effective student financial aid lobby in the country by House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, said SAFA president Jim Quinn.

"This SAFA group is probably better prepared than any group to go down to Washington so far," Quinn said. SAFA began its lobbying trips in 1980.

The group is lobbying against proposed financial aid cuts in President Reagan's fiscal 1984 budget. If passed in its entirety the budget would eliminate National Direct Loans and Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants, change the rules for allocating Pell grants to the disadvantage of low-income students, increase the origination fees on Guaranteed Student Loans for graduate students from five to ten percent and increase the College Work Study (CWS) program by 57 percent, the lobbyists said.

Quinn said the Reagan administration is proposing an increase in work-study allocations in order to appear sympathetic to low-income students. The fact is that even at existing levels some of the CWS money is unused because there are not enough students who can fit a job into their time schedules, he said.

When there is a larger amount of work-study money unused at the end of this year the Reagan Administration will use that as an excuse to cut the program again, Quinn said. But by then the other programs will already have been eliminated and students will have fewer places to turn for aid, he said.

Another issue SAFA is addressing is the Solomon Amendment which would deny federal education assistance to males who have not registered for selective service. Students will lobby on the belief that there should be no tie-ins with other laws that would restrict a person's eligibility for financial aid. Students will not discuss whether or not they support the draft itself, Quinn said.

"It would cost the University of Massachusetts about $24,000 to enforce the Solomon Amendment, said Lyn Nichols, chairperson of the Federal Legislative Committee for the Massachusetts Association of Financial Aid Administration.

The money would pay for labor, computer time and mailings, she said.

"It is not the job of academic institutions to enforce federal regulations," Quinn said.

There is legislation pending in the House and Senate to repeal the Solomon Amendment.

A common arguement by conservatives against federal education grants is that they don't want to be giving money away, said SAFA member Dave Nelson.

Nelson said a good response for lobbyists to use when they confront that argument is to say "you're not giving money away, you're investing in this country's future."

Hart criticizes Reagan

By RICHARD NANGLE
Collegian Staff

Presidential candidate Senator Gary Hart, D-Colorado, discussed his views on draft registration, defense spending and human rights in an interview after his speech to more than 500 people Friday.

Hart said he would work to repeal the draft as it now stands but said he may be in favor of what he called "national universal service" of anywhere from one to two years.

Service of some form would be mandatory with no exemptions for women as well as men, he said. However, his support of the idea would hinge on its cost, he added.

He said he did not support a "Vietnam-style draft" because it is "highly discriminatory."

The Senator also denounced the large amount of defense spending by the Reagan administration.

While most administrations have increased defense by a small amount each year, Hart said, the Reagan Administration has proposed increased spending by a large amount each year.

"He (Reagan) says if you don't accept his projections you're cutting defense," Hart said.

Hart said he will deliver a speech soon in which he will outline his defense proposals. The plan will include cutting elaborate weapons systems and spending more on conventional weapons.

On the issue of human rights, Hart leveled criticism toward the Reagan Administration's policies but added "there is no better platform of criticism than the presidency."

Hart condemned Reagan's foreign policy, saying it is destructive, confrontational with the Soviet Union and supportive of right-wing dictatorships.

"With Reagan everything is black and white and in cold war terms. Clearly that has to be reversed," he said.

The Nixon and Ford administrations had much better human rights records than the Reagan Administration, he said.

In a press conference following the interview, Hart again dealt with the issue of political action committee (PAC) money saying it has too much effect on what happens in Congress.

PAC money should be restricted but not abolished altogether, he said. Adding that there would be no way he could sincerely attempt to institute reform in that area as president if he himself accepts it.

Hart was the first presidential candidate to announce that he will not accept PAC money in any form. Former Vice President Walter Mondale has also decided to decline PAC money.

Hart said his will be the first campaign in many years to rely heavily on a broad base of student support. He said he has already qualified for matching funds and hopes to raise money through direct mail and benefit concerts.

★ Hart

Continued from page 1

"I'm the first candidate to say I will not accept contributions from PAC's (political action committees)," he said. "Others (other candidates) will have more money. I will have more people."

Hart mentioned the 1972 George McGovern campaign in which he was campaign manager.

"That campaign did not leave one cent of debt and none of us went to jail," he said.

UPC PRODUCTIONS

We're havin' a party...

with

SOUTHSIDE JOHNNY

and the

ASBURY JUKES

SAINT PATTY'S DAY

MARCH 17

STUDENT UNION BALLROOM

8:00

TICKETS AVAILABLE AT:
• TIX UNLIMITED
• UNION RECORDS UNLIMITED
• FINE ARTS CENTER
• FOR THE RECORD

YOU WON'T WANNA GO HOME!

Tickets for Phoebe Snow still available

The
S.G.A. Escort Service
is now offering
2 credits
to it's volunteers
for more information contact:
Laura O'Shea or
Anne-Marie Maynard in
415 Student Union Building

UMASS SKI CLUB
Goes North to
Stowe VERMONT
SKI CAPITAL of the EAST.
March 20 - 25
159.00
Includes: Transportation
5 nights hotel accomodations
5 full breakfasts
color TV & steam bath
in every room
5 days skiing
Free Hot Tub Party
2 Free Beer & Wine Parties
Indoor Heated Pool
for more info 5-3437

Add experience to your degree.

Facts indicate that you may work in three to five different careers. It won't be unusual to make changes as you go. And it's entirely possible that your final career does not even exist today.

Often in a first job, you are an assistant to the assistant. Your responsibility is limited to a desk and typewriter.

But when your first job is an Army 2LT, you'll have real management experience. You'll be in charge. On a specific job assignment, you could have 30 to 40 people working for you. And you could be responsible for millions of dollars in equipment.

Responsibility for people and resources is exactly the kind of "take charge" experience civilian employers seek. It's a margin of difference in the increasingly competitive job market.

Prepare to rise to the top in your field. Make your first job 3 or 4 years as an Army Officer.

If you have two years remaining in school, you can begin ROTC this summer. You'll be compensated financially; stimulated physically and mentally. To add experience to your degree contact

James C. Mahoney
545-2321/2322

Army ROTC. Learn what it takes to lead.

★ Elections

Continued from page 1

Powers-Hegeler

Siobhan Powers, 20, a junior English major fron Northboro and Fran Hegeler, 19, a sophomore political science major from Norwell, have worked in several areas of the SGA since their first year at UMass.

Powers, who resides in Emerson dormitory in the Southwest Residential College, said the majority of her experience comes from her work as chair of the senate's Finance committee and as former assistant to the senate speaker. The pair's trustee candidate, she is also a former dormitory president and has served on several University-wide committees. Hegeler is a resident of Cance dormitory in the Southwest Residential College and is currently co-president of the Southwest Area Government. She has also served on the senate's Finance Committee and several University-wide committees.

Powers and Hegeler have shown support for the senate's reorganization question removed from the ballot. They also said they support the Faculty Senate's General Education proposal and want to improve the availability of required classes which are currently in demand.

They said they will stress the importance of reducing the sizes of oversubscribed classes, and plan to work with administrators to create a system which will allow students access to their classes required for graduation.

"Just from talking to students around campus," Powers said, "we have found that getting into classes is something that concerns the students more than what is going on in the (student) senate."

They said they believe student fee monies which in the future may be channeled for the repair of campus buildings could be better used if put towards academics.

Posts open on today's ballot

By JOHN O'CONNELL
Collegian Staff

Today's Student Government Association (SGA) ballot lists candidates for less than half of the positions on both the Campus Center Board of Governors (BOG) and the Residential Committee.

Students who wish to run for these positions now can be elected as write-in candidates, according to elections coordinator Mindy Ordway.

The 20 BOG members serve as a policy board which oversees the running of the Campus Center/Student Union Building complex and everything housed within the building, said Ordway. BOG seats are to be filled by one candidate from every residential area except Southwest, which has two, one Greek area candidate, three commuter candidates and ten at-large candidates.

Candidates listed on the ballot for BOG positions are Maria Cahillane of Cashin Dormitory, running for the Sylvan Residential Area position; Paul Agranat, of Townhouse Apartments, and Paige Fernandes, of Riverglade Apartments, running for commuter positions; Mary Ann Coughlin of Wheeler Dormitory and Paul Cunningham of Butterfield Dormitory, running for at large positions on the Board.

The Residential Committee makes sure the needs of on-campus students are answered by the services of the Residential System, is involved with any individual student conflicts with the Residential Contract and recently finished updating the Residential Manual and the Contract, Ordway said.

Residential Committee seats are to be filled by one candidate from each of the on-campus residential areas except Southwest, which has two. Another committee member is appointed in October by the SGA president.

Bill Collins of Moore Dormitory and Howie Breslau of Patterson Dormitory are candidates for the Southwest Residential Area positions and Janet Lannan of Butterfield Dormitory is the candidate for the Central Residential Area position on the committee.

Any student who wishes to run for one of these positions and is not listed on the ballot can conduct a write-in campaign, Ordway said.

"Anybody can do it," she said, adding that write-in candidates should "secure at least ten to fifteen people who are going to write in the correct name."

Ordway said that all write-in votes for each candidate must be in the correct position on the ballot.

Lipof-Mann

Ronald Lipof, 20, the pair's trustee candidate, is a sophomore political science major from Newton. He has been a student senator from John Adams Dormitory in the Southwest Residential Area since his freshman year. Eric Mann, 19, is a sophomore business major from Rosslyn, New York. He is currently co-president of John Adams Upper.

Lipof said they would work toward increasing overall student input, discussion and involvement on issues, by methods including mail and phone surveys and referenda.

"We don't feel that we should be the only two people who make a decision that's going to affect 30,000 people," Lipof said. "There is just not that input in the student government right now. It's a bureaucracy of two or three students."

The pair also said they have a goal "to make the SATF (the Student Activities Trust Fund, into which students pay an annul $96 fee to fund most student organizations) accountable." They proposed accomplishing this by educating students on the fee and by establishing a task force to investigate the exact usage of it.

Reorganization of the student senate to obtain representation by the number of students rather than by dormitory and caucus is another stated objective of the candidates.

"If there is a group that makes up two percent (of the student body), it should not make up 33.3 percent of the student senate," Lipof said. While stressing he understood the need for "additional representation for certain student groups, he said, "I'm not sure the senate understands exactly how that representation is determined."

Allen-Ahern

Charlene Allen, 20, a junior English major from Newton, and Tom Ahern, 20, a sophomore education major from Brimfield, both have chaired senate committees.

Allen, currently of Amherst is former co-chair of the student Senate's Budgets Committee, an SGA Affirmative Action officer, and a former member of the Chancellor's Search Committee interview panel. She has also served on several campus-wide committees. Ahern, also currently of Amherst, is former chair of the student senate Governmental Affairs Committee, registrar of Registered Student Organizations and a member of the Student Center for Educational Research and Advocacy. He has also served on several campus-wide committees.

Allen and Ahern have proposed a plan to open a bottle and can redemption center and also said they are interested in establishing a rent control policy for Amherst.

"A redemption center is especially needed for students without the time or transportation to return them," Ahern said.

They said rent control would enable students to have a choice of places to live.

"After rent control is applied, landlords will be unable to arbitrarily raise the rent," Allen said.

Groom

David Groom, 21, is a junior history major from Swampscott who has held no student government position at the University.

The Amherst resident was, however, on the ballot last year when he ran as a co-presidential candidate with David Stone.

Groom said he would concentrate on advocating changes he feels students have consistently sought but have been unable to obtain from a University administration fearful of change. Groom said his first two projects in that category would be the revision of the on-campus meal plan system and the replacement of Amherst Towing's University contract with that of a student-run organization.

Groom also applied his observation of those "afraid to change" to the University's sports programs, which he sees "caught in a rut." Groom said both students and the state "ought to take pride" in their University's athletic program, but rejected the proposad $20 student fee to help renovate the basketball stadium, saying the state also "has an obligation to buy its own buildings."

"I see it as an investment," Groom said in explaining the many positive aspects he sees to be accrued for the entire University simply through a "more aggressive sports program."

Groom predicted that his candidacy as an individual — a recently rarified style made both successful and controversial only this past year by Jim Murphy — and as an SGA "outsider," would prove "most definitely" to be an advantage, asserting, "Jim Murphy has proven that one person can do the job."

Table Tennis
Balls, Paddles, & Nets
at
A.J. HASTINGS
Newsdealer and Stationer
45 S. Pleasant St., Amherst

THE GLOBE BOOKSHOP
Open 9 am til 9 pm
Monday - Saturday
Open 10 - 3
on Sunday
Fine New & Used Books
Bought & Sold

UMASS SKI CLUB
GOES DOWN
TO
FT. LAUDERDALE

SPRING BREAK 83

8 Days 7 Nights Luxurious Hotel on the Strip

Hotel only	W/Motor Coach	W/Jet
$149 tax included	$275 tax included	$369 tax included

For more information 545-3437

Don't be abused by Price Games
The Ski Club has only luxury hotels
and no hidden costs

WANTED:
Student Staff for
Northeast/Sylvan

Applications for RA/AHR positions are available at the following information sessions:

Mon., March 7, 9:00 PM: Johnson House, N.E.
9:00 PM: Brown House. Sylvan
Tues., March 8, 5:00 PM: New Africa House
CCEBMS Information School
8:00 PM: Crabtree House, N.E.
9:30 PM: Cashin House, Sylvan
Wed., March 9, 8:00 PM: Thatcher House, N.E.
Third World Applicant
Information Session*
Thurs., March 10, 9:00 PM: Lewis House, N.E.

Application deadline is

*BCP students: contact B.C.P. main office for more information. Asian-American students: contact NE/S office for further information (545-0290)

NE/S is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer

Womens Week

MONDAY

Poetry reading by Schyleen Qualls will be held at noon in room 163 of the Campus Center.

"Babies and Banners: the Story of the Women's Emergency Brigade" will be shown at 1 p.m. in the Campus Center in room 162-75.

Mitisuye and Nellie will be shown at 2 p.m. in the Campus Center in room 162-75.

Hard Work will be shown at 3 p.m. in the Campus Center in room 162-75.

Straight Talk about Lesbians will be shown at 4 p.m. in the Campus Center in room 162-75.

"From Cinderella to Women's Scholar — The Strains of Selection: The Making of Academic Women 1870-1920" a lecture by Patricia Palmieri from Dartmouth College, will be held at 4:15 p.m. on the Wright Hall Common Room at Smith College.

Double Day will be shown at 5 p.m. in the Campus Center in room 162-75.

N!ai, the Story of a !Kung Woman will be shown at 6 p.m. in the Campus Center in room 162-75.

The Women's Issues Team will meet in the back of the Hatch for dinner and then go the the International Women's Event.

Three Sisters will be shown at 7 p.m. in the Campus Center in room 162-75.

"What Do Women Want: Psychoanalysis and the Question of Femininity," A lecture by author of Psychoanalysis and Feminism Juliet Mitchell, will be held at 8 p.m. in the Main Lecture Hall at Hampshire College.

THURSDAY

"Women Finding Their Own Voice" a workshop conducted by local women involved in various forms of communication, will be held at 9 a.m. in the Campus Center in room 905-09.

Martial Arts Demonstration will be held at 11 a.m. in the Campus Center in room 101.

New Harmony Sisterhood Band will perform at noon on the Campus Center Concourse.

"Women in Labor Unions" workshop will be held at 1 p.m. in the Campus Center in room 811-15.

Patty Larkin, voted one of Boston's favorite performers by the Boston Globe Readers' Poll, will perform at 2 p.m. on the Campus Center Concourse.

"Women in the Private Realm" workshop will be held at 3 p.m. in the Campus Center room 803.

Committee for Equal Rights and Reproductive Freedom will have a reproductive rights strategy meeting at 6:30 p.m. in the Campus Center in room 165.

"Personal Identities and Collective Visions: Reflections on Being a Jew and A Feminist", will be held at 7:30 p.m. in McConnell Auditorium at Smith College.

THURSDAY

Anti-racism team will meet at 4 p.m. Check the Campus Center schedule for room number.

AMHERST CINEMA
$2.50 Double Feature
Mon - Tues
Blue Collar
7:00
Norma Rae
9:00
Downtown Amherst
253-5426

HIGHEST PRICES PAID
- FOR -
GOLD & SILVER
IN ALL FORMS
MANHAN JEWELLERS
3 PLEASANT ST. (CORNER OF MAIN)
NORTHAMPTON, MA. 01060
(413) 584-7000

Free Popcorn
TIME OUT
Two TV's
SPECIAL
USFL Opener
Monday Night Football
Happy Hour Prices
9 - closing
AMHERST'S BIGGEST LITTLE BAR
37 N. Pleasant St.

Boston University School of Management

Master of Science in Management Information Systems

Beginning in September, Boston University's School of Management is introducing a new program leading to the Master of Science degree in Management Information Systems. This program, designed for students holding undergraduate management degrees, offers outstanding preparation for careers in the rapidly-growing field of management information systems.

A representative from the School of Management will hold an informal information session to describe the program in detail and to answer your questions.

Boston University is an equal opportunity institution.

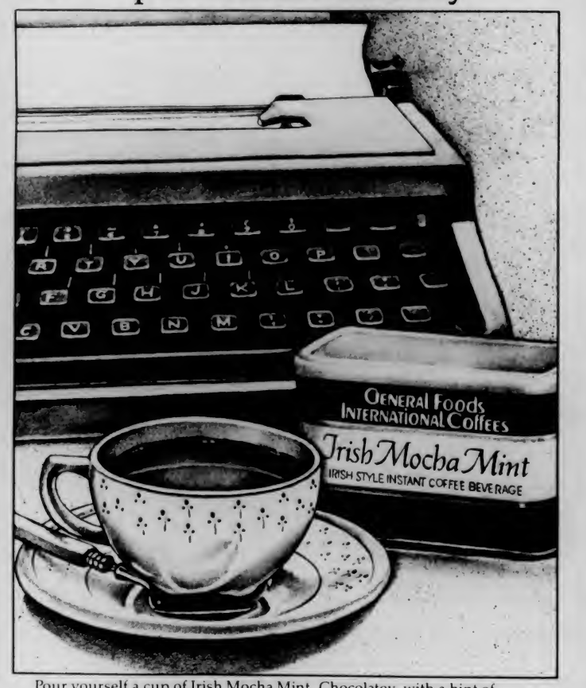
Beachcomber Tours presents
14th ANNUAL
College Spring Break in
DAYTONA BEACH

$289* $185*
JET TOUR
March 13-19
or March 19-26
BUS TOUR
March 11-20
or March 18-27

ALL TOURS INCLUDE:
LAND PACKAGE
- First Class Ocean Front Accommodations for Seven (7) Nights at the Days Inn, Beachside or the Quality Inn Real, located directly on the Strip in Daytona Beach
- Welcome Party with plenty of FREE BEER
- Exclusive 14th Anniversary ID Card for discounts at Shops, Restaurants, Night Clubs, etc.
- On campus reservation service
- Services of the Beachcomber Staff
- OPTIONAL Attractions, Walt Disney World Tour, New Epcot Center Adventure and more!

*Based on double occupancy. Add $40 for single occupancy. Prices do not include taxes and service.
$100 Deposit Required • Limited Space Available
Make Reservations by December 15th and
SAVE $20.00
and receive one free gift!
ALSO AVAILABLE
JET FLIGHT ONLY $289*
BUS TRANSPORTATION ONLY $185*
LAND PACKAGE ONLY $185*
(includes all tax, gratuities and service)
Don't be left out in the COLD!
Beachcomber Tours, Inc.
COMPACT
STEVEN
545-1671
DEPENDABILITY • QUALITY • SERVICE • SINCE 1969
room still available

How to procrastinate tastefully.



Pour yourself a cup of Irish Mocha Mint. Chocolatey, with a hint of mint, it's a delicious way to postpone the inevitable. And it's just one of six inspired flavors from General Foods® International Coffees.

GENERAL FOODS® INTERNATIONAL COFFEES
AS MUCH A FEELING AS A FLAVOR

Available at: UNIVERSITY STORE

© 1982 General Foods Corporation

EDITORIAL/OPINION

Who will vote?

Today and tomorrow, University of Massachusetts' undergraduate students have the opportunity to vote for a number of elected student positions that will vitally affect them in the next school year.

While these elections give students a chance to have their views expressed and represented on campus and in Boston, voter turnout in the past has been miserably low. Last year, slightly more than 4,000 ballots were turned in out of a total of 18,000 students, for a turnout of 22 percent. Since students don't have to pre-register or go out of their way to vote, this total is an embarrassment to the students and the University as a whole. Voter turnout should be much higher.

The position of SGA president for the next school year will be determined by the election, no matter how low the turnout. Duties of the president are two-fold; on-campus and student trustee. The president(s) works as the on-campus president and represents the student body in all on-campus student committees, the Faculty Senate, and Whitmore. The president, as part of the Undergraduate Student Senate, oversees the $1.5 million budget (paid for by an annual contribution of $100 from each student). The duties of the president as the student trustee are equally important. By being one of two students on the twelve-member Board of Trustees, the SGA president maintains contact with the Trustees in Boston and represents student interests.

Students' electoral clout may be exercised in a number of other areas during the elections. Positions are open in the Board of Governors and the Residential Committee. The Board of Governors (BOG) is the elected student body representing student interests in the Campus Center and Student Union Building. The Residential Committee consists of students elected from each dorm area and represents the student body in all aspects of dormitory policy.

This year there is one referendum question as well. Unrelated to the election of any candidate, the question concerns whether or not students favor the new General Education proposal. This is an extremely important referendum, because it will indicate how students feel about this potentially far-reaching proposal.

The potential for a real showing of political clout on the part of students exists. The question is whether or not today and tomorrow, students will have the determination to flex their electoral muscle, and make informed decisions. It is muscle, when used properly, which can change the very quality of life here at UMass.

All unsigned editorials represent the majority opinion of the Collegian Board of Editors

SGA elections –they do matter

"Who are you voting for?"

"Does it matter? Is one any different than the other? They're all politicians."

This was a conversation that I overheard the other day at the Hatch. Election time, yes it is that time of year again. Today and tomorrow you will be asked to make a decision on which candidate for SGA President to vote for. Therein lies what I have come to regard as the comedy and tragedy of student government.

"Politicians," it's that all encompassing word; a word that gives to all of us that touch of cynicism and distrust that seems so necessary for one's survival in today's world. It isn't always an evil term and it isn't always a disparaging name, but the negative connotation does exist. In most dictionaries you will find it defined as both a statesman and a schemer; listed between "Polite" and "Polka," fairly pleasant terms themselves. Most of us tend to lean towards the latter term, schemer, as that all important gauge. The forefathers of our country were also politicians and schemers, so where do you draw the line? In many ways this is a problem inherent in our political system and that is the essence of what student government at UMass has to contend with.

Chris Ferretti

Until you have been actively involved in student government do you begin to realize that most people at UMass don't know the first thing about what goes on in student government . This happens because we carry a mindset from high school — that student government doesn't do anything. It is always easier to pick apart an organization like the SGA than it is to work with it, to help it. Having been involved in four levels: Area, House, the Judiciary, and the Senate, I cannot help but do the self-same thing. This is a perenial problem for the SGA because people have a hard time adjusting to the fact that the SGA at this school has real power.

Now a lot of you will either choose to vote or not to vote in next week's election. In either case the decision will be based upon very little information about the issues, positions, and promises of the candidates. Some of the candidates have addressed themselves to this by including information other than credentials and name on their literature. This is not a trivial matter, the leadership of this job does entail responsibility and we do indeed have to be critical and thoughtful in deciding who it is we want to represent us.

The length of the SGA presidential campaign isn't adequate enough to thoroughly deal with the issues and personalities involved. Most of your opinions will be based upon whatever the candidates furnish and what this newspaper reports. In the future maybe this can be changed to provide more time, but for now all that we can do is to make the effort to vote for those we honestly feel will do the best job.

This is not to say that the SGA is by any means a completely idealistic and effective platform for student affairs, but the attempt is being made. In an organization that exists largely on ambition, altruism can be a scarce commodity, but it does exist and it appears to be growing a little bit more each year.

The SGA has often been characterized as a three ring circus, and as children playing in a sandbox — it isn't either, except in isolated cases. Call it my sense of drama but I see things slightly different perhaps, there is a dramatic essence to our student government:

Much of the power games that occur on the fourth floor of the SUB could be more aptly described as a "Comedy of Errors."

It is also true that some politicians who lose touch with their constituents tend to see reality only in the silvery light of a "Midsummer Night's Dream."

The infighting that so often characterizes student government as an exercise in "Much Ado About Nothing."

That uniquely antagonistic relationship that we have with the administration and the university bureaucracy as the "Taming of the Shrew."

As a final note, please do vote, vote intelligently, and vote "As You Like It" because in the long run it is the students, we, that have the most to lose or gain in making this choice.

Chris Ferretti is a UMass student

Letters

Yes to National Prayer Day

To the Editor:

After reading Kevin DeLuca's "Do we need a National Prayer Day?" on March 2, it was truly amazing to see how far some people will go just to bad-mouth President Reagan. Like DeLuca, I believe there needs to be a definite separation between church and state. I cannot understand, though, why anybody would feel threatened over National Prayer Day and "the year of the Bible."

Kevin's editorial had no interpretation as to what these two proclamations actually entailed. DeLuca did quote Reagan as saying that this country should "face the future with the Bible." Personally, I don't take that statement as a threat, a demand or an order. Do you think, perhaps, that Reagan might have been rendering the American people some inspirational advice? Did Reagan automatically lose his freedom of religion when he became President?

As he continues his sermon, DeLuca preaches that non-Bible believers "should safeguard their rights by suing the President through the courts; asking for an injunction against National Prayer Day and "the year of the Bible".

I was always under the impression that the Collegian saved material like that for their April Fool's edition.

DeLuca fails to realize the meaning of the word "proclamation". According to my dictionary, a proclamation is "something which is officially announced". So what happens if someone refuses to acknowledge either National Prayer Day or "the year of the Bible"? Will they be arrested or perhaps killed? What exactly were you suggesting Kevin, when you stated that "there are right-wing extremists who will take the President seriously and that religious persecution seems to lurk just below the surface of any society"?

The overall concept behind the Bible, I believe, does much more good than harm. May I suggest, though, that non-Bible believers, who still feel discriminated against, either proclaim a day (or a year) in honor of their own belief or just ignore Reagans' proclamations and pretend they don't exist.

Frank Zabierek
Amherst

Anti-freeze campaign deadly

To the Editor:

We need to say a few words in response to Mr. Lawrence M. Wright's editorial, from Thursday March 3rd.

People who support negotiations with the U.S.S.R. are people who are concerned about the future and the survival of this planet. We are not dedicated to the destruction of the United States.

The U.S.S.R. has gone into Poland, and Hungary and the other places that Mr. Wright mentioned. He condemns this but he fails to mention the U.S. involvement in Central America, South Africa, and The Middle East.

Mr. Wright believes that by isolating the Soviet Union we can force it to "decay in its own corrosive policies." His defense of the free market theory is in reality a defense of monopoly capitalism, which is what the "free market" has become. We do remember the cause that our founding fathers and mothers fought for — "Life, liberty and the pursuit of Happiness." But if the U.S. government continues to spend our tax dollars on weapons capable of mass destruction, instead of on jobs and other social programs like medical care; Life, liberty and the pursuit of Happiness will be a dream.

We're sure that Mr. Wright is one of those men who support Jeremiah Denton's (R-Ala.) proposal for a million dollar anti-freeze campaign. He also makes it evident that he thinks we can survive a nuclear war. He believes that we need to plan for shelters. He has his plans. So do we!

We will not give up on the idea of negotiations between the U.S. and the U.S.S.R. Peace is something that we will always work toward. It is a shame that so many people like Mr. Wright, are brainwashed by the media and its "Communist threat tactics." I feel sorry for Mr. Wright but I don't think he can be helped.

Betsy Kraft
Amherst

Denial of financial aid logical

To the Editor:

In Susan MacDonnells' letter of Wednesday, March 2, she states that the law requiring eighteen year old male students to provide proof of registration in order to receive financial aid from the U.S. government "is unconstitutional and immoral law." The U.S. government is operating as a banker to fund higher education in the U.S., and as any banking institution should it is protecting its' interests. Should any lending institution loan funds to people who do not support that institution, and who instead actively seek its' eventual downfall? Therefore it is only logical that the U.S. government seek registration from its' lendees. If we are to look for something illogical then look to registration itself. This is the main problem.

D. Baldwin Panagore
Amherst

Evolution scientifically true

To the Editor:

Let's be serious, guys, Evolutionism is not the Eleventh Commandment nor is it mythology. It is a very well supported and generally agreed upon scientific theory. Some of the scientific evidence which I speak of can be found in fossil records such as the record of the evolution of the horse. Also the average man of today is physically different (e.g. taller) than the average man of 1776. This is an example which can be best explained by the Theory of Evolution.

The Theory of Evolution is the product of centuries of research and of scientific methodology. The Theory of Creationism is the Biblical account of the origin of the Universe. Perhaps one day there will be a theory that will make both of these theories look like they were proposed by Bozo the Clown. As for now the Theory of Evolution seems to be the most credence in this scientifically minded society of ours.

Jeff Leichter
Amherst

Letters Policy

All letters must be signed and include the writer's address and telephone number, which will not be published. Please type double spaced at 67 characters per line. Due to space limitations and the volume of mail, we regret we are unable to acknowledge unpublished letters. All letters are subject to editing for clarity and length.

INTERNATIONAL WOMENS EVENT

UMASS 545-0341
545-0254

MARCH 7-8,1983

Monday - March 7

12:00 Poetry reading, Rm 163, Schyleen Qualls'
1:00 Film, Rm 162-75, "Babies and Banners"
2:00 Film, Rm 162-75, "Mitsuye and Nellie"
3:00 Film, Rm 162-75, "Hard Work"
4:00 Film, Rm 162-75, "Straight Talk about Lesbians"
5:00 Film, Rm 162-75, "Double Day"
6:00 Film, Rm 162-75, "!Nai, the story of a !Kung woman"
7:00 Film, Rm 162, "Three Sisters"

Tuesday - March 8

All day Campus Center Festivities
9:00 Workshop, Rm 905-09, "Women finding their own voice"
11:00 Workshop, Rm 101, Martial Arts Demonstration
12:00 New Harmony Sisterhood Band - Concourse
1:00 Workshop, Rm 811-815, "Women in Labor Unions"
2:00 Patty Larkin - Concourse
3:00 Workshop, Rm 803, "Women in the Private Realm"
8:00 Concert - Phoebe Snow - Fine Arts Center

Children's Workshops will be available Monday CC 168 and Tuesday CC 804.
Traduccion de todos los eventos al espanol, asegurada

Arts

Mime into magic

MARCEL MARCEAU
Friday, March 4
Fine Arts Center

By HANNAH HOSOM
Collegian Staff

Only one man can make the world laugh at human faults and fantasies, and cry for pain and waste, without saying a word. The same man can reach out and give an audience precious bits of life, although nothing tangible changes hands. Only Marcel Marceau, who performed Friday at the Fine Arts Center, can turn mime into magic.

Marceau began the evening's performance with two short pieces on the humor of vices and frustrations, "The Dice Players" and "The Sculptor." Marceau makes complete use of his body and facial expressions to make the audience empathize with the greedy gambler and the impatient perfectionist, who eventually whittles his masterpieces to dust.

Then, the lights go off, and come up briefly on a student of Marceau's holding a placard that reads "The Public Garden." The lights are off again only for a second or two.

A single figure, a statue, is center stage. Slowly it turns, and becomes a gentleman walking thorough the park, swinging a cane. There's an old woman knitting as she gossips to her husband. He leans on his cane, listening to her chatter. A small boy is playing in front of them. Another rides by on a bicycle. Two lovers meet, wander about, then part with a passionate embrace. One man lovingly makes cotton candy while a near child licks it off his arms. Another vendor hawks helium balloons. A man with a broom is enjoying watching the park's visitors as he sweeps the pathways. Only one man actually stands on stage, bringing an entire neighborhood to life.

"The Public Garden" was followed shortly by "The Pickpocket's Nightmare." Marceau, (in black,) stands between two large black walls. He puts his arm behind one, and his hand emerges five feet away. The stage is soon filled with arms, surrounding Marceau, sometimes trying to escape him. The timing required is split-second, and the result leaves the audience watching in fascination. It is difficult to describe the way Marceau brings out the child-like awe in his audiences, alternating the tension of the "nightmare" with delighted laughter.

After intermission Marcel chose from his repertoire of Bip pantomimes. What the Little Tramp was to Charlie Chaplin, Bip is to Marceau. Bip began as a lion tamer, dealing with a very reluctant lion. Next, he travels by train, and faces the difficulties of heavy luggage which refuses to remain overhead and losing his ticket -- which is found, of course, in his jacket pocket.

Bip also tells the story of David and Goliath. Using one black wall, he emerges on one side as David, a little shepherd boy playing the flute, and on the other as the arrogant giant Goliath. Marceau takes the skit one step further by having Goliath come out for a curtain call, bow, then signal for David to join him. One almost believes the two will appear on the stage at the same time!

Marceau ended the evening with a piece entitled "The Maskmaker." Although Marceau chooses different pieces from his repertoire each year, he performs this one regularly.

A maskmaker sits on a box in the middle of the stage, trying on faces he has created. He changes from clown to a monkey, until finally he begins to amuse himself by putting on first a happy face, then a sad one, then the happy one again, until he is switching back and forth so rapidly one can catch only glimpses of each expression.

The genius of gesture, Marcel Marceau, performed at the Fine Arts Center Friday night.

Suddenly, the maskmaker becomes trapped in the happy face. He struggles and struggles to get out, cries, all with the joyful grin covering up how he truly feels. The only way to escape is to destroy the mask. In desperation he pries the mask off with a tool, ruining it in the process.

If it were possible to mirror humanity as easily as Marcel Marceau does, he would be just another performer, but Marceau has an extraordinary talent for making people listen to his silence. Once again, Marceau proved he is not only the master of mime, but of communication.

They loved it all

KOKO TAYLOR AND THE BLUES MACHINE
Saturday, March 5
Blue Wall

By SCOTT HERSEY
Collegian Staff

"Tell old Pistol Pete that everbody is gonna' meet.
We gonna' get everybody down to that Union Hall,
We gon' fuss and fight till midnight, we gon' kick out all the doors,
We gonna' get you wang dang doodle all night long."

"Wang Dang Doodle," a Willie Dixon song covered by Koko Taylor and the Blues Machine Saturday night at the Blue Wall.

Early Saturday evening, before any of the bands had taken the stage, some of the 200 or so people gathered in the Blue Wall were heard to remark, "who is this Koko Taylor, and is she really that good?"

And a little later that same evening, after th Hash Brown Blues Band had turned in a hot, hour-long set of electric blues and boogie, those same people were still wondering about Taylor, and questioning if she was "as good."

And even later that evening, after the Blues Machine had taken the stage without Taylor and was warming up the crowd with some smooth electric blues of its own, those same people were still wondering if she was "that good."

But by the time that Taylor had gotten up on stage, and wowed the crowd with her version of "Wang Dang Doodle," those people were up and dancing, and seemed to forget that they ever questioned her ability.

Koko Taylor is that good.

Because synthesizers, drum machines and high technology have all but taken over popular music today, some people seem to forget how much fun you can have with some old guitars and traditional songs.

Koko Taylor helped them remember.

"Went partyin' the other night,
started drinkin' and got real tight.
I beat each and all my friends,
felt so good I had to do it again."

-- "Hey Bartender," a song that Taylor dedicated to all the drinkers in the house.

From the time that Taylor finally took the stage, dressed in a blue strapless dress and a huge black wig, the crowd went wild. Old song or new, boogie or blues, they loved it all.

Backed by the four-piece Blues Machine -- which Taylor described before the show as "small but loud" -- Taylor belted out the classics with a monster voice that she seemed to drag up from deep inside her. And she had as good a time singing as the crowd did listening.

Collegian photo by Drew Ogier

Koko Taylor performed at the Blue Wall Saturday night.

She smiled the whole night, dedicated a number of songs to the "great people of Amherst" and spent time both before and after the show talking with her admirers.

Because the J.B. Hutto show was cancelled a few weeks ago and rescheduled for next week, this was the first of the Union Program Council's "Blues in the Blue Wall!" series.

After seeing this show, I'm going to make sure I catch the others.

Johansen's a natural

DAVID JOHANSEN
Friday, March 4
Rusty Nail, Sunderland

By JIM FEIN
Collegian Correspondent

One of rock music's most enthusiastic performers, David Johansen, played to a large crowd at the Rusty Nail last Friday night. Johansen, who opened for the Who several times on their '82 U.S. tour, demonstrated how he earned that honor with a seventy-five minute set that won the crowd over from the very beginning.

David Johansen is, quite simply, a natural. His wide range of facial expressions, coupled with his ability to "act out" the lyrics to his songs, show an aspect of the man that is not captured on his four albums.

This show was basically the same one he performed here at the University in 1981. The set included originals ("Funky But Chic," "Melody") as well as faithful renditions of "Build Me A Buttercup," and the popular Animals medley. David Johansen has the uncanny ability to perform cover songs just as convincingly as the original artist. A case in point was his version of the Temptation's "Reach Out, I'll Be There," which was the evening's highlight. During this song he moved along the edge of the stage, reaching out into the crowd and grasping every available hand. Then he threw the mike into the crowd, encouraging the crowd to sing along. He was very convincing.

The crowd wooed him back for two sets of obligatory encores. These included energetic versions of "Babylon," and "Personality Crisis," both songs by the New York Dolls, an early seventies band (and one of the precursors of punk) in which Johansen was the lead singer.

My only criticism of the show was a lack of new material. Of the seventeen (plus) songs he played, only one of the songs was new. Johansen mentioned a new album but played only two of the songs that are slated to be on it. If he does not change his repetoire some, he may risk the danger of burnout. This would really be a shame, for David Johansen is a great performer.

Attention Arts Writers:

There will be a mandatory meeting for all arts reporters to discuss the up-coming issue of the Other Voice on Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the newsroom.

Open 24 Hours–7 am Mon. thru Sat. Midnite
in Hadley-Amherst and Pittsfield stores.

STOP & SHOP

MORE WAYS TO SAVE!

DOUBLE COUPON SAVINGS On Manufacturers' Coupons
Manufacturers' Coupons are more valuable at Stop & Shop because we double your savings. Details in store.

EVERYDAY LOW PRICES!
You'll find them all over the store. Plus hundreds of Warehouse Values.

OVER 180 SPECIALS IN OUR CIRCULAR!
Including Stop & Shop Coupons worth $1.95. Check out every page of this circular. It can save you dollars more. Pick one up in the store.

SAVE ON ST. PATRICK'S DAY DINNER WITH OUR CORNED BEEF BRISKET.

Point Cut 99¢ lb

... AND CRISP GREEN CABBAGE 9¢ lb

Corned Brisket	lb 1.79	Swift Brisket	lb 2.19
Corned Brisket	lb 1.49	Smoked Shoulder	lb .99
Corned Rounds	lb 1.89	Master Shoulder	lb 1.29

LOWER YOUR FOOD BILL IN 1983! SAVE ON ITEMS YOU USE EVERY DAY!

La Rosa Pasta	.55	SAVE ON FINE FROZEN FOODS!
Solid White Tuna	1.09	La Pizzeria Pizza	1.09
Lincoln Apple Juice	1.19	Vegetables 20 oz	.89
Clam Chowder	.59	Orange Juice 12 oz	.89
Cake Mix	.59	SAVE ON FRESH BAKED GOODS!
Marcal Towels	.59	Big Daisy Bread	2 for .99
Maxwell House	2.99	English Muffins	3 for $1
1 Liter White Rock	3 for $1	Hamburger Rolls	2 for .99
40 oz Prune Juice	1.09	SAVE ON FRESH DAIRY FOODS!
Mrs. Grass Soup Mix	.79	1% Low Fat Milk	.89
Ivory Liquid	1.29	Orange Juice	1.19
S.O.S Soap Pads	.89	Stop & Shop Yogurt	3 for $1
Pert Shampoo	1.49	Cottage Cheese	.89

Always fresh. Always meaty. A great buy!

WHITE GEM YOU CAN'T BUY A BETTER CHICKEN AT A BETTER PRICE.

Chicken Legs	lb .69
Chicken Thighs	lb .79
Chicken Drumsticks	lb .89

LENTEN MEAL MAKERS

Fresh Pollock Fillets lb 1.59

LIVER AND ONIONS...

Sliced Beef Liver	lb .49
Yellow Onions	lb .12

STOP & SHOP SAVINGS ON THE KING OF OVEN ROASTS

Large End 4th 7th Ribs
BEEF RIB ROAST lb $1.99

Round Tip Roast	lb 2.09
Top Round Roast	lb 1.99
Rump Roast	lb 1.99
Eye Round Roast	lb 2.59
Boneless Chuck Roast	lb 1.89
Boneless Chuck Steak	lb 1.99

We slice whatever you choose fresh to your order!
CORNER DELI
Available in stores with Service Delis

Deutschmacher Liverwurst	lb 1.69
Frankfurts	lb 1.99

SAVE ON 3 GREAT KINDS OF EATING APPLES.

Pack a crisp, low-calorie apple in lunches instead of sticky sweets!

Pick your own! Red or Golden Delicious or Crisp McIntosh
U.S. #1 Extra Fancy 2¼" Minimum 2 lbs 89¢

Crisp Carrots	3 lbs $1
Maine Potatoes	5 lbs $1
Fresh Parsnips	2 lbs $1
Yellow Onions	lb .12
Yellow Turnips	lb .12

PLUS MORE GREAT SPECIALS!

Large Avocados	2 for .89
Kiwi Fruit	3 for $1
Fresh Peanuts	4 for $1

FREE! Economy White Bathroom Tissue 1000 Sheet 1 ply Roll — Stop & Shop Grocery Coupon C 479
FREE! Stop & Shop Sundae Style Yogurt 8oz Cup Assorted Flavors — Stop & Shop Dairy Coupon C 478
FREE! Stop & Shop English Muffins Regular or Split 12oz Pkg of 6 — Stop & Shop Bakery Coupon C 13 436
FREE! Chicken of the Sea Solid White Tuna 7oz can in Water — Stop & Shop Grocery Coupon 7 14 C 437
With this coupon & 7.50 purchase. Limit one per customer. Good Sun. Mar. 6 thru 12, 1983

STOP & SHOP

IT'S TIME TO STOP & SHOP.

Prices effective Sun. Mar. 6 Sat. Mar. 12 in Mass. Mon. Mar. 7 Sat. Mar. 12 We reserve the right to limit sales to three packages of any items offered for sale. Not available in case lots or to other dealers or wholesalers. Copyright 1983 by Stop & Shop Supermarkets. Not responsible for typographical errors

UMass/Boston

Your Public University

invites you to a special

Graduate Studies Open House

Thursday
March 10, 3 – 7pm

MA
American Civilization
Critical and Creative Thinking
English
History
History/Archival Methods
History/Historical Archaeology
Mathematics
Mathematics/Computer Science
Sociology (Applied)

MS
Biology
Biology/Applied Marine Ecology
Chemistry
Physics (Applied)

MEd
Bilingual/Multicultural Education
Counselor Training
English as a Second Language
School Psychology
Special Needs Education

MBA
Business Administration

PhD
Environmental Science

Meet and talk with faculty members from UMass/Boston's fine graduate programs.
All these graduate programs permit full-time or part-time study on convenient schedules. Tuition for the fall semester of 1983 is $60 per credit, up to a maximum of $717.

The open house will be held Thursday, March 10, from 3:00 to 7:00 pm, in the Lounge on the 3rd floor of Building 020 at UMass/Boston's Harbor Campus. For further information about the open house or about graduate study at UMass/Boston, call 929-8000.

Hypercurricula...

"Hypercurricula," a listing of events held at the University of Massachusetts and surrounding area, is published daily in the Collegian. Events are listed only on the day they are taking place. Announcements must be submitted on "Hypercurricula" forms available in the Collegian offices, 113 Campus Center, and returned to the office by 3 p.m. the Friday before the event. All submissions should be written in a similar style as they appear in the paper.

"Hypercurricula" notices not submitted on the standard form and not submitted by the Friday before the week the event will take place will not be run. Due to space limitations, the Collegian cannot guarantee printing of all "Hypercurricula" notices. Priority will be given to UMass organizations.

ALPHA PHI OMEGA NATIONAL SERVICE FRATERNITY — Invites all University men to an open rush meeting. We are a fraternity with over 600 chapters across the country. As a service fraternity, we provide services to both UMass and the community. Come join us to be a leader, be of service and be a friend. 7 p.m., Campus Center Room 903.

"THREE SISTERS" — Chekhov's classical play; set during the turn of the century in small Russian town. Three cultured young women adjust to "crude" manners of provincial life. Dedicated to International Women's Event. 7 p.m., Room 174-76 Campus Center.

DAILY INTERNSHIP PLANNING SESSION — A one-hour Planning Session which will provide detailed information about internship opportunities in all fields and application procedures. Sign up in advance by phone or in person. Office of Internships, 16 Curry Hicks, 545-0727. 2:30 and 3:30 p.m.

MEDITATION CLASS — A beginner's class in tantric meditation and related processes. Body work, relaxation, concentration, mantra meditation. All are welcome. Free, 6:30 p.m., Campus Center 803.

HILLEL COUNCIL "MEET THE CANDIDATES" NIGHT — Tonights Council meeting you can meet the candidates which will be voted on next Monday and Tuesday. 6 p.m., Hillel Office.

PASSOVER SONGSHARING — Join Saul's Jewish Holiday's class tonight for a special section on songs for Passover. Share traditional family songs and learn new ones. Open to all. 8 p.m., Herter Hall Room 108.

WOMEN ISSUES TEAM MEETING — Join the Women Issues Team for dinner; afterwards there will be a general discussion. 6:30 p.m., back of the Hatch.

UMASS HUNGER TASK FORCE MEETING — "Population Pressure: Myth or Reality?" is today's topic for discussion, led by Karen Riley. All are welcome. 4 p.m., 428 Student Union.

AN IMPORTANT ADDITION TO YOUR UNIFORM

The insignia of an Air Force nurse can mean a lot to you and your future. It shows that you're part of the Air Force Nurse Corps. A member of one of the most efficient health care teams in the world. It signifies you are an Air Force officer with the responsibility and prestige of a leadership position. It indicates you're on the track toward good pay and almost unlimited educational opportunities. If you're a nursing professional or about to complete your nursing education, why not consider Air Force nursing as part of YOUR future? From the day you're commissioned, you'll receive the pay and advantages of an Air Force officer. Consider your uniform and our future. Then make it yours.
AIR FORCE NURSING. A GREAT WAY OF LIFE.

For More Details Call Sandy Price
(203) 229-9841
Freshmen & Sophmores Call Capt. Pinkell
(413) 545-2137

AIR FORCE

50¢ OFF with this ad at Rand Theatre Box Office for March 9th performance ONLY

Ashes

A Play by David Rudkin
Frank Prentice Rand Theater
University of Massachusetts Fine Arts Center
March 9-12, 1983, 8:00 pm
Reservations: 545-3511

YOU CAN STILL SUBSCRIBE TO ALL THREE RAND THEATRE PRODUCTIONS
ASHES, THE COMEDY OF ERRORS, AND COMPANY

UMass/Boston

Your Public University

invites you to a special

Graduate Studies Open House

Thursday
March 10, 3 – 7pm

MA
American Civilization
Critical and Creative Thinking
English
History
History/Archival Methods
History/Historical Archaeology
Mathematics
Mathematics/Computer Science
Sociology (Applied)

MS
Biology
Biology/Applied Marine Ecology
Chemistry
Physics (Applied)

MEd
Bilingual/Multicultural Education
Counselor Training
English as a Second Language
School Psychology
Special Needs Education

MBA
Business Administration

PhD
Environmental Science

Meet and talk with faculty members from UMass/Boston's fine graduate programs.
All these graduate programs permit full-time or part-time study on convenient schedules. Tuition for the fall semester of 1983 is $60 per credit, up to a maximum of $717.

The open house will be held Thursday, March 10, from 3:00 to 7:00 pm, in the Lounge on the 3rd floor of Building 020 at UMass/Boston's Harbor Campus. For further information about the open house or about graduate study at UMass/Boston, call 929-8000.

THIS WEEKS SPECIAL

$1.91 Noxzema 10 oz.
$1.01 Reg. 1.64 Stridex Pads 42's

$1.35 Reg. 1.87 Visine ½ oz.
$2.11 Reg. 2.89 Boil & Soak 12 oz.

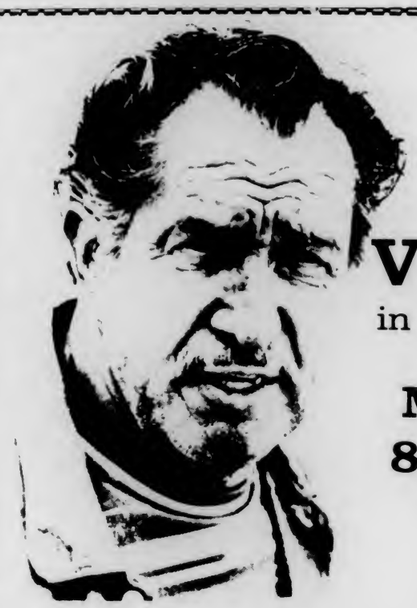
$2.41 Dry Idea 2.5 oz. Reg. and Unscented

Aim $1.40 Aim 6.4 oz. Reg. or Mint

$1.48 Reg. 2.31 Enhance Shampoo or Conditioner Norm. or Dry

$1.36 Vidal Sassoon Hair Brush

All sale items also available at the Mini Store located in the Student Union
Located in the Campus Center
Open M-F 9-5 Sat. 11-4
UNIVERSITY STORE



DVP
presents

Vincent Price
in a one man performance

Monday, March 7
8 pm at the F.A.C.

$2. 5 college students
$4. Senior Citizens
$5. General Public

Tickets on sale now at F.A.C. Box Office
sponsored by University Arts Council
and Distinguished Visitors Program

Bloom County — By Berke Breathed

The UMass Zone — By Mark Rollins

Katfood — By ARK

After the Fall — By R. Miller

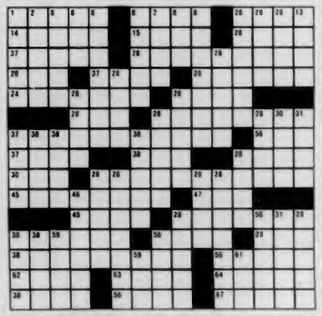
CROSSWORD

Edited by Margaret Farrar and Trude Jaffe

©1983 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

ACROSS
1 Operatic highlights
6 Gold cloth
10 Normandy city
14 Sinker
15 Ardor
16 Type of apple
17 Last of a series
18 Unencumbered
20 —— annum
21 Learning by heart
23 Rough and ready
24 Completely
26 Suffix of quality
27 Cloak-and-dagger agcy.
28 Notwithstanding
32 Miserly
36 Four-in-hand, e.g.
37 Skip over
38 Sgt. or cpl.
39 European capital
40 Contrary: Abbr.
41 Bullied
45 Gambler's helper
47 Eastern name
48 Factory worker
49 Fine cigars
53 Relative of the llama
56 March in a line
57 "—— on parle anglais"
58 Irresolute
60 Fur trader John Jacob
62 Back of the neck
63 Men.ion
64 Farm machinery maker
65 Bandy words
66 River into the North Sea
67 Tall tales

DOWN
1 Vote to accept
2 One of the Montagues
3 Languid
4 Summer mo.
5 Clear kind of night
6 "Waiting for ——"
7 Century plant
8 Name of fame, in China
9 International pact
10 Point maker
11 Jog along
12 Bind with ropes
13 Submit
19 Like some boots
22 Norway's patron saint
25 Eight, in Mainz
26 "Flow gently sweet ——."
28 Haberdashery purchase
29 Part of molecule
30 Queue
31 Grant temporary use
32 Carousal: Slang
33 Kaffir warrior
34 Notre Dame football immortal
35 "The Lady ——"
39 Musical verve
41 Lean to
42 Lease
43 English lockup
44 Thus far
46 Sect originating in England, 1747
49 Sweet or hard
50 Gunpowder ingredient
51 Potential oak
52 Foals' parents
53 Plant boards
54 Baryshnikov specialty
55 Member of Bear family
56 Festive celebration
59 Ice cream, in Berlin
61 "The —— Wolf" by London



ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

M	E	R	E	S	T		B	E	A	C	T
A	D	A	M	A	N	T		E	L	U	D	E
N	O	T	W	I	T	H	S	T	A	N	D	I	N	G
O	M	A	N			H	I	A		A	R	R	A	Y
W	I	L	L		D	I	E	V	I	S		O	N	C	E
A	H	A		L	I	C	K	E	N		B	I	T	S
R			A	I	N	E		A	H	O	Y
		A	N	T	E		D	I	T	T	O
V	E	R	B	O	S	E		C	H	A	N	D	L	E	R
D	I	V		S	E	E	L	I	N	G		E	P	E
A	S	I	S		T	E	C	H	I	E	S		A	C	S
R	I	G	E	S	T		A	V	E		A	D	I	T
H	O	N	C	H	O	M	A	N	A	C	H	O
M	I	M	I	N	G		S	P	E	A	K	E	R
P	R	A	I	R	I	E		P	I	T	I	S	I	E

WEATHER

Occassional rain or drizzle today through tomorrow. Lows tonight in the middle 30s. Highs today and tomorrow 40 to 50.

D.C. MENU

LUNCH
Hamburg on Roll
Tuna Oriental

BASICS LUNCH
Oatburgers
Tuna Oriental

DINNER
Fried Chicken
Cranberry Sauce
Apple Glazed Corned Beef

BASICS DINNER
Egg and Cheddar Florentine
Fried Chicken
Cranberry Sauce

Be A Star
★

Become a star reporter for the Collegian. One of New England's largest daily college newspapers! We need people to write news and women's affairs. Great experience for any students interested in journalism or communications. Come by the Collegian anytime and ask for an editor. It's easy and it's fun. Everyone's welcome.

The Collegian
113 Campus Center
545-3500

Gymnastics teams finishing strong

Men set school mark

By ELLEN RICHARD
Collegian Staff

The Cage wasn't the only place on campus that rocked Saturday night. Boyden gymnasium stirred with enthusiasm as the University of Massachusett's men's gymnastics team set a school record for most points in a meet to attain a goal they set at the start of the season and appropriately achieved in the final meet, a 261.9-253.45 victory over Springfield College.

"It was a fitting end," co captain John McGonagle said. "We're finally out of our slump. I knew if we put it together we'd break it. It just takes the first guy up in each event to start us off."

The always confident coach Roy Johnson never stopped believing that his team, which is now 9-4, could break the school record of 257.45.

"We finally put it together," Johnson said. "I believed all along so this is kind of just in due time. I hope we can have as good a performance at the EIGL's (Eastern Intercollegiate Gymnastics League)."

Before a small, but enthusiastic crowd of about 300, the Minutemen had outstanding performances from Willie Stevens, Bert Mathieson and Jim Corbett. The gym roared with excitement as the Minutemen performed their best ever.

Mathieson had an all time high of 9.15 on the floor exercises and took the top spot in the event. An injured John Macurdy came in third with an 8.95. The team had an all time high score in the event with 44.45 points.

The adrenalin flowed among the spectators as well as the performers, in the rings event right before McGonagle performed. McGonagle is shooting for a trip to the Nationals and got a step closer as he scored a 9.45. The support of the crowd made breaking the school record even better for the team.

"At the end they got pretty intense," Corbett said of the crowd. "Before John McGonagle went up it just amazed me. That was fantastic. I was very happy and gymnastics was very fun tonight."

Stevens agreed. "When you have a crowd that was compacted and we get into it, they get into it."

Tony Sbarra started the team off in the vault event with an 8.9 vault and Corbett hit his vault scoring a career high 9.3. Mathieson also had an all time high with a 9.45.

Stevens, who had career highs in floor with an 8.85 and in rings with a 9.15, had another career high in vaulting. He also won the all around with 54 points, his highest ever.

"I'm psyched we went out with a bang," a speechless Goulart said.

Collegian photo by Tom Kudla

Jim Corbett bends over backward during his floor routine Saturday night.

Women rout Rutgers

By ELLEN RICHARD
Collegian Staff

Even with a few rough spots, the University of Massachusetts women's gymnastics team still came through in Saturday's 173.65-147.15 blowout over Rutgers.

"They're pushing right up there even with rough spots," coach Ken Anderson said. "That's the second highest score this year and ever."

The Minutewomen, who broke the school record last Wednesday with a 175.5 score, had a little trouble in the vault event. Robin Low missed her first vault but hit the second one to receive an 8.9 and take first in the event. Tricia Harrity placed second with an 8.75 and Sue Allen scored an 8.65 to take third.

Rutgers was no competition for UMass in the uneven bars event as lack of strength produced choppy routines. Karen Knapp had an outstanding performance for UMass placing first with a 9.1. Low took the second spot with an 8.7 and Yael Kantor was in third with an 8.55

Balance beam produced few falls for UMass and a lot of falls for Rutgers. Knapp had another fine performance and won the first spot with an 8.9. Barbara Lord had a good routine and took second with an 8.7 and Allen placed third with an 8.5.

Massachusetts had an all time high on the floor exercises with 44.9 points. Low was outstanding in the exercises as she performed a lively routine to score a 9.45. Lisa Griffen also had an excellent performance scoring a 9.1 in second place. Knapp placed third with a 9.0.

The team honored seniors Knapp and Janice Baker before the meet.

Baker competed this season for the first time since her freshman year because of a knee injury suffered during a meet. Originally an all around performer, Baker competed in the balance beam and uneven bars for the Minutewomen.

Knapp worked her way up to being one of Massachusetts top all arounds after a back injury her freshman year slowed her down. Anderson called Knapp, who broke the school record in the balance beam event with a 9.5 this season, a hard worker who will be tough to replace.

"That's what happens every four years," Anderson said. "It's very happy and very sad. I wish them all the best in the future. I'll miss both of them."

Next on the agenda for the Minutewomen is the Atlantic Ten Championships next weekend. The meet will be held at the University of Rhode Island on Saturday at 5:00 p.m. and should find the Minutewomen as one of the top teams.

SOCIAL SCIENCE MAJORS:

Freshmen, Sophomores, Juniors, & Seniors

You Are Invited To Attend

AN

ALUMNI/AE CAREER NIGHT
TUES. MARCH 8
8:00 PM
CAMPUS CENTER 163
Anthropology, Economics
Political Science & Sociology

Graduates from each department will discuss and answer questions about their careers and your!

Sponsored by the Alumni Association and the University Placement Office

VOTE TODAY!
Presidential/BOG/
Residential Committee

SOUTHWEST
MacKimmie, JQA, JA, Patterson, Washington, Cance, Pierpont and Moore..... vote in Berkshire DC
James, Melville, Thoreau, JFK, Prince, Crampton, and Coolidge
..... vote in Hampshire D.C.

ORCHARD HILL/CENTRAL
..... vote in Franklin DC

SYLVAN/NORTHEAST
..... vote in Worcester DC
11 am - 6:30 pm

COMMUTERS/GREEKS
..... vote in front of the Hatch
from 9 - 4:30 pm

It Makes A Difference

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Monday - Friday • Deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10 % • discount • Phone number FREE

ATTENTION BOLTWOOD VOLUNTEERS

The seminars are Sundays 3/6 and 3/13 at 7 pm in the Commonwealth Room

ATTENTION UNIVERSITY WOMEN

Open meeting of Gamma Sigma Sigma - uniting collegwomen in the spirit od service to humanity - A National Service Sorority Tue March 8 7:30 PM CC rm 904 - for more info tel. 546-2068

AUTO FOR SALE

67 VW Conv inspected needs work $400 or BO 323-5918 leave message

For sale 1970 Ford Torino - 45,000 original miles needs work - $500 or BO call 546-3500 before 5:00 549-4125 after 5:00 ask for Dan

73 Pontiac Grand AM 4 door cruise control climate control bucket seats excellent condition $800 or BO 82,000 miles 549-2785 evenings

80 Datsun 310GX excellent condition. Rear defrost/wiper stereo AM/FM cassette one owner $4500 549-5686

73 Valiant, good cond. 225 slant six, $700 or BO 253-5956

BELLYGRAMS!!

Dalivarad by professional bellydancer for most unusual gift. Thereza, 253-7822

CAPE COD SUMMER RENTAL

West Yarmouth Seagull Beach duplex newly redone two bedrooms each side sleeps 4 includes all utilities 253-7436 $2550. Memorial Day thru Labor Day

COUNSELING - LOW STUDENT FEE

Licansed, experienced, caring humanist No connection U Mass. First session free. Allan Black, 253-5036

ENTERTAINMENT

Reckedisc Entertainment Agency inc. Bands and discjockeys guaranteed student functions 256-0739

Professional DJs for less $99 special ends March 15. Book now before price increase 549-4405

M & M Music Unlimited Professional DJ's for all occasions call Mike 546-5259

Jodi Leong, vocalist, & Mark Baszak, pianist. TOC Lounge, Fri., Sat., March 4 & 5

FINKLE FOR PREZ.

Warren Zavon, Phil Collins, Carl Yastremski, Joe Duffy, Denny Madson, Dan Rather, Herschel Walker, Ron 'Macho Guy' Reagan, John Hinckley, Sirhan Sirhan, Charles Manson, Eddie Rabbitt, Princess Grace, Bear Bryant, Clubber Lang, The Humungus, Howard Cosell, Andy Rooney, Jack Nicklaus, Deputy Dawg and Barney Frank are writing-in JIM FINKLE for SGA prez!!!

FIRE FIGHTERS

Applications for the Amherst Fire Department Student Force must be submitted today by candidates that wish to be considered for the 1983-84 school year. For info call 253-3431

FOR RENT

One bedroom in three bedroom So. Amherst house call Patrick 253-3124

FOR SALE

Kinks Concert! 2 tickets March 31st Worcester Centrum good seats 546-4419

Raleigh 10 spd men's 26 in ex cond $100 or BO Pattie 546-9631

1969 Horse Trailer 700.00 call Nat at 584-2700 x440 price negotibale

21" Univage Gran Tourismo custom bicycle ex. cond. $250.00 firm 665-4865

FOUND

Found: A large grey winter coat on Feb. 23. Call 546-8059 and ask for Beth

Gold bracelet on PVTA bus. To identify call 546-5920

Gloves in Tobin Hall girlsroom found Feb 21st contact Rhondi at 253-5109 to identify

HAPPY BIRTHDAY MARCIA

Heppy Birthday Marcia You are the best friend a person could have Love Reafer

HELP WANTED

CRUISE SHIP JOBS! $14-$28,000 Caribbean, Hewaii, World. Call for Guide, Directory, Newsletter. 916-722-1111 ext Massachusattes

Applications now being accepted for part time nights, at Kay Jewelers, Hampshire Mall

General Office Help. Must type 50 wpm +. Work Study preferred. Call Jenny at UPC 545-2892

Alaska Jobs summer/year round, earn great money in this opportunity rich state, ie, earn $10,000-$12,000 on three month fishing boat. Send for 1983 Employer Listing and information packet covering all industries $5.00 Lental Reseach dept AA2114 satisfaction guaranteed

Programming Producer wanted for cable system call GPC: 545-2733

Cruise Ship Jobs! Great income potential, all occupations. For information call: 602-837-3401 ext 833

Representative wanted for effective, guaranteed scholarship location service. Brief profile to DMR Group, 29 Morningside Drive, Westfield, MA 01085

Performers needed for weeknight recreation programs (musicians, mime, etc.) Val 6-6623 Sandra 256-0501

Tomorrow's Jobs Know what is and will be available through this indispensable booklet of current Government Studies covering all industries and states inc. Alaska and Hawaii. $8.75 LYNTEL RESEARCH Dept. TA2114 P.O. Box 99405 Cleve., Ohio 44199 satisfaction guaranteed

INSTRUCTION

Know your car. Basic Auto Mechanics Workshop. Classroom theory & shop. Limited enrollment. 253-2098

LESBIAN & GAY

FREE trained Lesbiam and Gay Peer Counseling and Referral 433 SU 545-2645

LOST

Keys on blue-clip keyring with words Le Chateau 546-8161

Lost - gold bracelet, Bartlett - Thompson Hall area. I really want it returned - it belonged to my mother. Reward. 323-5900

Lost: Jade teardrop-shaped stone with metal top to put on an earring. Has great sentimental valuell Rewardlll call Lee @ 546-9091

Lost gold class ring 1946 256-6750

Keys with burgundy leather compartment keychain very important please call 546-5346

Lost eye glasses tinted brown. Between Thompson and Orch Hill reward 6-6669

SKI STOWE

Spring Break — 5 days, 5 nights. Breakfast, lift tickets, hotel, beer, pool, hot tub and steambaths all for $149. Call Will at 546-9326 for more information.

TERMINAL RENTALS

COMPUTERM
Terminal wo/monitor $130/rest of sem.
Terminal wo/monitor $160/sem.
Terminal (complete) $180/sem. @ 546-7672

PERSONALS

Write-in Jim Finkle for SGA President

Look who supports us: Women's Disc (Zulu), Men's Lacrosse, Women's Swim, MacKimmie, Women's and Men's Gymnastics, Men's Wrestling, Men's Swim, Men's Water Polo, Emerson, Women's Soccer, Men's Soccer, Crampton, Orchard Hill Area Gov't, Southwest Exec. Council, Northeast Exec. Council, Central Area Gov't Exec. Council, Men's Rugby. Vote for Powers/Hegeler!

Dear Amy, Happy Birthday! Rumrunners & Tommy, here you come, legally (again)! Congratulsions! Love ya, Your new sisters, Jules & Chips

Never mind the A-Train! The B-team says write in Jim Finkle for SGA President!

Amy - Happy Bday to a great roomie! We're lucky to have our poppy, Yeah! Love Didelodot Debbie

Write-in "none of the above" for SGA President - TODAY!

Don't conform to the status quo - Vote Powers - Hegeler for SGA Co-Presidents

They only wanted to be loved --- Vote Powers - Hegeler for SGA Co-Presidents

Julie
Two years of unprecedented fun life deserves my first try at a personal!
I love you, Tom

FREE: 1 year old German Shepard, good home only! Charlotte 323-6506

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Dissertations, Theses, Cases, Papers, guaranteed acceptance, low rates, Nancy 5-0392, 584-7924

RIDE NEEDED

Over Spring Break to Chicago Area drive and pay Dan 253-5369

Ride wanted to Syracuse/Cortlend for weekend of 3/11. Please help. Bonnie 546-6074

Couple needs ride to Wash DC eree 3/18 or 19 will share expenses! Flex on departure time. Call Kelley, 6-4207.

ROOMMATE WANTED

Need roomate in Brittany Menor Apt for March, April, May, June lease call 253-3588 Brian Steve $135 will talk fin.

Female wented for apertment in Cape Cod. $50 a week call 546-9617 or 546-9616

Roommate wented Belchertown Ctr 150 + utl. no pets call 323-6506

SERVICES

PAPER DUE? CAN'T WRITE? Tutor -english composition and grammar reasonable rates 6-9289

ILLUSTRATIONS done for your papers professional quality call 413-253-9848

TO SUBLET

Pert furn one bedroom apt in Cliffside $285 mo inc. option on lease 549-5689

TRAVEL

UMass Ski Club goes north
Spring Break 83 March 20-25
Stowe. Ski club capital of the East. Only $159 includes: transportation, hot tub party, beer & wine parties, 5 day lift ticket, all taxes & gratuities & much, much, more. For more info contact the UMass Ski Club Rm 430A Student Union or call 545-3437

Ride needed for two to Florida for spring break. Will share driving and expenses. Call 665-7076 eves please!

FLORIDA by van 3/19 - 27 $148 round trip wine/cheese accomodation info limited seats S.S. Van Lines 617-724-8810

WANTED

Class rings, gold and silver jewelry and coins. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant, Amherst, 256-0710

Help $50 reward for helping me by your parents unwanted second car 253-7189

Cash for your records, tapes 545-2836 (ask for Jaromir/leave message)

Extra-fine pair of used stereo speakers 500 dollar cash limit 527-5714

Drums $100 maximum spending price for 7-piece set wanted by end of March call between 6 & 9 PM 549-1342

WANTED TO RENT

2 or 3 bedroom Townhouse or Puffton to rent from June on. John 546-9139 Mike 546-9141

1 bedroom apertment for fall 1983 call Lori or debbie 546-7701

WRITE-IN

Write-in Stephen Davis for Campus Center Board of Govrnors at large

MONDAY
BACKGAMMON TOURNAMENT
$ CASH PRIZES $
- $2. entry includes free mug drawing -
- B.Y.O.B. (that's BOARD not beer!) -
- Minors Welcome -

Starts 9 pm EVERY MONDAY NIGHT

for info call Rich 665-7574

THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST

WANTED**
Southwest Resident Assistants for Fall 1983

How to Apply:
All those interested in applying must must attend an information session. R.A. applications are available at information sessions only.

Information Sessions:
Sun. March 6 7:30 pm John Adams 12th floor lounge
Mon. March 7 7:30 pm Pierpont Main Lounge
Tues. March 8 5:00 pm New Africa House Library
Tues. March 8 9:00 pm Washington 12th floor Lounge
Wed. March 9 7:30 pm Thoreau Main Lounge
(A.S.L. interpreter on hand)
Thurs. March 10 7:30 pm Coolidge 12th floor lounge

Sports

There will be an organizational meeting for anyone interested in men's Ultimate frisbee team Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the Dukes Room. More Sports on page 14.

Green leads hoopmen by Bonnies

Host URI tonight at Cage

By JIM FLOYD
Collegian Staff

Don't turn out the lights and tip up the floor in the Curry Hicks Cage just yet folks, we've still got one more game to go.

No, Saturday night's 81-72 Minuteman victory over a very good St. Bonaventure team was not the grand finale of the 1982-83 version of Cage Craziness because yes, Temple defeated the University of Rhode Island in their Atlantic Ten clash thus leaving UMass in fourth (not fifth) place in the East Division.

A fourth place finish means the Minutemen will host the fifth place finisher, URI, in the preliminary round of the Atlantic Ten playoffs tonight at 7:30 p.m. And, for UMass, being the host means playing one more game in the Cage, something the Minutemen seem to enjoy very much.

They enjoyed the home court advantage Saturday, as the top team in the West Division of the league (ahead of West Virginia) was sent away empty-handed by a combination of a fired up Minuteman attack and a boisterous capacity crowd.

Things did not look good at the outset of the contest for UMass, as the Bonnies, led by the inside-outside combination of Eric Stover and Mike Sheehey, dominated the first 13 minutes of play and forged an eight point lead at two junctures (20-12 at the 11:23 mark and 24-16 with 7:24 showing) before the Minutemen finally got going.

When the Minutemen did get going the principle operators were Edwin Green and John Hempel. The big men came to play this night and made their presence felt with a series of long and short jumpers that cut into the lead while the UMass defense responded holding the Bonnies to only four points in the last 7:24 of the half.

With just 4:36 left in the period, the Minutemen finally pulled even at 26-26 on a Hempel hoop and St. Bonaventure coach Jim O'Brien called timeout.

When play resumed St. Bonaventure's Andy Moore hit a top of the key jumper to give the Bonnies another lead, 28-26, but that would be all for the visitors in the half.

Green buried two shots in a row, Hempel banked a turnaround jumper home, Horace Neysmith got a free throw to drop, and Green converted a three point play after a nice feed from Ron Washington. The end result of this onslaught was a halftime advantage of 36-28 in favor of the local team.

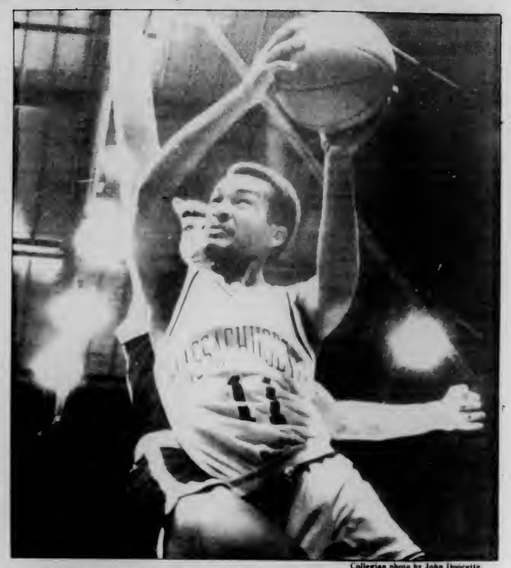
The momentum did not turn around in the second half as the UMass frontcourtmen again established their dominance, taking the ball to the hole on offense and allowing only one St. Bonaventure shot (UMass outrebounded the Bonnies 51-30) a sequence.

The lead continued to increase and, when Bobby Braun hit a turnaround jumper at the 7:37 left in the game, the margin had crept up to 17 points, 61-44. This left the Bonnies in a catch up situation which brought the Minutemen to the free throw line more than a couple of times down the stretch but, for all intents and purposes, the contest was over.

Well, over, except for the ovations and the best dunk of the season, a two-hand reverse slam by the ever-dunking Green, who received as big a cheer from the partisan crowd when he departed as Washington, the lone senior on the squad, got when he was introduced during the pre-game introductions.

The opportunity to host the first game of the playoffs will be an interesting measure of what kind of support the Minuteman fans really want to give their team because, due to NCAA regulations, an admission charge must be levied on anyone attending tonight's game. The price one must pay in order to watch two hours of Division I basketball during playoff time is $2 for students and $5 for non-students.

Regardless of the outcome of tonight's game, this will be the last game held in the Curry Hicks Cage this year, since the winner will advance to the East Division semifinal round to be held in the Spectrum in Philadelphia.



Collegian photo by John Doucette

Donald Russell drives on Eric Stover in the 81-72 Massachusetts win over St. Bonaventure Satruday night at the Cage.

MASSACHUSETTS — Neysmith 3-3-9, Hempel 8-6-22, Green 11-1-23, Russell 2-10-14, Young 0-2-2, Braun 1-0-2, Carter 3-2-8, Connors 0-0-0, Emerson 1-0-1, Washington 0-0-0. Total — 81.

ST. BONAVENTURE — Sheehey 10-1-24, Garbade 1-2-4, Stover 7-4-18, Clarke 4-0-9, Jones 2-0-4, Samuels 2-3-7, Mungar 1-0-2, Moore 1-0-2, Turner 0-0-0, Corbett 1-0-2. Total — 72.

Grapplers take fourth at New England meet

By STEVE FITZ
Collegian Correspondent

It has not been a satisfactory season for the University of Massachusetts wrestling team. They have had numerous disappointments, injuries, and bad breaks the entire season. Things didn't change when the grapplers competed in the New England Wrestling Championships at Boston University.

Going into the tournament, head coach Rick Freitas had anticipated three champions from his squad.

"In the consolation finals we were wrestling good and everything seemed to be going well," said Freitas.

UMass had three wrestlers in the championship match, but the breaks went against the Minutemen and they ended with three second place finishers.

158-pounder, John Butto, was winning his match when he twisted his ankle. The severe sprain hindered his performance for the remainder of the match and he went on to lose by decision.

Senior 167-pounder, Dave McEntee, who has finished second the past three years, lost a 5-4 decision by riding time to Jim Hanlin from Boston College. In the match Hanlin apparently faked an injury while McEntee had him in a pinning combination. The match was stopped and prevented McEntee from scoring any points. He lost to Hanlin 6-4 in the finals last year. McEntee received a bid to go to the NCAA Championships in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma next week.

Scott McQuaide lost to Boston College's John Murner 9-5 in the 177-pound final. McQuaide had beaten Murner previously at a dual meet.

Marc Weisman took third for UMass at 118 pounds and Brian O'Boyle took third at 126 pounds. O'Boyle finished the season with more than 20 wins.

Mike Rodgers pinned Boston College's 190-pounder to capture third place in the 190-pound class.

UMass finished fourth overall in the tournament.

"We came out of the tournament with a lot of respect," said Freitas.

"Next year we have leadership back in Butto and McQuaide plus a legitimate shot at eight to ten state high school champs from Massachusetts," said Freitas.

Women hoopsters downed

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

UNIVERSITY PARK, PENN. — It was a gallant effort, but the University of Massachusetts women's basketball team could not contend with the offensive and defensive power of the Penn State Nittany Lions and bowed 92-53 in the Atlantic Ten basketball playoffs Friday at Rutgers University.

Massachusetts played well at all times but Penn State just overwhelmed the Minutewomen. Penn State was led by sophomore Kahadeejah Hebert, who scored 16 points and grabbed six rebounds.

But it wasn't a one person effort that did in UMass, it was the total effort of all ten Lady Lions.

Karen Damminger, who was selected to the league's All-Rookie team, gave UMass the early 2-0 lead, and after four minutes, UMass led 10-6.

But Penn State clamped down a tight press and outscored the Minutewomen 17-0 before Wendy Ward broke the drought eight minutes later. After a few more UMass hoops, the Lady Lions ran off six unanswered points to build up a 33-14 lead.

At the half, it was 48-24 and in the second half, Penn State just gradually kept rolling and could not be stopped.

While Damminger led UMass with 12 points, Nadine Jackson sank 10 points and grabbed a game high 13 rebounds. Jackson, who joined the team in mid-season had 70 rebounds in the last six games.

The loss ended the Minutewomen season which saw them finish their second consecutive losing season and first 20 loss season.

MASSACHUSETTS — Karen Damminger 5-2-12, Nadine Jackson 5-0-10, Kelly Collins 2-4-8, Wendy Ward 3-2-8, Barbara Hebel 3-0-6, Jean Cooper 1-2-4, Jerrie Bernier 1-1-3, Rebbeca Kuchs 1-0-2. Total — 53.

PENN STATE — Kahadeejah Hebert 6-4-16, Stacey Dean 6-5-17, Louise Leimkuhler 3-2-8, Cherly Ellison 3-4-10, Anne Troyan 2-1-5, Lorraine McCourt 4-4-12, Patti Longenecker 1-0-2, Joanne O'Brien 3-2-8, Brenda Larrimer 3-3-9, Carol Fultz 0-0-0, Andrea Fridley 1-3-5. Total — 92.

Women swimmers second

By BOB BROCK
Collegian Staff

NEW ROCHELLE, NY — The University of Massachusetts women's swimming team put the finishing touches on a fine season by taking second place at the first-ever ECAC Swimming and Diving Championships at Iona College last weekend.

The Minutewomen racked up 451 points, just nudging third place finisher Loyola, but were far behind meet champion, West Point, who tallied 812.

Incidently, West Point had 17 swimmers competing in the meet, compared to only eight UMass competitors, explaining the large margin of victory.

The UMass swimmers won 11 of the 16 events they entered and also scored points in each event they participated in. Like the New Englands a week earlier, the Minutewomen turned in some excellent performances. On the first night of competition, the 200 medley relay team of Anne Whitlock, Lisa Cohen, Jenn Nicolai and Liz Feinberg combined for a second place, one second behind the winner, West Point.

Five events later, Jennifer Black took a first in the 100 backstroke and after that, Nicolai and Whitlock went first and third, in the 50 free. The UMass divers, Jean Bushee and Gina Perron, then got first and second in the 1-meter diving to close out the first night's competition.

The women opened the next day's competition by winning the 200 yard free relay. Jenn Nicolai and Liz Feinberg placed first and third in the 50 butterfly, with Nicolai recording a :28.06. Anne Whitlock, Jennifer Black and Debbie Chisholm made a clean sweep in the 100 backstroke. Whitlock won the event in 1:04.44, her best of the year.

The Minutewomen also showed their strength in the 100 individual medley. All five UMass swimmers entered in the event scored points. Nicolai won 9, Feinberg placed fourth, Whitlock fifth, Cohen finished ninth and Chisholm finished 12th.

Despite the fine showing, the Minutewomen did suffer losses at this meet. Namely their belongings. While spending the day in New York City the swimmers returned to find their van had been broken into.

NUMMO NEWS

Monday March 7, 1983 Volume 11 Issue 75

NUMMO News' ONLY connection with the Massachusetts Daily Collegian is for the purpose of distribution.

Real Choices to be Made in Student Government

Highlights of the presidential contest being decided today, tomorrow
By Angela Brown

The competing presidential candidates have made keen efforts to publicize their positions on various questions, and their views of which problems are of most importance to students at UMass, over the past two weeks. However, the notion that the presidential elections are simply a battle for control of the student senate is one quickly disposed of after a look at the programs of each candidate.

This is especially true since today's electoral contenders include a woman of color, Charlene Allen, of the Allen/Ahern ticket, providing a unique opportunity for students of color to elect a SGA president with first-hand experience with issues of Third World concern. These issues necessarily underlie the candidates' deliberations.

Still, these issues were not at the forefront of most of the candidates' programs as was evident in the recent forum sponsored by the Collegian, where the presidential hopefuls debated and fielded questions from the SGA-Collegian panelists, and from the attending audience. The SGA reorganization proposal put forth by the Powers/Hegeler team was a primary subject for debate. The proposal would cut the size of the student senate by one-third, with the intention to increase the senate's "accountability", and to cut "redundant" services now provided by the SGA.

When asked whether racial division exists at UMass, their views of its effects on students, as well as possible solutions to the problem, the candidates expressed varying approaches to the issue.

"History speaks for itself" stated Ron Lipof for the Lipof/Mann team, arguing that racial division exists in general, but at UMass he noted positive experiences such as being able to attend a party at the Malcolm X Center and encountering "no hostility". But, he said "we do have it on campus." He proposed more efforts to "educate the students."

Charlene Allen, speaking for the Allen/Ahern team, said she "wished parties could make it (division) go away, or ignoring it could. But the answer is to bring it out to the point most people avoid." She said racial division has adverse effects when general problems, such as the proposed SAT standards, arise. With regard to these "issues of student concern" she said "we must create the understanding that there are common goals." Tom Ahern added that "racism is a white people's problem...we're the ones who have to address it."

Dave Groom, also a candidate, disagreed with Ahern's statement, saying "it's a two-sided problem", with "resentments" on both sides, though he gave the bulk of the responsibility to white people, and agreed on the need to address the problem.

Fran Hegeler, on behalf of the Powers/Hegeler duo, said that she concurred with the view that most people "don't recognize it is a substantial problem." She attributed division to "misunderstandings", saying "it's everybody's problem." She also supported the need for educational work to eliminate the problem.

Responses also varied to the question to how to improve student government relations with the UMass administration. Ron Lipof argued for a conciliatory approach, saying "you can't break down doors," and calling for "more give and take on each side." In Charlene Allen's view the problem is "the administration does not give us the respect we need," and that through conciliation alone "we probably won't get that kind of respect", but "...there is power in our numbers." At present "they have no particular reason to listen to our demands," she said. Dave Groom also concurred with a conciliatory approach.

S.G.A. Presidential 1983 candidates: L-R, Hegeler, Powers, Lipof, Mann, Allen and Ahern. (Groom, not appearing)
Photo by John Wright

Hopefully, through general interest of the student body, a large turn-out will be seen today and tomorrow at the election stations in the dining commons (and the student union building for commuters). It is a great opportunity to decide on student leadership affecting the entire student body.

Mount Holyoke College Charged with Discrimination

By TRACEY BRYANT

Zagloul Ayad, an ex-cook at Mount Holyoke College, is suing the South Hadley school for $600,000. The suit filed on Jan. 5, alleges that the 29 yr. old Egyptian-born cook was fired in "bad faith" - without cause or for malicious reasons.

The plaintiff said that Mount Holyoke's personnel director, Robert Moynihan accused him of kissing a Mount Holyoke student in the post office. Ayad said that in the personnel director's office he was offered $500 to sign a release form and was told that if he didn't sign the release form the alleged information would be brought to the police.

Denying the accusation, Ayad said that he refused to resign and asked for a signed or unsigned statement of time and date from the female student.

Failing to produce the document, the school dropped the claim, but fired Ayad anyway providing no written or stated indication of cause. The school has refused to comment on the case at all.

Zagloul Ayad feels that discrimination was the cause of his dismissal. He said that while working at Mt. Holyoke College he was subject to many questions, comments and innuendos containing racist, anti-Muslim misperceptions about the non-western world. Mr. Ayad said that when he refused to resign, the personnel director told him that he was going to call Immigration to make sure that Ayad was deported back to his country. He is married to an American citizen and is a legal resident of this country.

Ayad said that during the same meeting there was a conversation as follows between himself and Mr. Moynihan:

Moynihan: You're Arabic, right?
Ayad: Yes, I am.
Moynihan: You're a Muslim, right?
Ayad: Yes, I am.
Moynihan: You're dangerous. The people around here are afraid of you. Being a Muslim allows you to have several women, but we're not going to allow that here, because it's not a jungle here.

I would advise you to take this money and keep your mouth shut. We've been in court several hundred times and we've won every case. You don't have the money to fight against Mt. Holyoke. Mt. Holyoke has billions of dollars and contact with government authorities.

Ayad replied: "I'll try to ask for justice."

Ayad told us that later a conversation transpired between the lawyers of both parties. During this conversation Mt. Holyoke's lawyers offered Mr. Ayad $1,000 and a good recommendation if he did not bring his case to court. George M. Nassar of Springfield, the plaintiff's lawyer told the Mt. Holyoke lawyers that Mr. Ayad refused to take the money.

Mt. Holyoke College is counter-suing on the claim that Ayad is simply attempting to discredit the school and make it pay undue amounts of money. The college is asking that Mr. Ayad pay the school $500,000 plus $30,000 in legal fees. The school is also asking that the court prevent Mr. Ayad from taking his suit any further.

Mt. Holyoke has provided the court with no reason for Mr. Ayad's dismissal. According to Ayad the school has also attempted to cut off his umemployment benefits.

Roving Reporter . . .

We asked students to respond to prof. Wilce's recent trip to South Africa.

Question:

What do you think about UMass Professor Wilce, from the Botany departments recent trip to a South African conference?

photos by Barron Roland

Answers:

Auturo Catapang: "I object to the fact that we are using university funds to support such activity. Something like this should be brought to the attention of the campus before the trip."

Bernard Q. Wilder: "I'd like to know more about the trip and the university's involvement. It's hard to make a judgement because we don't know id he went there for good or bad."

Guatemala's new policy: "Beans and Guns"

First in a two-part series

By STEVEN O'HALLORAN

The war in Guatemala is becoming increasingly complex under the rule of self-proclaimed president General Efrain Rios Nomtt. Former president General Romeo Lucas Garcias simply killed his opponents and dismissed critics of his brutal regime as "communists." As a result, his regime became extremely isolated internationally. The current Rios Montt government, however, combines an extensive counter-insurgency campaign and massacres reaching genocidal proportions with psychological warfare. The government is also waging a sophisticated propaganda campaign aimed at attracting both domestic and international support. The steps taken by the government were first delineated in a National Security and Development Plan following the March 23, 1982 coup that bought Rios Montt to power. This plan in turn is an adaptation of a 420 page U.S. counter-insurgency plan called "Program of Pacification and Eradication of Communism."

Destroying the revolutionary movement and all of its support systems is still the primary goal of government policy in Guatemala. Estimates of the number of mostly indigenous Campesinos (peasants) massacred range from Amnesty International's figure of 2,600 in three months to the Guatemanan Patriotic Unity Committee (CGUP) figure of 8,000 in six months. The CGUP further estimates that an average of four people are killed each hour by government forces. Over 200 communities have been completely destroyed. Many aspects of Indian culture are disintegrating as families are killed and survivors are forced to leave their land, often shedding their traditional clothing to avoid being identified and killed.

Beans and Guns

Rios Montt's military strategy, however, is not limited to massacres and a scorched earth policy. Known as "beans and guns," the strategy was aptly interpreted by a Guatemalan officer to mean "if you're with us we'll feed you, if not, we'll kill you." In an attempt to win the "hearts and minds" of the rural population, civic action programs are being planned and food distributed by the army in conjunction with evangelical churches. Most of the food comes from U.S. Agency for International Development (AID) funds and UN relief money.

The food has a high price however: government support and collaboration food is desperately needed though, because the army burns all crops in its path and does not allow people to plant, on the grounds that they will supply the guerrillas with food.

In order to receive food, campesinos must participate in public works projects, often rebuilding highways necessary for troops movement and building model or "luxury" villages as the government calls them. Guatemala's displaced population is forcibly relocated by the government into "model villages" equivalent to strategic hamlets used by the U.S. in Vietnam to control the population. A military officer recently told New York Times correspondent Marlise Simons, "We take the villages, put them under protection and keep them under our control."

Evangelical ministers, whose numbers in Guatemala have increased by 18 percent since born-again Christian Rios Montt took power, distribute food in the villages. They also preach about the evils of communism and the necessity of obeying and respecting the army and government. Operation Lovelift, part of Gospel Outreach of Eureka, California, is in charge of the food distribution and village construction. Gospel Outreach is the U.S. parent of the Church of the Word sect that Rios Montt belongs to.

THe most insidious way that campesinos are used in the strategic hamlets is through their forced participation in "peasant militias." These militias, or "civil defense patrols," as they are also called, are paramilitary bands used by the army to fight guerrillas. Soldiers dressed as civilians and former military personnel are the main participants in and leaders of the militias. After clashes between the militias and guerrilla units, the army claims that the guerrillas are attacking the civilian population. However, refugees have unanimously stated that the army, not the guer-

Update on South Africa's World-Wide Isolation

South Africa Solidarity Committee

Playing Cricket with Apartheid

In mid-January, 15 West Indian cricketers arrived in Johannesburg to start a twelve month tour of South Africa. Local papers report that this smuggling operation involved months of secret negotiations, and will reportedly cost well over $3 million dollars. In London, Sir Shridath Ramphal, Secretary General of the Commonwealth association of former British colonies, said "South Africa's need to spend fortunes on pirate tours proved that the Gleneagles Agreement barring sporting contacts was working and hurting." (Rand Daily Mail, 1/14/83). Immediately upon their arrival in South Africa, several of the athletes were expelled for life from their respective cricket governing bodies, including the Jamaican Cricket Board. The Prime Minister of Jamaica, Edward Seaga promised the strongest action against the three Jamaicans on the tour, saying "We cannot condone anyone who collaborates with the architects of a regime based on racial divisions."

Subsequently, the Foreign Minister announced that the three would be permanently excluded from playing in Jamaica, emphasizing that by violating the boycott the cricketers "have demonstrated their support for South Africa's policy of apartheid." (Morning Star, London, 1/15/83). Later, it was learned that West Indies cricket captain Clive Lloyd had turned down large sums of South African money, saying "There is no way I could go there under the present system . . . the money is very tempting, but that is not all in life."

Michigan divests

On his last day in office, New Year's Day, the Republican Governor of Michigan, William Milliken, signed into law an amendment to the state's Civil Rights Act, a measure which requires all state universities to sell their shares in any company which does business in South Africa.

The Ford Motor Company, which operates a large car assembly plant at Port Elizabeth, South Africa, actively opposed the action. The effort was co-ordinated by the Michigan State Coalition Against Apartheid.

Southern Africa Solidarity Committee

Malcolm X Center: An organization meeting student needs

By RUSSEL D. JORDAN

On March first, Mike Nauls, co-director, with Philip Pasley, of the Malcolm X Center, gave an interview to Nummo News. In his interview, Mr. Nauls outlined the various important roles the Malcolm X Center fulfills in Black students' lives here at the University.

"We are thought of as being primarily a social organization, but our efforts are being geared towards fulfilling the academic needs of Black students as well." In keeping with that effort, the staff at the Malcolm X Center is working with Earl Brown, one of the original founders of the Malcolm X Center, and CCEBMS (The Committee for the Collegiate Education of Black and other Minority Students) office at the New Africa House, in designing courses that are of Third World interest and in making people aware of and educating people about the affects of racism on Third World students and on society at large. The Malcolm X Center is also instituting a policy of having the Center open for study hours only, Sunday through Thursday, from 6:00 p.m. to 10:00 p.m. "During these time periods the television will be off and the pool table and ping-pong table will not be in use," said Mr. Nauls. "We want to provide students with a quiet, pleasant atmosphere conducive for studying."

Mr. Nauls stressed that "the cooperation" that exists between the various Black and Third World organizations on campus is a key to the success of running a "smooth, flexible organization." Mr. Nauls continued by saying that, "several of us are involved with various organizations and fulfill several different roles in those organizations." When questioned as to whether this was the result of a lack of a large enough staff or of the existing staff's enthusiasm, Mr. Nauls responded that it was, "a little of both." "We find that by doing this we form an invaluable, interconnected information network."

Mr. Nauls stressed the need for incoming freshmen to make a commitment to join an organization. "Too often students feel that if they get involved with an organization, their grades will suffer." Mr. Nauls, who is a Junior Accounting major, recommended that students design their studies around their commitments. "The key is to get involved early, so that it will become a part of your regular pattern of life at the University," Mr. Nauls said. While stating that students have a responsibility to preserve the institutions that were initiated by the "courageous actions" of "brothers and sisters" back in the late 60's and early 70's, "it is up to us to make our organizations attractive to Black and Third World students," Mr. Nauls said. "It's true students need to be more politically conscious, but we have to appeal to the students and not vise-versa. Toward that end we are hoping to establish some sort of method by which academic credit can be obtained for work with an organization." Mr. Nauls cited Drum magazine as an example of an organization that is also an academic course. [Drum magazine is a publication of the Third World students of the University of Massachusetts that receives international distribution.] Mr. Nauls continued by saying, "we are now working on getting tutors to instruct students at the Center as well as the New Africa House." "In short," Mr. Nauls said, "you can always criticize, but it's important to reach the students."

"We are hoping to design, in cooperation with CCEBMS, an information packet that can be handed out to incoming freshmen, concerned with making students aware of the various Third World organizations on campus. Our goal is to create organizations with a strong academic commitment and a comfortable cultural and social atmosphere." Mr. Nauls urges all interested students to contact him at: 545-2819.

The Malcolm X Center was formed in the late 60's by ten students. Some of these early pioneers for Black representation on campus are still active with the organizations they inspired. The Malcolm X Center's hours of operation are: Sunday thru Friday, noon to 11:00 p.m. and Saturday noon to 3:00 a.m. Study hours are Sunday thru Thursday 6:00 p.m. to 10:00 p.m.

Mr. Nauls also said a social function was taking place next week. On Friday, March 11 starting at 9:00 p.m., the Malcolm X Center is sponsoring a "Fun-N-Games Tournament of Champions". The tournament will feature games of ping-pong, pool, spades, uno and acey-deucey. The Malcolm X Center is located in the Southwest residential area. There is a 50 cent entry fee and refreshments will be served.

Photos by John Wright

Malcolm X Center co-coordinators Michael Nauls and Phil Pasley.

Norma Galo speaks on women and the Nicaraguan revolution

By BRENDA LING and ROXANNA BELL

The Nicaraguan revolution was not simply an ideological revolution, said Norma Galo last Wednesday night. The Eastern Managua activist stressed this as key to understanding the popular struggle against injustices committed by the Somoza government. In the people's striving to rid themselves of government oppression, religion helped to force along this powerful, successful movement.

Nicaraguan people have had a long history of colonization, violation, and exploitation, continuing into the twentieth century. "The history of Nicaragua is a painful story, the same as Guatemala and El Salvador," she said. Yet the people "have been going through the difficult and arduous process" of liberating themselves from pervasive oppression. The Fuerzas de Liberacion Nacional (FSLN) embodies this struggle by working to spread consciousness and to spark participation. Religion was used as an educational vehicle to raise the consciousness of the masses.

The participation of women in the struggle for self-determination in Nicaragua was also very important and significant. As Galo explained, "the Nicaraguan women stood behind their children in the struggle to build a new society, one that is religious and revolutionary as well." Galo mentioned women's very active role in different community-based committees, for example, the high participation of women in health-related fields, their visiting patients, helping to tend the ill, etc. Consequences of this increase in access to health care may be reflected in the fact that since the revolution, there has been no polio: this is also inand improved educational literacy campaigns. The FSLN is dedicated to the people of Nicaragua as the first priority.

"Our land has been threatened by the powerful, divided by the powerful, and now our people are in search of unity...and now the world is preoccupied with our problem — we cannot work in peace in the light of this preoccupation — we want to be left in peace."

Photo by Ed Cohen

Sugar Ray Leonard discusses upcoming career plans during "Sportsnight '83" in Chicopee last Monday evening. The event was a benefit for Sunshine Village.

Laughter And Realism In Area Production

By Roxanna Bell

As the sixth season of the Third World Theater Series progresses, so does their success

During the next showings of "Los Vendidos" and "Day of Absence", which will be playing next Thursday 10, Friday 11 and Saturday 12 in Hampden Theater, both a one act show, I am sure the people who will go and see these performance will be marveled and amused by the fantastic acting by area performers.

"Los Vendidos"

"Los Vendidos" written by Luis Valdez, is a satirical look at Mexican stereotypes. The characters all represent the 'common' image of the Mexican. From the quick minded, fast-talking Sancho (played by Jose Orlando Boul, the owner of the shop, to Governor Reagan's secretary, Ms. Jimenez,(Ms Gimmenes, as it is correctly pronounced in English!), (played brilliantly by Christina Arcese), all the characters bring out those qualities that make a Mexican what he or shesupposed to be.

As the set opens we see the Governor's secretary in search of a suitable Mexican model to make the Governors' collection of minorities complete. She is in search of that model which represents all the 'good honest Mexican-American qualities'. Sancho shows her all the types of models that he has, but they all seem to have something wrong with them. For example, the " Farm Worker" model (played by Isabella Ruposo), who is discribed as close as you can get to the ground , who picks anything from cotton to watermelons and is cheap to have, and who lives on one plate of beans and tortillas a day, is not exactly what the Govenor's office has in mind. To the secretary, this model is too 'Mexican'. The second model she is shown is the typical "Street Hood", Johnny Pachuco (played by Jose Joaquin Santiago Nunez).

He can survive in any city, is completely bilingual and is very economical too, he can live on hamburgers and beer and you can maintain him happy with a good supply of Mota (pot) and any glue that is sniffable. He also comes equipped with his own inferiority complex and can be used as your everyday scapegoat. But, the only bad quality that he has is stealing to survive. He too is rejected by the secretary because as she states, "we can't have any more thieves in the administration".

The "Standard Revolutionary" (played by Roberto Montano-Bosque), is the next model she is shown. He is discribed as the hero/martyr type. Has fought with and for all the causes there can be. He is also handsome and agile, good for commercials and very good with the ladies! The Standard Revolutionary model is a genuine antique made in Mexico. This was almost like a slap in the face to Ms. Gimmenes, at which she responds, "it's more important to be an American made product."

When all hope seems to have vanished, Sancho shows his very latest model, "The New 1970 Mexican-American" (played by Ruben M. Ortiz-Rivera). He is the cream of the crop. Completely bilingual, college educated, able to function on any board, a political machine and loves America. Yet this model is not so economical, it lives on dry martinis and has Mexican food only on festive occassions. The Mexican-American model will obey at the snap of a finger. This is the ideal model for the Govenor's collection.

The play takes on a big turn. The ideal Mexican-American is no longer the dream model, after he is payed for, he revels and instead of praising America, he exclaims, "Viva La Raza", "Viva La Causa"!! The secretary wants her money back, but, this wasn't a money back guarantee deal!

"Day of Absence"

What would happen if one day all the Black people of a small Southern town disapeared?

What actually happens is complete choas filled with halirious satire.

In this play, written by Douglas Turner Ward, all the characters are Black but have a made-up white face, sort of like the reverse of the old minstrals. The disappearance of the Black people turned the whole town topsy turvy. From the daily home routines to work in the factories, and even in their daily leisure routines, Blacks were a major part of the whites lives. In the home of John (played by Steve Jones) and Mary (Ynez Boyd), the absence of Lulu, their domestic servant, forces Mary to face the daily duties of a real housewife, which she is not prepared to deal with and dosen't have the slidest idea how to begin.

Mean while, in the Town Hall, the Mayor is faced with this state of emergency and is desparate for a quick solution. He initiates a search party to find 'them Negroes', mobilized a citizen watch committee, but to no avail. There is not 'one single Negroe to be found in the whole darn town, not even the faithfull Uncle Toms'. The Mayor is even considering bringing in Negroes from their neighboring counties, just for the day.

By this time the whole town is in complete chaos. The white people protest against this situation by showing that they have been 'fair' to 'them Negroes'.

Even the Grand Wizard of the Imperial Klan protests because eventhough the Klan has always wanted the Negroes out of the U.S., but only "when we say so, and not before!"

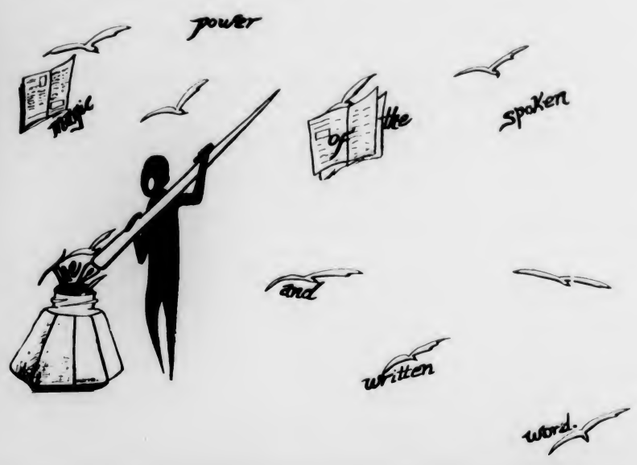
The town Mayor appears on national television were he implore the Negroes to come back home were they belong. He begs them on bended knee to come back. But nothing. No Negroes.

The day of absence is no more. For next morning, life is the same as always, well almost!

Both plays are wonderfuly directed, produced and performed. Everyone should see them!!!

Photo by Chris Hardin

Koko Taylor put the Blues back in the Blue Wall last Saturday night, as part of the "Blues in the Blue Wall" concert series.



Se desmoraliza el Ejercito del Salvador

This article is reprinted from last week, due to the high number of errors in last week's version. Apologies to our Spanish speaking readers, however, please note that we need more of your support to avoid future problems. Thank You for reading NUMMO.

Por MIGUEL CEVASCO
CINDY VELAZQUEZ

La ciudad de Suchitoto ha estado sitiada por las guerrillas desde Feb. 11, 1983. El Gobierno ha estado mandando ayuda militar por medio de helicopteros y ha havido una lucha constante en las calles de Suchitoto.

Suchitoto con una población de 6,000 personas, a 27 millas al norte del Salvador, es el puerto mas importante al norte de la capital, pues esta tiene dos proyectos hidroeléctricos que suplen más del la mitad de la energía eléctrica del Salvador.

El ejercito salvadoreno está confundido respecto al proxima paso a tomar, debido a la ocupacion de Berlin por las fuenzas guerrilleras. La operacion militar en grande escala ha sido completamente inefectiva contra las guerrillas del frente de Liberacion Nacional Farabundo Martí. Los consejeros norteamericanos han criticado las tacticas ulitzadas, y han empujado al ejercito a utilizar pequenas unidades de patrullas para combatir las guerrilllas, esto le ha dado mas sentido de inseguridad a los comandantes del ejercito.

El ejercito del Salvador has creado una dependencia tal en el entrenamiento de los batallones del ejercito en Estados Unidos, que estos no pueden combatir a menos que sea junto a estos batallones. Con mas del 60% de las tropas enlistadas y on un entrenamiento irregular, el espiritu del ejercito se ha ido al piso, despues del ultimo ataque de las guerrillas en Berlin.

Despues de tomar 293 prisioneros del ejercito salvadoreno, entre octobre y diciembre de 1982, y 153 soldados el pasado mes de enero, prodemos decir que la politica de las guerrillas de tomar prisioneros ha sido efectiva.

Photo by Ed Cohen

Sedric Napoleon and "Michelle" of Pieces of a Dream sing "If This World Were Mine" Friday night at Smith College.

A Dream Come True

by Donna Davis

Friday evening at Smith College three rising black stars from Mt. Airy Pennsylvania performed for an overwhelmed audience. Known as Pieces of a Dream they stunned spectators with jazz and contemporary music. With only three members the group displayed its versatility and talent. Curtis Harmon was on drums, James Lloyd on the keyboard and an amazing Sedric Napoleon on bass. Mr. Lloyd, a sweet eighteen, proved that age is not a factor in creativity, talent is all that matters.

The group performed their own music as well as material by Grover Washington Jr., Luther Vandross and Cheryl Lyn. To add a feminine touch, "Michelle", also of Pennsylvania showcased her vocal abilities. She scatted and managed to seductively cajole Mr. Napoleon into submission. Highlights of Friday evening's performance include; "The Easy Road Home", the mellifluous "Pieces of a Dream", and of course, "Mt. Airy Groove." The latter song inspired various members of the audience to become actively involved.

Friday's performance was probably the last time one will be able to see this promising group for the bargain price of $6, therefore a special thank you goes out to those involved in the Black Arts Festival and to Ms. Lorna McAllister, coordinator of the show.

Third World Theater Series

On March 10, 11, and 12 at 8 p.m. in Hampden Theater in Southwest, UMass, the second production of the Third World Theater Series of the University of Massachusetts, Amherst will be a presentation of two satirical comedies, "Day of Absence" by Douglas Turner Ward and "Los Vendidos" by Luis Valdez. Both plays take a comic look at stereotypes of southern Black Americans and Mexican Americans.

Workshop – March12, 4:00 to 5:00 p.m. Hampden Theater, UMass

Workshop – March 12, 4-5:00 p.m. Hampden Theater, Umass

Geroge Bass, associate professor of Theater and Afro-American studies at Brown University, and director of theater company "Rites and Reason" will present a lecture entitled "Art, Reality, and the Sacred Rite of Being in the Afro-American Adventure."

Workshop – April 16, 1:30-3:00, Smith College, Green Room

Ernest Abuba of Pan Asian Reperatory will present a workshop entitled "Introduction to Asian-American Theater: Acting Workshop".

Play April 16, 8:00 p.m., Bowker Auditorium, UMass

Pan Asian Reperatory will present the runaway hit of 1982 New York Season "Yellow Fever", by R.A. Shiomi.

Workshop April 26, 2:00-3:30 p.m., Hampden Theater, UMass

Workshop: "Make-up for Non-White Actors", Kiki Smith, costume designer at Smith college, will show film strip and lead workshop.

Workshop May 3, 1:30-3:00 p.m., Hampden Theater, UMass

Patricia Gonzalez, professor of Spanish at Smith College will present a lecture and slide presentation entitled "Latin American Teatro Nuevo" (Latin American New Theater) about the development and technique of the popular theater movement in Latin America.

Workshop May 10, 1:30-3:00 p.m., Hampden Theater, UMass

Topic: "American Indian Theater" a discussion workshop by Hana Geiogamah, playwright and director of Native American Theater Ensemble.

For further information call 545-0190. All workshops are free, Theater performances are $2-students, $3-general.

HEALTH

This article is part of a Health series that Nummo News will be running. We hope it will be of service.

"Cancer"

By MASHERILL FANT

The simplest definition for cancer is "an uncontrollable growth of abnormal cells." In the past, a diagnosis of cancer was considered synonymous with an invalid life or death. Today, early detection and advanced technology have given remarkable hope to cancer victims.

Cancer strikes all ages and all races; however, death rates are higher among Blacks. This is because cancer is usually diagnosed in the later stages among Blacks, thus it is extremely important to have an annual physical. The four most common cancers among women are breast, colonrectal, uterine, and lung. The most common cancers among men are lung, colonrectal, and prostate.[1]

Breast cancer continues to cause more deaths among women than any other cancer. Black women have the highest death rate due to breast cancer, mostly because of late diagnosis. Sisters, it is very important that we learn and practice breast self-examination (BSE).

Lung cancer continues to cause more deaths among men than any other cancer and it has moved from fourth to third place among cancers causing death in women. Research has proven that cigarette smoking is responsible for 80 percent of all lung cancer and that 90 percent of all lung cancer victims will not survive. Despite this tragic data, a recent study reported that there has been an increase in the number of Black women smokers and that urban Black men are much more heavier smokers than White men.[2] Brothers and sisters, please think twice before you light your next cigarette.

For additional information about cancer you may contact University Health Services or call this toll free number 1-800-952-7420, the Cancer Information for Massachusetts.

SOURCES

1. American Cancer Society
2. Cancer, July 1, 1982, 50(1):180-6.

Walter Davis, Jr. with Archie Shepp in last Friday's "Solos and Duos" concert. Photo by Chris Hardin

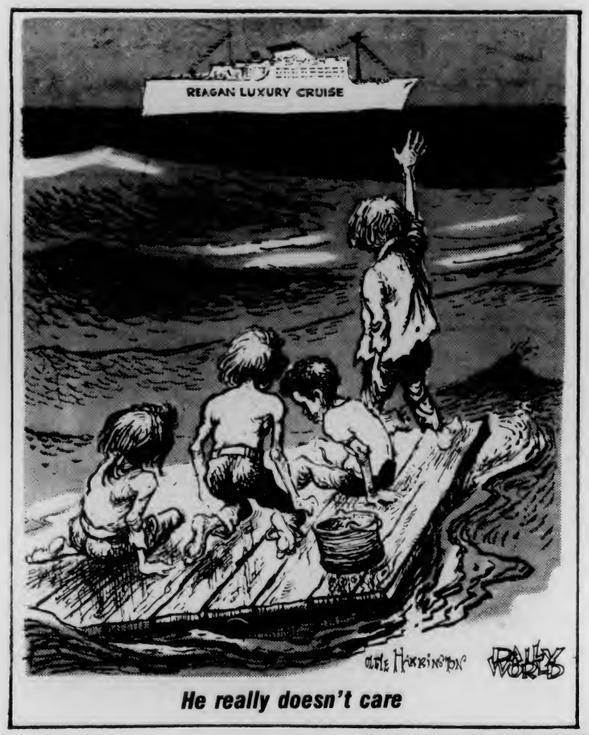
Films on the Asian-American Experience

March 11, 1983 at 7:00 p.m. the film "Mitsuye and Nellie" will be shown in the Anacanoa Center, located in the basement of Dwight House-UMass campus. The film concerns the experiences of the early Chinese and Japanese immigrants in America. Also the life of Japanese in Internment Camps in WWII. An open discussion will follow the film. Sponsored by Racism Awareness Program, Northeast/Sylvan areas.

Join the 3rd World Caucus

There will be a 3rd World Caucus meeting on Mon., March 9th at 6:00 p.m. in the Office of Third World Affairs. Rm. 318 SUB.

For more info: call the OTWA at 545-2517
All are invited.



He really doesn't care

Continued from page 2

rillas, are massacreing the people and that the "peasant militias" are largely comprised of soldiers disguised as civilians.

Controlling the population is not the only justification for building the model villages. Rios Montt hopes that the reconstruction necessary after the destruction of thousands of homes will facilitate foreign loans to "rebuild" the highlands. This is expected to reactivate the economy and help alleviate the employment problem by providing jobs in construction. Similarly, the government plans to carry out an extensive reforestation program to replace the forests burned down by the army.

The Economy

Despite these grandiose plans, the Guatemalan economy is in a shambles. International reserves have dropped to $100 million and the deficit in the balance of payments jumped to $592 million. Rios Montt recently stated that the country is facing "the worst moral, political, economic and social crisis in its history." Accusing the private sector of moral corruption and incompetence, Rios Montt is seeking foreign capital, especially through investment in oil, Guatemala's richest and most marketable resource. Regulations concerning foreign oil exploration were recently modified in favor of investors and a new contract was signed with Texaco to explore 40,000 acres in the Peten.

The private sector is divided around many issues including a possible devaluation of the Quetal, equivalent to the dollar for the last fifty years. Industrialists and the government oppose such a move since it would be tantamount to admitting that the country is facing an economic crisis. Devaluation is favored by the agricultural sector and associates of former president Lucas Garcia who have already taken most of their money out of the country and have less to lose. In general, the private sector is not happy with Rios Montt but tolerates the regime because the counter-insurgency program is its only hope for maintaining the system of massive exploitation of the workforce and of Guatemala's natural resources.

Max Roach & Jazz Ensemble to perform March 8

Members of the University of Massachusetts music faculty will perform the second concert of an American Music Festival at Bezanson Recital Hall in the Fine Arts Center on Tuesday, March 8, at 8:00 p.m. The all-jazz concert will feature solo percussionist Max Roach and the University Chamber Jazz Ensemble. Ensemble members, along with Roach, are Fred Tillis, saxophone; David Sporny, trombone; Jeff Holmes, trumpet and piano; and Salvatore Macchia, bass. Admission to the event is free of charge.

The program will feature jazz works composed by Roach, Tillis, Holmes, Macchia, Duke Ellington, Clifford Brown, and Charlie Parker.

Max Roach, one of the handful of drum masters in the history of jazz, has survived changes in style and fashion to remain one of the great percussionists of our time. He first came to prominence in the 1940's and 1950's as a pioneer of the bebop revolution along with jazz giants Charlie Parker, Dizzy Gillespie, Miles Davis, Clifford Brown, and Bud Powell. The innovative rhythms of bebop demanded a radical change in drumming, a free-flowing explosion that made the drummer an intricate part of the ensemble. A major body of classical jazz recordings made by Roach and many other prominent artists is a part of the legacy which documents his contribution to the field. Since 1972, Roach has been a professor in the Afro-American Music and Jazz Studies Program at the University of Massachusetts.

Fred Tillis is a composer and performer with over sixty-five compositions to his credit, spanning both the jazz and classical traditions. Among his commissions are vocal, chamber, and orchestral compositions. His works have been performed at Carnegie Hall and recorded on the Serenus and Columbia Record labels. He performs regularly with the Valley Big Band and at colleges and cultural institutions in the area. He is Director of both the Fine Arts Center and the Afro-American Music and Jazz Studies Program at the University of Massachusetts.

American Music Festival, presented by the Department of Music and Dance, is a three-concert series of twentieth-century American chamber music. The final concert in the series will take place on Tuesday, April 12, with a program of works by Macchia, Robert Stern, and Aaron Copland. The series is also being presented in Boston. For further information, call the music department at 545-2227.

J R Mitchell keeping the beat at the S U B last Friday Photo by Chris Hardin

BMCP presents "Future Communicators — Our Goals and Missions"

A one-day conference workshop & luncheon, Thursday March 10, 1983, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. CC 905.

Workshops:

Eric Reid (National Jazz Network) The opportunities for African-Ams in cable radio owning/managing your own cable radio station.

Kari Njiiri (Engineer) Perspectives on local public radio broadcasting.

Dr. David DuBois (Afro-Am) What can be done to change the image/perception of 3rd World people in this country and abroad through news writing/reporting.

Rick Scott Gordon (Springfield Enquirer) How to start your own newspaper & the need for more 3rd World publications.

Karen Thomas (Springfield Daily News) Black reporter at a white-owned newspaper.

If you or your organization would like to attend please call BMCP by Wednesday at 3 p.m. to confirm how many will be attending.

The W.E.B. DuBois Department of Afro-American Studies, the Department of English, and the Women's Studies Program at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst present a lecture by Nancy Morejon, Distinguished Cuban Poet and Essayist on "Cuban Poetry Since the Revolution; A Focus on Nicolas Guillen"

Wednesday, March 9, 1983 at 4 p.m., Rm 311-15 New Africa House, University of Massachusetts at Amherst, free and open to the public.

Nancy Morejon is one of Cuba's best-known poets and essayists. Born in Havana in 1944, Morejon is an editor at the Cuban Writers' and Artists' Union (UNEAC), where she works with poet Nicolas Guillen. Her poems appear frequently in Cuban periodicals and are collected in the books Mutismos (1962), Amor, Ciudad Atribuida (1964), Richard trajo su flauta (1967), Parajes de un epoca (1979), and the anthology Poemas, selected with a prologue by Mexican poet Efrain Huerta (1980). She is the author of Nacion y mestizaje en Nicolas Guillen (1980) and other studies of Cuba's national poet, and of translations of such Antillean poets as Aime Cesaire, Jacques Roumain, Rene Depestre, Paul Laraque, and Anthony Phelps. Like Guillen, Nancy Morejon views all the Antilles, whether colonized by Dutch, Spanish, English, French, Danish or Swedes, as united by the common African heritage and the shared historical experiences of slavery, colonialism and neocolonialism. Guillen's poem "Viva Nancy!" (1972) is dedicated to Nancy Morejon.

Nancy Morejon

Announcements

Malcolm X Center in Southwest is open during the following times:

Sunday, 12 p.m. - 11 p.m.
Monday, 12 p.m. - 10 p.m.
Tuesday, 12 p.m. - 11 p.m.
Wednesday, 12 p.m. - 11 p.m.
Thursday, 12 p.m.- 11 p.m.
Friday, 12 p.m.- 11 p.m.
Saturday, 12 p.m. - 3 p.m.

Support Group for Underemployed Women

A suport group for underemployed women will be offered at Everywoman's Center beginning Tuesday, February 15 from 7 to 9:00 p.m. Meeting for eight sessions, the group will focus on what underemployment is/isn't, coping with the stresses of underemployment, and helping individuals to feel comfortable with their present life circumstances in light of the current American economic scene.

This support group will be facilitated by Gerda Kunkel and is free and confidential. Please contact the Everywoman's Center at 545-0883 to sign up for the group or for more information. Childcare will be provided upon request.

Western Massachusetts Latin American Solidarity Committee

meets on alternating Mondays & Tuesdays every week. The next meeting will be on Tuesday Mar. 8, 6 p.m., Community Collective Office, SUB.

Southern African Solidarity Committee will have a meeting Wednesday Mar. 9 at 4:00 p.m. in the Office of Third World Affairs. All are welcome.

Proxima Reunion de Ahora

Martes 8 de Marzo a las 7:30 p.m. en el 801 del Campus Center. Importante: Asistan Todos.

International Womens Event

March 7-8 1983

Monday - March 7

2:00 Poetry reading, Rm 163, Schyleen Qualls'
:00 Film, Rm 162-75, "Babies and Banners"
:00 Film, Rm 162-75, "Mitsuye and Nellie"
.00 Film, Rm 162-75, "Hard Work"
4:00 Film, Rm 162-75, "Straight Talk about Lesbians
5:00 Film, Rm 162-75, "Double Day"
6:00 Film, Rm 162-75, "N!ai, the Story of a !Kung Woman"
7:00 Film, Rm 162-75, "Three Sisters"

Tuesday - March 8

All day Campus Center Festivities
9:00 Workshop, Rm 905-09, "Women Finding Their Own Voice"
11:00 Workshop, Rm 101, Martial Arts Demonstration
12:00 New Harmony Sisterhood Band — Concourse
1:00 Workshop, Rm 811-15, "Women in Labor Unions"
2:00 Patty Larkin — Concourse
3:00 Workshop, Rm 803, "Women in the Private Realm"
8:00 Concert — Phoebe Snow — Fine Arts Center

Children's Workshops will be available Monday CC 168 and Tuesday CC 804.

Traduccion de todos los eventos al espanol, asegurada

Martin Luther King, Jr. Week Essay and Poster Contest

"Make his day a Holiday"

The planning committee for Martin Luther King, Jr. week, April 4-9 is sponsoring an essay contest in addition to the poster contest. The winning essay will be read at a candlelight vigil to be held April 4th. The deadline for poster designs is March 10th and the due date for essays is March 20th. Please submit all entries to the Student Senate, 420 Student Union Building. The prize for both the winning essay and poster will be $75.00. In the spirit of Martin Luther King, Jr. who advocated justice and equality, we encourage the entire community to take part in the poster and essay contests as well as the Martin Luther King week activities. For more information, please call 545-0341.

Northeast Regional Student Anti-Apartheid Conference

Sat. Mar. 12, 1:00 - 5:00 p.m., Amherst College, Converse Hall, Rm 207. Sponsored by the American Committee on Africa.

Southeast Asia: ASEAN & its Communist Neighbors

Panel discussion of 5-College faculty, Noah Webster lounge, Orchard Hill, Tuesday, March 8, 8 p.m. John M. Greene Hall, 584-2700, Hatfield Hall.

Announcements policy: All announcements must be submitted in writing by the Friday before date of issue.

NUMMO STAFF

ANGELA BROWN — EDITOR
TRACEY BRYANT — PRODUCTION MANAGER
BRYNNE CLARKE — LAY-OUT EDITOR
DONNA DAVIS — BUSINESS MANAGER
KEITH JOHNSON — RESEARCHER
MITRA SAMIMI — GRAPHICS EDITOR
JOHN WRIGHT — PHOTO EDITOR
LAURI NEELY AND LAURA SHANAHAN — TYPESETTERS

CONTRIBUTORS

ED COHEN — PHOTOGRAPHER
CHRIS HANDIN — PHOTOGRAPHER
RUSSELL JORDAN — CORRESPONDENT
BRENDA LING — CORRESPONDENT
RAY SANDERLIN — PHOTOGRAPHER
ROBERT TEIXEIRA — CORRESPONDENT

Minutemen thrash URI 91-74, see story p. 16

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY

Collegian

Volume CXII, Issue 91 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003 (413) 545-3500 Tuesday, March 8, 1983

Bargaining may change for unions

By BROOKE STATES
Collegian Staff

The structure of collective bargaining for unions representing workers in the state's higher educational institutions could be radically altered if the Board of Regents has its way.

General Council for the regents James E. Samels, has submitted a petition to the Massachusetts State Labor Relations Commission for a change in the current structure of negotiating contracts.

There are 16 certified and recognized classified bargaining units, union locals statewide representing University of Massachusetts employees. These are covered by 14 contracts and cover fulltime employees in all the state and community colleges, and the state universities.

According to the petition, the unions would hold elections in which workers would vote for either no unit, or one of 3 statewide units to represent them. These units would include all but workers at the medical center and medical school, and faculty and professional employees.

The petition stated that the makeup of the units would be: clerical and technical employees, maintenance and trades employees, and police officers.

In opposition to this, some of the affected unions have come up with a counter proposal; coordinated bargaining. This would require the unions to get together and decide who would sit down to negotiations with the regents and accept a master contract.

Union leaders at UMass are not happy about either proposal. The two union locals that are affected are Local 1776 of the American Federation of City County and Municipal Employees and the University Staff Association of the Massachusetts Teachers Association.

AFSCME has 1,200 members on campus and 50,000 statewide. This makes it the largest AFL-CIO union in the state according to Local 1776 President Brian Walker.

"This is a union busting move. We are not sold to the master contract proposal. Right now we have some of the strongest contract language in the state, including overtime by the day. We could lose some of our rights under a master contract," Walker said.

The USA/MTA unit also represents 1,200 people on campus, with 65,000 members in the state, said local union president Kathy Murray. The Amherst unit is the only classified one that MTA has in higher education.

"We have problems with coordinated bargaining. Though we were able to win the right to vote on the contract locally, we still must be certain that the bargaining structure protects our member's needs. The coordinated bargaining proposals we've seen aren't good enough, particularly when you consider the diverse interests of the employee groups involved," she said.

"The petition speaks for itself. We will ask the commission for a ruling. This will be a benefit to taxpayers in the state," said Samels. In the petition the rationale for the union consolidation was for "the regents to move forward on its own with the instant position to consolidate the existing fragmented and unwieldy classified bargaining unit structure," Samels said.

Collegian Photo by David Dreher

When the mud comes to campus, students know spring is not far behind, as indicated by the footprints found during yesterday's inclement weather.

Capitol rally on education draws 2,000

By RICH NANGLE
Collegian Staff

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A delegation of Massachusetts students lobbied congressmen and attended a rally on the Capitol Building steps yesterday in conjunction with National Student Action and Lobby Day.

Forty students affiliated with Students Advocating Financial Assistance (SAFA) and five United States Student Association (USSA) members were part of the crowd of two thousand at the rally. SAFA members also lobbied legislators on financial aid matters.

"There is not a lot of sympathy for continous cuts in education," said Brenda Welburn, legislative assistant to sen. Paul Tsongas, D-Mass. Welburn said the mood is generally optimistic for those who want to see Congress substantially alter President Reagan's fiscal 1984 budget.

But although the political climate seems to be more sympathetic to educational funding, there is continued support for the Solomon amendment, said William A. Blakey, aide to Rep. Paul Simon D-Ill., Chairperson of the Sub-Committee on Post Secondary Education. The Solomon amendment, which was signed into law by Reagan last year, denies financial aid to students who cannot prove they have registered for the selective service.

"(Rep. Gerald Solomon, R-N.Y.) is going to make a legislative record and the government loooks stupid," Blakey said.

With the documented 98 percent compliance for selective service registration, such a law is unnecessary since the government will only be chasing down a small minority, many of whom may not even be in college, he said.

Blakey was one of many congressmen and aides who urged students not to lobby against the Solomon amendment since pending repeal measures are not likely to pass Congress.

Rep. Barney Frank, D-Mass, who addressed the entire group, was one of a number of people on Capitol Hill who said political pressure from the constituency forced many congressmen to vote for the controversial amendment even though some of them may have been against it.

"The majority of members, if we had a secret ballot, would have voted against it," Frank said.

"The notion that sending all the eighteen-year-olds to the post office will scare the Russians is ridiculous," he said.

Although supportive of the Solomon amendment, Rep. Joseph Early, D-Mass. reiterated his strong opposition to the Reagan Administration's education cuts.

"You should go to the school of your choice through your mind, not through your pocketbook," Early said.

"Legislative victories are temporary, but strong student organizations are permanent," said Janice Fine, Chairperson of USSA at the late afternoon rally. Fine led chants and introduced speakers throughout the rally, which included Rep. Pat Schroeder, D-Colo., Silvio Conte, R-Mass., and Rep. Robert Edger, D-Pa., who has introduced legislation to repeal the Solomon amendment this year.

"There are more sacred cows grazing in (Reagan's) budget than there are in the whole country of India. We're not going to have a B-grade president and a lot of B-grade senators and congressmen turn this into a B-grade country," Schroeder said to a cheering crowd.

Inventory shows books are missing from library shelves

By JEFF POTTER
Collegian Staff

Given that an average of 1,600 books are stolen from the University of Massachusetts' libraries each year, it is not uncommon for an unsuspecting student to scan the stacks for hours looking for a volume that has been missing for years.

The last inventory completed in 1974 and covering a ten-year period, found that approximately 16,000 volumes have been lifted off the shelves since the mid-1960's, said Gordon Fretwell, associate director for public services for Goodell Library.

"About five or six percent of the collection is missing," said George Wright, deputy associate director of the University library. "We are typical of most universities in the country."

Most students who take books from the collection do so to avoid the fines, he said, adding that art and business books are the first to go. But the universities rare book collection is free from the threat of theft, he said, because they are stored in locked rooms placed under supervision.

"If a student can't find a book, we trace it and usually find it. In most cases, the book might not have been shelved properly," he said.

"Most students don't consider this stealing," Wright continued. "They plan on bringing the book back after they are through with it, but more often than not it doesn't make it back."

The University libraries are equipped with a security system that detects a strip of metal in the book binding. When this metal has not been desensitized by the check-out process, an alarm sounds when the book is taken out of the library.

"Our security system pays for itself," Wright said. The system works as a deterrent to potential thieves and detects those thieves who try to steal," he said.

"No system is unbeatable," he said. If a person really wants to steal a book, he or she will figure out a way to do so, Wright said. He added that there have been some problems with the security in the past.

The billing procedure for books that are missing or overdue starts about eight days after the library finds it missing, Betty Brace, head of the circulation and reference department said.

Students are charged a flat rate of $30 for a missing book, which includes the price of the book and a handling charge, she said.

If students fail to return books or pay bills, they may be academically withdrawn from the University by the bursar's office, Brace said.

Jeanne Kocsis of the collection and development division, the office which purchases and replaces books, said, "If a book is not in print and we cannot find a used copy, the book is withdrawn from the collection."

The library has a budget of $1.7 million to buy and replace books for the libraries, she said.

Most books can be replaced, but a lot of them have to be withdrawn from the collection, she said.

Kocsis said the problem is a matter of public access to the stacks, risking the possibility of a book getting lost versus the preservation of the collection. A book does not do any good if it sits on a shelf, she said.

World and national news

Nuclear question splits Germans

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Chancellor Helmut Kohl said Monday his election victory was a mandate for deployment of new U.S. nuclear missiles in West Germany.

But the new — and smallest — party in Parliament vowed to fight the weapons with "sit-ins, lie-ins" and other demonstrations and parliamentary maneuvers.

Kohl, the leader of the conservative Christian Democrats, and the new Green Party drew battle lines one day after the voters returned his center-right coalition with 278 of the 497 seats in the Bundestag, Parliament's lower house.

It was 22 seats more than Kohl mustered when he ousted socialist Helmut Schmidt of the Social Democratic Party in a Bundestag vote of no-confidence last October, and the center-right coalition's new majority of 59 seats was 14 more than Schmidt's center-left coalition won in 1980.

This time the centrist Free Democrats apparently lost votes to the conservatives, with whom they are now allied, while the radical Greens took support from the Social Democrats.

Although many observers believed unemployment and the economy was the chief issue in the election, Kohl told reporters the voters confirmed his promissole policy. But the Greens, a party of environmentalists and pacifists, said they were elected to oppose the missiles "within Parliament and without."

U.S. army loses fake Soviet battle

WASHINGTON (AP) — A simulated Soviet regiment has scored many victories over U.S. Army units seriously lacking "important 'go-to-war' skills" in mock battles at the National Training Center in California, officials said yesterday.

"They win many of them," said Lt. Col. Dave Mooney when asked about reports that a training regiment made up of American soldiers using Soviet tactics has outgunned U.S. Army tank and mechanized infantry outfits.

Mooney, a spokesman for the Army Forces Command which supervises training, said he did not have any scores which would reflect the margin of victory for the "Soviet" regiment.

Rules relaxed on FBI surveillance

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney General William French Smith relaxed the rules of governing FBI surveillance of domestic groups that advocate social change through violence.

The new rules, announced yesterday replace guidelines issued by Attorney General Edward Levi in 1976, which were designed to curb a series of abuses by the FBI uncovered by congressional committees.

The committees found that during the 1960's and early 1970's the FBI infiltrated anti-Vietnam War groups, civil rights groups and the women's liberation movement. The organization also conducted illegal break-ins and tried to disrupt such organizations and undermine their leaders, including Martin Luther King Jr.

Smith said the new guidelines for investigating domestic security and domestic terrorism cases, which take effect March 21, "will clarify the standards governing these investigations and reaffirm the importance of gathering criminal intelligence about violence-prone groups while retaining adequate protections for lawful and peaceful political dissent."

Digest

By the Associated Press

Pope stops at Guatemala to appeal for human rights

GUATEMALA CITY — Pope John Paul II made an impassioned appeal to Guatemala's military president yesterday to protect human life and due process of law despite his right-wing regime's war against leftist guerrillas.

The pontiff also gave the Roman Catholic Church's emphatic support to the country's large numbers of Maya-descended Indians, who often are discriminated against and abused.

Attorney General files law suit against 13 beer wholesalers

BOSTON — Attorney General Francis X. Bellotti filed a law suit yesterday against 13 beer wholesalers and a company they formed in response to the "bottle law," accusing them of illegally raising the price of beer.

The action in Suffolk Superior Court seeks more than $700,000 in penalties.

Bellotti accused the wholesalers and "Mass. CRInc." of "price fixing, boycotting, monopolization and violations" of the bottle law which took effect Jan. 17.

Glenn Aibrecht, attorney for Mass CRInc., was not immediately available for comment.

Alan L. Kovacs, an assistant attorney general, said his office requested a preliminary injunction to halt the firm's allegedly improper practices but no hearing date has yet been set.

The attorney general alleged the wholesalers established CRInc. "to exclusively conduct the business of picking up, processing, recycling refillable or non-refillable beverage containers of all types."

Today's Staff

Night Editor — Eileen Galligan
Copy Editor — Robin Mandel
Layout Technician — Steve Anderson
Photo Technician — Dave Dueber
Composition Ken Kalinowski, Maria Cahillane, Sam Levitt
Donna Estabrooks, Tracey Lang, Marianne Walsh
Laurie Frank, Donna Maurice, Gail Tanzer
Sheryl Silver, Terri Cooper, Dave Rath

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday excluding vacations, exam periods, or holidays. Subscriptions are available for $18 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Massachusetts. Postmaster: Send address changes to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003.

The
S.G.A. Escort Service
is now offering
2 credits
to it's volunteers
for more information contact:
Laura O'Shea or
Anne-Marie Maynard in
415 Student Union Building

TUESDAY
TWO FOR ONE
all liquor drinks
9 till 11
with music by
RACK-A-DISC
9 til 1 — NO COVER
THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST

SALE
Spring Preview
Tank Tops 2.95 - 5.95
Chinese Cotton SHOES Selected Styles SAVE 30-40%
Bamboo Blinds Save 20%
SALE Winter Clearance
Save up to 40%
Blouses - Skirts - Dresses
100% cotton
Turtlenecks - 6.95
Open Daily 10 am - 5:30
THE MERCANTILE
AMHERST CARRIAGE SHOPS

CARROLL TRAVEL
Service. . .
It's a tradition with us.
AIRLINE TICKETS
DOMESTIC and FOREIGN at Airport Prices
Hotel / Car Rentals / Amtrak
Cruises / Eurail
- CALL US ABOUT OUR LOW CHARTER PRICES TO EUROPE AND THE CARRIBBEAN
256-8931
15 Cowles Ln.
Amherst

Collegian Photo by David Dreher

Sue Goldschmidt, a sophomore HRTA major, passes under the shelter of the Fine Arts Center during yesterday's rainy weather.

Policemen gather to attend funeral for former chief

Funeral services will be held this morning for former University of Massachusetts police chief Alexander P. "Red" Blasko, 68, who died Saturday at Cooley Dickinson Hospital in Northampton.

Blasko who had been hospitalized after a long illness, lived at 154 Summer Street, Amherst.

"I worked under Red way back when I first came on," said director of public safety Gerald T. O'Neil.

"He was always a gentleman, really supportive of the University. It was his life. I am saddened by his death but was fortunate to have worked with such a man. I learned how to deal with people and how to get along."

A University police color guard under the direction of Sgt. Francis X. Mazzei will lead the delegation of mourners.

State police from Massachusetts, New York and Vermont as well as representatives from police forces of Amherst, Hadley and the surrounding towns, dignitaries from local judiciaries, the Massachusetts Chief of Police Association and the Western Massachusetts Chief of Police Association are expected to be part of the delegation. Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey will represent the University.

Sgt. Donald Zidik, one of five University police officers who will serve as pall bearers, said "He was certainly a fine man. As far as I'm concerned, the most dedicated University employee I knew. He helped hundreds of people. He was just that kind of man."

Blasko was born April 10, 1914, in Amherst, the son of the late Stanley and Alexandria (Sovoda) Blasko. He was educated in local schools.

In 1933 he joined the University work force as a mechanical handyman. He later became a campus electrician. In 1950, he joined the police department, one of two UMass police officers. In 1954 he was made chief of police, a position he held until retiring in 1975. At the time of his retirement, the force included 45 security personnel and support staff.

A lifelong resident of Amherst, Blasko was a member of the Massachusetts Chief of Police Association, the Norwattuck Fish and Game Club and was a communicant of St. Brigid's Church, Amherst.

In the late 1950s, he was named by University students to the Adelpha Senior Men's Honor Society.

He is survived by his wife, Ann M. (Adamitis); and five daughters, Dorothy Pascoe of Leverett, Patricia Williams of Montague Center, Nancy Stahlman of Lewisberry, Penn., Elaine Warren of Deerfield and Deborah Blasko at home.

Funeral services will be conducted at 9:15 this morning at the Douglass Funeral Home, Amherst followed by the liturgy of Christian burial at 10 a.m. in St. Brigid's Church, Amherst. Burial will be in the St. Brigid Cemetery, Amherst.

— RAY BEAUCHEMIN

Defense spending increase possibly linked to future war

By DAVID STERN
Special to the Collegian

Citing "defense budgets climbing up to the trillions of dollars," author of Roots of War, Richard Barnet told an audience last Friday at Hampshire College that large defense spending is not guaranteeing national security, but is instead increasing the likelihood of war and hurting the U.S. economy.

Barnet also spoke at Amherst College on Saturday.

Barnet's speech launched a week of student-sponsored events at Hampshire College that will culminate in a rally this Friday to try to persuade Hampshire's Board of Trustees' Finance Committee to vote to divest the college's investment portfolio of certain companies working for the military. The trustees meet this weekend.

When the Finance Committee voted down another divestment proposal last May, student's protested by occupying Hampshire's Central Records Office.

Barnet, an attorney, has served in the military and has been a Harvard research fellow. From 1960-61 he worked with the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency in Washington. He was a consultant to the Department of Defense, and is co-founder and co-director of the Institute for Policy Studies. He is co-author of Global Reach: The Power of the Multi-national Corporation.

Remarking on "how fragile is this system of war prevention that we've created", Barnet said that the existing system of national defense and security is not making people feel more secure. "The issue is what are we getting from our expenditures that we call defense," he said.

Barnet explained that despite the fact that present U.S. military spending is harming the economy, "communities cling to it." He then compared these communities to "a drunk" who "finds himself unable to get off his dependence on alcohol—even though it doesn't do him any good."

In response to a student's question on how to persuade the trustees that more weapons do not guarantee security and prosperity, Barnet suggested pointing out to them "the leading drunks now preaching temperance." He then explained that people once lodged in the military machinery are now speaking out against it.

He said that the manipulation of society by the Pentagon and President Reagan to spend billions of dollars on defense "depends on a level of acquiescence from citizens." "This is a time," barnet stressed, in which "we should be asking ...demanding...what it is that justifies this expenditure."

He warned that what happened in Germany in World War II proved that a "fundamentally irrational" system can take root because people do not oppose it.

Lobbyists await decision

By PAUL BASKEN
Collegian Staff

A bus carrying 50 local people and the signatures of 3,000 more left last night for Washington to lobby Congress for passage of a nuclear freeze resolution which will face a vote in the House of Representatives tomorrow.

The delegation from Massachusetts' First Congressional District is expected to arrive at the capitol this morning, where they will join with 12,000 to 15,000 more people from throughout the country, said Frances Crowe of the American Friends Service Committee (AFSC), an organizer of the bus trip.

After receiving morning instructions and briefings, the lobbyists are scheduled to participate in a nuclear freeze rally at noon on the steps of the Capitol. People attending from throughout Massachusetts are scheduled to meet with Sen. Edward M. Kennedy and Sen. Paul E. Tsongas after the rally, with First District residents also meeting with Rep. Silvio O. Conte, R-Pittsfield, later this afternoon.

The state's entire Congressional delegation has sponsored the freeze resolution and also voted in favor of it last July when it failed in the House, 204-202.

Rep. Edward J. Markey, D-Malden, who along with Conte introduced H.J. Res. 2, yesterday predicted favorable passage of the bill from the Foreign Affairs Committee today and full House passage tomorrow.

"We think we are going to win it this year," said Markes, who was able to gather 188 co-sponsors, an increase from 167 last year.

The 3,000 signatures in support of the freeze were collected over the past few weeks by the AFSC and local freeze organizations, Crowe said.

She said she expected the additional support shown both by the forms and by phone calls to Capitol Hill made today by constituents who would lead the House to "overwhelmingly pass the freeze."

Following House passage, the resolution would then require senate approval before being sent to the White House to be signed by the President, who has previously stated his opposition to it.

Crowe, however, said the fight would not stop there, and instead promised, "We'll keep working."

Students depart for Capitol to lobby for nuclear freeze

By KAREN POLLENS
Collegian Correspondent

This week, University of Massachusetts students will add their opposition to the arms race to that of students across the country. A busload of activists from the Pioneer Valley set out for the capital to add their numbers to a national pro-nuclear freeze lobby. The two-day action was called to pressure the passage of a new freeze resolution which is scheduled to come up before the House of Representatives tomorrow.

"I support the freeze movement and I'm really happy to see UMass students getting concerned about worldwide issues. This disproves the notion of 'the me generation' and that all our aims are selfish" said UMass student, Barbara Brodley, who is also the spokesperson of the commuter assembly.

Last week, many students like Brodley, who endorses the freeze resolution but could not travel to Washington, signed proxy ballots. These statements will be delivered to original freeze sponsors Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., Rep. Silvio O. Conte, D-Pittsfield, and Sen. Paul E. Tsongas, D-Mass., who are scheduled to meet with the lobbyists in Washington.

This attempt by the National Nuclear Weapons Freeze Campaign based in St. Louis to include students in their lobbying efforts is just one indication of the growing interests on campuses across the country in the disarmament issue.

This academic year has seen an increasing number of educational events such as lectures and films on nuclear proliferation, political science and economic classes addressing the issue of large military expenditures. "The Race With the Russians" is a current topic for debating societies across the US.

This winter many universities in all parts of the country experienced "a February freeze."

In a recent Clemson University debate in North Carolina, Dr. Helen Caldicott, founder of Physicians for Social Responsibility, took the pro-freeze position.

At Tufts University in Medford, students have been organizing for more than a year to transform their school into what their Disarmament Committee has termed "a nuclear free zone." According to the committee, a university is "nuclear free" when it is divested of all nuclear corporations and the faculty is prohibited from contracting research with a military application.

A significant number of young people and students recently participated in the third national conference of the Nuclear Weapons Freeze Campaign in February, according to local American Friends Service Committee representative Frances Crowe. The meeting was called to hammer out a two-year freeze strategy. One result of the conference was this week's Washington lobby.

"Up until now, students haven't seen how the arms race touched them personally. Or maybe they didn't want to deal with it because it's distressing. But, once you get under the weight of the issue and really start working, it can be exhilarating," Crowe said.

Collegian Photo by Ann Lamery

First year student Alice Bonsignore casts her ballot at the Northeast Dining Commons in the Student Government Association's first day of balloting yesterday. Today is the final day of voting for SGA president, Campus Center Board of Governors and Residential Committee. Commuters may vote today from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the Hatch, and dorm residents will vote in the dining commons from 11 a.m. to 6:30 p.m.

Dean of admissions expects more first year applicants

By GREG E. MARTEL
Collegian Correspondent

More than 16,000 applicants are expected to compete for admission to next year's University of Massachusetts freshman class a 20 percent increase over last year, according to David Taggart, Dean of Admissions.

Taggart said, "It is quite an increase indeed. Things are going extremely well."

"We expect to receive a total of around 16,000 applications this year compared with the 13,778 that we received last year," he said.

Taggart said although more students are applying to UMass the number of vacancies has actually decreased because more students will remain enrolled and fewer will receive academic suspensions.

According to Taggart last year 4,323 first-year students enrolled, but this year only 4,100 are expected to enroll.

The implementation of a new "bursars management system" and delays in the printing of acceptance materials has meant that acceptance letters are being mailed out one month later than usual this year, Taggart said.

The application deadline for fall admission was March 1. Applications received afer March 1 will be marked late but will still be reviewed, he said.

Each application is reviewed by at least one of the staff members in the Admissions Office, Taggart said.

"We are six overworked human beings," Taggart said, "It is an overwhelming task indeed."

Taggart said the past three years have shown steady growth at UMass, and especially significant growth this year.

"The University has emerged as a nationally recognized quality institution," Taggart said.

The freshman class in general has a much stronger profile than one year ago, Taggart said, including better SAT scores and class ranks.

Taggart said this year's increase in the number of applications reminded him of 1972, the year he took over as Dean of Admissions.

"What a way to begin back in '72, Taggart said, "It was near the end of the Vietnam War and we had 21,000 applications for 3,600 openings."

Newslines...

Hampshire College Theater starts to perform

The Hampshire College Theatre Program is opening its 1983 spring season tomorrow at 8 p.m. with the production of Between Acts: An Evening of Entertainment, produced by Beth Sommers and Kevin Brown. The cabaret-style performance with music, magic, dancing, and comedy, will also be staged this Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Tickets are $2.50 for Hampshire students, faculty and staff and $3.00 for general admission. For reservations and further information call 549-4600 ext. 351.

Editor to speak on American Jews in Israel

Dr. Leonard Fein, editor-in-chief of Moment Magazine, an independent magazine of Jewish opinion, will speak on "American Jews in Israel," tomorrow at 4 p.m. in the Campus Center Rm. 804-808, and at 7:30 p.m. in Wright Hall Common Room at Smith College. Fein is a well known writer, activist and scholar of contemporary Jewish life.

Great Decisions to hold sixth seminar tonight

Great Decisions '83 will continue with its sixth topic tonight entitled "Southeast Asia: ASEAN and Its Communist Neighbors," to be held at 8 p.m. in the main lounge of Webster House, Orchard Hill. ASEAN stands for the Association of Southeast Asian Nations, an organization of non-Communist states. Panelists will include James Hafner of the University of Massachusetts Geography Dept. and Richard Minear of the UMass History Dept.

Children's author to speak at writer's program

The second program in the series "Writers on Writers and Social Responsibility" will be held tomorrow night at 8 in SBA Rm. 120 at the University of Massachusetts.

The speaker will be children's book author Shulamith Oppenheim, who has also produced literary programs for National Public Radio for seven years.

DO YOU HAVE A PROBLEM WITH HYPERTRICOHSIS?

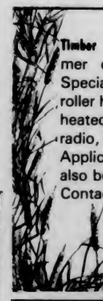
A comfortable approach to hair removal. Remove that Unwanted Hair, the "painless" way. We offer the most safe, sure and painless method of hair removal.
For a confidential consultation and demonstration.
• no charge or obligation
• call Closer Look 739-3361

CLOSER LOOK
MEDICAL CENTER BUILDING
130 Maple St., Spfld.

NEED A TAN?

Now you can get a safe tan on our supersun suntan bed.
If you normally burn, you WON'T!
Start on your spring or Florida tan now and avoid looking like a lobster later.
ONE FREE VISIT
when you buy two at the regular price of $5 per visit.
this coupon must be presented to receive free visit
Come to the Racquet & Fitness Center
Rt 116 Sunderland or call 549-4545
Hours: M-F 7 am - 9 pm
Sat. wkends 9 am - 9 pm

CAMP COUNSELORS WANTED



Timber Lake Camp, one of New York State's top co-ed summer camps, is seeking high-quality general counselors. Specialists also needed in basketball, softball, soccer, tennis, roller hockey, waterfront (W.S.I.) for lake, indoor and outdoor heated pools, audio/visual, arts and crafts, computers, AM radio, ham radio, television production.
Applications for maintenance, grounds & dining room staff also being accepted.
Contact T.L.C.'s UMASS representative:
Rich Tyroler
1112 Kennedy 546-7762
for application or interview

MAKE YOUR MARK

at OPERATION SONSHINE '83
DAYTONA BEACH, FLORIDA
Thousands of college students will converge on the Florida coast this spring break for a week at Daytona Beach. You can be one of them!
Come to Operation Sonshine '83. You'll leave more than your footprints in the sand. You'll make an indelible impact on the lives of others. For more information write or call:
Chris West, 613 JF Kennedy. 546-7671
Cynthia Muller, B-7 Emerson, 546-7238
Sponsored by Campus Crusade for Christ International

going south ?

the SHOE BIN
187 n. pleasant st., amherst

7 DAYS TO BETTER SOUND
Problems With Your Stereo? Our repair dept. can fix most units in just ONE WEEK
Need Cash? We BUY used audio equipment...!
Lusting After Higher Fidelity? ...all our used components have a full 90 day guarantee!

Audio Replay
865 MEMORIAL AVE.
W SPRINGFIELD, MA 01089
(413) 732-8996
Quality Second-hand Components / Expert Audio Repair

EDITORIAL/OPINION

Leaflet misrepresents paper

In the past couple of days, a leaflet advertising one of the Student Government Association presidential candidacies has appeared carrying the logo of the Collegian and a copy of a news story recently published in this newspaper.

The reproduction of the logo and the story was done without permission of either the Collegian as a whole or the writers of the story, although requesting permission is a practice commonly adhered to on this campus.

In addition, the appearance of our logo may, to some people, indicate that the Collegian favors or endorse the candidacy. In reality, the Collegian has not nor will it in any way endorse a candidate in this or any other on-campus election.

We feel the use of our logo and story was, at best, a misrepresentation of this newspaper and, at worst, a gross disregard for the rights of the paper, its staff members and the students of this University in general.

All unsigned editorials represent the majority opinion of the Collegian Board of Editors

Women's day celebrates achievement

Do you mean faith? Will you take the old Jewish oath?" And up came 2,000 hands with the prayer; "If I turn traitor to the cause I now pledge, may this hand wither from the arm I now raise." International Women's Day was being born.

International Women's Day was first proposed by Clara Zetkin, a working class feminist, in 1908, out of the struggles against the Czar of Russia's autocratic rule. While conditions were not as bad in the United States as in Russia, the early 1900's were a time of brutal exploitation for immigrants. The above quote is from a speech preceeding the famous New York Shirtwaist strike of 1909. 20,000 mostly Jewish women walked off their jobs in the garment center of New York. The resulting strike helped bring in the International Ladies Garment Workers Union, and is one of labor's great moments. The strike was particularly important because of the unity between middle and working class women.

Consider the following from the New York Times: Women are 99 percent of the secretaries and 98 percent of the dental technicians in the U.S., but only three percent of the engineers and .05 percent of the plumbers.

This type of employment segregation has a tremendous effect on women's purchasing power and their ability to survive. According to the New York Times and Bureau of Labor statistics, a male electrician earns $398 a week, a female nurse earns $155. The button that says 59 cents per the dollars is true when you compare what American men earn relative to white women. For women of color the ratio is about 49 cents to the dollar. Forty-five percent of all families in New York are headed by women according to the Times. This lack of earning power is serious. even married couples or those living together cannot afford to have only one income.

Besides being underpaid, women's work is undervalued. For example an unpaid housewife contributes over $15,000 a year in unpaid labor caring for a family, according to insurance actuary tables.

In a society that uses sex to sell everything from cantalopes to cars, women are often treated as objects rather than as people. Rape occurs every three minutes and a women is battered every minute in the United States. The defeat of the ERA and the continual attacks on the right to choose with regards to abortion, are two more signs of the struggles that still lie ahead.

Despite the gloom and doom pictured above, International Women's Day is a time of rejoicing and celebrating the positive achievements of women in many different ways and endeavors. At UMass women were able to win better lighting and the sexual harassment grievance procedure. All day today there will be events on campus and tables at the concourse of the Student Union Building. Check it out. Remember; "Women hold up half the sky."

Brooke States & Mindy Chateauvert are Collegian columnists

States & Chateauvert

The strike was eventually settled but conditions in the trade remained terrible. On April 20, 1911, 154 women were burned to death when the triangle shirtwaist factory caught fire. There were no fire escapes, and management had locked the exits to keep the girls and women from going outside.

Out of this series of events came International Women's Day. Today International Women's Day is celebrated in a variety of ways. In the 72 years since the original day, the celebration has expanded to include many different aspects of women's lives, histories, and accomplishments.

While the country and the American woman's life has changed since 1908, many of the old problems remain.

Letters

Wright article uses weird logic

To the Editor:

In response to Laurence M. Wright's editorial on a US/USSR nuclear freeze, I would like to point out that if he plans to hide from the event of a nuclear attack, he is wasting his time. The forewarning of such an attack will be too minimal for any serious precautions to be made. Unless he can somehow move away from the targeted area in less time than a UMass lecture, he is sure to become a victim.

Furthermore, history may have shown "that great nations collapse only when they are not willing to fight when attacked" is an argument not yet proven during the age of sophisticated nuclear weaponry. The role of our National Defense Department can no longer be to win wars; it can only be to avert them. Building more nuclear weapons and hoping Civil Defense will shelter us from an attack is an excellent idea if one is an ostrich. Even if we did have the appropriate forewarning; where and how would we move the people? The arms we produce will be matched by the Soviet Union, resulting in a greater chance for a nuclear holocaust. The nuclear arsenal of the world is equal to 300 tons of dynamite for each person in the world. Do we need more?

Your point about the Soviet Union's production of devices utilizing chemical and biological agents is one-sided, since you forgot to mention the United State's capability of similar weapons.

Finally, there will be no "winner" or "loser" in a nuclear war — both nations will be crippled or killed. Our only hope is through better relations and a continuation of talks with the Soviets. I hope you consider this in your future plans.

Peter J. Mentor
Amherst

...and more on Mr. Wright

To the Editor:

I feel compelled to respond to Laurence M. Wright's piece entitled "Nuclear Weapons for a Soviet Threat".

I ask you who is really dedicated to destruction, someone who builds bomb or someone who takes it apart. The answer is simple and obvious.

Who are these "experts" whom you say doubt the ability of the US to inflict serious losses should the USSR launch a surprise attack against us. Could they by chance be employed by the huge national defense budget. Does their own livelihoods depend upon the continued construction of these gigantic death machines. Is the USSR really capable of destroying 100 percent of our nuclear weapons on a first strike? A mere 1 percent of our weapons contain the force equal to 2800 bombs the size of the one which we dropped on Hiroshima. This amount of unprecedented destruction goes far beyond anything which I am capable of comprehending. Not to mention what the other 99 percent of our stockpile can do.

Is the US really "engaged in an undeclared war against an enemy...a war we must win or die." No we are not because it is totally impossible to win a nuclear war. We must all live together or we will surely all die together.

There is no historical precedent for a nuclear war. History can teach us nothing about our present situation. We have entered an era in which we have the power of a God. God created the Earth in seven days and we can destroy it in even fewer. Think of anything good, the ducks in the pond, a basketball game, or a pretty face and you have thought of something which we are planning to destroy forever. Never to be recreated, anywhere in the universe.

In response to your final question, yes I do have a plan for the possibility of a major nuclear exchange. I plan to die, along side of every other human being on the face of the earth. There is no longer any question, the present nuclear firepower of the superpowers is capable of turning our lush planet into a radioactive wasteland. The time for seeking refuge in some basement laundry room has long since passed.

Neal Gifford
Amherst

We need columnists!
Drop by with a piece, CC 113

A Real Bus Driver's woes

UMass bus drivers come in all colors, sizes, ages economic classes, alcohol capacities and most noticeably, all driving abilities. But only some UMass bus drivers rate the distinction of Real Bus Driver.

Real Bus Driver tales of horrors in bus land are guaranteed to shock and amaze. Ask any one of them. Along with their tales of near-death passenger encounters, Real Bus Drivers can also bend your ear with excerpts from the Real Bus Driver's Code of Ethics.

Real Bus Drivers never throttle passengers, though they would like to, according to former Real UMass Bus Driver Don Campbell. To prove just how real a Real Bus Driver Campbell was, he is now terminal manager for Trailways at the Riverside bus terminal in Newton.

Before graduating to the Boston branch of Busland, Campbell wrote down a few tenets of Real Bus Driverdom, which have since become scripture.

E.L. Birk

Real Bus Drivers hate Campus Shuttles, hate South Amherst routes, hate Sunderland routes, hate their hours, hate their pay, hate passengers, hate traffic, but otherwise love their jobs, Real Bus Driver Bruce Allen once told me.

Aside from breathing diesel fumes for funsies, Real Bus Drivers conquer the video universe for 25 cents on their breaks, they know the location of every bathroom within a ten-mile radius of campus but, most of all, they dare to brave the downstairs at The Drake.

That such a code of ethics should evolve over the 10-year history of the UMass Transit Service is not surprising. Any group ostracized by the rest of society will band together and form its own laws, morals and version of reality. Even the cause of bus drivers' exclusion from the mainstream is not shocking; passenger induced psychosis.

Consider the following and then ask yourself if you too would not suffer a range of symptoms from nervous facial twitches to loss of motor control in the tongue.

While driving my bus one sunny day, a bus equipped with two destination signs that clearly state "SUNDERLAND" as my destination, within an hour, more than 30 people ask me if my bus goes to Southwest, 15 ask where the Northampton bus is and one says simply, "UMass buses out of Amherst."

The fear begins to crawl.

Then there's "Just this one Joe." He comes up behind me on the bus and says, "I know you're not supposed to do this, but..." What he is really saying is I know you're not supposed to do this but could jeopardize your job — one of the best paying student jobs on campus — and let me off up there so I won't have to walk 50 extra feet?" Then he threatens to steal my first born if I don't comply.

A cold sweat forms on the back of my neck. Soon all the passengers are looking at me and they begin to talk. I am sure I hear the muffled whispers, or is that just the whine of the engine?

But what really fogs my mirrors, is the earthy-crunchy who wants to bring his 90-pound Doberman Pinscher onto the bus. You know the type, he's real friendly, would never bite a person (the dog, that is), and he's really good with children.

It comes down to a decision whether I can close the doors faster than the dog can leap for my jugular. It's not the pain or the blood that would bother me, it's the getting behind schedule.

So you see, when someone comes up to you and says, "Real Bus Drivers never come early," or, "Real Bus Drivers always check their (lug) nuts," you know they're not being rude. He or she is just being a Real Bus Driver.

E.L. Birk is a Collegian staff member and a UMass bus driver

Letters Policy

All letters must be signed and include the writer's address and telephone number, which will not be published. Please type double spaced at 67 characters per line. Due to space limitations and the volume of mail, we regret we are unable to acknowledge unpublished letters. All letters are subject to editing for clarity and length.

AN IMPORTANT ADDITION TO YOUR UNIFORM

The insignia of an Air Force nurse can mean a lot to you and your future. It shows that you're part of the Air Force Nurse Corps. A member of one of the most efficient health care teams in the world. It signifies you are an Air Force officer with the responsibility and prestige of a leadership position. It indicates you're on the track toward good pay and almost unlimited educational opportunities. If you're a nursing professional or about to complete your nursing education, why not consider Air Force nursing as part of YOUR future? From the day you're commissioned, you'll receive the pay and advantages of an Air Force officer. Consider your uniform and our future. Then make it yours.

AIR FORCE NURSING. A GREAT WAY OF LIFE.

For More Details Call Sandy Price
(203) 229-9641
Freshmen & Sophmores Call Capt. Pinkell
(413) 545-2137

AIR FORCE

Beachcomber Tours PRESENTS
14th ANNUAL
College Spring Break in
DAYTONA BEACH
ROOM STILL AVAILABLE

$289* COMPLETE JET TOUR
$165* COMPLETE BUS TOUR

JET TOUR
March 12-19
or March 19-26
• Round trip Non-Stop Charter Flight to Daytona Beach from Boston
• Complimentary Meals and Beverages inflight
• Transfers between airport and hotel

BUS TOUR
March 11-20
or March 19-27
• Round trip deluxe motor coach to Daytona Beach
• On campus departures

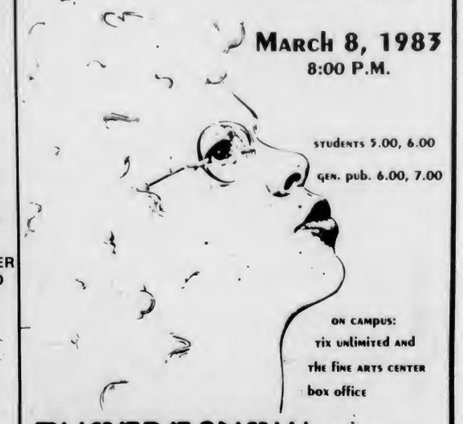
ALL TOURS INCLUDE:
LAND PACKAGE
• First Class Ocean Front Accomodations for Seven (7) Nights at the Days Inn, Beachside or the Quality Inn Reef; located directly on the Strip in Daytona Beach
• Welcome Party with plenty of FREE BEER
• Exclusive 14th Anniversary ID Card for discounts at Shops, Restaurants, Night Clubs, etc
• On campus reservation service
• Services of the Beachcomber Staff
• OPTIONAL Kitchenettes, Walt Disney World Tour, New Epcot Center Adventure and more!
Round Trip Transportation from Hartford and Springfield to Boston Airport extended
*PRICE DOES NOT INCLUDE ADDITIONAL $60.00 FOR TAX GRATUITIES AND SERVICE
$25.00 Deposit Required • Limited Space Available
Make Reservations by December 15th and
SAVE $20.00
(NO OTHER DISCOUNTS APPLY)
Don't be left out in the COLD!
ALSO AVAILABLE:
JET FLIGHT ONLY $239*
BUS TRANSPORTATION ONLY $139*
LAND PACKAGE ONLY $139*
(Includes all tax, gratuities and service)
Contact our campus representative for reservations today!
Beachcomber Tours, Inc.
COMPACT
STEVEN
549-1671
SEE REVERSE FOR MORE DETAILS AND INFORMATION
MEMBER DAYTONA BEACH CHAMBER OF COMMERCE
DEPENDABILITY • QUALITY • SERVICE • SINCE 1969

upc PRODUCTIONS

We're havin' a party...
with
SOUTHSIDE JOHNNY
and the
ASBURY JUKES
SAINT PATTY'S DAY
MARCH 17
STUDENT UNION BALLROOM
8:00
TICKETS AVAILABLE AT:
• TIX UNLIMITED
• UNION RECORDS UNLIMITED
• FINE ARTS CENTER
• FOR THE RECORD

YOU WON'T WANNA GO HOME!

in honor of International Women's Day
UPC and the womens event planning committee
March 8, 1983
8:00 P.M.
students 5.00, 6.00
gen. pub. 6.00, 7.00



ON CAMPUS:
tix unlimited and the fine arts center box office
PHOEBE SNOW
with Special Guest Debbie Fier
AMHERST: for the record
NORTHAMPTON: womonfyre books
thanx UMass Arts Council
all ticketron locations
FINE ARTS CENTER UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS

Arts

An overwhelming Ashes

ASHES
By David Rudkin
March 3, 4, 5, 9, 10, 11, 12
Rand Theater, FAC

By JANINE S. BRUNELL
Collegian Correspondent

Ashes is the devastating story of a courageous couple who go through every possible rejection in their search for parenthood. Moira Driscoll as Anne and Alan Arenius as her husband Colin both did a spectacular job of portraying obsessive determination and unending suffering in their attempt to create new life. Their two year struggle to conceive, ultimate and painful miscarriage, and devastating rejection by an adoption agency takes themselves and the audience to numerous institutions and unfeeling specialists. The result...failure, rejection, and a sense of undeserved abuse.

Moira Driscoll gives an incredible portrayal of a determined woman who has been both hardened and strengthened by life. Her performance brought the audience close to tears on a number of occasions. Alan Arenius' sensitive and perceptive talent made Colin very real and his devastating story unbearable.

Supporting performances by Lawrence M. Devine and Christine Staples were executed with a great deal of talent and flexibility. Devine was unquestionably in his glory playing the unfeeling and witty professional with a great deal of flair. Christine Staples was perfect both as a nurse and as an insensitive friend whose blunderous advice clearly showed her inability to understand. Congratulations to both for an excellent performance.

The visual design involved in the Rand Theater's production of Ashes was both innovative and extraordinary. To start, an unusually clever program design set the mood for the audience more effectively than any I have seen before. The harsh lighting illuminated a set which placed the audience in the dreaded institutional setting and succeeded in emphasizing the feeling of cold and impersonal hospital professionalism. At times, however, this set was miraculously transformed to a quiet, sensitive, and extremely emotional setting. All the design aspects worked together to create a powerful and expressive combination.

Overall, Edward Golden's production of Ashes, a play written by David Rudkin, was powerful and overwhelming. A combined effort from actors, director, and designers succeeded in creating an unforgettable theater experience.

Christine Staples (far right) portrays the insensitive friend of a childless couple, played by Moira Driscoll (far left) and Alan Arenius (center) in Edward Golden's production of Ashes.

Dave Mallet — ballads to hail in spring

DAVE MALLETT
Sunday, February 27
Iron Horse, Northampton

By MIKE SMALL
Collegian Correspondent

It was a fine end to a lovely day. The sun's been shining more and more lately, and some of us are beginning to believe spring is truly on its way. Listening to Dave Mallet sing "The April Song" and other life-enriching ballads this past Sunday evening at the Iron Horse helped to encourage my hopes.

With his old electric guitarist Michael Burd and new keyboard-player Christopher Neville, Dave Mallett performed a fine show of his works to an appreciative crowd. He crammed many songs into his 90 minute performance — and many a worthy note. The troop started off with a beautiful love song called "Closer Now Than Ever." The melodies seemed to all go in one direction: up. The upbeat tunes like these leave your fingers a-tappin'.

But it is in his lyrics that you will find the real richness of Mallett's works. The words are heartfelt and to-the-point. Not just anybody can make a winner out of the term 'aurora borealis' from "Northern Lights," one of the opening tunes which is due to appear on Mallett's new album coming out soon.

From the outer reaches of the galaxy, Mallett brings us right back down to earth with a piece that is hard to shake. "Millie" is what Dave called an old-fashioned love song with the refrain:

Millie there's a dance in town,
put your broom and dustpan down,
I'll go out and fetch the old gray mere.

The song speaks about square-dancing and gingham dresses. It's what Mallet would call "timeless," so even anti-sexists can't criticize too harshly.

"Photographs and Memories" differs greatly musically from the Jim Croce song of the same name, but philosophically it deals with the same subject. This one made me think of my nostalgic soon-to-be-graduating friends: "Whenever I get on that train of memories, Lord, how I seem to slip away...Back when we were all so young and happy, livin' in the best years of our lives." Like its predecessor, reminiscent of "Christmas eves and summer lawns and roses," "This Little Town" shows the day to day life that's soon cause for reminiscence: "Get your paycheck Friday night/Monday it's all gone/You don't know how you'll make ends meet/But you know you'll carry on." and "Teach your children to be kind/They'll all come home at Christmas time/To catch up on the news." But among the happy memories are sad ones too as "Inches and Miles" points out. It's a song of love lost where it could have been grand, and nobody knows why: "The distance between is growing by inches and miles."

"April Song" made its debut next. Mallet threatened to write one for every month, it was so well-received.

Getting back to straight-on love tales, "I've Been Around" was next on the agenda. The philosopher in Mallet came through in the first lines: "Nothing real good ever comes real easy..." The final, firmly devoted refrain came in loud and clear: "I'm shedding my past love, this is my last love, I'll never need anyone more." And, in conclusion, "I've been around/You've been around/We both know — Going it alone is the long way to go." Surprisingly, with a name like the latter's, "Hard-time..." was easy to swallow as it's rhythm was so upbeat. The message within was "I don't want to sing no hard-time love song; we both know how the trouble starts."

The final song before the encore was a familiar Mallett tune called "Thanks to Mother Mercy." In a nutshell, it's a song about humanity — supporting what promotes our human-ness, and condemning what belittles us. "Down with the corporate oppressor,/Up with the young political one,/Here's to the young believer looking for a sign,/Here's to the good winners,/Here's to those who fail,/Here's to the weeping widow, Here's to the unborn child..." It's a song of Mallett's beliefs and gratitude: "Thanks to Mother Mercy/Thanks to Father Time" and of his catching sight of the dawn: "I know the night is over, and we're walkin down the line."

Though I was hoping to hear the old favorite "Garden Song" as an encore, I can't say I was disappointed by what was played.

Bill Viola, pictured above, will bring his video art festival entitled Master Class, to the University of Massachusetts this week. The show will take place on Friday, March 11, from 2:00 p.m. throughout the evening in room 216 of the Student Union.

Viola will be available to answer any questions, and to critique any works students bring. The entire group will also work on an advanced production/playback project.

All available equipment of the Union Video Center will be reserved for this event. Participants are also encouraged to bring their own video cameras.

Look before you leap

LEAP INTO THE VOID
Pleasant St. Theater
March 2 - March 8

By ELAINE SENAY
Collegian Staff

Black comedy takes a bold step in Marco Bellochio's Leap Into The Void. This film makes insanity and suicide humorous without losing its good taste through use of cheap comedic devices.

The story centers around, Mauro, played by Michel Piccoli, and his sister, Marta, played by Anouk Aimee. Mauro is a fussy, middle-aged magistrate who would love to get rid of his emotionally disturbed sister.

The tension between these two characters gives the film its power. The strain of their relationship is so great that they have to take Valium before sitting down to dinner. There seems to be an incestuous aspect to their relationship which is brought out in several dream sequences throughout the film.

Eventually Mauro finds a way to kill his sister. He tries to use Giovanni Sciabola, a man suspected of convincing his girlfriend to commit suicide. Sciabola is a real low-life who lives on his sensual good-looks.

Mauro arranges for them to meet and Marta becomes deeply involved for the first time in her life. But her new outlet to the outside world becomes a positive influence on her life. You begin to realize that it is Mauro who is crazy and not Marta.

Michel Piccoli portrays Mauro's emerging insanity with sublety that becomes a real howl. You catch bits of it until it seems to rule his entire life. At first he just seems to be acting because of the strain in his life but his behavior turns to genuine insanity. The outcome of Piccoli's character seems to be logical with the development of his personality.

Leap Into the Void is a film that you may not understand immediately but if you think about it enough you'll see its meaning. So, don't be shy about stretching your depths of understanding, go see Leap Into The Void.

Attention Arts Writers:

There will be a mandatory meeting for all arts reporters to discuss the up-coming issue of the Other Voice on Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the newsroom.

SOCIAL SCIENCE MAJORS:

FRESHMEN, SOPHOMORES, JUNIORS, & SENIORS

YOU ARE INVITED TO ATTEND

AN

ALUMNI/AE CAREER NIGHT

TUES. MARCH 8

8:00 PM

CAMPUS CENTER 163

ANTHROPOLOGY, ECONOMICS

POLITICAL SCIENCE & SOCIOLOGY

GRADUATES FROM EACH DEPARTMENT WILL DISCUSS AND ANSWER QUESTIONS ABOUT THEIR CAREERS AND YOUR!

SPONSORED BY THE ALUMNI ASSOCIATION AND THE UNIVERSITY PLACEMENT OFFICE

Hypercurricula

SEMESTER AND YEAR EXCHANGES IN THE U.K. — A representative of "Higher Education in Europe" will be on campus to talk to interested students. 10:00 a.m. to noon, International Programs Office, 239 Whitmore.

HAVING TROUBLE CHOOSING A MAJOR? — Come to a two-session workshop designed to initiate choice by exploring one's personal preferences, values, and successes. Counseling and Career Development Center. 4 p.m., 322 Berkshire.

STRESS MANAGEMENT AND RELAXATION WORKSHOP — This workshop will focus on the academic and social stress of college life. Students will experience relaxation training and will develop strategies for coping with personal stress. 4 p.m., 308 Berkshire.

ASIAN AMERICAN STUDENTS ASSOC. MEETING — Open meeting -come with ideas for future club activities. Film about Asian American women poet titled "Mitsuye & Nellie" will be shown. All members are welcome. 6:30 p.m., Campus Center, Rm. 172.

STUDENT MEETING — UPC general meeting. All new members welcome. 6:30 p.m., 101 Campus Center.

COMMITTEE FOR EQUAL RIGHTS AND REPRODUCTIVE FREEDOM — There will be a general meeting to decide future projects and begin organizing them. Everyone is encouraged to attend—the more people the better. 6 p.m., 165 Campus Center.

ALPHA ZETA MEETING — There will be a mandatory meeting today for all members. AZ sportswear can be ordered so bring your checkbooks. Also, refreshments will be served. 6:30 p.m., Paige 202.

LECTURE ON THE ROLE OF RELIGION IN ISRAEL — "The Role of Religion in Israel" will be the topic of a talk by Prof. Jay Berkovitz. Part of an ongoing series about Israel. All welcome. 7 p.m. Herter 114.

JOURNALISM CLUB MEETING — There's lots of exciting things happening. Come to the meeting tonight and find out about them. 7 p.m., Bartlett 108.

UMASS HORSEMASTERS CLUB MEETING — UMass Horsemasters Club Meeting—preparations for the upcoming Carol Lavell Clinic. Will be discussed. 7 p.m., 311 Stockbridge Hall

HISTORY CLUB MEETING: GUEST SPEAKER! — Professor Miriam Chrisman will speak on children and their place in the family before the 18th Century. New approach! Slides, discussion, refreshments. Everyone is welcome. 7:30 p.m., 803 Campus Center.

GAMMA SIGMA SIGMA OPEN MEETING — Interested in servng the campus and community? Would you like to meet new people and share fun times? A National Service Sorority—join us, tel. 545-2068. 7:30 p.m., Campus Center, Rm. 904.

BICYCLE CLUB MEETING — Last chance to sign up for the Virginia Spring Break tour. Free bicycle check for those going . Bring yours with you. New members welcome. 7:30 p.m., Campus Center 811-815.

MASS PIB WOMEN'S BIBLE STUDY — All women are invited to come and study with us in an informal setting the life and teachings of Jesus Christ as described in the Bible. 8 p.m., Campus Center Rm. 901.

MEETING FOR ZOO DISC — Organizational meeting for all new members interested in the Men's Ultimate Frisbee Team (Zoo Disc). 8 p.m., Dukes Room (near Sub).

CONCERT: MAX ROACH AND UNIVERSITY CHAMBER JAZZ ENSEMBLE — FREE jazz concert will feature solo percussionist Max Roach and Ensemble members: Fred Tillis, saxophone; David Sporny, trombone; Jeff Holmes, trumpet and piano; and Salvatore Macchia, bass. Program includes jazz pieces by Tillis, Holmes, Roach, Macchia, Duke Ellington, Clifford Brown, and Charlie Parker. Sponsored by UMass Music Dept. 8 p.m., Bezanson Recital Hall in Fine Arts Center.

RUN FOR RITTER — Mandatory meeting for all Directors. Anyone interested in helping with the race welcome. 9 p.m., Newman Center classroom.

INTERNATIONAL WOMENS EVENT

UMASS 545-0341
545-0254

MARCH 7-8,1983

Tuesday - March 8

All day Campus Center Festivities
9:00 Workshop, Rm 905-09, "Women finding their own voice"
11:00 Workshop, Rm 101, Martial Arts Demonstration
12:00 New Harmony Sisterhood Band - Concourse
1:00 Workshop, Rm 811-815, "Women in Labor Unions"
2:00 Patty Larkin - Concourse
3:00 Workshop, Rm 803, "Women in the Private Realm"
8:00 Concert - Phoebe Snow - Fine Arts Center

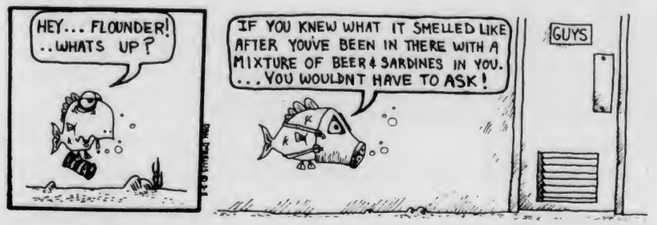
Children's Workshops will be available Monday CC 168 and Tuesday CC 804.
Traduccion de todos los eventos al espanol, asegurada

Bloom County By Berke Breathed

The UMass Zone By Mark Rollins

Katfood By ARK

Scrod By Dan DeBellis



After the Fall By R. Miller

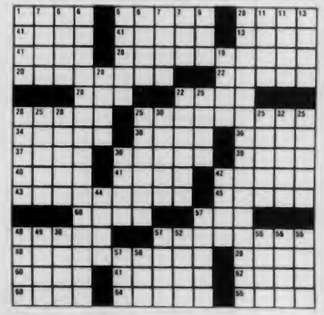
CROSSWORD

Edited by Margaret Farrar and Trude Jaffe

©1983 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

ACROSS
1 Supports
5 Silts
10 Salamander
14 Leave out
15 Word with put or stand
16 Potpourri
17 Actress Louise
18 Support a definite position
20 Plymouth colony leader
22 Bearded, as grain
23 —— Alte
24 Anderson of TV
26 Took notice
29 Show courage
34 Moved stealthily
35 English composer
36 Luau entertainment
37 California rockfish: Var.
38 South African towns
39 Ollie's partner
40 Stand —— ceremony
41 Cleveland's waterfront
42 Fourteen pounds
43 Stage of a sort
45 Steps, in Seville
46 Pointed end
47 Attila, for one
48 Banker renowned on Wall St.
51 Be conservative
56 Grasp
59 Trifling amount
60 Pate de —— gras
61 The ——, Holland
62 Standard
63 Forecast word
64 Sustains
65 Valise

DOWN
1 Oodles
2 Let off
3 Lollobrigida
4 Show approval, in a way
5 Mountainous region of C. Asia
6 Bears, in Barcelona
7 Indian monotheist
8 Dutch commune
9 Red or Black
10 However
11 Verve
12 Specialty of Bordeaux
13 Mary Lincoln nee ——
19 Beach feature
21 Stale, e.g.
24 Ailt
25 Singles
26 Underbrush
27 Pancho's pancake
28 Part of a wooden joint
29 Petty tyrant
30 Vehicle for Casey Jones
31 Means of transportation
32 Vaquero's setting
33 Bowler's ballwick
38 Jellifies
42 Woven
44 One in court
47 Inferno
48 Devotee
49 Wild ox
50 402, to Vergil
51 Wise one
52 Carpenter's aid
53 Like Franklin's Richard
54 Italian cathedral town
55 Pipe smoker's tool
57 —— Na Na
58 Accounting



ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

A	R	I	A	S		L	A	W	S		T	D
D	O	N	U	T		C	L	A	N		C	R	A	B
O	M	E	G	A		F	O	O	T		O	S	E
P	E	R	M	O	S	T		C	A	R		H
I	D	O	L		A	N	G	E		A	H	A
	C	H	A		A	F	I	E		S	A	L	L
L	I	N	G		P	I	S	T	E		E	L	I	E
I	M	I		M	O		O		R	O	N	N
O	A	P		S	T	R	O	N	G	A	R	M	E	D
	P	S	E	S			A	L	I
		H	A	N	D		C	O	R	O	N	A	S
A	N	D	E	A	N		T	I	L	L		I	C	U
W	E	A	K	K	N	E	E		A	S	T	O	N
N	A	P	I		G	I	L	I	E		D	E	N	I
S	P	A	R		Y	A	R	N			Y	A	R	N	S

WEATHER

Periods of rain or drizzle through most of tomorrow. Lows tonight in the 30's. Highs today 40 to 45, highs tomorrow 45 to 50.

D.C. MENU

LUNCH
Diplomat Sandwich
Quiche Lorraine

BASICS LUNCH
The Salad Sandwich
Quiche Lorraine

DINNER
Italian Sweet Sausage/ Spaghetti, Tomato Sauce
Stir Fry Beef and Veggies
Fruit Plate with Banana Bread

BASICS DINNER
Hi-Protein Spaghetti/ Tomato Sauce
Stir Fry Veggies and Tofu

Be A Star

★

Become a star reporter for the Collegian. One of New England's largest daily college newspapers! We need people to write news and women's affairs. Great experience for any students interested in journalism or communications. Come by the Collegian anytime and ask for an editor. It's easy and it's fun. Everyone's welcome.

The Collegian
113 Campus Center
545-3500

WE'LL PAY YOU TO GET INTO SHAPE THIS SUMMER.

If you have at least two years of college left, you can spend six weeks at our Army ROTC Basic Camp this summer and earn approximately $600.

And if you qualify, you can enter the ROTC 2-Year Program this fall and receive up to $1,000 a year.

But the big payoff happens on graduation day. That's when you receive an officer's commission.

So get your body in shape (not to mention your bank account).

Enroll in Army ROTC. For more information, contact your Professor of Military Science.

ARMY ROTC. BE ALL YOU CAN BE.

Contact: James C. Mahoney 545-2321/2322

50¢ OFF with this ad on buying full price ticket for March 8th performance ONLY

Ashes

A Play by David Rudkin
Frank Prentice Rand Theater
University of Massachusetts Fine Arts Center
March 9-12, 1983, 8:00 pm
Reservations: 545-3511

YOU CAN STILL SUBSCRIBE TO ALL THREE RAND THEATRE PRODUCTIONS
ASHES, THE COMEDY OF ERRORS, AND COMPANY

Chancellor's Lecture Series

Mark W. Roskill

"Photojournalism: Its Early Life & Times"

Thursday, March 10, 8 p.m.
Campus Center Auditorium
University of Massachusetts at Amherst

VOTE TODAY!

Presidential/BOG/ Residential Committee

SOUTHWEST
MacKimmie, JQA, JA, Patterson, Washington, Cance, Pierpont and Moore.....vote in Berkshire DC
James, Melville, Thoreau, JFK, Prince, Crampton, and Coolidge
.....vote in Hampshire D.C.

ORCHARD HILL/CENTRAL
.....vote in Franklin DC

SYLVAN/NORTHEAST
.....vote in Worcester DC
11 am - 6:30 pm

COMMUTERS/GREEKS
.....vote in front of the Hatch
from 9 - 4:30 pm

It Makes A Difference

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Monday - Friday • Deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10 % • discount • Phone number FREE

ATTENTION BOLTWOOD VOLUNTEERS

The seminers are Sundays 3/6 and 3/13 at 7 pm in the Commonwealth Room

ATTENTION UNIVERSITY WOMEN

Open meeting of Gemme Sigma Sigma - uniting collegwomen in the spirit od service to humanity - A National Service Sorority Tue March 8 7:30 PM CC rm 904 -for more info tel. 546-2068

AUTO FOR SALE

67 VW Conv inspected needs work $400 or BO 323-5918 leave message

For sale 1970 Ford Torino - 46,000 originel miles needs work - $500 or BO call 545-3500 before 5:00 549-4125 after 5:00 ask for Dan

73 Vellent, good cond. 225 slant six, $700 or BO 253-5956

1977 Datsun B210 automatic 66,000 miles AM/FM stereo 665-4188 or 549-2671 ext. 236

1973 Cutlass 4 dr 84000 miles stereo well maintained $1100 Ron 549-2656

For Sale 68 VW Bus engine runs good body needs work $200 665-3062 Jayne

BELLYGRAMS!!

Delivered by professional bellydancer for most unusual gift. Thereza, 253-7822

CAPE COD SUMMER RENTAL

West Yarmouth Seagull Beach duplex newly redone two bedrooms each side sleeps 4 includes all utilities 253-7436 $2550. Memorial Day thru Labor Day

ENTERTAINMENT

Rackadisc Entertainment Agency Inc. Bends and discjockeys guaranteed student functions 256-0739

Professional DJs for less $99 special ends March 15. Book now before price increase 549-4405

M & M Music Unlimited Professional DJ's for all occasions call Mike 546-5259

Jodi Leong, vocalist, & Mark Baszak, pianist. TOC Lounge, Fri., Sat., March 4 & 5

FOR RENT

Cape Cod Summer Seasonal Rentals W. Yarmouth & Dennis; 1, 2, 3, & 4 bedroom units. Rent direct from owners & save. 617/528-8300 or 771-2233.

FOR SALE

Kinks Concert! 2 tickets March 31st Worcester Centrum good seats 546-4419

1969 Horse Trailer 700.00 call Nat at 584-2700 x440 price negotibale

21" Univega Gran Tourismo custom bicycle ex. cond. $250.00 firm 665-4865

Terminal - ADDS 580 perfect for Cyber numeric keyped, white on black, 80 col call 6-4781 Scott

FOUND

Gold bracelet on PVTA bus. To identify call 546-5920

Gloves in Tobin Hall girlsroom found Feb 21st contact Rhondi at 253-5109 to identify

HELP WANTED

CRUISE SHIP JOBS! $14-$28,000 Caribean, Hawaii, World. Call for Guide, Directory, Newsletter. 916-722-1111 ext Massachusettes

General Office Help. Must type 50 wpm+. Work Study preferred. Call Jenny at UPC 545-2882

Alaska Jobs summer/year round, earn great money in this opportunity rich state, ie, earn $10,000-$12,000 on three month fishing boat. Send for 1983 Employer Listing and information packet covering all industries $5.00 Lental Reseach dept AA2114 satisfaction guaranteed

Programming Producer wanted for cable system call GPC: 545-2733

Cruise Ship Jobs! Great income potential, all occupations. For information call: 602-837-3401 ext 833

Representative wanted for effective, guaranteed scholarship location service. Brief profile to DMR Group, 29 Morningside Drive, Westfield, MA 01085

Performers needed for weeknight recreation programs (musicians, mime, etc.) Val 6-6623 Sendra 256-0501

Resident kitchen menager and accountant Butterfield Co-op Kitchen - fall of 83 and spring of 84 - manager 40 hours @ $4 per hour - acoountant 7 hours @ 3.50 per hour - both with room & board information and applications at Butterfield Kitchen Office - Butterfield Dorm - applications due March 18

Researcher needed variety of assignments good writing skills essential good pay please call 549-4755 if interested.

INSTRUCTION

Know your car. Basic Auto Mechanics Workshop. Classroom theory & shop. Limited enrollment. 253-2098

LAST CHANCE FOR FLORIDA!!

Ft. Lauderdale or Daytona - March 18-27 hotel and round trip transportation from $203 Andrea 6-9627

LESBIAN & GAY

FREE trained Lesbiam and Gay Peer Counseling and Referral 433 SU 545-2645

LOST

Keys on blue-clip keyring with words Le Chateau 546-8161

Lost - gold bracelet, Bartlett - Thompson Hall area. I really want it returned - it belonged to my mother. Reward. 323-5900

Keys with burgundy leather compartment keychain very important please call 546-5346

Lost eye glasses tinted brown. Between Thompson and Orch Hill reward 6-6669

Blue Down Vest Thur Night 2-24 in College Pizza. Buttons & inside label read "Northface" Sentimental value 546-1621

NEW YORK CITY BUSTRIP

March 12 sign-up FAC coffeeshop MW 9-10:00 12:15-1:15 TuTh 12:15-1:15 2:30-4:30 Fri 10-11:00 $20 roundtrip refreshments sponsored by ASA 546-7065

PERSONALS

Write-in Jim Finkle for SGA President

Look who supports us: Women's Disc (Zulu), Men's Lacrosse, Women's Swim, MacKimmie, Women's and Men's Gymnastics, Men's Wrestling, Men's Swim,Men's Water Polo, Emerson, Women's Soccer, Men's Soccer, Crampton, Orchard Hill Area Gov't, Southwest Exec. Council, Northeast Exec. Council, Central Area Gov't Exec. Council, Men's Rugby. Vote for Powers/Hegeler!

Write-in "none of the above" for SGA President - TODAY!

BoBo & Ernest T. Happy Birthday I Love You! - Kim

Herr - Have a successful and heppy year! Your Frau, Nika

Don't conform to the status quo - Vote Powers - Hegeler for SGA Co-Presidents

FREE: 1 year old German Shepard, good home only! Charlotte 323-6606

Eastern Orthodox Prayer Service in English is offered each Sunday at 5:30 PM; for all interested in e full expression of the Christian Faith in the Northempton area. A coffee hour follows. Please call 586-4045 for more info.

MLG Happy 22nd Birthday - Happiness always buddy love LBS and EFS

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Dissertations, Theses, Cases, Papers, guaranteed acceptance, low rates, Nancy 5-0392, 584-7924

RIDE NEEDED

Over Spring Break to Chicago Area drive and pay Dan 253-5369

Ride wanted to Syracuse/Cortland for weekend of 3/11. Please help. Bonnie 546-6074

Couple needs ride to Wash DC area 3/18 or 19 will share expenses! Flex on departure time. Call Kelley, 6-4207.

Ride needed to Penn: Stroughsburg or surrounding area for spring break. Will shere expenses. Call Keli 6-8340

ROOMMATE WANTED

Need roomate in Brittany Manor Apt for March, April, May, June lease call 253-3588 Brian Steve $135 will talk fin.

Female wanted for apartment in Cape Cod. $50 a week call 546-9617 or 546-9616

Roommate wanted Belchertown Ctr 150+ utl. no pets call 323-6506

SEND A FRIEND A GREEN CARNATION

Send a friend or someone special a green carnation for St. Patricks Day. Names will printed in the Collegian for pick up. A table will be on Campus Center Concourse beginning TODAY till Wed before Spring Break. Surprise someone

SERVICES

PAPER DUE? CAN'T WRITE? Tutor -english composition and grammar reasonable rates 6-9289

ILLUSTRATIONS done for your papers professional quality call 413-253-9848

Your typewriter or mine? I'm reliable and accurate. $1/page Kitty 6-7302

TO SUBLET

Part furn one bedroom apt in Cliffside $285 mo inc. option on lease 549-5589

TRAVEL

UMass Ski Club goes north Spring Break 83 March 20-25 Stowe. Ski club capital of the East. Only $159 includes: transportation, hot tub party, beer & wine parties, 5 day lift ticket, all taxes & gratuities & much, much, more. For more info contact the UMass Ski Club Rm 430A Student Union or call 545-3437

FLORIDA by van 3/19 - 27 $148 round trip wine/cheese accomodation info limited seats S.S. Van Lines 617-724-8810

WANTED

Class rings, gold and silver jewelry and coins. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant, Amherst, 256-0710

Help $50 reward for helping me by you parents unwanted second car 253-7189

Cash for your records, tapes 545-283 (ask for Jaromir/leave message)

Extra-fine pair of used stereo speakers 500 doller cash limit 527-5714

Drums $100 maximum spending price for 7-piece set wanted by end of March call between 6 & 9 PM 549-1342

Records LPs Cash or Trade Dynamite Records 584-1580

WANTED TO RENT

2 or 3 bedroom Townhouse or Puffton to rent from June on. John 546-9139 Mike 546-9141

1 bedroom apartment for fall 1983 call Lori or debbie 546-7701

2 or 3 bedroom apartment wanted in Puffton starting June through fall semester call Letty or Karen 546-7464

WRITE-IN

Write-in Stephen Davis for Campus Center Board of Govrnors at large

STYLES BY DEBORAH • STYLES BY DEBORAH • STYLES BY DEBORAH

NEW WAVE & DESIGN HAIRCUTS

$8.00 with this coupon
10.50 with shampoo & Blow Dry
11.50 long hair shampoo & Blow Dry
Free Consultations
please call for an appointment
STYLES BY DEBORAH
65 University Drive, Amherst
549-5610
C

♣ CONTRACT BRIDGE? ♢
Minimum Cost, Maximum Enjoyment
Many Area Games
Each Week for Beginners
through Experts
549-5084, 584-4261, 1-538-7830
ACBL sanctioned
♡ ♠

WAFFLE PARTY

Have Irons Will Travel
baked on cast iron with choice of toppings
617-344-2822

Scandinavian Auto Service
EXPERT SAAB & VOLVO REPAIRS
SAVE 10% OFF PARTS & LABOR
With This Coupon
Offer Ends March 31, 1983
Rte. 116, Sunderland, Sunoco Station
665-7665

Sports

UMass soars over URI in playoff win

By JIM FLOYD
Collegian Staff

Ron Washington scored his first point of the season last night, something indicative of the way things went for the Minutemen as they out-shot, out-rebounded, out-assisted, out-blocked and, most importantly, outscored the University of Rhode Island en route to a 91-74 whitewashing of the Rams.

When it rains it pours and, as UMass rode the surf, the Rams floundered. The Minutemen jumped out right away behind a balanced attack by the starting five.

Horace Neysmith drew first blood with a five foot turnaround after a nice feed from Donald Russell, who returned to the starting lineup for the first time in several games due to back problems suffered in a regular season clash with the Rams.

Horace "Pappy" Owens, one of the premier players in the Atlantic Ten, answered back a few seconds later with a drive and the score was knotted at 2-2.

After Owens scored though, the floodgates opened and the Minutemen took off.

John Hempel was the next UMass player in the scorebook when he buried one of his patented three pointers from deep in the left corner. Hempel, who has taken over as the leading scorer since Russell got hurt, eventually finished the night with 18 points to break Russell's freshman scoring record of 432 points by six points.

Hempel was followed by Edwin Green, then Darryl Carter, then Green again and, after a Rhode Island time out, Hempel hit again before Owens hit one of two free throws to end the Rhode Island scoring drought with the score 13-3 in favor of UMass.

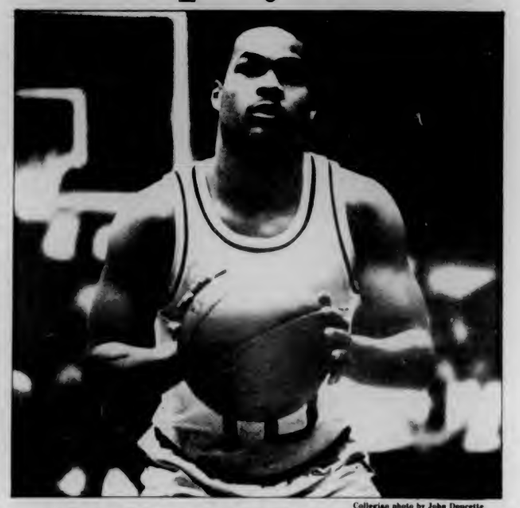
Two blinks later the score had reached 18-3 on a Russell 15-footer and a Hempel three point play (the old-fashioned kind where a player gets fouled and scores at the same time).

Thus began a long first half for the Rams as they tried desperately to claw back into the game which was, after all, a do or die playoff situation. But, by halftime, after some regrouping, the margin was 11 points with UMass on top, 49-38.

The second half was a more-of-the-same type deal. The Minutemen pushed their lead up to the high teens and low 20's and then Rhode Island would claw back to almost within striking distance but never quite close enough.

And as the clock ran down and the regulars were sitting comfortably on the bench, Washington entered the contest. With 1:28 showing on the clock, a Ram made the mistake of fouling the sharp-shooting senior and he calmly stepped to the line and buried his first shot. He missed the second but the crowd didn't care, Washington got an ovation anyway.

It was Washington's first point and the Minutemen's first step in the Atlantic Ten playoffs. They now travel to the Spectrum in Philadelphia to take on Rutgers University Wednesday night.



Collegian photo by John Doucette

Senior guard Ron Washington readies himself to shoot a free throw. Washington connected to up the UMass lead to 90-69 and notch his first point of the season.

Saying goodbye to four years of hoop memories

By ELLIOTT KALB
Collegian Staff

I'll miss the Cage. I already miss Alumni Stadium. I'm a senior sports fan who has spent the better part of the last four years rooting for the Minutemen. There were a lot of disappointments, but also a lot of fun. The basketball team never came close to a national championship, but winning isn't everything, is it?

The basketball team won four less games in four years (20) than St. John's has won this year. Coach Pickett's football team won more games in the 1979-1983 period than the basketball team.

Commentary

All this means is that, as basketball fans, we have had to settle for less as undergraduates of the Julius Erving University. The following are personal memories which stand out.

☆ ☆ ☆

Games at the Cage in '79-'80 being held up due to the rudeness of certain dogs, and in one case, a raccoon.

☆ ☆ ☆

Coach Ray Wilson — one of the nicest men on campus — handling a difficult situation. A team consisting of Pedro deLa Cruz, Ty Nedd, and Jeff Bierly just didn't match up with visiting talent like John Pinone, Alex Bradley, Kevin Troy, Earl Belcher, Sam Clancy, and Carlton Neverson.

☆ ☆ ☆

The recruitment and pre-season buildup over a center transfer from West Virginia's College of the Ozarks named Jim Mosier. Never have so few booed so loudly for someone who committed turnovers at a dizzying rate.

☆ ☆ ☆

High-school All American Pat Ewing from the Boston area narrowing his list of possible colleges to 16, including UMass.

☆ ☆ ☆

Playboy Magazine picking UMass as one of the worst Division I schools in the country in 1980-81. You take nationwide publicity where you can get it.

☆ ☆ ☆

The upset victory at home in December 1981 against Duquesne. That was UMass' first conference victory (and first victory over a Division I opponent) in over a year.

☆ ☆ ☆

The three-year career of center Edwin Green. He was there in the ashes of a once-great hoop program, and is the foundation of this rebuilding squad.

☆ ☆ ☆

The development of John Hempel over the course of the current season. He will be the premier forward in the conference soon, if he isn't already.

☆ ☆ ☆

The play of the Minutemen at home over the last six weeks. As Rutgers and St. Joseph's found out after escaping the Cage with narrow victories, the joke is over. Duquesne, Rhode Island, and St. Bonaventure came away empty handed, beaten by a clearly superior team.

☆ ☆ ☆

The Minutemen fans over the last four years remember Jay Stewart, the starting center in 1979, and Ron Washington, who once was the starting playmaker. They remember the class of coach Wilson, and the enthusiasm and accessability of coach McLaughlin.

Minutemen fans will finally experience a contending team over the next two years. UMass hoop has indeed stayed the course, and has turned the corner on bad times. It wasn't so long ago that WMUA was the only station to cover the Minutemen.

A tremendous goodbye and good luck to coach McLaughlin and next year's squad. There is no better bargain in the Pioneer Valley than a basketball game at the Cage.

For seniors, we will follow the Minutemen through sketchy AP or UPI reports. It will not be long till conference championships and playoff bids come Massachusetts' way.

So we didn't make the Final Four this year. Ah, most of us couldn't afford the plane fare to New Mexico anyway.

The Curry Hicks fever that engulfs the people

By DAVID B. MINER
Collegian Staff

I read with some amusement the Collegian articles written by my two colleagues Jim Floyd and Rich Nangle concerning the famous or infamous 40 Minute Gang.

How one would classify this group, heroes or bums is, as Casey Stengel once said, a matter of choice. Myself, I kind of get a chuckle from their antics.

Commentary

Both Rich and Jim make valid points about the 40 Minute Gang.

There can be no question that in showing their affection for their Team, My Team, Our Team, the UMass Minutemen, that some members of the 40 Minute Gang allow their enthusiasm to carry them to extremes.

There can be no question that UMass basketball fans need to be re-educated, the 40 Minute Gang included, not, as you point out Jim, on how to get involved in a game, but in how to deal with something over which they have no control, The Fever.

I thought that at 35 years of age, having experience in the 1967 Red Sox, the 1969 Mets, cock fights in Asia, the running of the bulls in Spain, even horse racing at Royal Ascot in England, that I was immune to the fever, but, I found that I wasn't.

I tried to put the blame on you, Jim (you did write in one of your articles that in order to ge a seat at Curry Hicks Cage, one must get in line at least an hour early, and I being a first semester student on campus took that advice.

What is this mysterious malady which causes an admittedly overweight, over the hill nonjock whose main ambition in life is to obtain a college degree to sit down and think of reasons to skip his evening classes in order to watch of all things, college basketball?

Is it school spirit?

Is it a desire to lose one's self in the midst of a crowd, to be able to let out a primative scream to let it all out?

No, the answer is not quite that simple.

Jim, you may have touched on the cause when you refered to the Curry Hicks Cage as venerable.

Taking your advise to go early, I arrived for the Rhode Island game at 6:15 and, except for stadium personel, the Cage was pretty well deserted.

Upon entering, I experienced a feeling that only once before has overwhelmed me. This feeling is hard to express in words and I can only do so by comparing this occasion with the previous happening.

At that time I was stationed in England and stopped in, as tourists are apt to do, to visit the buildings of Parliament in London. The oldest part is what was once the Throne Room for the rulers of England, Westminster.

It, like Curry Hicks Cage is a plain, unadorned, empty room. Empty except for the presence. It was here that Nelson, Churchill, Kings, Queens, Heads of State were laid out in splendor. It was here that Sir Thomas Moore roared out his defiance to Henry VIII. Here is where 1000 years of English history was lived. One can not help but feel the presence, it's overpowering.

Two steps into the Cage, I knew that once again I was being caught up by a force over which I had no control.

Curry Hicks Cage was and still is our sense of history, our tradition of greatness past, our hope of greatness yet to come.

While the spirit of Westminster spurred the people of England on to greater efforts during the dark days of the Blitz during WW II, so does the spirit of Curry Hicks spur the residents of the University of Massachusetts to greater efforts. This is why there isstanding room only for home games. This is why members of the Minutemen feel up for games at the Cage.

Rich, Jim, there is no use blaming the 40 Minute Gang, they, like I and the 5000 others who crowd the venerable old place have no control over our emotions once we cross through the doors. You, like us can only do one thing, enjoy the experience because seldom is one so priviledged.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
Volume CXII, Issue 92 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003 (413) 545-3500 Wednesday, March 9, 1983

Allen and Ahern win by a landslide

Powers, Hegeler place 2nd, voter turnout up from 1982

By JOHN O'CONNELL
and MARK WELCH
Collegian Staff

Charlene Allen and Tom Ahern caputred 49 percent of a large voter turnout to win a landslide victory over three opposing candidacies for the office of Student Government Association (SGA) President.

Allen and Ahern received 2,371 out of a total 4,838 votes cast, while runners-up Siobhan Powers and Fran Hegeler took 30 percent, with 1,454 votes. David Groom came in third with 521 votes and Ron Lipof and Eric Mann got 237 votes, according to Mindy Ordway, chair of the Governmental Affairs Committee. Write-in candidate Jim Finkle received 38 votes.

A referendum question on the General Education Curriculum proposal received more undecided votes than votes either supporting or opposing the proposal. Only 1,409 students indicated they approve of the proposal, with 754 opposed to it, while 1,925 said they did not have enough information to decide and almost 900 left the question blank.

"I'm psyched," said winning Trustee candidate Charlene Allen when she learned she and Ahern had won. "We're going to get the chance to do a lot of things we wanted to do for students."

"I've never won a presidency before," said Ahern. "I don't know what to say."

"I'd like to thank everybody who worked on our campaign. We couldn't have done it without them."

Ahern congratulated the other candidates on their effort and concern.

"We're going for a unified student body, and we hope the students support our endeavors," said Allen.

After the election, Undergraduate Student Senate Speaker Sharon Davies offered praise for the manner in which Elections Coordinator Mindy Ordway ran the elections this year.

"I think Mindy did a wonderful job with the elections," Davies said. "It's an extremely difficult job to pull off, because you have lots of conflicting opinions."

"I think that her experience from last year really helped out with this year's elections," Davies said.

Turnout at this election with 4,838 votes cast, was much higher than last year, when 4,162 students cast ballots in the first election and almost as many voted in a runoff election. However, while last year's two top vote-getters took only 32 percent of the vote each, this year's top two candidacies took 49 percent and 30 percent of the vote.

During their campaign, Allen and Ahern encouraged the establishment of a bottle and can redemption center in the Campus Center and proposed that a monthly newsletter be sent to all students. They also support rent control and suggested possible changes in UMass bus schedules.

None of the other candidates listed on the ballot were available for comment following the election results.

And the winners are...

Charlene Allen and Tom Ahern 2,371 votes

Siobhian Powers, Fran Hegeler	1,454
Dave Groom	521
Ron Lipoff, Eric Mann	237
Jim Finkle (write in)	38

Collegian photo by Jim Powers

Rep. Joseph Early, D-Mass., responds to questions Monday in his Capitol Hill office from the Students Advocating Financial Aid (SAFA) group, which is lobbying to preserve financial aid in Washington this week.

SAFA targets conservatives for successful lobby efforts

By RICH NANGLE
Collegian Staff

Conservative legislators were the targets of lobbying efforts yesterday by University of Massachusetts' Students Advocating Financial Assistance (SAFA).

Many SAFA members knocked on the doors of congressmen who were likely to support the Reagan administration's proposed budget cuts. Not all of the efforts were in vain.

SAFA president Jim Quinn said he believed his group may have changed the opinions of an aide to Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nevada. Laxalt is a staunch conservative who has consistently voted for Reagan's programs.

Quinn said Barbara Burgess, Laxalt's legislative assistant on education, told the group she learned good arguments to relay to the senator on funding priorities. SAFA explained to Burgess that more funding for work study programs is useless to college students since there are not enough jobs to go around even at the present level.

Burgess also told SAFA members she was unaware that individual needs tests, advocated by the Reagan administration, did not take into account the number of college-age children in a family.

Quinn told Burgess that there will be five people in college from his family next year. Burgess replied she believes that this is an example of why Reagan's needs test is illogical.

Personal testimonies are very important to legislators, Quinn said. Legislators can grasp the problem much more easily when given specific examples, he said.

An aide to Carl Perkins, D-Kentucky, chairman of the House Education and Labor Committee, advocated passing out packets of personal testimony documenting students' financial troubles, to legislators voting on aid programs. The aide, Alan Lovesce, also told SAFA members that it is important for the group to lobby congressmen in districts other than their own. Legislators often believe that this shows that lobbyists are concerned for all students, not just the ones in their districts, he said.

Some legislators, however, have refused to see SAFA members since no members are from their district or state.

In another appointment, Mark Powden, legislative assistant to Rep. James Jeffords, R-Vermont, criticized the Reagan administration for proposed increases in Pell grants at the expense of other programs.

"A common thing with all their programs is that they combine two programs and come up with a figure that's something less (than the two amounts combined)," Powden said.

Dukakis asks $3.8 million for library facade repairs

By JIM FINKLE
Collegian Staff

Two proposals pending in the state legislature would allow the University of Massachusetts to fully utilize the structurally deficient Tower Library, riddled with problems since its opening in 1973.

Gov. Michael S. Dukakis last week requested the state legislature to appropriate $3,830,000 "for repairs and renovation to the library building," according to the governor's fiscal year 1984 capital outlay recommendations.

These funds would eventually be used to remedy bricks spalling from the facade of the Tower Library, according to UMass Director of Planning H.J. Littlefield.

Spalling occurs when pieces of brick chip from the facade, failing to the ground, potentially upon pedestrians.

The University has already been appropriated $2.5 million for "repairs and renovations" on the Tower Library, Littlefield said.

Because replacing or repairing the facade is a complicated process that needs to be studied carefully before beginning work, Littlefield said the administration will concentrate on other renovations that will make the building fully operational as soon as possible.

Littlefield said the University must repair the building's elevators and erect a covered walkway at the entrance level to protect pedestrians from the spalling bricks until the facade is repaired or replaced.

The University has asked the state legislature to change the wording in the $2.5 million appropriation passed in 1980, so improvements, such as erecting a walkway, can be implemented.

Littlefield said the UMass adminstration, trustees, state Board of Regents and local legislators have been helpful in supporting the wording change. However, the bill that the change was attached to — the governor's supplemental appropriations — ran into trouble in December and was not passed.

Stan Rosenberg, an aide to Sen. John Olver, D-Amherst, said Olver is actively working to pass the wording change.

He said the December defeat of the proposal was not reflective of its content, but was a victim of legislative intricacies "I think it (the change) would be a non-controversial item," Rosenberg said.

He said that while he cannot predict when the change will be considered by the legislature it could be included in either the governor's supplemental budget or the governor's jobs bill — House 5000.

"There is not an imminent danger of losing sections of brick veneer," Littlefield said. "However, the spalling will continue until we do something about the expansion joints."

Expansion joints are designed to absorb pressure when the building materials expand and contract due to weather conditions. The mortar-filled expansion joints in the building are not flexible enough to absorb that pressure.

"It's a situation where the cure might be worse than the disease," Littlefield said. "But, you've got to take more care than that (in repairing the brick facade)."

Of the $2.5 million appropriation, Littlefield estimated the University would use $.5 million to hire a consultant to determine exactly how to solve the spalling problem.

"It's going to take time, testing, and analysis before implementation," Littlefield said.

The library was constructed by Daniel O'Connell and Sons Inc. of Holyoke from designs by the architectural firm of Edward Durell Stone and Associates. The tower has been repeatedly plagued with problems originating from its brick facade.

Concern for the safety of the students, employees, and the general public due to falling brick chips forced the initial closing of and the continued restricted access to the tower. An independent engineering consulting firm, Loomis and Loomis Inc., was hired to review the building and recommend ways to rectify the problem. Their conclusions that serious problems existed led to the intial closing.

Digest

By the Associated Press

Springfield plan to dump sewage into river halted by EPA official for insufficient data

BOSTON — A request by the city of Springfield to temporarily dump wastewater into the Connecticut River will require more examination, delaying the plan until at least the fall, federal officials said yesterday.

Paul Keough, the acting deputy regional administrator for the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, said more time was needed to study the city's request.

"We plan to have full public input into the decision process," he said. "But we feel it would be better to hold the session after all possible alternatives have been thoroughly reviewed."

Springfield officials had asked permission to dump from eight to 10 million gallons of combined waste and storm sewage daily into the Connecticut while repairs are made to its York Street pump station. The repairs are believed to require about two weeks to complete.

The city had asked for a quick decision, saying that the work had to be completed by April 1 to minimize any possible harm the dumping could have on aquatic life.

OPEC ministers meet in London on prices; failure to compromise could worsen world glut

LONDON — A key Arab oil minister said yesterday chances had dimmed that OPEC could agree on a uniform price cut to avoid a global price war. A series of meetings by the cartel's leaders yielded no signs of compromise.

Mana Saeed Oteiba, the oil chief of the United Arab Emirates, told reporters during a break in the talks that chances of agreement were "not very good."

The cartel is under intense pressure to cut prices for the first time in its 22-year history because a world oil glut has reduced its sales. Lower prices would be expected to stimulate demand.

Failure to reach agreement in London could trigger a series of price cuts by hard-pressed members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries. The result could mean lower energy prices worldwide.

Saudi Arabia and its Persian Gulf allies, representing the biggest oil-producing bloc in the world, have said they would reduce their prices unilaterally if the full cartel could not agree on a lower price. The gulf nations produce about 40 percent of OPEC's oil.

Humberto Calderon Berti, who shuttled between the hotel suites of various OPEC leaders Tuesday morning, said after all 13 members had met that only the question of cutting prices had been discussed.

Calderon said a new benchmark price between $28.50 and $30 a barrel, down from a current $34, was the range discussed at Tuesday's summit.

Today's Staff

Night Editor — Bill Wall
Copy Editor — Edward L. Birk
Layout Technician — Susan Bankert
Photo Technician — John Doucette
Composition — Donna Maurice, Jenny Winslow, Andrea Repass
Laura Shanahan, Will Hopkins, Mat Atkins, Sam Levitt, James Shanahan

Subscription Rates

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday excluding vacations, exam periods, or holidays. Subscriptions are available for $18 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Massachusetts. Postmaster: Send address changes to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003.

AP Laserphoto

Maine Department of Transportation employee Frank Waterman is able to go about his job of keeping the highways clean due to the recent rain falls which washed away the snow.

British lawmakers extend controversial anti-terrorism act amid unexpected opposition

LONDON — The House of Commons has voted to extend for a year the controversial act which grants police special powers to combat terrorism in Northern Ireland and elsewhere.

Over opposition from the Labor Party, legislators voted 217 to 129 Monday night to renew the Prevention of Terrorism Act, which was introduced in 1976. It was the first time the Laborites have voted against annual renewal of the act's anti-terrorist powers, which were due to expire March 24.

The vote was taken after Home Secretary William Whitelaw said the government plans to propose new anti-terrorist legislation in Parliament.

Reagan orders evangelists to pulpits against support of popular nuclear freeze movement

ORLANDO, Fla. — President Reagan urged Christian evangelists yesterday to use their pulpits to preach against a nuclear weapons freeze and spread the message that the United States and the Soviet Union are in a "struggle between right and wrong, good and evil."

Reagan's assault upon freeze advocates and "those who would place the United States in a position of military and moral inferiority" followed by two hours the House Foreign Affairs Committee's formal endorsement of a weapons freeze proposal.

The panel approved a freeze resolution 27-9 as an estimated 5,000 supporters cheered outside the Capitol. A similar measure, calling for a mutual, verifiable halt in nuclear weapons production, failed in the House last year by just two votes, but sponsors are confident of passage this time in the chamber. A stiffer test is expected in the Senate.

Reagan branded the Soviet Union an "evil empire" bent on aggression and denounced totalitarian states as "the focus of evil in the modern world."

STICK IT HERE...

and win a trip to Daytona Beach.

Enter the "Bump 'n Jump" video game championship on campus at the place and times listed below. If you get the highest score in the tournament, Dodge will fly you to Daytona Beach for Spring Break where you'll be a special participant in the Collegiate Driving Championships. Your 25¢ donation will go to a worthy charity designated by the Student Organization that is administrating the tournament

Sponsor Undergraduate Business Club
Place in front of the Hatch
Date March 9th - 15th
Time 12:00 - 3:30

STICK IT THERE...

and win the use of a new Dodge Shelby Charger and a $2,000 scholarship.

If you are going to Daytona Beach for Spring Break, you can participate in the 1983 Collegiate Driving Championships sanctioned by the Sports Car Club of America as a Solo II Rally. Dodge will provide the Shelby Charger for you to drive in the rally and each weekly winner will be awarded the use of the car for one year and a $2,000 scholarship. Valid student ID and drivers license required

Daytona Beach Florida
Plaza Hotel
March 14-April 2, 9 am-7 pm

Win the use of a new Dodge Shelby Charger. Official car of the Collegiate Driving Championships - March 14-April 2 - Daytona Beach, Florida

Dodge
AMERICA'S DRIVING MACHINES

HIGHEST PRICES PAID
- FOR -
GOLD & SILVER
IN ALL FORMS
MANHAN JEWELLERS
3 PLEASANT ST. (CORNER OF MAIN)
NORTHAMPTON MA 01060
(413) 584-7000

Cards for
St. Patrick's Day
March 17th
at
A.J. HASTINGS
Newsdealer and Stationer
45 S. Pleasant St., Amherst

★★MOVIE★★
ARTHUR
Starring.....Dudley Moore and Liza Minnelli
Thursday March 10th
Engineering East Aud.
7, 9, 11 p.m.

Collegian photo by John Doucette

Singer Patty Larkin performs in front of a crowd of people in the Campus Center yesterday in conjunction with International Women's Day. She was sponsored by the Governor's Program Council.

Women's Event celebration a success over last year's

By CRIS SCHUSTER
Collegian Staff

Balloons flew and singers sang yesterday as the two-day International Women's Event at the University of Massachusetts came to a close.

The event, in honor of the International Women's Day, was sponsored by the Distinguished Visitors Program, the Fine Arts Council, Union Program Council, the Undergraduate and Graduate Senate, and the Student Center for Educational Research and Advocacy (SCERA).

The event was an "exciting celebration" with a lot of enthusiasm, said Tildy Turchinetz, a staff member of SCERA.

"It was much more of a celebration than a political event," she said. "Women celebrating is a political event."

Turchinetz said some people involved in the planning, said the event was like being in Filene's Basement with all the excitement.

More than 1000 balloons stamped with International Women's Day were given away on the concourse as well as 150 T-shirts, she said.

"Over 2000 brochures were given away. That's a lot of enthusiasm," she said.

Seven movies were shown on Monday as the first part of the event. Movies included Mitsuye and Nellie, Straight Talk about Lesbians, and Do Blondes Have More Fun.

Two workshops were held yesterday dealing with women's working conditions in labor unions and women in the private and public realm. One workshop, "Women Finding Their Own Voice," was cancelled because of a lack of organization, she said.

Turchinetz said this year's two-day event was more successful than last year's week-long event for Internation Women's Day.

"Thousands of students participated," she said. There was more celebration and participation this year as a result of tables and entertainment in the Campus Center concourse sponsored by the event. The event received much more attention from the campus community than last year, she said.

A martial arts demonstration by Amherst Aikikai and Valley Women's Martial Arts was also held in the concourse. New Harmony Sisterhood Band and Patty Larkin performed yesterday afternoon. The Phoebe Snow concert last night at the Fine Arts Center concluded the day-long International Women's event.

'Women still oppressed' labor force speakers say

By ROBIN MANDEL
Collegian Staff

The women's role in the labor industry is substantially more oppressed than the male's role, said Victoria Morris, one of four women who participated in a labor force panel discussion for International Women's Week yesterday.

Morris, member of the Mass. Coalition of Battered Women's Movement, joined Lee Ash, Myra Hindus and Karen Gerstel to speak about the frustrations women face as members of the American labor force.

Today, women earn only 59 cents to a man's dollar, said Lee Ash, member of the Boston 9-5 women's organization.

"Before the turn of the century, clerical work had been a male-dominated job field. Men were well-respected and well-paid but by the beginning of the 20th century, women started to try their hand at this profession. Gradually, this male-dominated field, shifted to a female-dominated field," Ash said.

According to Ash, one out of every three women in 1983 is doing clerical work, representing more than 20 million women in the world. As a result, 20 million women are oppressed, she said.

women to take necessary, aggressive steps to inform women about health hazards such as migraine headaches, cataracts, eye strain and risks to unborn babies, said Hindus, representative of the Western Massachusetts chapter of Coalition of Labor Union Women (CCLUW).

Women must be informed and warned about sexual discrimination, she said.

Morris, who did a study on Southern textile women workers, said, "women have been oppressed for many centuries. According to author Louis McDonald's book, Southern Mill's Hill, women in the early 1900's were taught to learn with silence. Men were able to crush women with their dominance and women became known for their Southern passivity."

Morris said her study, consisting of interviews with mill women, examines the frustrations that three specific women have undergone during their lives. According to Morris, Bertha Miller, one of her case studies, was all of 11 years old when she went to work.

"Bertha as well as all the other women in the textile factories are subjected to horrible health hazards. Bertha and her colleagues had to learn to dip snuff (tobacco) to keep the cotton dust out of their throats," she said.

Administrators refuse SGA election control

By JOHN O'CONNELL
Collegian Staff

A letter signed by five of the seven Area Government presidents was sent to University of Massachusetts officials last week requesting that the administration assist in overseeing the Student Government elections, citing a "documented history of election improprieties."

However, both Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs Dennis L. Madson and Dean of Students William F. Field said they would take no action on the letters, though both said they had received and read it.

The letter asks that University administration members "assist the Student Government Association in overseeing the elections." However, Dean Field said, "I don't think they really believed anything was going to come out of that."

"The SGA runs the election," Dean Field said. "They didn't ask me to be involved this year and I never volunteered."

Vice Chancellor Madson said that he had not seriously considered the letter, either, and that he was not concerned with the election in general.

"I really count on Rany (Donant), as director of student activities, to oversee that," Madson said.

Randy Donant, Director of the Student Activities Office (SAO), said he had not received a copy of the letter, and he kept with the usual policy of having SAO personnel volunteer time at the ballot boxes to make sure they stayed open in case student volunteers did not show up.

The letter was signed by the five Residential Area Government presidents and was sent to the administration by Southwest Area Government co-president and SGA presidential candidate Fran Hegeler, but it was written by Powers-Hegler campaign worker Dave McCarthy.

Asked to substantiate the "history of election improprieties" mentioned in the letter, McCarthy referred to ballot-boxes "found massively stuffed" in the 1980 election, and ballot boxes taken off campus and possibly tampered with in the 1977 election. McCarthy would not elaborate on these accounts, but said they were "documented by Whitmore" in a "report on the elections."

Elections coordinator Mindy Ordway said she heard "nothing official" about administration involvement.

"I'm the only official person recognized," she said.

7,000 arms freeze supporters cheer resolution's passage

By PAUL BASKEN
Collegian Staff

WASHINGTON — More than 7,000 persons from nearly all 50 states, including 80 persons from Massachusetts, first Congressional District, yesterday brought their message of support for a nuclear arms freeze to Capitol Hill with a rally lobby day.

The day's events were highlighted by a rally at noon on the west steps of the Capitol where several legislators supporting the freeze promised their continued work for it.

Sen. Alan Cranson, D-Calif., the only declared presidential candidate to address the rally, reiterated his pledge of support for the freeze and his plans to make it a primary campaign issue in 1984.

"I run for the presidency of the United States deeply committed to the belief that we must end this nightmare," Cranston said of the prospect for nuclear war.

Following Cranston, Rep. Jim LAach, R-Iowa, walked to the podium with an announcement that "ten minutes ago, the House Foreign Affairs Committee voted 27 to 9 in favor of the freeze." After applause for the vote, which sent the resolution to the full House for a vote next week, Leach described arms control as "far too important a concern to be left to a few politicians."

Before the rally, Rep. Edward J. Markey, D-Malden, co-sponsor of House Joint Resolution 2, predicted passage of that freeze resolution in both the committee and the full House as a result of last November's elections in which "it was a very important issue in two to three dozen races."

After passage of the freeze, a non-binding "sense-of-the-Congress" resolution, Markey said a possible path for its proponents to subsequently follow would be to watch Defense Authorization bills in which the funding for weapons is itemized and "fenced." Fencing the spending authorization would mean the funding for an item would only be approbed if the Soviet Union begins production of a similar item, Markey said. He rejected the argument now offered by some freeze opponents that verifiability in arms agreements is unachievable, and instead claims present technology allows such verification from outside the Soviet Union.

During the lobbying period of the day, persons from Massachusetts' First Congressional District delivered more than 3,000 proxy forms signed by freeze supporters to their Congressman, Rep. Silvio O. Conte, R-Pittsfield.

"These things were a cinch," to collect, lobbyist Jana Catuccio said. "People were signing them in droves."

"If anyone said we'd come within two votes of passing the freeze (in the House last year, 204-202), I'd have said 'no way,'" said Conte, who along with Markey introduced the bill. "This time we'll win it. We won it in the committee today and we'll win it in the House."

Nuclear freeze opponents gathered on Capitol Hill

By PAUL BASKEN
Collegian Staff

WASHINGTON — While pro-nuclear freeze activists called for an end to the arms race on the Capitol's west lawn, Congressmen and others of the Coallition for Peace Through Strength rallied for increased weapons spending on its north side.

"The bad news is we had to sit and swallow all kinds of garbage this morning," said Rep. Mark Siljander, R-Mich., who earlier in the day sat in opposition on the House Foreign Affairs Committee as it passed the nuclear freeze resolution 27 to 9. "The good news is that the people of this country are not going to stand for it," Siljander said.

A crowd of about 500 persons consisting primarily of uniformed members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars listened for more than an hour as several Congressmen, Coalition members, and the Rev. Jerry Falwell of the Moral Majority spoke against the freeze resolution at their noon rally. Many audience members held signs issued by rally organizers which stated, "The Soviet Union wants you — support a U.S. 'nuclear freeze,' " and "Ask an Afghan about Soviet peace."

Congressional members of the Coalition for Peace Through Strength, a bi-partisan pro-defense group, which has in the past fought the ratification by the Senate of both SALT treaties with the Soviet Union, announced plans at the rally to re-introduce their "Peace Through Strength Resolution," which did not achieve passage last year in Congress.

"History shows that weakness in the face of expansionism always leads to war or surrender," John M. Fisher, executive chairman of the coalition, said explaining the bill. "The American people won't buy the freeze when they learn the facts. Today, marks the beginning of that educational process."

New administrators to help relations

By GREG BROWN
Collegian Staff

Two new administrative positions, created a year ago by the Division of Housing Services, were filled this semester in order to "build better relations between students and staff in the residence halls," Joseph Zannini, Housing Services director, said recently.

Assistant Director, Charles Durant, will supervise residential education activities in Southwest, while Larry Moneta will be assistant director of residential education for the remainder of the campus.

Zannini said since his arrival in Sept. 1981, the Division of Housing Services was formed as a combination of the Office of Residential Life and the Housing Administration. "These new positions are a part of that consolidation," he said.

"Besides coordinating administrative tasks, the new assistant directors will be supervising the residential staffs, and trying to match staff programming to student needs," Zannini said.

Moneta and Durant will also be in charge of residential and judiciary activities and the integration of student staffs with professional ones, Zannini said.

Moneta said that he wants to "redefine the purposes of residential education, and try to complement physical comfort with student growth."

Zannini said, "We have 364 RAs in the dorms, whose job, we feel is to develop an environment to help students reach their personal as well as academic goals."

The residential education directors will supervise the student RAs, Zannini added.

GPC plans events

By MICHAEL HOTALING
Collegian Correspondent

Most students are aware of the variety of entertainment that takes place in the Campus Center. What they don't realize is that many of these events are sponsored by the Governor's Program Council (GPC).

"GPC sponsors a variety of entertainment in the Campus Center complex at minimal or no cost to students," Barbara Jean Curtis, GPC coordinator said.

Entertainment sponsored by GPC has included comedy nights at the Blue Wall, the comic group "Slaphappy," which performed on Metawampe Lawn, and mimes and musicians who have performed in the lobby of the Student Union.

A musical slide show, "I Saw the Wind," was co-produced with the Hampden Student Center in Southwest and was performed in the Student Union Ballroom, at Hampden, and at Worcester Dining Commons. Curtis said she hopes to work with Bob Antil to produce events that would be performed in two shows, one in the Blue Wall and a second at Hampden, making the event available to all students. Also being considered, Curtis said, is the possibility of a comedy night at the back of the Hatch, where students of all ages could attend.

GPC also sponsors the cable system which works with the Union Video Council to present videotaped events in the Student Union. The cable system is available to groups wanting to record events.

Curtis, who was formerly office manager at the Union Program Council (UPC), said cooperation between the two Recognized Student Organizations is very good. On March 29 they will be co-sponsoring an Open Mike comedy contest at the Blue Wall, to be judged by a representative of the "Catch a Rising Star" comedy nightclub in New York. The winner will travel to New York to perform at the club. On April 5 three comedians from the New York club will be here to perform at the Blue Wall.

Newslines...

Moment magazine editor to speak on American Jews

Dr. Leonard Fein, editor-in-chief of MOMENT magazine, an independent magazine of Jewish opinion, is scheduled to speak on "American Jews and Israel," at 4 p.m. today in Room 804-08 of the Campus Center. He will also speak at 7:30 tonight in Wright Hall Common Room at Smith College.

Some Whitmore offices closed for next three Thursdays

The Registrar's, Records and Transcripts Offices will be closed tomorrow and the following Thursdays: March 17, 24. Any questions should be directed to Marion Markwell at the Registrar's office.

Former Gnomon Copy workers open a new 'collective store'

By PAULA HOYT
Collegian Staff

When Gnomon Copy Center in downtown Amherst closed recently, six of the employees decided that the town still needed their copy service, and that they needed jobs.

Last week, those six workers opened a new shop in Amherst, Collective Copies, to replace the service provided by Gnomon.

Gnomon copy workers went on a three-month strike beginning in September, 1982. In the middle of January, just after the strike had been settled, Gnomon Copy was without a lease and was asked to shut down by the landlord, said Carol MacColl, a former Gnomon employee who is now a worker at Collective Copies.

The Gnomon workers had demanded wage increases which they had not received in 20 months. MacColl said the need for better health and safety conditions within the shop was also an issue of the strike. The workers' health insurance had lapsed, and at the onset of the strike they had none, she said.

Between the beginning of the strike and the final settling negotiations, the landlord ordered the eviction. According to MacColl, the owners of Gnomon settled the strike because of the eviction demanded as well as the fact that Gnomon had been $20,000 in debt.

She said the onwers had hoped that after the strike had been settled, the landlord would change his mind.

The six former Gnomon employees began their plans in December to open the new collective shop.

"We decided Gnomon was a service that was still necessary. We as workers had a good reputation and I think we have brought that with us," said MacColl.

She said an article discussing plans for the shop resulted in a number of people contacting them and offering donations. The $14,000 necesary to open was collected within six weeks through personal loans.

"People were so generous and responsive. We got enough money that we didn't have to go to banks," MacColl said.

Other funds were collected from people willing to prepay for their copies at a 25 percent discount, MacColl said.

Collective Copies is almost the same service that was offered by Gnomon. A major difference, according to MacColl, is that all six employees now share the management and have equal say.

"There is no hierarchy, but before we were simply employees and didn't have much to say about decisions," MacColl said.

Gnomon was part of an eight-store franchise, with a central office in Boston. Collective Copies is locally owned, which MacColl said makes it easier for the customers.

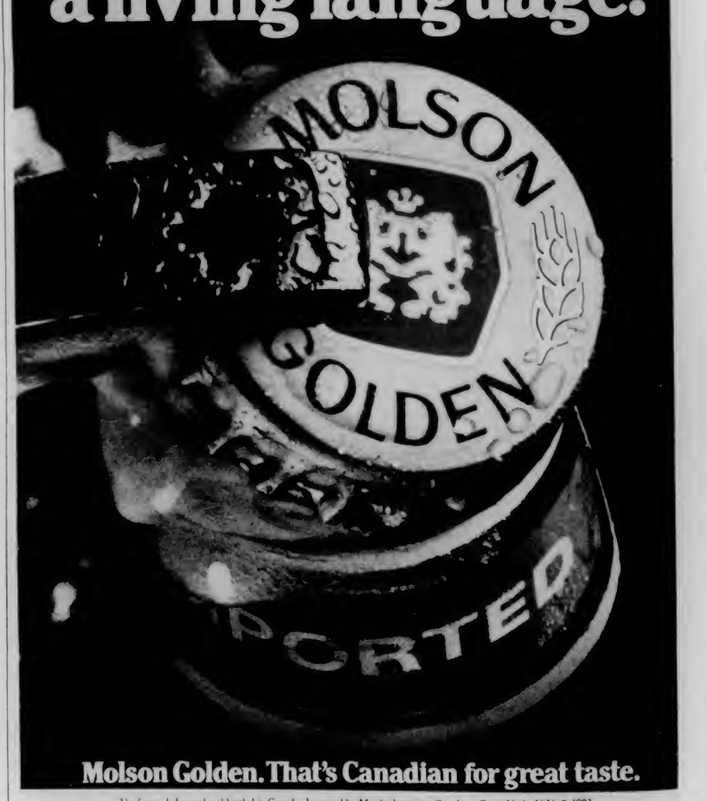
"Now all the money stays in the community and charge customers don't have to deal with paper work in Boston," she said.

Two of the Collective Copies workers are employed part time, the other four work full time. The shop is open during late-night hours and seven days a week. The other four former Gnomon workers have gone on to work elsewhere, MacColl said.

MacColl said, after being open a week, that the new shop seems to be headed toward being as good as Gnomon copy.

"We've definitely had business. We're just starting out, and like any business, it takes a while to build it up," she said.

Canadian is a living language.



Molson Golden. That's Canadian for great taste.

The finest ale brewed and bottled in Canada. Imported by Martlet Importing Co., Inc., Great Neck, N.Y. © 1983.

Free poster/Guide to Beer Tasting Parties.
Send self-addressed stamped #10 envelope to: Molson Golden Guide, 888 Seventh Avenue, Box M, New York, NY 10106.

Collegian photo by Drew Ogier

It seems as if the world is flying by junior Marc Cajolet as he and his bike are stationary, but the COINS major was taking a ride last Sunday outside Amherst High School.

Graduate Senate discusses South African conference

By SEAN CASEY
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts Graduate Student Senate discussed last night the motion passed by the Senate two weeks ago concerning University funding for Prof. Robert Wilce's trip to the Sandy Beach Ecosystem Congress conference held in the Republic of South Africa.

The Senate passed on February 15 a motion which stated: "The University of Massachusetts Graduate Student Senate is opposed to the use of University funds to finance academic and professional contacts with the Republic of South Africa.

George W. Claxton, a senator from the Anthropology Department, questioned the possible precedent set by the Senate if it passed a motion solely concerning research done in South Africa.

"If we were to prepare a list of countries that oppress their people, South Africa would probably be low on our list when compared to some other areas around the world," Claxton said. "If we try to cut ourselves off from areas that oppress its people, we'd cut ourselves off from everywhere," Claxton added.

Claxton said the Senate should rescind the motion and come up with a new one or provide exceptions to the motion, such as if the research being done could not be done anywhere else in the world.

Attending the Senate meeting to oppose Claxton and applaud the senate on its "positive action" in passing the motion was George McKenzie, a member of the Third World Caucus.

"Of course one could scan the globe to find many areas of oppression, but the situation in South Africa is unique," McKenzie said. "South Africa has done more than any other nation to find holes in the international attitudes toward it in order to get people to do things with it to increase its contact with the Western World," McKenzie added.

Claxton added that "All research is politically influenced, but can we impose restrictions on where someone can do research or who they can talk to?"

"It is one thing to speak about academic freedom, but it is another thing to consider how the information exchanged will be used by the regime governing South Africa," McKenzie said.

The senate finally decided to table all discussion until its next meeting where the motion will be discussed again and kept, amended, or dropped.

Duff gets reappointment

By ANNE McCRORY
Collegian Staff

Chancellor of Higher Education John B. Duff was reappointed for a four-year term in a unanimous decision yesterday at the Board of Regents meeting in Boston.

Duff's reappointment, effective April 1, will be under the same terms as his present contract, instituted in 1981 when he was appointed by a search committee, said Neil Harrington, assistant to the Chancellor. The Chancellor's $65,000 salary is set by statute and therefore will not change, he said.

In other business, the regents unanimously approved a new degree program, Engineering Management, for the University of Massachusetts.

The 36-credit Master of Science program will enable its students to "make a transition and learn other skills over and above the technical skills they already have," said Richard Giglio, acting dean of the School of Engineering at UMass, who co-developed the curriculum with assistant professor of industrial engineering Michael Burstein.

Approximately 30 to 40 students "currently working in technical positions" all over the state enrolled in the program last fall in the industrial engineering department, expecting the degree proposal would be approved, Giglio said.

Courses in industrial psychology, industrial logistics and economic decision making, among others, compose the joint curriculum of the engineering, psychology and business departments, mainly taught by correspondence through video taped lectures and by professors who held telephone office hours. Students convene on the Amherst campus for "two intensive days to deal with open-ended issues," Giglio said.

Giglio said the degree program proposal was a result of a recommendation by the Advisory Board for the School of Engineering, which cited the need for such a program in industry.

The regents also discussed briefly proposed minimum admissions standards. The Chancellor gave a brief overview of the matter, noting the "media tension" surrounding the controversy, said regents spokeswoman Estelle Shanley.

Board of Regents Chair James Martin called Governor Michael S. Dukakis' proposed higher education budget "excellent" in a presentation given by vice chancellor of Fiscal Affairs and Management Joseph Finnegan.

In other action, the regents approved a degree change from medical technology to clinical science at the University of Lowell, Harrington said. Roger A. Van Winkle was appointed the new president of Massachusetts Bay Community College, David Bartley was reappointed president of Holyoke Community College and a salary adjustment for Leonard Collamore at Springfield Technical Community College was also passed, he said.

Attempted suicide fails

By LAURIE FISHER
Collegian Staff

A man who attempted to hang himself in an Amherst Police Department jail cell Saturday night checked himself out at 9:50 p.m. Monday of Cooley Dickinson Hospital against medical advice.

The man, in his mid-thirties, allegedly attempted suicide by hanging himself with his shirt after being taken into protective custody late Saturday night for suspicion of drunkeness, police said.

After routine booking he was signed into a cell monitored by video camera and 10 minutes later was found unconscious hanging from the cell door. He was revived by two on-duty officers at the station and taken to the Cooley Dickinson Hospital by the Amherst Fire Department ambulance.

The television monitor in the cell was in operation at the time, although the officer on duty was busy with phone calls and other matters during the 10 minute period, police said.

"There was nothing but the highest performances from the officers on duty, I must commend the two who revived the man for staying so calm and acting so quickly," Police Chief Donald Maia said yesterday.

Maia said he was very surprised to learn of the man's discharge Monday evening because Monday at noon he received a call from the hospital indicating the man was in critical condition.

Police have requested a routine check into the circumstances by District Attorney Matthew Ryan.

The last attempted hanging incident in the Amherst jail occurred in December, 1979 when a UMass student failed a suicide attempt and was revived by the desk sergeant.

TONIGHT
DYNASTY
DRINK SPECIALS 9-11

Try the "Carrington Cooler," "Alexis' Revenge," or the "Frosty Fallon" ...each 1.50

TOP of the CAMPUS
RESTAURANT & LOUNGE
11th Floor • Campus Center • UMass

Boyden Bowl
FREE BOWLING
Clip this ad for one free game
(when you bowl one game at $1.00 regular price)
Good Friday and Saturday Only
Boyden Ten-Pin Lanes (at Boyden Basement)
One free game per customer only
exp. 4/17/83

Open Bowling:
Mon-Fri 4-10:30 pm Sat 1-7:30 pm

Union Video Center Presents:
BILL VIOLA
Video Artist
A Two-Day Residency
Thursday, March 10, 8:00 pm:
"An Evening with Bill Viola"
An Exhibition of the Artist's Works in the Cape Cod Lounge
Friday, March 11, 2:00 pm
"Master Class by Bill Viola"
A Hands-on Participation Workshop in the Commuter Lounge
For more call UVC 545-1336
sponsored by UMass Arts Council

Containing communist states continues to draw criticism

By ROBERTA RUBIN
Collegian Correspondent

Robert W. Tucker, professor of political science at John Hopkins University said that since containment policies concerning communist nations had been adopted by the United States, the nation has been unhappy and there has been a constant search for alternative methods.

Addressing a capacity audience last week in the Converse Red Room at Amherst College, Tucker states that containment is the subject of much criticism because it is too demanding on the country's resources and it condemns countries to be in permanent defensive positions. However, the Reagan administration's foreign policy to date is far more moderate in action than it had been credited for. For example, Tucker said, America's behavior towards Eastern Europe has been marked by caution and not by risky behavior.

Even though he said there are no apparent risks with containment, Tucker stated that the alternatives are discussed in the Reagan administration because of America's need to appease domestic allies who are unhappy with their own and American policies.

There are three alternatives to containment according to Tucker. The first one is confrontation, which is for America to have a showdown with the Soviet Union in order to resolve the conflict. However, Tucker said, this could be a great risk, and a prelude to war and mass destruction.

Another alternative seeks victory through accommodation and compromise. However, there must be some kind of equality involved in this option or the countries will immediately go back into conflict, Tucker said.

The third and the best alternative according to Tucker is withdrawal. This suggests that one of the countries will eventually weary of the conflict and will withdraw. Withdrawal, he said, can either be done to displace conflict or it can be done in order to evoke into existence a new political world.

The consequences of withdrawal, Tucker said, would be the United States becoming a distant second military power and the rise of Soviet influence.

Tucker feels the post-war order is inseparable from the order of containment but he also feels that the wars occurring in the last 35 years have not been too destructive. Tucker said the Reagan administration's efforts on improving American defense has had a positive impact on the future of the world economy and on the world's view of America.

Collegian photo by Kevin Fachetti

Joel Priestley, a senior interior design major, carefully shapes his wax figure sculpture which is to be cast in bronze yesterday at the Foundry Metal Sculpture studio.

GRADUATION NOTICE

The 1983 Commencement exercise at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst will be held on SATURDAY, MAY 28, 1983

the battle is on!

UNION RECORDS vs

THE COMPETITION

WE ARE A STUDENT RUN ORGANIZATION AND WE NEED YOUR HELP TO BEAT THE COMPETITION!!!

Special Cut Prices
~~$7.98~~ ALBUMS ONLY $5.99
MASTER RECORDINGS $8.98

Union Records Unlimited
The Student Run Record Store
201 Student Union
Univ. of Mass.
Amherst, MA 01003
(413) 545-0801

Join us tonight
Wednesday 9 - close for 25¢ beers
& good munchies!

BEST BUY AROUND TOWN!

★located on University Dr. between Southwest & Stadium Liquors

EDITORIAL/OPINION

Record must be set straight

Last semester a four part editorial appeared in the Collegian which attempted to outline the problems facing the Student Government Association at the University of Massachusetts and suggested reforms to address the problems. Yet in suggesting their reforms, the authors straddled the very fine line between fair and open discussion and questionable journalistic practices.

The series itself contributed to a healthy discussion regarding the accountability of our elected student leaders. Arrogance of power, misuse of official positions to further private interests or misrepresentation of the will of a majority, points brought out in the series, are often symptoms of a sick democracy. It is the responsibility of all citizens to expose this disease at all levels; be it the U.S. Congress, the Massachusetts Legislature or the UMass Student Government.

Kevin Bowe

However, this series went far beyond the realm of exposing bad government and suggesting how to make it better. The authors, Dave McCarthy (the principal writer), Rodman Snelling and Craig Sherwood, used half truths, emotional appeals and deception to present their case that the SGA was not serving the students. Hardley the tactics people interested in the principles of good government would use.

The most disturbing aspect of the series was their plan to reorganize the SGA. On at least three occasions the authors explained the reorganization plan was their plan to "return student government back to the students." Apparently this was not the case. Many of the reforms posed by the authors were, in fact, suggestions made by UMass administrators several years ago. The suggestions of Mr. McCarthy and a memo written by Dean of Students William Field are remarkably consistent.

In fact one could theorize that, after examining the two pieces, someone got lazy and decided to slightly alter sentences from the Field memo and used it in the editorial.

For example, in addressing the funding of the artistic programs on campus, the Field memo stated: "artistic endeavors without having to demonstrate that their exhibit or play is more important than weekend bus service or child care."

The editorial, on the same subject matter, states "artistic endeavors without having to demonstrate that art is more important than child care or weekend bus service."

The memo: "The users, supporters, and technical experts from the entire community should be represented in the budget development and service programs." (In regards to funding the transit system)

The editorial stated: "This fee (the transit fee)... would be overseen by a board of users, supporters and technical experts from the entire community."

Other examples abound.

It has been the policy of the Collegian in the past, and it continues to be the policy, that all sources of information a reporter or columnist uses must be attributed to the proper sources.

The right of free and open expression brings with it a responsibility to be fair and honest. When a breach of this responsibility is committed, the record must be set straight.

Kevin Bowe is the Collegian Editor-in-Chief

South Africa lacks academic freedom

(Editor's note: This is the first of a two part series which will examine the problems surrounding the ongoing debate between those who advocate academic freedom versus those who oppose apartheid South Africa. Mr. Nkomo is originally from South Africa.)

The devastating social disease of South African racism has been reassured and accorded dignity by the company of external academics who claim that to be scientific is to be socially neutral and to be disinterested in political affairs. U.S. academics who are invited to South Africa invoke academic freedom as justification for entering this country much to the pleasure of S. Africa where respect for this principle is nonexistent. In the current debate taking place at the university, the claim by such academics is either a case of naivete or sheer duplicity. Academic freedom in apartheid S. Africa is a hoax and a contradiction in terms. How is this so, the curious might ask?

Mokubung Nkomo

Educational segregation in S. Africa is mandated by law from elementary through the university level. In the latter case, universities are differentiated according to race and ethnicity. There are universities for the Afrikaans-speaking population, for the English-speaking population, for the Asian population, for the "Colored" population and for Africans. African universities are further subdivided into ethnic categories. While blacks (Africans, Asians & "Coloreds") constitute 84 percent of the population, only 25 percent attend universities. Twelve percent of these are Africans who constitute 72 percent of the population. On the other hand, whites who constitute 16 percent of the population have 75 percent representation in university enrollment. A white child, chosen randomly, has a chance that is 100 times greater to be admitted to a university than a black child. On the average, the government spends ten times more on the education of each white child than on the black child. Blacks are prevented by law from attending any university of their choice without ministerial permission, which is seldom granted. The black ethnic universities do not have such departments as engineering, architecture, astronomy and physics. They do not have adequate financial support as state instutitions to acquire necessary equipment, construction of essential facilities, and/or grants to engage in advanced research projects in such areas as botany, technology or coastal ecosystems. If a black student desires to pursue studies in these areas, he or she must obtain ministerial permission. As a result there are extremely few blacks who have been trained, can teach, do research, and share their findings at international congresses that deal with certain specific scientific areas. They are not there because of lack of ability, but by deliberate policy design. The consequence has been the denial of intellectual development and creativity.

It is for this reason that many universities and individual academics abroad who cherish the principle of academic freedom — i.e. thought and expression — have demonstrated their opposition to the deleterious effects that apartheid "higher" education has on blacks. One example is that in 1980, the British Association of University Teachers, with a 31,000 membership, strengthened its academic boycott of S. Africa by cutting all of the remaining academic links between British and S. African universities. They observed that all higher education in S. Africa is based on the criminal policy of apartheid. Other such resolutions have been adopted in many parts of the world since. These actions along with many others elsewhere, are consistent with the United Nations declaration that "apartheid is a crime against humanity."

The U.N. has also called for the imposition of comprehensive sanctions against S. Africa in support of the struggle for democracy and the restitution of fundamental human rights.

Here at the university we are presently enveloped in a debate over the case of a dispassionate scholar, who recently travelled to S. Africa to share his research findings and enhance communication with his colleagues at an international congress. To him, the social and political contest is of no significance. We are inevitably confronted with that sacred principle of academic freedom. Yes, and truly, don't we all cherish this principle? But let us pause for a moment, before we plunge over the brink. Academic freedom is not to be understood in isolation from other broader democratic and human freedoms. It is a product, a dynamic part, simbiotically related to the other freedoms. As such, it is both indivisible and inseparable from the others. Understood in this broad framework, academic freedom must be interpreted, logically, to mean among other things, the defense of social, political and personal freedom outside as well as inside this university, within the U.S. and abroad. This is even more important when academic freedom is coupled with its sibling, academic democracy.

Tomorrow the discussion will focus on the inadvisibility of professional academic exchanges with racist S. African institutions.

Mokubung Nkomo is a UMass student

Collegian

Board of Editors

Kevin Bowe Editor-in-Chief
Ed Levine Managing Editor
Stuart Sajdak Production Manager
Joel Myerson Business Manager
John Hudson Executive Editor
John DiPalazzo News Editor
Cris Schuster Women's Editor
Doug Muise Arts Editor
Gus Martins Black Affairs Editor
Billy Shea Sports Editor
Kevin J. Fachetti Photo Editor

Associate Editors

Paul A. Basken, Ray Beauchemin, Eileen Galligan, Michelle Murray, Bill Wall, Associate Managing Editors; James P. Shanahan, Marianne Walsh, Associate Production Managers; Mary Beth Hebert, Josh Meyer, Associate Executive Editors; Tami Borton, Mary Cresse, Mark J. Welch, Associate News Editors; Mary Baldwin, Associate Women's Editor; Lisa Mosley, Associate Arts Editor; Yadira A. Betances, Associate Black Affairs Editor; Kevin DeLuca, Gerry deSimas, Associate Sports Editors; Jim Powers, Associate Photo Editor.

Business Staff

Craig Robbins, Advertising Manager; Jeff Taylor, Karen Teicher, Associate Advertising Managers; Andrew May, Associate Business Manager; Maria Karassik, Finance Manager; Paul Krause, Associate Finance Manager; Rick Weishaus, Circulation Manager.

Letters

Cartoonist clarifies strip

To the Editor:

I am writing to respond to some of the problems that have been brought to my attention concerning my After The Fall comic strip of March fourth.

It has been pointed out to me that many of the organizations which I appeared to be treating so lightly have worked long and hard to reach their present strengths, and are still struggling to be accepted and listented to. It was not my intention to suggest that these organizations are discriminators in their acceptance of new members, or that they should not be taken seriously. I would never intentionally try to work against gay or Jewish organizations, or against any of the other groups implied in the strip.

However, I am aware that by making the point of the strip vague, I made it possible for people to interpret it in ways that were quite different than what I had in mind. In failing to give careful consideration to possible interpretations, I made a great mistake. For this I apologize.

For the record, the point that I was trying to make (in a very unserious way) was that a straight male WASP must make his own way in the leftist political scene, and if he isn't very serious and dedicated, he may as well give it up.

R. Miller
Amherst

Debate team seeks coverage

To the Editor:

Isn't UMass supposed to be an institution for higher education? How is it that all activities and events that occur at our university, and that concern our university, are reported in the Collegian, except one of the most directly related educational activities — debate?

It seems to me that if UMass wants to live up to its name of being an instution for higher education, then, we, as students, should be informed of those events which further promote this notion.

Karen E. Fovargue
Southwest

Buy your ticket now for Spring Break.
Then fly nonstop from Bradley. Don't delay. Seats are going fast.

Fort Lauderdale

$119*

All seats, all flights.

Northeastern has become a popular jet highway to Florida, thanks to low fares and outstanding service. At this low price, tickets must be bought within 7 days of making a reservation. Call your travel agent. Or call us at (800) 645-1770 or (800) 327-3788.

*$119 weekdays, $129 weekends are guaranteed to Sept. 6, 1983, when ticket purchased within 7 days of placing a reservation. Certain holiday surcharges apply.

northeastern
A lot of airline for a little money.

YOUR LAST 2 YEARS OF COLLEGE COULD BE YOUR FIRST 2 YEARS OF MANAGEMENT.

The Army ROTC 2-year program trains you to become an officer for a modern organization – today's Army – which also includes the Army Reserve and Army National Guard.

An officer who is not only a leader of men, but a manager of money and materials as well.

That's why one of the things you'll learn in our 2-year program is management training skills.

Your training will start, the summer after your sophomore year, at a six-week Army ROTC Basic Camp.

You'll earn over $400 for attending Basic Camp. And up to $1,000 for each of your last 2 years of Army ROTC.

But the biggest reward comes on graduation day. That's when you receive both a degree in your chosen major and a commission. And join the Army management team.

For more information, write:

ARMY ROTC.
LEARN WHAT IT TAKES TO LEAD.

Contact
James C. Mahoney
545-2321/2322

The
S.G.A. Escort Service
is now offering
2 credits
to it's volunteers
for more information contact:
Laura O'Shea or
Anne-Marie Maynard in
415 Student Union Building

Give a Friend a Gram
High Notes
Singing Telegram and Balloons
Delivered by Tuxedoed Messenger for any and All Occasions
Lowest Prices
Call 665-7664 VISA/MC

WEDNESDAY
PUB MUG NIGHT
Music By
AL STONER
DISCO-ROCK
35¢ PUB MUGS
9 pm - 1 am no cover
THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST

Learn German This Summer

DEUTSCHE SOMMER-SCHULE AM ATLANTIK

June 27-
August 5, 1983

The German Summer School of the Atlantic at the University of Rhode Island

German will be the sole language of communication and German life and culture the heart of this accredited intensive language program available at all levels

Live and socialize in comfortable surroundings minutes away from Rhode Island's beaches and scenic Newport

Earn 8 undergraduate or graduate credits

SPECIAL COURSES FOR BUSINESS PEOPLE
A three week course will stress conversational survival German for business and travel

URI
For details Dr John M Crandin or Dr Otto Dornberg Department of Languages University of Rhode Island Kingston RI 02881 (401) 792-5911

Black Affairs

BMCP confronts slot cancellations

By JENNIFER HARDY
Collegian Staff

Presently the Black Mass Communication Project (BMCP) has been undergoing problems that have resulted in the rescinding of two radio slots formerly programmed by BMCP, said Lezlie Harrison.

The two slots totalling six hours were popular among the campus audience said Harrison. The conflict started last semester but became heated this semester shortly after the election of a new program director for WMUA, said Harrison the acting Third World Coordinator.

Harrison said that BMCP and Concepto Latino elects a Third World coordinator for WMUA. The Third World Coordinator is to meet with the program director of WMUA and the Women's Affairs Director to do a master schedule for WMUA. WMUA's air time consists of 160 hours a week and 60 of those hours are presently allocated to BMCP.

"The Program Director never sat down with the Third World Coordinator or the Women's Affairs Director to make the schedule, violating the constitutions of WMUA," said Harrison. The Third World Coordinator at the time of this mishap was Ken Johnston, who no longer is a student at UMass.

Harrison, the acting Third World Coordinator who was appointed by the BMCP board, said she decided that it was time to have a meeting. The meeting would be between herself, the Program Director and the Women's Affairs Director to finally make up the master schedule for WMUA.

Harrison said at the meeting that instead of making up a schedule the Program Director had one in her possession already completed. "She did this without consulting anyone," said Harrison.

Harrison said at this point she looked at the schedule and saw that the Monday morning wake up and the Friday morning wake up had been removed from BMCP D.J.'s and given to other D.J.'s of WMUA.

"It is possible that the Thursday afternoon drive will be taken away also," said Harrison. Harrison said she then presented the problem to the BMCP General Body Members who rejected the proposal of the Program Director to give the airtime to someone else.

During all this conflict a Third World Coordinator was elected and Harrison was released as acting Third World Coordinator.

Harrison said the Program Director said she decided to put someone else in the two slots who she was familiar with at the station and who had put in a lot of hours there. Harrison said the Program Director's basic argument in her personal opinion was that BMCP was not doing its part in programming Black Music.

"The Program Director doesn't understand the role of BMCP with the station," said Harrison. Harrison said the Program Director doesn't know all the conflict it has taken to get the hours BMCP has gotten. Thursday there will be a WMUA meeting in the Campus Center room 112 and hopefully the problems will be summed said Harrison.

Grenada's liberation day commemorated

To commemorate the fourth anniversary of the people's revolution in Grenada, the Amherst chapter of the U.S. -Grenada Friendship Society plans a day of celebration. Activities planned for this occassion include a film presentation and slide show to be held in room 172-175 Campus Center, on the University of Massachusetts campus in Amherst. The film to be shown is the highly acclaimed Nobody's Backyard, a documentary on the struggles in Grenada and the Caribbean Basin for political and economic independence. The Friendship Society plans two showings of the film and slide show, one at 2:00 in the afternoon, the other at 7:00 in the evening on Sunday, March 13, 1983

BACKGROUND INFORMATION ON GRENADA

On March 13, 1979 the people of Grenada joined together in a revolutionary action which ousted the 28 year Eric Gairy dictatorship and resulted in the formation of the Peoples Revolutionary Government. This new government was founded on the principles of popular democracy and self-sufficiency rather than dependency, and as such serves as a symbol to other interests, mainly United States business and government defense.

The reason for this is that Grenada's revolution marked a turning point in Caribbean politics. It is the first English speaking Caribbean island to revolt and set up an alternative form of government which takes the political power out of the hands of a small elite, and puts it into the hands of the people.

Investigation begun after shooting

HOLYOKE, Mass. (AP) — Police began an investigation Tuesday into the wounding of a Holyoke man by a patrolman outside a liquor store.

Holyoke Police Chief Harold Skelton alleged that the injured man, Roberto Perez, 25, had pulled a gun on Patrolman Gary Bennett. Bennett shot Perez at about 10:30 p.m. Monday.

Bennett, a 5-year veteran, was reassigned according to department policy to work inside the police station pending results of the investigation, Skelton said.

Perez remained in the intensive care unit of Holyoke Hospital on Tuesday. Skelton said Perez suffered a gunshot wound to a lower thigh.

Skelton said Bennett shot Perez when Perez and another man began to flee after being stopped for questioning outside Conway Package Store. Bennett had responded to the area after police received a report of gunshots.

In fleeing, Perez pulled out a handgun, Skelton contended and a .22-caliber handgun was recovered from Perez.

Skelton said the investigation had not determined whether Perez' handgun had been fired. Skelton also refused to say whether Perez had pointed the gun at Bennett.

Perez was charged with assault with a dangerous weapon — a handgun, illegal possession of ammunition and possession of a handgun without a firearms identification card, Skelton said.

Raul Jiminez, 23, and Angel Oquendo, 17, both of Holyoke, were arrested at the scene and charged with disorderly conduct, Skelton said.

Washington's Chicago victory represents qualitative difference in national black voting

By DR. MANNING MARABLE
"From the Grassroots"

Harold Washington's "upset" victory in last month's Chicago Democratic mayoral primary represents something qualitatively different in national black politics.

Until recent years, black voter participation in Chicago was exceptionally low. Out of 950,000 eligible black voters, less than 400,000 were registered as late as three years ago. Of these registered vters, participation rates of only 22 to 35 percent were customary. Other than Allan Streeter (17th Ward) and Danny Davis (29th Ward), the majority of black Aldermen repeatedly vote in favor of the machine against the black community's economic and political interests. Latino electoral politics are even more tightly controlled than for blacks. Two of the city's major Latino officeholders, State Representative Joseph Barrios and Alderman Joseph Martinez, are both the "clients" of Democratic machine boss Thomas Keane.

Even when blacks have exercised the ballot to attack the machine, their efforts have been betrayed. In the 1979 primary, 63 percent of the black vote went to underdog Jane Byrne, a protege of former mayor Richard Daley, in her successful effort to unseat the regular Democratic mayoral candidate Michael A. Bilandic. Byrne immediately repaid her black supporters by supporting a Republican-sponsored bill which increased mass transit fares. She refused to negotiate with striking city transit workers unions, both directed by blacks; in 1979 she by-passed a black deputy superintendent of public schools, Dr. Manfred Byrd, and appointed his white subordinate to the superintendent's post. Byrne effectively alienated black middle class constituents by failing to advance black professionals into middle level bureaucratic posts, and by alloting a miniscule number of the city's lucrative contracts to black entrepreneurs. Under both Bilandic and Byrne, the general economic conditions for Chicago's black working class and the poor reached crisis levels. According to the Mayor's Office of Employment and Training, by 1980 over 350,000 children and 300,000 adults were public aid recipients. Over 100,000 Chicagoans were officially listed as unemployed. Another 510,000 nonwhites were described by the Chicago Reporter as being "permanently trapped in poverty." Byrne's response to the flight of manufacturing firms from the city was to embrace Reaganomics. In late 1982 she bragged to reporters, "How do you lure business?...I would like it to clearly show that we are lowering taxes. We just reduced the tax for next year by 22 million, and the head tax by eight million."

Still another omnipresent factor in Chicago politics is the repressive and "interventionist" character of the police force. Early in her term of office, Byrne infuriated blacks by skipping over Sam Nolan, a black assistant police chief, in favor of naming a white reactionary, Richard J. Brzeczek, as police chief. Throughout 1981 and 1982 a series of blatant police attacks escalated across the black community. Perhaps the worst instances of police brutality occurred in the aftermath of the February 9, 1982 shooting of two white patrolmen by two blacks. For several weeks, the police made hundreds of illegal house-to-house searches within the black community, physically and verbally abusing residents, and randomly destroying blacks' personal property. On February 25, a 45-year-old black paraplegic, Frederick Kemp, Sr., was shot in the chest by a white policeman under at best questionable circumstances. Despite innumerable citizen protests, Byrne consistently praised the brutal actions of the police force. The "favor" was returned this year when police chief Brzeczek did an unprecedented commercial endorsing Byrne's reelection bid.

By 1981, two political factors had been clearly established: that without critical black support, Byrne was clearly vulnerable, and that the son of Chicago's former political boss, State's Attorney Richard M. Daley, would run against her. A series of surprising events, however, catapulted Washington into the mayoral race. Washington had served as state representative from 1965 to 1977, and as state senator from 1977 to 1981, representing the South Side's 26th District. Washington's reputation as an anti-machine maverick began in 1972 when he led a walkout when then-Vice President Spiro T. Agnew addressed the Illinois State Legislature. In November, 1980, Washington defeated a powerful black machine candidate, Bennett M. Stewart, in the first Congressional district on Chicago's South Side. Massive voter registration campaigns increased the total number of Chicago's black voters from 400,000 to almost 600,000 in two years.

Conventional political wisdom first had it that Washington was a "spoiler" who would simply split the antiByrne vote. When it became apparent that unprecedented numbers of black voters would turn out, and that the Congressman was running a close second to Byrne in public opinion polls, the incumbent desperately altered her tactics. Byrne elevated a black attorney, Earl L. Neal, to the board of the Chicago Housing Authority. On December 23, the mayor ordered city work crews to take down iron gates which segregated a white enclave, Canaryville, from the mostly black Fuller Park in the crucial 11th Ward. Byrne boldly visited several black churches on the South Side, declaring that she had not "written off the black community." On primary election day, February 22, it was clear that Byrne's strategy had failed, despite the efforts of black machine political operatives and poll watchers who tried to intimidate black and Latino voters. Washington received about 420,000 votes or about 36.5 percent of the mayoral vote (compared to Byrne's 33.8 percent and Daley's 29.9 percent) out of about 1.25 million total votes cast. "By this vote," Washington delcared in his dawn victory speech, "the Democratic Party has been returned to the people. We shall have an open and fair government in which all people of all colors, races and creeds are treated fairly, equally and equitably." The most powerful and probably the most corrupt political machine in modern American history had been defeated.

Beachcomber Tours PRESENTS
14th ANNUAL
College Spring Break in
DAYTONA BEACH
ROOM STILL AVAILABLE

JET TOUR
March 12-19
or March 19-26
- Round trip Non-Stop Charter Flights to Daytona Beach from Boston
- Complimentary Meals and Beverages inflight
- Transfers between airport and hotel

BUS TOUR
March 11-20
or March 18-27
- Round trip deluxe motor coach to Daytona Beach
- On campus departures

ALL TOURS INCLUDE:
LAND PACKAGE
- First Class Ocean Front Accommodations for Seven (7) Nights at the Days Inn, Beachside or the Quality Inn Real, located directly on the Strip in Daytona Beach
- Welcome Party with plenty of FREE BEER.
- Exclusive 14th Anniversary ID Card for discounts at Shops, Restaurants, Night Clubs, etc.
- On campus reservation service
- Services of the Beachcomber Staff
- OPTIONAL: Kitchenettes, Walt Disney World Tour, New Epcot Center Adventure and more!

Round Trip Transportation from Hartford and Surcharge to Boston Airport available
*PRICE DOES NOT INCLUDE ADDITIONAL $20.00 FOR TAX GRATUITIES AND SERVICE

$25.00 Deposit Required - Limited Space Available
Make Reservations by December 15th and
SAVE $20.00
(SEE OTHER SIDE FOR DETAILS)

ALSO AVAILABLE:
JET FLIGHT ONLY $289*
BUS TRANSPORTATION ONLY $139*
LAND PACKAGE ONLY $139*
(Includes all tax, gratuities and service)

Don't be left out in the COLD!
Contact our campus representative for reservations today

Beachcomber Tours, Inc.
COMPACT
STEVEN
549-1671

MEMBER DAYTONA BEACH CHAMBER OF COMMERCE
SEE REVERSE FOR MORE DETAILS AND INFORMATION

DEPENDABILITY • QUALITY • SERVICE • SINCE 1969

BLUE WALL
CAMPUS CENTER AT UMASS

WED. FREE ADMISSION & POPCORN
1941
John Belushi & Dan Aykroyd
DEAD MEN DON'T WEAR PLAID
Steve Martin
Both Films shown Both Nights! 8pm 10pm

THURS. FREE ADMISSION & POPCORN
NOVEMBER GROUP
in their FIRST Area Appearance

FRI. HAPPY HOUR 3-6 p.m. w/ Cliff Myers

SAT. J.B. HUTTO and The New Hawks
Chicago's Finest Slide Guitarist
$3.00 COVER
sponsored by U.P.C. and the Duke Ellington Committee

AN IMPORTANT ADDITION TO YOUR UNIFORM

The insignia of an Air Force nurse can mean a lot to you and your future. It shows that you're part of the Air Force Nurse Corps. A member of one of the most efficient health care teams in the world. It signifies you are an Air Force officer with the responsibility and prestige of a leadership position. It indicates you're on the track toward good pay and almost unlimited educational opportunities. If you're a nursing professional or about to complete your nursing education, why not consider Air Force nursing as part of YOUR future? From the day you're commissioned, you'll receive the pay and advantages of an Air Force officer. Consider your uniform and our future. Then make it yours.

AIR FORCE NURSING. A GREAT WAY OF LIFE.

For More Details Call Sandy Price
(203) 229-9641
Freshmen & Sophmores Call Capt. Pinkell
(413) 545-2137

AIR FORCE

50¢ OFF
on buying full price ticket with this ad for March 9th performance ONLY

Ashes

A Play by David Rudkin
Frank Prentice Rand Theater
University of Massachusetts Fine Arts Center
March 9-12, 1983, 8:00 pm
Reservations: 545-3511

YOU CAN STILL SUBSCRIBE TO ALL THREE RAND THEATRE PRODUCTIONS
ASHES, THE COMEDY OF ERRORS, AND COMPANY

Arts

Attention Arts Writers:
There will be a mandatory meeting for all arts reporters to discuss the up-coming issue of the Other Voice on Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the newsroom.

The villain entertains

THE VILLAINS STILL PURSUE ME
Monday, March 7
Fine Arts Center

By ELAINE SENAY
Collegian Staff

Vincent Price enchanted a receptive audience in the Fine Arts Center last night with "The Villians Still Pursue Me," a lecture sponsored by the Distinguished Visitors Program. His genuine interest in the stereotyped villian role that he plays so often gave the entire lecture credibility and heightened the audience's enjoyment. Price reminisced about the roles he has played and how they relate to villainy. But he returned again and again to the notion that his decision to take parts as a villain marked a turning point in his career.

Price never tried to minimize this fact during the lecture. Playing villains was the reason for his success. He said everyone in Hollywood is typecast; this is what makes actors famous. Price went on to delight the audience with his declaration, "I want to assure you that I am very famous."

Price then began to seriously lecture about villainy. The only thing that I could possibly slight him for at this point was his occasional tendency to dwell too long on a story or stray off on a tangent. But I could see that he really loves to talk, especially about villains. I guess he just wanted to give a complete picture of what a villain is all about across to the audience.

Price drew on the reflections and knowledge of other great villains. He mentioned Basil Rathbone, who is best known for his appearance in the series of Sherlock Holmes movies, but is not recognized today as a villain. Price said that Rathbone wrote in his autobiography that the audience really sympathizes with the villain. Usually the villain is more real than the hero and seems more like you or I. At the end of the story, he is someone who failed just as you or I sometimes do in our lives.

In outlining the purpose of the villain, Price showed that the role requires more thought than playing a hero. The villain must keep up the suspense in order to keep the audience guessing. Also, he must maintain a conflict between good and evil. Thus, your typical villain actually has more facets to his character than your average hero.

Aristotle believed that the ideal villain should have some specific characteristics and a certain appearance, said Price. The villain whom Price portrayed in Dragonwyck, Nicholas Von Rhyne, is the villain who best illustrates Aristotles' ideal. Von Rhyne is well-educated, handsome, charming, and wealthy. But the ideal villain has an added dimension to his character. In Dragonwyck, Von Rhyne cannot tolerate a wife who is second-rate in his opinion and he can't stand anything second-rate. So, his poor wife gets bumped-off by eating cake that has a deadly frosting. Too bad.

Throughout the lecture, Price related with relish the various unpleasant characters he has played or read about over the years. He knows human nature and all of the fears and phobias. He definitely knows what scares us and I left the lecture feeling that the art of villainy is well-preserved in the hands of its master, Vincent Price.

Collegian photo by Kevin Fachetti
Vincent Price gives a "villainous" performance at the FAC, Monday night.

The National Touring Company of Second City, an improvisation-rooted comedy revue that has groomed the likes of John Belushi, Robert Klein, and Joan Rivers for prime-time television, as well as spawning the now famous SCTV show, will perform at 8 p.m. on March 10 in Theater 14, Smith College. Tickets are available at Seelye Basement, Smith; the Fine Arts Center Box Office; and For The Record, Amherst. The event is being co-sponsored by the Smith College Recreational Council and the UMass Fine Arts Center.

Hunter wimps out
A Dead Head confesses

ROBERT HUNTER
Hangar One, Hadley
Thursday, March 3

By PETER WISSOKER
Collegian Staff

It seems like most folksingers today sound pretty much alike. They all have a certain joi de vie and a critical but witty outlook on life. Robert Hunter is no exception. He does, however, have a certain romanticism that the others are missing.

Hunter, lyricist for the Grateful Dead since the late sixties, tells stories of love for far-off places, love and lust (a key Grateful Dead word), and love for other people. Many of Hunter's songs have historical settings, yet more in feeling than actual physical description.

At his performance last week at Hangar One, Hunter played only about four of the many songs he has written for the Grateful Dead. He played both guitar and harmonica as well, his harmonica playing coming out much better than Neil Young's or Bob Dylan's.

Even if you don't like the Grateful Dead, I would recommend going to see Robert Hunter. His voice and his songs contribute a whole different angle to traditional folk music.

Editor's Note: Peter Wissoker confesses himself to be a reformed Dead Head. That is to say, at this moment, he no longer listens exclusively to the Dead ("They're a good dance band," remarks Peter.). But for those of you who haven't quite placed the Dead into proper perspective, here's your review:

DEAD HEAD'S REVIEW

Robert Hunter played last Thursday at Hangar One. It was pretty good but not great. I think that Hunter is still wimping out, although not as badly as last tour. He only played the first half of "Terrapin" (+ Ivory Wheels) and a slowed down version of "Friend of the Devil." Both sets were less than 45 minutes in duration.

On the good side of things, he played "Golden Road" and the traditional "Promentory Rider," "Tiger Rose," and "Slack String Quarter." All in all it was a pretty entertaining show.

Other notes: it seems like there were a few people taping off the board, so tapes are available. Also, look for Dinosaur tapes. In fact, if you have any please contact the author of this article c/o the Collegian Arts desk. You're saying what are the Dinosaurs? Answer: Allen Ginsburg, Robert Hunter, Barry Melton, and John Cippollena.

An absorbing tapestry spanning half a globe

THE COLOR PURPLE
By Alice Walker
Harcourt Brace Jovanovich, 245 pages, $5.95

By CHRISTINE MARINI
Collegian Staff

Alice Walker's novel The Color Purple is a finely woven, deeply absorbing tapestry that spans half a century and half of the globe in its pages. Written in epistolary form, The Color Purple tells of the lives of Cecie and Nettie, black women growing up in the poverty-stricken south in the 1910's and '20's.

As young girls, Cecie and Nettie share their hellish lives, filled with incest, madness, and death, in their letters to God and each other. Cecie, the elder, "an ugly, stupid, bad girl," is repeatedly raped by her stepfather and bears her first child at the age of 14. Through her moving letters to God, the reader can feel her pain, guilt, and rage at the man who impregnates her and then sells her children. Cecie's stepfather marries her off when she is 20 to a man who wants her pretty sister, Nettie; he is talked into marrying Cecie because she is now barren and will produce no more mouths to feed.

Meanwhile, Nettie — through a twist of fate — manages to break out of the cycle of grinding poverty and degradation. She becomes a missionary in Africa, and befriends the preacher's family that adopted Cecie's natural children. Nettie's sojourns to New York, London, and various parts of Africa increase her sophistication, and her sharp eye picks out many truths about the frailty of human nature, regardless of the sex or color of its package.

The years pass, and both women change and grow, coming to terms with their respective lives and circumstances. Cecie deals as best she can with a hard, loveless husband and wild stepchildren. It is only through sharing the tough wisdom of her husband's mistress, the fiery singer Shug Avery, that Cecie finally learns to respect and defend herself. Nettie, half a world away, fights the ignorance and indifference of the very people she is trying to help, and struggles with her faith. Yet in spite of the dissimilarity of their situations, the two sisters continue to write to one another, and their love and mutual concern bridge the chasm of time and distance.

All of this sounds terribly complex and messy, but it is a tribute to Walker's talent as a writer that she can keep the plot in order. The Color Purple is actually easy to follow. Walker makes Cecie's near illiteracy and Nettie's educated writing equally moving and equally believable. It is only through her idealism that Walker loses some of her authenticity; one is hard pressed to believe in the many unlikely coincidences and total character reversals. Sadly, things in real life do not always turn out for the best or even for the good, and the accruement of years is not often accompanied by the development of the kind of wisdom and maturity Walker's characters display. Nonetheless, The Color Purple stands as a well-written example of, if not the way people usually turn out, then at the very least the way that they could.

4. Is the Bible really the word of God?

There are a numner of facts that make it reasonable to believe that the Bible is accurate and reliable. Jesus, the Son of God, and the greatest spiritual authority of all time, attested to the accuracy of the Bible, even to the "smallest letter or stroke."[1]

Rousseau, French philosopher and author of the eighteenth century said concerning the Gospels "Jewish authors would never have invented either that style nor that morality; and the gospel has marks of truth so great, so striking, so utterly inimitable, that the invention of it would be more astonishing than the hero."[2]

Archeology, while not proving the Bible, has aided in affirming its historical accuracy. Numerous examples could be cited, but suffice it to say that no discovery in this field has proved the Bible to be in error, but, rather, the opposite has been true. Biblical manuscripts numbering in the thousands, and dated in some cases less than 100 years from the actual occurence of events that they describe, give us by far the best attested historical document we possess.

The Bible's amazing unity even though composed of 66 books written over a period of 1,500 years by over 40 different authors from widely different cultures and parts of the world - attests that there was divine superintendence over its writing. The Bible not only claims to be the Word of God,[3] but, through the minute fulfillment of prophecy and the miraculous transformation of men who have believed its message, it has proved itself over and over to be such.

1. Matthew 5:18; 2. Quoted in The Son of Man, Richard Wolff, p. 17; 3. II Timothy 3:16; II Peter 1:20, 21.

For more information on the Reliability of the Bible
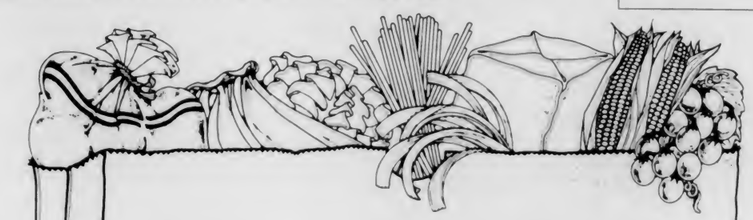
come to SBA 109 at 6:30 pm. WED.
Mar. 9 - A Sure Foundation - Film
Mar. 16 - The Resurrection - Hoax or History
skeptics welcome!
Campus Crusade for Christ



Bon Appétit

We stock the largest selection of Gourmet, Specialty and Natural Foods and Vitamins of any store in this area. If we missed your favorite food, please let us know and we'll try to get it for you...

d'amour's BIG

Hypercurricula...

"Hypercurricula," a listing of events held at the University of Massachusetts and the surrounding area, is published daily in the Collegian. Events are listed on the day they will take place and are listed only once. Announcements MUST be submitted on "Hypercurricula" forms available in the Collegian office, 113 Campus Center, and returned by 3:45 p.m. Friday before the event is to be held. All submissions should be written in the same style as they appear in the paper.

EUROPE by CAR
RENT or BUY
LOWEST PRICES
FOR STUDENTS, TEACHERS
EUROPE BY CAR
One Rockefeller Plaza
New York, NY 10020
Phone (212) 581-3040
Mail this ad for Special Student/Teacher Tariff.
RENTAL EASE PURCHASE
BUMAL ? 60 & YOUTH PASS

INTERVIEWS AND INFORMATION ABOUT ISRAEL PROGRAMS — Interviews and information about Israel programs will be available all day long today with a representative from the Kibbutz and Habonim movements. Call Debbie at 545-2526 to make an appointment. 11:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., Hillel office.

BROWN BAG THEOLOGY — "The Pope and the Church in Central America" is today's topic for the theological discussion led by Rev. Phil Ward. All are welcome. 12:15 to 1:15 p.m. 428 Student Union.

WINE AND CHEESE SOCIAL HOUR — There is a wine and cheese social hour for all Undergraduate Business Club members from 4-6 p.m. in the Faculty Lounge, 3rd floor, School of Management. Please join us to meet fellow members and business faculty.

CAMPUS CRUSADE FOR CHRIST — FILM: A SURE FOUNDATION. Come and see this great film about the Bible and the sure foundation that it promises. Good Christian fellowship and sharing. 6:30 p.m., SBA 109.

WOMEN'S SPIRITUALITY GROUP — A supportive community in which women can share, question, and grow toward a new understanding of ourselves. 7 to 9 p.m., 428 Student Union.

INVESTMENT CLUB MEETING — Edward Connolly, Vice-President of Kidder Peabody will speak on "Institutional Investing." A short meeting will follow this lecture. New members are welcome. 7 p.m., SBA Room 107.

STUDENT OPPORTUNITY PROGRAM — The Student Opportunity Program (STOP) offers education and group support to students whose drinking is causing problems. Call 549-2671 X181 for information. 7 p.m., University Health Center.

CHESS CLUB MEETING — All members and players at all levels are welcome. Chess players and backgammon players are asked to bring their own sets if possible. 7 p.m., 904-08 Campus Center.

FIFTH ANNUAL FESTIVAL OF CONTEMPORARY UNOFFICIAL RUSSIAN ARTS AND LETTERS — Dr. Alma Law (of Columbia University and CUNY, foremost U.S. specialist on Soviet Theater, translator of numerous contemporary Soviet plays): Soviet Theatre Off-Off Red Square (slide show and lecture in English). 7:30 p.m., Herter 301.

SPANISH CLUB MEETING — Come to a meeting of the Spanish Club and express your ideas on possible events for the semester. We already are having a Bake Sale and Raffle but need new ideas. Refreshments will be served. 8 p.m., 6th Floor Lounge Herter.

TEST ANXIETY WORKSHOP — You are invited to a one-session workshop designed to identify test anxieties behaviors and to develop effective coping strategies. A timely opportunity to deal with mid-term test anxieties. 4 p.m., 322 Berkshire.

SPEAKER: LEONARD FEIN AT UMASS — "American Jews in Israel" will be the topic of a talk by Dr. Leonard Fein, editor-in-chief of Moment magazine. Dr. Fein is well-known as a writer, activist, and scholar on Jewish and Mideast issues. All are welcome to attend. 4 p.m., Campus Center 804-08.

UMASS PEACEMAKERS MEETING — Study, action, planning around disarmament issues. Post-proxy wrap-up. 6 p.m., CC 905-09.

Bloom County — By Berke Breathed

The UMass Zone — By Mark Rollins

Katfood — By ARK

Scrod — By Dan DeBellis

After the Fall — By R. Miller

CROSSWORD

Edited by Margaret Farrar and Trude Jaffe

©1983 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

ACROSS
1 Gelling agent
5 Without frills
10 Small shoot
14 Mountaineer's need
15 Heart part
16 Kind of horse
17 Best seller of 1921
19 Solar disc, of Egypt
20 Become ragged
21 Moths with powdery wings
23 Dill of old
25 Avoid an obstacle
26 See 65 Across
30 Paul of jazz
34 Namesakes of a Bradley
35 Flora and fauna of a region
36 Stir
37 Short fiber
38 Salt's buddy
39 Composer —— Carlo Menotti
40 Sea bird
41 Driving mishaps
42 Modifying influence
43 Right to demand payment
45 Upsets
46 Humdinger
47 Business arrangement
49 Of water
52 Water birds
56 Walled town
57 Watch part
60 Contentment
61 Napoleon's troops
62 Roofed theatres, of ancient Greece
63 One who changes colors
64 Elegance
65 Cry the blues

DOWN
1 Location of the humerus
2 Capricorn's sign
3 Capital of Samoa
4 Lessor's sign
5 Kind of leather
6 Peter of films
7 Metric measure
8 Part of a shopping list
9 Yuletide scene
10 Port of Kerry county
11 Pipes of a type
12 Baker's assistant
13 Army abbrs
18 Laurel and Musial
22 "—— smile be your umbrella"
24 Made fun of 26 Isolationist
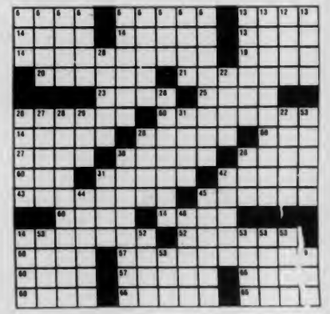
27 Love, in Livorno
28 Beef Wellington, for one
29 —— King
31 Tools for an irrigator
32 Proverb
33 Roman date
35 Taboos
38 Civil War vessel
39 Joes
41 Two
42 Spring sight
44 Ancient catapult
45 Homes for the clergy
48 Feudal workers
49 Tucked in for the night
50 Ship loading area
51 Reiner
53 Forward of aft
54 Plato's "Idea"
55 Cut, old style
58 "—— rambling wreck from Georgia Tech..."
59 Hiatus



ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

L	E	G	S		P	O	S	E	S		N	E	W	T
O	M	I	T		A	S	I	D	E		O	L	I	O
T	I	N	A		M	A	I	D	E	A	S	T	A	N	D
S	T	A	N	D	I	S	H		A	W	N	E	D
		D	E	R			L	O	N	I
S	A	T	U	P		S	T	A	N	D	A	L	L
C	R	E	P	T		A	N	N	E		M	U	L	A
R	E	N	A		S	T	A	D	S		S	T	A	N
U	P	O	N		E	R	I	E		S	T	O	N	E
P	A	N		O	S	T	A	N	D		P	A	T	E
		O	U	S	P			H	U	N
B	A	C	H	E		S	T	A	N	D	P	A	T
U	N	D	E	R		A	S	T	A	N	D		N	O	T	A
F	O	I	L		H	A	G	U	E		N	O	R	M
F	A	I	T	H		A	B	E	T	S		G	R	I	P

WEATHER

Today, rain, heavy at times until mid day and possibly a thunderstorm, highs in the 40s. Easterly winds 10 to 20 mph. Tonight rain and drizzle ending, lows around 40. Winds becoming westerly at 10 to 15 mph.

D.C. MENU

LUNCH
Lazy Golompki
Grilled Cheese Sandwich

BASICS LUNCH
Hearty Latin Stew
Grilled Cheese on Wheat Berry

DINNER
NEW ENGLAND NIGHT
Roast Turkey/ Whole Cranberry Sauce
Fresh Baked Scrod with Mornay Sauce

BASICS DINNER
NEW ENGLAND NIGHT
Stuffed Baked Eggplant
Fresh Baked Scrod with Mornay Sauce

Be A Star
★
Become a star reporter for the Collegian. One of New England's largest daily college newspapers! We need people to write news and women's affairs. Great experience for any students interested in journalism or communications. Come by the Collegian anytime and ask for an editor. It's easy and it's fun. Everyone's welcome.

The Collegian
113 Campus Center
545-3500

SOME FACTS ABOUT YOUR FUTURE AS AN AIR FORCE NURSE

There are many nursing positions which offer career fulfillment. Being an Air Force nurse can fulfill that need. There is also a lot more to life than work and Air Force nursing provides that something extra. In addition to your nursing uniform, you'll wear the uniform of an Air Force officer. You'll have the prestige and responsibility of a leader with equal opportunity for advancement. You'll have the advantages of the Air Force's great way of life — 30 days of vacation with pay each year, medical and dental care, educational opportunity and recreational facilities. There are many more personal and financial rewards. If you qualify, you may compete for Air Force nursing specialties. Add the challenge, the responsibility and the opportunity of Air Force nursing to your future. Contact an Air Force nurse recruiter today for more information. Sandy Price (203) 229-9641 collect calls excepted or Capt. Dasher (413) 545-2437

AIR FORCE
A great way of life

Quality Titles from the Active List of America's Leading Publishers

Sale

* Located on Special Sale Tables in the Trade Book Dept.

PAPERBACK BOOKS 50% OFF original price

Open M-F 9-5 Sat 11-4

Located in the Campus Center

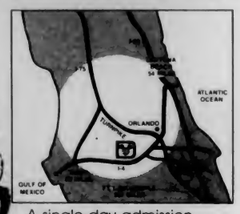
UNIVERSITY STORE

BREAK AWAY TO A BRAND NEW WORLD.

Imagine time-traveling from the era of the dinosaurs to the age of the stars. Discovering the secrets of a Mayan pyramid. Dining beneath the Eiffel Tower. Spiraling through the universe inside an 18-story sphere.

Now, imagine doing it all in one place: Walt Disney World Epcot Center.

Wherever your spring break takes you in Florida, you'll be just a step away from the wonder all the world is talking about.



A single-day admission to this new world of wonder is only $15, and a three-day World Passport - allowing admission to both Epcot Center and the Magic Kingdom - is just $35.

This year make your visit to Florida more than a break.

Make it a break away from the world of today.

And an adventure into the dreams of tomorrow.

Walt Disney World EPCOT CENTER

©1983 Walt Disney Productions

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Monday - Friday • Deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10 % • discount • Phone number FREE

ATTENTION BOLTWOOD VOLUNTEERS

The seminars are Sundays 3/6 and 3/13 at 7 pm in the Commonwealth Room

AUTO FOR SALE

67 VW Conv inspected needs work $400 or BO 323-5918 leave message

73 Valiant, good cond. 225 slant six, $700 or BO 253-5956

1977 Datsun B210 automatic 66,000 miles AM/FM stereo 665-4188 or 549-2671 ext. 236

1973 Cutlass 4 dr 84000 miles stereo well maintained $1100 Ron 549-2656

For Sale 68 VW Bus engine runs good body needs work $200 665-3082 Jayne

1970 - Ford Torino - 45,000 original miles 425 or best offer - call 545-3500 before 5:00 - 549-4125 after 5:00 ask for Dan

BELLYGRAMS!!

Delivered by professional bellydancer for most unusual gift. Thereza, 253-7822

CAPE COD SUMMER RENTAL

West Yarmouth Seagull Beach duplex newly redone two bedrooms each side sleeps 4 includes all utilities 253-7436 $2550. Memorial Day thru Labor Day

CHICAGO?

Round trip ride to Chicago desperately needed for Spring Break. I'll gladly share expenses and driving. Call Cris at 546-8150 after 9 p.m. or at 545-3500 from 2-9 p.m.

DAYTONA BEACH

Daytona Beach Spring Break $299. Round trip direct non-stop jet Boston-Daytona. 7 nights Ramada Inn on the beach. Free car rental. Departs Mar. 19. Call Saugus Travel 617-233-8192, 617-289-6221

ENTERTAINMENT

Rockadisc Entertainment Agency Inc. Bands and discjockeys guaranteed student functions 256-0739

M & M Music Unlimited Professional DJ's for all occasions call Mike 546-5259

Jodi Leong, vocalist, & Mark Baszak, pianist. TOC Lounge, Fri., Sat., March 4 & 5

FOR RENT

Falmouth - 2 women wanted to share house 635 ea Amy 549-4169

FOR SALE

Kinks Concert! 2 tickets March 31st Worcester Centrum good seats 546-4419

Rush Tickets for sale, cheap, April Fool's Day in Hartford 546-7504

Texas Instruments TI58C fully programmable calculator 50$ call 546-1165 John

Raybans and Vuarnets at low student prices call Andy or Bruce 549-1177 you will not find a better price anywhere look for us at the CC Concourse Wednesday and Friday afternoons

GINSU KNIVES?

Forget about it. Good music? That's right. . .The Steve Diamond Show. Thursday mornings. 9 to noon on WMUA 91.1 FM

HELP WANTED

CRUISE SHIP JOBS! $14-$28,000 Caribean, Hawaii, World. Call for Guide, Directory, Newsletter. 916-722-1111 ext Massachusettes

Alaska Jobs summer/year round, earn great money in this opportunity rich state, ie, earn $10,000-$12,000 on three month fishing boat. Send for 1983 Employer Listing and information packet covering all industries $5.00 Lental Reseach dept AA2114 satisfaction guaranteed

Cruise Ship Jobs! Great income potential, all occupations. For information call: 602-837-3401 ext 833

Rapresentative wanted for affective, guaranteed scholarship location service. Brief profile to DMR Group, 29 Morningside Drive, Westfield, MA 01085

Performers needed for weeknight recreation programs (musicians, mime, etc.) Val 6-6623 Sandra 256-0501

Resident kitchen manager and accountant Butterfield Co-op Kitchen - fall of 83 and spring of 84 - manager 40 hours @ $4 per hour - accountant 7 hours @ 3.50 per hour - both with room & board information and applications at Butterfield Kitchen Office - Butterfield Dorm - applications due March 18

Researcher needed variety of assignments good writing skills essential good pay please call 549-4755 if interested.

— Seniors — Jobs are available mass market yourself with Operations Research International toll free 1-800-421-3217

Need money! International cosmetic company new to this area will train selected people to represent their all natural Aloe Vera products. Call after 5 p.m. Sheila Mellen 566-8520

INSTRUCTION

Know your car. Basic Auto Mechanics Workshop. Classroom theory & shop. Limited enrollment. 253-2098

LAST CHANCE FOR FLORIDA!!

Ft. Lauderdale or Daytona - March 18-27 hotel and round trip transportation from $203 Andrea 6-9627

LESBIAN & GAY

FREE trained Lesbian and Gay Peer Counseling and Referral 433 SU 545-2645

LOST

Keys on blue-clip keyring with words Le Chateau 546-8161

Blue Down Vest Thur Night 2-24 in College Pizza. Buttons & inside label read "Northface" Sentimental value 546-1021

Lost: small gold Star-of-David charm with pearl in the center. Very sentimental. Reward. 549-3699

Women's gray coat lost at the Pub on February 26. Please call 6-8367

REWARD: necklace lost in S.U. Ballroom 2/25/83 sentimental value: has steel hand, simulated turquoise Su 367-2110 keep trying

Black three ring notebook in Thompson 104 marketing and stats Paul 6-8571

NOTETAKERS

Notetakers needed: Comstu, Econ 311, Soc. apply SNPS 403 Student Union til 3/16 5 PM EOE

PERSONALS

Laura, Good luck with your interview! I know you will make the best stewardess. I love you Bob

Happy Birthday Nancy. I hope you have a great day. Love always, Scott

To: the cute blonde from Brittany Manor with the famous last name. . .I remember everything but your name. . .come to the Pub Wed, , ,The 9 year old

Happy Birthday Kelli love the Bear and the Pope

MovieArthur starring Dudley Moore - Thurs. March 10 - Engineering East Aud. 7, 9, 11 pm

Denomy Babes; It's time you learn not to burn. Trace Babes

Holly - There's just something about you. . .See you tonight! Love Bill

Happy Birthday Susan! Now you're legal in California, it should come in handy - love you, Brian

Happy Birthday Penelope! Love, from your wuvving Warren

Scott - You're so cute! Let's go dancin'! Luv ya - Liz

Luigi, Happy Birthday! See you on Sat. night love always, Marlene

Ellen: Nothing much is said, but much is appreciated this semster. Let's keep things going on the right track. Jodi

Happy B-day Norm! See you in Daytona! Buddy GLWJ Party

Tad saw you in R.R. asleep you looked so cute. I'll keep in touch

"Charlie" I love you, too! Patty

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Dissertations, Theses, Cases, Papers, guaranteed acceptance, low rates, Nancy 5-0392, 584-7924

RIDE NEEDED

Over Spring Break to Chicago Area drive and pay Dan 253-5369

Ride wanted to Syracuse/Cortland for weekend of 3/11. Please help. Bonnie 546-8074

Couple needs ride to Wash DC area 3/18 or 19 will share expenses! Flex on departure time. Call Kelley, 6-4207.

Ride needed to Penn: Stroughsburg or surrounding area for spring break. Will share expenses. Call Keli 6-8340

Ride needed to U. Of Delaware, 5 mins off I-95 March 17 or 18 Denise 549-3512

Ride needed: Maryland, DC, or Virginia Spring Break call Claudia 546-7240

Wanted: Ride to Philadelphia on 3/11 return - Sunday 3/13. Please keep trying. call 256-0195 will share expenses

RIDERS WANTED

Driving to San Francisco California on or about March 23. Ned someone to share expenses. Call Larry dyas 732-2161 ext 109, nights 562-2485

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female wanted for apartment in Cape Cod. $50 a week call 546-9617 or 546-9616

Cape Cod bound this summer? Have spacious house in West Yarmouth short walk to Seagull Beach call Lisa 549-3802

SERVICES

PAPER DUE? CAN'T WRITE? Tutor -english composition and grammar reasonable rates 6-9289

ILLUSTRATIONS done for your papers professional quality call 413-253-9848

Experienced Spanish Tutor available call Liz 323-8022

Responsible College Student looking for babysitting job. Available weeknights and Monday afternoons. Call Pam 6-3281. Keep trying.

Typing - fast - reliable $1/pg. IBM Selectric II Nancy 549-1642

TO SUBLET

Part furn one bedroom apt in Cliffside $285 mo inc. option on lease 549-5689

3 Bedroom Apt. to sublet w/possible fall option 549-1377

TRAVEL

UMass Ski Club goes north
Spring Break 83 March 20-25
Stowe. Ski club capital of the East. Only $159 includes: transportation, hot tub party, beer & wine parties, 5 day lift ticket, all taxes & gratuities & much, much, more. For more info contact the UMass Ski Club Rm 430A Student Union or call 545-3437

FLORIDA by van 3/19 - 27 $148 round trip wine/cheese accomodation Info limited seats S.S. Van Lines 617-724-8810

Ride needed for two to Florida for spring break. Will share driving and expenses. call 665-7076 eves. please!

WANTED

Class rings, gold and silver jewelry and coins. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant, Amherst, 256-0710

Help $50 reward for helping me by your parents unwanted second car 253-7189

Cash for your records, tapes 545-2836 (ask for Jaromir/leave message)

Extra-fine pair of used stereo speakers 500 dollar cash limit 527-5714

Drums $100 maximum spending price for 7-piece set wanted by end of March call between 6 & 9 PM 549-1342

Records LPs Cash or Trade Dynamite Records 584-1580

Tom Petty Tickets 3/25 Providence please call Cynthia 256-0693 or Jane 549-4035.

WANTED TO RENT

2 or 3 bedroom Townhouse or Puffton to rent from June on. John 546-9139 Mike 546-9141

1 bedroom apartment for fall 1983 call Lori or Debbie 546-7701

2 or 3 bedroom apartment wanted in Puffton starting June through fall semester call Letty or Karen 546-7464

MAKE YOUR MARK

at OPERATION SONSHINE '83
DAYTONA BEACH, FLORIDA

Thousands of college students will converge on the Florida coast this spring break for a week at Daytona Beach. You can be one of them!

Come to Operation Sonshine '83. You'll leave more than your footprints in the sand. You'll make an indelible impact on the lives of others. For more information write or call:

Chris West, 613 JF Kennedy. 546-7671
Cynthia Muller, B-7 Emerson, 546-7238

Sponsored by Campus Crusade for Christ International

CAMP COUNSELORS WANTED

Timber Lake Camp, one of New York State's top co-ed summer camps, is seeking high-quality general counselors. Specialists also needed in basketball, softball, soccer, tennis, roller hockey, waterfront (W.S.I.) for lake, indoor and outdoor heated pools, audio/visual, arts and crafts, computers, AM radio, ham radio, television production.

Applications for maintenance, grounds & dining room staff also being accepted.

Contact T.L.C.'s UMASS representative:

Rich Tyroler
1112 Kennedy 546-7762
for application or interview

The rusty nail Inn presents

Wed. March 9 & Thurs March 10 — Justin w/Rococo
Fri. March 11 — Robin Lane & Heartbreaker
Sat. March 12 — NRBQ & The Whole Wheat Horns
Sun. March 13 — Justin
Coming March 18 — The Stompers

Rt. 47, Sunderland, MA 665-4937 You must be 18 to enter.

Sports

UMass ready to take on Rutgers in quarter-final

By JIM FLOYD
Collegian Staff

BRONX, NY — The road to the Atlantic Ten playoffs has been filled with pitfalls and potholes for the University of Massachusetts Minutemen this season.

So, rather than continue on the road, coach Tom McLaughlin and his highflying men's basketball team that won its first playoff game in five years Monday night, opted for the air and flew to Philadelphia yesterday to prepare for playoff step number two.

But, while the team boarded an aircraft, McLaughlin's wife Debbie and sons Corry and Tommy John piled into the McLaughlin car and began a two step trip to the Spectrum.

The plan was simple. The first stop would be the coach's home in the Bronx for an overnight. The next day, having left the kids in the hands of the grandparents, Debbie would continue on to watch the Minutemen take on the ever-tough Scarlet Knights of Rutgers University.

Several hours of pelting rain, Tommy John crying, and Corry wondering "how much longer before we're there," later, the car was finally arriving towards the corner of Katonah and 241st, one of the last remaining good sections in the Bronx, according to Tom McLaughlin's mother.

"This is it on the left," said a relieved Debbie McLaughlin. "We're here at last."

And that was only the first leg of the trip.

One had to wonder what Debbie would think after a rainy afternoon's journey toward the Spectrum and the playoffs.

"There had better be a big win," she smiled.

And, if it is to be a win for the Minutemen it will be a big one.

Rutgers has held a jinx over Massachusetts for some time and most UMass basketball fans will remember the 62-60 win the Scarlet Knights snuck away with just three short weeks ago at the Cage.

Rutgers finished in first place in the East Division of the Atlantic Ten and will, no doubt, be looking to prove they are a better team than this upstart Minuteman squad, which seems to have come into its own in the last few games. But, if ever the Minutemen were ready to play a basketball game, it should be tonight.

Led by the emerging talent of John Hempel, the resurrected prowess of Edwin Green, and the return of floor leader Donald Russell the Minutemen look hungry, willing and able.

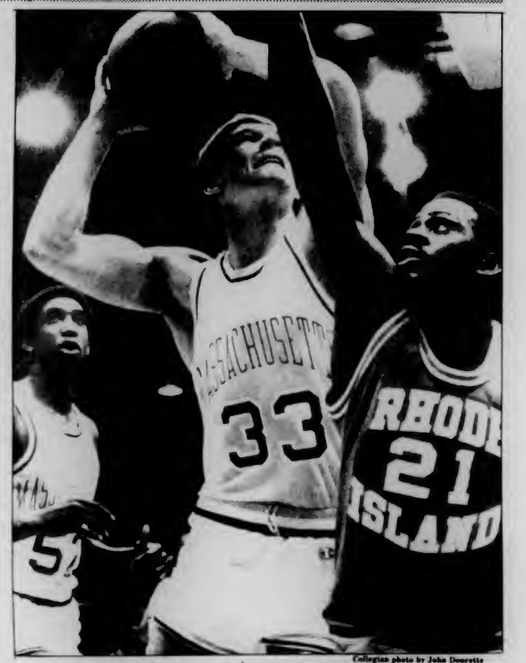
And, UMass will be able to unveil something different tonight against Rutgers. Not only are they now able to handle the full-court pressure that hindered them all season, they have also learned to play well when Russell takes to the bench for a breather.

It will take a total team effort to beat Rutgers but, last night, after the long drive to the Bronx from Amherst, Debbie McLaughlin put aside basketball for a few minutes.

"Dinner time" she yelled up the stairs to Tom McLaughlin's old room. "Dinner time."

And there could be no arguments to logic like that.

Editor's note: Jim Floyd is probably out of the Bronx by now.



Collegian photo by John Doucette

John Hempel looks past URI's Horace "Pappy" Owens as Edwin Green (52) watches in Monday's playoff win over URI. Tonight, UMass takes on Rutgers in the Spectrum in Philadelphia.

Minuteman swimmers take 10th at New Englands

By SCOTT HOOD
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts men's swimming team finished tenth out of 31 schools at the New England Collegiate Swimming championships this past weekend at Springfield College.

Wiliams College won the meet with a total of 528 points. Tufts wound up second with 303½. Other schools finishing ahead of the Minutemen include MIT (260), Springfield (242), University of Lowell (224), University of Rhode Island (212), University of New Hampshire (205), and University of Connecticut (168). UMass had 160 points.

Mark Surette was the star performer for the Minutemen, capturing a pair of sixth place finishes. Surette set a new school record in the 200 Backstroke with a time of 2:00.43. His other fine performance came in the 100 Back, recorded a time of :56.44. Surette also set another school record in the backstroke portion of the 400 Medley Relay. Swimming leadoff, Surette rocketed through the water in :55.65, spurring the others, Tom Lowery, Chris Clarke, and Brian Spellman, on to a seventh place finish.

But Surette was not alone. Clarke also had an outstanding meet, registering a fifth-place finish in the 100 Butterfly at :52.35, and a ninth-place finish in the 200 Butterfly, setting a new school record in the process with a time of 1:58.17.

Other top ten finished by UMass swimmers include: a seventh place for Spellman in the 50 Freestyle in :21.76, a seventh place for Paul McNeil in the 1600 free in 17:00.32, an eighth place for Chris Porter in the 100 Free in 48.26, (his best one ever in the event), ninth place for the 400 Free Relay team of Porter, Steve Samuels, Rich Plunkett, and Spellman, and a ninth place spot for the 800 Free Relay team of Porter, Surette, McNeil, and Spellman.

Lowery (2:15.75) and Phil Surette (2:16.38) wound up thirteenth and fourteenth, respectively, in the 200 Breaststroke. Porter (1:47.57) ended up twelfth in the 200 Free.

"I hoped to finish higher, but as I look back, I don't see how we could have beaten anyone except UConn," said Coach Russ Yarworth. "We lack the top-notch swimmers that the top teams have."

"It was a great season, nonetheless. To see the kids I have improve during the season was nice. Now we turn to recruiting. I have several fine swimmers lined up but it's hard to get out-of-state kids in here because I have to deal with admissions. This year we lost a lot of the kids I recruited because they dropped out. But, overall, the kids who swam did well."

Intramural playoffs start

By TONY BETROS
Collegian Staff

Just because the Cage will no longer be shaking with Atlantic 10 action doesn't mean that basketball is finished. On the contrary, it's that time of the season again — the intramural basketball playoffs. And this year looks exciting as ever.

The playoffs began Monday night with first round competition. In the men's bracket, 70 teams qualified by winning at least three out of five games. GQ-IV, last year's champ, will be looking for four years in a row on top, but there will be a host of teams trying to shoot them down.

Many of last year's final 16 will be competing again for first place. Phi Sigma Kappa and Horsefeathers went through the regular season undefeated and look to be the toughest competition for GQ-IV. The Conquistadores, Chadbourne Maroons, Down West Express, Mission Impossible, and Beta Kappa Phi-A also return from last year's final 16.

Seventeen teams are in contention in the women's division (all of them in other words). The defending champs, the Hoopsters, are going by a different name this year — the Beepers. They will be challenged by Back in Black, Wimps 1 and 2, The Mighty Pequenos, and the Pretenders, who are all returning from last year.

Co-rec has six teams in the playoffs, with last year's champs, the Crowdpleasers, heading the pack. Grad-Fac has 17 teams in the playoffs. Ubiquity will be trying to repeat as champs but will be facing stiff competition from Sludge, Fluid Motions, and Exercise Sciences, who all went undefeated in the regular season.

So, although there will be no more hoop at the Cage, the upper level at Boyden Gym will be rocking for the next few weeks with a lot of action.

While one sport is just beginning the road to the championship, another was concluding last Thursday.

The BLT's won the 1983 wrestling championship, for their third year in a row. This year was quite a struggle, climaxing with a one point victory over the Madmen in the finals. Mike Villardi (135 lbs.), Brian Conrad (155), and Daniel Masselli (185) were winners for the BLT's, as they also took three second place finishes.

The most exciting match had to be Nigel Lewis' 13-10 thriller over Matt King. The two 160 pounders battled it down to the wire, with Lewis eventually winning for the Madmen.

The fact that the BLT's never faced the Madmen in any weight class in the final decision made it tough for the Madmen to catch the champs. Phi Sigma Kappa came in third with two firsts.

Trackmen finish season at IC4A championships

By LAURIE FISHER
Collegian Staff

School records were broker by University of Massachusetts shot putter, Stephen Hyder and runner John Keelan at the Intercollegiate American Amateur Athletic Association (IC4As) last weekend in Princeton, New Jersey.

Stephen Hyder, whose indoor season started off rocky, broke his own shot put record with a distance of 53'6.5", for a ninth place finish in the meet.

"Stephen threw well. Before the IC4As meet he was eighth in New England, now he is ninth in the East," coach Ken O'Brien said.

Sophomore Keelan placed sixth in the 1000 meter run trials on Saturday with a time of 2:29. The top four times are taken for the semi-finals. Although Keelan did not make the semi's he did break the school record previously held by Steven MacDougall set in 1978 (2:30).

The third and last man to represent UMass at the final meet of the indoor track season was high hurdler John Wright. The meet started off well for Wright when he placed second in the high hurdle 55 meter even with a time of 7.5 seconds. Wright lost to Eugene Norman from Rutgers University, Norman was the eventual winner of the high hurdles event Sunday. Wright went on to take fifth in the semi-finals, eliminating him from the finals.

"I was disappointed," O'Brien said, "John has had an outstanding season. It is too bad that the last meet was not indicitive of the season."

Villanova won the meet with George Mason and Rutgers tying for second place. O'Brien said it was one of the most exciting championship meets ever.

"There were more quality competitors and a lot of schools that were previously no threat were placing in the top slots, such as George Mason and Boston University."

Rutgers edges UMass in Tourney, 79-73. See page 20.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
Volume CXII, Issue 93 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003 (413) 545-3500 Thursday, March 10, 1983

Olver wants more grants for UMass

By TAMI BORTON
Collegian Staff

Senator John W. Olver, D-Amherst, has initiated an effort to recognize the University of Massachusetts as a rich resource for the state government.

"It is important the state university be seen and used as the source of research information that it is and the Western Mass. administrators play a role in state policy making," said Stan Rosenberg, legislative aide to Sen. Olver.

"All too often, research contracts are awarded to private institutions at high rates," Rosenberg said. "The private institutes turn around and hire UMass for their research."

The senator learned of the trend at a meeting Thursday with Secretary of Environmental Affairs James S. Hoyte and UMass professors and graduate students from the College of Food and natural resources, according to Cleve Willis, professor of Agricultural and Resource Economics.

The purpose of the meeting was to find ways for the state to better utilize UMass facilities, professors and graduate students for research, and to establish a formalized linkage between western Massachusetts and the state government, Willis said.

Two instances of the problem were cited at the meeting by Joseph S. Larson, Chairman of the Department of Forestry and Wildlife Management at UMass, Willis said. The first was a case in which a state contract for a study of the management of state forests was awarded to Harvard University at a ninety percent overhead rate. Harvard faculty and staff then used data from the UMass forestry department for the basis of their study, Willis said.

Another study in which UMass research was used as a foundation was a report on land use surrounding airports in the state. The contract was awarded to Arthur D. Little Consulting firm in Cambridge at an overhead rate of 100 percent.

"The taxpayers are in a sense paying twice for the research, pius overhead," Willis said. "UMass charges state agencies ten percent or zero percent overhead, depending on the study."

"In times of fixed budgets and pressing issues in environmental affairs, this discrepancy needs attention," Willis said.

As a result of the meeting, Hoyte and Daniel I. Padberg, dean of the College of Food and Natural Resources, will work together to name a liason between the college and the state government, Willis said.

"The purpose of this position will be to aid the state by informing state administrators of resources available at UMass and to bring back information on topics being addressed by the state, a perspective which is sometimes lost over the 90 miles," Willis said.

The liason will give UMass an opportunity to compete for research contracts, whereas previously they were not informed until after the fact, Willis said.

"In this way we can offer research results from some of the best researchers at less overhead than private organizations."

In addition, students will benefit from the plan.

"Not only will they be involved in providing the research, but it will serve as a learning experience," Willis said. Also, he said, contract money can help finance research projects.

"The senator wants to insure that there are high level policy makers from western Mass. involved in every secretariat and the role of a university as a public service is developed," Rosenberg said.

Photo by Sue Korzeis

Rowboats lined up along the bank of the Quabbin Reservoir patiently await the warmer weather that will melt the remaining snow and bring passengers flocking to them.

Campus building repairs estimated at $120 million

By KEN BAZINET
Collegian Staff

The deterioration of several University of Massachusetts buildings and the high risk of their electrical, plumbing and heating systems breaking down would cost an estimated $120 million in repairs at the Amherst campus over the next five years, a buildings consultant has reported.

In a preliminary report to UMass President David C. Knapp, Willard Prince, a private consultant and retired director of planning and facilities at UMass, Boston, stated that the Amherst campus' buildings are in the poorest condition of the three schools in the system.

According to every maintenance budget proposal made by UMass since 1979, repairing the Tower Library is the first priority. Several studies have determined that the tower's spalling brick facade and electrical system are faulty, and several options for repairing the building have been proposed.

Gov. Michael S. Dukakis has proposed that $3,830,000 of next year's (FY84) Capital Outlay Budget go directly for the repair of the library. There is also a possibility that $2.5 million which was on schedule in the fiscal year 1981 Capital Outlay Bu[illegible] be forwarded to UMass by the [illegible] of Capital Planning and Operations (DCPO). DCPO withheld that money because of a discrepancy in the wording of the appropriation, H. Jackson Littlefield, director of planning and facilities at UMass, Amherst said Monday.

Littlefield, who oversees building maintenance at UMass, said ventilation and power capacity problems in the Graduate Research Center (GRC) are also a high priority. The GRC houses two cyber computer systems and several terminals which are in danger of breaking down during the summer because of extreme heat and the potential failure of the cooling and ventilation system, Littlefield said.

Littlefield said that among other problems, the Fine Arts Center suffers from a faulty plumbing system and Marshall Hall, which Dukakis has proposed that $205,000 be put aside for, also requires immediate rennovations.

There are also several dormitories which require repair and many of the older academic buildings are in need of modernizing, Littlefield said.

Patricia Byre, Knapp's director of special projects, yesterday said Prince's estimates do not include the cost of new academic equipment or new construction.

"The estimates are for renovations, repairs and deferred maintenance," she said.

Byre said the estimates are preliminary and will be reviewed by the three chancellors, who will report back to Knapp with their findings.

"The President and the chancellors are trying to assess what the specific needs of the University are," she said. "(The University) has to find out what (its) priorities are; what should be done first, and what should be done last."

Last week at the Western Massachusetts Economic Development Conference, Knapp said if the state begins repairing UMass' buildings it can provide jobs for many of the region's unemployed. Knapp also said the physical atmosphere of the University also plays a role in attracting a strong faculty and staff.

Senate may sue UMass over SATF

By JOHN O'CONNELL
Collegian Staff

Student Government Association (SGA) President Jim Murphy last night was granted $2,000 by the Undergraduate Student Senate to consult with a New York law firm on whether the SGA should sue the University of Massachussetts for control of the student Activities Trust Fund (SATF).

"The time has come" to sue the University for control of the SATF, Murphy said, because the administration has "gone too far" in trying to gain control of student funds in many areas.

"It's gotten to the point where something has to be done," Murphy said.

Both Murphy and his assistant, Bruce Levy, outlined alleged University abuses of funds, in particular citing those by Student Activities Office (SAO) Director Randy Donant. Levy said both Donant and Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs Dennis L. Madson have "ignored established personnel policies" which he said guaranteed student input into hiring and promotions in the SAO.

"The director's salary has gone up $10,00 since Randy took office," Levy said. "That's $10,000 that can't be allocated to student groups and activities."

Murphy said the $2,000 will go to the law firm of Rabinowitz, Bowdin, and Standard as a consulting fee to explore the possibility of a suit. That firm won the UMass' Legal Services Office the right to sue the University in 1975, Murphy said. The Legal Services Office has done preliminary research on the case, but the case is potentially so extensive that "it would take away from the day-to-day operation of the office," Murphy said.

If the senate decides to sue, the case would "probably take three to four years, maybe five," Murphy said, and if the University wins, the SGA would appeal.

"Potentially, this case could cost us a lot of money," Murphy said, but "it will be money well spent."

"We're playing for all the marbles," Murphy said.

Levy said the suit could be based on a 1970 case that ruled the President of Fitchburg State College had no power over student funds once they are allocated for student activities. Donant has claimed control of organizations funded through the student government, Levy said.

"We're saying that they have no control over our expenditures of funds for these organizations," Levy said.

The UMass Board of Trustees took control of the SAO budget in 1980, Levy said. That budget should now be set by Vice Chancellor Madson in consultation with student government members, but Madson has ignored the new policy, Levy said.

Murphy said that SGA presidents have been "holding it (the threat of suit) for years as an ace in the hole" in dealing with the administration, but it is becoming "an idle threat," and must be used soon.

In other business, appointments of new senators from several residential areas were tabled until next week following accusations that an attempt was being made to "stack" the senate prior to next week's election for senate speaker and treasurer. Earlier in the meeting, the senate accepted the resignation of Dave McCarthy from his seat in McKimmie Dormitory in the Southwest Residential College.

World and National News

Burford resigns post as EPA head

AP Laserphoto

Anne M. Burford heads for the door after President Reagan yesterday accepted her resignation as head of the scandal-plagued Environmental Protection Agency.

WASHINGTON — Anne McGill Burford quit as chief of the troubled Environmental Protection Agency yesterday, while the White House announced it would release all documents congressional investigators had demanded in their investigations of the EPA.

Despite the resignation and President Reagan's agreement to surrender the documents, House investigators said their inquiries into EPA management of the $1.6 billion "superfund" would continue.

Rep. Mike Synar, D-Okla, chairman of one subcommittee investigating charges of mismanagement and political manipulation of the fund, was asked if Mrs. Burford's resignation meant an end to the EPA investigations.

"It may in the media, but it won't in the Congress," he said.

Sen. Robert T. Stafford, R-Vt., chairman of the Senate Environment and Public Works Committee, also said his committee will continue its close scrutiny of EPA operations.

The resignation of the EPA chief came as chairmen of House investigating subcommittees exerted new pressure for release of the documents — documents which Mrs. Burford had continually refused to supply, leading to a contempt of Congress charge against her.

"Your resignation today is an occasion of sorrow for us all," Reagan said. "But it is more than that: it is an act of unselfishness and personal courage that once again demonstrates your loyalty to the nation."

Mrs. Burford had been under considerable pressure to quit, but Reagan had continued to defend her. He said in Klamath Falls, Ore., last Saturday that she could "stay as long as she wants to."

The 40-year-old Mrs. Burford, whose conservative policies had angered many environmentalists, had also said repeatedly that she would not quit despite calls for her resignation from such prominent Republicans as House Minority Leader Bob Michel of Illinois.

Larry Speakes, the chief deputy White House press secretary, said Mrs. Burford met with Reagan at 5:25 p.m. EST to hand in her resignation.

Her deputy administrator, John Hernandez, will fill in as acting administrator, Speakes said, until a permanent director can be found.

The documents to be released to Congress are at the center of a half-dozen investigations into the agency's $1.6 billion "superfund" program to clean up toxic waste dumps.

The agreement was announced on Capitol Hill by Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., chairman of the House Energy and Commerce investigations subcommittee, and Rep. James T. Broyhill, R-N.C., its ranking Republican.

The release of documents came on a day when Dingell had threatened another contempt of Congress charge against Mrs. Burford, and three other House Subcommittee chairman had said the president's claims of executive privilege were a sham. The three chairmen accused the White House of withholding EPA files from Congress while it was giving copies to companies accused of polluting.

Reagan says nuclear freeze motion will 'delight' Soviets

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration took the offensive yesterday against a nuclear weapons freeze plan headed for a House vote next week, charging that the measure would "delight the Soviets" and increase the danger of war.

House Minority Leader Robert Michel, R-Ill., said he told President Reagan that the Democratic-controlled House is likely to pass the resolution, endorsed Tuesday by the House Foreign Affairs Committee on a 27-9 vote.

"Obviously, he (Reagan) didn't like it," Michel commented to reporters

Today's Staff

Night Editor — Paul A. Basken
Copy Editor — Paul Belval
Layout Technician — Jim Finkle
Photo Technician — Katie Watters
Composition — Matt Sajdak, Laura Shanahan, Sam Levitt, Marianne Walsh, Tracy Lang, Maria Cahillane, Kathy Baglio, Jamie Katz

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday excluding vacations, exam periods, or holidays. Subscriptions are available for $18 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Massachusetts. Postmaster: Send address changes to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003.

Digest

By the Associated Press

Reagan says new report shows large Soviet military build-up

WASHINGTON — In a blaze of orchestrated publicity, the administration issued yesterday a report which President Reagan said gives the American people the "straight facts" on an unflagging Soviet buildup to military superiority on the ground, in the oceans, through the air and even space.

The objective, as both Reagan and Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger made clear, is to marshal support for the administration's record $1.6 trillion program to "rearm America." That program is being buffeted by demands even from Republicans that it be cut.

"The Soviets have not slowed the pace of their enourmous military buildup," said Reagan in a statement put out before Weinberger presented the 107-page report at a Pentagon news conference.

"In little over a year, they have begun testing new models in almost every class of nuclear weapons," Reagan added.

Dioxin exposure in Vietnam not as bad as Times Beach

WASHINGTON — Why Times Beach and not Vietnam? When a veteran asked why the government bought out a town in Missouri that was exposed to dioxin but won't compensate veterans exposed to the same substance in Vietnam, Air Force Major Alvin Young was ready.

He flashed onto a screen a slide showing an orange and an apple.

His point was that the degree of exposure was so much greater in Times Beach, Mo., than in Vietnam that comparing the two situations was like comparing, well, apples and oranges.

For years, the Veterans Administration has dismissed veterans' claims that dioxin in the herbicides sprayed in Vietnam damaged their health. So the VA was put on the spot when another agency of government moved so fast after dioxin was found in Times Beach, population 2,400.

Young, an environmental specialist on loan to the VA, has collected a pile of data intended to prove that herbicides sprayed in Vietnam were not the culprit, but his data hasn't persuaded the veterans.

The issue won't go away. Other veterans keep asking the question that Hugh Walkup of Seattle raised at a meeting of the VA's Advisory Committee on Herbicides: Why Times Beach and not Vietnam?

The Centers for Disease Control decided that one part per billion of dioxin was enough to be a health risk.

"Life in the Global Village - World Development Issues"
Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst

Sponsored by The Chancellor's Office, The Center for International Education, The Center for International Agricultural Studies, and the Peace Corps.

Monday, March 14

3:00 - 5:00
Opening Session, Room 163-C, Chancellor Joseph Duffy
Keynote Address, Abdulrahman Mohamed Babu, Visiting Professor of Black Studies, Amherst College, Room 163-C

7:30 - 9:30
Reception for Returned Peace Corps Volunteers, families and friends, Memorial Hall, UMass Campus

Tuesday, March 15

9:00 - 12:00
Films on International Development, Room 803

WORKSHOPS

9:00 - 10:00
"Language and Culture", Room 802
Josephine M. Ryan, Education

10:00 - 11:00
"Forestry in Central America", Room 805-09
Gary Burniske, Forestry

11:00 - 12:00
"Rural Agricultural Development", Room 811-B
Valerie Mailler, Plant and Soil Sciences
Tom Mahoney, Plant and Soil Sciences

11:00 - 12:00
"Education in India", Room 802
Rema Pai, Future Studies

PANEL DISCUSSIONS

1:30 - 3:00
"Women in Development", Room 805-08
Pana Putnam, Center for International Education
Nancy Herman, Anthropology
Carol Wzorek, Peace Corps
Pat McGuire, Center for International Education, Moderator

3:30 - 5:00
"Food and Agriculture", Room 804-08
John Foster, Food and Resource Economics
Nola Reinhardt, Economics, Smith College
Mary Pritchard, OXFAM
Gilbert Mottla, Center for International Agricultural Studies.
Moderator

Wednesday, March 16

9:00 - 12:00
Films on International Development, Room 803

WORKSHOPS

9:00 - 10:00
"Changing Peoples Eating Habits", Room 802
Dahlia Aspillera, Food Science

10:00 - 11:00
"International Careers", Room 805-09
Sterling Lamet, International Programs Office, UMass

11:00 - 12:00
"Cooperatives as a Development Tool"
Room 811-B
Doudou Jome, C.I.E.
Barbara Howald, C.I.E.

PANEL DISCUSSIONS

1:30 - 3:30
"The Role of the U.S. in World Development",
Room 804-08
Randall Stokes, Sociology
E. Jefferson Murphy, 5 College Coordin.
Ralph Faulkingham, Anthropology
There will be an exhibit of photographs by Stan Sherer which pertain to conference topics on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, 8th floor lounge.

Harvard students try to get ROTC

CAMBRIDGE — A group of Harvard students is trying to bring back the Reserve Officers Training Corps in the form of a club, 14 years after ROTC was banished from the campus.

Harvard junior Andrew Deardorff, an Army cadet, is seeking permission to form a "Harvard-Radcliffe ROTC Club," open to all students, "to promote interest in an understanding of military matters through publications, meetings, seminars and other educational activities."

School and military officials say the club would not mean a return of the military training program to the school.

"The college has received a proposal to form an ROTC club, which would be entitled to use the Harvard name and campus meeting space," Dean of Students Archie C. Epps III said Tuesday night.

Photo by Martha Glaser

Peace symbol sign is resurrected from the sixties at nuclear freeze rally which attracted several thousand supporters to Capitol Hill Tuesday.

Washington lobby for freeze feels good response locally

By PAUL BASKEN
Collegian Staff

The nationwide nuclear freeze rally held Tuesday in Washington was a success on the local level, yet still left uncertainty for the resolution's national acceptance, participants said yesterday.

"I think we made real communication with (U.S. Rep. Silvio O.) Conte,(R- Pittsfield)," said Victoria Safford of the American Friends Service Committee (AFSC), a local organizing group for the bus which carried 45 local people, including four University of Massachusetts students, to the rally.

Safford said Conte has in the past sent her group "a lot of polite letters," but that this time he took more effort in explaining how freeze supporters could be more successful in lobbying other Congressmen. Conte gave his constituents the names of key Congressmen and committee and staff members to push for passage, Safford said, as well as a "committment to continue communications" with the freeze groups in his district.

"I'll just continue what I've been doing," Conte told his visitors Tuesday. Assessing the result to date, Conte reassured lobbyists, "We've created a very persuasive national debate, and that in and of itself is a success."

The national aspect of the freeze was, however, the area in which the day was "not entirely successful," said lobbyist Martha Glaser of Northampton, a part time student at UMass. She said that while the Massachusetts delegation on Capitol Hill has sponsored and strongly supported the resolution, lobbyists from other parts of the country, such as New York, were refused meeting appointments by their Congressmen.

Frances Crowe, a member of the AFSC who said she became involved in the anti-nuclear movement at age 26 when the first atomic bombs were dropped on Hiroshima and Nagasaki, said that "even if we don't have a nuclear war, the arms race is killing us now."

"I want my children to live," Crowe gave as the motivation for her spending two straight nights on the Washington bus, sleeping in the overhead rack. "I want life on this planet to go on."

At a meeting Tuesday in the Russell Senate Office Building, Jana Catuccio of Westfield presented Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D- Mass., and Sen. Paul E. Tsongas, D- Mass., with 3,000 proxy forms signed by western Massachusetts freeze supporters who were unable to attend the rally.

"When you tell people what they're losing in their own community, their ears perk up," Catuccio told the senators when describing the work done collecting signatures. "We are not running away from a challenge; we are rising to an even greater challenge."

Student subcommittee uses election to push General Ed

By RITA MURPHY
Collegian Staff

In an effort to persuade the University of Massachusetts Faculty Senate that more discussion is needed on the General Education Curriculum Proposal, the student subcommittee on General Education will use the results of a Student Government Association (SGA) referendum question.

The referendum question on the General Education Curriculum proposal was on the SGA ballot Monday and Tuesday, and received more undecided than either affirmative or negative votes.

Of the 4,088 students who responded to the referendum, 1,409 expressed support of the proposal, 754 opposed it, and 1,925 said they did not have enough information to decide.

Subcommittee Task Coordinator Ellen Nylen said that because of the complexity of the whole general education issue and its importance, more discussion is needed by both students and faculty before any action should be taken by the senate.

For students to answer they do not have enough information on the proposal "shows the need to keep the discussion going," she said.

"An 'I don't know vote' is as good as a 'yes' vote. What we (the student subcommittee) must do is show the senate that," she said.

Steven Zeil, a Faculty Senator, said the student vote is different from the faculty vote because the students were asked whether they support the entire proposal while the faculty will be asked what parts of the proposal they support.

Students may have voted "thinking they support one or two parts of the proposal, but the way the question was asked doesn't separate the parts," he said.

The results of the question can not be weighted too heavily, he said.

Nylen said someone from the student group would probably speak at either the March 17 or April 7 senate meeting to urge senators to hold off voting on the proposal until "more discussion can be generated."

In the coming weeks, the student group will be using other lobbying tactics such as calling UMass students and urging their attendance at the next two meetings, especially the April 7 senate meeting at which a vote on the proposal is expected.

"If students show up at those meetings, it will show the senate they really do care about the issue," she said.

Zeil said such a lobbying effort "May be effective," and could have an impact on the senate.

Students see lobbying in capital as success

By RICHARD NANGLE
Collegian Staff

WASHINGTON - Students Advocating Financial Assistance (SAFA) members yesterday agreed this week's lobbying trip to Capitol Hill involved a new challenge that was handled successfully by the group as a whole.

For the first time, SAFA lobbyists had to be knowledgeable about financial aid policy issues as well as dollars, said Lyn Nichols, chairwoman of the federal legislation committee of the Massachusetts Association of Financial Aid Administrators. Nichols, along with Gerald Grady, coordinator of community relations at the University of Massachusetts, accompanied the group as advisors.

"It was a more difficult challenge than any of the previous four trips. I was quite concerned that we wouldn't pull it off," Grady said. But, he said, "The group spirit was very high."

SAFA lobbied Capitol Hill legislators for three days against proposed restructuring of financial aid policy in the fiscal 1984 Reagan Administration budget. The budget, if passed, would eliminate all grant programs except the Pell Grant, which would be slightly increased. It would also increase funding for the college work study program by 57 percent.

SAFA also lobbied against the Solomon Amendment, which prohibits students that cannot prove they have registered for the draft from receiving federal education funds.

Massachusetts congressmen Joseph Moakley, D- Mass. and Edward J. Markey, D- Malden, were visited by SAFA lobbyists yesterday. The purpose of the visits was to thank them for their continued support of higher education, said SAFA member Jim Shaw.

"I'll have to find something on education to vote against," Markey said jokingly. "It looks like I'm in the tank with you."

There were disappointments with conservative Republicans, however.

An aid to Sen. Mark Mattingley, R- Georgia, said Mattingley is opposed to any increases in financial aid and believes a three-year budget freeze will pull the United States out of the national debt, said SAFA secretary Cindy Howland.

But a meeting with Sen. Joseph Skeen, R- New Mexico, by SAFA's Roberto Palencia was an example of the fact that many legislators are unaware of some of the consequences of financial aid cuts.

Palencia, a Hispanic student, said he told Skeen that tuition hikes and budget cuts are particularly bad for Hispanics, most of whom are below the poverty level in America.

When Skeen heard that argument (a large part of his constituency is Hispanic), he told his aides that they will have to discuss the matter in further detail, Palencia said. Skeen has one of the lowest United States Student Association (USSA) voting records in the Senate.

"I'm afraid a lot of Hispanics and a lot of Third World people will not be able to go to college (in the future)," Palencia said.

Palencia said that some conservatives seemed to be flexible on financial aid issues.

"The hard liners in the issue are themselves surprised, saying, 'why the hell is the President doing this,'" when told of the education situation, Palencia said.

Shaw related a similar incident involving an aide to Sen. John Stennis, D- Miss.

The aid told Shaw that Stennis was sympathetic to education issues, he said.

"But when we told him Stennis had a 31 percent (USSA) voting record, he nearly fell out of his chair," Shaw said. The aide then asked the group to send him the statistics, he said.

Jim Crosby, SAFA treasurer, and Bill Keegan, who represented the Graduate Student Senate, were both optimistic about rejection of the Reagan Budget.

"As far as the actual result, I don't think the proposal that Reagan made is going to go through," Crosby said. "The people that matter think (the Solomon amendment) is a sham".

Keegan, along with three other graduate students, concentrated their efforts on the proposed five percent hike in the origination fee of the Guaranteed Student Loan program to 10 percent. Keegan said even some "hard core Republicans" were against the proposal after it was explained to them.

Photo by Maria Bull

Debbie Dawson sits in relative safety alongside a smashed window on the second floor of Herter Hall.

SOME FACTS ABOUT YOUR FUTURE AS AN AIR FORCE NURSE

There are many nursing positions which offer career fulfillment. Being an Air Force nurse can fulfill that need. There is also a lot more to life than work and Air Force nursing provides that something extra. In addition to your nursing uniform, you'll wear the uniform of an Air Force officer.

You'll have the prestige and responsibility of a leader with equal opportunity for advancement. You'll have the advantages of the Air Force's great way of life — 30 days of vacation with pay each year, medical and dental care, educational opportunity and recreational facilities. There are many more personal and financial rewards. If you qualify, you may compete for Air Force nursing specialties. Add the challenge, the responsibility and the opportunity of Air Force nursing to your future. Contact an Air Force nurse recruiter today for more information. Sandy Price

(203) 229-9641 collect calls excepted or Capt. Dasher
(413) 545-2437

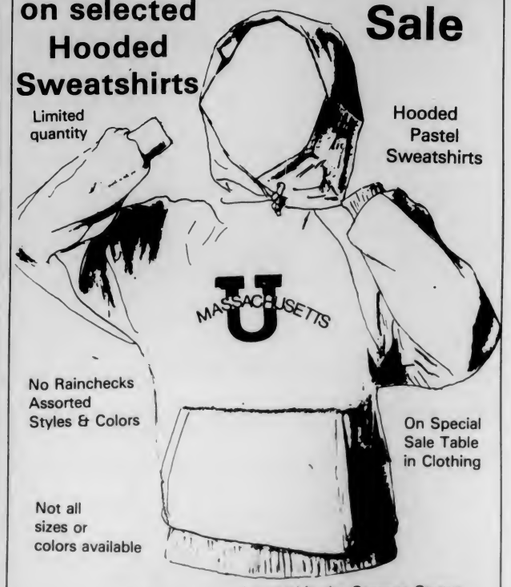
AIR FORCE
A great way of life

25% OFF Clearance Sale

on selected Hooded Sweatshirts

Limited quantity

Hooded Pastel Sweatshirts



No Rainchecks
Assorted Styles & Colors

On Special Sale Table in Clothing

Not all sizes or colors available

Located in the Campus Center

OPEN M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4

UNIVERSITY STORE

4th Annual Getaway Sale!

...A Store-full of Ideas

JERGAS reg. 14.95 12.95

starts THURS., MARCH 10
...through SAT., MARCH 19

PRIME CUT PANTS reg. 18.95 11.95

DANSKIN 20% OFF

TANK TOPS reg. 6.95 4.95

SUNGLASSES reg. 5.95 3.95

FACES
A Store-full of Ideas

Downtown Amherst · Open 10-6, Mon.-Sat.

Collegian photo by Katie Watters

Puddles such as the one reflecting two chilled passers-by outside the Old Chapel have formed all over campus in the rain of the past three days.

Physical Plant construction to alter traffic and bus routes

By DAVID SUMMERSBY
Collegian Staff

Upon return from spring break, students at the University of Massachusetts and visitors to the campus will see several temporary changes to campus traffic patterns while a pollution control system called a "baghouse" is being built next to the power plane.

The baghouse, which filters particulate matter in the form of fly ash from the emissions of the smoke stacks, is being built in order to meet standards of the Lower Pioneer Valley Air Pollution Control District on air quality in Massachusetts.

Construction of the project requires the closing of Campus Center Way for a period of fourteen months. As a result, routes for cars and buses normally using this road will be revised.

All buses now operating from the Campus Center circle, such as those run by PVTA and Peter Pan, will instead be stopping at the Haigis Mall between the Whitmore Administration Building and the School of Business Administration.

Motor vehicles using the Campus Center garage will be rerouted to Governors Drive, where they can enter the garage by using a temporary roadway that travels past Hatch Laboratory and inbetween Flint and Chenoweth Laboratories.

Trucks going to and from the Cold Storage Plant will have to use the road in front of Holdsworth Hall from Information Booth Six.

As stipulated in the construction contract, there will be a walkway past the construction site that will enable pedestrians to walk to the Textbook Annex and points beyond it.

Bill Barrett, director of Transportation and Parking, said the new bus stop is the biggest change and should present the most problems.

"Students will still have to buy their Peter Pan bus tickets in the lobby of the Hotel, but now they have to walk all the way with their baggage to the Haigis Mall," he said.

"Timewise, people are going to have to realize it is a longer walk and they are going to have to plan ahead an extra ten to fifteen minutes," said Meredith Schmidt, manager of the Campus Center Hotel.

H. Jackson Littlefield, director of facilities planning, said the change, "is a matter of getting reacclimated to a different route.

"The person most affected will be the one who day in and day out has been taking a bus to the Campus Center Circle and then walking to the north side of campus. It either means a longer walk of getting on a campus shuttle and getting off on Governors Drive."

The new routes and bus stops will not only cause obvious problems in the form of longer walks, but also little things like installing informational signs to inform pedestrians where cars are going to be.

Director of Public Safety Gerald O'Neill said he is working closely with Physical Plant to prepare the new garage access road to accomodate both cars and people.

"There must be stop signs put up by all the walkways, Information Booth Six must be removed by the Physical Plant so trucks can get by, and there is an exit door in food tech (Chenoweth Laboratories) which opens right into the road, and thus needs a sign to inform people," he said.

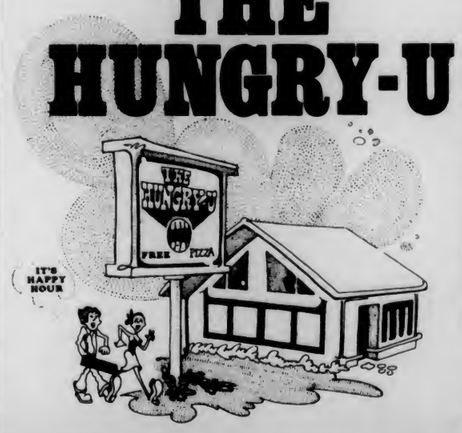
O'Neill said it will take time for people to get used to all the changes, including the new bus stop, and it is going to cause many inconveniences.

"We will be looking for potential problems and addressing citizen complaints," he said.

Schmidt said she and members of Conference Services are considering transportation to the Campus Center for people staying in the Hotel and involved with conferences who have taken a bus to the Haigis Mall.

"There will be directional signs telling people how to walk to the Campus Center and possibly there is going to be a shuttle bus from the Haigis Mall to the Hotel," she said.

THE HUNGRY-U



Happy Hour · Thursday 9 - close · Friday 2 - 5:30

FREE PIZZA

55 UNIVERSITY Dr Amherst Mass. TEL. 549-5713

50¢ DRAFTS 99¢ BAR DRINKS

Spirit Haus
WINES & LIQUORS
338 College Street

Tuborg Lt & Dk	$2.70/6 pk.
Becks Lt & Dk	$3.99/6 pk
Carling 12 oz exports	$7.45/cse
Miller & Lite 12 oz loose bottles	$10.95/cse
Bud 12 oz loose cans	$10.95/cse
Foster Lager 25 oz can	$1.55/ea

Plenty of Cold Draft Barrels On Hand
Prices don't include deposit.

Fleishmann's Whiskey 1.75 l	$13.75
Jameson Irish Whiskey 750 ml	$10.99
Piccala Coffee Liq. 750 ml	$5.99
Crown Russe Vodka 100° 750 ml	$5.19
Ron Rico Rum 750 ml	$5.45
Cartier Blanc de Blanc 750 ml	$1.99
Buena Vista Gamay Beaujolais 750 ml	$2.99

We Welcome Your Empty Btls & Cans
not responsible for typographical errors

Painters Caps

Back in Stock

99¢

Located in the Campus Center

Open
M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4

UNIVERSITY STORE

Thursday
OLDIES
with
Gregg Adams
TWO FOR ONE
9 til 11
all liquor drinks
no cover

THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST

SEE BRUCE LEE AT HIS BEST
- in -
"GAME OF DEATH"
Thurs, March 10th
Student Union Ballroom
$1.00 admission
7, 9, 11 PM

Recycle this Collegian

★★MOVIE★★

ARTHUR

Starring
Dudley Moore and Liza Minnelli

Thursday March 10

Engineering East Aud.

7, 9, 11 p.m.

AN IMPORTANT ADDITION TO YOUR UNIFORM

The insignia of an Air Force nurse can mean a lot to you and your future. It shows that you're part of the Air Force Nurse Corps. A member of one of the most efficient health care teams in the world. It signifies you are an Air Force officer with the responsibility and prestige of a leadership position. It indicates you're on the track toward good pay and almost unlimited educational opportunities. If you're a nursing professional or about to complete your nursing education, why not consider Air Force nursing as part of YOUR future? From the day you're commissioned, you'll receive the pay and advantages of an Air Force officer. Consider your uniform and our future. Then make it yours.

AIR FORCE NURSING. A GREAT WAY OF LIFE

For More Details Call Sandy Price
(203) 229-9641
Freshmen & Sophmores Call Capt. Pinkell
(413) 545-2137

AIR FORCE

Chancellor's Lecture Series

Mark W. Roskill

"Photojournalism: Its Early Life & Times"

Thursday, March 10, 8 p.m.
Campus Center Auditorium
University of Massachusetts at Amherst

Alcoholism in women often called nervousness or hysteria by doctors

Editor's Note: This is the first of a two part series.

By MARY BALDWIN
Collegian Staff

There may be more women alcoholics than people realize due to poor detection by the medical community, said the director of a problem drinking program in Northampton.

"Frequently more women alcoholics than men are diagnosed as having a mental health problem or a depressive problem rather than being alcoholic."

As a result, "women alcoholics are more apt to be prescribed drugs for an emotional problem rather than to be diagnosed alcoholic," she said.

One reason women alcoholics are misdiagnosed is because alcoholism has a lot to do with emotion, Moriarty said. Therefore women alcoholics who are emotional are described by physicians as being hysterical, she said.

A longer delay in alcoholism detection in women occures because physical examinations do not always show alcoholism, Moriarty said.

According to a study, alcoholism in women goes undetected because of the reluctanee of workers to ask questions about alcohol use.

"Women have been more protected from alcoholism," Moriarty said. "They are not arrested as often, adding to the longer delay in detection."

However, results from a 1977 study indicate an increase in drunkenness offense rates for women. Other indicators, according to the study, are an increase in liver cirrhosis mortality, alcoholic mortality and the number of women receiving treatment for drinking problems.

There is also a tendency for women to deny to themselves that they have a problem and to hide their drinking from their doctors because of the stigma our society attaches to women who drink, Moriarty said.

However, the medical community is becoming more aware of the problem, she said.

Another study found that the number of women alcoholics may be increasing because more women are admitting they have a problem and seeking help. Advertising, emancipation, stress because of employment, domestic stress, role ambiguity and self-image problems are other causes for an increase in women alcoholics, according to the study.

Pizza delivery at UMass is becoming a dangerous job

By DAVID MUNIZ
Collegian Correspondent

University of Massachusetts police confirmed a report that an employee of Domino's Pizza was robbed of his pizzas and a sack of cash containing twenty dollars -near Cance and Pierpont dormitories in the Southwest Residential College last week, and that similar instances have happened since then.

Most pizza companies the Collegian interviewed recently said that so far this semester thefts from pizza delivery people have been a recurring problem.

Last semester, University of Massachusetts police reported at least 15 cases in which drivers were the victims of thieves who stole pizzas, cash, or both. Last October, a driver for Domino's Pizza had a bottle hurled at his face. It broke his nose.

Bruno Matarazzo, an employee of Pinocchio's, said, "The crowd's changed in the past two years. The entire attitude (of the students) has changed."

He attributed the change to "a combination of luck and being careful."

Pinocchio's drivers are advised to make "shady areas" their last stop, and to lock pizzas in the trunks of their cars. They are also advised not to carry a lot of cash

Jim Stevens, an employee of Domino's Pizza, said, "There is no problem on Hampshire or Amherst College campuses, just at UMass." Domino's employees wear uniforms, which other owners say make a deliverer more vulnerable.

"The visibility is more of a gain, in that it gives a lot of free publicity to the pizzeria, and the drivers have no qualms about wearing uniforms," he said.

Unlike Domino's, Whole Wheat Pizza's manager said problems are not only at UMass, but also at nearby Amherst College. Last semester, a Whole Wheat driver was robbed of his pizzas at knifepoint at Amherst College. It is not known if the assailant was a student at the college, or a stranger on the campus.

Most pizza vendors also tell their drivers to run to and from dorms. This makes them harder to catch, and it also keeps the pizzas hot.

Pizzas, equalizer and tapes stolen from Southwest area

Suspects are sought by University of Massachusetts police in connection with the robbery of two large cheese pizzas and the assault and battery of a pizza delivery person early Wednesday morning.

Police said the incident occurred in the driveway of James Dormitory in the Southwest Residential College. The victim had entered the lobby of James and asked for the party that ordered the pizzas, police said. Police said the party said they would come down to get the pizzas, but never showed.

The deliveryman returned to his car where he was accosted by two men, police said. The suspect punched the victim on the right side of the face while the second person grabbed the pizzas, police said, and both then ran toward Emerson Dormitory.

The pizzas were valued at $16.

The case is still under investigation.

An $80 graphic equalizer and 72 tapes valued at $360 were reported stolen from a student's car parked in Lot 22. The incident occurred sometime between 7 p.m. sunday and 7:45 p.m. tuesday, police said. The perpitrator gained entrance by breaking the driver's side window, which was valued at $80, police said.

— RAY BEAUCHEMIN

classé café

168 no. pleasant st. amherst

253-2291 to go

walk this way to the classe cafe affordable dining, night & day
mon - sat 7 am - 10 pm
sunday 7 am - 2 pm
"filling the gap in amherst"

Amherst Chinese Foods
Best Mandarin Food
62-64 Main St.
Amherst
Closed Wednesdays
WE DO NOT USE MSG OR ARTIFICIAL COLOR
We use FRESH Vegetables from Our Own Farm
BEER & WINE LICENSE
SUNDAY BRUNCH
ALL YOU CAN EAT
$5.95
253-7836

Have You Heard About

Our Happy Hour

Happy Hours:
Mon - Thurs 4 - 7
Friday 3 - 6
Sun - Tues 9 - 11
50¢ Domestic Drafts
(includes your choice of Michelob, Budweiser, Miller, Miller Lite, Lowenbrau Dark)
75¢ Heinekens (12 oz)
99¢ Bar drinks

— Tonite —
Featured at Webster's
50¢ Miller Drafts from 9 to close
Entertainment - Hungry Hill

What's m-m-m-more...

for a mere 75¢ you can sup on our Webster's Sampler: enjoy an appetizing platter of Buffalo chicken wings or BBQ ribs...try the Mediterranean bread...or an hors d'oeuvres cheese board!
(While kitchen is open)

Plumbley's
off the common
Amherst Center • 253-9586

7 DAYS
TO BETTER SOUND

Problems With Your Stereo?

Our repair dept. can fix most units in just ONE WEEK!!

Need Cash?

We BUY used audio equipment!!

Lusting After Higher Fidelity?

All our used components have a full 60 day guarantee!!

Audio Replay
865 MEMORIAL AVE.
W SPRINGFIELD, MA. 01089
(413) 732-8996
QUALITY SECOND HAND COMPONENTS / EXPERT AUDIO REPAIR

Northampton
a shopping event!

DYNAMITE RECORDS
BUY SELL TRADE
RENT
Stores in Amherst and Northampton
JAZZ - BLUES - ROCK
CLASSICAL - FOLK
In Paul's Old Time Furniture
57 E. Pleasant, Amherst
Thornes Marketplace, Northampton 584-1580

Your Ad Should Be Here
Call 545-3500 For Our
Special Thursday Rates!

"Look what's cooking"
Roberto's
"HOME OF ITALIAN FOODS"
PIZZA OUR SPECIALTY
CHICKEN - SPAGHETTI
ORDERS PUT UP TO TAKE OUT
584-0204
Kitchen Hours 11:30 A.M.-11:30 P.M.
223 Pleasant St., Northampton

HIGHEST PRICES PAID
- FOR -
GOLD & SILVER
IN ALL FORMS
MANHAN JEWELLERS
3 PLEASANT ST (CORNER OF MAIN)
NORTHAMPTON MA. 01060
(413) 584-7000

Reach
25,000
daily

JON POUSETTE-DART
also MITCH CHAKOUR
SUN MARCH 13
7 & 10 PM
$6 TIX NOW
20 Center St. Northampton • 8 am-Midnight
Information & Ticket Reservations: 584-0610
Cafe Fare • Full Bar • Coffee • Desserts
IRON HORSE
Coffeehouse

BEARDSLEY'S
140 Main St.
Northampton/586-2699

Très Bon!
Rediscover the area's finest French restaurant.
Lunch, Dinner, Sunday Brunch
Dinner reservations suggested.
Cafe-Restaurant

runner'shop
ANNUAL SPRING SHOE SALE
Save as never before! We've got hundreds of sport shoes on sale at greatly reduced prices. Shoes for running, tennis, basketball, soccer, volleyball, track, hiking, etc. And all shoes are priced at $5.00 $10.00 $15.00 $20.00 $25.00 $30.00
a pair, none higher. All are first quality, no seconds; these are discontinued, overstocked or slow-selling models. Our loss is your gain.
Sale ends April 16. Please - no phone calls.
runner'shop 114 Main Street, Northampton, Mass.

CHONA
Contemporary Fashion
Thornes Market, Northampton

LENTEN COUPON SPECIALS

BARBEQUED SPARE RIBS
All You Can Eat
reg. 7.95
11 am to 10 pm
NOW
$2.00 OFF
with coupon
(one coupon per person)
served with potato, cole slaw, rolls/butter
Coupon Good Thru Good Friday, 1983

BREAKFAST SPECIAL
2 EGGS 2 STRIPS BACON
2 PANCAKES 2 LINKS SAUSAGE
11 am to 10 pm
WITH THIS COUPON
2 FOR $3.99
Please present coupon when ordering
SERVED ALL DAY ANYTIME
Coupon Good Thru Good Friday, 1983

HOURS:
Sun. - Thurs.
7a.m. to 3a.m.
Fri. & Sat.
24 Hours
James H. McManus
eating place
CAMPUS SHOPPING PLAZA
RTE. 9, HADLEY, 256-6869
STOP & SHOP
SENIOR CITIZEN DISCOUNTS
2-5 P.M. 20%
ALL OTHER TIMES
10%
Does not apply to Specials

TONIGHT!
Q. What do DAN AKROYD, JOHN BELUSHI, MARY GROSS, TIM KAZURINSKY, ROBERT KLEIN, GILDA RADNER, JOAN RIVERS, and FRED WILLARD all have in comon?
A. They all started with The Second City improvizational comedy troupe.
Come see the comedy of
The National Touring Company of
SECOND CITY
Theater 14, Smith College Tickets available at the door
March 10, 1983
8:00 pm
5-College $3.00
General Public $5.00
co-sponsored by
Smith College Rec Council and the Fine Arts Center/UMass

Wondering About
The Weather ?
Call "TIPS" at 545-1540
and ask for tape
1532 for the Daily Weather Report
or
for Daily Campus Events
ask for tape
1515
Information Data Bank IDB
Taped Information Phone Service TIPS
a service of the Dean of Students Office
Look in your Student Telephone Directory for a complete "TIPS" listing.

Electronic messages a sign of the times in Campus Center

By TOM BURGOMASTER
Collegian Correspondent

Students walking through the Campus Center this week may have noticed a new addition outside the Blue Wall and inside the University Store: electronic message boards. The signs have been provided to the University as part of a nationwide marketing study by Guaranteed Sales of New Jersey.

"I was amazed when they (Guaranteed Sales) first showed me the film about the signs," said Winthrop L. Cummings, manager of the University Store.

Each sign cost about $2,500, Cummings said, and the Campus Center now has three which they payed nothing for. The cost of the sign is made, Cummings said, through the advertising the company sells to include on the sign. The two operational signs now outside the Blue Wall and inside the University Store have advertisements for International Coffees and Pontiac.

"I have to get a special agreement to refuse any advertising," Cummings said about the ads, which get changed about once a month. He said products such as No-Doz (which the Health Services does not want the store to carry) would not be allowed to put ads on the signs.

The signs are part of a nationwide marketing study which includes six campuses with student populations of 20,000 or more. The program is scheduled to last about two months.

If it is successful and Guaranteed Sales continues the program, the Campus Center will probably keep their signs, Cummings said, and may even decide to expand the number of signs.

Right now, however, Cummings is still trying to find a place to put the third one they already have.

"It was above the Mini Store, but I was afraid that it might get vandalized," cummings said, noting the sign had been out in the open because there was no room to put it behind the glass inside the Mini Store. The sign is now down with no decision yet made as to where to put it up again.

The messages on the electronic bulletin boards are programmed by the Blue Wall or sales and specials at the store.

Though Cummings said he does not think they will expand to include students' personal messages, he said he does see the signs being used to announce events of interest to the entire University, such as events at the Fine Arts Center or reminders to students of add/drop deadlines.

"The signs have so much capacity, when we get more proficient at programming them we'll see how they'll be expanded," Cummings said, he also said the number o' messages on the signs now is about half of what they can hold.

"They have a lot of versatility," Cummings said, but the store for now is just learning how to program them.

Protest of El Salvador on Common Saturday

A rally to protest any escalation of U.S involvement in the war in El Salvador is scheduled for 1:30 p.m. Saturday at the Amherst Common. A march through Northampton (with subsequent carpooling to Amherst Common) is scheduled to begin at noon from Pulaski Park. Another march is planned to start at 12:30 p.m. from in front of the UMass Student union Building and both will converge on the common for the day's events.

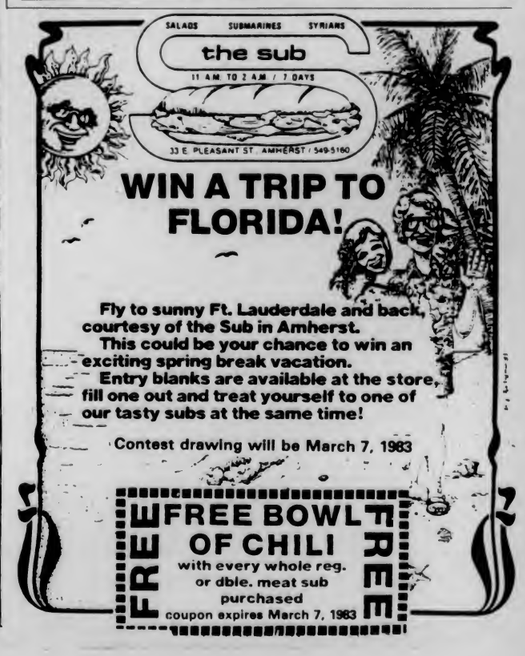
The events will include a speaker, music of Central America, guerrilla theater and letter-writing to Rep. Silvio Conte (R-Mass.). The purpose of the rally is to educate area residents and pressure federal representatives on the issue of El Salvador. The event is sponsored by the Western Mass. Latin American Solidarity Committee, the Radical Student Union and other area groups.

Area peace activists to speak on WMUA

WMUA will air coverage of area peace activists' lobbying efforts on behalf of a Congressional nuclear weapons freeze resolution in, Washington D.C. this week at 6 p.m. today, including a meeting with U.S. Rep. Silvio Conte (R-Mass.).

West German election topic of lecture today

A talk and appraisal of the recent West German elections is planned for today at 3 p.m. in room 804-808 of the Campus Center By Dr. Manfred Stassen, director of the New York office of the German Academic Exchange Service.



EDITORIAL/OPINION

Academic exchange must be open to all

(Editor's note: This is the second of a two-part series which will examine the problems surrounding the ongoing debate between those who claim academic freedom versus those who oppose apartheid South Africa. Mr. Nkomo is originally from South Africa.)

Given that academic freedom is not a vacuous concept, any genuine and democratic-minded will be repulsed by the gross infringements suffered by fellow colleagues in S. Africa. They would go there with the express intention of exposing the hypocrisy. Claims of a desire and love for free communication would not be made if the severe proscriptions to free communication on the basis of color in S. Africa were taken into account.

We are further told that what motivates our learned professors are human and not political concerns. How can this be so? The two are inseparable in reality, if not in theory. The claim is as preposterous as saying one is interested in the ecosystem but not in the preservation of the various organisms that constitute the system. The contradictions are staggering and reveal a dangerous attitude which would not have surfaced had comment been restrained. For instance, while disclaiming expertise in political matters, a pronouncement on the political ability of blacks to take charge of the S. African state is made. This is reminiscent of the now discredited prediction of Ian Smith, of the expired state of Rhodesia, that majority rule would not be realized in a thousand years. Hardly a decade elapsed before this prediction was consigned to the waste basket.

Mokubung Nkomo

The existence of injustice in the U.S. or anywhere else on the globe should not be reason to stop from struggling against it, because it is so ubiquitous. If there is any qualitative difference in the civil rights of blacks and other national minorities in the U.S., between the 1950s and 1983, it is because of the vigorous protests, boycotts, demonstrations and credible condemnations of injustice by concerned persons. That struggle still continues. Cynical resignation has never been an effective instrument for social change. The same logic extends to the struggle for total democracy in S. Africa which is waged not only internally but externally as well.

It is not excessive, therefore, to compare fraternizing with S. African academics in exclusively white congresses to exchanges with German scientists at the height of the programs sponsored by the Nazi government. Any sterile expression of interest in free communication with scientists at the German universities who had capitulated to the Nazi political order would have been treated with utter contempt by enlightened academics the world over.

Those who would belittle such condemnation as "unprofessional" or "unscientific" implicitly, and probably unintentionally, identify themselves with the efficient professionalism and singular pursuit of "duty" that inspired Eichmann and Barbie. Granted, the modes of function are different but the effects are the same. There is a danger in the creed of "science no matter what the toll might be in human terms."

It must be resolved that like its fascist predessors, the S. African racist regime does not deserve to be dignified by the company of U.S. scholars. The message has to be unambiguous. Exchanges can only take place under conditions of free communication among all scholars regardless of race, color, sex or creed. This means under conditions of genuine academic freedom and democracy. The present character of the S. African state prevents the achievement of these freedoms. Censure, both at the individual and institutional level, is the only effective way of contributing to greater democracy. Anything less will embolden the S. African regime which is wise enough to turn such exchanges into political capital.

Mokubung Nkomo is a UMass student

Collegian

Board of Editors

Kevin Bowe Editor-in-Chief
Ed Levine Managing Editor
Stuart Sajdak Production Manager
Joel Myerson Business Manager
John Hudson Executive Editor
John DiPalazzo News Editor
Cris Schuster Women's Editor
Doug Muise Arts Editor
Gus Martins Black Affairs Editor
Billy Shea Sports Editor
Kevin J. Fachetti Photo Editor

WARNING: THE ATTORNEY GENERAL HAS DETERMINED THAT SUSPECTED POSSESSION OF TICKETS TO MOVIES CRITICAL OF ACID RAIN AND NUCLEAR WAR, MAY BE HAZARDOUS TO YOUR HEALTH.

Letters

Taking a balloon is not enough

To the Editor:

Tuesday was International Women's Day (IWD). IWD honors the struggle of women garment workers for safer working conditions. Any gains women have made have come through struggle, for example the right to vote and the legalization of abortion. Women on this campus have fought for emergency phones, the Women's Studies Dept. and the Sexual Harassment Grievance Procedure. Women secured these gains through organized education and agitation.

Currently women's rights are under vicious attack. Choice of reproduction is in serious jeopardy; Affirmative Action is being undermined; and women still earn only 57 cents to a man's dollar. At the same time women students are apathetic. Residential women's centers lay dormant due to lack of interest. Women's organizations are constantly struggling to generate fresh ideas and new membership. The needs of women students are not adequately addressed because women do not step forward to air their concerns.

History illustrates that the situation of women won't change on its own. Many people were happy to commemorate the only holiday dedicated to women by taking a balloon. However, as women living in a country where not even an Equal rights Amendment can pass (remember all men are created equal) merely taking a balloon is not enough!

Lisa Nazzaro
Amherst

BMCP news story editorializes

To the Editor:

I was appalled by the lack of journalistic responsibility evidenced in yesterday's story "BMCP Confronts Slot Cancellations." As program director of WMUA, and a former reporter, I am astonished that a story so blatantly libelous was run by the Black Affairs Page. In reckless disregard of journalistic ethics, no attempt was made to contact me or any other representative of the station concerning the issue addressed in the article. What was ostensibly, to the average reader, a factual news article was in fact nothing more than an editorial.

Because space here does not allow me to provide a rebuttal a second article is necessary to rectify this unjust situation as well as make amends for the disservice done to Collegian readers. I am expecting a phone call.

Michelle Murray
Program Director, WMUA

Resisters are true patriots

To the Editor:

I was seized with fear and disgust upon reading Andre LaMontagne's arrogant and indefensible letter to the editor on Thursday, March 3. Mr. LaMontagne says that since those who refuse to register for the draft are technically committing a crime they are "criminals against the State."

His accusation reminded me of a scene in a famous Italian movie, Rome, Open City, filmed during the Nazi occupation of Italy in the 1940's. A Roman Catholic priest is arrested and accused of the heinous crime of aiding the Italian resistence. A Nazi official convicts him of "crimes against the state" and moments later he is executed by a firing squad.

Following the twisted logic used by Mr. LaMontagne it was legal and therefore just to execute the priest, just as it was legal and just to commit horrible atrocities to American Black Slaves if they broke the law by trying to escape to freedom. These atrocities differ from his statement only in degree, not in kind.

In short, Mr. LaMontagne's argument is not based on any discussion of what is ethically right or wrong but solely on the basis of what is legal and illegal. In so doing he ignores history and climbs in bed with the great tyrants and fascists of all time.

Rather than calling those who refuse to register "criminals against the state" I hope that one day he will recognize and appreciate those who, like the priest in Open City, selflessly endanger their lives in the name of humanity. It is these people who are the true patriots, Mr. LaMontagne, and they do all of us a favor.

Carl Hoffman
Amherst

Creating a true defense system

To the Editor:

The past few years have witnessed a great deal of attention focused on defense spending and defense systems. However, the existing and proposed systems built and being argued over seem to be counter-offensive rather than defensive devices. I define these terms in the following examples:

A counter-offensive system is one whose implementation is a retaliation against an enemy strike. I have a sword, you have a sword, in striking at me you risk a mortal blow from me. This is the basis of Mutually Assured Destruction (MAD).

A defensive system is one whose activation deflects, incapacitates or otherwise renders harmless any incoming threat. You have a sword, but I have a shield, do your worse but you can wound me not.

These are the type of systems that should be developed with the "defense" budget: short range devices whose purpose is to deactivate or disarm incoming warheads. In devising an effective method of rendering these weapons inoperable, the surest method of preventing nuclear war will be created, stronger than the precarious balance of deterring forces, or the feeble oaths of fickle hearts. The greatest sword of Democles that hangs over our heads today shall be alleviated.

Guy Letourneau
Amherst

Student clarifies remarks

To the Editor:

With regard to the Collegian article on the Graduate School Senate meeting of 9 March 1983, I feel that I must respond to what the reporter chronicled as my remarks. The misrepresentation of my arguments does damage not only to me but to the debate and the students of this University.

At no time did I suggest that South Africa was not an extremely oppressive regime and, in fact, is one of the most repressive. My comment was that, given the present administration in Washington and the general conservative outlook of the country, when areas of the world begin to be excluded from contact we will, no doubt, first be barred from places like the Soviet Union, Eastern Europe, and Cuba, and not South Africa, which the government considers to be an ally.

This is the precedent that I consider to be dangerous; for, if one can prevent academic and scientific access to one area, it can be legitimately prevented in all areas.

George W. Claxton
Graduate Student Senate
Dept. of Anthropology

Voter apathy hurts students

If you failed to vote in 1980 or 1982, you should know about the effects on education that result from your apathy. You deserve to know, just as you deserve to suffer. Unfortunately, you have by your inaction also attacked the quality of public education received by your younger brothers and sisters. Take a look at the party and the Administration you have brought to power in Washington, and how your laziness will be rewarded.

"Laissez-faire" is a great philosophy of the Republicans, one which they have not only propounded, but consistently put into action. On one hand, President Reagan has promised to veto any grand-scale jobs programs, his rationale being that the number of jobs should flourish in the private sector once his economic policies bring prosperity to employers. On the other hand, the Administration (through the Department of Education), doubled spending on private schools in Massachusetts in 1982 while halving federal funds to the state's public schools during the same period (Boston Globe, 21 Nov. 82). It is rare to see our President overburdened with facts, but isn't it fairly obvious that if resources were directed toward improving the quality of public education, then the need for middle class parents to send their children to private schools would disappear? If public schools were improved, then spending public money on private schools would be like giving valium to victims of narcolepsy.

Scott Bennett

Such policy is the creation of both loyal Republicans and apathetic non-voters. According to the U.S. Census Bureau, in the 1980 presidential election, the lowest voter turnout was among people aged 18 through 20 (36 percent). The second lowest (44 percent) was among those aged 21 through 24. It is strange to think you may have cut your own social security student benefits, Pell grant, state scholarship, and Guaranteed Student Loan by simply not getting involved.

It is easy to understand your not bothering to vote if you have twenty thousand or more dollars set aside for your tour through the University. Hopefully, though, you will have invested it carefully at a high rate of interest for the time your brothers and sisters attend college, because if current policies continue, they will need the remaining cash desperately.

As students and citizens we are in a position to change these policies. We can "stay the course," and continue seeing our needs ignored, or we can lobby, write letters to Congress, and vote to show that we care about quality public education. We will use our power to make sure that we get it. Our brothers and sisters will thank us, and we can thank ourselves.

Conservatives are correct in pointing out that a college education is not a right. You won't find it anywhere in the Constitution or the Bill of Rights. It is our responsibility to use the rights we have, specifically freedoms of speech, press and assembly, and the right to vote, to make our voices heard. Civil rights activists since the Sixties have realized "there is no progress without a struggle."

Scott Bennett is a UMass student

Solomon's political and moral problems

The way in which the proposed regulations of the Solomon Amendment (the law that denies Financial Aid to men who cannot prove they have registered for the draft) will work is that when you apply for aid you will have to sign a statement saying that you are in compliance with Selective Service law. Those who are supposed to register will be required to include proof of registration in order to receive aid. If you are denied aid on those grounds you can appeal to a designate of the Secretary of Education. There is no provision for appeal to any court of law.

I and many others on this campus oppose the law for the following reasons:

1. This law discriminates between those who can afford school without federal aid (loan, grant, or work-study), making no effort to punish them, and those (most of us) who need aid to go to school. It does not discern which are "sincere" resisters and which are not. There are no provisions for point of view or conscience.

2. This law should be unconstitutional because men are assumed guilty until proven innocent. There is already a harsh penalty of five years in prison and/or $10,000 fine for not registering for the draft. This means that if you are convicted of not registering for the draft you will probably not be in school at all. If you have not been convicted of not registering then you should not be denied aid on those grounds.

Jon Braine

3. Because the legal system is not involved at all in enforcement of this law, men denied aid do not even have the traditional rights of criminal defendants such as representation and trial by peers. Even the type of defense allowed is very restricted.

4. Since the proposed regulations put the burden of verifying registration with the financial aid offices of universities around the country, there will be even more bureaucracy in getting aid. Art Jackson, Director of the Financial Aid Office here at UMass, estimates that this law will mean an additional 25,000 to 30,000 documents for the 38 office staff to handle. This will cause additional delays of several weeks added to the already long delays in receiving financial aid. The delays alone will mean that many people will not be able to stay in school merely because they do not have the cash on hand to last that many weeks until money comes. The fact is that every one of the Financial Aid Office staff will have to process an additional thousand documents. Since this office is being level-funded, there will be less money available since the administration will cost more.

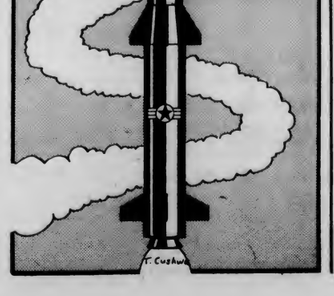
5. Not only does this law appear to be discriminatory and to violate rights of due process, it also violates an individuals' rights against self-incrimination according to the Fifth Amendment. The proposed regulations explicitly require a person to state whether they have complied with the law.

6. Loans have already become more difficult due to unwillingness on the part of banks. Rep. Simon (D-Il) said banks "are reluctant right now to make student loans because we are making it more and more complicated. You complicate it further with this, and if you think bankers in this Nation are going to make student loans as widely as they do now, you are living in a dream world." Therefore, this law will actually reduce the number of student loans made which means that less people will be able to go to secondary school.

7. This law is also in violation of the 1974 Privacy Act by forcing students to share with school administrations draft registration information which is irrelevant to the distribution of financial aid but becomes a permanent part of their record with the educational institution. Institutions may be required to turn this information over to Selective Service for verification. The University should never be put in the position of turning names over to Selective Service potentially for prosecution.

8. In addition to the legal, practical, and moral arguments against this law, there are important political ramifications. The proposed regulations are geared toward repressing dissent of the registration program. This is reflected most clearly in Section 668.27 (c) which forbids a student to discuss at his appeal hearing any issues concerning the fairness or constitutionality of the registration requirement. Such suppression of dissent, which has consistently characterized the draft registration program, is inappropriate to a democratic system and democratic institutions of higher education. Thus far, in addition to the Post Office, the Social Security Administration, the Internal Revenue Service, the Department of Education, every Financial Aid Office in the country, and perhaps even banks are all being brought onto the job of enforcing the Military Selective Service Act. In discussion of this law in the House of Representatives, Rep. Schroeder (D-Lo) said, "Do we really want to deputize America's bankers to enforce selective service law? Do we really want to deputize all the different schools to enforce the selective service law? Let me propose a further amendment. I think every student ought to be registered to vote. Do we want to say that before they get student aid we want to make sure that they are registered to vote?...I mean, we can turn this thing into a big, gigantic police state, and I think that is the problem." This was said in Congress, far from a left-wing group.

Jon Braine is a UMass student



Looking for an American dream

Last week, Newsweek magazine celebrated its 50th anniversary publication with a cover story entitled "The American Dream". In light of this, a re-examination of the American dream is long overdue. The old cliche is alive and well you know. Across America young and old, rich and poor are engaged in the day to day process of American "dreaming". Sadly however, the spirit of the original American dream seems to have been forgotten by the nouveau-American masses. Gone are the dreams of private enterprise in a growing and thriving democracy. Gone are the simple joys of establishing a small neighborhood business that produces goods a proprietor can take pride in, goods a consumer can have faith in. Replacing the simple American dream of the past is a new dream. Or is it, perhaps, a new nightmare?

"Get rich quick!" By now this cliche should seem familiar enough to the American populus. Sacrifice anything and everything in pursuit of the almighty dollar, the all-nourishing greenback, the fast and easy buck. Our generation, the college students of today, are among the worst offenders, propogating the worship of financial success under the guise of education. Ask the next student you meet why he is in college. The answer is likely to be "So I can get a job and make lots of money and thus be incredibly happy." Question: What do you want to be when you graduate? Typical Answer: Rich. Our generation has equated happiness with material wealth finally and resolutely. The days of knowledge have passed us by. We now regard learning as a means to an end, rather than recognizing knowledge as an end in and of itself.

Stephen T. Jordan

We can hardly be blamed for our delusions however. Parental models, peer rivalries, and social pressure have dictated to us just what our American dream should be. "I want you to have all the things I never had" is a common remark of many well-meaning parents. Those things they never had of course include fast cars, beautiful homes, and semi-annual European vacations financed via the trusty charge card.

Not only do our parents expect financial success of their children but our peers demand it as well. Meet a Classics major or a Philosophy major sometime and he will quickly confirm that the question he answers most is "What are you ever going to do with a Classics degree?" Underlying that question is its natural corollary: "How will you ever make any money?"

The bastardization of the American ideal extends beyond the University walls however. The American businessman is never satisfied unless he is moving up, up, up. Higher salaries and bigger expense accounts have become the passionate fantasies of American's white collar businessman. For the average blue collar factory worker little better can be said. There is a little known ancestor to the factory worker who is now extinct forever. He was called the artisan, a simple cabinet maker or cobbler who took pride in his work. He was directly responsible for his production and thus, turned out a high quality good. Today, assembly line production and dozens of middle men have subverted the critical element of pride in American production. American workers couldn't care less about quality of the work they produce so long as it is in sufficient quantity to bring a high financial yield. Granted, increased production is critical to an expanding society but our obsession with economic growth during the 60's and 70's has left us crying with the economic analysts of the 80's. How soon we forget the 1930's when unemployment was 25 percent on the national average, more than twice what it is today. Yet those Americans, with their simple ideals, survived the great depression because they never lost their dream. And, naturally those who had the most wealth to begin with were the worst hit. Could today's America survive another great depression? It's hardly probable, for far too many of us would lose our only dream, our dream of material wealth.

Perhaps we could all take a lesson from the liberal arts majors or the hearty middle classes of the 1930's. It's time we returned to the simple basis for the American dream and turned our backs on the mutant form of it to which we now so readily subscribe. A chicken in every pot will do; we don't have to have pheasant under glass.

Stephen T. Jordan is a UMass student

Letters Policy

All letters must be signed and include the writer's address and telephone number, which will not be published. Please type double spaced at 67 characters per line. Due to space limitations and the volume of mail, we regret we are unable to acknowledge unpublished letters. All letters are subject to editing for clarity and length.

Arts

It's good weather, for a change

PROCESSION (Columbia)
Weather Report

By JULIE SUSSMAN
Collegian Correspondent

Whomever had the idea that Weather Report would pass into oblivion with the departure of the beloved Jaco Pastorius had better sit up and give Procession a listen. And you can't help but sit up as you listen -- this album cooks!

Jaco Pastorius is certainly a tough act for any bassist to follow, but young Victor Bailey (who incidently, appeared with Clouds last November in the SUB) demonstrates he can hold his own, and then some. In "Two Lines," Bailey provides a solid walking bass line behind W.R. Daddy Josef Zawinul's characteristic atonal "melody" line. With a slight tempo change, the same tune lapses into a funky fusion jam in which Bailey proves himself a master of the fretless bass. He jumps around the octaves with ease, even sounding Jaco-esque in places. Wayne Shorter, another veteran of the old group, does some nice tenor sax work here, but I kept finding myself closely attuned to Bailey's playing.

Omar Hakim, the group's current drummer, proves to be a man of diverse talents. Hakim, who also appeared with Bailey in the Clouds concert, plays some rhythm guitar and writes as well. His "Molasses Run" includes an extremely tasty bop solo on tenor by Shorter, and Zawinul's synthesizer solo almost makes sense on this one. Hakim's playing is nothing less than outstanding on this cut as well as on the rest of the album. He and Bailey always maintain a close rhythmic rapport (the Clouds concert was living proof that these guys work very well as a team). An interesting feature on "Molasses Run"are the backing vocals by the members of Manhattan Transfer in the beginning and between solos.

The Transfer are given the spotlight on the album's piece with lyrics, "Where the Moon Goes," which surprisingly, happens to be my favorite. I say surprisingly because I tend to denounce vocalists as being "in the way of the music" when the soloists are of as high a caliber as these. On the contrary, there is ample room for both instrumental and vocal prowess on this tribal dance-like masterpiece.

And believe me, they do! The percussion rings with sounds of Africa, South America, and the Far East, while Shorter's soprano sax achieves a sitar-like quality. The tension builds with every measure, adding a catchy riff, increased tempo, and hand-clapping (reminiscent of "Birdland") until the cutoff. If the song wasn't eight minutes long, it could easily be another "Birdland" in terms of commercial success.

Did I forget to mention the percussionist? My apologies to Jose Rossy, the happy little man without whom all the rhythmic buzzess, bings, drum sounds, etc., would not be possible. Rossy gets center stage in "Plaza Real," where he repeats a haunting concertina melody in counterpoint to a heartbeat bassline.

If you liked Weather Report at all before, you will not be disappointed in the least by Procession, on the contrary, you will probably pick up the liner notes after your first listen to see who that bass player is again. If you know nothing at all about the group, this album will surely leave you with a good first impresion.

Five stars for this one!

Sound Advice

CAMP COUNSELORS WANTED

Timber Lake Camp, one of New York State's top co-ed summer camps, is seeking high-quality general counselors. Specialists also needed in basketball, softball, soccer, tennis, roller hockey, waterfront (W.S.I.) for lake, indoor and outdoor heated pools, audio/visual, arts and crafts, computers, AM radio, ham radio, television production.

Applications for maintenance, grounds & dining room staff also being accepted.

Contact T.L.C.'s UMASS representative:

Rich Tyroler
1112 Kennedy 546-7762
for application or interview

BONUS
Leroux Irish Cream Night
on the rocks $1.25
- FREE -
T-shirts & Hats

LIFT THE BIG ONE
16 oz of Solid Drink
Thursday All Nite

POOR RICHARD'S A STEP UP

the battle is on!

UNION RECORDS VS

THE COMPETITION

WE ARE A STUDENT RUN ORGANIZATION
AND WE NEED YOUR HELP
TO BEAT THE COMPETITION!!!

Special Cut Prices
~~$9.98~~ ALBUMS ONLY $5.99
MASTER RECORDINGS $8.98

Union Records
201 Student Union
Univ. of Mass.
Amherst, MA 01003
(413) 545-0481/0482
The Student Run Record Store

The rusty nail presents

Fri. March 11: Robin Lane & Heartbreaker
Sat. March 12: NRBQ & The Whole Wheat Horns
Sun. March 13: Justin
Coming March 17: James Brown
tickets available at For the Record (Faces)

Rt. 47, Sunderland, MA 665-4937
You must be 18 to enter.

Arts

Play by Play

by Pam Madnick

Variety is the spice of life.

There certainly is quite a variety of theater offerings this week in the Five College area. This weekend you can opt to see a modern or classic drama, a political comedy, a cabaret or a children's show.

This is your last chance to see Ashes by David Rudkin in the Fine Arts Center's Rand Theater. Ashes, performed by the University Ensemble Theater, is the painful story of a couple who yearn to have a child, but can't for medical reasons. The curtain goes up tonight, tomorrow and Saturday at 8 p.m. Tickets are $2.50 for students and $3.50 for the public. For reservations, call 545-3511.

Two satirical comedies, Day of Absence by Douglas Turner Ward and Los Vendidos by Luis Valdez take a comic look at stereotypes of southern Black Americans and Mexican Americans. The plays are performed by five college students and are sponsored by the Third World Theater. Showtimes are tonight, tomorrow and Saturday at 8 p.m. in the Hampden Theater, in Southwest. Tickets are $2 for students and $3 for the general public. For reservations call 545-2803 or 545-2804.

The Department of Dramatic Arts of Amherst College presents The Cenci by Percy Bysshe Shelley as a senior thesis production, directed by Mark Staples. The Cenci was written in 1820 and tells the tragic story of a family living in Rome in the late 1500's. Performance begins at 8 p.m. on Friday and Saturday in the Kirby Theater, Amherst. Tickets are $1.00. For reservations call 542-2277.

Come to the Cabaret....Hampshire College students will present a cabaret with song, dance, comedy and magic tonight, tomorrow and Saturday at 8 p.m. in the Performing Arts Center, Hampshire. "Between Acts" features 13 singing dancers, a quartet, a comedian and a magician. Refreshments will be available. Tickets are $2.50 for students and $3 for the general public.

Smith College offers children's theater this weekend. The Noodle Doodle Box will be performed in the Hallie Flanagan Studio Theater Saturday at 10 a.m. and Sunday at 2 p.m. Tickets are $1. Reservations: 584-3023.

Live Wire

by Dave Chevan

So, you say the cost of concerts, the smoke of the bars, and the price of drinks are keeping you away from live music? Well, these excuses and those hundreds of others which are constantly used for avoiding live music are quite reasonable. Anyone living on campus without a car certainly knows how hard it is to get over to even Hangar One to see a band. But, if you do like live music and hate paying big bucks for it, there are some alternatives. At 11:15 every Tuesday and nearly every Thursday morning, the music department sponsors free concerts at the Bezanson Recital Hall in the Fine Arts Center. The Tuesday concerts feature classical musicians and the Thursday concerts showcase jazz players. There are fine musicians, in both categories and considering the cost — nothing — it is an opportunity that shouldn't be missed. Local artists often perform as well. So, if you have that time slot open, check it out; good music doesn't have to cost an arm and a leg.

If you do have the arm and leg to spare, there are a few good acts worth checking out this weekend. Tonight you'll find Zion Initation at the Hangar, and Justin at the Rusty Nail. Friday night offers several original bands. The Boston-based November Group will play the Bluewall. their leader, guitarist Ann Prym, is one of the most creative songwriters in the Boston new music scene. Ex-chartbuster Robin Lane will perform at the Rusty Nail, and the Stompers will be at the Hangar. At Sheehan's, local rockers the Pleasure Dots will be playing originals and solid danceable covers.

Saturday night's best bet is a toss-up between two hot blues acts. J. B. Hutto, hot sultan of the slide guitar, will be at the Bluewall. Over at the Rusty Nail, an excellent alternative, that hot quartet, NRBQ, will do their thing. If you prefer your rock with a modern beat, The neats, with Fast, Clean, and Safe, will be at the Hangar.

Looking ahead to next week, Wynham Hill recording artists Scott Cossu and Michael Hedges will be at the Iron Horse Coffeehouse. Both artists specialize in introspective jazz flavored music. The Windham Hill label is best known for the material of George Winston, who performed at the Academy of Music two weeks ago. Both Hedges and Cossu fall into the same mold, however, they have developed a sound all their own. Other upcoming concerts include James Brown next week at the Nail, and Adam Ant coming soon after the spring break.

Alas, I am shocked and dismayed to report that not one person responded to last week's trivia contest. I am thoroughly convinced the level of apathy at this school has reached an all time high. I mean look, not one person out of all twenty odd thousand potential winners even bothered to venture a guess. ergo, that's it. I've had it with the trivia contest. Finito, kaput, genug, bye bye. Sorry, you don't get another chance. So, farewell to trivia, I'm keeping all the wonderful prizes I have for myself. Now, all of you have a fun, but guilt ridden weekend.

Photo by Sue Koczela

Shimon Okshteyn's "On Sholom Street" is part of an exhibit of his works currently on display at Herter Gallery.

A painter's skeptical view

SHIMON OKSHTEYN
February 28 - March 18
Herter Gallery

By JILL TAMKIN
Collegian Correspondent

When I first saw the paintings of Russian artist Shimon Okshteyn, I knew I wanted this assignment. Okshteyn's paintings, which will be on exhibit from February 28, to March 18 at the Herter Art Gallery, are filled with a sense of curiosity and depth.

Okshteyn, a Russian immigrant, arrived in America in April, 1980, and now resides with his wife and son in Springfield, Massachusetts. He was permitted by the Soviet government to bring to the U.S. only two thirds of his numerous paintings. Since he paints with a freedom of expression, many of his paintings portray the streets of Lenin in a skeptical way. Therefore, the Russian government viewed many of Okshteyn's works as a threatening fallacy, and were reluctant to letting them leave the country.

Each painting is effected by the artist's mood at any given time. "One day I can paint an oil color, and the next day a completely different water color. I don't want to restrict myself to a particular way of painting, because I am then a prisoner of the mind."

Okshetyn uses Chernovitz, where he was born in 1951, as a key focus in many of his paintings. As in "On Sholom Street," painted vividly and structurally, he clears the streets of people, infringing on the viewer a deep sense of emptiness. Although this is an emotion the artist felt while painting, here exists a paradox. On the contrary, Chernovitz, which boarders Romania, is filled with activity.

One of his most recent paintings "In Feast of My Memory," gives the viewer a sense of deja vu. This is a Russian street scene, similar to the latter, however it is painted two years later in another place and time.

The buildings float around vaguely on the canvas in a disoriented manner as to imply the memory of the artist's Russian home-town floating around in his own mind. Since he is living here now, his paintings portray visions and moods of the present. Russia, he feels, is another life physically and artistically, so he can only paint what he remembers.

Okshteyn stresses that he strongly dislikes the word style. He says, "Artists never find style. What is the definition of style? I paint what I feel. I don't like setting my work into categories. Critics like to define art. They always look for symbolism."

That is why Okshteyn prefers not to exhibit his work on the commercial market. He thinks that once a person sells his work, he is figuratively dead because he no longer expresses himself. Instead, the artist paints what people want him to paint.

Okshteyn compares art with love. "Love is a strong feeling that hopefully remains with you for life. If you loose something as deep as that feeling, what do you have? An artist's paintings are the result of strong feelings and perceptions. When you stop painting how you feel, and start painting what you're supposed to paint, what do you have?" Okshteyn perceives art as something you can't explain. "It is like a person you live with all your life and never know."

A rousing evening of classics

CONTEMPORARY ENSEMBLE OF
THE NEW ENGLAND CONSERVATORY
OF MUSIC
Sunday, March 5
Bezanson Recital Hall

By FRED STEINWAY
Collegian Correspondent

The Contemporary Ensemble of the New England Conservatory of Music presented works of 5 composers Sunday night. The composers were present, and each talked briefly about their composition before it was performed.

First on the program, two "Lullabies" featured poetry of Stephen Knauth set to string quartet and voice by composer Mark Saya. The tone was soft, dark, lyric and melodic. "Lullabies" featured an outstanding vocal performance by soprano Lisa Saffer. The second of the two pieces contained gentle reference to the "Kindertotenlieder" of Gustav Mahler.

"Enselmblance" by composer Peter Child was scored for chamber ensemble and electronic tape. The tape contained sounds that simulated instruments and sounds totally unlike any instrument. "Ensemblance" included a stunning section toward the end of serial repetitions in the winds haloed by radiant chords from the tape. The "thunk" of the tape set turning on and off, a not unwelcome additional percussive effect.

The next piece, "The Ruin" by Edward Cohen, set a 10th century Anglo-Saxon poem, freely translated, to piano, violin and voice.

"Values and Proposals No. 6" by Harvey Stokes was scored for seven saxophones. The piece showed traces of jazz influence in its tonal warmth and improvisory character, although the seemingly spontaneous passages were all written out, note-for-note.

The concluding piece, "Playing the Odds," by Edward J. Miller, was scored for 11 brass and prerecorded synthesized tape. Guest conductor Eiji Oue directed the ensemble with great energy, in a rousing finish to a varied evening.

The program, also presented in Boston and Worcester, included a printed Post-Concert Survey for concert-goers to fill out and return to the Conservatory for feedback. Questions inleuded "Which compositions would you particularly want to hear again?" and "Which composition(s), if any, did you find to be problematic?"

Get your career off to a flying start while you're still in college.

This is a great opportunity for men who want to be leaders and have the drive to earn the respect and self-confidence of a Marine Corps Officer.

You can get started on a great career with us while you're still in college and earn up to $100 a month in the Marine Corps Platoon Leaders Class (PLC). In PLC aviation we can guarantee flight school and civilian flying lessons during your senior year. And in PLC law we can guarantee summer employment in the legal field while you're gaining your advanced degree in law.

There are no interruptions of classes, no on-campus drills or uniforms during the school year. Initial training can be done in one of two ways. Freshmen and sophomores train in two six-week summer sessions and juniors have one ten-week session.

If you're entering college or are already on your way to a degree, check out the Marine Corps Platoon Leaders Class. Make an appointment with your Marine Corps Officer Selection Officer through your college placement center.

Marines

Maybe you can be one of us. The few. The proud. The Marines.

Hypercurricula

SPANISH CLUB BAKE SALE — Help support the Spanish Club by buying some goodies at our Bake Sale. Being held today on the Campus Center Concourse. 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Campus Center.

DAILY INTERNSHIP PLANNING SESSION — A one-hour Planning Session which will provide detailed information about internship opportunities in all fields and application procedures. Sign up in advance by phone or in person. Office of Internships, 16 Curry Hicks, 545-0727. 11 a.m. to 12 p.m., 4 to 5 p.m.

WINE AND CHEESE CONVERSATION HOURS—All are encouraged to come attend today's conversation hour: an excellent opportunity to meet and speak with native French and Italian speakers. Relaxed atmosphere. Noon, Herter third floor lounge.

FRENCH CLUB MEETING — Come to the next French Club meeting and learn about French food, culture, wine, films, etc. Come get involved in and help plan many exciting activities. 4 p.m., Herter third floor lobby.

ANIMAL RIGHTS COALITION — Meeting open to all. for more info. call 546-4789. 6 p.m., Knowlton Dormitory, third floor lounge.

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE COLLEGE ORGANIZATION — is meeting every Thurs. Everyone is welcome at our meetings to listen and ask questions. 7 p.m., Campus Center.

"PINK TRIANGLES" — An historical examination of gay and lesbian oppression from the time of Naziism to the present. (35 min.) Free. 7 p.m., 917 Campus Center.

UMASS FILM PRODUCTION CREW MEETING — Organizational meeting, anyone interested in acting or film production is invited. All ideas welcome. Will discuss current productions. Questions? 546-9058. 7:30 p.m., Campus Center, Rm. 802.

INTERNATIONAL FAIR (PUBLICTY COMMITTEE MEETING) — Publicity Committee will meet today as scheduled. Others interested in participating and organizing the forthcoming International Fair are encouraged to attend. Bring your ideas. 7:30 p.m., Prince House, main lounge.

ASTRONOMY CLUB MEETING — Welcome meeting to old & new members. Open to all 5-college students and faculty. Refreshments will be served. 7:30 p.m., GTWR 1033.

25 PLUS CLUB ROLLER SKATING PARTY — Older students are invited to meet at the Campus Center Concourse for car-pool to Interskate 91 Rollerdrome. Roller skating replaces regular meeting. 253-7814. 8 p.m., Campus Center.

Last Call for a 19 year old University of Massachusetts Sophomore to become a 21 year old Army Officer.

The Army offers college sophomores the opportunity to earn an officer's commission in two years. The deadline for this year's class is soon.

Apply now and once you are accepted for the special two year program, you attend a six week's summer camp, for which you'll be paid approximately $400. And that's not all. You may find yourself in the best physical condition you've ever been in.

Then back to college and the Army ROTC Advanced Course in the fall. If you've done exceptionally well at camp, you may be heading back to college with a full two-year scholarship.

For the next two years, you learn what it takes to be an Army officer. You get the kind of management and leadership and experience that will be an asset to you in any career, military or civilian. You will earn an extra $100 an month up to 20 months. And when you graduate, you will have earned your college degree along with the gold bars of an Army officer.

The Army ROTC Two-Year Program

If this is the kind of challenge you are looking for, you are the kind of student we are looking for.

Call:
James C. Mahoney
545-2321/2322
Learn what it takes to lead.

UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AT AMHERST
March at the
Fine Arts Center
Cincinnati
Symphony Orchestra
Tuesday, March 15 8 pm
John Houseman's
THE ACTING COMPANY
ON TOUR FOR THE
JOHN F KENNEDY CENTER
"Twelfth Night" Wed., March 16 8 pm
"Tartuffe" Thurs., March 17 8 pm
TOKYO
STRING QUARTET
Wednesday, March 30 8pm
Tickets On Sale Now
Box Office: Noon to 4 pm
(413)545 - 2511 Mastercard/Visa Accepted
Fine Arts Center
Concert Hall

Beachcomber Tours presents
14th ANNUAL
College Spring Break in
DAYTONA BEACH
ROOM STILL AVAILABLE
$189 complete
$165 complete
JET TOUR
March 13-19
or March 19-26
BUS TOUR
March 11-26
or March 18-27
ALL TOURS INCLUDE:
SAVE $20.00
COLD!
STEVEN
DEPENDABILITY . QUALITY . SERVICE . SINCE 1969

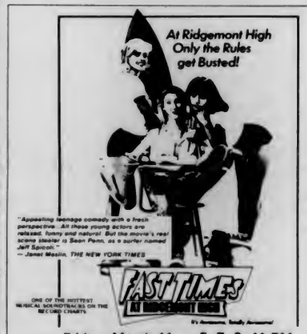
Summer Jobs
UPWARD BOUND/
UMASS AMHERST
Positions Available:
Instructors
(for College Preparatory Curriculum)
Counselor/Tutors
(for residential component)
Pick up applications at
205 New Africa House
Deadline: March 18, 1983
Internships also available.

The
S.G.A. Escort Service
is now offering
2 credits
to it's volunteers
for more information contact:
Laura O'Shea or
Anne-Marie Maynard in
415 Student Union Building

Papa Gino's
PIZZA DELIVERY SERVICE
Salutes UMASS Students!
• Your Pizza Guaranteed Hot On Delivery
• Fast, Courteous Service
• Only $1.00 Delivery Charge For One Pizza or Two Pizzas!
Here's How You Save with Papa Gino's

When You Buy:	Papa Gino's Delivered Price:
• One Cheese Pizza Large Round or Thick Pan.	$4.55	Pizza
	1.00	Delivery Chg.
	$5.55	Total Price
• Two Cheese Pizzas Large Round or Thick Pan.	$ 9.10	Pizzas
	1.00	Delivery Chg.
	$10.10	Total Price Price Per Pizza Delivered $5.05

THE MORE YOU PURCHASE, THE MORE YOU SAVE
Call 584-0220
Mountain Farms Mall, Hadley
$1.00 off
PIZZA DELIVERY
With This Coupon
Delivery Orders Only
Limit 1 Coupon Per Delivery
Papa Gino's
PIZZA & MORE
$3.00 off
Purchase of $10 or more
With This Coupon
Delivery Orders Only
Limit 1 Coupon Per Delivery
Papa Gino's
PIZZA & MORE



Friday, March 11 5, 7, 9, 11 PM
Engin. East Aud. $1.50

UMASS SKI CLUB
SAT 3/12 TRIP
to Killington
ONLY $20
Includes:
Lift Ticket
Transportation
Refreshments
Best Skiing in the East
For more info
430 Student Union 5-3437

LOOK NO COMICS!

For one day, we have decided to skip our regular comics page and speak directly to our readers. We need your advice.

So far this semester, our comic strips have offended the following:

- Greeks
- Physical Plant Workers
- Stockbridge Students
- Gays and Lesbians
- Women
- Anti-Nuclear Activists
- and several more. . .

WHAT DO YOU THINK?

Let us know what we should do with the Comics Page. Should we discontinue it completely? Should we cancel certain comics? Should we place tighter controls on our artists? You tell us. Fill in the coupon and send it to the Collegian, 113 Campus Center, UMass. We'll let you know what you had to say.

What do you think of our comics?

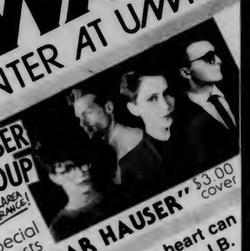
	Great	Good	Fair	Poor	Awful
Bloom County	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐
The Umass Zone	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐
Katfood	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐
Scrod	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐
After The Fall	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐

Should we have any comics at all?_____
How about the Crossword?_____
What else do you think? Your comments are appreciated.

Send to:
The Collegian, 113 Campus Center, UMass, Amherst, MA 01003

BLUE WALL

CAMPUS CENTER AT UMASS



FRI. NOVEMBER GROUP Boston's Hot First Area Appearance! special guests "KASPAR HAUSER" $3.00 cover

HAPPY HOUR 3-6 p.m. w/ Cliff Myers

SAT. BLUES IN THE BLUE WALL... If you think your heart can take it, come boogie with J.B. Chicago's Finest Slide Guitarist J.B. HUTTO and The New Hawks with Special Opening Guest

REAL MUSIC

$3.00 COVER

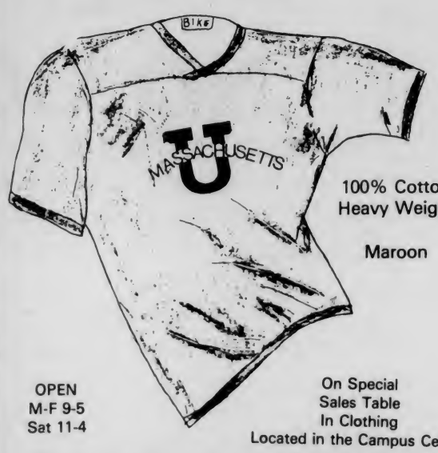
sponsored by U.P.C. and the Duke Ellington Committee

Ashes

A Play by David Rudkin
Frenk Prentice Rand Theater
University of Messachusetts Fine Arts Center
Merch 9-12, 1983, 8:00 pm
Reservations: 545-3511

YOU CAN STILL SUBSCRIBE TO ALL THREE RAND THEATRE PRODUCTIONS
ASHES, THE COMEDY OF ERRORS, AND COMPANY

Special Purchase
Athletic Weight Jersey
$7.95
reg. $9.95



100% Cotton
Heavy Weight

Maroon

OPEN
M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4

On Special
Sales Table
In Clothing
Located in the Campus Center

UNIVERSITY STORE

Budweiser.
KING OF BEERS.

GENUINE GENUINE

INTRAMURAL HIGHLIGHTS

Co-Rec Swim Meet was held at the Boyden Gymnasium on Monday night March 7, 1983.

The winning team - Crack of Dawn - swimmers: Jenny Schofield, Beth Mellili, Alice Rotter, Georgia Wood, Mike Sousa, Paul reardon, Scott Kogos, Jim Allen, Mike O'Neill and Jeff Poulton. Crack of Dawn swam to four first place finishes in eight events. For a total point accumulation of 38 points. Second place went to Pick-Up closely followed by Odell's Fishes and Lightening Bolts.

Basketball Championship games are scheduled for the following dates and times:

Women's Championship - Wed. March 16 at 6 pm Court 2
Men's Championship - Wed. March 16 at 7 pm Court 2
Graduate Faculty - Wed. March 16 at 7 pm Court 6
Co-Rec Championship - Wed. March 16 at 8 pm Court 2
High Scorers of the Week - Men's Only Thomas Carty for the Mooseheads with 27 points.

Softball and Soccer Manager's Meetings are scheduled for the 14th & 15th of March 1983, Room 215 Boyden Building at 6:00 pm Officials Meetings 7 pm

There are still a few remaining slots for Softball and Soccer teams. Entry forms and health screening sheets may be picked up at the Intramural Office, Room 215 Boyden.

Co-Rec Tennis entries are due Monday March 14, players meeting 8:00 pm room 215 Boyden

Intramural photographs, action and team, basketball, wrestling, etc. on sale in 215 Boyden Monday - Friday 1 pm - 3 pm contact Intramural photographer Michael Chan.

Ice Hockey
The Yukon Jacks skated into first place with an overall record of 7-0-1, good for 15 pts. They'll face off against the leafs (4-2-2-) Sunday night at 7:00 PM. The Nads, (5-2-1) second place finishers, will go against Puck (5-2-1) Sunday at 8:10. The winners will then play a best 2 out of 3 series starting Mon. March 14 at 8:00 pm.

this Bud's for you!

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Monday - Friday • Deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day
Cash in advence • 15 consecutive days 10 % • discount • Phone number FREE

ATTENTION BOLTWOOD VOLUNTEERS

The seminers are Sundays 3/6 and 3/13 at 7 pm in the Commonwealth Room

AUDIO

 Stereo Earphones & Mini Speakers for all Walkman type players * just $10 pr * call now!! Mitch 549-4379

AUTO FOR SALE

67 VW Conv inspected needs work $400 or BO 323-5918 leave message

1973 Cutlass 4 dr 84000 miles stereo well maintained $1100 Ron 549-2656

1970 - Ford Torino - 45,000 original miles 425 or best offer - call 545-3500 before 5:00 - 549-4125 after 5:00 ask for Dan

1970 Cutlass too many options to list call for price 546-5610

BELLYGRAMS!!

Delivered by professional bellydancer for most unusual gift. Thereza, 253-7822

CAPE COD SUMMER RENTAL

West Yarmouth Seagull Beach duplex newly redone two bedrooms each side sleeps 4 includes all utilities 253-7436 $2550. Memorial Day thru Labor Day

CHICAGO?

Round trip ride to Chicago desperately needed for Spring Break. I'll gladly share expenses and driving. Call Cris at 546-8150 adter 9 p.m. or at 545-3500 from 2-9 p.m.

DAYTONA BEACH

Daytona Beach Spring Break $299. Round trip direct non-stop jet Boston-Daytona. 7 nights Remada Inn on the beach. Free car rental. Departs Mar. 19. Call Saugus Travel 617-233-8192, 617-289-6221

ENTERTAINMENT

Rackadisc Entertainment Agency Inc. Bands and discjockeys guaranteed student functions 256-0739

M & M Music Unlimited Professional DJ's for all occasions call Mike 546-5259

FOR RENT

Falmouth - 2 women wanted to share house 635 ea Amy 549-4169

Cape Cod Summer Seasonal Rentals: W. Yarmouth & Dennis; 1, 2, 3, & 4 bedroom units. Rent direct from owners & save. 617/528-8300 or 771-2233.

FOR SALE

Kinks Concert! 2 tickets March 31st Worcester Centrum good seats 546-4419

Stereo Equipment: Two complete systems many pieces - most still under warranty $1500 for everything or will split up Call Steve 549-5845

HELP WANTED

CRUISE SHIP JOBS! $14-928,000 Caribean, Hawaii, World. Call for Guide, Directory, Newsletter. 916-722-1111 ext Massachusettes

Alaske Jobs summer/year round, earn great money in this opportunity rich state, ie, earn $10,000-$12,000 on three month fishing boat. Send for 1983 Employer Listing and information packet covering all industries $5.00 Lental Reseach dept AA2114 satisfaction guaranteed

Cruise Ship Jobs! Great income potential, all occupations. For information call: 602-837-3401 ext 833

Performers needed for weeknight recreation programs (musicians, mime, etc.) Val 6-6623 Sandra 256-0501

Resident kitchen meneger and accountent Butterfield Co-op Kitchen - fall of 83 and spring of 84 - maneger 40 hours @ $4 per hour - acoountant 7 hours @ 3.50 per hour - both with room & board information and applications at Butterfield Kitchen Office - Butterfield Dorm - applications due March 18

Researcher needed variety of assignments good writing skills essential good pay please call 549-4755 if interested.

— Seniors — Jobs are available mass market yourself with Operations Research International toll free 1-800-421-3217

Need money! International cosmetic company new to this area will train selected people to represent their all natural Aloe Vera products. Call after 5 p.m. Sheila Mellen 566-8520

Tomorrow's Jobs Know what is and will be available through this indispensible booklet of current government studies covering all industries and states inc. Alaska and Hawaii. $8.75 Lyntel Research Dept. TA2114 P.O. Box 99405 Cheve. Ohio 44199 satisfaction guaranteed

Improv. Blues Pianist play mood music for theater production. Performances 4/19 - 4/23, sorry no money. Leave message with name and phone for Iris at 545-3490

LESBIAN & GAY

FREE trained Lesbiam and Gay Peer Counseling and Referral 433 SU 545-2645

LOST

Keys on blue-clip kayring with words Le Chateau 546-8161

Lost: small gold Star-of-David charm with pearl in the center. Very sentimental. Reward. 549-3699

Women's grey coat lost at the Pub on February 26. Please call 6-8367

REWARD: necklace lost in S.U. Ballroom 2/25/83 sentimental value: has steel hand, simulated turquoise Su 367-2110 keep trying

NOTETAKERS

Notetakers needed: Comstu, Econ 311, Soc. apply SNPS 403 Student Union til 3/16 5 PM EOE

PERSONALS

-Jules, Happy Birthday! Love, an X 18

MovieArthur starring Dudley Moore - Thurs. March 10 - Engineering East Aud. 7, 9, 11 pm

TS - Thanx for all my surprises - I love you! - LO

Animal Rights Coalition Meeting Thurs., 3/10 at 6:00 p.m. at Knowlton Dorm., 3rd floor lounge. For more info call 546-4789

Yo! UMMB! First of the season Friday, 8 o'clock, Chapel Be There! Aloha

Heppy Birthday Lisa!! I hope this is the best one yet! Love always, Adam

Cerefree pet needs home grey cockatiel with cage needs home (roommaets graduating) $40.00 call 256-8297

Cet - Your beauty extends beyond your physical features. I am strong enough for two, lean one me. Ti Vouglo Bene

Mark - I hope the months to come are as great as this first one has been. Happy Anniversary Sweetheart I love you Gail

Lene - Happy Birthday gawddammit! Love Grandpa Necco. Wayne (ho, ho, ho) Newton and Katherine. Ceil and ah Jean send ah warm wishes on your lawn! Love ya

Happy 20th Julie Siegel we will do many G & T's this weekend!

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Dissertations, Theses, Cases, Papers, guaranteed acceptance, low rates, Nancy 5-0392, 584-7924

REWARD

$25 for return of wallet lost Sat. night, Amherst bus stop 549-0919 no questions

RIDE NEEDED

Couple needs ride to Wash DC area 3/18 or 19 will share expenses! Flex on departure time. Call Kelley, 6-4207.

Ride needed to U. Of Delaware, 5 mins off I-95 March 17 or 18 Denise 549-3512

Ride needed: Maryland, DC, or Virginia Spring Break call Claudia 546-7240

Wanted: Ride to Philadelphia on 3/11 return - Sunday 3/13. Please keep trying. call 256-0195 will share expenses

Ride needed to Wash DC area 3/18 19 or 20 back 3/27 will share expenses Ingrid 256-0185

Anywhere in Canada for spring break Let's share expenses! Call Lori 546-6958

Ride needed to March 15 Hall and Oates Concert at Hartford Civic Center call either Jim at 546-7042 or Jon at 546-7050 will pay expenses

Ride needed to Wyoming after finals before 6/6. Must know soon! Ann 256-6056

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female wanted for apartment in Cape Cod. $50 a week call 546-9617 or 546-9616

Cape Cod bound this summer? Have spacious house in West Yarmouth short walk to Seagull Beach call Lisa 549-3802

Two roommates needed to share a bedroom in a West Yarmouth duplex. Excellent location. call 549-1643

SERVICES

PAPER DUE? CAN'T WRITE? Tutor -english composition and grammar reasonable rates 6-9289

Experienced Spanish Tutor available call Liz 323-6022

Typing - fast - reliable $1/pg. IBM Selectric II Nancy 549-1642

Your typewriter or mine? I'm reliable and accurate. $1/page Kitty 6-7302

SUMMER JOBS

Country club in Millis Mass. now interviewing for pool director and lifeguards. Must be available 5/25/83 - 9/5/83 617-376-2978

SEND A FRIEND A GREEN CARNATION

Send a friend or someone special a green carnation for St. Patricks Day. Names will be printed in the Collegian for pick up. A table will be on Campus Center Concourse beginning TODAY till Wed before Spring Break. Surprise someone

TO SUBLET

Part furn one bedroom apt in Cliffside $285 mo inc. option on lease 549-5589

3 Bedroom Apt. to sublet w/possible fall option 549-1377

Apt. in Squire Village $595 mth + utilities fall option call 665-2127

TRAVEL

UMass Ski Club goes north Spring Break 83 March 20-25 Stowe. Ski club capital of the East. Only $159 includes: transportation, hot tub party, beer & wine parties, 5 day lift ticket, all taxes & gratuities & much, much, more. For more info contact the UMass Ski Club Rm 430A Student Union or call 545-3437

FLORIDA by van 3/19 - 27 $148 round trip wine/cheese accomodation info limited seats S.S. Van Lines 617-724-8810

Ride needed for two to Florida for spring break. Will share driving and expenses. call 665-7076 eves. please!

WANTED

Class rings, gold and silver jewelry and coins. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant, Amherst, 256-0710

Help $50 reward for helping me by your parents unwanted second car 253-7189

Cash for your records, tapes 545-2836 (ask for Jaromir/leave message)

Extra-fine pair of used stereo speakers 500 dollar cash limit 527-5714

Drums $100 maximum spending price for 7-piece set wanted by end of March call between 6 & 9 PM 549-1342

WANTED TO RENT

2 or 3 bedroom Townhouse or Puffton to rent from June on. John 546-9139 Mike 546-9141

1 bedroom apartment for fall 1983 call Lori or Debbie 546-7701

2 or 3 bedroom apartment wanted in Puffton starting June through fall semester call Letty or Karen 546-7464

A two bedroom apartment in either Brandywine or Townehouse starting from June on - call Katherine 549-6523 or Leslie 549-5870

• TONIGHT • • TONIGHT • • TONIGHT •

Union Video Center presents:

"An Evening With Bill Viola"

At 8:00 pm in the Cape Cod Lounge
An Exhibition and Presentation by the Artist

FREE
For more info call 545-1336
sponsored by UMass Arts Council

NEED A TAN?

Now you can get a safe tan on our supersun suntan bed.

If you normally burn, you WON'T!

Start on your spring or Florida tan now and avoid looking like a lobster later.

ONE FREE VISIT
when you buy two at the regular price of $5 per visit.
this coupon must be presented to receive free visit

Come to the Racquet & Fitness Center
Rt 116 Sunderland or call 549-4545
Hours: M-F 7 am - 9 pm
wkends 9 am - 9 pm

Sports

Minuteman comeback falls short

By JIM FLOYD
Collegian Staff

PHILADELPHIA — The Massachusetts Minutemen need not be ashamed about the performance they turned in last night in their Atlantiac Ten Playoff game. True, the final tally was 79-73 and the result was elimination from the tournament, but this young team turned in a gutsy performance.

Down by 14 points with only 3:39 remaining in the contest, the Minutemen scratched and clawed their way back into contention only to have their rally fall short.

Before the game, the UMass players were staying relaxed by watching Temple University drop St. Joseph's 88-69, and the team attitude was a positive one. "Let's go out and win this one," said Skip Connors as the team headed into the locker room to dress.

But when warm-up time for the East Division semi-final game came around, one Scarlet Knight was suspiciously absent from the floor. Then, the Rutgers University band started to play the theme from Superman, the Movie as Roy Hinson slowly jauntered onto the hardwood amid screams and applause.

Hinson heard the music and applause and responded with what amounted to a collosal performance.

"We got the ball into Hinson better than we had anytime all season," said Rutgers coach Tom Young.

All Hinson did was score 31 points, block seven shots, pulled down six rebounds, and dished out two assists to help advance the Scarlet Knight to the East finals against Temple tonight.

The Minutemen had a superman of their own in the first half as John Hempel bombed from his spot, the deep left corner, to lead UMass with 15 first half points.

But, as Hempel hit the twine, the rest of the Minutemen struggled due mainly to the inside dominance of Hinson, and some early foul trouble to a key performer, Edwin Green, who drew the unenviable task of guarding the streaking Hinson in the early going.

The score at halftime was 34-27 in favor of the Scarlet Knights.

In the second half Rutgers blasted out of the box and held leads as high as 19 points before the Minuteman comeback.

Down the stretch, UMass pulled as close as it would ever get at 77-73 with just 10 seconds to go but the Minutemen were forced to foul. Kevin Black hit both ends of a one and one and the contest was over.

After the game, the Minuteman locker room was resolutely quiet as Green chattered with a few reporters. "This team will be back," he said quietly, "Yes, definitely we will be back."

BOX SCORE:

MASSACHUSETTS: Neysmith 3-3-9; Hempel 8-3-20; Green 3-0-6; Russell 3-8-15; Carter 3-3-10; Braun 2-2-6; Young 2-0-5; Connors 0-0-0; Smith 1-0-2; TOTAL: 73

RUTGERS: Black 2-2-6; Tillman 4-0-8; Hinson 12-7-31; Ellerbe 2-6-10; Brunson 3-7-13; Remley 0-0-0; Battle 3-0-7; Nieberlein 1-2-4; TOTAL: 79

DISQUALIFICATION:
MASSACHUSETTS: Green, Russell
RUTGERS: Nieberlein
ATTENDANCE: 4,512

AP Laserphoto

Rutgers' Brian Ellerbe and Massachusetts' Darryl Carter go after a loose ball during the first half last night in Philadelphia.

The hoop class of '86

By DAN LEBERFELD
Collegian Staff

With high school basketball talent getting better every year, the immediate impact incoming freshmen have continues to increase. Last year the players who had greatest immediate impact on their respective colleges were Patrick Ewing at Georgetown (He led his team to the national finals before losing to North Carolina.) and Keith Lee at Memphis State (He came out of nowhere to turn the perrenial dormant Tigers into a top ten team.).

This season you can fill a whole starting five with incoming freshmen who have almost single-handedly brought their schools respectability or instant success upon their arrival. The following is the All-Frosh Human Electric Shock Treatment Team (These players have woken up their colleges through their electric play.).

Wayman Tisdale-6'9"-forward-center-Oklahoma- the Sooners didn't do poorly last year (they finished 20-10 and third in the Big Eight) but they lacked the man in the middle. So insert America's premier high school big man into a lineup of seniors including All-American's David Little and points a game in leading the team back to respectability in the tough ACC. Georgia Tech was the cellar-dweller in the conference last year and now they are slowly but surely moving up by playing steady .500 ball. Believe it or not Price was Oklahoma's high school player of the year beating out none other than Tisdale. He consistently hits 25-footers and has incredible court savvy, handing out assists left and right. In two years, Tech will be on top of the ACC when their outstanding freshmen crop of this year matures. One man has already matured and his name is Mark Price.

Troy Webster-6'4"-guard-George Washington- just ask any UMass player how good Webster is. He tore apart the Minutemen and beat them with a jumper as time expired. For years the Colonials were abominable but now with new coach Gerry Gimelstob on the scene, super center Mike Brown and super freshman Webster can play with the best. Webster has been hitting for 18 points a night and has given all the other players on the team a tremendous boost. George Washington is currently playing .500 ball but with Troy around for three more years they are a team to be reckoned with, that's how good he is.

John Hempel-6'7"-forward-University of Masachusetts- he is the best shooting power forward in America. John has not received his just desserts because he plays in the Death Valley of media. How many freshmen do you know that can go down to West Virginia and score 37 points in the unfriendly confines of the West Virginia Coliseum. He had the Mountaineer fans oohing and ahhing with his outstanding outside shooting. John, who has been named Atlantic Ten Rookie of the week three times, is averaging 17 points a game. He leads the league in 3 point field goal percentage and is fourth in free throw percentage at 80 percent. Remember this is a burly big man who you would expect to kill you inside, which he also does. You might think that this is bias reporting by a UMass student, but if you can show me a freshman forward who performs with as much poise as John, I'll buy that bridge in Brooklyn. He hasn't turned the program around yet but give him time.

Commentary

Chucky Barnett and you have a team that may take it all. Tisdale, who has led the Sooners to a 21-7 record thus far, is averaging 26.3 points per game which is good for sixth in the nation. Add 10.3 rebounds a clip and you have a player who could turn pro tomorrow.

Karl Malone -6'9"-forward-Louisiana Tech- he has gotten little press due to what Tisdale has done but this guy can play. He has put the men's team on the map as a school where the women are the big show. He is in the top 30 in scoring with 21.3 points per game and is number 18 in rebounding with 10.4 boards a contest. His presence has lifted the Bulldogs from a last place finish in the 1981-82 season to second this year in the Southland conference.

Mark Price-6'0"-guard-Georgia Tech- has done it all for Yellow Jacket coach Bobby Cremins. Mark has chipped in 19

Give the referees a break

By JUDY KELLIHER
Collegian Correspondent

Well, it's that time of year again, time for teams to do battle, all trying to prove themselves worthy of the championship.

Commentary

Blood, sweat and (maybe) tears are results of these athletic confrontations.

NCAA basketball tournament you say? Or possibly the NBA playoffs? Sorry sports fan, it's intramural basketball playoff time — probably the most intense level of all the intramural sports. Not only are bodies flying all over the place, but tempers as well.

Unfortunately, the brunt of these temper tantrums gets aimed at the officials. There always has to be a scapegoat and the officials seems to get placed in that category all too often.

The officials expressed views concerning the players treatment of them.

"You spend the majority of time explaining the call and then they complain that you're wasting the clocks running time," said Beth Cameron.

In the same light another official expressed a similar view.

"I don't feel I have to explain a call to them. I usually just shake it off if they complain," said Jon Clemens.

Contrary to popular belief, officials are human. they can make mistakes. Just like you're entitled to make at least one lousy pass or shoot up an airball, they are also entitled to make an error.

The unfortunate aspect of basketball is that the majority of calls are judgement calls, these being split second decisions such as a foul or travelling violation. Once the whistle has blown, the call stands. All the arguing in the world won't change that. It may just get you a technical, though.

All too often complaints are made and the complainer doesn't know the rule. There's probably nothing more frustrating for an official than to catch someone's flack who doesn't know the correct rule. Managers of teams should be just as aware of the rules as the officials. These vital tidbits of information should also be passed on to their players.

The Intramural Department provides the potential officials with clinics to learn the rules and the proper officiating procedures. Any person may be an intramural official. Possessing work-study is not the determining factor.

Officials also hail from the intramural officiating class that's offered. These students are required to do a certain number of games for all the activities offered during the semester.

The officials' feelings are probably best summed up by Nancy Frye who says, "They get their $3.50's worth out of me".

The officials don't intentionally go out and make bad calls. Just like you don't intentionally go out and commit a violation. Put yourself in their sneakers. Don't get caught up in the intensity of the game. Remember that these officials are your peers. They are students just like you.

Women's track sets marks

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

Leah Loftis highlighted two record breaking performances by the University of Massachusetts women's indoor track team as they finished up their season at the Easterns at Harvard last weekend.

Loftis, running in the 440-yard run, and the UMass 400 relay team both set school records in fine performances.

First, Loftis broke the school record in the qualifying for the 440 with a time of :57.2 seconds, seeding her fourth in the finals.

However, before she ran in the 440 finals, she had to run with the relay team who had lost Kristi Kelly just before the race. Kelly sprained her ankle in a freak accident warming up about thirty minutes before the race.

So, along with Debbie Smith, Maureen O'Reilly, and Susan Bird, Loftis led the relay team to a speedy 3:57.5, and a school record. Loftis had the fastest split (57.1) on the relay team, which narrowly missed qualifying for the finals.

Then Loftis took her run in the finals and finished in fifth place with a respectable :57.5

"It was a good ending (for the team) and a good beginning," said coach Kalekeni Banda. "We're looking forward to the outdoor season."

Banda also praised the shot putting of Elizabeth Patterson.

The women open their outdoor season on April 9th.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
Volume CXII, Issue 94 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003 (413) 545-3500 Friday, March 11, 1983

McLaughlin out; future uncertain

Collegian photo by Dave Deuber

Thomas McLaughlin, head coach of the University men's basketball team for two seasons, will no longer walk Minutemen sidelines as coach, it was reported yesterday.

By KEN BAZINET
Collegian Staff

After two years as head coach of the University of Massachusetts mens' basketball team, Thomas M. McLaughlin has walked the Minuteman sidelines for the last time.

Sources close to the basketball team and members of that team yesterday confirmed reports that McLaughlin will be fired or will resign as early as today. McLaughlin 31, coached his final Minuteman basketball game Wednesday, a 79-73 defeat to Rutgers University in the second round of the Atlantic Ten Conference playoffs in Phila delphia. In his two years as head coach, McLaughlin compiled a 16-40 record. The team went 9-20 this year.

Francis P. McInerney, UMass athletic director yesterday said only that "the UMass administration anticipates making an announcement early next week as to the future of the mens' basketball program."

McLaughlin was unavailable for comment yesterday and according to his brother Frank, who is the head coach at Harvard, McLaughlin was out recruiting next year's freshman players.

Some of the members of the team last night said there were communication problems between McLaughlin and some of the players. One player, who wished to remain anonymous, said "McLaughlin didn't have a firm backbone while coaching," and "If he stayed around I'd have to do some serious thinking about whether I would stay."

Several of the players and administrators last night said McLaughlin worked better as a recruiter than as a coach.

McLaughlin came to the University in March of 1961 promising a great rebirth of the once powerful basketball program. He graduated from UMass in 1973 and played with the Minutemen for three years where he averaged close to 10 points a game.

McLaughlin played on two teams which went to the National Invitational Tournament and was a teamate of Julius Erving and Al Skinner. After graduation he played for two years in Switzerland and returned to the U.S. in 1975 as assistant coach and recruiting coordinator at Stanford University. In 1979, he was hired as an assistant coach at Notre Dame, where he served under Coach "Digger" Phelps.

McLaughlin's wife is also a UMass graduate. The McLaughlin's made national headlines last April when their second child, Tommy John, was born on their bathroom floor as blizzard conditions prevented the two from getting to a hospital.

The birth of their son was indicative of what seemed to be a storybook career for McLaughlin. Always flamboyant, McLaughlin spent much of his first year at UMass speaking at dormitory meetings and rallies where he tried to rejuvenate the basketball program.

Controversy heightens over aid

Author defends Solomon Act

By RICHARD NANGLE
Collegian Staff

One of the hottest issues on Capitol Hill right now is whether financial aid should be tied to Selective Service registration. The so-called Solomon Amendment has been called repressive and unconstitutional by some and a proper means to enforce a patriotic law by others.

Gerald B. H. Solomon, R-New York, explained his reasons for sponsoring the controversial law during an interview Wednesday in Washington, D.C. He also described two additions to the law which would appear to solve the much talked about verification problems that opponents of the law have complained about.

Solomon believes his legislation has been effective in coercing draft age men to register. Before the law was originally proposed early last year 30 percent had not registered, according to Selective Service figures. Now that figure is approximately four percent, he said.

Although many have said the law discriminates against poor and middle class males, Solomon said financial aid is only one aspect of a more wide-ranging plan he has for non-registrants.

He is also sponsoring new legislation that would prohibit non-registrants from receiving any type of federal benefit. This would affect food stamps, welfare, passports and a myriad of other government programs. Solomon maintained the legislation would affect people from all walks of life who do not register.

Already there is a law, also sponsored by Solomon, that prohibits non-registrants from participating in the Defense Production Act which provides training in the private sector. Solomon said that law has received no publicity partly because of the controversial nature of the financial aid law.

Students have no given right to federal money for education, the congressman contended. Therefore they shouldn't get funds if they do not comply with federal regulations, i.e. draft registration.

"The original intent was to educate about the law and do everything to encourage (non-registrants) to live up to their obligation and obey the law," he said.

Solomon said people who don't register actually discriminate against those who do by increasing their chances of getting chosen if a draft is implemented.

One of Solomon's five children is of draft age, he said, adding that he doesn't like the fact that non-registrants increase the chances of his son's probability of getting drafted.

But Solomon believes that most of the large number of last year's non-registrants were that way due to ignorance of the seriousness with which the government treats non-registration.

"Let them know the federal government does mean business and will prosecute," he said.

Continued on page 7

Collegian photo by Jim Powers

Rep. Gerald B. H. Solomon, author of the so-called Solomon amendment proposing that college males not registered with the Selective Service be refused federal financial assistance, spoke in his Washington D.C. office Wednesday.

Aid law found unconstitutional

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — A federal judge yesterday barred the government from enforcing a law that would deny education loans to students who have not registered for the draft.

Saying the law violated students' constitutional rights against self-incrimination, U.S. District Judge Donald D. Alsop issued a preliminary injunction in a lawsuit that draft resisters and educators viewed as a national test case.

The suit challenged the law signed by President Reagan last Sept. 8. It required male students applying for tuition help to disclose whether they had registered for the draft, and prohibited them from receiving any federal assistance unless they had done so.

"It takes no great stretch of the imagination to discern how plaintiffs' identification of themselves as non-registrants could incriminate them or provide a significant link in the chain of evidence tending to establish their guilt," Alsop wrote in his 26-page opinion.

Following passage of the law, the Department of Education announced in January rules for carrying out the measure. The rules were to take effect in May and apply to student loans for the 1983-84 school year.

In Washington, Rep. Gerald B.H. Solomon, R-N.Y., author of the requirement linking student aid to draft registration, said that if the injunction becomes permanent, the Selective Service System would appeal it, and he felt confident the law would be upheld.

Educators deny endorsement of revised standards

By MARY CRESSE
Collegian Staff

In asserting the University of Massachusetts "overwhelmingly" supported revisions of the admissions standards proposals brought before the Massachusetts Board of Regents last week, Chancellor of Higher Education John B. Duff may have acted prematurely, according to three campus officials who had little or no knowledge of his statement.

Duff Tuesday told the regents that the University, which opposed the original plans calling for primary emphasis on SAT scores and class rank for admission, would support the plans once they are revised to incorporate a sliding scale which would allow students to offset poor SAT scores with high class rank and vice versa.

UMass administrators do not affirm the statement and even went so far as to repudiate it.

"We see no signs of 'overwhelming' support for these standards statewide," Joyce Kacoyanis, aid to UMass President David C. Knapp said.

"We're still assessing the workability of a sliding scale system and we're not moving in any direction until we are able to study the effects of that type of program on incoming students," she said.

Some officials were not informed of Duff's approval of the proposed revisions until they read about it in Wednesday's Boston Globe.

"I was not aware the campus had taken that (affirmative) position, I have not seen any revised plan at all," Vice Chancellor for Administration and Finance John L. DeNyse said yesterday.

Revisions for the proposal were made in early February but were criticized by educators and minority groups who challenged the fairness of the proposal to students who had exceptionally competitive high school classes. This high school ranking method was rejected by President Knapp, while it was favored by Duff.

Kacoyanis sees a main problem of determining admission in part by class rank would ignore special student situations.

"Theoretically, if you get a number of students from a place like Lexington High School, which has no class rank system, you would have to refuse those students admission," she said.

Meanwhile, other officials are waiting for more information.

"We're witholding statement on the matter until we can study more about the issue," David Taggert, director of freshman admissions, said.

Because of the controversy, the regents scrapped their plan to pass the motion this month, deciding instead to wait until May.

World and National News

Women hold march, protest New Bedford gang rape

NEW BEDFORD(AP) — Angry women vowed yesterday to hold a candlelight march on City Hall to protest the ordeal of a young woman who was repeatedly raped on a barroom pool table while patrons cheered.

Even though the bar was voluntarily closed permanently Wednesday, the switchboard at the New Bedford police station was jammed with calls from women expressing abhorrence at the attack.

The rape occurred Sunday night at Big Dan's, a tavern in a blue collar neighborhood of this southeastern Massachusetts city.

According to police, a 21-year-old woman went into the bar to buy a pack of cigarettes and stayed to have a drink with a friend. When she tried to leave, a man grabbed her and dragged her to a pool table, where she was repeatedly raped for at least two hours.

A group formed to protest the rape and "sexist violence" announced it would hold a candlelight march to City Hall Monday night.

"Closing that bar, unfortunately, is not going to stop rapes in New Bedford," Rita Moniz, a leader of the coalition, said yesterday. "We weren't protesting that particular bar as much as we're showing our outrage."

Meanwhile, calls poured in at the police station.

"The phone was ringing all night," said desk officer Henry Nichols. "They were very, very mad. They said they should hang the suspects."

Four men were charged with rape in the case and were released on $1,000 bail. District Attorney Ronald A. Pina said he would seek indictments against them next week.

Police have identified the arrested men as Joseph Vieira, 26, of Pomfret, Conn., and Daniel Silvia, 26, of New Bedford, charged with rape and committing unnatural acts; and Victor Raposo,22, and John Cordeiro, 23, both of New Bedford, charged with rape. They have pleaded innocent.

The incident began about 9:30 p.m. Sunday when the woman, who has not been identified, went into Big Dan's to buy cigarettes because other nearby stores were closed.

According to Sgt. Ronald R. Cabral and Detective Kenneth Gormley, she met a friend who was a waitress in the bar and stayed to have a drink with her. The friend got off duty and left; the victim lingered at the bar for a few minutes.

Reagan requests more for Salvador

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, setting the stage for a fierce battle in Congress, requested $110 million in increased military aid yesterday for El Salvador and suggested he will send in more U.S. advisers if the money is not approved in full.

Reagan said leftist guerrillas have seized the initiative in the embattled Central American nation after three years of bloody civil war.

"How bad is the military situation?" Reagan asked. "It is not good."

On Capitol Hill, Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill said Reagan's request was in trouble. "I don't see the votes around here at the present time ... He's going to have to do a lot of selling," O'Neill said.

Reagan's request likely will provide the focus for a debate over the U.S. role in El Salvador and demands that U.S. aid be linked to a requirement that the Salvadoran government seek a negotiated settlement of the war.

In a speech to the National Association of Manufacturers, Reagan said the countries of Central America "are in the midst of the gravest crisis in their history."

In addition to seeking more money for El Salvador, Reagan proposed increasing military aid by a total of $20 million for Honduras, Costa Rica and Panama Canal security — bringing the total request for this year to $39 million.

He also sought $168 million in additional economic assistance for El Salvador, Costa Rica, Honduras and Belize.

Reagan said a guerrilla victory in El Salvador would spread revolution to Guatemala, Honduras and Costa Rica and increase the threat to Panama, the canal and Mexico.

Ultimately at stake, he said, is the security of the United States.

While pledging not to send U.S. forces into combat, Reagan said "the number of U.S. trainers in El Salvador will depend upon the resources available" from Congress.

A senior administration official, speaking on condition he not be identified, explained that it costs 10 times more to train Salvadoran units in the United States than in their own country.

AP Laserphoto

Pope John Paul II greets Polish Primate Jozef Glemp upon the pontiff's arrival at Rome's military airport Thursday. The Pope was returning from an 8-day tour of Central America, including El Salvador, Nicaragua and Costa Rica.

Kremlin ousts U.S. diplomat

MOSCOW (AP) — The Kremlin ordered the expulsion of a U.S. diplomat yesterday and charged he was caught "red handed" in Moscow with radio equipment used for spying.

The U.S. Embassy confirmed that that Richard W. Osborne, a first secretary in the economic section, had been declared persona non grata by the Soviet government and was making preparations to leave the country with his wife and two young daughters. His departure date was not known.

Embassy spokesman Frank Tonini said he had "no comment" on the substance of the Soviet allegations against Osborne, and the diplomat was not available for comment. In Washington, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said only, "We don't have anything on that."

Izvestia, the Soviet government newspaper, said that Osborne "was detained red-handed in Moscow on March 7, this year, while working with espionage radio apparatus."

"Confiscated from him was a set of portable intelligence special-purpose apparatus for the transmission of espionage information via the U.S. Marisat communications satellites, and his own notes which were written in a pad made of paper quickly soluble in water, and which exposed Osborne's espionage activities," Izvestia said.

The report also was distributed by the official Tass news agency and read on Soviet evening television news.

Izvestia provided no details about Osborne's detention and the embassy refused all comment. American sources quoted one of Osborne's two young daughters as saying "a terrible thing" had happened to the family in recent days, and that she was told not to discuss it.

Osborne arrived in Moscow in August 1982 from Washington.

Western observers in Moscow speculated that Moscow's action could have been in retaliation for espionage accusations against several Soviet in recent months.

Soviet diplomats and government employees have been arrested on spy charges or expelled from Switzerland, the Netherlands, Britain, West Germany, Italy, Denmark and Canada.

Digest

By the Associated Press

Mass. legislators weigh offshore drilling bill

WASHINGTON — Massachusetts and California legislators yesterday introduced a bill to protect environmentally sensitive areas of the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans from offshore gas and oil drilling.

The legislation would remove from all lease sales until the year 2000 specific tracts off the coasts of Massachusetts and California, along with a buffer zone consisting of waters within 50 miles of the Massachusetts coastline.

It would also set aside for study until 1990 other tracts on the rich fishing grounds of Georges Bank off New England.

The senators and congressmen introducing the bill are Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, Sen. Paul E. Tsongas and Rep. Gerry E. Studds, all of Massachusetts, and Sen. Alan Cranston and Rep. Leon Panetta, both of California. All are Democrats.

"I believe that if (Interior Secretary) James Watt had his way, we'd be drilling for oil in the Tidal Basin," Kennedy told reporters at a news conference to announce the bill.

The impetus for the legislation was a Feb. 23 decision by Watt to delete only 41 tracts from the next lease sale for offshore oil and gas drilling in the North Atlantic.

Lowell man ordered to Bridgewater

LOWELL — A man accused of murdering a 67-year-old widow after he wrecked a car near her home and then demanded car keys from her was ordered yesterday to a state hospital for evaluation.

Alcide Dupont, 60, of Lowell was arrested Wednesday shortly after he allegedly shot through the door at the Tynsgboro home of Ruth Lamb. She died at St. Joseph's Hospital in Nashua, N.H., at 2:10 p.m. after being shot in the stomach.

Dupont was arraigned in District Court yesterday on five counts charging murder, armed robbery, theft of a motor vehicle, unlawful carrying of a firearm and assault with a dangerous weapon. He was ordered to Bridgewater State Hospital for psychiatric evaluation, and his case was continued to March 29.

Assistant Middlesex Distict Attorney Joel Fishman told the court that Dupont was charged with taking a station wagon and a .30-30 Winchester rifle from his employer, George Eno.

After taking the car and the rifle, Fishman told the court, Dupont drove to New Hampshire where he obtained ammunition and was driving back through Tyngsboro when an accident occurred, followed by the shooting.

Michigan college student paper shut down; denial of editorial censorship order blamed

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. — Chimes, the Calvin College student newspaper, has been shut down for defying a censorship order by printing editorials and letters about counselors' confidentiality policies.

"They (Chimes) have been disbanded," Calvin President Anthony Diekema said Wednesday. "The present staff has been disbanded and the publication suspended until there is a new editor in chief."

The school's Communications Board, which governs campus media, voted Tuesday to suspend publication of Chimes, Diekema said.

Staff members at the weekly newspaper said they heard rumors last month that a college chaplain or a counselor had disclosed information given in confidence, and that another faculty member involved in the incident had resigned.

Keith Essenburg, associate editor of the paper, said the staff began investigating the case, but could not substantiate the rumors. "We found a lot of hesitation on the part of the administration to discuss it," Essenburg said.

Rod Ludema, editor of the paper, said he then wrote an editorial for the paper's March 4 issue asking, "Why had we been stonewalled? Why had the issue started?"

Today's Staff

Night Editor — Ray Beauchemin
Copy Editor — Anne McCrory
Layout Technician — Will Hopkins
Photo Technician — Tom Kudla
Composition — Donna Maurice, Julie Marcinek, Sue Hawkins, Alice Klingener, Alyssa Rusiecki, Sam Levitt, Sue Koczela, Adrianne Dufour, Laurie Frank, Gail Tanzer, Joy McCarthy, Brian Fitz Maurice, Sheryl Silver, Terri Cooper, Margie Hochman

British seek nuke disarmament

By BROOKE STATES
Collegian Staff

Alan James, national organizer for the student section of the British Campaign for a Nuclear Disarmament, addressed 25 students on the European peace movement last night. James, who spoke in room 162 of the Campus Center, was sponsored by the Progressive Student Network.

"We have until December of 1983 to stop the build-up of nuclear arms. After that the cruise missile will be deployed," James said. "We support unilateral disarmament of Great Britain for three reasons: these are geographic, economic and common sense," James said.

According to James, the United Kingdom is the largest aircraft carrier in the world. "There are 103 United States bases and 275 British military bases on the island. The cruise missile is 14 feet long and can be fired from a truck." James said that this would make the whole of southern England a target, as the Soviet Union would have to develop a massive strike capacity to knock out the missiles.

"Education in Great Britain has taken a 32 percent cut. We are taking 27 percent cuts across the board in all sectors except the military. Defense is the only growth area and is the largest item in the budget except for unemployment benefits. This is another reason we oppose the Cruise Missile and the defense budget," James said.

In West Germany the peace movement has concentrated more on the Pershing Two missiles, according to James. "The specifications of the Pershing Two call for it to hit within 100 feet of target. It would be able to hit targets in the Soviet Union, while the continental United States cannot be hit by the Soviet SS 20 missiles." James said that if these missiles are deployed, the Soviet Union has warned that it will have to go to the Launch on Warning Mode to protect itself. According to James the Soviet defense computers are probably five times less accurate then the North American Air Defense Command computers.

"Between January of 1979 and June of 1980 the NORDAD system had 147 false alarms. These are not the statistics of the peace movement, but of your Senate Armed Services Subcommittee," James said. "The Soviets have only four to six minutes warning time with the Pershings in West Germany. There will be no chance for a false alarm or mistake," James said.

"You never hear about the eastern European peace movement. That is because NATO needs to paint the eastern block as monolithic," James said.

Collegian photo by Tom Kudla

Alan James of the British-based Campaign for a Nuclear Disarmament spoke last night in the Campus Center.

James stated that on the anniversary of the firebombing of the city of Dresden in World War II, 5,000 people gathered in a church for a non-governmental service. According to James the focus was looking towards the future, rather then the East German governments ceremony which remembered the past.

"At 10:15 p.m., the exact time the first wave of allied bombers swept over the city, 2,000 people marched in a candlelight procession. The next day police begun arresting people who were still in vigil. They had to stop because three of the first ten that they grabbed were children of high party officials," James said.

"CND has 52 percent of the people in Great Britain in favor of unilateral disarmament. we have 3,000 local chapters around the country. CND just celebrated its 25th anniversary," James said. "I think it can all be summed up by one sign I saw in a demonstration in England. The sign said 'Historians for the right to work. We demand a continuing supply of history,' " said James.

State reps visit campus, initiate rapport

By TAMI BORTON
Collegian Staff

State representatives Stephen Dorin (D—Lexington) and Christopher Hodgkins (D—Lee), both University of Massachusetts graduates, visited their alma mater yesterday as a part of an effort to form important ties between the state government and the University.

The legislators toured the campus and met with Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey and their constituents here.

"We have been meeting with our student constituents to make them aware of their particular involvement in the state legislature," Hodgkins said. "Our coming symbolizes the importance of this and of writing or calling state reps. who really do look at their mail," he said.

"The administration is just starting to harness the political power of the university," Dorin said. "UMass has a chancellor who is politically savvy, a UMass graduate as chair of the committee on education, (James Collins, D—Amherst) and an administration that is getting involved. The only potential missing link is politically aroused students and their families," he said.

"We have been living in the shadow of Ivy League legislators, which has caused an indifference to university problems and policies," he added.

However, both legislators have noticed a reverse in this trend. "More graduates of the university are getting involved in state issues," Dorin said. Hodgkins added, "This trend is noticed by what the administration is doing in inviting us here."

"The difference between UMass and private institutions is that our facilities are the best, whether it be the dorms, buildings, educations or opportunities," Hodgkins said, stressing the importance of utilization of the University by the state.

"We are also exposed to the problems of the school and campus by visiting the University," Dorin said.

Dorin met with the chancellor to discuss the capital outlay of building repairs on campus which have been earmarked as top priority projects for Governor Michael S. Dukakis' $92 million "jobs bill."

"We have a fine University here, which is appreciated more after returning," said Hodgkins, who graduated from UMass in 1980 (Dorin graduated in 1978). "I will be leaving with a rejuvenated willingness to become a vocal advocate of the University in state legislature," Hodgkins said.

"Umass is the best kept secret in Massachusetts," Dorin said, "I have a renewed committment to the healthy sharing of the state administration and UMass faculty."

Collegian photo by Tom Kudla

Two members of the University track team stretch prior to a work-out in the Curry Hicks Cage. They are Peter Leary, a sophomore English major, left, and John Weinshel, a freshman communications major.

Funding efforts gaining support

By KEN BAZINET
Collegian Staff

Saying "the future of the Commonwealth rests on knowledge-based industry," State Rep. James Collins, D-Amherst, yesterday told the Professional Association of the University of Massachusetts at Amherst (PAUMA) Senate the legislature is beginning to view higher education as an investment, not an expenditure.

Collins, the house chairman of the Joint Committee on Education, said UMass must do its own lobbying at the State House in Boston to be assured of its proper budget appropriations.

"The University in Amherst has begun to develop a strong grassroots organization across the state," Collins said. "When UMass is able to galvanize the support of alumni and registered voters in the state, the University can get the budgets it needs and that is not just wishful thinking," said Collins, a 1968 graduate of UMass/Amherst.

Collins said the legislature is going to be assertive in its effort to ensure that no "super boards" exist or operate behind closed doors.

"We are going to make sure that the Board of Regents and higher education (in general) work in an open forum," Collins said.

He said he supports strong local governance at the state's campuses and fears that the regents may be overstepping their limits on decision making policies.

"While I did not support how the regents were created, I will applaud them for allowing 90 percent of the decisions to be made on the individual campuses up to this point," he said. However, Collins said the recent positions the regents have taken on creating a statewide collective bargaining policy and minimum criteria for admission to the state's schools show signs that the regents are changing their feelings on local governance.

"If (the regents) are not wise, they will find themselves acting in areas that they shouldn't," he said. "The proper balance (for higher education)," he said, "is central coordination by the regents with emphasis on local governance."

He also said the regents should not consider re-appropriating the budget which the Governor and legislature will produce for higher education.

"I think the regents would lose all credibility with the legislature if they start re-appropriating the budget," he said.

Collegian photo by Jim Powers

State Rep. Jim Collins, D-Amherst, spoke at a PAUMA meeting Thursday.

Collins says cash should flow soon

By KEN BAZINET
Collegian Staff

State Rep. James Collins, D-Amherst, yesterday said he expects the Massachusetts legislature to provide the University of Massachusetts with the money it needs to repair its deteriorating buildings within the next five years.

Collins said that if it will cost the state $120 million to repair and renovate the UMass buildings, then that is the amount of money the University should expect to receive.

Collins said the state has been "horrendous" in the area of deferred maintenance and added that the problem with the state in the past was that it was "crisis-oriented" and not careful enough with preventive maintenance.

"I think the Commonwealth is distraught with the UMass buildings," Collins said, "The legislature should, in order to protect the buildings, make the necessary capital improvements within the next five years."

Collins also said the University should stress the number of jobs that repairs can provide for western Massachusetts residents.

"There is a new direction in Boston," he said. "We are very interested in putting people back to work." He said UMass must use this area to get approval for its renovations and repairs.

"What I think the University must do is slide its programs under this plan," he said.

He said the University must develop a capital outlay request which prioritizes its needs and explains in depth the problems with its deteriorating buildings and systems.

Life crises cited as cause of alcoholism in women

By MARY BALDWIN
Collegian Staff

Editor's Note: This is the second part of a two-part series.

It is more difficult for women alcoholics to deal with their drinking problem than it is for men alcoholics because of the stigma society attaches to women who drink, said the director of a problem drinking program in Northampton.

Mary Moriarty, director of the Hampshire Problem Drinking Program said, "In men, drinking is more toletated and is considered to be accepted behavior in our society.

"We offer a special service to women because we recognize there are unique things that women suffer from alcoholism," Moriarty said.

As the disease progresses, the woman alcoholic is apt to become angry and aggressive. This is normally thought of as unfeminine behavior, Moriarty said.

"It is more difficult for women to accept this behavior in their value systems and society's value system than it is for a man," she said.

Moriarty estimated that 60 to 75 percent of the people treated at her problem drinking program are women. These figures show an increase over the past few years. She said no particular group of women becomes alcoholic. She treats an equal number of housewives and career women, she said.

According to recent studies done on alcoholism treatment, it has been found that most researchers concern themselves with the treatment of men alcoholics. They then apply their findings to women. However, evidence shows that males and females respond differently to alcoholism and the treatment of the disease.

Referring to traditional treatment of alcoholism, Dr. Jean Kirkpatrick, the founder of Woman for Sobriety said, "Many women's emotional problems and disturbances are all tied up in the male-female relationship; rehabilitation via a male-female organization is not the answer at that specific time."

Kirkpatrick, an alcoholic for 28 years before her reform said, "All women in our culture feel guilt for not being perfect and fitting into the unrealistic mold that American society has cast for them.

"Their alcoholism and recovery is all involved with the removal of these guilt feelings," she said.

One study stated the onset of drinking is more often closely tied to specific life crises in women alcoholics than in men alcoholics. Crises such as divorce, separation, husband's death, marital problem, death of a parent and children growing older can bring on drinking.

According to the study, the potential woman alcoholic fits a pattern. She values traditional female roles but she has chronic doubts about her own adequacy as a woman. The woman alcoholic often lacks a feminine identity resulting from personal problems such as her husband leaving her.

So, she turns to alcohol in an attempt to gain feeling of womanliness which eventually result in the loss of control of her drinking, researchers said.

Engineering goals cited by new dean

By GREG BROWN
Collegian Staff

The increased use of computers in engineering education is a major goal of the engineering department at the University of Massachusetts, said Dean of Engineering James E. A. John, who was appointed in January.

John said that computers are constantly becoming a bigger part of the engineering industry and that "we have to increase their use now so that in a few years we'll be even more competitive."

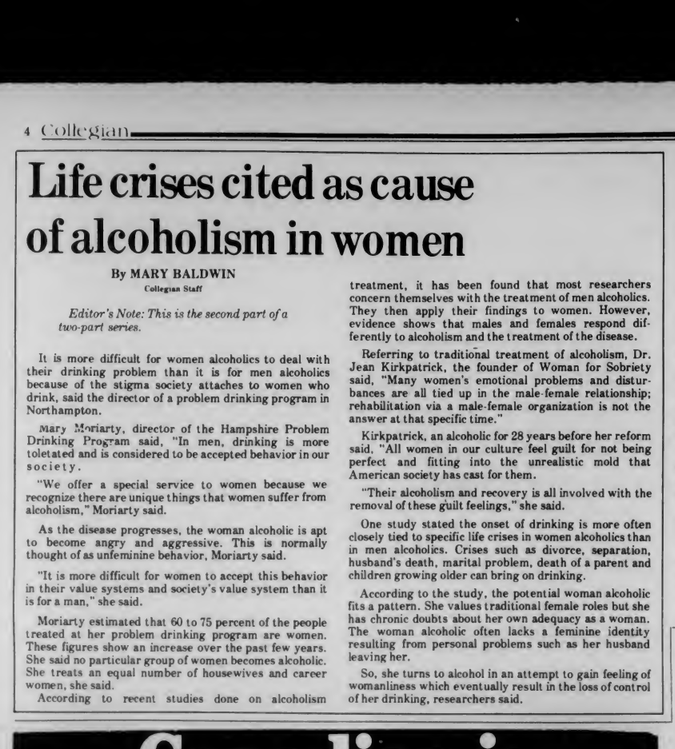
John, who was formerly the head of Ohio State's mechanical engineering department, said that he thinks UMass engineering is very competitive, but that "we should lead the state in engineering, since we're the state's public university."

John also wants to increase interaction between the school of engineering and the engineering industry. He said that the new Engineering Management degree program, approved Wednesday by the Board of Regents, will help increase communications between the school and industry.

"The engineering industry needs something like this, a program which gives them easy access to the new developments in engineering," John said. "Many of the courses in the program are videotaped and sent around the state."

John called the program "a very efficient way to teach courses to people already in the industry."

Canadian is a living language.



Molson Golden. That's Canadian for great taste.

The finest ale brewed and bottled in Canada. Imported by Martlet Importing Co., Inc., Great Neck, N.Y. © 1983.

Free poster/Guide to Beer Tasting Parties.
Send self-addressed stamped #10 envelope to: Molson Golden Guide, 888 Seventh Avenue, Box M, New York, NY 10106.

DELANO'S

MARCH SPECIAL
St. Pauli Girl
& O'Keefe Bottles
2 for 1
plus our original
twofers and hors d'oevres
7 days 7 nights
4-6 pm 10-midnight
Proper ID a must
57 N. Pleasant St.
253-5141

UMASS SKI CLUB
SAT 3/12 TRIP
to Killington
ONLY $20
Includes:
Lift Ticket
Transportation
Refreshments
Best Skiing in the East
For more info
430 Student Union 5-3437

Half-ton telescope installed in observatory

Marks new era for stargazing, celestial photography at UMass

By RUSSELL TURNER
Collegian Staff

Final installations were made Wednesday on the University of Massachusetts Orchard Hill Observatory's new astronomical telescope. The $20,000, 16-inch reflector telescope replaces an older one which had not worked for more than eight years.

"This will give students, or anyone who is interested, an opportunity to use an observatory-class telescope," said Kenneth E. Cole, president of the Five College Astronomy Club.

The telescope, which stands seven feet high and weighs 1,000 pounds, belongs to the astronomy department but has been kept in storage for the last 10 years for lack of an observatory. Last semester, on the initiative of students from the astronomy club, the decision was made to scrap the old telescope and put in the new one.

Two weeks ago, with the help of Dante Petrozzi from the Quabbin Observatory, the base and mid-section of the telescope were lowered into place by crane through the observatory's dome. This section allows the telescope to pivot along the axis of the earth's equator so that the stars can be followed during the course of a night as they move across the sky, according to Cole.

Last Monday students from the astronomy club transported the telescope tube containing the 16-inch parabolic mirror to the observatory and installed it under the supervision of Five College Astronomy Club technician Ron Zissell. The telescope tube, which weighs 100 pounds and is five feet long, was lifted into place by hand and bolted to the telescope's base.

On Wednesday the 24-hour clock drive, which keeps it pointed towards the same part of the sky as the earth turns, was installed and the telescope was made operational. All that remains to be done is alignment, which will be done by calibrating the telescope against various known stars, according to Cole, a senior physics and astronomy major.

The installation of the new telescope marks the beginning of a new era for the astronomy club and for observational astronomy at UMass, said astronomy club secretary Gary F. Clinch. It is intended for the use of the astronomy club and undergraduate astronomy majors and it may be used in some astronomy courses, he said. The only other comparable optical telescope in the area is the 24-inch reflector at Mount Holyoke College.

The astronomy club will be using the telescope to photograph stars, planets and other celestial objects, to search for comets and asteroids and to conduct nova surveys. It will also sponsor general observing nights for the public and will teach observatory techniques to anyone who wants to learn, Clinch said.

In the 1970s, interest in astronomy at UMass shifted away from traditional optical astronomy and towards radio astronomy. After a long period of inactivity, the astronomy club mounted a semester-long campaign last fall to make a working telescope available on the UMass campus again, Cole said. The telescope was originally scheduled to be installed before Christmas but was delayed for two months.

"For six years there had been a 20-inch telescope which was inoperative," said Cole. The original telescope, which was installed in 1962, was an exact one-tenth scale model of the 200-inch Mount Palomar telescope, built from scratch. By the 1970s it began to deteriorate, and when the clock drive broke down there was not enough interest in the UMass community to get it working again, he said.

"We put a lot of effort in two years ago to get the 20-inch telescope fixed, but we were in over our heads. We failed," Cole said.

Photo by Chris Jungmann

Members of the Five College Astronomy Club make final adjustments to a half-ton, $20,000 telescope, the most recent addition to the Orchard Hill Observatory.

starts THURS., MARCH 10
...through SAT., MARCH 19

JERGAS reg. 14.95 12.95

PRIME CUT PANTS reg. 18.95 11.95

DANSKIN 20% OFF

TANK TOPS reg. 6.95 4.95

SUNGLASSES reg. 5.95 3.95

FACES
A Store-full of Ideas
Downtown Amherst /Open 10-6, Mon.-Sat.

U.S. guns in El Salvador subject of Amherst march

By TRICIA YACOVONE
Collegian Staff

People who want to voice their opinion about the U.S. involvement in El Salvador will have the opportunity tomorrow at 1:30 p.m. on the Amherst Town Common. Eighteen area organizations, wielding the banner, "Say NO! To another Vietnam!" are sponsoring the event which will be preceded by marches leaving Northampton's Pulaski Park at noon and the University of Massachusetts Student Union Building at 12:30.

The rally comes at a very important time as President Reagan requested yesterday a $110 million increase in military aid for the Central American nation.

"We need to make a visible protest to show that people don't accept this action . . . to say we will not allow El Salvador to become another Vietnam," said Peter Bohmer, a graduate student in economics at UMass and a member of the Northampton Committee on Central America (NCOCA), one of the main organizers for the march.

The similarities between the U.S. involvement in El Salvador and those in Vietnam are what give this issue such force, said spokespeople from various organizing groups.

"People who hear 'El Salvador' now think 'Vietnam' and the country will not go for another Vietnam, especially because we're coming from a more knowledgeable background than in the 60s," said Karen Flammia, a senior social thought and political economy (STPEC) and women's studies major and member of the NCOCA and the Western Massachusetts Latin American Solidarity Committee (WMLASC).

"Things are escalating quickly right now, so we feel that emergency measures are necessary. The rally will mobilize people in the community to show their resistance to the escalation," said Laurie Bozzi, a junior STPEC major and member of the WMLASC.

Flammia added that participants in the rally will be able to express their anger about the escalation, the government and the connection between the military buildup and the cuts in domestic programs.

All the organizers stressed the importance of this rally as a grassroots forum to show state representatives Conte, R-Pittsfield, and Boland, D-Springfield, that the people are in opposition to the proposed escalation.

Margaret Lobenstine, an active member of the NCOCA, will speak at the rally and Tom Juravich, a local folksinger, will perform. Flammia said "we tried to stay away from big names to see people expressing their reactions on a grassroots level."

After the rally, at 3 p.m., the groups will be holding a meeting at the Congregationalist Church to discuss plans for activities to be held in April. Bohmer said the actions will be centered on the Pittsfield area because that is Rep. Conte's base.

Asian immigration film rolls tonight

A film portraying the experiences of early Chinese and Japanese immigrants to America, "Mitsuye and Nellie," will be shown at 7 p.m. today in the Anacanoa Center, located in the basement of Dwight House. The film is sponsored by the Racism Awareness Program.

Art historian gives lecture

By GREG BROWN
Collegian Staff

As part of the Chancellor's Lecture Series, an art historian last night explained the slowness with which photojournalism originally replaced graphic arts in magazines.

Mark W. Roskill, professor of art history at the University of Massachusetts, said a major reason that photojournalism did not immediately replace the graphic illustration of magazines in the 19th century was "a reluctance on the part of editors to change from what the public was used to," drawings and graphic illustration.

He defined photojournalism as the "placement of photos in newspapers and magazines of social or economic importance." Roskill said that the people involved in illustration for magazines "fought hard to hold onto their prerogatives." To show the slow replacement of graphic illustration, he cited as examples photographs and illustrations from magazines of that period, such as the Illustrated London News and Harper's Weekly.

In explaining the photographs, Roskill pointed out they had been retouched to give them the appearance of illustrations, and that graphic representation "enlarged and epitomized the characters." This attribute was explained as another factor in the slow development of photojournalism.

Roskill said that the photography of Jacob Reese, which was considered the best of the 1890's, "came in as a rival to and ultimately displaced graphic illustration" as a means of presenting the public with images.

Roskill has received many awards and last night he received the Chancellor's Medal for service to the University, an award given to all participants of the lecture series. The series serves as a means of recognizing distinguished members of the UMass faculty.

AMHERST CINEMA
$2.50 Double Feature
Wed - Sat
A Hard Day's Night 7:30
Monkey Business 9:00
Sun - Tues
East of Eden 7:00
Rebel Without A Cause 9:00
Downtown Amherst
253-5426

FT. LAUDERDALE
from $218.00
round trip air only
SEATS STILL AVAILABLE
call
TRIPP ASSOCIATES, LTD.
584-3224

GRADUATING SOON?
You're Needed All Over the World.
Ask Peace Corps volunteers why their ingenuity and flexibility are as vital as their degrees. They'll tell you they are helping the world's poorest peoples attain self sufficiency in the areas of food production, energy conservation, education, economic development and health services. And they'll tell you about the rewards of hands on career experience overseas. They'll tell you it's the toughest job you'll ever love.
PEACE CORPS
See Mary-Jo Langston, 12 Draper Hall, UMASS, 545-2105
Tuesdays 12:00 - 3:30
Wednesdays 9:00 - 12:00
Thursdays 12:00 - 5:00

CAMPUS CENTER FOOD SERVICES PRODUCTIONS PRESENTS
THE GREAT DINNER MOVIE DEAL!
TOP of the CAMPUS RESTAURANT & LOUNGE
fine dining ...a meal with a view
CHOOSE from our starring entrees:
* CHICKEN KIEV
* TURKEY PARMESAN
* COUNTRY STYLE BAR-B-Q RIBS
* FRESH CATCH OF THE DAY
served with our SALAD BAR and your choice of beverage, and RECEIVE a FREE MOVIE PASS
ONLY 6.95
DINNER SPECIAL is available TUESDAY-THURSDAY nights
MOVIE PASS is valid SUNDAY-THURSDAY
8 Theaters... Your choice for entertainment
amc THEATRES
584-7550 HAMPSHIRE MALL
584-9153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL

FOUR SEASONS
Labatts.....ale or beer bts.....$10.99
Bud.....cans or bottles.....$10.95
Krakus (best buy in foreign beers)...bts...$9.99
Busch.....bts.....$8.99
Carling Black Label. bts. $6.99 plus deposit
Ron Roberta Rum.....1.75.....$9.99
(pineapple juice & coco lopez also available)
Strogoff Vodka.....1.75.....$8.20
Wellington Gin.....1.75.....$8.20
McGregor Scotch.....1.75.....$12.79
Gallo Wines....French Columbard, Chenin Blanc, Rose, Sauvignon Blanc 1.5.....$3.99
Almaden Table Wines.....1.5.....$4.49
Great Western Extra Dry Champagne 750 $7.99
Ciriaco.....Lambrusco or Bianco 1.5.....$3.49
Jameson's Irish Whiskey
750...$10.49 200...$3.29
Open 10 AM to 11 PM
in front of the Malls
Wines/Liquors
rte.9, hadley, ma./584-8174

Reagan, Congress criticized for stance on financial aid

By RICHARD NANGLE
Collegian Staff

The Executive Director of the National Association of Financial Aid Administrators blasted Congress and the Reagan Administration for cutting federal funding for higher education in a meeting with Students Advocating Financial Assistance (SAFA) Sunday in Washington D.C. The University of Massachusetts group was in the nation's capital to lobby against the fiscal 1984 Reagan Administration budget.

"Nobody's worried about seven years from now," said Dallas Martin. "They're worrying about getting re-elected in 1984."

Much of the Reagan and conservative philosophy is based on the perception that students are freeloading the system, Martin said.

"A lot of people don't believe that students still work," Martin said. Nobody objects to the concept of self-help, it's just what is reasonable for students to do."

Martin criticized White House officials for the proposed changes in financial aid policy in the budget.

"You've got a bunch of bureaucrats over there who don't know what the hell they're doing. The only way they can justify their existence is if they come up with some theoretical bullshit," he said.

If the budget passes "the only people who will believe they are getting something are the ignorant," he said.

"The biggest problem we're facing in education today is stability, stability in predictability (of funding methods)," Martin said.

"There are some people who think student aid is linked to socialism and communism and nobody should have it. There are some real all-out idiots out there," he said.

Martin was also highly critical of the Solomon Amendment, which denies financial aid to students who cannot prove they have registered for the draft.

"I think this is a terrible law. It's kind of like putting gasoline and fire together. It makes no sense at all. There are some bills in Congress that would repeal it, but it's like voting against motherhood, apple pie and Chevrolet," Martin said. "The last thing (Congressmen) want to hear is that people don't want to register."

Martin predicted problems with the verification clause in the legislation could prevent some registered students from attending college. Selective Service has said it can have mailed requests for verification sent back to students within two weeks, he said.

"It takes those people two weeks to stick a piece of paper in an envelope," he said.

Don't be afraid of these people (Congressmen)," Martin told the group. "They're not any different than you are. They have bad breath in the morning and they leave toothpaste in the sink. Probably most of you in this room have a better understanding of the issues than they do."

Collegian photo by Jim Powers

Jim Quinn, president of Students Advocating Financial Aid (SAFA) diligently takes notes during a speech by Dallas Martina, executive director of a national financial aid directors' group.

★ Solomon

Continued from page 1

One of the strongest arguments against the Solomon Amendment is the distinct possibility it carries of preventing students who have registered from receiving federal funds due to bureaucracy. An independent study conducted by Dallas Martin, executive director of the National Association of Financial Aid Administrators, proves it takes anywhere from nine weeks to a year to receive registration verification from Selective Service.

Without verification, according to the law as it presently stands, a student cannot receive federal funding for higher education.

"I'm very sympathetic to that," Solomon said.

A new proposal would allow students who have misplaced their verification, or who have not yet received it, to go to any post office in the country and re-register regardless of their permanent residence. The post office would then make a copy of the registration form and the student could bring it to his or her financial aid office.

He would also eliminate the confusion surrounding freshmen who have not yet reached draft age by extending the current 30-day grace period a person has to register before their 18th birthday to 120 days.

The latter proposal has been embraced by the Department of Education, Solomon said, but the status of the former is in question.

A self-proclaimed "conservative republican" Solomon said his ideology would make the thought placing added burdens on any institution reprehensible. Therefore, he said, he may support repeal measures which are pending in the House and Senate if these problems are not cleared up in time for the scheduled July 1 implementation of the law.

"We've got to do something to alleviate the problems caused by verification," he said.

These reforms, according to Solomon, would cut projected enforcement costs at the University of Massachusetts ($24,000) by 90 percent.

But other schools might not be so fortunate.

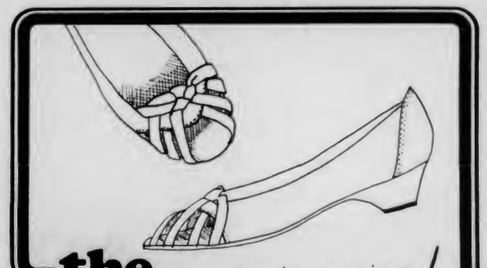
"In small schools no matter what you do it will create a financial burden," he said.

Solomon said that despite a statement made by Rep. Barney Frank, D-Mass., that political pressure forced people to vote for the Solomon Amendment, repeal measures will not pass without his approval.

"I've always been a very strong supporter of financial aid," Solomon said. But the record states otherwise.

According to the 1981-82 United States Student Association (USSA) target report Solomon has a zero percent rating on 17 key education votes. He is one of nine House members who did not vote on a single issue in a manner satisfactory to USSA.

tmc PRODUCTIONS
We're havin' a party...
with
SOUTHSIDE JOHNNY
and the
ASBURY JUKES
MARCH 17 SAINT PATTY'S DAY
STUDENT UNION BALLROOM
8:00
TICKETS AVAILABLE AT:
• TIX UNLIMITED
• UNION RECORDS UNLIMITED
• FINE ARTS CENTER
• FOR THE RECORD
YOU WON'T WANNA GO HOME!



the SHOE BIN
think spring!
187 n. pleasant st., amherst

Free Popcorn
TIME OUT
A Very Friendly Place
Two TV's
Happy Hour 4 - 7 PM Daily
Giant Bar Drinks - $1.75
16 oz Drafts - $.85
Pitchers - $3.25
AMHERST'S BIGGEST LITTLE BAR
37 N. Pleasant St.

HOUSING EXEMPTION APPLICATIONS

Frosh, sophomores and Stockbridge students who wish to live off-campus for the Fall Semester 1983 should apply for an exemption from the on-campus housing regulation. Housing Exemption Applications are now available in the Housing Assignment office, room 235 Whitmore. Applications are due no later than THURSDAY, MARCH 31, 1983. Applications will not be accepted after this date. Please submit all applications to the Housing Assignment Office, 235 Whitmore.

IMPORTANT NOTES:

PLEASE READ CAREFULLY

* Signing a lease is not valid grounds for receiving an exemption from the on-campus housing requirement. DO NOT SIGN A LEASE UNLESS YOU HAVE RECEIVED AN EXEMPTION. Any student who signs a lease without prior approval from the Housing Assignment Office is responsible for all on-campus fees and will be required to reside on-campus.
* Students who are granted an exemption from the on-campus housing regulation will lose their housing assignment for the Fall 1983 Semester approximately two weeks after the exemption is granted, unless prior arrangements are made with the Housing Assignment Office.

Thank you.

Assorted Sports Jerseys $5.95

Assorted Styles & Colors on Special Sale Rack Reg. $7.95

Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4

UNIVERSITY STORE

AMC THEATRES

$2.00 MATINEE & TWILITE SHOW ... REDUCED PRICES FOR STUDENTS & SENIOR CITIZENS WITH AMC CARD

AMC HAMPSHIRE 6 584-7550 — AMC MOUNTAIN FARMS 6 584-9153

Nominated for 10 Academy Awards — Tootsie — DUSTIN HOFFMAN — Fri (4:45 * $2.00) 7:15, 9:45 — PG Sat & Sun (2 & 4:45 @ $2.00) 7:15, 9:45

LOVESICK — DUDLEY MOORE — Fri (5:15 @ $2.00) 7:45, 9:55 — Sat & Sun (12:45, 2:45 & 5:15 @ $2.00) 7:45, 9:55 — PG

MERYL STREEP Nominated for Best Actress — SOPHIE'S CHOICE — Fri (4 @ $2.00) 7, 10:30 — R — Sat & Sun (1, 3 & 5 @ $2.00) 7:30, 9:55

GANDHI — Nominated for 11 Academy Awards — Fri (4:45 @ $2.00) 8:30 — PG — Sat & Sun (12:30 & 4:30 @ $2.00) 8:30

The Rolling Stones Late Spend a Night Together — Fri (5 @ $2.00) 7:30, 9:55 — PG — Sat & Sun (1, 3, & 5 @ $2.00) 7:30, 9:55

Charles Bronson in 10 TO MIDNIGHT — Fri (5 at $2.00) 7:30, 9:45 — Sat & Sun (12:30, 2:45 & 5 @ $2.00) 7:30, 9:45 — R

ONE DARK NIGHT — Fri (5 @ $2.00) 7:30, 9:30 — PG — Sat & Sun (1, 3, & 5 @ $2.00) 7:30, 9:30

The Year of Living Dangerously — Fri (5 @ $2.00) 7:30, 9:55 — PG — Sat & Sun (2 & 5 @ $2.00) 7:30, 9:55

MIDNIGHT MOVIE MADNESS — FRI & SAT at 12:15 a.m.

AMC HAMPSHIRE 6 584-7550

ROCKY HORROR PICTURE SHOW — THE WHO Quadrophenia — PG — The Rolling Stones Late Spend a Night Together — R — DAWN OF THE DEAD

FREE

OFF CAMPUS DELIVERY
$15.00 Minimum
TELEPHONE 253-3091

Budweiser 12 oz cns $11.00 case + dep.
Guinness & Harp $2.99/ 4 pk + dep.
Schaefer 12 oz refillables... $8.30/ case + dep.
Rolling Rock 12 oz refillables ..... $10.00/ case + dep.
Beer Balls $15.99

C & C
PACKAGE STORE
61 MAIN STREET
"Across the street from Plumbleys"

SERVE IN APPALACHIA

May 21 - 27 1983
July 23 - 29 1983
August 6 - 12, 1983

NEEDED

Reverend John Garvey
Glenmary Home Missioners Room 11
Box 46404
Cincinnati, Ohio 45246

Name _____ Age _____
Address _____
City _____ State _____ Zip _____

EDITORIAL/OPINION

Stop harassment before it's too late

You may remember, back in the fall of 1981, the emergence of a group called UTOPIA. Nobody knew who they were or where they came from. They posted a hate-filled flyer all over this campus, which attacked blacks, gays, and other minorities and groups. They planned a rally on the steps of the Student Union Building to make known their views. When the appointed hour arrived, they never showed up. Instead, several hundred people turned out to protest UTOPIA and it's tactics. UTOPIA was never heard from again.

Randolph T. Holhut

Now, almost two years later, a similar group has emerged in Amherst. They call themselves SHUN (Stop Homosexual Unity Now) and they have embarked on a campaign of threats, violence, and harassment against the Pioneer Valley's gay community. Last month, about 200 gays met with Northampton Mayor David Musante, Hampshire-Franklin District Attorney Michael Ryan, and various Northampton police officers. It was felt that city officials were not doing enough to insure for the safety of the gay community and that they were not taking a vocal enough stand on the issue.

When the meeting was finished, steps were begun to set up a task force made up of city officials and members of the gay community to help bring an end to the harassment. They will also deal with such matters as making the police and city publicly acknowledge that there is a problem of gays in the valley being harassed, and that it is no different than harassment that other oppressed groups have been receiving.

Unfortunately, the city has been moving slowly on the problem, and they have done their best to try and dilute the demands that were made by the gays at the meeting. The longer they delay, the worse the problem gets. Over the last several months, there have been a series of assaults on lesbians. The Womonfyre Bookstore and the New Alexandria Lesbian Library in Northampton have received numerous threats of violence. Other cases of harassment have escalated. Gays in the valley no longer feel safe.

The fires of homophobia have been burning brightly here in the valley. The Daily Hampshire Gazette has encouraged and promoted it by running several anti-gay letters on it's editorial page, and by running homophobic columns by syndicated columnist Joseph Sobran, a noted right-wing reactionary. Groups like SHUN and other homophobes have made the atmosphere ripe for violence.

Some may try to laugh off the death threats, as just some pranksters with a sick sense of humor having some fun. But it has gone beyond the joking stage, and has gotten very serious. Homophobia has been around for a long time. People who refuse to show tolerance for the gay lifestyle have long harassed or violently attacked gays. As an allegedly free and open society, we should be able to tolerate differences in lifestyles. The sad truth is that we do not, and time and time again we harm anyone who does not fit into our comfortable mindsets. If we are to live up to our heritage of freedom, we must speak up and take a stand against this and any infringements on our freedom. You may think that this is not important and that it does not affect you . . . but senseless violence to any of us, gay or straight, affects all of us.

Right now, gays in the valley are worried, not about whether the attacks will get worse but about what form the next attack will take. They are also angry over the lack of concern and sensitivity by Northampton to their problems. It may take something tragic to happen before any action is taken to put an end to the violence, but by then, it will be too late. Let's hope the harassment will stop before it gets to that point.

Randolph T. Holhut is a Collegian columnist

Mass drinkers sad over suds

Since the start of the Bottle Bill almost two months ago, beer wholesalers have been cleaning up in more ways than one. Beer prices have gone up $2.60 and more in some cases, plus a $1.50 deposit. Much of this is unnecessary and unfair, and thirteen wholesalers are being brought to court for it. For impoverished college students, this, the ultimate of injustices, must be rectified.

Josh Meyer

Earlier this week, Attorney General Francis X. Bellotti filed suit against the wholesalers charging them with price fixing, monopolization and violation of bottle deposit laws. Ten of these companies had formed the Container Recovery Inc., (CRInc.) in order to facilitate the collection and return of bottles and cans, using a collective approach, thus making it cheaper and more efficient. The suit alleges that this has not happened, and that they, in fact, have raised their prices higher than any other distributors. Apparently, the incorporated in order to "fix, raise, maintain and stabilize" the artificially high cost of beer in the state. Since CRInc.'s wholesalers sell 75 percent of the five million barrels of beer every year, it's easy to see how they could get away with it.

The distributors in CRInc. have unlawfully excluded all other competition in the collection and return business by threatening to cut off beer supplies to retailers dealing with any other company, and by delaying the deposit and handling payments to the companies competing with them for empties.

CRInc.'s logic is that by collecting all bottles and cans in one clean swoop, it will be faster and cheaper. Since the opposite has been the case, the Bellotti suit hopes that by introducing competition into the market, both the retailers and the consumers would benefit from lower prices. The monopoly that exists now enables them to charge whatever they want for beer, and for collecting the empties.

Local retailers all agree that CRInc. is raking in much more of a profit than anyone else, and much more than that which is reasonable. One area store owner, who asked to remain anonymous, said that a local distributor told him before the Bill passed that he expected to make money from it, and that it would "serve the consumers right." A spiteful move, no doubt, directed against all those loony environmentalists in the state.

Here is a breakdown of the price increases, and what they mean for consumers. Take the case of Budweiser, the unanimous pick of Valley package store owners as the number One pricegouger (distributed by Williams of Springfield). The price has increased from $2.65 to $3.30 a six-pack, plus $1.50 deposit per case. Multiply this by four, and you have $2.90 per case (including the extra 30 cents tacked on for the deposit of the case which they haven't justified yet). In a hearing earlier this week, CRInc estimated that the bottle bill cost them $1.00 per case — 48 cents to the retailer and 52 cents to the consumer for their handling charges). This leaves an added unjustified profit of $1.90 per case. Multiply this by the 70 million cases (10 million kegs) of beer sold annually, and you come up with an obscene amount, well over $100 million dollars. Add to this the approximately $10 million in uncollected deposits estimated for 1984 by Gov. Dukakis, and you can see why CRInc. hasn't been complaining about the Bottle Bill.

The suit that is in court now demands $700,000 in civil suit penalties, and unspecified damages to be repaid to the consumers of the state, estimated by Bellotti to be in the millions. This should be done right away, and the monopoly of CRInc. in collecting and returning bottles and cans should be smashed, in favor of non-profit redemption centers that are easily accessible to everyone. A bill initiated by Dukakis in the State House calls for a requirement mandating that all uncollected deposits be turned over to the State treasury. The railroading of students into paying exhorbitant, unnecessary prices for beer just because they voted for a cleaner environment, is one of the ultimate injustices of the year, and must be done away with.

Josh Meyer is a Collegian columnist

Letters

Food Services uses bad quote

To the Editor:

"The morals of our people (New Englanders) are much better; their manners are more polite and agreeable; they are purer English; our language is better, our persons are handsomer; our spirit is greater; our laws are wiser, our religion is superior, our education is better."

— John Adams, 1774)

The latter quote was printed on the front of a dining commons flyer advertising New England Night dinner.

If we as a people had made great progress in social maturity during the past 200 years the statement could have been seen as a quaint relic of our narrow-minded past. However, since chauvinism and xenophobia are still quite evident among members of the University community, the quote is insidious indeed. It serves to reinforce those base instincts which civilization attempts to control. Certainly, the University Food Services has no place encouraging such provincial attitudes. I hope that those responsible for the flyer will be more thoughtful in the future.

Everett Harman
Amherst

UMass Nursing alive and well

To the Editor:

Recently at the Blue Wall I struck up a conversation with someone and naturally we discussed majors, after expressing mine being nursing I received responses such as: "Oh, I didn't realize UMass had a nursing program," and "I thought that school died out years ago!"

Yes, there is a nursing program at UMass/Amherst, it's accredited, a member of the Massachusetts Board of Registered Nurses, and the National League of Nursing.

Personally, I'm speaking from a "generic" point of view, but on a whole the students of the nursing program here are a group of individuals with a wide range of backgrounds and interests.

The Nursing program here at UMass is based upon the study of human life. Nursing students are enrolled in diverse, competitive, and challenging courses on campus, additionally we are involved with contemporary health setting situations, we function as health professionals and participate in the "real" world. The end product of the program is a person with a well-rounded education, humanistically centered with a strong science background. True, the Nursing department only devotes two pages to the undergraduate course catalogue, but we do exist on campus.

Part of our success here at UMass, along with hardwork and sincere interest has prompted the reinstitution of the "Student Nurses Association" which promises to bring about many opportunities for students to become involved with faculty, and communicate on a national level with other nursing schools.

Deb Brown
Amherst

An old-timer reminisces...

To the Editor:

First, the Beatles.....now, M*A*S*H.....I am 24 years old, I guess it is time to get a job!

P.J.M. Mara
Westwood, MA
Amherst, MA
London, England
Blacksburg, VA
London, England (again)
Amherst, MA (again)

Letters Policy

All letters must be signed and include the writer's address and telephone number, which will not be published. Please type double spaced at 67 characters per line. Due to space limitations and the volume of mail, we regret we are unable to acknowledge unpublished letters. All letters are subject to editing for clarity and length.

SOME FACTS ABOUT YOUR FUTURE
AS AN AIR FORCE NURSE

There are many nursing positions which offer career fulfillment. Being an Air Force nurse can fulfill that need. There is also a lot more to life than work and Air Force nursing provides that something extra. In addition to your nursing uniform, you'll wear the uniform of an Air Force officer.

You'll have the prestige and responsibility of a leader with equal opportunity for advancement. You'll have the advantages of the Air Force's great way of life — 30 days of vacation with pay each year, medical and dental care, educational opportunity and recreational facilities. There are many more personal and financial rewards. If you qualify, you may compete for Air Force nursing specialties. Add the challenge, the responsibility and the opportunity of Air Force nursing to your future. Contact an Air Force nurse recruiter today for more information. Sandy Price

(203) 229-9641 collect calls excepted or Capt. Dasher
(413) 545-2437

AIR FORCE
A great way of life

New for Spring
V-Neck and Boat Neck
pastel sweat shirts

10.95
your choice

Assorted
Spring
Colors

Many other
New Spring Styles
available

Located in the Campus Center
Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4
UNIVERSITY STORE

AVIATION
OPPORTUNITIES

College graduates (BS/BA), or students within 18 months of graduation wanted to operate jets and prop aircraft. No experience required. Fully-paid training program. Also manage personnel and equipment in aviation environment. $18,300 to start. Over $30,000 in four years. Outstanding benefit package includes:

* 30 days paid vacation/year
* Free medical and dental
* Post-graduate education
* Family benefits

Positions require good health. 20/20 vision (some positions available with 20/20 correctable) U.S. citizen, age to 28½. International travel expected. For more information call collect Mon-Thu, 9 am -2 pm (518) 462-6119.

SPRING'S HERE
It's Time To Show Your Colors with UMass Imprinted
Shirts and Jerseys

Spring
Colors
and Styles
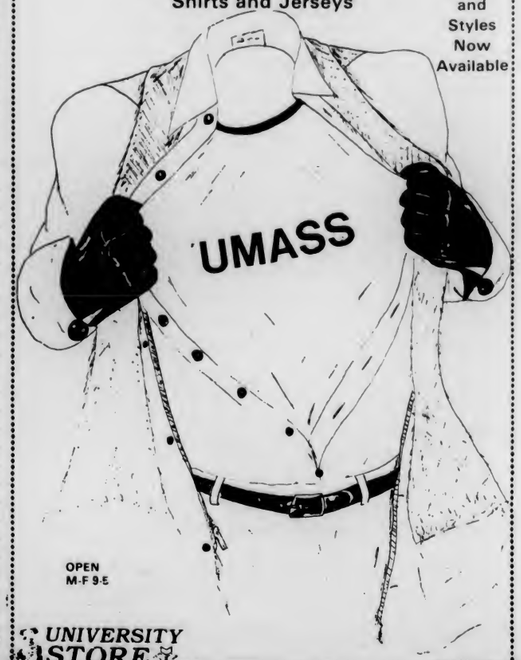
Now
Available



OPEN
M-F 9-5

UNIVERSITY STORE

Black Affairs

Arab student voices concerns on campus

By TRACEY ROBBINS
Collegian Correspondent

A member of the Organization of Arab Students (OAS), yesterday discussed the problems that the organization has had on campus since its formation last May.

Moustapha Osseyran, the founder of the UMass chapter started in the Boston based chapter of the OAS while studying in Boston.

The OAS, is a faction of a national group that first originated in the 1950's. Chapters of the organization exist on just about every campus in the United States and Canada.

"Chapters have been founded on campuses all across the country for the purpose of telling people the other side of the story of the Middle Eastern crisis, said Osseyran." "There are journalistic Zionists who have told the opposite side of the story for too many years."

"We founded the chapter to protect our rights, our views and to say what is important because the press does not accurately represent us," he said. "There are great difficulties in understanding the Middle East problem and we are hoping to establish a line of communication to inform the American public of our opinions."

The OAS is a member of the Recognized Students Organization. Through this campus connection, organized groups are assured support for any endeavor.

Osseyran said they have encountered difficulty in securing support from them. "We have had difficulty in getting rooms in the Campus Center for meetings and lectures. We have also felt opposition and pressure from several groups, such as Hillel," Osseyran said.

"What makes it harder is that Hillel has many allies on campus. So far many of the posters that we have hung announcing meetings have been ripped down. Whenever we have a speaker a picket line is formed to intimidate anyone who attends. They try to stop the things that we do," Osseyran said.

The OAS has found an uncooperative ear when they have approached the RSO and the Dean of Students. "I found one student tearing down a poster, I took him to the director of RSO," Osseyran said. "They refused to believe that this man could do such a thing. We then went to Dean Field, the Dean of Students, I have yet to receive any response from him."

"We have seen the Student Senate and former SGA President Jim Murphy, they all said they were powerless in the issue."

On February 25, the OAS filed an official suit with Dean Field. Osseyran feels that their complaint has not been heard.

"Field told us that no one likes the Arab students here on campus," he said. "I was surprised he said, "that just like the Ku Klux Klan was resented, so was our organization. I asked him to please not associate us with them. He also said that if we were to file this suit, we would gain even more unpopularity."

"I think though that if you press legal litigation, you should be notified. So far there has been no word."

The OAS tries to do many things to raise the political conscience on campus.

"Last semester we tried to do a lot of things on campus, yet at every turn we were stunted," said Osseyran. "There have been blockings in publicity,and letters of editorial that have not been printed."

"People drew swastikas on published material of Hillel and there were public accusations that we were behind it," he said. "No one took the time to ask us and whan we proved our innocence there was no public apology made."

"The discrimination on this campus runs rampant and there is no one willing to help stop it," said Osseyran Osseyran feels "Offended and horrified by the lack of support on this campus.

"UMass is supposed to be one of the most politically active schools in the country. I can only wonder where their motivations lie."

"Everyday there are stories of gays and lesbians in the paper. Everday, 25 to 30 people are killed at the hands of the Israeli soldiers. It is a sin that that is not considered news. What interests people is who sleeps with who."

"No one seems to care about the fact that last June when Israel invaded Lebanon and claimed the country as their territory, 18,000 people died," said Osseyran.

Pope's visit may shed light

By PAUL HETZNECKER
Special to Black Affairs

"The rich, the indifferent, unjust and complacent in their possessions must and should change..." These were the words of Pope John Paul II as he addressed the cheering crowd of over one half million people upon his arrival in El Salvador earlier this week.

The Pope's visit comes in the wake of recent guerrilla successes and a heated Congressional debate over Reagan's request for an additional $60 plus million in military aid to the tiny war-torn country.

The immediate political implications became apparent when provisional President Magana announced that elections would be held this year and that all parties would be welcome to participate. The FDR-FMLN guerrilla front has called for negotiations, something the right winged Salvadoran government and the Reagan administration would never agree to.

Although the Pope did not support the negotiations outright, his call for peace and a "dialogue" could be interpreted as implicit support for a negotiated settlement between the guerrillas and the government.

Even though the Pope's visit was brief the message he carried has a legacy that is one of the most significant factors underlying the changing political situation in Central America and throughout Latin America. The full impact of the Pontiff's visit here will not be clearly realized for some time but there is no doubt that it is an important chapter, possibly the climax for the Salvadorans, in the recent history of the changing role of the Catholic Church in Latin America.

In the last fifteen years liberation theology, as it has been termed, has redefined the role of the church. For the first time in history the alliance between the church, the ruling elite and the military has been broken.

Since the late sixties bishops began doing what many parish priests had been doing for years, condemning the poverty, injustice and repression that the Church had helped to maintain for centuries. With the support of the Church hierarchy priests became more outspoken in ththeir opposition to social injustice and the political and economic reasons for it.

El Salvador is a country in which liberation theology has strong roots, especially among the peasants. Two thirds of the population are peasants and of that two thirds, 90 percent have no land.

For decades the peasants have been forced off their communal lands to make room for large cotton, sugar, and coffee plantations. Any attempts at agrarian reform were labeled "communist inspired" and met with brutal repression by the landowners.

The Church took an active role in support of the peasants and found themselves accused of encouraging rebellion and instigating class warfare. The Church has served to educate the peasants and as one priest put it simply "that God has created all men equal, including priests, peasants, and landowners."

To the peasants the priest represents a moral force, one that unites and protects against injustice and repression, but it is the changing attitudes of the Church hierarchy which has frightened the ruling families and the military. "They may end up as martyrs but my priests are not going to leave El Salvador because they are with the people."

This statement of support by the Jesuit Superior General made a few years ago symbolizes the commitment the Church has made against social injustice in Latin America. A commitment that has the Reagan administration desperately accusing the priests of El Salvador of seeking to enhance Soviet influence in the region.

Conflict at WMUA is one step closer to being solved

By JENNIFER HARDY
Collegian Staff

In an interview with Michelle Murray and Lezlie Harrison of WMUA, Murray said, "No one owns time at the station, it is the property of the federal communications committee."

Murray, the program director for WMUA said that she did meet several times with the Assistant of the Third World Coordinator and the Assistant of the Women's Affairs Director to make up the master schedule for WMUA.

Murray said she talked to other organizations concerning the master schedule because BMCP was not the only group involved. Murray said that Concepto Latino and the Country Blues and Blue Grass also had say in the development of the master schedule of WMUA.

Murray said that Ken Johnston the previous Third World Coordinator was never at the station and that she didn't get along with him. That was why Lezlie Harrison was acting as Third World Coordinator.

Murray did say that she hadn't met with the Women Affair's Director because she hadn't seen her all semester. "If people are concerned about airtime they should come to me because I have to deal with more than one organization," said Murray.

Murray said that she has to make the master schedule for WMUA with the other organizations involved but the constitution states that the final analysis will fall upon her shoulder.

"A lot of people want to be on the air but to be on the air is not a right it is a privilege," said Murray.

"The people from BMCP toward the end of last semester weren't doing their shows," said Murray. Lezlie Harrison the acting Third World Coordinator then said that the shows were being done.

Murray said that during intersession the wake up slot and the grave yard slot weren't being done. She said that she was getting calls from people who said that the shows weren't on the air.

Harrison the acting Third World Coordinator at the time said she left a list of D.J.'s that would be able to fill the slots over intersession. Murray said she did look at a list of D.J.'s that could fill the slots but the people would not show up all the time.

Murray said that there is no set formula for who is going to get certain slots. "WMUA is a training ground for students and it can't be ignored," said Murray.

Murray said if a person puts in a lot of time at WMUA he or she deserves something. "I don't think it is fair for people who put in time not to have slots."

Murray said that it is true to a certain degree that BMCP is not doing its part in programming black music. "People doing the reggae shows are predominately white," said Murray. BMCP does not cover a wide range of Black music, said Murray. Murray said that BMCP could have the 10:00 p.m. to 2:00 a.m. slot on Sunday if it will program historical Black Classical music.

Harrison, the Director of BMCP said, she would like to see WMUA's constitution revised so that it states a minimum amount of hours for Third World programming. Murray said the only way to resolve the problems at this point is to have the constitution revised.

Photo by Chris Hardin

Saxophonist Rene McLean and his father Jackie will perform at the Cape Cod Lounge as part of the Solos and Duos concerts.

Cuban poet speaks for masses

By RHONDA SWAN
Collegian Staff

A celebrated Cuban poet and essayist Nancy Morejon presented a lecture entitled "Cuban Poetry Since the Revolution: A Focus on Nicolas Guillen," in the New Africa House Wednesday, March 9th.

Because of what Morejon referred to as "the principle of the matter," she chose to speak in Spanish rather than English, with the aid of an interpreter for the benefit of the non-Spanish speaking members of the audience.

Morejon feels that Nicolas Guillen, Cuba's national poet, has been a major proponent of the rich, cultural heritage of Cuba.

"Guillen's poetry expresses Cuba's national particularity," said Morejon. "It has enormous innovation that has contributed to Latin American poetry of the twentieth century."

Morejon believes Guillen's poetry has had such impact because he is a man of the people and his poetry is expressive of their culture and identity.

"Guillen identifies himself with the popular. His poetry has always been against the establishment and for the masses, particularly the Third World and minorities everywhere," said Morejon.

Previously in history, Cuba's culture was considered a "passive dependent of Spain." It was thought that Cuba consisted primarily of Creoles. However this is not the case.

"Cuba's culture is one of synthesis," said Morejon. "Cuba's population consist of blacks, whites, and mulattoes. It's culture has undergone a "hurricane of transculturation." Cuba has components of both Spanish and African heritages.

A major conquest that Morejon feels Guillen has been instrumental in bringing about through his poetry, is the "absolute recognition of African heritage in Cuba that couldn't be imagined in the beginning of the twentieth century."

Morejon feels that Guillen's poetry is "inclined towards an ideological struggle of the masses." The masses are in this case not just the people of Cuba but the oppressed people everywhere, specifically minorities. Morejon believes the struggle is one for freedom of expression and recognition and we should not rest until that goal has been attained.

Arts

Trailers By Andy Gordon

Magnum, P.I. fans, take notice. Tom Selleck will come bursting from the small box to blaze across the big screen in High Road to China early next month. The man with the bushy moustache plays one "Patrick O'Malley, a down-and-out ex-air ace with a fondness for other men's wives matched only by his contempt for the idle rich." Bess Armstrong also stars. It could become a classic.

In TRAILERS last semester I mentioned that Marilyn Chambers was shooting a soft-core feature called Up 'n Coming which would be rated R. Well, the film has been completed, the press stills are out and , guess what, the picture is not rated R and is by no means soft-core. My mistake. For the record, the film costars Lisa DeLeeuw, Cody Nicoll and "Long Ron" Jeremy and should be coming to porn theaters everywhere next month.

On the way from 20th Century Fox's new classics division is the screen version of Harold Pinter's Betrayal, which was directed by David Jones. The film stars Jeremy Irons, Patricia Hodge and Ben Kingsley. It is a love triangle and moves backwards in time over a period of nine years. As Pinter states, "the story is about the various different kinds of betrayal and of the impermanence of love. Word has it Kingsley is excellent in the film, which may increase his chances of winning a best actor Oscar for his role as Gandhi.

They're letting Michael Cimino direct another movie. "Hard to believe," as David Letterman would say. Cimino, the man who poured away 50 million dollars for Heaven's Gate, will make Footloose for Paramount. The picture will be a light musical with dramatic overtones.

Valley Girl and Deal Of the Century, directed by William Friedkin, have completed shooting and are now in post-production. More on these two films next week.

Local Best Bets: Fast Times at Ridgemont High will play tonight at Engineering East. It's very funny. The Rolling Stones' new movie opens today at the Mall. The Calvin has Frances, and starting Sunday at the Amherst Cinema will be showing a James Dean double feature of East of Eden and Rebel Without a Cause.

Tom Selleck as Pat O'Malley in High Road to China.

RUSSELL'S LIQUORS
18 Main St. Downtown Amherst 253-5441

Busch 12 oz lg necks.....$9.85 case + $1.50 dep
Schaefer 12 oz lg necks.....$8.50 case + $1.50 dep
Budweiser 12 oz cans.....$11.00 case + $1.20 dep
Rolling Rock 12 oz long necks.....$11.00 case + $1.50 dep
Ballantine Beer 16 oz cans..$2.10 6 pk $8.00 case + dep
Guiness Stout.....$3.35 4 pk + dep
Jameson Irish Whiskey all sizes at popular prices
Shop Early & Often for your St. Paddy's Day Cheers

★TODAY★ ★TODAY★ ★TODAY★
Union Video Center presents:
"Master Class by Bill Viola"
A Hands-on, participation workshop lead by Bill Viola at 2:00 pm in the Commuter Lounge
➞ Explore the techniques & thinking behind the creation of a video artwork
➞ Bring your own video tapes to review and analyze ➞ Participate in Psycho-physical exercises
➞ Participate in group-video projects
FREE
For more info call UVC: 545-1336
Sponsored by UMass Arts Council

Spirit Haus
WINES & LIQUORS
338 College Street

Tuborg Lt & Dk.....$2.70/6 pk.
Becks Lt & Dk.....$3.99/6 pk
Carling 12 oz exports.....$7.45/cse
Miller & Lite 12 oz loose bottles.....$10.95/cse
Bud 12 oz loose cans.....$10.95/cse
Foster Lager 25 oz can.....$1.55/ea

Plenty of Cold Draft Barrels On Hand
Prices don't include deposit.

Fleishmann's Whiskey 1.75 l.....$13.75
Jameson Irish Whiskey 750 ml.....$10.99
Piccala Coffee Liq. 750 ml.....$5.99
Crown Russe Vodka 100° 750 ml.....$5.19
Ron Rico Rum 750 ml.....$5.45
Cartier Blanc de Blanc 750 ml.....$1.99
Buena Vista Gamay Beaujolais 750 ml....$2.99

We Welcome Your Empty Btls & Cans
not responsible for typographical errors

rusty nail presents
Rt 47 Sunderland MA 665 4937
SPECIAL EVENING WITH THE GODFATHER OF SOUL
JAMES BROWN
THURSDAY, MARCH 17th
Doors Open 7 pm
Tickets:
$10.00 in advance
$12.50 at door
Available at
For the Record at Faces in Amherst

Arts

Snow melts the FAC

PHOEBE SNOW
Tuesday, March 8
Fine Arts Center

By CRIS SCHUSTER
Collegian Staff

She boogied. She teased. She astonished her audience by the incredible range of her voice. If there had been any glass on the stage as she performed, not doubt it would have shattered.

Phoebe Snow and her five member band performed their concert in style although Snow could have performed the entire show without a band. She is an extraordinary guitar player and just hearing her voice made the performance worthwhile. But with the band, the tempo and the spirit of the concert reached an incredible level.

Although Snow and her band have only been working together for two months, their timing and their combined vocal and musical talents worked beautifully together.

"People seem to love this combination of me with this band," she said at a press conference after the show. "The minute I heard them, I said 'this is it'." she was right.

The concert's best songs though were the mellow, low-beat songs written by Snow. "Drunk Driver," a song she recently wrote for a friend of hers, was the song where she really showed off her skills as a songwriter and the band showed off its skills in harmonizing.

Snow also performed a song she wrote for her deaf daughter Valerie Rose. "Whatever this songs means to you, you can have it," she told the audience. And it was clear to the audience that the song meant a great deal to her by the way she sang her love for her daughter and the expressions on her face.

There was no doubt that Phoebe Snow and her band are going places in the near future. If they were that good and worked that well Tuesday night after only two months of being together, who know's what will happen.

Hopefully, the band will learn that they should take more advantage of the band's singing talent. They don't have the renge that Snow has, but then again, very few people do. But the band is good at harmonizing and there just wasn't enough of that in the concert.

Photo by Hannah Hoocm

Phoebe Snow as she performed at the Fine Arts Center on Monday night.

This ain't no Mudd Club, no CBGB

ANN MAGNUSON
Tuesday, March 8
University Gallery

By DOUGLAS MUISE
Collegian Staff

The University Gallery is a far cry from the campy, quasi-esoteric ambience of the East Village's Club 57 (too much concrete, I think), and that's probably the major reason why Ann Magnuson's new wave cabaret didn't go over as well as I had hoped.

It seems to me that Magnuson's show would be much more ideally suited to a trendier night club setting, where an audience is accustomed to taking in pop-art aspirations with a grain of salt. I certainly wouldn't consider Magnuson an "artist" by any means, maybe an "entertainer" at best, and even then she's not all that convincing. And performing in an environment where one is used to patronizing serious art events, her pop culture parodies at times seemed down right silly.

The main gallery space was divided into four small adjoining stages, creating a square. Each of the stages faced a small inner pit in which all the members of the audience were supposed sit, crouch, scrunch, or whatever. Supposed is the key word here, for the area could only hold about twenty people at best. Everyone else was forced to sit around the perimeter of the stages, where most of Magnuson's presence was obstructed. Apparently, Magnuson (or maybe the University Gallery?) was expecting a marginal turn out.

Well, from what I could see from where I was sitting, each stage presented the audience with a different comic/artistic motif: the first was the living room of the Bible-belting host of a 700 club-esque "Tammy Faye Show," in what was supposed to be a parody piece. It was spoiled by an inadequate PA system, however. What actually transpired on the other three stages is anyone's guess. One stage presented us what I would judge to have been a spoof on the inanety of TV commercials, but I can't be sure.

Overall, I'd say a Magnuson and her troupe need a little more practice and a greater sense of professionalism before they hit the road again. It's really a shame that University Gallery's ambitious DO, DID, DONE series has to end on such a contrived and sourly pretentious note.

Malvolio (Jeff Rubin) reads a love letter he believes is from Olivia, in the Acting Company's production of Shakespeare's Twelfth Night to be performed at 8 p.m., Thursday, March 17, in the Fine Arts Center.

The genesis of rock

FOR THE FIRST TIME
ANYWHERE (MCA)
Buddy Holly

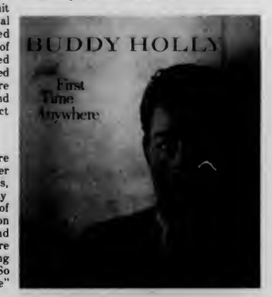
By DON NAREY
Collegian Correspondent

Twenty-four years after the death of this rock music legend, MCA executive, Steve Hoffman, discovered ten previously unreleased Buddy Holly recordings. The recently uncovered treasure presents some of Holly's earliest work, including prime examples of authentic rockabilly and allout rockers serving as testimony to the strength and influence of his music.

According to Hoffman, Holly acted as his own producer at these sessions, "to show Decca (his record company) exactly how he wanted his music to sound," before Norman Petty took over production, forming a relationship resulting in a string of hit singles. Included here are the original versions of "Bo Didley," Brown-Eyed Handsome Man," and "Maybe Baby," all of which were re-recorded with overdubbed vocal and musical background and released between '57 and '59. This however, is pure Buddy Holly, his concepts, production and arrangements creating a sound as distinct as it is timeless.

"Rock A-Bye Rock," one of Holly's more obscure songs, exhibits the awesome power of his voice while his group, the Crickets, provides classic guitar work that would lay the foundation for twenty-five years of popular music. He whoops and hollers on "I'm Gonna Set My Foot Down" and "Changing All Those Changes," two more hot numbers that could easily stand along side his better known standards like "It's So Easy," "That'll Be The Day," "Peggy Sue" and "Not Fade Away." The soft touch of his country influence can be felt on "It's Not My Fault," and "That's My Desire," but the arrangements are basic enough for his own simple style, the beginning of "pop," to reshape the musical texture.

There is a striking simplicity to this music. It's solid, brash, rock 'n roll in it's only true form, unadorned by crowded overdubs and flashy arrangements. The lyrics are conspicuously innocent of the socio-political sentiments that many modern songwriters think are so neccesary. Each instrument, including Holly's voice, stands out, distinctly carrying it's own weight, yet blends with the others as one pounding entity. That entity is the essence and the genesis of rock music. When it seems that we've heard it all in rock music, hearing what started it all is both refreshing and facinating. Hearing this, you'll understand why it's a sound that most definitely will "not fade away."



Parsons School of Design

offers intermediate to advanced courses for college students this summer in New York City.

Five weeks: June 27 to July 29, 1983

Drawing/Painting/Environmental Design/ Illustration/Communication Design/ Photography/Fashion Design/Fashion Illustration/Clay, Fiber, Metal Design.

Each 4-credit course meets Monday through Thursday, from 9:00 am to 4:00 pm, and includes intensive studio workshops, field trips, visits from guest lecturers, portfolio and career advisement.

For additional information on the courses, housing and registration, please return the coupon or call 212-741-8975.

1983 College Summer Session Brochure Request

Parsons School of Design
Office of Special Programs
66 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10011

Name

Address

City/State

Zip 20

Candy it ain't!

Mr. Boston Schnapps.

Look for Mr. Boston's two new cookbooks: the Cordial Cooking Guide and the Spirited Dessert Guide. Available at bookstores or through Warner Books, 75 Rockefeller Plaza. Special Sales Dept. B. New York, New York 10019.

Mr. Boston Schnapps. 54, 60, and 100 proof. Produced by Mr. Boston Distiller, Deerfield, IL 60015. Albany, GA. 1982

Hypercurricula...

Today

STUDY IN GREECE — A representative of "Study in Greece" will be on campus. Opportunities include semester and year programs in modern greek studies. Knowledge in modern greek language is not necessary. 11 a.m., International Programs Office, 239 Whitmore.

"MITSUYE AND NELLIE" — A film which concerns the experience of the early Chinese and Japanese immigrants in America. Also the life of Japanese in Internment camps. A discussion will be held after the film. 7 p.m., Anacanoa Center, Dwight House.

FFA HAYRIDE — There will be a hayride (or sleigh if snow) sponsored by the Collegiate FFA. Ride and refreshments. Bring a few friends. All welcome. 7 p.m., Meet at Campus Center circle.

ONEG SHABBAT/SERVICES — Jewish Grads, older undergrads, and working folk are offering an Oneg Shabbat/Services tonight at 121 Meadow St., Amherst. Bring desserts and musical instruments. Call 549-6582 for more info. 8 p.m.

SHABBAT SERVICES — Shabbat is a wonderful time to reflect on the week, receive and give lots of good energy, and be part of an expressive community, 5:30 p.m. Dukes room, Student Union.

Saturday

25 PLUS CLUB SWIM PARTY — Meet older students at Boyden Pool for a swim followed by "whatever." This 25 Plus Club is open to all part-time, full-time undergrads, grad students, and UWW students. Tel. 253-7814. 3 p.m., Boyden Pool.

Sunday

NEED A RIDE TO CHURCH? — The CHURCH BUS leaves at 9:30 from Prince House and stops at Hills North, Greenough, Grayson, Fraternity-Sorority Park, Cashin, and NOPE enroute to the Amherst churches. Call UCF, 545-2661, for more information. 9:30 a.m.

BRUNCH ON PRE-MARITAL SEX — "Judaism and Pre-Marital Sex: Two Views" will be the topic of this week's brunch. With Shifre Deren and Rabbi Louis Rieser. All welcome. Small fee for the brunch, but the Program is free. Noon Brunch, 12:45 program, Commonwealth Room, Student Union.

AMHERST AREA NEW TESTAMENT CHURCH — Come join us for our weekly meeting of worship, praise, fellowship and teaching from the Bible. 3:30 p.m., Campus Center.

SPIRITUAL DIRECTION & SUPPORT GROUP — A group for men and women willing to examine different forms of spirituality and how it can be reflected positively in one's life. 7 p.m., 428 Student Union.

"Hypercurricula," a listing of events held at the University of Massachusetts and surrounding area, is published daily in the Collegian. Events are listed only on the day they are taking place. Announcements must be submitted on "Hypercurricula" forms available in the Collegian offices, 113 Campus Center, and returned to the office by 3 p.m. the Friday before the event. All submissions should be written in a similar style as they appear in the paper.

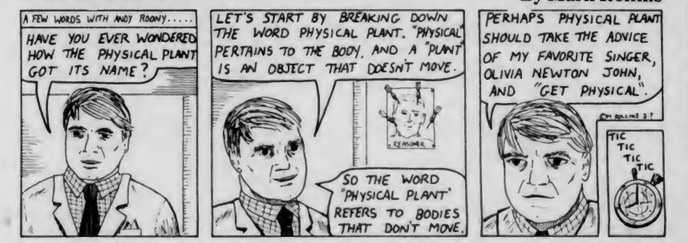
Ashes

A Play by David Rudkin
Frank Prentice Rand Theater
University of Massachusetts Fine Arts Center
March 9-12, 1983, 8:00 pm
Reservations: 545-3511

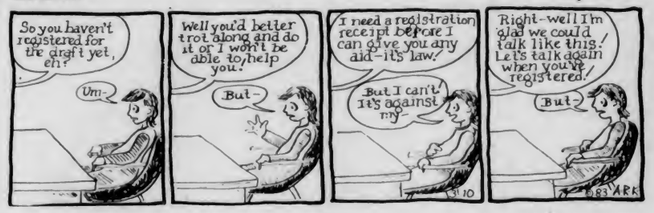
YOU CAN STILL SUBSCRIBE TO ALL THREE RAND THEATRE PRODUCTIONS
ASHES, THE COMEDY OF ERRORS, AND COMPANY

Bloom County — By Berke Breathed

The UMass Zone — By Mark Rollins



Katfood — By ARK



Scrod — By Dan DeBellis

After the Fall — By R. Miller

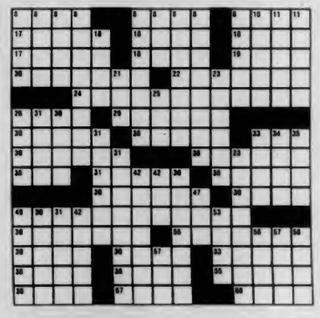
CROSSWORD

Edited by Margaret Farrar and Trude Jaffe

©1983 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

ACROSS
1 Heroic verse
5 Used in brewing
9 Ocean-going vessel, 1492
13 Sea salvage
15 Winged
16 Distinctive periods
17 French school
18 Down: Prefix
19 British expression of disbelief
20 Xylophone's relative
22 Intrinsic property
24 Etiquette, in a way
26 Hokkaido people
29 —— the neck
30 Milan's La ——
32 Early Hebrew leader
33 Three, Italian style
36 Risk
38 Mend
40 New Haven name
41 Trigonometric function: Abbr.
45 Feet for a poet
46 Certain rockets
48 —— majesty
49 Be a model of behavior
54 Exceed dietary limit
55 Decorator
59 Boat rope
60 Opulent
62 Gettysburg general
63 Harrow's rival
64 Greeting, in Soho
65 Quaking
66 Poet Teasdale
67 Forest ruminant
68 Forwarded

DOWN
1 Sch. level
2 So. American rodent
3 Stravinsky
4 Roman emperor (37-41)
5 Name in road-building
6 —— carte
7 Certain sails
8 Junkier
9 Beersheba's desert
10 Tabriz residents
11 Numbness: Prefix
12 TV's Grant
14 Verne captain
21 Mod music
23 Nisei child
25 —— degradable
26 Wimbledon star, 1975
27 Ending with cler or rad
28 Phenomenon of 1921
31 Secret
33 Lacking zip
34 Joshes
35 Gaelic
37 Worn, as a book
39 Lack of color
42 Measured by 60 degrees
43 Former queen of Spain
44 Medicinal compound
47 Saratoga or Vichy
49 Flatfish
50 Webber-Rice hit musical
51 Purport
52 Playing area
53 Pizarro's city
56 Broadcast procedure
57 Idyllic spot
58 Part of the overhead
61 Little one: Suffix



ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

WEATHER

Muddy. Rain continuing into the afternoon. Highs in the low 40s.

Yes!

The comics are back!

The Collegian editors, however, would appreciate response to the comic survey in yesterday's paper. We respect the opinions of our readers in regard to the newspaper, and the comic section is no exception.

STADIUM

UMass Amherst

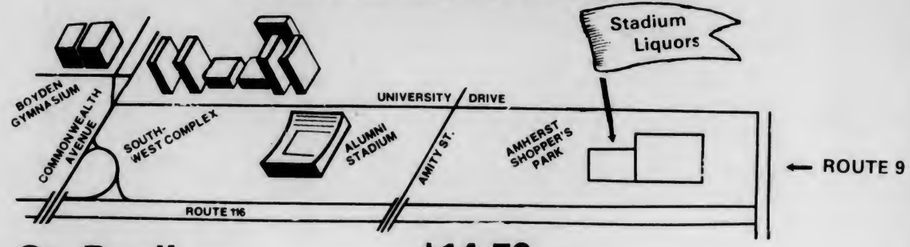
10 a.m. til 11 p.m.

LIQUORS

Kegs • Beer • Wine • Soda • Ice

University Drive, Amherst, Mass.

Just past UMass Stadium, from SW dorms



St. Pauli	$14.50	+ 1.50
Busch 12 oz cans	$9.95	+ 1.20
Miller 12 oz bottles	$9.95	+ 1.20
Lite 12 oz bottles	$9.95	+ 1.20
Carling 12 oz bottles	$6.95	+ 1.50
Budweiser 12 oz cans	$10.95	+ 1.20
O'Keefe 12 oz bottle	$12.95	+ 1.20
Old Milwaukee 12 pk cans	$4.30	+ .60
Paul Masson 1.5	$4.20
California Cellars 3 litres	$5.95
Gallo 1.5 L	$3.99
Tavola 1.5	$5.69
Cinzano Asti 750 ml	$6.99
Folonari 1.5	$3.99
Canadian Mist 1.75	$12.59
Black Velvet 1.75	$12.75
Popov Vodka 1.75	$9.95
Strogoff Vodka 1.75	$8.20
Gordon's Gin 1.75	$11.99
Gordon's Vodka 1.75	$9.95
Burnett Gin 1.75	$11.85

253-5595

not responsible for typographical errors

whole wheat PIZZA FACTORY

363 Main St. Amherst

SPORTS SPECIAL

Sat.-Sun. 11:30 am - 7:00 pm

LARGE PIZZA WITH 2 TOPPINGS

$5.99

Expires 3/31/83

Free, Fast Delivery in Amherst Area

HOURS:
MON.-THUR. 11:30 AM.-2:00 AM.
FRI.-SUN. 11:30-3:00 AM.

256-8587

CALL US FOR OUR DAILY SPECIALS

McEntee: a versatile star

By STEVE FITZ
Collegian Correspondent

Two-sport collegiate athletes are rarely heard of in today's society, where specialization of one sport has become popular. Most athletes have enough problems with the time needed for just one sport.

This is not the case for senior economics major Dave McEntee. McEntee has been able to participate in two college level sports in the past four years at the University of Massachusetts.

A three sport man in high school, McEntee competes on the varsity level in both wrestling and lacrosse at UMass.

Having wrestled only two years prior to college, McEntee, a 167-pounder, adjusted to college wrestling well and has finished in second place the past four years at the New England Championships.

This year he has fulfilled a long range goal, earning a wildcard berth to the NCAA Wrestling Tournament held in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma this week.

"I expected to win New England's this year, but hthere was some controversy in the championship match," said McEntee.

McEntee lost to Boston College's Jim Hanlin 5-4. The one point advantage came via riding time. McEntee lost to Hanlin in the final of the New England Championships last year by one point.

Only the first place winners in each division from the New England conference get to go to the Nationals, but there are also wildcard bids for outstanding second place finishers.

McEntee, one of six brothers, was pushed into the sport of wrestling by his older male siblings. He started wrestling in his senior year of high school in Huntington, New York. That year he posted a 24-2 record despite participating in both cross country and lacrosse.

When comparing high school and college wrestling McEntee feels collegiate participation is more demanding.

"It's tougher in college, you need a lot more endurance and there is no domination of weight classes because there is someone who can always beat you," he observed.

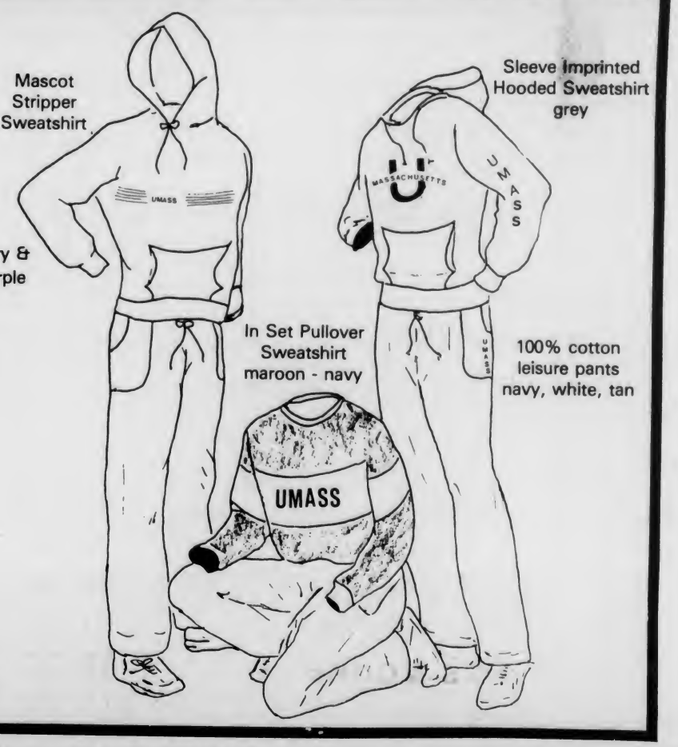
According to McEntee, he has matured as a wrestler since his freshman year at UMass.

"In my first two years I used to get behind a lot, now I'm wrestling more solid and don't have to rely on catching guys anymore," said McEntee.

Photo courtesy of Sports Information

Dave McEntee in action earlier in the wrestling season. McEntee doubles as a lacrosse player.

NEW FOR SPRING



Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4

UNIVERSITY STORE

The People's Gay Alliance
PRESENTS
A
Lesbian / Gay Dance
9 - 2 AM Saturday, March 12, 1983
$2 Admission
Music by Mother D Equipment by Audio Promedia
Lights by Dwelley
FOR MORE INFORMATION CALL THE PGA AT 5-0154

The
S.G.A. Escort Service
is now offering
2 credits
to it's volunteers
for more information contact:
Laura O'Shea or
Anne-Marie Maynard in
415 Student Union Building

YOUR LAST 2 YEARS OF COLLEGE COULD BE YOUR FIRST 2 YEARS OF MANAGEMENT.

The Army ROTC 2-year program trains you to become an officer for a modern organization – today's Army – which also includes the Army Reserve and Army National Guard.

An officer who is not only a leader of men, but a manager of money and materials as well.

That's why one of the things you'll learn in our 2-year program is management training skills.

Your training will start, the summer after your sophomore year, at a six-week Army ROTC Basic Camp.

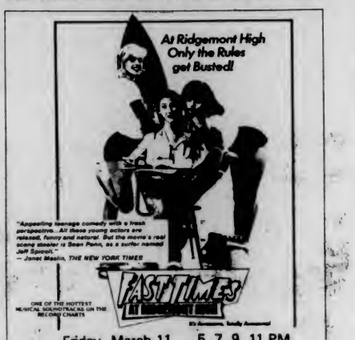
You'll earn over $400 for attending Basic Camp. And up to $1,000 for each of your last 2 years of Army ROTC.

But the biggest reward comes on graduation day. That's when you receive both a degree in your chosen major and a commission. And join the Army management team.

For more information, write

ARMY ROTC.
LEARN WHAT IT TAKES TO LEAD.

Contact
James C. Mahoney
545-2321/2322



Friday, March 11 5, 7, 9, 11 PM
Engin. East Aud. $1.50

UMASS SKI CLUB
GOES DOWN
TO
FT. LAUDERDALE

SPRING BREAK 83

8 Days 7 Nights Luxurious Hotel on the Strip

Hotel only	W/Motor Coach	W/Jet
$149 tax included	$275 tax included	$369 tax included

For more information 545-3437

LAST CHANCE
call 545-3437

The rusty nail presents

Fri. March 11: Robin Lane & Heartbreaker
Sat. March 12: NRBQ & The Whole Wheat Horns
Sun. March 13: Justin
Coming March 17: James Brown
tickets available at For the Record (Faces)

Rt. 47, Sunderland, MA 665-4937 You must be 18 to enter.

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Monday - Friday • Deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10 % • discount • Phone number FREE

ATTENTION ALL GREEKS

Don't forget to come to Alpha Chi Omega's Monte Carlo Night. Friday, March 11th, 8 pm - 1 am. Prizes, refreshments and fun! $3.00 donation at door all proceeds to Cystic Fibrosis

ATTENTION BOLTWOOD VOLUNTEERS

The seminars are Sundays 3/6 and 3/13 at 7 pm in the Commonwealth Room

AUDIO

• Stereo Earphones & Mini Speakers for all Walkman type players * just $10 pr * call now!! Mitch 549-4379

AUTO FOR SALE

67 VW Conv inspected needs work $400 or BO 323-5918 leave message

1973 Cutlass 4 dr 84000 miles stereo well maintained $1100 Ron 549-2656

1970 - Ford Torino - 45,000 original miles 425 or best offer - call 545-3500 before 5:00 - 549-4125 after 5:00 ask for Dan

1970 Cutlass too many options to list call for price 546-5610

For Sale 68 VW Bug engine runs good body needs work $200 665-3082 Jayne

BELLYGRAMS!!

Delivered by professional bellydancer for most unusual gift. Thereza, 253-7822

CAPE COD SUMMER RENTAL

West Yarmouth Seagull Beach duplex newly redone two bedrooms each side sleeps 4 includes all utilities 253-7436 $2550. Memorial Day thru Labor Day

CHICAGO?

Round trip ride to Chicago desperately needed for Spring Break. I'll gladly share expenses and driving. Call Cris at 546-8150 adter 9 p.m. or at 545-3500 from 2-9 p.m.

DAYTONA BEACH

Daytona Beach Spring Break $299. Round trip direct non-stop jet Boston-Daytona. 7 nights Ramada Inn on the beach. Free car rental. Departs Mar. 19. Call Saugus Travel 617-233-8192, 617-289-6221

ENTERTAINMENT

Rackadisc Entertainment Agency Inc. Bands and disc jockeys guaranteed student functions 256-0739

FOR RENT

Falmouth - 2 women wanted to share house 635 ea Amy 549-4169

Cape Cod Summer Seasonal Rentals: W. Yarmouth & Dennis; 1, 2, 3, & 4 bedroom units. Rent direct from owners & save. 617/528-8300 or 771-2233.

FOR SALE

Kinks Concert! 2 tickets March 31st Worcester Centrum good seats 546-4419

Stereo Equipment: Two complete systems many pieces - most still under warranty $1500 for everything or will split up Call Steve 549-5845

HELP WANTED

Alaska Jobs summer/year round, earn great money in this opportunity rich state, ie, earn $10,000-$12,000 on three month fishing boat. Send for 1983 Employer Listing and information packet covering all industries $5.00 Lental Reseach dept AA2114 satisfaction guaranteed

Cruise Ship Jobs! Great income potential, all occupations. For information call: 602-837-3401 ext 833

Performers needed for weeknight recreation programs (musicians, mime, etc.) Val 6-6623 Sandra 256-0501

Resident kitchen manager and accountant Butterfield Co-op Kitchen - fall of 83 and spring of 84 - manager 40 hours @ $4 per hour - accountant 7 hours @ 3.50 per hour - both with room & board information and applications at Butterfield Kitchen Office - Butterfield Dorm - applications due March 18

Researcher needed variety of assignments good writing skills essential good pay please call 549-4755 if interested.

— Seniors — Jobs are available mass market yourself with Operations Research International toll free 1-800-421-3217

Improv. Blues Pianist play mood music for theater production. Performances 4/19 - 4/23, sorry no money. Leave message with nama and phone for Iris at 545-3490

Earn extra money responsible students needed to conduct weight management clinic call Scott 256-6845

Cruise Ship Jobs! Great income potential, all occupations. For Information call: 602-837-3401 ext 833

LESBIAN & GAY

FREE trained Lesbiam and Gay Peer Counseling and Referral 433 SU 545-2645

LOST

Keys on blue-clip keyring with words Le Chateau 546-8161

Women's gray coat lost at the Pub on February 26. Please call 6-8367

MAURA'S 20

There's Maura ann dare igoe. Where'd she go? To the Bluewall. Why? Because today she turns 20! Happy Birthday Maura, you're a year closer to 25. That's when the nunery will except you. Aren't you psyched? It's awesoma fer sure. Have a good one!

NOTETAKERS

Notatakers needed: Comstu, Econ 311, Soc. apply SNPS 403 Student Union til 3/16 5 PM EOE

PERSONALS

Bya Bya Stu
one down and one to go.

Elise and other TBS Pledges - Get psyched for 2nd degree! Keep up the good job. Love and smiles Mary

A-TRAIN Thanks crew and riders - Tom & Charlene

Happy Birthday A.P.S. a day late from your friend A.P.S.

Kitchen help wanted work in exchange for meals for more info call Paul 549-3582

Janny thought a little thought for all of you who came to my rescue last week - you are my sweethearts of UMass Transit!! Thank you John, Jane, Vicki, Dave, and Belt. (He lives!) Love, JB PS I hope you are among the 82% who do and enjoy it!

Bun - Hope the next year and a half is as much fun as the first love Fake

To our Red Mother: Flyin', how's it H' in TTKA mothers, BKO sisters, Phi Mu sons, teamsters, come lan seyup, the pub, drug mothers, Blues Bros, cruise sisters, rumpless, little green men, still, Pete Moss, spaghetti sauce, I want muscles, swiss cheese, shots, bones, V & OJ at the Newman. Happy 21st, we love you! Your red sons. Swing Men-Nice!!!

Heres to 6 months of morning snuggles and midnight kises - I love you Stinky (aka Clambreath)

Happy Birthday Brian!
To the most wonderful and kind brother that I could ever ask for. . .
I love you very much, Susan

Happy Birthday Jenie to the gre-greatest roommate ever love Robyn Debbie Audrey

Amy, Sorry for missed time together. I'll make it up to you. I love you Adam

Hey Squito, Have a wild and wet 19th keep buzzing love, Ducks and Inc

Happy Birthday Linda!! Hope it's the best ever! Love, Tim

Otter
Take your time, think alot, think of everything you've got cause you will still be here tomorrow but your dreams may not! 1½ is a long time.
I love you, Tank

Weezy, Congratulations on "Landscape"! I knew you could do it. Best of luck love Martha

To the duo in 706 - Dickinson Thanks for all the laughs and happy times you gave us

Peter, Take my hand; I'm beside you all the way. I love you. Betty

D. M, Here's to our 2nd annual 3-day B-day Party weekend! Let's Get Off! Love, Lol

Lesbian/Gay Dance Saturday March 12 10th floor Campus Center 9-2 AM admission $2 for more info call The PGA at 5-0154

UMass Ski Club Goes Down
to
Fort Lauderdale Springbreak '83
Hotel $149 w/bus $275 w/jet $369
tax included no hidden costs

Last chance call 545-3437 now

Happy Birthday "T"! I Hope your last teen year is the best ever! Love, Bev

Hey Mark E. Happy Birthday early! And you thought I would forget? Love Rose

"CHARLIE"
I LOVE YOU, TOO!
PATTY

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Dissertations, Theses, Cases, Papers, guaranteed acceptance, low rates, Nancy 5-0392, 584-7924

RIDE NEEDED

Couple needs ride to Wash DC area 3/18 or 19 will share expenses! Flex on departure time. Call Kelley, 6-4207.

Ride needed: Maryland, DC, or Virginia Spring Break call Claudia 546-7240

Wantad: Ride to Philadelphia on 3/11 return - Sunday 3/13. Please keep trying. call 256-0195 will share expenses

Ride needed to Wash DC area 3/18 19 or 20 back 3/27 will share expenses Ingrid 256-0185

Anywhere in Canada for spring break Let's share expenses! Call Lori 546-6958

Ride needed to March 15 Hall and Oates Concert at Hartford Civic Center call either Jim at 546-7042 or Jon at 546-7050 will pay expenses

Ride needed to Wyoming after finals before 6/6. Must know soon! Ann 256-6056

Ride needed to D.C. for Spring Break will pay $ please call: Betsy 253-3794

RIDERS WANTED

To Fort Lauderdale Spring Break I'll supply free ride if you supply free lodging 546-5259

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female wanted for apartment in Cape Cod. $50 a week call 546-9617 or 546-9616

Two roommates needed to share a bedroom in a West Yarmouth duplex. Excellent location. call 549-1643

SERVICES

PAPER DUE? CAN'T WRITE? Tutor -english composition and grammar reasonable rates 6-9289

SUMMER JOBS

Country club in Millis Mass. now interviewing for pool director and lifeguards. Must be available 5/25/83 - 9/5/83 617-376-2978

SEND A FRIEND A GREEN CARNATION

Send a friend or someone special a green carnation for St. Patricks Day. Names will be printed in the Collegian for pick up. A table will be on Campus Center Concourse beginning TODAY till Wed before Spring Break. Surprise someone

THANKS

Thanks to the 38 members of the F-Troop who voted Jim Finkle for SGA Prez special thanks to the B-Team, 7-South and the BOC members. Also, thanks for a great victory party!

TO SUBLET

3 Badroom Apt. to sublet w/possible fall option 549-1377

Apt. in Squire Village $395 mth + utilities fall option call 665-2127

TRAVEL

UMass Ski Club goes north
Spring Break 83 March 20-25
Stowe. Ski club capital of the East. Only $159 includes: transportation, hot tub party, beer & wine parties, 5 day lift ticket, all taxes & gratuities & much, much, more. For more info contact the UMass Ski Club Rm 430A Student Union or call 545-3437

FLORIDA by van 3/19 - 27 $148 round trip wine/cheese accomodation info limited seats S.S. Van Lines 617-724-8810

Ride needed for two to Florida for spring break. Will share driving and expenses. call 665-7076 eves. please!

WANTED

Class rings, gold and silver jewelry and coins. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant, Amherst, 256-0710

Help $50 reward for helping me by your parents unwanted second car 253-7189

Cash for your records, tapes 545-2836 (ask for Jaromir/leave message)

Rida to JFK airport 3/18 by 11 am desperate call Karen 253-2169

WANTED TO RENT

2 or 3 bedroom Townhouse or Puffton to rent from June on. John 546-9139 Mike 546-9141

1 bedroom apartment for fall 1983 call Lori or Debbie 546-7701

$25 Reward for locating 2 bdr apt for two girls to share with 2 others for 83-84 546-1449, 546-5028

BARSELOTTI'S
Can Make You Happy
All Night For Only
25¢ AN INCH!
At Our Friday Happy Hour
from 5 - ?
Come And Check It Out
Amherst Center

家鄉園南湖
Hunan Garden Restaurant
"The Best Chinese Food"

BUFFET
Mon - Thurs
5 pm - 8 pm
Sunday Brunch
11:30 am - 3 pm
ALL YOU CAN EAT
$5.25 per person

MENU
Hot & Sour Soup
Beef with green pepper
Chicken Pan Fried Noodels
Sweet & Spur Chicken
Chinese Style BBQ Pork
Pan Fried Ravioli
Chicken Fingers

Luncheon Special & Take-Out Service
Full Cocktail Menu
Sun - Thurs 11:30 am - 10 pm
Fri & Sat 11:30 am - 11 pm
10 Belchertown Road
at Rte 9, Amherst
256-6252

Clearance
½ price
Leather pocketbooks shoulder bags assorted colors limited quantities
UNIVERSITY STORE

Sports

More Sports on Page 17

Gymnastics teams to compete in championships

Women shoot for top spot

By ELLEN RICHARD
Collegian Staff

Seven women's gymnastics teams will be competing on Saturday in the Atlantic 10 Championships at Rhode Island and University of Massachusetts coach Ken Anderson said it is possible for the women to place ahead of top ranked Penn State and West Virginia.

"I figure the worst we can do is third place and the best we can do is first place," Anderson said. "I feel West Virginia has only got a very slight edge and I think we could catch them. They're not that far away from us."

The Minutewomen ended their season with a 10-2 record and established the school record a week ago against Springfield when they scored 175.5 points. The team's average going into the championships is 172.5. West Virginia is averaging 173.3 and Penn State's season average is 175.6.

After having consistently scored in the low 170's in their last few meets, Anderson said it is possible for Massachusetts to win the meet.

"If the ladies can put together a real good performance ~~and just~~ do what they can do, they could give both of these teams an awful lot of pressure," Anderson said. "This is the peak time so they should be able to do it. I think they can do it."

This will be the first time for the Minutewomen in the Atlantic 10 Championships. Prior to this year the women were in the Massachusetts State Championships. UMass dropped out of the state championships because there was no competition in this area for them.

The University of Rhode Island, George Washington University, Temple and Rutgers are the other teams that will be competing on Saturday. The four events — vaulting, uneven bars, balance beam, floor exercises — will be going on continuously throughout the meet.

Beyond the championships will be the regionals in two weeks. The Minutewomen are ranked fifth in the region and could move up to third if they defeat Penn State and West Virginia tomorrow.

After regionals, Adnerson said Robin Low could have a chance at competing in the all-around at the Nationals. Her top score is a 36.2 and she needs to get a few more of those high scores at the championships and the Regionals to make it in.

Collegian photo by John Doucette

Freshman Sue Allen, above, performs an aerial walkover on the balance beam while below senior John Macurdy does his routine on the parallel bars.

Collegian photo by Tom Kudla

Men await busy weekend

By ELLEN RICHARD
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts men's gymnastics team will head to Springfield College today aiming for a second place finish at the Eastern Intercollegiate Gymnastics League Championships starting at 7:30 p.m.

The Minutemen ended their season last week by scoring 261.9 points and breaking the school record of 253.45. To come in second in the championships and third in the league, coach Roy Johnson said the team will have to have strong performances on the pommel horse, their weakest event.

"I think we can go high 250's," Johnsons said. "It's no totally out of the picture. They're ready to go 260. They just have to stay on the horse."

The championships will be the second one since 1979 for the Minutemen. This February the team went to the New England Intercollegiate Championships and UMass placed first in a field of 10 teams.

Bert Mathieson and Willy Stevens will be trying to get into both the individual finals on Saturday and in the all around competition on Friday. Each of them had their highest scores of the season against Springfield last weekend with a 53.85 for Mathieson and 54 points for Stevens.

"I'm hoping to see five guys make it to the finals," Johnson said. "That's our goal."

Johnson said he is hoping for Mathieson and Stevens to place in the all around and in the individual events. According to Johnsons, John McGonagle should place on the rings, and Tony Sbarra and John Macurdy should make it to the finals on Saturday. The top eight finishers in each event will qualify for the finals.

Johnson said Jim Corbett could have a chance at making it into the finals because of his clean routines in the floor exercises and the vaulting event. He could possibly place in the parallel bars event.

Besides UMass and Springfield, Southern Connecticut, Syracuse, Temple, East Stroudsburg, Army and Navy will be competing. UMass is in fifth place behind Stroudsburg, Army, Navy and undefeated Connecticut. Johnson said the team should have no problem beating Stroudsburg and Army, but Navy should be a tough competitor.

The team championships will start tonight at 7:30 p.m. in Blake Arena at Springfield College. The individual championship will be on Saturday at 1:30 p.m. The price is $2.00 for adults and $1.00 for students.

Two Minutewomen softball players to tryout for Pan-American team

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

Two University of Massachusetts softball players are among the elite in the East and the country. All-American's Jackie Gaw and Allyson Rioux have been selected to tryout for the United States team to play in this summer's Pan American games.

Other than Gaw and Rioux, only one other player on the East coast, South Carolina's Pat Dufficey, was chosen to tryout for the team.

The two UMass players sharpened their skills and gained valuable exposure playing for Raybestos, of Stamford, Connecticut, a famous women's softball team that has won 17 national championships in the last 25 years, including last summer's.

For Rioux, a second baseman on Raybestos, it was her fourth year, while last year was Gaw's first.

"It's good exposure and we play a lot of people from all over the country. We play the best competition," said Rioux.

For Gaw, a 1982 NCAA All-American catcher, last summer's tour with Raybestos helped her skills wise and "she got the exposure that you have to have," according to UMass softball coach Elaine Sortino.

Gaw, the starting designated hitter for Raybestos, proved that she could play with "the big girls."

Rioux, coming off a leg injury last spring, regained her top form and,was named to the All-Tourney team at the National tournament as a second baseman. It was the second time Rioux had made the All-American team.

Being on the summer All-American team was Rioux's ticket to tryouts, while seven NCAA All-Americans were taken and that was Gaw's ticket to go.

"Allyson and Jackie are money ballplayers," said Sortino.

The duo will get a chance to cash in their chips when they travel to the tryouts on June 3-10 at the National Sports Complex in Colorado Springs, Colorado.

The two will travel back out to Colorado Springs a few weeks later for the National Sports Festival with Raybestos. If they make the Pan Am team they will be in Venezuela in August.

But, all this will be after the Massachusetts softball season that starts up on March 19 in South Carolina. For Rioux, a junior, and Gaw, a senior, it will be a busy softball season.

UMass All-American Allyson Rioux (above) and All-American catcher Jackie Gaw are among the country's elite softball players. They have been asked to tryout for the Pan-Am team.

Officials say McLaughlin will resign today

By E.L. BIRK
and KEN BAZINET
Collegian Staff

Thomas M. McLaughlin, head coach of the men's basketball team at the University of Massachusetts will resign from his position today on the advice of his attorney Robert Woolf of Brookline, according to a UMass administrator.

UMass Athletic Director Frank McInerney said, following a conversation late last night with Woolf, that McLaughlin is expected to resign sometime early this week. Other sources have indicated that McLaughlin will resign following a 4 p.m. meeting today with team members. The location of that meeting is unknown.

"I am of the impression that Coach McLaughlin will be resigning," McInerney said. He added that the University has taken no position on McLaughlin's status.

McInerney said McLaughlin has initiated his own action to leave.

Several players last week said their relationship with McLaughlin has been hampered by a comnunications problem. Those same players and several UMass administrators also said they feel McLaughlin's strength is in his recruiting and not in his on-court coaching.

McLaughlin began his coaching career at UMass in March 1981 when he began to recruit his first class. McLaughlin was able to lure such talented basketball players as forward Horace Neysmith and guard Donald Russell his first year, and comprised a season record of 7-20. He was able to recruit a strong second class this season and persuaded high school All-American John Hempel to join the team, which earned a 9-20 record.

McLaughlin is a 1973 UMass graduate and played for three years with the Minutemen where he averaged 9.5 points a game.

Before his 1973 graduation, McLaughlin played three years of basketball with teams that featured names such as Julius Erving and Al Skinner. Following graduation he played and coached for two years in Switzerland before going to Stanford University as a recruiter and assistant coach. He moved on in 1979 to become assistant coach under "Digger" Phelps at Notre Dame.

Debbie McLaughlin, married to the coach, also graduated from UMass and is credited with giving birth to their son, Tommy John, on their bathroom floor during the April blizzard last year.

Their son's birth follows suit, among other events that have highlighted McLaughlin's flamboyant coaching career. McLaughlin devoted much of his time here to drumming up fan support. The controversial "40 Minute Gang" was one result of his efforts.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
Volume CXII, Issue 95 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003 (413) 545-3500 Monday, March 14, 1983

Collegian photo by Ann Lamery

Melodie Burns takes in the whole picture at Saturday's El Salvador rally on the Amherst Common.

Dukakis' tuition freeze will retain academic accessibility

By MICHAEL R. FLYNN
Collegian Correspondent

Governor Michael S. Dukakis recommended in his 1984 budget that the Board of Regents not increase tuition at any public college or university this year in an attempt to keep these institutions accessible to all people, said Stan Rosenberg, administrative aid to State Senator John W. Olver, D-Amherst.

"This tuition freeze has been implemented to allow a task force to develop a rational, sensible approach to standardize increases in tuition so we will not price ourselves out of the academic market and defeat the purpose of public universities," Rosenberg said.

For the first time in eight years, students at the University of Massachusetts will not face an increase in tuition, though "the required fees and the price of room and board will increase to help cover the cost," said Dean of Students William F. Field.

"This is not a political move by Dukakis at all," said Neil Harrington, administrative aid to Chancellor John B. Duff. "The Board of Regents decided that they do not need to increase tuition this year and the decision was dependent to the overall percentage of cost to educate a student.

"One thing many students don't realize is that the total cost of what a student pays for his education at the University is only about 24 percent of the total cost to educate that student," Harrington said.

"Public schools rely on a budget from the state, where private schools do not," he said.

"We can look at this freeze in terms of financial aid," said Art Jackson, director of the Financial Aid Office at UMass. "If we increase tuition then the need for financial aid increases with it.

"A tuition freeze is the best form of financial aid because it affects every student," he said.

"Massachusetts ranks 46 out of the 50 states in per capita dollars being spent on public education," said Jackson.

"This means that the University is receiving less funds per student than say, the University of New York, or the Universities of Michigan or Wisconsin."

"One of the major problems facing the University of Massachusetts is the intense competition for funds with Harvard University, Clark University, Boston University and Boston College," Jackson said.

"In comparison to these other universities the University of Massachusetts is a recent phenomenon," he continued. "Harvard is the flagship university of Massachusetts and every other university must compare themselves to them, and they've been around since 1659.

"In the Midwest, there isn't this type of competition. Their funds go to the big state universities without this intense competition," Jackson said.

"This freeze is a step in the right direction," he said. "It's an excellent start to help the university system draw more students and increase credibility."

"The image problem we have had over the last few years is changing," said Dave Taggart, director of Freshman Admissions. "We are now being perceived as a quality academic option.

"Our applicant pool for September is 16,000 people," he said, "a 20 percent increase of a year ago. Out-of-state applications are up 21 percent."

"We hope that in the future Gov. Dukakis will maintain a low tuition standard for the University and keep it accessible to students who can't afford to attend the high priced private schools," said Jackson.

Hampshire Trustees vote to cut nuke investment

By DAVID STERN
Five-College Correspondent

In an unprecedented move, the Hampshire College Board of Trustees voted Saturday to prohibit investing in corporations engaging in the production or sale of components and technologies for nuclear warheads.

The announcement was made at 1:30 p.m. by Chris Lyons, student Trustee, to some 50 students who had been meeting since 10 a.m. and waiting for the results of the Board's vote.

"They made a half-statement," said Debbie Knight, student member of the Task Force on Investment Responsibility in a telephone interview. "Yes they said we don't like warheads... but it lacks the moral conviction behind it."

Knight was referring to the fact the Board passed an amended version of the original proposal which had also prohibited investing in corporations selling and producing delivery systems for warheads.

Lyons said that he amended the original proposal because it would have been defeated.

"We're dissatisfied," said Matthew Goodman, echoing the feelings of many students at a meeting of the students and eight Trustees right after the vote, "because we feel... the real thrust of what we believe in has been ignored."

Referring to the delivery systems not addressed in the passed proposal, Goodman said, "We wanted the school to say, 'Yes, they are equally culpable.'"

"But it's a statement," said Knight, "and it's important... and it will spread."

The new guideline does not affect Hampshire's current investment portfolio, said Trustee Vanessa Gamble, adding that it is a guide for the future.

Concerning the Board's approval of the amended version, Trustee Cora Weiss said that "to expect more than that from a Board of Trustees that represents a fairly large part of the military industrial complex is too great."

Some Board members opposed the proposal because they felt it is an "improper channel for political expression," explained Trustee Richard Ullman, and that "institutions should not take stands" on political issues.

He added that this was "about as far as the institution can go."

The Board voted 9-6, with three abstentions, in favor of the investment proposal, according to Gamble.

The full Board's vote overruled the Finance Committee, which voted 4-3 against both the original and amended versions in favor of the proposal on Friday, according to Knight.

More than 100 students and faculty had marched in support of the proposal to Blair Hall, where the Finance Committee was meeting at 4 p.m. Earlier, the marchers had held a rally in Hampshire's Community Center.

In another policy decision, the Board agreed to let the Hampshire administration use its discretion in finding alternative sources of financial aid for non-registrants of the draft, according to Jim Matlack, executive assistant at Hampshire who attended the meeting.

Matlack said, however, that if it would cost the college any extra mnoney, then then the full Board would vote on it as a budget consideration.

Unidentified man dies from heart attack at PGA dance

By TAMI BORTON
Collegian Staff

A man died of a cardiac condition early yesterday morning at a dance sponsored by the Peoples Gay Alliance held in the University of Massachusetts Campus Center, according to a report from the Amherst Fire Department.

The man was pronounced dead on arrival at Cooley Dickenson Hospital according to UMass Police. He was identified as a white male, age 40 to 45, with blue eyes, according to witnesses at the scene.

Neither UMass Police or hospital staff would identify the man.

The man suffered what appeared to be a massive heart attack at 1:30 a.m., said a witness who wished to remain anonymous. Cardio Pulmonary resuscitation (CPR) was administered about a minute later by CPR instructors, who happened to be at the dance.

An ambulance from the Amherst Fire Department arrived on the scene twenty minutes later, said Dispatcher Richard Spates.

The bar stopped serving alcohol at 12:30 a.m. Jay Cohen, bartender, said. "We were out back cleaning up when security (for the dance) said someone was having a heart attack," he said. "They (security) called an ambulance."

"We went out front and started clearing people," Cohen said. "CPR was administered until the ambulance came."

A spokesperson from Cooley Dickenson Hospital did not disclose any information.

UMass police also did not comment any further on the matter.

"He was definitely over heated," the anonymous witness said, "and whoever he was dancing with wouldn't admit it."

The man fell on his face in the middle of the song "It's Raining Men," the witness said. "Obviously, the dance stopped."

"The crowd was unreal, they wouldn't move," the witness said. "They wouldn't let help through."

World and National News

Officials denounce selection of parade marshal

NEW YORK — The election of an 81-year-old retired insurance supervisor as grand marshal of the St. Patrick's Day Parade might seem an unlikely cause for controversy — but not when the man is a supporter of the Irish Republican Army.

Michael Flannery's outspoken support for the IRA has sparked debate among politicians, church leaders and editorial writers. It has caused dissension among other Irish-Americans who don't want to be identified with what they consider terrorism in Northern Ireland.

Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan and former Gov. Hugh Carey say they won't march as they traditionally do in Thursday's parade up Manhattan's Fifth Avenue.

Cardinal Terence Cooke, Roman Catholic archbishop of New York, said the parade in honor of the patron saint of Ireland traditionally has been a religious, cultural and family event. To make it pro-IRA was a "danger," he said.

The Irish government was the first to react to the near-unanimous selection of Flannery by the 492-member parade committee last month. It said all of its agencies, including Aer Lingus, the Irish airline, would boycott the march.

Its terse statement said Flannery "has an avowed personal involvement in sponsoring violence in Ireland."

Flannery was acquitted last November in federal court in Brooklyn of charges he conspired to smuggle weapons to the IRA. Defense lawyers had convinced the jury that any gun running had been sanctioned by the CIA and therefore was legal; the CIA denied any involvement.

Shortly after the Irish government's statement, Moynihan announced "with sorrow but without regret" that he would not march in "the big parade."

"I reject without qualification the violence of the provisional wing of the IRA, which does great disservice to the cause of Irish unity," he said.

He called on "concerned Americans to join in supporting a constitutional effort to ease tensions ... and end the division of the Irish people."

Carey, too, said he would not march. A former grand marshal himself, he said, "I don't think the parade should be led by anyone sympathetic to an organization that stands for terrorism."

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., joined in, saying organizers of the parade were "endorsing IRA violence in Northern Ireland."

The Archdiocese of New York pulled out of the parade four high schools that usually march, saying it "has assumed a political stance which seems to be overshadowing the cultural celebration."

Both New York Gov. Mario Cuomo and New York City Mayor Edward I. Koch plan to march in New York's parade. They said they denounce violence and terrorism, but would not allow pro-IRA sympathizers to "hijack" the parade from its purpose of honoring St. Patrick and the contributions of Irish-Americans to the United States.

AP Laserphoto

Noted Irish Republican Army supporter Michael Flannery, right, marches in Newark, N.J. St. Patrick's Day Parade yesterday. Next to Flannery in the line of march is the Rev. Kevin Flanagan of St. Claire's Church in Clifton, N.J.

Digest

By the Associated Press

Georgetown seeks secession from D.C.

WASHINGTON — Historic Georgetown, home of many of the wealthiest and most powerful people in the nation's capital, is talking about seceding from the District of Columbia.

For years, the 8,000 residents of Georgetown have been at odds with city officials, primarily over development plans for the small, picturesque neighborhood of tree-lined cobblestone streets, expensive townhouses and bustling retail shops.

City officials have accused Georgetown residents of standing in the way of progress in the name of historical preservation.

Rights of Canadian natives to be defined

OTTAWA — Canada, where many take pride in what they consider fair treatment of Indians and Eskimos, will start this week to work out a settlement of the native population's claims to self government, land and natural resources.

The Canadian constitution, enacted last April, affirmed the "existing" rights of a half-million or more naitves but said a special conference would have to define those rules.

100th anniversary of Marx death hailed

The general secretary of China's Communist Party yesterday hailed Karl Marx as the world's "most outstanding intellectual," while Moscow held a lukewarm commemoration of the 100th anniversary of the death of the Communist revolution's father.

In Marx's birthplace of Trier, West Germany, the philosopher was hailed as "one of the most important shapers of recent history."

Marx died 100 years ago today in London, after spending years hounded by poverty, illness and the death of several of his children.

St. Patty's Day spurs campaigning

BOSTON — They call it the St. Patrick's Day Celebration, and sometimes the Evacuation Day Parade, but one thing is sure: it brings all kinds of politicians to the enclave of South Boston for a bit of business and fun.

"We've got presidential candidates galore around here, and they're all looking for the Erie Pub," said Senate President William M. Bulger with an impish grin. "Let me tell you, Reagan has ruined the Erie Pub.

"With all that publicity, it isn't safe for even the city no-shows anymore." The kidding referred to the Dorchester tavern where President Reagan dropped in for an impromptu beer during a visit to Boston in January.

Mudslides, flooding continue in nation

A fresh Pacific storm doused soggy California with as much as 7 inches of rain, closing roads with dozens of mudslides and chasing some residents from their homes yesterday, while a departing New England snowstorm left snow a foot deep.

A Jekyll-and-Hyde winter beginning its last week also sent floodwaters from torrential rain and melting snow gushing through the gambling mecca of Reno, Nev., blocking some bridges and forcing the evacuation of 40 prisoners from a jail, while police went door-to-door warning residents of the danger.

Today's Staff

Night Editor — Rich Nangle
Copy Editor — Anne McCrory
Layout Technician — Jim Floyd
Photo Technician — Drew Ogier
Composition — Lauri Neely, Sam Levitt
Dave Rath, Mat Atkins, Matt Sajdak
Jim Finkle, Laurie Frank, Sue Koczela
Donna Maurice, Gail Tanzer, Sheryl Silver
James Shanahan, Brian Fitz Maurice, Adrianne Dufour

Subscription Rates

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday excluding vacations, exam periods, or holidays. Subscriptions are available for $18 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Massachusetts. Postmaster: Send address changes to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003.

ATTENTION

Basketball

Football Cheerleading Tryouts Boyden Gym

Sun	27th	4-8 PM	Organizational Meeting & Practice (first tryouts)
Mon	28th	8-11 PM
Tues	29th	8-11 PM
Wed	30th	8-11 PM
Thurs	31st	8-11 PM

Can't come on Sun, show Monday:
Any questions call Paula 545-0046

the SHOE BIN 187 n. pleasant st., amherst

450 rally to end U.S. intervention in El Salvador

Spirits not dampened by rain

By TRICIA YACOVONE
Collegian Staff

Despite rainy, windy, sleety weather, about 450 people gathered Saturday afternoon on the Amherst Town Common to demonstrate against the U.S. involvement in El Salvador.

The crowd, made up of elementary school age children, adults, workers and university students shouted "What do we want? U.S. out! When do we want it ? Now!" and carried signs which said "El Salvador is Spanish for Vietnam," and "Reaganism means Terrorism."

The larger group of 450 was previously split into two separate groups. One marched through Northampton, and the other through the University of Massachusetts campus and Amherst center. Peter Bohmer, of the Northampton Committee on Central America (NCOCA) began the march through UMass with an appeal to the marchers' spirits.

"We may not be large in numbers, but we'll make up for it in spirit. The only way we can stop this escalation is if people are in the streets. Our demonstration shows that we will not allow the people of El Salvador to be slaughtered," he said.

At 12:45, the marchers left the front of the Student Union chanting, "No draft, no war. U.S. out of El Salvador!", to march through campus, the Southwest Residential College, up Sunset Drive, Fearing Street, and North Pleasant Street to arrive at the Common to meet their counterparts from Northampton.

The keynote speaker at the rally, Margaret Lobenstine of Ware, a member of the NCOCA, made several references to the Vietnam conflict to her audience seated in the trees and gathered around the makeshift stage.

"Remember the last time the U.S. sent 'only advisers'...and how the army ruined Vietnam to 'save it for democracy,' " Lobenstine said.

As the conclusion of her speech, Lobenstine stressed, "Our money and our bodies cannot be used to defeat the goals of the FDR and FMLN. We say no!" The crowd exploded and chanted, "The people united will never be defeated!" as the rain and snow began to fall even harder on the brisk March afternoon.

At 2:45, Bohmer ended the water-logged rally by thanking the people for coming despite the weather, adding "The spirit of the people is greater than man's technology."

Bohmer said he was very pleased with the rally overall, but was a little disappointed with the turnout which had been almost three times greater two years ago.

At a meeting of the organizing groups which followed the rally, the spirit was high. A spokesperson from the Gay and Lesbian Activists summed up the prevailing sentiment well. "I thought it was great, especially because we only organized it in a week. The weather was the only uncooperative part, and the people staying really showed that the movement is strong."

Collegian photo by John Doucette

This youngster, who participated in Saturday's El Salvador rally in Amherst, is living proof that activists get an early start in the Pioneer Valley.

increase under new policy UMass parking ticket fines

By GLEN GOLDSTEIN
Collegian Staff

A new parking ticket policy going into effect could result in higher fines and the loss of drivers licenses for people who park at the University of Massachusetts.

"We're going to squeeze the students till they bleed," laughed one parking enforcement employee. "We're going to have a lot of fun with this policy."

Under the new policy, tickets not paid within 21 days will have a $5 surcharge added to them, said Larry Holmes, assistant director of parking enforcement at UMass.

UMass could have legally added a charge of up to $30 to the tickets, but chose the five dollar figure, Holmes said.

If the ticket remains unpaid another 21 days after the first surcharge, an additional $10 fine will be added.

At that time the Massachusetts Registry of Motor Vehicles will be notified. The parking violator will not be able to renew his drivers license or his vehicle registration in Massachusetts until the tickets are paid. Five dollars of that fine will go to the motor vehicle agency, Holmes said.

The Registry of Motor Vehicles will have records of parking tickets issued anywhere in Massachusetts. All tickets must be paid for violators to be cleared for renewal by the motor vehicle agency, Holmes said.

"People don't take the parking policy here seriously," Holmes said. The Parking Enforcement Office currently issues over 40,000 tickets a year, Holmes said.

"We think that we'll write fewer tickets when people realize that they have to pay them," Holmes said.

If a person accumulates five unpaid tickets for violations incurred on UMass property, he may now have his car towed, Holmes said.

An advertisement appearing in the Collegian last November notified students of the new policy, Holmes said. Students with outstanding tickets affected by the policy will receive letters soon, Holmes said.

As in the past, all the parking fines collected by the University will go to a student scholarship fund, Holmes said.

The new policy was approved by the Board of Trustees in December.

SGA escorts to receive credit

By THERESA GALVIN
Collegian Correspondent

Students now have an opportunity to earn two credits for participation in the newly revived Student Government Association Escort Service which is scheduled to resume Monday March 28.

Escorts must take one course, entitled Seminar in Civility: Awareness and Interpersonal Communication, which is offered by the Department of Human Services, according to Joanne Jones, a graduate student in the department.

"We were approached to offer the course under the Human Services division," she said. The department will insure reasonable and acceptable standards for credit.

"I will continue to work throughout the semester to make sure it's happening," Jones said.

According to Anne Maynard, co-coordinator of the program, escorts are required to "walk" two and one half hours each week and must attend six out of eight workshops to meet the mandatory requirements for academic credit. Public safety, rape awareness, and crisis intervention are topics which will be discussed in the workshops, she said.

All escorts are also required to attend a training session with the UMass Department of Public Safety, Maynard said. This training provides escorts with information necessary to deal with problems which may arise on campus, she said.

The escort routes connect the library and residential areas and go by the help phones on campus, according to Laura O'Shea, co-coordinator of the service. Students work in male/female pairs and are required to wear an escort photo I.D. with an up to date SGA Escort Service sticker. "We don't want people to feel threatened by the escorts," O'Shea said.

The service is sponsored by the SGA President's Office and is financed by the Chancellor's Office. It will be in operation Sunday through Thursday, from 7 p.m. to midnight, O'Shea said.

"We have been getting a good response. People are going out of their way to find out about the service," O'Shea said.

Smith cuts freshmen class to face enrollment decline

By ROBERT NOLAN
Collegian Correspondent

Refusing to lower acceptance standards as the nation faces a decline in college enrollment, Smith College cut its freshman class this fall by 10 percent as part of a new long range plan put into effect this semester.

"Between now and 1990 fewer people will be graduating from high school, and colleges will feel a decline in enrollment," said Marjorie Gove, assistant for News and Public Relations at Smith. "We're declining applicants now and preparing for the reduction in enrollment while we can still think the situation through."

The new Smith plan, which involves reducing the freshman class by 70, also includes expanding the number of older women in the Ada Comstock Scholars Program by 40 students and plans to recruit students from regions having less decline in population. "The plan is intended not to include fewer people, just fewer freshman, as the student body should remain constant," Gove said.

Also included in the Smith plan are considerations for a system of core requirements and changes in financial aid status concerning "the aid needs of students whose financial situation changes after enrollment at Smith," according to Gove.

Although Gove warned that "most studies show everyone will feel the decline in college enrollment", at least two other colleges in the area are not planning to make reductions at present.

"The University of Massachusetts is an entirely different type of institution as it contains a different socio-economic mix," said David Taggart, director of Freshman Admissions, who expects "a move from private to public colleges in the next three to five years."

Although UMass is ahead this year in enrollment, this situation may be temporary. "Enrollment at the University of Massachusetts will decline 37 percent by 1995," said Deirdre Ling, assistant chancellor, based on a study made by the Western Interstate Commission for Higher Education.

At Mount Holyoke College there are no plans to make enrollment cutbacks. "Classes will be held at the same level at this point in time," said Irma Rabbino, director of Public Relations. "We see no reason to cut back enrollment," she added.

Collegian photo by John Doucette

Amidst the myriad of University of Massachusetts structures the Chapel is often lost in the shuffle. But in this view from the Fine Arts Center it basks in the solo splendor of its glory.

Prisoner's release sought by campaign

By CHRIS SCHUSTER
Collegian Staff

The nationwide campaign by Amnesty International U.S.A. to obtain the release of five women "prisoners of conscience" has received local attention.

Christine Rioux, spokesperson for the Northampton chapter of Amnesty International, said the campaign, in honor of International Women's Day, had been underway for three weeks. More than 250 letters have been sent to appropriate foreign officials requesting the women's release.

"Amnesty International operates on an individual basis for writing letters. If enough letters are sent on behalf of enough people that says a lot. It means a lot," Rioux said.

The number of women prisoners of conscience is increasing due to more frequent participation in movements for social change and human rights, she said.

The five prisoners are Carolina Wiff Seplveda, a Chilean social worker who disappeared in 1975; Kongit Kebede, an official of an outlawed women's organization in Ethiopia who disappeared in 1980; Mampe Ntshingwa, a member of a group working to raise black consciousness in South Africa who has been held without charge since her arrest in May; Lu Hsir-Lieh, a Taiwanese lawyer and feminist sentenced to 12 years in prison following a Human Rights Day rally; and Hanna Vasilena Mykhaylenko, an advocate of Ukranian rights confined for an indefinite period of time in an psychiatric hospital.

Women's Week

MONDAY

The Women's Issues Team will meet at 6:30 p.m. in the Campus Center in room 801. There will be an Eating Disorders Workshop during the meeting. Everyone is welcome to attend.

Family Life and Women's Issues in Contemporary Poland will be discussed by Polish journalist Agnieska Wroblewska at 8 p.m. in Herter Hall room 231. There will be English translation for the speech.

TUESDAY

"Women in Development", is the topic of a panel discussion to be held at 1:30 p.m. in the Campus Center in room 804-8. The panel is part of a three-day conference on "Life in the Global Villlage."

The Committee for Equal Rights and Reproductive Freedom (CERRF) will meet at 6:30 p.m. in the Campus Center in room 804.

WEDNESDAY

"Personhood, Open-textured Concepts and Abortion" will be discussed by Professor Jay Garfield at 7:30 p.m. in Chapin 201 at Amherst College.

THURSDAY

The Anti-racism Team will meet at 4 p.m. in the Campus Center in room 801.

Le Boudoir
Intimate Fashions
INVITES ALL SORORITY WOMEN to SORORITY NIGHT
Tues. March 15, 6 to 9 p.m.
10% OFF ALL SILKS
The perfect touch for a romantic vacation.
Wine and Cheese will be served
Come Join Us!
Robes, fine lingerie, silks, loungewear, teddies, camisoles and tap pants, g-strings, crotchless underpants, garter belts and stockings and much more!
Carriage Shops (upper level)
233 N. Pleasant St., Amherst, 549-6915

ORGANIZATIONAL DEVELOPMENT STUDENT NETWORK
Are you interested in making organizations work more efficiently and effectively? Attend the ODSN introductory meeting at the School of Education.
Time: March 14, 1983 3 - 5 PM
Place: Rm 151 Hills South
Topics: Suggestions & Directions
A Graduate Student Organization

HIGHEST PRICES PAID
- FOR -
GOLD & SILVER
IN ALL FORMS
MANHAN JEWELLERS
3 PLEASANT ST. (CORNER OF MAIN)
NORTHAMPTON MA. 01060
(413) 584-7000

Come to a
Christian Science lecture
"Exploring the Realm of Divine Spirit"
Mon. March 14 at 7:30 pm
room 175 CC

Cards For
St. Patrick's Day
at
A.J. HASTINGS
Newsdealer and Stationer
45 S. Pleasant St., Amherst

St. Patrick's Day
High Notes
Green Hearts & Green Bouquets
Call 665-7664 VISA/MC

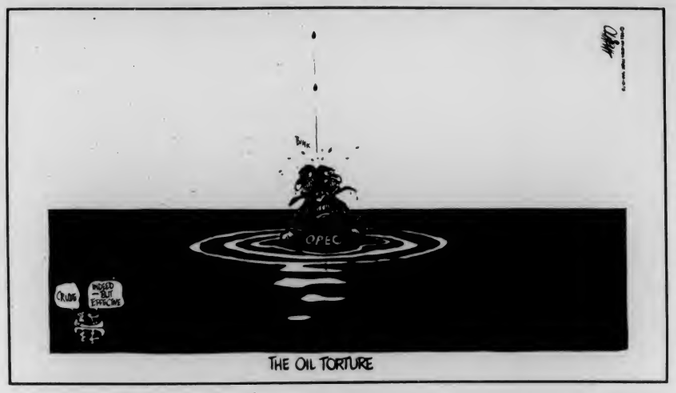
IMPROVE STUDY HABITS
IMPROVE SPORTS ABILITY
HYPNOSIS CAN HELP YOU MAKE IT PERMANENT
Many of our clients are doctor referrals.
OVERCOME ANXIETIES, FEARS & PHOBIAS
Lose Weight • Stop Smoking • Insomnia • Nail Biting
Self Confidence • Sexual Problems • Bed Wetting
HAMPSHIRE ETHICAL HYPNOSIS CENTER
Milton H. Askinoss, Member A.A.E.H.
Available Lecture Demonstrations
Call or Write for Free Brochure
The Farrick Building, Rte. 9, Hadley, Ma.
3/10 mile Hampshire Mall (next to Rocky's Hardware)
584-1919 by Appt. Only

FT. LAUDERDALE
from $218.00
round trip air only
SEATS STILL AVAILABLE
call
TRIPP ASSOCIATES, LTD.
584-3224

March at the
Fine Arts Center
Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra
Tuesday, March 15 8 pm
John Houseman's
THE ACTING COMPANY
ON TOUR FOR THE JOHN F. KENNEDY CENTER
"Twelfth Night" Wed., March 16 8 pm
"Tartuffe" Thurs., March 17 8 pm
TOKYO STRING QUARTET
Wednesday, March 30 8pm
Tickets On Sale Now
Box Office: Noon to 4 pm
(413)545 - 2511 Mastercard Visa Accepted
Fine Arts Center Concert Hall

SALE Spring Preview
Tank Tops 2.95 - 5.95
Chinese Cotton SHOES Selected Styles SAVE 30-40%
Bamboo Blinds Save 20%
SALE Winter Clearance
Save up to 40%
Blouses - Skirts - Dresses
100% cotton
Turtlenecks - 6.95
Open Daily 10 am - 5:30
THE MERCANTILE
AMHERST CARRIAGE SHOPS

EDITORIAL/OPINION



THE OIL TORTURE

Teaching new dogs some old tricks

On principle is it not the duty of an educational institution to promote and maintain an atmosphere of learning? Does this atmosphere have to take place in the classroom? Does it have to be confined to a single discipline, or it may cross many disciplines? Every semester the University offers approximately four thousand courses, in that myriad of course offerings that run from Computer Science to Econometrics to Leisure Studies — there is one course that is not given formal university credit. Why shouldn't the University grant us credit for our every day dealings with its cumbersome bureaucracy?

Chris Ferretti

Is this such an outlandish request? Just stand back a moment and consider hours, your credit hours that are spent over eight semesters learning to deal with the University bureaucracy.

The bureaucratic structure in some ways is not unlike the common cold, it is just as contagious and it is just as difficult to live with. Unlike a cold which can be cured in a week or two — bureaucracy never is cured. There are many kinds of bureaucracies on this campus which manifest themselves in such items as the preregistration procedure, in add/drop, scheduling problems, and even in those voluminous waiting lists for classes. These are important and do contribute to the learning process. Besides, bureaucracy is the one resource that the University never ever seems to be short of.

Waiting in line is prevalent on campus. Who can forget those registration lines for Rhetoric and Economics on the first day of classes? How about those concert ticket lines at Union Records and the Fine Arts Center? The food lines at the Dining Commons? Whitmore lines though, are the creme-de-la-creme, they are slower, more tedious and because of departmental compartmentalization — very, very frustrating; you have to wait in more than one line just to take care of one problem! Except money. The University loves your money, if nothing else, billing is the most efficient and streamlined process in Whitmore. Whether you are paying tuition or just lab fees, they have a great system: pay or else!

The University also loves forms. "Form-itis" is quite common, you fill out housing contracts in September, forms to declare a major in October, preregistration forms in November — not to mention, forms for add/drop, forms for pass/fail, and forms for retroactive drops. The new vogue in monetary supply economics involves calculating the velocity of the growth of the money supply. Whitmore can be gauged in this manner — by the velocity and growth of its paper supply.

Granting credit is the first problem, but it really isn't. The University grants credit in so many ways already why shouldn't we be given credit for taking advantage of yet another University resource?

Through Continuing Education you can at least receive a certificate if you pass Basic Bartending. The Physical Education Department is loaded with courses that can be taken for credit. If you are so inclined there is Bowling I and Golf II. If you are more athletically adapt there is G51, Frisbee. For that sophisticated streak in all of us there is Social Dance I and II. Finally, do not overlook all those one credit student taught collogues where you can get credit for both learning and teaching such fundamentals as how to tie fishing lures, or elementary bicycle repair.

The next concern is how the University could accredit bureaucratic training as an academic program. This can be solved by structuring it as a four year interdisciplinary course that is an ungraded pass for 6 credits. During the freshman year it could be entitled "Introduction to Communication Studies: 190A," the University faculty could dedicate the first two minutes of class to relate personal tips on surviving the University bureaucracy. One would then progress from the lecture phase to the analytic with "The Bureaucratic Mentality: 290A" when one becomes a sophomore. In the junior year comes stage one of the practical application phase, "Red Tape and the Individual: 390A." The last part of this phase occurs during the senior year — "Bureaucratic Management: 490A." This structure of instruction would not force on the University any additional cost and each student would be rewarded credit for being able to survive four years.

As my friend Mortimer observes — "Just dealing with Whitmore is an education in itself.' Yes, it is an education and as consumers of education we must demand more for our dollars — Why shouldn't we benefit from all the facilities that the University has to offer?

Chris Ferretti is a UMass student

Racism alive here at UMass

Racism is alive and ill on the UMass campus, whether we recognize it or not. Although racial tension might not be as bad or violent as it was a few years ago, there are many indications that racism still exists (racist graffiti can be just as emotionallly disturbing as violent attacks on people of color). Another form of racism is institutional racism, which can be even harder to fight.

Institutional racism, it has been suggested, is the product of many attitudes towards people of color, attitudes which are reflected and substantiated by rules and regulations of an organization. For example, using tests to determine academic promise designed by white people (such as SATs and IQ Tests), does little to recognize the historical experiences of people of color. Policies that use such culturally-biased tests (based on white, middle-class norms), as a means of admitting students to the university, are one form of institutional racism. Another example of institutional racism is the use of tracking systems which encourage people of color to seek training for non-professional, service-oriented fields.

Mindy Chateauvert

One reason why many whites fail to recognize racism in their communities is that they fail to see the more subtle situations under which racism flourishes. Racism appears not to be a problem when a community has a sound economy, a predominance of "liberal" attitudes, and a seemingly diverse and multi-racial population. However, racism often grows because of these precepts. When institutional racism is manifested in the lack of educational and material resources, jobs are often unavailable to people of color.

Even sound economies, in which people have jobs available to them, often mean that white men and women have opportunities for employment, but people of color are often faced with unemployment rates double, and even triple, those of whites. "Liberal" attitudes imply that people of color are able to become part of the predominant society; though, in practice, this is often not the case because of the institutional and personal racism which excludes them. Multi-racial communities do not make for an absence of racism: indeed, such only give the community the appearance of good will towards all. In such situations racism, flourishes.

The effects of racism can be felt by both those attuned to the situation and those ignorant of it. The effects of racism are made apparent when, in an academic setting, courses do not use the literature of people of color. Ignoring contributions to various fields of science and history made by people of color, undermine the worth of such research. Governing bodies composed solely of whites will also often implement policies that are discriminatory towards people of color. Hiring committees often use qualifications based on white standards of professionalism and/or fail to advertise positions in places that people of color frequent, or in journals directed at the Third World community. This fails to create an atmosphere in which people of color feel encouraged to apply for such jobs. When no people of color apply, and the committee makes the decision to hire (another) white employee, based on the above practices, the place of employment suffers from the effects of institutional racism. Racism becomes institutionalized when practices that discriminate against people of color become part of the norm.

Alleviating the effects of institutional racism can mean taking many different actions. Recognizing racism, in both its blatant and institutionalized forms, is only the first step. Real change involves a much bigger process. It means fighting the institution itself: through consciousness-raising, making the controlling bodies recognize their racism and racist policies, and changing such policies so that they do not exclude or have adverse effects on people of color. Confronting course instructors and asking them why they have not included books by people of color on their syllabi is one example of an action you can take. Raising the question of why there are people of color working in your office or place of employment and then taking action to ensure that affirmative action guidelines are used in the hiring process is another way of fighting institutional racism. These are just a few of the steps that anyone can take to combat racism.

Racism is flourishing on this campus because many people refuse to do anything about it. Whether or not you erase racist graffiti on the wall, or confront the people who help to keep racism institutionalized is a personal decision. Any action can be political; confronting racism when it occurs is a productive action. Letting it go by, without a thought or without taking action, will not help to eradicate racism.

Mindy Chateauvert is a UMass student

Letters

Cast your vote for rent control

To the Editor:

Now is the time for students to take a stand against the high cost of Amherst housing. During the last year, rents in our town have skyrocketed well above the inflation rate. For example, at properties owned by D. H. Jones, a major realtor, rents have increased by as much as 34 percent in the last eight months.

The vast majority of Amherst renters (students and non students) are of low to moderate income and they are spending much more than 35 percent (considered the norm) of their income towards rent. I am a year round tenant at Pufton Village (considered one of the best deals around) and spend half my income on rent. High rents in town affect on campus students as well. Dorm costs rise in proportion to the rents in town. And the landlords want more!

Approximately 60 landlords, including Jones, are organized and are running for town meeting. Their aim is to stop rent control and in the process assert their own anti-tenant interests (condo conversion) over the town. Rent control is a law which would require the major landlords to justify all increases in rent.

But students and community people are organized too. Many students are candidates in the upcoming town elections on April 5th. Issues such as rent control, continued funding of the P.V.T.A. (which is facing federal cuts) and adequate, affordable childcare are all important concerns to students that will be addressed in Town Meeting. We need to turn out the student vote to have the town take our concerns seriously.

The first step in this process is to register to vote IN AMHERST. You can do this on March 14 and 15 from 10-2 p.m. at the voter registration table in the Campus Center Concourse. The more students who register, the better our chances for electing candidates who support our concerns on April 5th. Let's prove that as students we are a political force to be reckoned with. REGISTER TO VOTE, THAT'S THE FIRST STEP.

Peter Brown
Commuter Area Government

WE NEED COLUMNISTS!

BLUE WALL
AND
Governor's Program Council Present
TONIGHT
"KILLER COMEDY NIGHT"
LENNY CLARKE
MIKE MOTO
KENNY ROGERSON
M.C. TERRY SLAGLE
Boston Comedy All-Stars
99¢

MONDAY
BACKGAMMON TOURNAMENT
$ CASH PRIZES $
- $2. entry includes free mug drawing -
- B.Y.O.B. (that's BOARD not beer!) -
Starts 9 pm EVERY MONDAY NIGHT
for info call Rich 665-7574
THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST

MAKE YOUR MARK
at OPERATION SONSHINE '83
DAYTONA BEACH, FLORIDA
Step into an adventure this spring break at Daytona Beach, Florida. Join thousands of other Christian students from around the country for an action-packed week at Operation Sonshine '83. You'll enjoy the sun and the beach.
But you'll also join thousands of other students who will have the exciting privilege of seeing lives changed. This spring Josh McDowell, NFL pros and other dynamic speakers will help you make your mark.
Send in this coupon for a brochure and registration form.
Sponsored by Campus Crusade for Christ International
Yes! Send me a brochure.
Name
Address
City
State ZIP
Mail to: Chris Ward, 613 JF Kennedy
Cynthia Muller B-7 Emerson
or call ( ) 546-7671 . 546-7236

GRADUATE TO GOLD...
AND DIAMONDS!
With a Diamond College Ring from ArtCarved.
THIS WEEK!
Your ArtCarved Representative is here now. With the beautifully affordable Designer Diamond Collection. An ArtCarved exclusive. Exquisitely crafted designs, all set with genuine diamonds in 10K or 14K gold. Or choose the elegant diamond-substitute Cubic Zirconia.
Let your ArtCarved Representative show you this beautiful class ring collection today. Gold and diamonds ... it's the only way to go!
ARTCARVED
UNIVERSITY STORE
14K KARAT GOLD
March 14, 15, 16 10-4 pm
DATE TIME PLACE Campus Center
Deposit Required. MasterCard or Visa Accepted.
Nothing else feels like real gold.

-WE PREVAIL-
the sale still goes on due to your continued support
LOW PRICES
can still GO down
8.98 Albums now 5.99
Master Records 8.98
WE AT UNION RECORDS WANT TO THANK YOU umass

Arts

Prim and proper

NOVEMBER GROUP
Friday, March 11
Blue Wall

By DOUGLAS MUISE
Collegian Staff

I didn't think I could ever look another synth-pop band again in the face without being overcome with a fit of intense giggles.

After all, 1982 was the year of the synthesizer, don't you know, and '83 looks — at least thus far — as if it's going to follow suit. The Human League, Flock of Seagulls, Soft Cell — which is to say nothing of the New Romantic swill (ah, remember "New Romance?") perpetrated by the likes of Spandau Ballet, OMD, and Visage — all of these outfits give us fashion-conscious pop that's mostly fizz, electronic bubble-gum which never disposes of the wrapper.

Ah, but my passion for that rectangular cabinet of hulking technology has been renewed. The glorious (objectivity out-the window, please), Boston-based November Group performed in the Blue Wall (let's hear it for B-Wall booking!) Friday night and this is how a synth band should sound:

Fronted by the inimitably hip Ann Prim (who does this woman's hair? — marvelous!) on guitar and lead vocals, Kearney Kirby on synthesizers (yup) and backing vocals, Don Foote on bass (and weird percussion things), and Alvin Long on drums — November Group exudes a glistening sheen of highly technical, intensely controlled pop proficiency. And you can dance to it too.

Kearney's synthesizers run rampant across the November Group sound surging and whoosing, romping about with measured intensity to provide a stark, mesmerizing dance-backing for Ann's deft guitar strokes.

But what makes November Group such an exceptional band is not the synthesizers, but Ann Prim: her vocals and just her stage presence. Ann projects an image of teutonic (yes) coolness in her singing, but it's a cool underscored with an equally impressive vein of humanism. She is an extraordinarily expressive performer, evoking more emotion with an economic, raised eye-brow gaze, than most rockers can exhort with an entire body.

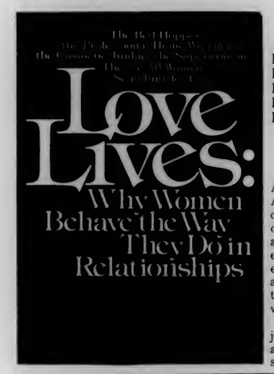
The band played a fairly longish set of highlights from their Friday night — "Pictures of the Homeland," a chunky version of "Shake It Off," and a rather limp rendition of the ever-popular "We Dance" — as well as several new songs such as "Up to the Champions" (?), and the sizzlingly sonic "I Live Alone." The crowd was unusally receptive (for a second or two, I thought I was at a Stompers show), visibly throbbing up and down to the furious NG beat.

November Group has come a long way since Ann and Kearney began their artsy dabblings in Wunderkind, their first band. As November Group, their first single, the eerie "We Dance," became an instant underground hit, earning them the prestigious "first band" position on the second Modern Method compilation album. And now, as a consolidated, viably artistic unit with a hit EP under their belts, November Group's success is undoubtably well-assured.

Though self-described as "politically oriented with a good dance beat," November Group's politics never seem to get in the way of their music, or the fun it inspires. Let's just hope that the Atlantics and the Stompers steer clear of the Blue Wall for a while. If this is politics, I want more!

Photo by John Doucette
Ann Prim of November Group: teutonic cool

Love Lives ridiculous and degrading



LOVE LIVES: WHY WOMEN BEHAVE THE WAY THEY DO IN RELATIONSHIPS
By Carol Botwin
Bantam, 273 pp., $3.50

By LAURA LAEMMLE
Collegian Correspondent

Attention women: Are you a Bed Hopper? A Martyr? A Bitch? A Home Wrecker? According to Carol Botwin's new book, if you don't fit into one of these categories, there are forty-six other chapters describing equally negative "types" of women. Inevitably you will be able to find yourself in at least one. These are supposedly the "fifty basic types" of women, and "every woman you know is in this book."

I formed a bad attitude about this book just by reading the names of the chapters and the back cover which, promises to show you:

-The sixteen things women do wrong in relationships.
-What men complain about most when it comes to the women they know.

The 270 pages are devoted to the importance women place on relationships with men and the problems these women cause due to insecurities and personality flaws. The four page chapter "The Well Adjusted Woman" is not among the fifty chapters outlining the "basic types" of women.

Men are portrayed as helpless partners whose actions are the result of the terrible things that women do. At times, Botwin has a realistic and liberal understanding of women. However, Love Lives reminded me of Maribel Morgan's The Total Woman, a book which devotes itself to the idea that women are responsible for making a relationship a good one, despite whether or not their partner will help them attain that goal.

Fortunately, Love Lives does not give such ridiculous, degrading advice. However, I don't feel that the advice she does give can be that helpful. She devotes pages to each type of woman but only a paragraph for how each can help herself.

Although some may find Love Lives interesting, and may actually see parts of themselves in the various portraits, it is basically degrading and tries to fit women into categories. Men, on the other hand, are portrayed as patient and smart, although helpless, bystanders to women's neuroses. If you have a positive self image and are aware that, although you may not be perfect, you are an individual with unique qualities you may find the book thought-provoking.

Love Lives does provide some insights into sex roles in our society and may be helpful in that respect. However, as a self-help book I feel that most women would be better off without it.

UPC PRODUCTIONS
Come celebrate St. Patty's Day cause. . .
We're havin' a party...!
with
SOUTHSIDE JOHNNY
and the
ASBURY JUKES
SAINT PATTY'S DAY
MARCH 17
STUDENT UNION BALLROOM
8:00
TICKETS AVAILABLE AT:
• TIX UNLIMITED
• UNION RECORDS UNLIMITED
• FINE ARTS CENTER
• FOR THE RECORD

ADAM ANT
SPRINGFIELD CIVIC CENTER
Limited Capacity "Little Arena"
April 13th-8:00pm
All seats reserved-$9.50
On sale at Springfield Civic Center Box Office, all Stop & Shop "Datatix" Outlets, Platterpus Records — Northampton and Westfield, For the Record — Amherst, Record Town — Ingleside Mall and Music World — Enfield.
Mastercard and Visa phone-charge (413) 787-6600
Charge tickets or pay by check TOLL-FREE 1-800-243-4842
TICKET SALES BEGIN WEDNESDAY, MARCH 16th!
Event co-ordinated by OVATION ENTERTAINMENT

THIS WEEKS SPECIAL

$1.91 Noxzema 10 oz.

$1.01 Reg. 1.64 Stridex Pads 42's

$1.35 Reg. 1.87 Visine ½ oz.

$2.11 Reg. 2.89 Boil & Soak 12 oz.

$2.41 Dry Idea 2.5 oz. Reg. and Unscented

Aim FLUORIDE $1.40 Aim 6.4 oz. Reg. or Mint

$1.48 Reg. 2.31 Enhance Shampoo or Conditioner Norm. or Dry

$1.36 Vidal Sassoon Hair Brush

All sale items also available at the Mini Store located in the Student Union
Located in the Campus Center
Open M-F 9-5 Sat. 11-4
UNIVERSITY STORE

SOME FACTS ABOUT YOUR FUTURE AS AN AIR FORCE NURSE

There are many nursing positions which offer career fulfillment. Being an Air Force nurse can fulfill that need. There is also a lot more to life than work and Air Force nursing provides that something extra. In addition to your nursing uniform, you'll wear the uniform of an Air Force officer. You'll have the prestige and responsibility of a leader with equal opportunity for advancement. You'll have the advantages of the Air Force's great way of life — 30 days of vacation with pay each year, medical and dental care, educational opportunity and recreational facilities. There are many more personal and financial rewards. If you qualify, you may compete for Air Force nursing specialties. Add the challenge, the responsibility and the opportunity of Air Force nursing to your future. Contact an Air Force nurse recruiter today for more information. —Sandy Price—

(203) 229-9641 collect calls excepted or Capt. Dasher
(413) 545-2437

AIR FORCE
A great way of life

Hypercurricula...

MARTIN LUTHER KING PLANNING COMMITTEE — Martin Luther King planning committee will meet to judge posters and discuss plans for MLK week, 5:30 p.m., 804 Campus Center.

MEETING: HOTEL SALES MANAGEMENT ASSOCIATION — Spring break sales blitzes and elections will be discussed. Attendance mandatory for all those involved with blitzes and/or elections, 6 p.m., Flint 105.

MEMORIAL VIGIL FOR EMIL GRUNZWEIG — A vigil will be held in memory of Emil Grunzweig, an Israeli Peace Now activist who was killed in an anti Begin government rally one month ago today. This vigil will be occuring simultaneously at 43 other campuses and in Israel, 1 p.m., Campus Center 802.

LIFE IN THE GLOBAL VILLAGE — Opening session of conference on world development issues. Speakers: Chancellor Duffey, Mr. A.M. Babu, Amherst College, 3 p.m., Campus Center 163C.

UMASS HUNGER TASK FORCE MEETING — "Corporate Influence on the World Food Situation" is today's topic for discussion facilitated by Nancy and Bud Stockford. All are welcome, 4 p.m., 428 Student Union.

DRAFT REGISTRATION COUNSELLING — Have you been debating about whether to register for the draft? Counsellors will be available to answer your questions and discuss legal and moral issues. Call 545-3429, 10 a.m. to 12 p.m., Student Union room 406G.

VOTER REGISTRATION — Register to vote in Amherst for upcoming town elections. Help elect pro-student candidates who support rent control, child care, and other student issues, 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., Campus Center Concourse.

BUMP AND JUMP TOURNAMENT — Try to win a free four day trip to Daytona Beach this spring break. Play the newest in video games, "Bump n Jump." Tournament hours are 12-3:30 p.m. today and tomorrow. Sponsored by Undergraduate Business Club, in front of the Hatch.

OPEN HILLEL PLANNING MEETING — Help plan for Israel Independence day. Everyone is welcome. Vote for Hillel Council today anbd tomorrow, 6 p.m., Dukes Room, Student Union 310.

WOMAN'S ISSUES TEAM — There will be a meeting held Monday evening at 6:30. A workshop will be conducted on "Eating Disorders." Everyone is welcome to attend, 6:30 p.m., 801 Campus Center.

FOOD SCIENCE CLUB MEETING — It's time to get started. Come plan for annual dinner and semester's activities. Refreshments will be served. All Food Science majors encouraged to join us, 6:30 p.m., Chenoweth 227.

ARMENIAN STUDENTS ORGANIZATION MEETING — Important meeting. New members welcome., 7 p.m., Brett basement.

"SOVIET THEATRE OFF-OFF RED SQUARE — Slide lecture by Prof. Alma Law (of Columbia University and CUNY) foremost U.S. specialist on Soviet Theatre, translator of numerous contemporary Soviet plays. Lecture in English, 7:30 p.m., Herter 301.

A CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LECTURE — entitled "Exploring The Realm of Divine Spirit" given by Jack Hubbell, C.S.B. member of the Christian Science Board of lecturership, 7:30 p.m., room 175 Campus Center.

MASS PIB MEN'S BIBLE STUDY — All men are invited to come and study with us in an informal setting the life and teachings of Jesus Christ as described in the Bible, 8 p.m., Campus Center room 901.

FAMILY LIFE AND WOMEN'S ISSUES IN CONTEMPORARY POLAND — Talk (in Polish with English translation) by journalist Agnieszka Wrobiewska, 25 years experience as journalist in Poland. Topics will include social policy, the state as protector: what was promised and what resulted, whether socialism has made people happy, 8 p.m., Herter 231.

AASA BUDGET MEETING WITH SGA — We will need members to be present at our budget meeting with the SGA. Check the Campus Center daily schedule under the heading "SGA" for room number, 8:30 p.m.

BACKGAMMON TOURNAMENT — The Amherst Backgammon Club presents its weekly Monday nighty tournament. Cash prizes, free mug drawing, and only $2 entry. All welcome, including minors, 9 p.m. The Pub, 15 E. Pleasant St., Amherst.

Pre-Law
Summer College Institute

May 31–July 9, 1983

Are you considering law school? Experience a case analysis, legal method, legal research and writing course taught by law professors and librarians.

- Two Sections—Saturdays or Monday and Wednesday evenings
- Three-credit course—$435 Housing and meal plan are available

University of Bridgeport Law Center
Division of Continuing Legal Education
Bridgeport, CT 06601 (203) 576-4641

Please forward program material for the Pre-Law Summer College Institute
Name: _____
Address: _____
City: _____ State: _____ Zip: _____
Telephone: (INCLUDE AREA CODE) _____

Bloom County

By Berke Breathed

The UMass Zone

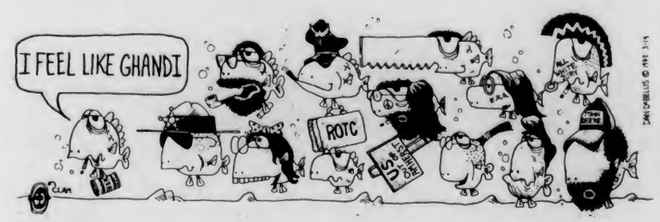
By Mark Rollins

Katfood

By ARK

Scrod

By Dan DeBellis



After the Fall

By R. Miller

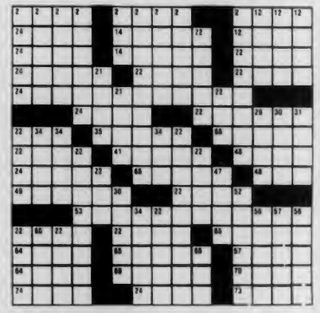
CROSSWORD

Edited by Margaret Farrar and Trude Jaffe

©1983 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

ACROSS
1 Stylish
5 Mild oath
9 Cease
13 Biblical word of reproach
14 Stories
16 Greek letter
17 Cupid
18 Soap substitute
19 Smile
20 Try
22 Speck of dust
23 Hodgepodge
24 Honorary society for scholars
27 Gelling agent
28 Clandestine
32 Spring mo.
35 Hold
38 Greek letter
39 Crustacean
41 Pancake topping
43 Concerning
44 Primitive symbol
46 Bernhardt
48 — Aviv
49 Flash floods
51 Dash
53 Like phone book listings
59 Playbill offering
62 Den
63 Form ar Italian mon itary units
64 Hav ng wings
65 Norwegian playwright
67 Short jacket
68 Colophone, e.g.
69 Diacritical mark
70 Money, in Milan
71 Nasty
72 Examination
73 Desires

DOWN
1 Move stealthily
2 Rough
3 Twenty: Comb. form
4 Melon
5 Greek letter
6 Electromagnetic radiations
7 Take — (examine)
8 Greek letter
9 "The Sweetheart of —"
10 Ripped
11 Elevator men
12 Moves, as a TV camera
15 Oozes
21 Safecracker
25 "Pinafore" roles
26 Rover, for one
29 Lease
30 To be: Fr.
31 East Asian weight
32 Deeds
33 Support
34 Pro —
36 Relative of Mrs.
37 Pedigreed animals
40 Electron accelerator
42 Enclosure
45 Ott or Torme
47 Fashion items
50 Benene treat
52 Agreeably
54 Custom
55 Two on the —
56 Slick chick
57 Decorate
58 Queues
59 Serene
60 Lily plant
61 Long story
66 Enenere



ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

E	P	I	C		M	A	I	L		I	N	A
L	A	G	A	N		A	L	A		E	R	A	S
E	C	O	L	E		C	A	T	A		G	A	R	N
M	A	N		E	M	B	A		E	S	S	E	N	C	E
		G	O	O	D	A		E	M	A	N	D	E	R
A	I	N	U		P	A	I	N	T	I	N
S	C	A	L	A		M	O	S	E	S		T	R	E
H	A	Z	A	R	D			E	L	P	A	S	E
E	L		G	O	S	E	C		L	A	M	B	S
		A	G	E	N	D	A		E	S	S	E	S
S	I	G	N	A	N	T	E		W	I	P	E	S
O	V	E	R	E	A	T		P	A	I	N	T	E	R
L	I	N	E		R	I	C	H		M	E	A	D	E
E	L	D	O	N		E	L	L	O		A	S	P	E	N
S	A	R	A		D	E	E	M		S	E	N	T

WEATHER

Today — mostly sunny. Highs around 50. Cloudy tonight with a chance of light rain or snow late at night. Lows in the 30s. Tomorrow — cloudy. Highs in the mid 40s.

D.C. MENU

LUNCH
Turkey Divan
Deli Ham on Water Roll

BASICS LUNCH
Garden Chili
Turkey Divan

DINNER
Roast Pork/Gravy
Spiced Apples
BBQ Beef Cubes
Tuna Salad Plate/Chips

BASICS DINNER
Tofu Nut Loaf/
Mushroom Sauce
Baked Cod with Lemon

Be A Star

Become a star reporter for the Collegian. One of New England's largest daily college newspapers! We need people to write news and women's affairs. Great experience for any students interested in journalism or communications. Come by the Collegian anytime and ask for an editor. It's easy and it's fun. Everyone's welcome.

The Collegian
113 Campus Center
545-3500

Open 24 Hours-7 am Mon. thru Sat. Midnite
in Hadley-Amherst and Pittsfield stores.

STOP & SHOP

MORE WAYS TO SAVE!

DOUBLE COUPON SAVINGS On Manufacturers' Coupons
Manufacturers' Coupons are more valuable at Stop & Shop because we double your savings. Details in store.

EVERYDAY LOW PRICES!
You'll find them all over the store. Plus hundreds of Warehouse Values.

OVER 190 SPECIALS IN OUR CIRCULAR!
Including our Stop & Shop Coupons worth 80¢. Check out every page of this circular. It can save you dollars more. Pick one up in the store.

FEED A FAMILY FOR LESS WITH THIS GREAT BUY ON US GRADE A TURKEY

10-13 lb Frozen 59¢ lb

Turkey is one of your most economical meat choices. It rates very high in protein, very low in fat. A plump turkey provides plenty of tender meat for dinner with delicious leftovers for sandwiches. Yes, turkey is a terrific buy especially at Stop & Shop!

Fresh Turkey	lb .69	Swift Breasts	lb 1.49
Swift Butterball	lb .79	Turkey Roast	lb 1.49
Turkey Breasts	lb 1.19	Turkey Drumsticks	lb .49
		Turkey Cutlets	lb 2.39

IT'S TIME TO CUT YOUR GROCERY BILL! SAVE ON ITEMS YOU USE EVERY DAY!

Bumble Bee Tuna	.79
Spigadoro Pasta	2 for $1
Crisco Oil	1.49
Kraft Miracle Whip	1.39
Apple Sauce	.79
C & C Cola 2 Liter	.79
Krispy Crackers	.89
Chock full o' Nuts	1.99
Viva Paper Towels	.79
Kleenex Tissues	.69
Clorox Bleach	.89
5 Pkg. Bic Razors	.69
Natures Organics Plus	2.29

SAVE ON FINE FROZEN FOODS!

Ellio's Pizza	2.19
Orange Juice 12 oz	.79
Vegetables 20 oz	.89
Hood Ice Cream	1.69

SAVE ON FRESH BAKED GOODS!

Hot Cross Buns	1.29
Little Debbie Snacks	.79

SAVE ON FRESH DAIRY FOODS!

Hood Orange Juice	1.29
Mrs. Filbert's	.59
Cottage Cheese	1.29
American Slices	1.39

Perdue White Gem

A 'GEM' OF A BUY ON BIG MEATY FRESH ROASTING CHICKENS!

Choice of 2 great brands!

Perdue Oven Stuffer or White Gem Roasting Chicken lb .59
4-7 Pounds

Chicken Leg Quarters lb .49
White Gem With Rib & Attached Side Bone

LENTEN MEAL MAKER

Fresh Sliced Cod Steak lb 1.49

SELF SERVICE DELI...

Sun Glory Bacon 1.59
1 lb Pkg Sliced

Chicken Bologna .49
Weaver 8 oz Pkg

OUR 'COOKING WITH COLOR' LABELS HELP YOU PREPARE OUR BEEF!

USDA CHOICE BEEF ROUND
TOP ROUND ROAST $1.89 lb

Rump Roast Bottom Round (USDA Choice Beef Round)	lb 1.99
Bottom Round Roast (Up to 5 lbs. Beef Round)	lb 1.89
Eye Round Roast (USDA Choice Beef Round)	lb 2.59
Top Round Steak (USDA Choice Beef Round)	lb 2.59

CORNER DELI — Available in stores with Service Deli

We slice it fresh to order!

Colonial Ham (Domestic Lean & Tasty) lb 2.29

SUNSHINE & VITAMINS FROM FLORIDA AND CALIFORNIA!

Florida Grapefruit (Indian River Red or White Size 40) 4 FOR $1

Stop & Shop produce buyers save you money on the best America's growers have to offer, naturally delicious, low-calorie citrus fruits! Pick 'em now at Stop & Shop!

SAVE ON THE SIZE THAT'S BEST FOR YOU! SUNKIST NAVEL ORANGES

Large Size 56 6 for $1 Extra Large Size 72 5 for $1

PLUS MORE GREAT SPECIALS...

Crisp Carrots (Pick Only What You Need)	3 lbs $1
Yellow Onions (Pick Your Own)	lb 12
Fresh Turnips (A Must For Your Boiled Dinner)	lb 12
Green Cabbage (Great For Cole Slaw Too)	lb .9
Fresh Yams (or Sweet Potatoes)	lb .19
Maine Potatoes (5 Pound Bag Size A)	.49
Fresh Chicory (or Escarole)	2 for $1

STOP & SHOP DAIRY COUPON — FREE! Dozen Large White Eggs Stop & Shop Grade A — With this coupon & a $ 50 purchase. Limit one per customer. Good Sun. Mar 13 thru Fri. Mar 18 1983 STOP & SHOP

STOP & SHOP BAKERY COUPON — FREE! Big Daisy White Bread Stop & Shop Sliced 20oz loaf — With this coupon & a $ 50 purchase. Limit one per customer. Good Sun. Mar 13 thru Fri. Mar 18 1983 STOP & SHOP

STOP & SHOP GROCERY COUPON — FREE! Campbell's Tomato Soup 10 3/4oz can — With this coupon & a $ 50 purchase. Limit one per customer. Good Sun. Mar 13 thru Fri. Mar 18 1983 STOP & SHOP

STOP & SHOP GROCERY COUPON — FREE! Diamond Crystal Salt 26oz cont. Plain or Iodized — With this coupon & a $ 50 purchase. Limit one per customer. Good Sun. Mar 13 thru Fri. Mar 18 1983 STOP & SHOP

STOP & SHOP

IT'S TIME TO STOP & SHOP.

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Monday - Friday • Deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10 % • discount • Phone number FREE

ATARI 800 COMPUTER

Atari 800 Computer 48 or 64k RAM typewriter keyboard, new condition, BASIC book, Pac-Man $489. 546-8638
Franklin ACE 1000 full Apple II compatability, 64k, 72 keys, disk drive and monitor $1399 546-8638

AUDIO

 Stereo Earphones & Mini Speakers for all Walkman type players * just $10 pr * call now!! Mitch 549-4379

AUTO FOR SALE

67 VW Conv inspected needs work $400 or BO 323-5918 leave message

1970 - Ford Torino - 45,000 original miles 425 or best offer - call 545-3500 before 5:00 - 549-4125 after 5:00 ask for Dan

1970 Cutlass too many options to list call for price 546-5610

VW Super Beetle, 1972, excellent engine, OK body, heat, AM/FM radio, good tires, sun roof $800 Call Rob, 665-4817 8-9 AM or 6-9 PM. Keep trying!

DAYTONA BEACH

Daytona Beach Spring Break $299. Round trip direct non-stop jet Boston-Daytona. 7 nights Ramada Inn on the beach. Free car rental. Departs Mar. 19. Call Saugus Travel 617-233-8192, 617-289-6221

ENTERTAINMENT

Rackadisc Entertainment Agency Inc. Bands and disc jockeys guaranteed student functions 256-0739

PROFESSIONAL DJs FOR LESS Dorms, Semis, Greeks. Call-N-Save Paul 549-4405

FOR RENT

Falmouth - 2 women wanted to share house $35 ea Amy 549-4169

Cape Cod Summer Seasonal Rentals: W. Yarmouth & Dennis; 1, 2, 3, & 4 bedroom units. Rent direct from owners & save. 617/528-8300 or 771-2233.

FOR SALE

Kinks Concert! 2 tickets March 31st Worcester Centrum good seats 546-4419

Tires 13" Michelin Radials pair for $40 or BO 549-1346

For XK ramota radar detector all packaging etc. just recond. by fact. $90.00 253-9678

Brand new Jensen 4½ Coaxil $70.00 or BO Deb - 256-0873

KLH512 Speakers $100.00 each; Vector Research VR2500 receiver $150 firm; one year old Hugh 546-7113

FOUND

Pair of red winter gloves in SBA at the end of Feb. Call 546-6311 to identify

HELP WANTED

Alaska Jobs summer/year round, earn great money in this opportunity rich state, ie, earn $10,000-$12,000 on three month fishing boat. Send for 1983 Employer Listing and information packet covering all industries $5.00 Lental Reseach dept AA2114 satisfaction guaranteed

— Seniors — Jobs are available mass market yourself with Operations Research International toll free 1-800-421-3217

Earn extra money responsible students needed to conduct weight management clinic call Scott 256-6845

Cruise Ship Jobs! Great income potential, all occupations. For information call: 602-837-3401 ext 833

Earthfoods restaurant is hiring. We need students to fill the following hours ONLY. T 10-12 & 11-3, W 11-2 Th 10-1 & 11-5, F 2-5. Applications available at the Earthfoods kitchen in the Student Union. Deadline is 3/16 at 5 p.m. 3rd world students, men & women encouraged to apply.

KELLIE!

S.T. Happy Birthday Gorgeous! Finaly the big two ol Je t'aime, I love you! Let's celebrate our life together. . .Always, Dean

LESBIAN & GAY

FREE trained Lesbian and Gay Peer Counseling and Referral 433 SU 545-2645

LOST

Keys on blue-clip kayring with words Le Chateau 546-8161

Bifocal gold frame glasses in a gold nylon wallet Diane 546-9493

Rugby Jacket lost at Pub 3-9 wallet in pocket, if found call 545-3197 reward

MOTORCYCLES

1981 Kawasaki KZ550 LTD saddle bags, Bell helmet, chain and lock, cover, low milage, good shape $2100/BO 546-7164 Garv

PERSONALS

Kitchen help wanted work in exchange for meals for more info call Paul 549-3582

JOHN GILLIS IS GOING TO CALIFORNIA

MAD Here's wishing you a Happy 21st b-day and happiness always I love ya! Mindy

Mnmaki Happy Belated Birthday! from your late but loving Moms

PHIL How-touched-am-I? Huggykissyface

UMass Ski Club Goes Down to Fort Lauderdale Springbreak '83
Hotel $149 w/bus $275 w/jet $369
tax included no hidden costs

Last chance call 545-3437 now

Dance with the Museum Direktors! March 17, Newman center 9-11

Carl Love you! Smiles, Mary

Mike O'Connell will be drinking Yukon Jack during the intramural hockey finals.

M. Baseball players may not study, but we can have a good time. Baseball Jock

My dearest Zitface, when will your rhino breath cease? Love & Kisses

PETER McDONOUGH THE STUD

Congrats, Big 21 just in time for Maryland, Happy B-day. . .we'll miss ya. . .Dave, Neil, A2, Betsy, Sheila, Nancy

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Dissertations, Theses, Cases, Papers, guaranteed acceptance, low rates, Nancy 5-0392, 584-7924

RIDE NEEDED

Rida needed to Wyoming after finals before 6/6. Must know soon! Ann 256-6056

Ride needed to Philadelphia area on 3/16 or 3/17 call Rachel 546-8740

I need a ride to Rockland County New York or within the general area I am willing to share expenses and conversation. ready to leave March 18 or 19th or whenever ride is available at that time. Thanks please call Sue at 549-1692 or at 549-5487 if not home please leave a message and I will get back to you. Thanks

RIDERS WANTED

To Fort Lauderdale Spring Break I'll supply free ride if you supply free lodging 546-5259

SERVICES

PAPER DUE? CAN'T WRITE? Tutor -english composition and grammar reasonable rates 6-9289

If you're tired of unexciting portraits, have your custom-made glamour photos produced at THE STUDIO, home of fine photography. 664 Main, Amherst. 253-6091. Yes, we do portfolio work.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY BENEFIT

Live! The Museum Direktors! March 17th, 9 pm - 1 am Newman Center

SUMMER JOBS

Country club in Millis Mass. now interviewing for pool director and lifeguards. Must be available 5/25/83 - 9/5/83 617-376-2978

SEND A FRIEND A GREEN CARNATION

- Send a friend or someone special a green carnation for St. Patricks Day.
- Names will be printed in the Collegian for pick up. A table will be on Campus Center Concourse beginning TODAY till Wed before Spring Break. Surprise someone

THANK YOU

Thanks to all of those who sponsored Teresa and Craig in the Multiple Sclerosis Dance Marathon.

TO SUBLET

3 Bedroom Apt. to sublet w/possible fall option 549-1377

Apt. in Squire Village $695 mth + utilities fall option call 665-2127

Brittany Manor 2 bedroom apt, summer sublet, fall option 253-5956

TRAVEL

UMass Ski Club goes north
Spring Break 83 March 20-25
Stowe. Ski club capital of the East.
Only $159 includes: transportation, hot tub party, beer & wine parties, 5 day lift ticket, all taxes & gratuities & much, much, more. For more info contact the UMass Ski Club Rm 430A Student Union or call 545-3437

FLORIDA by van 3/19 - 27 $148 round trip wine/cheese accomodation info limited seats S.S. Van Lines 617-724-8810

Ride needed for two to Florida for spring break. Will share driving and expenses. call 665-7076 eves. please!

WANTED

Class rings, gold and silver jewelry and coins. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant, Amherst, 256-0710

Help $50 reward for helping me by your parents unwanted second car 253-7189

Cash for your records, tapes 545-2836 (ask for Jaromir/leave message)

Ride to JFK airport 3/18 by 11 am desperate call Karen 253-2169

WANTED TO RENT

2 or 3 bedroom Townhouse or Puffton to rent from June on. John 546-9139 Mike 546-9141

$25 Reward for locating 2 bdr apt for two girls to share with 2 others for 83-84 546-1449, 546-5028

"Life in the Global Village - World Development Issues"
Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst

Sponsored by The Chancellor's Office, The Center for International Education, The Center for International Agricultural Studies, and the Peace Corps.

Monday, March 14

3:00 - 5:00
Opening Session, Room 163-C, Chancellor Joseph Duffy
Keynote Address, Abdulrahman Mohamed Babu, Visiting Professor of Black Studies, Amherst College, Room 163-C

7:30 - 9:30
Reception for Returned Peace Corps Volunteers, families and friends, Memorial Hall, UMass Campus

Tuesday, March 15

9:00 - 12:00
Films on International Development, Room 803

WORKSHOPS
9:00 - 10:00
"Language and Culture", Room 802
Josephine M. Ryan, Education

10:00 - 11:00
"Forestry in Central America", Room 805-09
Gary Burniske, Forestry

11:00 - 12:00
"Rural Agricultural Development", Room 811-B
Valerie Mailler, Plant and Soil Sciences
Tom Mahoney, Plant and Soil Sciences

11:00 - 12:00
"Education in India", Room 802
Rema Pai, Future Studies

PANEL DISCUSSIONS
1:30 - 3:00
"Women in Development", Room 805-08
Pana Putnam, Center for International Education
Nancy Herman, Anthropology
Carol Wzorek, Peace Corps
Pat McGuire, Center for International Education, Moderator

3:30 - 5:00
"Food and Agriculture", Room 804-08
John Foster, Food and Resource Economics
Nola Reinhardt, Economics, Smith College
Mary Pritchard, OXFAM
Gilbert Mottla, Center for International Agricultural Studies.
Moderator

Wednesday, March 16

9:00 - 12:00
Films on International Development, Room 803

WORKSHOPS
9:00 - 10:00
"Changing Peoples Eating Habits", Room 802
Dahlia Aspillera, Food Science

10:00 - 11:00
"International Careers", Room 805-09
Sterling Lamet, International Programs Office, UMass

11:00 - 12:00
"Cooperatives as a Development Tool"
Room 811-B
Doudou Jome, C.I.E.
Barbara Howald, C.I.E.

PANEL DISCUSSIONS
1:30 - 3:30
"The Role of the U.S. in World Development",
Room 804-08
Randall Stokes, Sociology
E. Jefferson Murphy, 5 College Coordin.
Ralph Faulkingham, Anthropology

There will be an exhibit of photographs by Stan Sherer which pertain to conference topics on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, 8th floor lounge.

THE GLOBE BOOKSHOP
Open 9 am til 9 pm
Monday - Saturday
Open 10 - 3
on Sunday
Fine New & Used Books Bought & Sold
36 Pleasant St. Northampton 584-0326

EUROPE by CAR
RENT or BUY
LOWEST PRICES
FOR STUDENTS, TEACHERS
EUROPE BY CAR
One Rockefeller Plaza
New York, NY 10020
Phone (212) 581-3040
Mail this ad for Special Student/Teacher Tariff.
☐ RENTAL ☐ LEASE ☐ PURCHASE

Sports

Candidates for the women's golf team should attend a meeting Tuesday at 4 p.m. in Room 223 Boyden. Anyone who cannot attend should contact Jack Leaman at Room 228 Boyden or call 545-1301.

McLaughlin? You can't mean McLaughlin

Collegian photo by Dave Deuber

It appears Tom McLaughlin will not return to coach the Minutemen next year.

By JIM FLOYD
Collegian Staff

An era will come to an end before it even got started sometime (very probably today) in the near future in regard to the University of Massachusetts men's basketball program.

Second year head coach Tom McLaughlin's head is on the chopping block and it doesn't look like there will be a last second reprieve.

Tom McLaughlin? You mean the guy who took over the reigns of one of the worst Division I programs in the entire nation and somehow turned the tide and began the uphill battle towards respectability.

Commentary

You mean the coach who brought such talented athletes as Donald Russell, John Hempel, Horace Neysmith and Darryl Carter, to mention just a few, into the Curry Hicks Cage and convinced them to play in a Minuteman uniform anyway (the Cage, while appearing very quaint, is a relic of a gymnasium).

If that's who you mean, then you must also mean the fellow who was able to generate enough enthusiasm on the UMass campus to sell out most of the home games the Minutemen played this past season.

And, if you mean that fellow, then you most certainly are referring to the kid who captained the 1972-73 version of Massachusetts Minuteman basketball and then went on to play pro ball in Europe before stints as an assistant coach at first, Stanford and then, Notre Dame led him back to his alma mater.

The guy even married his college sweetheart and had two boys, one of which was born in a snowbound McLaughlin home without a doctor present during last year's April blizzard.

If there was ever to be a fairytale to be written about UMass, Tom McLaughlin would have been cast as the leading man.

And yet, dismissal from the post of head honcho of the UMass basketball program seems imminent.

And now appears the big question: Why is someone who has done so much in so little time being handed his walking papers so soon?

Well, the answers could be found by asking those people involved, administrators, coaches, players, etc. but, for some reason, the people who can be reached don't seem to know anything and those who would be expected to know just can't be located.

That leaves only one method of explanation, speculation. Did McLaughlin climb too high too fast? Surely there were those who saw the young coach quickly turning into the most recognizable figure on the UMass campus. That can cause some animosity between people. Maybe McLaughlin was growing too big, too popular, for some.

Was he too outspoken? McLaughlin took a lot of heat because of the way he promoted his team. He made big predictions prior to the start of this season and, when the squad failed to come up with some of the predicted victories, he was left holding the ball.

Was it his coaching? True, McLaughlin was not the best bench coach that ever guided a basketball team. But, bench coaches are like teachers; they are not great right away, it is a skill that takes time to learn.

Then again, who cares about why Tom McLaughlin is supposed to be leaving the University. The reason is not so important as the fact that, when next season rolls around, he will not be crouched on the sidelines barking instructions to the Minutemen.

He will not jump and start waving his arms to let his players know to keep their hands up on defense while knowing full well that the action is not so much a sign to the players for defense as it is a signal to the fans to start making some noise.

Tom McLaughlin was a positive step for Minuteman basketball, a big step. He will be sorely missed.

Men gymnasts take fourth place in East

By ELLEN RICHARD
Collegian Staff

It was an exhilarating and rewarding meet for the University of Massachusetts men's gymnastics team, placing fourth with their second highest season total 256.15 at the Eastern Intercollegiate Gymnastics Championships.

"Some feelings I had after the meet is that we waited three years before having a championship and it was well worth the wait," coach Roy Johnson said. "We really hit, if not our goals, close to our goals."

The Minutemen placed behind East Stroudsburg State with 257 points, Navy with 262.3 points and Southern Connecticut with 270 points, in the oldest championship in the country. The team reached one goal of having five men reach the finals of the weekend competition.

The team placed fifth in the high bar event with a score of 44.05. Tony Sbarra and William Stevens both placed fourth to qualify for the finals with 9.2 scores.

Saturday's scores were added to Friday's preliminary scores and medals were given to the top six of the eight finalists. Stevens finished seventh with a 17.75 missing a medal by five-one hundredths of a point.

According to Johnson, Sbarra had one of his best routines but rotated quicker than usual which made him fall back on his dismount. His combined scores came to 17.8, giving him a sixth place medal.

Although John Macurdy competed with pain in his wrists, he put in a fine performance in the floor exercises to win second place with 18.5 points.

Co-captain John McGonagle qualified with a 9.35 in the ring event in Friday's competition and had an outstanding performance in finals to score a 9.45, for a total of 18.8 points. Johnson said he felt McGonagle had his best performance of the entire year but was slightly underscored.

Bert Mathieson, who won a trophy for his sixth place finish in all around with a score of 53 points, qualified for the pommel horse event with a 9.2. In the finals, Mathieson had a break in concentration in his routine giving him fourth place with a total of 17.9 points.

The Minutemen had an outstanding vault score of 46.45 and Macurdy qualified with a 9.65 score. In the finals, he placed in a three way tie for third with 19.1 points. Johnson said he felt Macurdy was a little underscored on his first vault.

Johnson said for next season he would like to see the team improve five points on pommel horse and a couple points on high bar.

It was the final meet for seniors Macurdy, McGonagle and Bob Goulart who put in fine performances for the University in their careers.

Women place second in Atlantic Ten meet

By ELLEN RICHARD
Collegian Staff

It was a close meet but the University of Massachusetts women's gymnastics team,ranked fifth in the East, came in second in the Atlantic Ten Championships ahead of fourth ranked West Virginia and only three and a half points away from first-ranked Penn State.

"I knew it was going to be between the three of us," coach Ken Anderson said. "I was very pleased with their performances. They had trouble at the beginning of the meet but got in there and said 'we're going to do it'. It's quite an accomplishment for this team to be ranked where they are."

Ohio State is ranked second and University of New Hampshire is third and UMass has worked hard to get their ranking. The Eastern region is the largest in the nation, containing better than a third of the schools in the country.

The team had an all time high on the uneven bars placing second with a 43.7 score. Senior Karen Knapp has been working hard on her bars routine and it paid off as she came in second place with her highest score ever, a 9.25. Teammate Sue Allen tied for fourth place with Penn State's Renee Bunker, both with 9.05. It was a season high score for Allen.

The Minutewomen placed second in the balance beam event with a total of 42.3 points. Knapp and Tricia Harrity tied for fourth place with matching 8.65's. Unfortunately, Knapp fell off the beam once and Harrity had trouble with her dismount keeping their scores lower than possible.

Robin Low had a rough time on the beam and did not place in the all around competition, according to Anderson. Low performed well in the other three events,but the beam performance held her back.

Massachusetts also had an all time high on the vault with a total of 44.15 points. Lisa Griffen came in third place with a 9.05. She performed a full twist on-hand spring off, a new vault she has been working on near the end of the season.

In the floor exercises, the team came in second with 42.85 points and Anderson said he felt the women were underscored in this event.

After putting together an 11-2 record and their fine performance at the championships, the women are still not finished. In two weeks on March 26, the Minutewomen will travel to West Virginia for the regionals.

"We're starting to peak at the right time and if they work hard the next two weeks they could be up there," Anderson said of the team's chances of climbing higher in the East.

Collegian photo by John Doucette

Tricia Harrity performs on the uneven bars in a meet earlier in the year.

NUMMO NEWS

Monday, March 14, 1983 VOLUME 11 ISSUE 76

NUMMO News' ONLY connection with the Massachusetts Daily Collegian is for the purpose of distribution.

BMCP Conflict Unresolved

By Russell D. Jordan

At the WMUA general meeting last Thursday in the Campus Center, the continuing controversy between the Black Mass Communications Project (BMCP) and WMUA program director Michelle Murray came to a head. Charges and counter-charges were bandied about between the two groups and angry words were exchanged.

Keith Johnson, a member of BMCP, accused Ms. Murray of pre-empting two BMCP programming slots without consulting either the Third World Coordinator or any member of the BMCP management board. "This is in direct violation of the policy directive of the WMUA constitution," Mr. Johnson said.

Ms. Murray countered by saying, "during the intersession two BMCP slots were left absent on several occasions, and I took the initiative to fill those slots with people, who though not regular DJ's at WMUA, they have worked at the station and deserved shows."

Keith Johnson responded by saying, "several shows had problems during intersession. Scheduling during intersession is often chaotic, and regardless of this, I take issue with Ms. Murray's penalizing BMCP as a whole for the negligence of individual DJ's." Mr. Johnson continued by saying, "this entire problem could have been avoided if Ms. Murray had consulted a list of BMCP member DJ's left her by Lezlie Harrison, then acting Third World Coordinator for WMUA.

Ms. Murray also accused BMCP of not airing a broad range of Black music, "BMCP's programming is heavily weighted towards funk and very contemporary Black music. I think BMCP programs should reflect the wide range of Black music, such as the Blues, Reggae, Motown oldies, Jazz past and present, etc." Ms. Murray said she would use the slots appropriated from BMCP to air a more diversified representation of Black music.

Kari Njiri, BMCP member and DJ of the highly rated show, "Pan Afrique," objected to Ms. Murray's "presumption of what constitutes good Black programming," and "if Ms. Murray was concerned about the content or lack of content of our shows, she should have come to BMCP with her complaints instead of responding in such a heavy-handed fashion."

Brynne Clarke, an inactive member of BMCP, complained that Ms. Murray "has not consulted BMCP with any of her program changes or policies. If consultation means exchange of ideas and equal input from all parties concerned, then Ms. Murray has not fulfilled her responsibilities as stated in the constitution."

Ms. Murray claimed, "I tried on numerous occassions to contact BMCP and was not successful."

With this remark the room erupted with accusations and denunciations by several BMCP members present. Several other individual DJ's and organizations separate from BMCP were also upset with Ms. Murray's programing policies, including: Country, Blues and Bluegrass, Undercurrents, Concepto Latino and the Scotty Dread Show.

No real solutions were reached, but some were proposed such as amending the constitution to guarantee programming hours for the various WMUA members, and designing a more specific definition of the programming goals of WMUA. Ms. Murray was invited by Keith Johnson to attend the next BMCP meeting.

Photo by Ed Cohen

Demonstrators protested against US aid to El Salvador on Saturday, despite bad weather

Tenants face-off against landlords on rent control

By Joel Saxe

Amherst may not seem like a Third World country, but the landholding patterns make the difference between the haves and have-nots just as sharp. While students and tenants comprise the majority of twon residents, less than 20 landlords own 70 percent of the rental housing in Amherst. And half of those are wealthy absentee property-owners from Boston, Hartford, East Longmeadow, New York, etc.

Students have not, and D.H. Jones has. Aside from his real estate agency, he personally owns 57 rental units, large and small. Counting the rest of the Jones clan, which includes father Walter Jones, brother Paul Jones, and W.D. Cowls lumber, their property doubles in holdings.

Now, with town elections less than a month away (April 5), a battle between tenants and landlords is heating up with the issue of rent control fueling the fire.

Some 50 realtors, landlords, and apartment complex managers are running for town meeting, fearful of the possibility that rent control could soon become law. At last May's town meeting, rent control came the closest it's ever come in the decade-long effort by tenant activists to regulate the profit margins of the local elite, losing by only 16 votes — 89 to 105.

Town Meeting, a body of 240 representatives elected from eight precincts town wide sets all the laws and financial decisions for the town.

As tenant organizing has shown gradual success, slowly increasing the number of tenants in town meeting over the past decade, landlord interests have gone on the defensive. This year, for the first time ever, many of the town's major realtors and property owners have gotten directly involved in elections. In addition to D.H. Jones who's running in precinct four, a heavily student area including Southwest, five realtors employed by Jones are also running. Town and Country Realtors have five agents running including owner Ann Hastings. Kathy and Ed Stefan of Stefan Real Estate, and Charlotte Dwyer of Dwyer Real Estate are also running.

What these landlords fear is the rent control bylaw tenants plan to present at this May's town meeting, mandating an immediate rent freeze, while a rent control board made up of tenants and property owners is set up. The rent control board would evaluate rent hikes by landlords, allowing them to raise rents only after a hearing is held to determine a "fair" increase.

Tenant organizers say that last summers rent increases — averaging 15 to 20 percent town-wide — is proof that rent control is needed. "Rental prices jumped anywhere from 8 percent to 34 percent," observed Joanne Levenson, a candidate for selectman, and Director of the Off-Campus Housing Office, UMass, "That's quite incredible given the rate of inflation was considerably lower. If they're not gouging, why was there such an upswing this year? It makes it all the more obvious they don't care about rental housing."

Tenant activists themselves appear prepared for the election battle with 75 candidates running on their side. Pro-tenant slates, including many students, are running in all eight precincts, and an informal town-wide strategy and coordinating group has been formed with help from the UMass Tenant Organizing Project, the Commuter Area Government, and Off-Campus Housing Office.

With the majority of Amherst residents being students and tenants, rent control supporters are

Continued on page 3

Roving Reporter....

Why do you think BMCP should keep its hours. Should they have more?

Photos by John Wright

Deidre F. H. Bushel:

We need these hours and more because there are too few stations in the area that offer the kind of music that BMCP plays.

Richard Pina:

I feel that there is a strong need for minority programming, chiefly an effort for informing, but also as a source fo entertainment that is relevant to the Third World Community. Rock & Roll is on the FM Band from 88 -108. The few hours that BMCP does program, are hours where there is relatively light listenership. I feel that a schedule incorporating BMCP programming in the prime-time slots 7- 10 weekdays would be beneficial to our community and also to WMUA heads.

Letter to the Editor

President Reagan's frantic attempt to give El Salvador's military government another $60 million for munitions and helicopters points up the failure of American policy in Central America. Despite roughly $750 million US tax dollars invested since October, 1979, the Salvadoran dictatorship is losing the war.

The Salvadoran government is losing the war because very few people support them. Here is a government that has killed almost 40,000 unarmed civilians and created half a million refugees. It has turned its back on land reform and set about eliminating any signs of opposition from church, labor, peasant, professional, or political groups. While supporters of the dictatorship talk of dialogue with Salvadoran moderates, for instance, the dictatorship systematically murders them.

American citizens should be very concerned about continued aid to El Salvador. We all know by now that Salvadoran soldiers have executed at least five US citizens and no one has yet gone to jail. When we give money to the same government, it rewards them for their bad behavior. They know that they can get away with murder.

More importantly, if we do not stop funding this war against the Salvadoran people, we are going to have to send American men and women to fight it. Battlefield reports show that even the best Salvadoran troops have been defeated by the guerrillas and that the guerrillas have widened their area of control. Logically then, the Salvadoran military government will be defeated eventually, or US combat troops will be sent in great numbers. Think about it -- do you want your children, husbands, and friends to die fighting for a government that you would not tolerate in your own community? The time to act is now -- call your representative to congress.

Andrew Glace
Amherst
WMLASC

Nummo Staff

Angela Brown	Editor
Tracey Bryant	Production Manager
Brynne Clarke	Lay-Out Editor
Donna Davis	Business Manager
Keith Johnson	Researcher
Mitra Samimi	Graphics Editor
John Wright	Photo Editor
Lauri Neely and Laura Shanahan	Typesetters

CONTRIBUTORS

Ed Cohen	Photographer
Segun Eubanks	Correspondent
Chris Hardin	Photographer
Russell Jordan	Correspondent
Brenda Ling	Correspondent
Baron Roland	Photographer
Ray Sanderlin	Photographer
Robert Teixeira	Correspondent

Guatemala's New Policy: "Beans and Guns"

second in a two-part series

By Steve O'Halloran

[Editor's Note: Part one of Steve O'Halloran's comprehensive look at Guatemala's current situation dealt with dictator Rios Montt's activities against the growing resistance of Guatemala's guerrillas and campesinos (peasants). His forces have responded by massacring up to 8,000 mostly indigenous peasants in the last six months.]

Council of State

On September 15, a thirty-member Council of State, representing numerous sectors of Guatemalan society, was established by the Rios Montt regime. The Council is a strictly advisory body since Rios Montt has sole governing powers under the state of siege. The creation of the Council is basically a government propaganda move to give the military regime a facade of democracy. At the Council's inauguration, Rios Montt declared that his government is reformist, aimed at restoring democracy, constitutionality and civil rights in Guatemala.

Much controversy surrounds the council already. It is not known, for example, how the representatives of the different Indian groups or the labor representatives were chosen. The four rightist "anti-fraud" parties that backed the coup refused to participate in the Council, claiming that it is powerless and should have legislative power. They also charged that they would be under-represented on the council with only 11 percent of the seats. The four parties -- Christian Democrats, National Renewal Party, Authentic Nationalist Central (CAN), and National Liberation Movement (MLN) -- announced the formation of a Constitutionalist Multiparty Front to return the country to an electoral constitutional democracy.

The government responded with a warning that political party activity is prohibited under the prevailing state of siege and forbade the press to report any such activity. Previously, only reporting on guerrilla activity was specifically forbidden.

The government's tough stance on the parties is partially a result of an alleged coup plot in August by members of the CAN, MLN and their military supporters. The eight party members arrested have since been released, while Leonel Sisniega Otero, president of the ultra-right MLN, has apparently fled the country.

Regime Seeks Aid

Rios Montt desperately needs international approval, paticularly from the U.S., to regain access to multilateral loans and military and economic assistance. In an attempt to gain legitimacy for his discredited regime, Rios Montt allowed the National Council of Churches (NCC) access to Chimaltenango in November. Rios Montt hoped they would clear the regime of human rights abuses. However, the NCC document distributed on November 23 charges and enumerates in detail that "there are gross and consistent violations of human rights carried out by the armed forces of Guatemala and that there is a policy of continuity in this regard between previous and present regimes."

The European Economic Community has not been fooled by Rios Montt's posturing and recently voted against granting economic aid to Guatemala along with El Salvador and Haiti. The Canadian government also stopped all development assistance to Guatemala.

The U.S., however, will go to any lengths to justify the renewal of aid to a country where "the implications of a Marxist takeover . . . are more serious than in El Salvador," according to Lt. General Wallace Nutting, commander of U.S. troops in Panama. He added that the U.S. should play "essentially the same role"

Continued on page 3

Why Denounce South Africa??

By The Southern Africa Solidarity Committee

A point of view has surfaced in the campus debate over the United Nations initiated boycott movement against apartheid which opposes such boycotts on the grounds of a fantastic notion of "academic freedom." From this perspective, the South African government is admittedly "oppressive," but, as human rights violations are widespread in our world, why single out South Africa? Will this not lead to further attack on ideal academic freedom?

The overriding motivation of the South African boycott movement is not widespread torture in the prisons, the lack of trade union rights, unbridled aggression against neighboring states.

It is the system of apartheid which representatives of many countries, socialist and capitalist, democratic and undemocratic, consider reprehensible. This system strictly apportions all rights -- political, cultural, and economic -- on the basis of constitutionally defined "racial" categories. Many countries employ curfew, only in South Africa are curfew statutes written according to "racial" categories. Many nations have franchise restrictions, only in South Africa is one racial group of citizens allowed, while another is denied, the right to vote and sit in parliament. Only South Africa declares entire subgroups of its own "African" citizenry to be foreigners in the land of their birth and stripped of any rights (the regions declared independent have been recognized as such by no country on earth). In any other country, individuals are stripped of citizenship only in very, very extreme cases. Meanwhile, white-skinned foreigners are urged to immigrate, and become citizens. In all countries, personal identification papers are carried, only in South Africa are they used by the authorities to ascertain where you are allowed to be every hour of the day, and what you may be doing, according to the color of your skin.

Apartheid has been declared by international opinion to be in the same category with slavery and genocide, something which belongs in humanity's past. In spite of our many serious and diverse injustices, humanity can advance by isolating and eliminating those practices which we decide by common agreement are most abhorent. It was in this spirit that the United Nations General Assembly has declared South African apartheid to be a "crime against humanity" and, in 1980 voted for the imposition of comprehensive sanctions -- military, economic, cultural, athletic and academic -- against the racist regime of South Africa.

With this in mind, we can begin to put the question of academic freedom in perspective. There are a variety of practices which scholars and researchers are -- by law, moral custom, international greement -- proscribed from engaging in while in pursuit of knowledge. Surely the fight against cancer would be accelerated by the use of human subjects instead of animal? Yet no one raises academic freedom in this connection.

It boils down in the end to a matter of moral judgement: does apartheid differ in kind, or only in degree, from other forms of injustice? Pro-apartheid spokepeople regularly argue the latter. They say, "you have race problems, we have race problems, it is unfair to single out South Africa." The anti-apartheid movement responds: all humanity will progress if we can eliminate through joint action the moral abomination of South African apartheid.

Co-presidents Allen and Ahern Express Optimism for the Future

By Angela Brown

Charlene Allen and Tom Ahern, recent winners of the student body presidential elections, are "moving forward" as their slogan states, on the momentum of an extraordinary landslide victory in last week's contest. They captured 49 percent of the voter turn-out, which was higher than the average of recent elections.

"We're really pleased," said Charlene Allen. "It shows students are interested in the positive changes we've proposed . . . it's great!"

Tom Ahern added that they "had a solid, well-organized campaign, with hard-working people . . . standing out in the rain" referring to the bad weather that has plagued the last two presidential elections.

When asked what they would do differently compared with past presidents, Tom Ahern said they would "inform the student body via the outreach letter (to be issued out of the president's office biweekly) and . . . be available to students."

"We will actively solicit input," Allen said.

Ahern continued: "We want to serve them . . . to save them money" by creating a bottle redemption center, by supporting financial aid, and so on.

"We hope that by doing that we will develop student involvement and participation on the issues that affect them at the University," Ahern concluded.

The co-Presidents stated that they would move promptly on their specific proposals, for the redemption center, for rescheduled bus service later on weekends, etc., as well as on what will be ongoing efforts such as running for town meeting, to support rent control in Amherst, and building the Massachusetts State Students' Association, to lobby for state support of public higher education.

Both expressed thankfulness to the student body, and the hope that they would be able to accomplish all they have set out to do. Allen added that "there will be many chances for involvement" directly with their efforts, and asked that students "keep their eyes open for these opportunities." They also expressed thanks to the Third World Community for its support.

Rent Control, Continued

hopeful, though cautious, about the possibility of a victory this year, if those two groups get out and vote. They note that several of the precincts with large landlord slates have overwhelmingly student populations, such as precinct three, which includes most Central dorms, and precinct four which includes Southwest. A large student turnout they say, will put tenant supporters in and keep landlords out.

To vote in town elections on April 5, residents on and off-campus must be registered by March 16. Voter registration tables will be in the Campus Center on Monday, March 14 and Tuesday, March 15. Concerned people can also register at the Clerk's office in Town Hall.

South African Catholics Oppose Racist Regime

At a Conference of Catholics held in Johannesburg, South Africa during January, the Archbishop of Windhoek, Namibia, reported: "There is a real war in Namibia at this moment. We cannot allow this war to go on indefinitely. It is not only the soliders who are killed, maimed and injured -- it is the ordinary people who suffer in the same way. The majority of Namibians want the war to stop." Archbishop Hurley, who is President of the South African Catholic Bishops' Conference reported, at the same meeting, "The six bishops who toured Namibia in Sept., 1981, also found that SWAPO is seen as the national liberation army by the local population, who believe SWAPO will win any election hands down. All the observations we have made have been corroborated by independent sources," the Archbishop emphasized (Johannesburg Star, January 31, 1983)

Photo by John Wright

Mike Nauls and Bill Lopes rehang the New Africa House sign this past Friday.

Recording Artists with Style

By Richard Thorpe

"Cascades": a pleasing blend of music

Azymuth. Have you heard of them? Of course not. Would you like to? Of course you do. Why else would I have this column?

The busy metropolis of Rio De Janiero, Brazil forms the setting for this talented trio of musicians; and although in their native land they are reknowned and popular, in the U.S. acclaim is still waning. Not that they are unknown. "Telecommunications," the last release, was both critically and commercially successful.

With the release of "Cascades," the group's fourth LP on the Milestone label, Azymuth's potential has been realized. It is a display of group coherence and the ability to play a wide range. The music is a mix of jazz, Latin American culture and Brazilian rhythms. This mix is attained through the talents of the individual members of the ensemble.

The members are as follows: Jose Roberto Bertrami, the group's leader; producer and keyboardist; Alex Malheiros, bass and percussion; and Ivan Conti, drummer and percussionist. Their playing is strong, intense and very tight musically. Bertrami has full reign over the keyboards. He is able to gently coax the fender rhodes into gentle subtle notes on "A Woman" and "Through the Window," and just as easily aggressively strike the keys on the up-tempo numbers. Alex Malheiros coaxes fat, full notes out of his fretless, flanged bass, and Conti on drums, provides the rhythm and punch that is needed on the fast selections but, they also team up for some exciting call and response on "A Woman."

In the past Azymuth had relied on synthesizers and vocorder but now the musicianship comes shining through. Azymuth has arrived. They are here to challenge the confinds of jazz and further explore the realm of music. On the real tip, this is the best LP by this group to date and hopefully the acclaim that rains on them in Brazil will eventually fall on them here. Check it out!

"The Best is Yet to Come" from Grover Washington

Grover Washington, the musician. The name, style and music of the man are easily reconizable and especially unforgettable. It seems as though there is no stopping G-man, an appropriate acronym for one who has such a mastery with soulful-jazz. Grover currently has three albums on the lastest Billboard charts and, one of those, "Winelight," has been on for an astounding 119 weeks. That's almost two and a half years. This story of success is not the entire story.

Who could forget "Mister Magic," "Live at the Bijou" or "Come Morning" (his last release)? It seems as though, like wine, he gets better with age and, like his new album suggests, "The Best is Yet to Come."

On this record, Grover is surrounded by some of today's best session players. People like Marcus Miller, Eric Gale, Richard Tee, Lee Ritenour, Harvey Mason, and also, individual artists such as, Patti Labelle, Dexter Wanzel and Washington's protegees, Cedric Napoleon and James Lloyd from "Pieces of a Dream." These musicians help to provide an exciting atmosphere and all of them work well together.

The highlight of the album is duet between Grover on tenor saxophone and Patti Labelle on the title song, "The Best is Yet to Come." The song progresses to a call and response with Patti taking the lead and Grover following. Also memorable is Bobby McFerrin's scatting on "Things are Getting Better," and, the singing and bass of Cedric Napoleon. Be on the watch for Cynthia Biggs, Bobby McFerrin and "Pieces of a Dream" who are also on the LP. Along with Grover, they will be around for a long time.

Photo by Ed Cohen

Rene McLean (left) and Jackie McLean (right) in Solos and Duos concert last Friday

Guatemala, continued

in Guatemala as in El Salvador and it appears that U.S. policy is indeed heading in that direction.

In October, the State Department announced it would no longer block development bank loans to Guatemala. On the basis of that decision, the treasury secretary supported an $18 million loan request from Rios Montt. Shortly thereafter the Inter-American Development Bank approved a $71 million loan to Guatemala: $18 million for a rural telephone system, $23 million for small industries and $30 million for specialized education in rural areas.

Rep. Jerry N. Patterson (D-CA), Chair of the Subcommittee on International Development Institutions of the House Banking Committee, opposed the $18 million for the rural telephone project because of "documented government atrocities against the Indian population of the very areas where this project will go." Moreover, he declared, "improving communications in areas where the goverment is committing atrocities . . . is a form of indirect military aid."

In addition, U.S. Agency for International Development (AID) has proposed $8 million in development assistance and $5,009,000 in P.L. 480 title II (Food for Peace) for fisal year 1983. AID has also recently financed a number of projects in Guatemala including a government-sponsored resettlement and colonization program and aid to a number of private voluntary organizations in Guatemala's area of conflict. In addition, the Reagan administration is asking for $3.4 million for helicopter spare parts and $250,000 for military training.

Under the Caribbean Basin Initiative, Guatemala was granted $11 million in economic support funds. Economic and development assistance is used by the government as a stop-gap measure to bolster the Rios Montt regime until full U.S. military assistance is restored. Asked about resuming aid which had been discontinued to Guatemala in 1977, Reagan said that "This would depend on the material he (Rios Montt) has provided us . . . I would think so."

Announcements

Join the 3rd World Caucus

There will be a 3rd World Caucus meeting on Wed., March 16 at 6:00 p.m. in the Office of Third World Affairs, Rm. 318 SUB.

For more info. call the Office of Third World Affairs at 545-2517.

All are invited.

Operation Crossroads

Representative of Operation Crossroads Africa of N.Y. Patrick Mazzeo, will be at UMass on Wed., March 16 10:00 - 1:00 in the New Africa House. The program involves volunteer work in rural areas in Africa. Mazzeo will be available to advise on the program, and will show slides of the program.

Application deadline has been extended until the end of March.

Eyewitness Report from Central America

Beverly Truemann
Campus Center 174-176
UMass/Amherst 01003
Wednesday, March 16th, 1983
7:30 p.m.

Ms. Truemann, a UMass graduate and a representative of the Unitarian Universalist Committee has recently returned from Nicaragua and El Salvador where she witnessed the effects of increasing US military involvement.

Ms. Trueman will speak about the revolution in Nicaragua and El Salvador and discuss the impact of US advisors on Nicaraguan counterrevolutionaries and the Salvadoran army.

Come learn about the US war in Central American and what you can do to stop it.

Summer Jobs
Amherst Upward Bound

Instructors for college preparatory curriculum (BA or BS required)
Counselor/Tutors for residential component
Pick up applications at: 205 New Africa House, UMass, Amherst, MA.
Deadline: March 18, 1983

Proxima Reunion de AHORA

Martes 14 a las 7:30 p.m. en el Campus Center
(numero de salon sera anuciado)

Cast from the Play "Day of Absence" which was performed last week at Hampden Theater in Southwest.

taking back our bodies

Sponsored by the Progressive Student Network
March 25, 26, and 27 at UPenn/Phila.
$2 donation is requested.
Housing and childcare will be provided.
Roundtrip transportation is $10 for UMass students.
For further information contact Mindy Chateauvert, P.O. Box 414, Northampton, MA 01060 or call (413) 545-0341 (work) or (413) 253-5137 (nights).

Malcolm X Center in Southwest is open during the following times:

Sunday, 12 p.m. - 11 p.m.
Monday, 12 p.m. - 10 p.m.
Tuesday, 12 p.m. - 11 p.m.
Wednesday, 12 p.m. - 11 p.m.
Thursday, 12 p.m.- 11 p.m.
Friday, 12 p.m.- 11 p.m.
Saturday, 12 p.m. - 3 p.m.

Latin American Theatre

El Campo

By Griseldo Gambaro

Monday, March 14
T.V. Studio
Smith College
8:00 p.m.
Free Admission
Sponsored by Nostias (Smith Hispanic Organization)

Support Group for Underemployed Women

A suport group for underemployed women will be offered at Everywoman's Center beginning Tuesday, February 15 from 7 to 9:00 p.m. Meeting for eight sessions, the group will focus on what underemployment is/isn't, coping with the stresses of underemployment, and helping individuals to feel comfortable with their present life circumstances in light of the current American economic scene.

This support group will be facilitated by Gerda Kunkel and is free and confidential. Please contact the Everywoman's Center at 545-0883 to sign up for the group or for more information. Childcare will be provided upon request.

Third World Theater Series

Workshop – April 16, 1:30-3:00, Smith College, Green Room

Ernest Abuba of Pan Asian Reperatory will present a workshop entitled "Introduction to Asian-American Theater: Acting Workshop".

Play April 16, 8:00 p.m., Bowker Auditorium, UMass

Pan Asian Reperatory will present the runaway hit of 1982 New York Season "Yellow Fever", by R.A. Shiomi.

Workshop April 26, 2:00-3:30 p.m., Hampden Theater, UMass

Workshop: "Make-up for Non-White Actors", Kiki Smith, costume designer at Smith college, will show film strip and lead workshop.

Workshop May 3, 1:30-3:00 p.m., Hampden Theater, UMass

Patricia Gonzalez, professor of Spanish at Smith College will present a lecture and slide presentation entitled "Latin American Teatro Nuevo" (Latin American New Theater) about the development and technique of the popular theater movement in Latin America.

Workshop May 10, 1:30-3:00 p.m., Hampden Theater, UMass

Topic: "American Indian Theater" a discussion workshop by Hana Geiogamah, playwright and director of Native American Theater Ensemble.

For further information call 545-0190. All workshops are free, Theater performances are $2-students, $3-general.

"Life in the Global Village - World Development Issues"
Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst

Sponsored by The Chancellor's Office, The Center for International Education, The Center for International Agricultural Studies, and the Peace Corps.

Monday, March 14

3:00 - 5:00
Opening Session, Room 163-C, Chancellor Joseph Duffy
Keynote Address, Abdulrahman Mohamed Babu, Visiting Professor of Black Studies, Amherst College, Room 163-C

7:30 - 9:30
Reception for Returned Peace Corps Volunteers, families and friends, Memorial Hall, UMass Campus

Tuesday, March 15

9:00 - 12:00
Films on International Development, Room 803

WORKSHOPS
9:00 - 10:00
"Language and Culture", Room 802
Josephine M. Ryan, Education

10:00 - 11:00
"Forestry in Central America", Room 805-09
Gary Burniske, Forestry

11:00 - 12:00
"Rural Agricultural Development", Room 811-B
Valerie Mailler, Plant and Soil Sciences
Tom Mahoney, Plant and Soil Sciences

11:00 - 12:00
"Education in India", Room 802
Rema Pai, Future Studies

PANEL DISCUSSIONS
1:30 - 3:00
"Women in Development", Room 805-08
Pana Putnam, Center for International Education
Nancy Herman, Anthropology
Carol Wzorek, Peace Corps
Pat McGuire, Center for International Education, Moderator

3:30 - 5:00
"Food and Agriculture", Room 804-08
John Foster, Food and Resource Economics
Nola Reinhardt, Economics, Smith College
Mary Pritchard, OXFAM
Gilbert Motta, Center for International Agricultural Studies, Moderator

Wednesday, March 16

9:00 - 12:00
Films on International Development, Room 803

WORKSHOPS
9:00 - 10:00
"Changing Peoples Eating Habits", Room 802
Dahlia Aspillera, Food Science

10:00 - 11:00
"International Careers", Room 805-08
Sterling Lamet, International Programs Office, UMass

11:00 - 12:00
"Cooperatives as a Development Tool"
Room 811-B
Doudou Jome, C.I.E.
Barbara Howald, C.I.E.

PANEL DISCUSSIONS
1:30 - 3:30
"The Role of the U.S. in World Development", Room 804-08
Randall Stokes, Sociology
E. Jefferson Murphy, 5 College Coordin.
Ralph Faulkingham, Anthropology
There will be an exhibit of photographs by Stan Sherer which pertain to conference topics on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, 8th floor lounge.

Martin Luther King, Jr. Week
Essay and Poster Contest

"Make his day a Holiday"

The planning committee for Martin Luther King, Jr. week, April 4-9 is sponsoring an essay contest in addition to the poster contest. The winning essay will be read at a candlelight vigil to be held April 4th. The deadline for poster designs is March 10th and the due date for essays is March 20th. Please submit all entries to the Student Senate, 420 Student Union Building. The prize for both the winning essay and poster will be $75.00. In the spirit of Martin Luther King, Jr. who advocated justice and equality, we encourage the entire community to take part in the poster and essay contests as well as the Martin Luther King week activities. For more information, please call 545-0341.

Spring Break is coming! Special full of ideas inside

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
Volume CXII, Issue 96 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003 (413) 545-3500 Tuesday, March 15, 1983

It's official: McLaughlin resigns

He wants to take a break, announces no future plans

Collegian photo by Dave Desber

Tom McLaughlin is shown crouching at courtside during the February 20 contest with URI. Behind him is assistant coach Ron Gerlufsen who has been named McLaughlin's temporary replacement.

By E.L. BIRK
and KEN BAZINET
Collegian Staff

Thomas M. McLaughlin, former head coach of the University of Massachusetts men's basketball team last night said he resigned from his position because basketball became his entire life.

Now he wants to take a break.

"I have a family to take care of," he said in an interview at his Amherst home. "It's been a very long season for my family and it's time for me to take a step back from basketball to see what I'm doing."

The announcement of his resignation came at a news conference yesterday afternoon following a meeting between team members, assistant coaches Ronald Gerlufsen and Mark Shea, and Athletic Director Francis P. McInerney. Gerlufsen was named acting head coach at that meeting which McLaughlin did not attend.

McLaughlin said he has asked his friend and agent Robert Woolf of Brookline to work out the remaining legal details in his contract.

"I want to find out when my family's health insurance expires and things like that," he said.

The future is open for Tom McLaughlin, but he said he does not see himself coaching in basketball again for some time.

"The last place I want to be looking for a job is as a basketball coach," he said bouncing his son Tommy John off his knee – the same son he and wife Debbie delivered last April on their bathroom floor when blizzard conditions kept them from getting to Cooley Dickinson Hospital.

McLaughlin did not mention any job offer he may have lined-up, but he did say "a wise man does not leave a job without having something in hand."

The coach became disillusioned with his performance after the Minutemen's loss to St. Peter's, 90 to 53 on February 21. That loss gave the team a 6 and 17 record.

"I was very upset after the St. Peter's game, the big loss," he said. "It was embarassing."

Sitting in his living room with his son and his wife Debbie, another UMass graduate, McLaughlin's calm demeanor defied his critics' attacks on his emotionalism and side-line action. Some fans faulted him for his support of the inflammatory "40-minute gang' and for his "abrasiveness." That is nothing he tried to play down, however, as he looked in retrospect over the season.

See related story on page 12

"They look at me and say 'he's crazy,' but I'm very laid back," he said. "However I get emotional on the sidelines."

Others talked about his occasional tendency to alienate players. But now that McLaughlin is gone, not many of the players are anxious to criticize. Forward Bobby Braun attended yesterday's meeting and described the atmosphere as somber.

"It was quiet," Braun said. "A majority of the players were discouraged to hear that Coach McLaughlin would be gone. They told us it's for personal reasons. We can believe that and just wish him success in the future."

Braun would not comment on the possible affect McLaughlin's departure would have on the team. "I gotta clean my

Continued on p. 6

UMass Judiciary convenes to consider request for writ

By JOHN O'CONNELL
Collegian Correspondent

The University Judiciary will meet tonight to consider last week's Undergraduate Student Senate decision to delay appointments of 12 senators until after senate officer elections. The hearings originally scheduled for last night, was postponed because a judge failed to show up.

The hearing must be held by tonight because the decision will affect whether or not these appointees are seated in time for the officer elections to be held tomorrow night. The senate voted to delay seating these appointees last week, following accusations that an attempt was being made to "stack" the senate prior to tomorrow's elections.

The hearing was called to consider a Writ of Mandamus filed by Southwest Area Government (SWAG) treasurer Carol Rafferty who was appointed to the MacKimmie dormitory senate seat by her house council.

A Writ of Mandamus is made to "instruct a student official to perform his or her job according to the bylaws" of the Student Government Association constitution, clerk of court Chris Cook said.

"The senate is not being charged with anything," Cook said.

Rafferty charges that she has been "denied rightful seat and place as a senator," and "therefore I request that the Undergraduate Student Senate and (senate speaker) Sharon Davies immediately place me on the roll," according to the official Writ.

Student advocate Brian Cantor, representing Rafferty, said that if the Judiciary decides in favor of Rafferty, then it "opens the floodgates," for seating the other appointees.

Cantor said he will argue that, since "there has been no violation of the election rules, then these people are already members of the senate," and it only remains for them to be seated.

Last Thursday, the Southwest Area Government (SWAG) approved a resolution condemning the senate decision to delay appointments, and SWAG co-president Fran Hegeler said last night that other area governments are "upset about the denial of representation."

Blackout hits Southwest

By ANNE McCRORY
Collegian Staff

Firecrackers, toilet paper and flaming objects flew from the windows in Southwest last night when a blackout swept through half of the residential college.

John Adams, John Quincy Adams and Washington towers, lowrises MacKimmie, Patterson, Crampton, and Prince as well as Hampden Commons were affected by the power outage which began at 9:35 p.m. Emergency hallway and roof lighting was restored after several minutes and elevators also resumed functioning at that time.

Neither UMass police nor the physical plant staff had information on the cause of the shortage or knew when the power would be restored.

The housing security dispatcher said UMass police were "out there in full force patrolling the area" after security receptionists called in to report the incident.

"It's pretty crazy out there," said dispatcher Susan [no last name was given], citing flaming newspapers dropped from the upper floors of John Adams dorm as an example.

The police are trying to keep everything under control," she said adding that blackouts happen periodically at UMass and "people go crazy and then calm down."

Noise levels had lessened considerably by 11 p.m. as students returned to their dorms after congregating outside.

Resident hall staffs, who also had no information on the cause of the situation, had their hands full.

"We have to make sure no one throws stuff, that the generator lights are working and that people stay calm 'til the lights go on," said Dave Vegilanti, a resident assistant in MacKimmie.

"We are making sure the screens are back on and trying to keep noise to a minimum," said Dave Lennon, resident assistant on the twentieth floor of John Adams tower.

Students had mixed reactions to the scene.

"I'm upset with the power outage because I have an exam tomorrow," said MacKimmie resident Richard Thorpe.

"It's an interesting experience," said Paula Nicholas of John Quincy Adams. "It's brought people out of their rooms.

I don't know how I'm going to get up in the morning if the power doesn't go back on," said Robin Rosiello, a MacKimmie resident who has a 9:30 class.

Editor's note: Power was restored to the area at 11:45 last night.

World and National News

OPEC to slash oil prices; limits member production

LONDON (AP) — The OPEC oil cartel, staggered by the threat of a global price war, announced an agreement yesterday to cut its prices nearly 15 percent and to limit each member's oil production.

The $5 reduction in the base price of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries — to $29 a barrel — may shave a few cents off the price of a gallon of gasoline in oil-importing countries, analysts believe.

But if the agreement succeeds in drying up the world oil glut gasoline prices may stop falling and could begin rising later this year.

Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani, Saudi Arabia's oil minister, predicted that within two weeks, oil prices "will firm up and start increasing."

Yamani and other oil ministers said they believed the agreement was a significant turning point for the 13-member group, whose influence on prices has been eroded by conservation and new oil discoveries in non-OPEC countries that have cut the cartel's share to less than half the Western market.

"I have a strong feeling that this will really work out, and OPEC will be in the driver's seat," Yamani said.

Oil industry circles in the Middle East, however, were skeptical.

With oil selling on the spot market for about $1.50 less than the new OPEC base price, some analysts believe oil-exporting countries will remain under pressure to cut prices further.

The success of the accord may hinge on whether or how much non-OPEC Britain reduces the price of its North Sea oil, which it cut last month to $30.50 a barrel, $3.50 less than the OPEC base.

There was no immediate reaction from Mexico, another major non-OPEC producer. But the Mexicans for years have used OPEC guidelines in pricing their oil and are expected to announce a cut in their current price of $32.50 a barrel.

OPEC's first agreement to cut prices and adhere to production quotas was worked out in a string of intense and grueling negotiations in London's Intercontinental Hotel.

Besides dropping the benchmark price — based on Saudi, Arabian light crude — to $29, the cartel set an overall production limit of 17.5 million barrels a day. Within that total, each member except Saudi Arabia pledged itself to a national quota.

The ceiling is about 4 million barrels a day above current estimated OPEC production. Yamani said it was an average for the rest of 1983, and he expects production to increase gradually over the next few months.

The Saudis refused to accept a set quota, but Yamani said they would be the "swing producer," meaning they would cut or raise output to meet changes in demand.

AP Laserphoto

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass. left, joins with former CIA Director William Colby, center, and Mike Farrell, co-star of the former M*A*S*H television series, in calling on House members to approve a joint resolution for nuclear weapons and reductions. The three appeared at a Capitol Hill news conference yesterday.

Air controllers suffer fatigue

WASHINGTON (AP) — While uncovering no clear threat to safety, federal investigators remain troubled 18 months after the dismissal of 11,500 air traffic controllers about controller fatigue, training and the reporting of errors.

The concerns are outlined in a staff report to be presented Tuesday to the National Transportation Safety Board after a three-month study of the Federal Aviation Administration's air traffic control system.

In addition to interviews of controllers at 36 FAA facilities nationwide, the NTSB investigators leaned heavily on the responses of more than 500 controllers to a detailed questionnaire, said sources close to the investigation, who spoke on condition they not be named.

The concerns surface despite assurances from the FAA that the controller work force, diminished after the controllers launched an illegal strike in August 1981, is being rebuilt on schedule and that safety remains the top priority.

The FAA expects returning to pre-strike air traffic levels later this year. There are about 14,000 supervisors and controllers now working with about half the 12,000 controllers fully trained.

The board's final report is expected to conclude that air travel is safe, as it did in a similar study a year ago.

Digest

By the Associated Press

New England women gather for march to protest gang rape

NEW BEDFORD — Angry women from throughout New England gathered yesterday for a candlelight march on City Hall to protest a gang rape in a neighborhood tavern.

Organizers said they expected several hundred women to participate in the march from the YWCA to City Hall, where officials planned a meeting to decide what, if any, action to take against the bar's operators.

The assault occurred March 6 at Big Dan's bar. A 21-year-old woman who had gone into the tavern to buy cigarettes was allegedly dragged to a pool table and repeatedly raped for two hours. Police said some of the patrons in the bar cheered the attackers.

Senate rider could threaten additional jobless benefits

WASHINGTON — With 27 states nearly out of money for unemployment benefits, the Senate struggled yesterday to crawl out of a legislative mire in which a tax withholding rider threatens enactment of the needed funds - along with a major jobs bill.

A majority of the Senate favors repealing a new law requiring withholding of taxes on dividends and interest — which is what the rider would accomplish — but President Reagan has said he would veto the job bill if the amendment is included.

Asked Monday if he had found a way out of the dilemma, Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker said, "No, I don't have a deal."

The jobless money needed to pay unemployment benefits to millions of out-of-work Americans is attached to a $3.8 billion bill designed to put people back to work. So the amendment on withholding has thrown into jeopardy the entire recession relief package.

Court holds medical records exempt from public info laws

BOSTON — The state Supreme Court held yesterday that medical and personnel records of public employees are exempt from Massachusetts' public records law.

The 21-page unanimous ruling came in a case brought by The Boston Globe, which was seeking the medical reason why public employees in Boston sought and were given disability pensions by the Boston Retirement Board.

The board had been enjoined in Superior Court from disclosing this information after the state supervisor of public records issued an order for its release.

"We have concluded that the supervisor erred...," the Supreme Court said.

"We conclude that medical and personnel files or information are absolutely exempt from mandatory disclosure where the files or information are of a personal nature and relate to a particular individual."

The court also said, however, that "information which does not permit the identificiation of any individual is not exempt."

But in this case, the court noted that the retirement board was "obligated to release considerable amounts of other information concerning the awarding of individual pensions."

"We conclude that the release of the medical statements, even without other particular identifying details, creates a grave risk of indirect identification."

Today's Staff

Night Editors — Mike Mahoney & Eileen Galligan
Copy Editor — Robin Mandel
Layout Technician — Jim Finkle
Photo Technician — Doug Deubar
Composition — Laurie Frank, Gail Tanzer, Nancy Gallo, Brian Fitz Maurice, Sheryl Silver, Terri Cooper, Margie Hochman, Maria Cahillane, Marianne Walsh, Jackie Femino, Adrianne Dufour, Donna Estabrooks, Sam Levitt, Ken Kalinowski

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday excluding vacations, exam periods, or holidays. Subscriptions are available for $18 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Massachusetts. Postmaster: Send address change to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003

NEED A TAN?

Now you can get a safe tan on our supersun suntan bed.

If you normally burn, you WON'T!

Start on your spring or Florida tan now and avoid looking like a lobster later.

ONE FREE VISIT
when you buy two at the regular price of $5 per visit.
This coupon must be presented to receive free visit

Come to the Racquet & Fitness Center
Rt 116 Sunderland or call 549-4545
Hours: M-F 7 am - 9 pm
wkends 9 am - 9 pm

Whole Wheat Pizza Factory
363 Main Street, Amherst
SOAP OPERA SPECIAL
Mon - Fri 11:30 am - 7:00 pm
SMALL PIZZA
with 2 toppings
$3.75
expires 3/31/83
Call 256-8587 for Free Fast Delivery

Students added to voting lists

By NANCY GONTER
Collegian Staff

More than 100 students registered to vote in the town elections yesterday at voter registration tables set up in the University of Massachusetts Campus Center.

A coalition of student groups, including the Commuter Area government, the Student Center for Educational Research and Advocacy (SCERA), the Undergraduate Student Senate's Public Policy Committee and the Tenant Organizing Project (TOP) organized the effort.

"We are pleased with the turnout and hope that students will continue to register on Tuesday", student organizer Mitch Gaslin said.

Students registered for a variety of reasons including the desire for more student input into town government and the issue of rent control.

"There are issues in the air that will be voted on such as rent control. Students must organize to be heard. Our lives are being shaped without our say, and without our power or significance being taken into account," said Paul Abbott, a sophomore philosophy major and newly registered voter.

"Students are definitely part of the system and things going in town will definitely affect me, especially when I move off campus," another registered voter, Rory MacKenzie said.

The town's assistant registrars were impressed by the turnout.

"It has been brisker than I thought it would be. There seems to be interest in the town elections. The students who are registering possibly have friends running for town meeting so naturally they have an interest," assistant registrar Clotilda Gawienowski said.

Wednesday is the last day to register to be able to vote in the April 5 town election. The Town Clerk's office will be open until 10 p.m. on that day.

Marilyn O'Neil, a senior political science major, explained that she didn't register to vote before the last presidential election.

"I wasn't registered and I was disappointed and I blew it. I want to vote in the town election, and now I'm ready," she said.

Registration organizer Sue Cottle said that because students are here for four years, they should register to vote.

"Amherst is as much the student's town as anyone else's. Issues vital to life in Amherst are resolved in town politics and we need to be a part of that process."

Collegian photo by Dave Deuber

Yesterday's mild weather prompted many students to pause on the steps of the Student Union to read the most popular paper on campus.

BOG election results out after delay

By MARK J. WELCH
Collegian Staff

Final election results for Campus Center Board of Governors (BOG) and Residential Committee were released yesterday by Mindy Ordway, elections official and chair of the Governmental Affairs Committee of the Undergraduate Student Senate.

The results were delayed because most of the candidates ran as "write-ins", Ordway said, which required a longer time to count the votes.

Elected to the BOG's ten "at-large" positions were: Roberto Abele, Michael J. Akrep, Michael J. Brennan, Peter P. Chmielinski, Stephen G. Davis, John Murphy, and Harry W. "Bill" Prichett, all of whom are commuters, Mary A. Coughlin of Wheeler, Paul C. Cunningham of Butterfield, and David A. Moses of John Adams.

Elected to the Greek area BOG post was Suzanne M. Ferris. Andrew M. Porter of Grayson took the Orchard Hill seat, David A. Shumsky of Brooks will occupy the Central seat, Maria T. Cahillane of Cashin will represent the Sylvan Residential Area, Ronald W. Homa, Jr. of Lewis will represent Northeast, and Waldo G. Vazquez of Thoreau and Steve Miranda of Coolidge will represent Southwest.

Five of the six Residential Committee seats were also filled in the election. Janet M. Lannan of Butterfield will represent Central, David Zeller of Hamlin will represent Northeast, John F. Kennedy of Cashin will represent Sylvan, and William L. Collins and Howard L. Breslau will represent Southwest.

The Orchard Hill seat on the Residential Committee was not filled in the election.

Photo by Mike Wallace

Deke Kohler, a senior HRTA student, displays his skills with the hacky sack in Southwest Saturday afternoon.

Duffey to represent UMass at NYU

By RICHARD NANGLE
Collegian Staff

Chancellor Joseph Duffey will represent the University of Massachusetts in a speech before the Subcommittee on Graduate Education of the National Commission on Student Financial Assistance today in New York City.

Duffey's prepared remarks were released to the Collegian yesterday.

In the speech, which will be delivered at the Loeb Student Center at New York University, Duffey will criticize the decrease in emphasis on the arts, humanities and social sciences in graduate education.

Citing three common fallacies often associated with graduate education, Duffey will assert the need to reverse the policies which have been largely orchestrated by the Reagan administration.

Duffey refutes the beliefs that graduate education in the humanities is merely an enterprise in "teaching teachers", humanities are only of marginal importance in today's society, and that the quantity of graduate students in the humanities is more important than the quality of the students.

Due to the decrease in graduate student support, according to the text of Duffey's speech, many gifted students in the arts "turn away from their natural talents."

While endorsing the monies appropriated for math and sciences Duffey asks for an increase in other areas.

According to the prepared text Duffey will tell the commission that "...we as a nation must maintain a balance between science and mathematics on the one hand and humanities, the arts and social sciences on the other. Computer literacy does not do the country any good if people are illiterate in the traditional sense."

Duffey will cite a Reagan budget request which includes "a Presidential Initiative for young investigators," which is open to "scientists in all disciplines except the social and behavioral sciences."

Because of these decreases, according to the text, enrollment in the humanities in graduate school has declined 17 percent since 1976.

UMass students will help participate in $5 million mall renovation project

By GLEN GOLDSTEIN
Collegian Staff

Students at the University of Massachusetts will help plan part of the $5 million facelift of the Mountain Farms Mall in Hadley by its new director, Charles Shutter.

The mall, renamed Manufacturers' Hyper Marche (pronounced "mar-shay," literally meaning Super Market) will feature stores that sell items directly from the manufacturers to the public.

This will result in significant savings for both the customers and the businesses that lease space in the mall, Shutter said.

Besides the retail stores, the interior of the mall will include many service-style businesses hand-picked by Shutter such as a Haagen-Dazs Ice Cream parlour, a dry cleaners, and a post office.

Over the next two years Shutter expects to see construction projects at the mall add a drug store, a health club, and the expansion of the current movie theater from four screens to six, he said.

The exterior of the mall will receive a new design from a plan put together by students and faculty at UMass. The plan includes extensive landscaping, murals, a free tram, that will transport shoppers between the mall and the parking lot, and the repair of the mall's decaying parking lot, according to Shutter.

Shutter does not just want a place to park a thousand cars, he wants to build the best parking lot in the world, Ellin Goetz, one of the graduate students involved in the project said.

The cost of the exterior improvements to the mall has been estimated at more than $1 million, Shutter said.

"Shutter has a lot of wild and crazy ideas. But the ideas came from group meetings, not just from Shutter," Mark Jacobucci said.

Jacobucci and Goetz are both candidates for masters degrees in landscape architecture and regional planning at UMass. The agreed that the project was a terrific experience for them.

Why not just hire a large Boston or New York planning company to redesign the mall?

"The kids are more alert," Shutter said. "They (the students) are not stereotyped in their ideas. They came up with a imaginative design. When you hire a big design company, you find that all the malls they design look the same."

The students are paid similarly to teaching assistants at UMass. The each receive $900 and a tuition fee waiver for their work on the project.

The mall is scheduled for opening in May of this year. However, the grand opening will not be held until September of 1984. The mall will employ 600 to 700 people when it is completed.

Polish journalist comments on nation's employment inequities

By CRIS SCHUSTER
Collegian Staff

Although the socialist laws in Poland are equal for men and women, the differences in their salaries and professional promotions continue to discriminate against women, said a Polish journalist during a lecture last night at the University of Massachusetts.

Agnieszka Wroblewska, a former domestic affairs editor for two Polish newspapers and member of the executive committee of the Society of Polish Journalists, spoke to more than 50 people about the current status of women in Poland.

"Emancipation came to us in a revolutionary way. It was given to the nation as a gift. Women moved from home to work. The possibility of education on every level opened new chances for women and they took advantage," Wroblewska said.

"Women in Poland are very well educated. But the average wages of women are 25 to 30 percent lower than the average wages of men," she said.

However, Wroblewska said, the trend of women working outside the home has shifted drastically and more and more Polish women are choosing to remain at home rather than work.

"Students are saying more often that they don't want to work," she said. "There is now a period in Poland that women are taking advantage of the fact that they don't have to work. There is a growing tendency to take advantage of the support of the government to have a child and not work."

The problem of working parents in the United States resemble those of the Polish ones, the problem of coping with a job and child care simultaneously, she said.

"Childcare centers are scarce. Women have to choose between raising a child or pursuing a career," she said.

Poland and Sweden are the only countries in the world where fathers are allowed work leave to take care of children, Wroblewska said. However, in terms of wages, it is more expensive for a father to stay home to take care of the children than for the mother, she said.

Agnieszka Wroblewska during her lecture last night.

Although the original intention of the Polish government was to improve Poland with socialist policies, it has not succeeded, she said.

"Exclusive apartments were given to workers who had never experienced running water, but they were merely symbols. The lines waiting for houses were growing. Disillusionment is growing. Three and a half million families are waiting for housing," she said.

New assistant town manager named, veteran of college town government

By NANCY GONTER
Collegian Staff

Town Manager Barry L. Del Castilho yesterday announced the appointment of Michael D. Letcher as assistant town manager.

Letcher, 29, had been the assistant town manager of Charlottesville, Virginia, since 1978. Charlottesville is a city of 40,000 and home of the University of Virginia.

Letcher's experiences and responsibilities in Charlottesville will have direct application in Amherst, Del Castilho said.

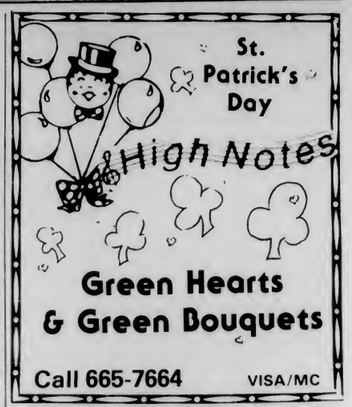
Letcher is currently responsible for managing Charlottesville's cable television franchise, and has established an agreement with the University of Virginia for interns in city departments.

Letcher was selected from a field of eleven candidates. He will begin work in Amherst on May 2 at a salary of $25,230.

Because of Del Castilho's new municipal reorganization plan, the responsibilities of the assistant have been altered. The assistant will no longer assume the position of acting town manager in Del Castilho's absence. The rearrangement will not be a demotion for the assistant, Del Castilho said.

Some of the assistant's responsibilities will be the administration of town personnel, and the coordination of the human service operating budget and capital program.

The assistant's position was vacated by Christine Hart who left the job on December 22, 1982.



Green Hearts
& Green Bouquets
Call 665-7664 VISA/MC

DELANO'S
MARCH
SPECIAL
St. Pauli Girl
& O'Keefe Bottles
2 for 1
plus our original
twofers and hors d'oevres
7 days 7 nights
4-6 pm 10-midnight
Proper ID a must
57 N. Pleasant St.
253-5141

SALE
Spring Preview
Tank Tops 2.95 - 5.95
Chinese Cotton SHOES Selected Styles SAVE 30-40%
Bamboo Blinds Save 20%
SALE Winter Clearance
Save up to 40%
Blouses - Skirts - Dresses
100% cotton
Turtlenecks - 6.95
Open Daily 10 am - 5:30
THE MERCANTILE
AMHERST CARRIAGE SHOPS

EXPLORE NEW DIMENSIONS...
Talk To Draper
Draper — the world-renowned research center, located in the Technology Square complex in Cambridge, Massachusetts, handles a volume of more than 115 million dollars each year and employs over 1700 people throughout the Laboratory.
As leaders in the industry, we're breaking new ground in Guidance, Navigation and Control, Fault Tolerant Computing, Precision Pointing and Tracking, Advanced Spacecraft, Industrial Automation and Undersea Vehicle Systems Design. And, because Draper is in the forefront of high technology — we offer hands-on experience in a "working laboratory" environment.
We do fascinating and rewarding work, attracting some of the nation's most imaginative, inventive people. If you're one of them, graduating with a BS/MS/PhD in Electrical Engineering or Computer Science, or an MS/PhD in Mechanical Engineering, arrange for a Draper interview.
We will be at University of Massachusetts
on April 5, 1983
See your Placement Office to arrange for an on-campus interview, or send your resume to: Dr. Daniel E. Gladkowski, Dept. C, The Charles Stark Draper Laboratory, Inc., 555 Technology Square, Cambridge, MA 02139.
The Charles Stark Draper Laboratory, Inc.
We are an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer, M/F

EDITORIAL/OPINION

SGA election — anything new?

I didn't vote for you, Tom Ahern and Charlene Allen.

If my former roommate — a true blue SCERAite — was still in town, he probably would have convinced me to. But he's left for Cape Cod, and I have a friend who was part of an opposing candidacy, so my vote went somewhere else.

But you won without my vote, and what I want to know is what you're going to do now.

You made some nice campaign promises — I particularly like the one about a bottle and can redemption center — but let's look at history.

Promises are not always kept.

I was only a sophomore, and had yet to be initiated to the world of student politics, when Larry Kocot and Kevin Mangan ran for the same office that you are about to take charge of.

I don't remember much about their campaign. But I do remember Kevin Mangan coming to a dorm meeting and promising the 100 or so students gathered there that "coed bathrooms are here to stay."

Now Kevin Mangan may have gotten himself on the Phil Donohue show by leading the bathroom rally, but personally, I think that's about all that the rally accomplished.

Scott Hersey

The rally attracted a whole lot of negative publicity for UMass — something which we get more than enough of anyway — and succeeded only in getting the administration to agree to a number of insignificant demands which they never said they wouldn't agree to in the first place.

I remember a lot more about Jim Murphy. I remember being really impressed with the fresh and different ideas that he offered. These were ideas that were different from anything that the other three teams were talking about.

I remember being really impressed with the idea of students buying a bond on the Campus Center. I also liked the ideas of making the student senate smaller, establishing a police misconduct review board and working for rent control.

I even voted for Jim Murphy because I liked his ideas.

But one year later I realize that they were just ideas — and not very realistic ones at that. The idea of buying a bond was kicked around for a while but eventually dropped, the senate has repeatedly shot down any attempts at reorganization and I've never heard a thing since the election about a review board.

I don't fault the ideas and I really don't know about the efforts.

What I do fault is promising things that can't be delivered.

From reading the Collegian, I understand that you have promised to open a bottle and can redemption center and to work for rent control.

They're both great ideas — I'm sure that a great number of the 2,371 students who voted for you are beer drinkers who have no where to put their bottles.

But can you do it?

How would a redemption center be financed? Who would work there? Who would run it?

As far as rent control goes, that's something that people have been promising for as long as I can remember. But there is a powerful landlord lobby in town and until you can get students to mobilize and vote, it will never happen.

So Tom and Charlene, I'm waiting to see if you can be different. Some people say that you could be.

I didn't vote for you Tom and Charlene. Why don't you make me wish I did?

Scott Hersey is a Collegian staff member

Spring break vacations for losers

It's that time of the year again when thousands of students from UMass and other colleges in the northern tundra pack their bags, shelve their books and go south.

Therefore one would expect a tribute to these hearty vacationers to appear on the editorial page. Well...not from me. Spring Break vacationers? I hate their fish eating guts.

Some of us can't afford to drive, much less fly, down to to Florida, Bermuda and the like for a week of drinking beer, soaking in the sun and blowing chow. For myself, not only can't I afford this luxury, I don't even want it.

It is to laugh. Most of the AC/DC types who make the annual trip reportedly go to "chase broads." Invariably they do their chasing in Ft. Lauderdale where the ratio of men to women during spring break weeks is roughly 3-1. This probably results in much frustration and accounts for the drunkeness.

Rich Nangle

For many students the end of this week will effectively be the end of the academic semester. After the party animal vacationers return from their excursions with their preppie tans and inflated egos the party tends to extend itself through finals week. In April and May more people can be found sitting by the Campus Pond listening to "Crank it up" WAAF trashrock than studying in the library.

But this column isn't merely on attack on those who waste their lives listening to southern rock and drinking southern beer (if it's bought below the Mason-Dixon line it is southern). This column is dedicated to those who go home for a week in March and subject themselves to bitching parents, reckless little sisters and cats that piss all over the place. In this way students prepare themselves for homelife in the summer and dormlife doesn't seem that bad afterall.

There are numerous things to do during a poverty inspired spring break. Golfers can drag their well rested clubs to the muddy links and attempt to make some sense out of a game that is sorely lacking in that aspect. Maybe this year I will find out if orange golf balls can be more easily seen in mud puddles.

Baseball fanatics can catch up on all the annual spring magazines that flood the market at this time of year. The questions abound. Can Yaz hit .300 and lead the Red Sox to the World Series in his final campaign? Will Dick Williams turn the Padres into consistent winners as he did with the Red Sox, Athletics and Expos? Will Billy Martin make the Yankees a force to be reckoned with again?

Do you think Florida types worry about the baseball season? Do they catch an exhibition game during their trip? Wrong.

And now there is the USFL. Spring break presents an excellent chance to see the Boston Breakers in action. One can also ponder how a professional sports team can expect to be profitable when it plays at Boston University's Nickerson Field.

If sport is not your bag, there may be some yardwork to be done at home. Try raking those leaves from last fall.

Then, of course, there is the music scene. This spring break offers some first class live acts. Try Hall & Oates at the Centrum. Lou Miami and the Kozmetix are having record release parties in Providence and Boston. Iggy Pop is invading the Boston area again. And to top it off, Johnny (Rotten) Lydon and Public Image Limited are making a rare Boston appearance.

Let's not forget employment. Undergrads can look for summer jobs while they are home and seniors can look for the real thing (Ouch).

The most important thing to remember about spring break is to take what you have and make the best of it. Don't be jealous of the pseudos and posers who choose to spend a week in the sun.

The next time some people tell you that they are going south this weekend give them a message from me.

Tell them to "DIE."

It will make you feel better, I guarantee it.

Rich Nangle is a Collegian columnist

Collegian

Board of Editors

Kevin Bowe Editor-in-Chief
Ed Levine Managing Editor
James Shanahan Production Manager
Joel Myerson Business Manager
John Hudson Executive Editor
John DiPalazzo News Editor
Cris Schuster Women's Editor
Doug Muise Arts Editor
Gus Martins Black Affairs Editor
Billy Shea Sports Editor
Kevin J. Fachetti Photo Editor

Letters

Comic strips' humor harmless

To the Editor:

Apparently, some people feel threatened by the humor of a few of the Collegian comic strips. Threatened surely by the whopping political and social impact of a few doodlings stuffed in the school paper, with the mere intentions of rousing a chuckle. Granted, a few of the strips may have been a bit bawdy, even tasteless at times but to take them seriously is a genuine mistake.

First of all, if one does have the notion that they are crude or offensive, who says they have to read them? Also, to think that the strips are offering a social commentary is absurd and would be insulting to the mentality of readers.

If a person (or a group) doesn't like being the focal point of innocently satirical humor, he or she is admitting that they cannot laugh at themselves.

The thought of discontinuing the comics altogether would be a blaring absurdity. Moreover, it would be sad to discover that so many hypersensitive personalities exist at our school. If this is, in fact the case, then maybe we should change our name to Bleeding Heart U. — better still, let's not.

Chris Bacich
Sunderland

Anonymous quotes questioned

To the Editor:

As one of the people who was present at the People's Gay Alliance dance on Saturday night, and as a witness to the unfortunate incident referred to in yesterday's Collegian (the heart attack suffered by an unidentified man), I would like to comment on the Collegian's reporting of the "facts" of the event. According to an "anonymous witness," the "crowd was unreal...they wouldn't let help through." Not only is this inflammatory, sensationalistic journalism, it is also blatantly false. I can attest to the fact that the PGA security people cleared out the 425 people present as quickly as possible. The "crowd" was cooperative and quiet despite the fact that many of the people did not know what was happening, and despite the fact that the police were giving contradictory orders about the use of the stairs and the elevators. I consider it to be irresponsible reporting for the Collegian to use such quotes from an unidentified source without checking on their accuracy. I also consider it to be in poor taste to report what song was playing when the man suffered the heart attack.

Commendation should be given to the two CPR instructors present who kept up their efforts at resuscitation until the arrival of the ambulance. Their prompt actions, as well as the efforts of the PGA security people to clear the area, are what the Collegian should emphasize in their reporting instead of focusing on sensationalistic, anonymous "quotes."

Beverly Davis
Northampton

(Editor's Note — The quotes contained within the story about the crowd were substantiated by two eyewitnesses. It should also be noted that officials of the People's Gay Alliance refused comment when contacted by the reporter.)

Man identified from dance death; police report potpourri of other action

By RAY BEAUCHEMIN
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts police yesterday identified a 44-year-old man who died early Saturday morning at a People's Gay Alliance dance as David E. Mitchell of Center Street, Easthampton. Mitchell had collapsed while dancing and was dead on arrival at Cooley Dickinson Hospital, Northampton.

In other police business, a 20-year-old Sudbury resident was arrested by police Friday at 11:19 a.m. at the University Apts. playground. He was charged with open and cross lasciviousness and lewd behavior.

An AM/FM stereo cassette player valued at $225 and a graphic equalizer valued at $90 were reported stolen form a car parked between level four and five of the Campus Center Garage, Friday night. The driver's side door was found unlocked, with no sign of forced entry, police said. Extensive damage was done to the dash and rear deck area of the car, they said.

An 18-year-old student from Baker dormitory was arrested Friday night in the Campus Center for possession of an altered license and procurement of alcoholic beverages by false representation. The Concord resident was reported passed out in the Hatch after having used the altered license to gain entrance to the Blue Wall.

A 19-year-old woman was arrested Saturday night at Infirmary Way and charged with driving while intoxicated with no driver's license in her possession. She was also given a citation for driving the wrong way on a one way street.

A Pembroke resident, observed by police driving over an embankment near Lot 25 and failing to stop for a flashing red light at Massachusetts Ave. and University Drive, was arrested after midnight Sunday. The 22-year-old man was charged with driving while intoxicated, failure to stop for a flashing red light and cited for not having a proper inspection sticker for his vehicle.

An 18-year-old man, who police said was causing a disturbance on the third and fourth floors of Gorman dormitory by discharging fire extinguishers and kicking over trash barrels, was arrested Saturday and charged with disorderly conduct, being a minor in possession of alcohol and assault and battery on a police officer. The man, not listed as a UMass student, was grabbed by a police officer whom he hit in the chest. Police said the suspect was not alone in the disturbance, but they made no other arrests.

Newslines . . .

Engineering East holds film festival tonight

The Amherst Railway Society will sponsor a film festival at 8 p.m. tonight in the Engineering East building auditorium. Two of the films in the film package include "Operation Reading," and "Rails Across the Summit."

Recent visitor will report conditions in Central America

An "Eyewitness Report from Central America" will be given at 7:30 tomorrow night in Campus Center Room 174-176.

Beverly Trueman, a UMass graduate and representative of the Unitarian Universalist Committee will be the speaker. She has recently returned from Nicaragua and El Salvador where she observed the effects that revolution and U.S. aid have had in the region.

Dialogue Series continues with 'Literary Circumstances'

"Literary Circumstances of the Humanities" is the topic of the fifth event in the Dialogue Series at the University of Massachusetts. Chancellor Joseph Duffey and Professor Jules Chametzky of the English Department at UMass are the speakers.

The Institute for Advanced Study in the Humanities invites the public to attend this free event which will be held at 8 p.m. tomorrow in SBA 120.

★McLaughlin

Continued from p. 1

locker," he said.

Substantial talk of the coach's resignation started to surface as early as last week but the players may have known sooner.

"I don't think they knew," McLaughlin said. "But they know me well enough to know something was up in the last week."

"I hope they stay here," McLaughlin said about players who might transfer. "It's a great university and that's why I brought them here."

As far as McInerney is concerned, McLaughlin said he had a business relationship with him and there were no problems.

Looking to the future, acting Head Coach Ronald Gerlufsen may take over as head coach but not before a nation-wide search is conducted by the University.

No matter who becomes coach, it's all the same to McLaughlin. It's college basketball. It's athletics and it's UMass.

"I'd go watch," he said about future UMass games. "Why not, it's college basketball? Hell, I might even join the "40-minute gang. When you resign, you gotta resign with dignity."

(Jim Floyd also contributed to this article.)

COLLEGE STUDENT?
UNEMPLOYED?
WIN!! FREE TRIP!! WIN!!
One week all expense paid trip to the Caribbean. Cruise on a private yacht!
PLUS PLUS
Learn the easiest way in the world to make money, right where you are, fast! Send $2.00 (cost of printing and mailing) for full information. M B Company Box 486, Walsh. CO 81090.

Summer Jobs
UPWARD BOUND/
UMASS AMHERST
Positions Available:
Instructors
(for College Preparatory Curriculum)
Counselor/Tutors
(for residential component)
Pick up applications at
205 New Africa House
Deadline: March 18, 1983
Internships also available.

WAFFLE PARTY
Have Irons
Will Travel
baked on cast iron with choice of toppings
617-544-2822

Quality titles from the Active ... America's leading Publishers
Sale
* Located on Special Sale Tables in the Trade Book Dept.
PAPERBACK BOOKS 50% OFF original price
Open M-F 9-5 Sat 11-4
Located in the Campus Center
UNIVERSITY STORE

"Life in the Global Village - World Development Issues"

Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst

Sponsored by The Chancellor's Office, The Center for International Education, The Center for International Agricultural Studies, and the Peace Corps.

Tuesday, March 15
9:00 - 12:00
Films on International Development, Room 803
WORKSHOPS
9:00 - 10:00 - "Language and Culture", Room 802
Josephine M. Ryan, Education

10:00 - 11:00 - "Forestry in Central America", Room 805-09
Gary Burniske, Forestry

11:00 - 12:00 - "Rural Agricultural Development", Room 811-B
Valerie Mailler, Plant and Soil Sciences and Tom Mahoney, Plant and Soil Sciences

11:00 - 12:00 - "Education in India", Room 802
Rema Pai, Future Studies
PANEL DISCUSSIONS
1:30 - 3:00 - "Women in Development", Room 805-08
Pana Putnam, Center for International Education
Nancy Herman, Anthropology, Carol Wzorek, Peace Corps, Pat McGuire, Center for International Education, Moderator
3:30 - 5:00 - "Food and Agriculture", Room 804-08
John Foster, Food and Resource Economics; Nola Reinhardt, Economics, Smith College; Mary Pritchard, OXFAM; Gilbert Mottla, Center for International Agricultural Studies, Moderator
Wednesday, March 16
9:00 - 12:00 - Films on International Development, Room 803
WORKSHOPS
9:00 - 10:00 - "Changing Peoples Eating Habits", Room 802
Dahlia Aspillera, Food Science

10:00 - 11:00 - "International Careers", Room 805-09
Sterling Lamet, International Programs Office, UMass

11:00 - 12:00 - "Cooperatives as a Development Tool" Room 811-B
Doudou Jome, C.I.E.; Barbara Howald, C.I.E.
PANEL DISCUSSIONS
1:30 - 3:30 - "The Role of the U.S. in World Development", Room 804-08
Randall Stokes, Sociology; E. Jefferson Murphy, 5 College Coordin.; Ralph Faulkingham, Anthropology

There will be an exhibit of photographs by Stan Sherer which pertain to conference topics on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, 8th floor lounge.

Arts

Images in wire and watercolor

TOM MANIARATTI AND DONNA ESTABROOKS
Student Union Art Gallery
March 12-26

By FRED STEINWAY
Collegian Correspondent

The Student Union Art Gallery opened a new show last Saturday that featured wire sculpture by Tom Mangiaratti and drawings by Donna Estabrooks.

Mangiaratti has constructed a well-appointed roomful of objects made entirely of heavy wire. These include a sofa, grandfather clock, mantel, bureau and piano. All the objects are life-sized, and the clocks in the art gallery "living room" are synchronized at 8 o'clock.

These works create an unusual sense of substance and invisibility. They are so real that a baby present at the opening tried to climb into the wire replica of a stuffed chair.

Mangiaratti, who has also exhibited at Zone Gallery in Springfield, was present wearing a necktie made out of wire.

The artist sharing the show, Donna Estabrooks, displayed works showing exciting artistic development over the last few years. Black-and-white lithographs titled "Weatherman" and "The Beast" contain motifs of a valentine heart and the windowed outline of a building or home. The canvas "Sum of Them" shows a row of male figures — black suit, tie and dark hat with sunglasses — depicted as so many paper doll cutouts. Estabrooks also shows a preference for a rounded square shape that often appears in the form of windows, or numbered titles in a piece called "LOBO YES."

These images recur in Estabrooks' more recent works in pastel. The house and heart recur in "Cleverly Disguised." A spontaneous and humorous element appears in these recent works. "Meme pas" is a drawing of a ringbinder page with "DEAR" blocked out in blue and the name "Michael" scrawled out below, followed by a buzz of writing and a large arrow pointing to the other side. "Tension," painted after a visit to Manhattan, shows two cats facing off over a stack of bananas.

Estabrooks' work shows an increasing interest in love. The faceless figures become "Bride and Groom" in one pastel. All the recent pastels show increased spontaneity of stroke and harmony of color and shape composition. Passionate reds and purple are combined comfortably with soothing blue greens.

The show will be open to the public until March 26.

"Tension" is one of Donna Estabrooks' pastels currently on display in the Student Union Gallery.

Salvatore Macchia, string bass, accompanied by Robert Stern, piano, will perform a variety of twentieth-century compositions written original for the bass, at 8:00 p.m. on Thursday, March 17, at Bezanson Recital Hall.

Macchia is a graduate of Hartt College of Music and Yale University. He has been a professor of music at the University of Massachusetts since 1978.

Stern, also a professor of music at the University of Massachusetts, was recently chosen by the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers to receive its 1982-83 award.

The concert, which is a part of the faculty recital series, is free of charge.

Off the Wall is on the level

MOSTLY OFF THE WALL WORKS
Various Artists
Hamden Gallery
March 8-17

By NELLIE SCIULLO
Collegian Correspondent

Mostly Off the Wall Works is an exhibit in Hampden Gallery (Southwest Residential Area) that is on display from March eighth through the seventeenth. The works are those of UMass Art Department graduate students and technicians. Not only is this exhibit one which shows talent, but the variety of art catches your interest as you walk in the door.

Precariously hung above the entrance of the gallery is George Peterson's "Never Give Guns to Fish." Make of it what you will, it certainly captures one's attention. An extended fishing pole dangles the figure of a gun at eye level. Is it possible that each person who enters the door is the "fish" that Peterson's title describes?

In this exhibit, there is an immense range of abstract art, sculptures, and cloth creations. Colleen Lucas' "Homage to Anonymous Women" is a satin and lace tapestry that says "feminine." Cotton and embroidery are coupled with the satin and lace. The diversity of texture seems to bring a personality to the tapestry.

There are several abstract paintings in the gallery. Some are done in black and white, while others concentrate on colors that activate the surface. "Changing Self Series, Number 14" By Jane Bergenn is in between in its color pattern. She uses black and white with green. There are three distinct figures in the painting. One seems to be falling, another dancing, and one in the center has a defined face and an upraised arm. This painting is like a three-dimensional reflection.

Steve Finley's "Advent of Technology" is a sculpture that mimics man's inventions. A sign on the ground that reads "Step Lively!!!" is wired to the wood sculpture of a bird. Stepping on the sign causes the wings of the bird to move. Felice Ciavano's "Venus" is another moving sculpture. A reproduction of the goddess Venus stands on a podium. Of course, the arms are non-existent past the shoulders. But in this case, there are about 10 arms encircling the statue. The arms seem to be growing from the podium — each in a different pose and each in motion.

Obviously this annual spring exhibition of UMass art could hardly bore anyone. The talent is impressive and the ideas are amusing. The hours of Hampden Gallery are Monday-Friday 4-8 p.m., and Sunday 2-5.

Photo by Drew Ogier

JB Hutto, master of the slide guitar, wowed a packed Blue Wall last Saturday night.

GOING SOMEWHERE IN A GROUP?
For your next trip—any size group—call or visit us for a price quotation. No obligation—it will be our pleasure to quote you our economical rates.

CHARTER SERVICE
To All Points In The U.S.A. And Canada.
• Mini-buses • School buses • Hotel, Meal & Sightseeing Arrangements • Luxurious Highway Coaches Restroom Equipped and Air-Conditioned • Express Bus Service to Bradley Airport For Information, Call: 781-3320
Travel Time Bus Lines, Inc.
99 Arnold Street, Springfield, MA
General Office & Charter Service: 783-0211
Toll Free in MA 1-800-322-0297

Hypercurricula

"Hypercurricula," a listing of events held at the University of Massachusetts and the surrounding area, is published daily in the Collegian. Events are listed on the day they will take place and are listed only once. Announcements MUST be submitted on "Hypercurricula" forms available in the Collegian office, 113 Campus Center, and returned by 3:45 p.m. Friday before the event is to be held. All submissions should be written in the same style as they appear in the paper.

PRE-MED CLUB MEETING — New Members Welcome. 7 p.m., Duke's Room, Student Union Building.

S.A.F.A. — STUDENTS ADVOCATING FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE — Group Meeting — The review of the trip and coming semester projects. 7 p.m., Mach - W-23.

COLLOQUIUM ON JEWISH IDENTITY — This colloq will meet on a weekly basis to discuss the relevance and continuity of Jewish tradition. 1 credit is available. Contact the colloq office in JA lobby for further info. 7 to 9 p.m., Mackimmie House Main Lounge.

AL-ANON — Having a problem with someone else's drinking — come to a meeting at the Campus Center, check schedule for room. 7 p.m.

TRY WOMEN'S WATER POLO — Organization of a women's water polo team. Practices this Spring for game skills and strategies. Strong swimming skills required. Coached by Russ Yarworth. 4 to 6 p.m., Boyden Pool.

P.G.A. Meeting — People's Gay Alliance meeting. All are welcome. 6 p.m., Campus Center room 911.

COMMITTEE FOR EQUAL RIGHTS AND REPRODUCTIVE FREEDOM GENERAL MEETING — Join us to brainstorm for a new skit. We will also be doing roleplays about reproductive rights — Everyone is welcome — Bring a friend. 6:30 p.m., 803 Campus Center.

THE BICYCLE CLUB — Bicycle Club meeting. Mandatory for Virginia Tour — pre-trip meeting. Discuss upcoming race. 7:30 p.m., C.C. Room 811B.

STUDENT MEETING — UPC General Meeting. New Members Welcome. 6:30 p.m., 165 Campus Center.

MASS PIB WOMEN'S BIBLE STUDY — All women are invited to come and study with us in an informal setting the life and teachings of Jesus Christ as described in the Bible. 8 p.m., Campus Center Room 902.

LIFE IN THE GLOBAL VILLAGE — Conference on world development issues; films, workshops, panel discussions: Women in Development, Food and Agriculture, Role of the US in Development. 9 a.m. - 5 p.m., 8th floor, Campus Center.

BUMP AND JUMP TOURNAMENT — Win a free trip to Daytona Beach this Spring break. Enter the "Bump and Jump" Tournament. LAST DAY. Tournament Hours are from 12-3:30 p.m. Located in front of Hatch. Sponsored by Undergraduate Business Club.

umass Arts council
"Excellence, scope and cultural diversity"
The Arts Council is now accepting proposals for BLOCK GRANTS
for more information call us at 545-0202.
The deadline is April 8, 4 PM

This Passover, come to OUR house for the Seders!
Mon. March 28 and/or Tues. March 29
7:30 p.m.
Call 253-9040 for reservations by Mon. afternoon March 28th
Chabad House
30 N. Hadley Rd.
Across from Whitmore/UMass
* Traditional Home Cooked Passover Meal
$8.00 Sedar both for $15.00

New for Spring
V-Neck and Boat Neck
pastel sweat shirts

10.95
your choice
Assorted Spring Colors
Many other New Spring Styles available
Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4
Located in the Campus Center
UNIVERSITY STORE

BLUE WALL AND Governor's Program Council Present
TONIGHT
"KILLER COMEDY NIGHT"
LENNY CLARKE
MIKE MOTO
KENNY ROGERSON
M.C. TERRY SLAGLE
Boston Comedy All-Stars
99¢

Bloom County — By Berke Breathed

The UMass Zone — By Mark Rollins

Katfood — By ARK

Scrod — By Dan DeBellis

After the Fall — By R. Miller

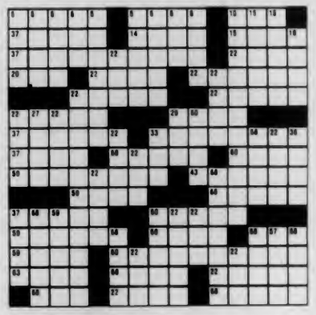
CROSSWORD

Edited by Margaret Farrar and Trude Jaffe
©1983 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

ACROSS
1 Poker bid
6 Move like a hummingbird
10 Hill or Spade
13 Mideast religion
14 Item in a tool shed
15 Cadet
17 Plays the stock market
19 Hibernia
20 Letter
21 Kind of duck?
22 Lineman
24 Kind of tiger
25 Ranch animal
26 Double quartet
29 Small amount
31 More precious
33 Seductive
37 Gambling considerations
38 To love, in France
40 Fed. news org.
41 Expressions of esteem
43 Tea type
45 When days are done
46 Mother of Perseus
47 Soft-shoe
50 Woodland deity
53 Grieg's dancer
55 Winged figure
56 St. Anthony's cross
59 Small monkey
60 Looking back
63 Hgt.
64 Proceedings
65 Mysterious
66 Before, poetically
67 Shoal marker
68 Muslin measurements

DOWN
1 Ascend
2 Adders
3 Parts of France
4 Squid's pouch
5 Rival
6 Kind of house
7 Procrastinator's word
8 White House name
9 Tryout
10 Levish TV show
11 Similar
12 Oberon of films
16 Hops product
18 Luxury's locale
23 Wine city
24 Vista
26 Repute
27 Relinquish
28 Tykes
29 Suffix for sal
30 Other, on the Ebro
32 Derby
33 Column measures
34 "The frost —— the punkin"
35 Historic cereve
36 Plum
39 "—— a cinch"
42 Always
44 Epic of unknown origin
47 Tryst
48 Infirm
49 Saltpeter
50 Bout
51 Panoply
52 Plus
54 Nomad
56 Amer. Samoa, e.g.
57 Ill-humored
58 Salt Lake team
61 French coin of old
62 Coal size



ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

WEATHER

Mostly cloudy today. Highs in the 40s. Cloudy tonight, lows from the upper 20s to the upper 30s. Cloudy east, sunny west tomorrow. Highs 40 to 50.

D.C. MENU

LUNCH
French Dip Sandwich
Eggs Foo Yung/Duc Sauce
Soy Sauce

BASICS LUNCH
Humus Vegetable Pocket Sandwich
Eggs Foo Yung/Duc Sauce
Soy Sauce

DINNER
Chicken Cutlet/ Supreme Sauce
Cranberry Sauce
Meatballs Hawaiian
Bacon-Onion Quiche

BASICS DINNER
Spinach Casserole
Chicken Cutlet/ Supreme Sauce
Cranberry Sauce

Be A Star
★
Become a star reporter for the Collegian. One of New England's largest daily college newspapers! We need people to write news and women's affairs. Great experience for any students interested in journalism or communications. Come by the Collegian anytime and ask for an editor. It's easy and it's fun. Everyone's welcome.
The Collegian
113 Campus Center
545-3500

TOMORROW

All Interested Students!!
(Seniors, Juniors, Sophomores, First Year)
You are cordially invited to attend Alumni/Alumnae Career Night.
Graduates of four university departments will speak and answer questions about their careers and YOURS.

WHEN:
Wednesday, March 16, 1983
WHERE:
Campus Center, Room 163
SPONSORS:
The Alumni Association
The University Placement Service
The College of Food and Natual Resources

MAKE YOUR MARK

at OPERATION SONSHINE'83
DAYTONA BEACH, FLORIDA

Step into an adventure this spring break at Daytona Beach, Florida. Join thousands of other Christian students from around the country for an action-packed week at Operation Sonshine '83. You'll enjoy the sun and the beach.

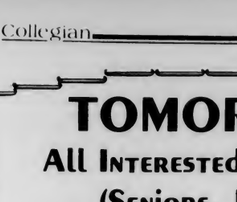
But you'll also join thousands of other students who will have the exciting privilege of seeing lives changed. This spring Josh McDowell, NFL pros and other dynamic speakers will help you make your mark.

Send in this coupon for a brochure and registration form.

Sponsored by Campus Crusade for Christ International

Yes! Send me a brochure.
Name
Address
City
State ZIP
Mail to: Chris West, 613 JF Kennedy
Cynthia Muller B-7 Emerson
or call ( ) 546-7671 . 546-7238

The Resurrection - Hoax or History?



Evidence for the Resurrection

Professor Thomas Arnold, for 14 years the headmaster of Rugby, author of a famous three-volume History of Rome and appointed to the chair of Modern History at Oxford, was well acquainted with the value of evidence in determining historical facts.

This great scholar said, "I have been used for many years to study the histories of other times, and to examine and weigh the evidence of those who have written about them, and I know of no one fact in the historyof mankind which is proved by better and fuller evidence of every sort, to the understanding of a fair inquirer, than the great sign which God hath given us that Christ died and rose agin from the dead."

Brooke Foss Westcott (1825-1901), an English scholar, said: "Taking all the evidence together, it is not too much to say that there is no historic incident better or more variously supported than the resurrection of Christ. Nothing but the antecedent assumption that it might be false could have suggested the idea of deficiency in the proof of it."

Dr. Paul L. Maier, professor of ancient history at Western Michigan University, concludes that: "If all the evidence is weighed carefully and fairly, it is indeed justifiable, according to the canons of historical research, to conclude that the tomb in which Jesus was buried was actually empty on the morning of the first Easter. And no shred of evidence has been discovered in literary source, epigraphy or archeology that would disprove this statement."

For more information come to:
SBA 109 at 6:30 pm WED. March 16
skeptics welcome!

Campus Crusade for Christ

GRC PRODUCTIONS

Come celebrate St. Patty's Daycause. . .

We're havin' a party . . .

with

SOUTHSIDE JOHNNY

and the

ASBURY JUKES

MARCH 17 SAINT PATTY'S DAY
STUDENT UNION BALLROOM
8:00

TICKETS AVAILABLE AT:
- TIX UNLIMITED
- UNION RECORDS UNLIMITED
- FINE ARTS CENTER
- FOR THE RECORD

GRADUATE TO GOLD

Now Save $25. on 14K gold College Rings.

Now's the time to think about your college ring. Not just any ring...a 14K Gold College Ring from ArtCarved. The karat gold jewelry that's designed and hand crafted for lasting value.

And now an ArtCarved 14K Gold College Ring is more affordable than you think. Choose from an entire collection of 14K Gold ArtCarved College Rings and save $25. This offer is for a limited time only, so come in and see all the great ArtCarved styles with the custom options that can let you have the ring of your choice the way you want it.

So graduate in style. Graduate to gold!

DATE March 14, 15, 16
TIME 10-4 PM
PLACE Campus Center

Deposit Required
MasterCard or Visa Accepted

ARTCARVED CLASS RINGS INC
UNIVERSITY STORE
14K KARAT GOLD

© 1983 ArtCarved Class Rings, Inc.

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Monday - Friday • Deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10 % • discount • Phone number FREE

ATARI 800 COMPUTER

Atari 800 Computer 48 or 64k RAM typewriter keyboard, new condition, BASIC book, Pac-Man $499. 546-8638
Franklin ACE 1000 full Apple II compatability, 64k, 72 keys, disk drive and monitor $1399 546-8638

AUDIO

 Stereo Earphones & Mini Speakers for all Walkman type players * just $10 pr * call now!! Mitch 549-4379

AUTO FOR SALE

67 VW Conv inspected needs work $400 or BO 323-5918 leave message

1970 - Ford Torino - 45,000 original miles 425 or best offer - call 545-3500 before 5:00 - 549-4125 after 5:00 ask for Dan

VW Super Beetle, 1972, excellent engine, OK body, heat, AM/FM radio, good tires, sun roof $800 Call Rob, 665-4817 8-9 AM or 6-9 PM. Keep trying!

68 Mustang goodcond AM Fm cassette 549-0781 ask for Bill

1973 Chevy Wagon always starts sticker $225 Mike 546-5302

BELLYGRAMS!!

Delivered by professional bellydancer for most unusual gift. Thereza, 253-7822

EMERGENY MEDICAL TECHNICIANS

"Patient Evaluation and Reporting" Thursday, March 17 1983 Cooley Dickinson Hospital (McCallum Bldg.) Northampton 6:30 PM sharp submitted to OEMS for 3 CEU hours sponsored by the Five College Chapter of MAEMT

ENTERTAINMENT

Rackadisc Entertainment Agency Inc. Bands and discjockeys guaranteed student functions 256-0739
PROFESSIONAL DJs FOR LESS Dorms, Semis, Greeks. Call-N-Save Paul 549-4406

FOR RENT

Cape Cod Summer Seasonel Rentals: W. Yarmouth & Dennis; 1, 2, 3, & 4 bedroom units. Rent direct from owners & save. 617/528-8300 or 771-2233.

FOR SALE

Tires 13" Michelin Radiels pair for $40 or BO 549-1346
For XK remote radar detector all packaging etc. just recond. by fact. $90.00 253-9678
Brand new Jensen 4½ Coaxll $70.00 or BO Deb - 256-0873
KLH512 Speakers $100.00 each; Vector Research VR2500 receiver $150 firm; one year old Hugh 546-7113
Round trip ticket to Florida open time schedule $200 or BO Steve 549-6974
Genuine French rabbit fur coats all priced from $65 - $100 call 253-7462 Mike or Jeff
5 piece bedroom set excellent condition $250.00 call after 6 pm
Cheeno's Today in Campus Center pants, shorts, jackets, sweater first quality $10
Three tix for the Kinks 10/30 floor seats at Worcester Centrum BO 546-8842
Two New Haven Dead tickets Sat. night April 23 to trade for two Friday April 22 tickets call Sue if interested 665-7194

FOUND

Pair of red winter gloves in SBA at the end of Feb. Call 546-6311 to identify

HELP WANTED

Alaska Jobs summer/year round, earn great money in this opportunity rich state, ie, earn $10,000-$12,000 on three month fishing boat. Send for 1983 Employer Listing and information packet covering all industries $5.00 Lental Reseach dept AA2114 satisfaction guaranteed
— Seniors — Jobs are available mass market yourself with Operations Research International toll free 1-800-421-3217
Cruise Ship Jobs! Great income potential, all occupations. For information call: 602-837-3401 ext 833
Earthfoods restaurant is hiring. We need students to fill the following hours ONLY. T 10-12 & 11-3, W 11-2 Th 10-1 & 11-5, F 2-5. Applications available at the Earthfoods kitchen in the Student Union. Deadline is 3/16 at 5 p.m. 3rd world students, men & women encouraged to apply.

HERPES

Persons with genital herpes needed for study. Help improve health care. Private interview. Confidentiality guaranteed. Call Mary 253-8451.

KELLIE!

S.T. Happy Birthday Gorgeous! Finaly the big two o! Je t'aime, I love you! Let's celebrate our life together. . .Always, Dean

LOST

Bifocel gold frame glasses in a gold nylon wallet Diane 546-9493
Rugby Jacket lost at Pub 3-9 wallet in pocket, it found call 545-3197 reward
Lost watch Mon, March 7 near Morrill ladies Timex digital please call 546-4651

MOTORCYCLES

1981 Kawasaki KZ550 LTD saddle bags, Bell helmet, chain and lock, cover, low milage, good shape $2100/BO 546-7164 Gary

PERSONALS

Kitchan help wanted work in exchange for meals for more info call Paul 549-3582
Susan have a great birthday!! Love, Laura and SDT
To my dearest Hermi, Happy Anniversary! How would you like to celebrate w/your favorite pillow? You buy the champagne and I'll guarantee love & service w/a smile. I love you Honey! - MooMoo
Dance with the Museum Direktors! March 17, Newman center 9-1!
Bath, Have the time of your life in Cal. Now you've had your own personal! I'll miss you! I love you! Bryan
Laura, Happy 21st B-day, sweetheart! I love you and can't wait until your 22nd (Europe, together) Ooh Poxy, I love you, Keith

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Dissertations, Theses, Cases, Papers, guaranteed acceptance, low rates, Nancy 5-0392, 584-7924

REWARD

Silver 24" S-chain necklace lost on N. Pleasant St. between Health Center & Arnold House (across from GRC) or on bus on Fri morning sentimental value call 665-4430

RIDE NEEDED

Ride needed to Wyoming after finals before 6/6. Must know soon! Ann 256-6056
Ride needed to Philadelphia area on 3/16 or 3/17 call Rachel 546-8740
Ride wanted to Framingham on Friday 3/18 at about 2:30ish call 549-1511
Ride wanted to Florida Spring Break share expenses driving call Eric 256-8382

RIDERS WANTED

To Fort Lauderdale Spring Break I'll supply free ride if you supply free lodging 546-5259

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female wented for summer rental in Yarmouth 3 minute walk to beach. For more info call Kathy or Gail 546-4133 or 546-4136

SERVICES

PAPER DUE? CAN'T WRITE? Tutor -english composition and grammar reasonable rates 6-9289
If you're tired of unexciting portraits, have your custom-made glamour photos produced at THE STUDIO, home of fine photography. 664 Main, Amherst. 253-6091. Yes, we do portfolio work.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY BENEFIT

Live! The Museum Direktors! March 17th, 9 pm - 1 am Newman Center

SUMMER JOBS

Country club in Millis Mass. now interviewing for pool director and lifeguards. Must be available 5/25/83 - 9/5/83 617-376-2978

SEND A FRIEND A GREEN CARNATION

Send a friend or someone special a green carnation for St. Patricks Day. Names will be printed in the Collegian for pick up. A table will be on Campus Center Concourse beginning TODAY till Wed before Spring Break. Surprise someone

TO SUBLET

3 Bedroom Apt. to sublet w/possible fall option 549-1377
Apt. in Squire Village $395 mth + utilities fall option call 665-2127
Brittany Manor 2 bedroom apt, summer sublet, fall option 253-5956
Two bedroom apt - Brandywine for sublet for summer call 549-2773 after 6:00 PM

TO SUBLET W/FALL OPTION

2 bedroom apt. townhouse in Squire Village $265 mo inc. option on lease Phil or Leah 665-7537

TRAVEL

UMass Ski Club goes north Spring Break 83 March 20-25
Stowe. Ski club capital of the East. Only $159 includes: transportation, hot tub party, beer & wine parties, 5 day lift ticket, all taxes & gratuities & much, much, more. For more info contact the UMass Ski Club Rm 430A Student Union or call 545-3437
FLORIDA by van 3/19 - 27 $148 round trip wine/cheese accomodation info limited seats S.S. Van Lines 617-724-8810
Ride needed for two to Florida for spring break. Will share driving and expenses. call 665-7076 eves. please!

WANTED

Class rings, gold and silver jewelry and coins. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant, Amherst. 256-0710
Help $50 reward for helping me by your parents unwanted second car 253-7189
Cash for your records, tapes 545-2836 (ask for Jaromir/leave message)
Ride to JFK airport 3/18 by 11 am desperate call Karen 253-2169
Records LPs Cash or Trade Dynamite Records 584-1580
Guitar teacher wanted pop, rock. Want to learn tp lay by ear. Call 6-9696

WANTED TO RENT

2 or 3 bedroom Townhouse or Puffton to rent from June on. John 546-9139 Mike 546-9141

ADAM ANT

SPRINGFIELD CIVIC CENTER
Limited Capacity "Little Arena"
April 13th - 8:00 pm
All seats reserved - $9.50

On sale at Springfield Civic Center Box Office, all Stop & Shop "Datatix" Outlets, Platterpus Records — Northampton and Westfield, For the Record — Amherst, Record Town — Ingleside Mall and Music World — Enfield.

Mastercard and Visa phone-charge (413) 787-6600
Charge tickets or pay by check TOLL-FREE 1-800-243-4842

TICKET SALES BEGIN WEDNESDAY, MARCH 16th!

Event co-ordinated by OVATION ENTERTAINMENT

STYLES BY DEBORAH

NEW WAVE & DESIGN HAIRCUTS

$8.00 with this coupon
10.50 with shampoo & Blow Dry
11.50 long hair shampoo & Blow Dry

Free Consultations
please call for an appointment
STYLES BY DEBORAH
65 University Drive, Amherst
549-5610
C

Sports

Candidates for the Stockbridge golf team should attend a meeting today, Tuesday, at 4:30 p.m. in Room 223 Boyden. Anyone who cannot attend the meeting should contact Jack Leaman at Rm. 228 Boyden or call 545-1301.

Gerlufsen named temporary UM hoop coach

By BILL SHEA
Collegian Staff

Ron Gerlufsen is in a difficult position.

The former assistant coach under the departed Tom McLaughlin, who resigned as expected yesterday, has been named acting head coach of the University of Massachusetts basketball program and apparently does not know how long his appointment will be effective.

Gerlufsen accepted the request of the University to serve as acting head coach while procedures are drawn up to appoint a permanent head coach.

Assistant coach Mark Shea, who has worked with Gerlufsen the past two seasons, will remain as an assistant to Gerlufsen at least until a permanent coach is appointed.

The uncertainty surrounding the program could cause problems, especially involving recruiting.

"I think the temporary status will have an effect on recruiting. A lot of times these high school players want to know who they are going to be playing for," he said. "We will stress the University as much as possible while talking to recruits."

Uncertain of his future status Gerlufsen is concerned about the spring, about keeping players in shape both physically and mentally.

"Our first concern is academics," he said. "We have to make sure all the players are set academically. Then, there is weight training and recruiting in the spring."

"It's a temporary position," continued Gerlufsen. "There has been nothing said about when the position will be filled."

Gerlufsen has been an assistant coach at UMass for the past two years, and contributed to the rise of the program the last two seasons.

And the new head coach gives credit where credit is due.

"We take a look at what this program was a couple of years ago. It was in the cellar of this building (Cage). Now it's not. Coach McLaughlin has to be credited with a lot of that."

Gerlufsen indicated he would be interested in a permanent appointment as head hoop coach at UMass.

"Since I've gotten out of college and coached on the seventh grade level one of my goals has been to coach on the major college level," he said. "I'd be very interested in that."

Gerlufsen was named head coach at Manasquan High School in New Jersey from 1974 to 1981 where his teams posted a 99-76 record and won three Shore Conference Championships.

A 1971 graduate of East Stroudsburg (Pa.), Gerlufsen started his coaching career at Eisenhower Intermediate School in Freehold Township, New Jersey, before moving to Manasquan as a junior varsity coach in 1973.

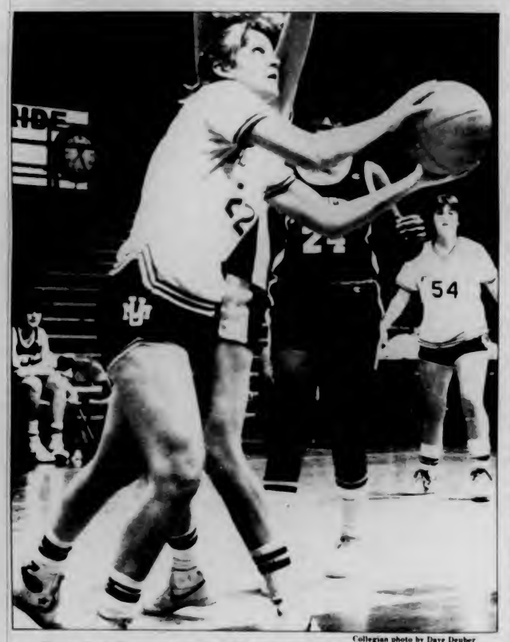
With the shake-up in the coaching staff, players transferring is a concern but Gerlufsen has heard nothing solid along these lines.

"Most of what I've heard along those lines is rumor," he said. "Nobody, as far as I know, is transferring next year."

Gerlufsen didn't set any specific goals, but he already has a firm idea on what he would do as UMass head coach.

"I think we played well at times and saw things we did on the floor that were positive but we just have to refine them a bit," he said.

Women's basketball: Not the best year to remember



Collegian photo by Dave Deuber

Karen Damminger, named to The Atlantic 10 All-Rookie team, in action against Providence earlier this year had some superb efforts for UMass this season as did Barbara Hebel (54, background).

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

For the eight freshmen, three sophomores, one junior and departing coach Mary Ann Ozdarski, the 1982-83 women's basketball season was a long one — one that they would like to forget.

For you see, the University of Massachusetts only won five of 27 games mainly due to the inexperience of the freshmen, who made up four-fifths of the lineup.

The good thing about this year is that no one is graduating and the Minutewomen will be better just for the fact that the team has a year of experience under their belts.

However, 1982-83 was not a year to make a highlight film from. The Minutewomen did put together good efforts in wins over Siena, UConn, Harvard, Vermont, and Dartmouth and in losses from Fordham, Maine, Central Connecticut and Fairfield, but other than those games, the rest were on the most part blowouts.

"Inexperience played a big part (in UMass' problems)," said junior Wendy Ward. "At times we played well. Against Fordham, we were down by 23 and we came back and tied it up. But, they kept their composure and we lost."

"They (other teams) could tell that we were freshmen," said Barbara Hebel. "We would get excited and wouldn't be able to take control at the end."

While Massachusetts outlasted Siena in a 66-61 opening game win (a real confidence booster for the young UMass team) they dropped a two point loss to Fairfield, and Maine, along with the narrow one point loss to Fordham in the middle of January.

Things looked on the up and up as the Minutewomen took a 4-6 record into intersession, where the bottom fell out. UMass got stuck on an 11 game losing streak and won only one of their last 17 games.

That was a win over Dartmouth, then 11-4, in one of the year's best efforts, said Ward.

"We played the best in the Dartmouth game," said Ward. "It was a total 40 minute effort."

Part of the UMass problem was that they could not put together a consistent 40 minute effort all the time. But some individuals did.

Karen Damminger, the team's second leading scorer at 12.0 a game, was named Atlantic 10 Rookie of the Week twice and was named to the conference All-Rookie team. She scored 27 points in the win over Harvard.

Barbara Hebel, who was the team's leading scorer at 12.8 a game and consistently ranked in the top 10 in league scoring, put in some steady efforts for UMass including a spectacular 37 point effort against Siena in the season opener.

Wendy Ward led the team at the point guard position. She was the leader on the floor and the team's third leading scorer.

Another important mid-season plus for UMass was the fact that Nadine Jackson rejoined the team. The Amherst native was a big factor and immediate help in the rebounding department.

Center Kelly Collins matured over the course of the season and Rebecca Kuchs, Jerrie Bernier, Jean Cooper and Maria Chomentowski played well and learned. Patty Maguire, Jennifer Todd and Elizabeth Bruhn saw limited action.

All these players will be back next year, but coach Ozdarski will not. She told her team before the Penn State playoff match that she would not be returning next year.

It was only the second losing season under Ozdarski. The year before UMass was 9-16.

"The year didn't go that well as far as wins/losses were concerned," said Ward, "but the team grew and came a long way that didn't show in the win/loss column."

The wealth and benefit of experience should make itself apparent next year.

Horsefeathers and GQ IV in intramural final four

By KEVIN DELUCA
Collegian Staff

There was plenty of excitement and one near gigantic upset as the intramurals basketball quarterfinals were held last night at Boyden Gym. The semifinals will be held tonight at 6 p.m.

The most exciting game, by far, was the GQ IV-Running Rebels matchup. GQ IV, led by Garry Pearson, Dwayne Lopes, Grady Fuller, Wilbur Jackson and Abe Yacteen has been undefeated for the past four years and is going for a fourth straight championship.

Last night, however, the Running Rebels almost put an end to that streak.

The score was tied at 40-40 with 45 seconds remaining and with GQ IV in possession. Pearson and Lopes played catch for 35 seconds before Pearson drove for the layup and was fouled.

After a timeout, Pearson hit the front end of a one and one to break the deadlock. He missed the second shot, though, and Brad McGrath of the Rebels headed upcourt with the ball.

At that point, Lopes made a near game losing error by fouling McGrath in the backcourt. Fortunately for GQ IV, McGrath missed the front end of the one and one and the game belonged to GQ IV. The final tally was 41-40.

Yacteen led the winners with 17 points and Jackson added 11.

In other quarterfinal games, the Horsefeathers, now 10-0, defeated the Greenough T.C.'s in a competitive, up and down game by the score of 55-48.

The Horsefeathers led by four points at halftime and maintained their lead throughout the second half. Greenough did come within three at 48-45 with only a few minutes remaining in the contest. Horsefeathers held on to win and now face GQ IV in the semifinals tonight at 6 p.m. in Boyden.

Mike Shea led the winners with 15 points.

In the other two games, the Honeymooners made a successful comeback and defeated Phi Sigma Kappa 37-33 and Black Magic annihilated Skip Kids by the score of 36-22. The Honeymooners will meet Black Magic in the other semifinal, also at 6 p.m. tonight in Boyden.

A publication of the UMass Daily Collegian March 15, 1983

Berkshires means vacation is always nearby

Amherst sans books is a second world . . .

By NANCY GONTER
Collegian Staff

Some people just don't have the money or inclination to go south, north or home for Spring Break. These people remain in the Amherst area for the vacation.

The Amherst area doesn't have to be a dull place when the students are gone. There are a variety of events, places to go, and things to do here.

Maple sugaring, drinking, a re-enactment of the first women's basketball game and Holyoke's Saint Patrick's Day parade are possible diversions in the Pioneer Valley during March break.

Several maple sugar houses are open in the area. Carlyle Field and Son's, off Route 63 in Leverett, is open daily, selling maple products. More information can be obtained by calling 549-1894.

The maple sugar house operated by Steve Telega is located on Route 116, next to the State Fish Hatchery (on the Sunderland bus route). Telega's is open daily and sells maple products. More information can be obtained by calling 549-1894.

Breakfast, including freshly made maple syrup, is served at Gray's Sugar House in Ashfield. Follow Route 116 to the center of Ashfield, and take a right at the sign for Gray's. Going to Gray's involves a long, scenic drive, but the food and real maple syrup (no more generic syrup), are well worth the drive. Gray's is only open on weekends.

For those sports-oriented people remaining in the area, Smith College women are presenting a re-enactment of the first women's basketball game on March 22 for the 90th anniversary of women's intercollegiate basketball. The game will feature costumes of that period and will be held at Smith. For information and reservations call the Northampton Chamber of Commerce at 584-1900.

